22741

LAKESHORE PRESS, BIRMINGHAM, ALA. 35209

WORK ORDER

MICROFILM DEPARTMENT

SAMFORD UNIVERSITY LIBRARY
800 Lakeshore Drive
Birmingham, Alabama 35209

For Special Collection
in samford Univ. Library

Date of Order: 2/8/84

Date Promised:

Pages Filmed:

☒ M/f Neg.
☒ XX M/f Pos.
☐ X/c loose
☐ X/c bound
☐ Photocopies

QUANTITY	DESCRIPTION	UNIT PRICE	EXTENSION
	Alabama Newspapers-to be microfilmed and one neg. and two pos. made THE CHILTON VIEW - Clanton, AL N 10-D 29, 1881; Ja 5-D 28, 1882; Ja 11-D 20, 1883; Ja 3-D 27, 1884; Ja 8-D 31, 1885; Ja 7- D 30, 1886; Ja 6-D 29, 1887; Ja 5-D 27, 1888; Ja 3-D 26, 1889; Ja 9-D 25, 1890; Ja 8-D 31, 1891; Ja 7-D 29, 1892; Ja 5-D 28, 1893; Ja 4-D 20, 1894; Ja 3-D 19, 1895; Ja 2-Ja 9, 1896 THE BANNER - Clanton, AL Ja 2-D 31, 1896 Many Issues Missing

INVOICE NO.:

Photographic reproductions are made by the Samford University Library solely for the research or private study of the applicant; extracts copied are not to be reproduced or distributed in full or in part; and no part of the photocopy will be quoted by the applicant for use in his own works or elsewhere without the permission of the copyright owner. The applicant assumes all responsibility for possible infringement of copyright, or, in the case of manuscripts, literary property rights, in the act of copying the materials or in the subsequent use of them.

The applicant agrees to make proper acknowledgment to the publication from which the photocopy is made, or to the Samford University Library in the case of manuscript material in its collections. He further agrees to secure permission from the Library, in advance, to publish any part of such manuscript materials.

Microfilming—Xerox—Positive Prints—Photo Copies

Authorization Signature ____________________

No. M 5792

Microphotographed
by

1842

Harwell Goodwin Davis Library
Samford University
Birmingham, Alabama

ALABAMA NEWSPAPERS
THE CHILTON VIEW
CLANTON, AL
1887

BOUND VOLUMES

DIFFICULT TO FILM PROPERLY

ORIGINALS ARE DEFECTIVE

THE CHILTON VIEW

Clanton, Alabama

	1887	1888	1889
Ja	6 13 20 27	5 12 19 26	3 10 17 24 31
F	3 10 17 24	2 9 16 23	7 14 21 28
Mr	3 10 17 24 31	1 8 15 22 29	7 14 21 28
Ap	7 14 21	5 12 19 26	4 11 18 25
My	5 12 19 26	3 10 17 24 31	2 9 16 23 30
Je	2 9 16 23 30	7 14 21 28	6 13 20 27
Jl	7 14 21 28	5 12 19 26	4 11 18 25
Ag	4 11 18 25	2 9 16 23 30	1 8 15 22 29
S	1 8 15 22 29	6 13 20 27	5 12 19 26
O	6 13 20 27	4 11 18 25	3 10 17 24 31
N	3 10 17 24	1 8 15 22	7 14 21 28
D	1 8 15 22 29	6 13 20 27	5 12 19 26

Rates of Advertising.

One Dollar per Square, of one inch space or less, for the first, and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion.

INCHES.	3 m.	6 m.	12 m.
1 Inch	$5 00	$7 00	$11 25
2 Inches	7 00	11 25	16 00
3 Inches	10 00	15 00	22 50
4 Inches	12 50	20 00	27 00
5 Inches	15 00	22 50	33 00
¼ Column	18 00	27 00	40 00
½ Column	27 00	40 00	60 00
1 Column	40 00	60 00	100 00

The Chilton View.

W. H. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors. "WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION." TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY. JANUARY 6, 1887. NUMBER 9.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Subject of Discourse: "On Trial."

TEXT: "I have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous."—I John ii, 1.

Standing in a court-room you say to yourself: "At this bar crime has often been arraigned; at this witness stand the oath has often been taken; at this jurors' bench the verdict has been rendered; at this judge's desk sentence has been pronounced." But I have to tell you to-day of a trial higher than any Oyer and Terminer or Circuit or Supreme or Chancery. It is the trial of every Christian man for the life of his soul. This trial is different from any other in the fact that it is both civil and criminal. The issues at stake are tremendous, and I shall in my sermon show you, first, what are the grounds of complaint; then, who are the witnesses in the cause, and lastly, who are the advocates.

When a trial is called on, the first thing is to have the indictment read. Stand up then, O Christian man, and hear the indictment of the court of high heaven against thy soul. It is an indictment of ten counts, for thou hast directly or indirectly broken all the ten commandments. You know how it thundered on Sinai, and when God came down how the mountains rocked and the smoke ascended as from a smouldering furnace and the darkness gathered thick and the loud deep trumpet uttered the words: "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Are you guilty or not guilty. Do not put in a negative plea too quick, for the Bible announces that "all have sinned and come short of the glory of God. There is none that doeth good; no, not one. Whosoever shall keep the whole law, yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all." Do not, therefore, be too hasty in pronouncing yourself not guilty.

This law before us also charges you with the breaking of a solemn contract. Many a time did we promise to be the Lord's. We sat down on our knees and said: "O Lord, I am thine now and forever." Did you keep the promise? Have you stood up to the contract? Go back to your first communion. You remember it as well as if it were yesterday. You know how the vision of the cross rose before you. You remember how from the head and the hands and the side and the feet, there came pleading forth these two words: "Remember Me." You all know the cup of communion trembled in your hand when you first took it, and as in a shell you may hear, or think you hear the roaring of the surf even after the shell has been taken from the beach, so you lifted the cup of communion and you heard in it the surge of the great ocean of a Saviour's love; and you came forth from that communion service with face shining as though you had been on the Mount of Transfiguration, and the very air seemed tremulous with love of Jesus, and the woods and the hills and the grass and the birds were brighter and sweeter-voiced than ever before, and you said down in the very depths of your soul: "Lord, Thou knowest all things, Thou knowest that I love Thee." Have you kept the bargain, O Christian man? Have you not sometimes faltered when you ought to have been bold? Have you not been proud when you ought to have been humble? Have you not played the coward when you ought to have been the hero? I charge it upon you and I charge it upon myself—we have broken the contract.

Still further, this law suit claims damages at your hand. The great complaint on the Christian man is his inconsistent profession. The world says religion is one thing; we by our inconsistency say religion is something else. It is a very deplorable thing that people can see faults in others while they cannot see any in themselves. If you should find one that is meddling, a scold, a gossip, who runs from house to house, from the crown of her head to the sole of her foot a perfect blotch in herself, she will go tattling, tattling, tattling all the years of her life about the inconsistencies of others, having no idea that she is, instead of helping, to drive the world from the gospel [illegible]. I think Christians are the [illegible]. Now the chariot of Christ's salvation goes on through the world; but it is our inconsistencies, my brethren, that block the wheels, while all along the line there ought to have been cast nothing but palm branches, and the shout should have been lifted: "Hosanna to the Son of David!"

Now you have heard the indictment read. Are you ready to plead guilty or not guilty? Perhaps you are not ready yet to plead. Then the trial will go on. The witnesses will be called and we shall have the matter decided. In the name of God I now make proclamation. Oyez! Oyez! Oyez! Whosoever hath anything to offer in this trial, in which God is the plaintiff and the Christian soul the defendant, let him now step forth and give testimony in this solemn trial.

The first witness that I call upon the stand in behalf of the prosecution is the world—all critical and observant of Christian character. You know that there are people around you who are daily looking out for the frailties of God's children. You may know, if you have lived in the country, that a crow cares for nothing so much as carrion. There are those who imagine that out of the faults of Christians they can make a bridge of boats across the stream of death, and they are going to try it; but alas, for the mistake! When they get midstream away will go the bridge, and down will go their souls to perdition. O world of the greedy eye and the hard heart, come on the stand now and testify in behalf of the prosecution against this Christian soul on trial. What do you know about this Christian man? "Oh," says the world, "I know a great deal about him. He talks about putting his treasures in heaven, but he is the sharpest man in a trade I ever knew. He seems to want us to believe that he is a child of God, but he is just full of imperfection. I do not know but I am a great deal better than he is now. Oftentimes he is very earthly and he talks so little about Christ and so much about himself. I am very glad to testify that this is a bad man."

Stop, O World with the greedy eye and hard heart. I fear you are too much interested in this trial to give impartial evidence. Let all those who hear the testimony of this witness know that there is an old family quarrel between these two parties. There always has been a variance between the world and the church and while the world on the witness stand to-day has told a great deal of truth about this Christian man, you must take it all with some allowance, remembering that they still keep the old grudge good. O World of the greedy eye and the hard heart, that will do. You may sit down.

The second witness I call in this case is Conscience. Who art thou, O Conscience? What is your business? Where were you born? What are you doing here? "Oh," says Conscience, "I was born in heaven; I came down to befriend this man; I have lived with him, I have instructed him, I have warned him. I showed him the right and the wrong, advising him to take the one and eschew the other; I have kindled a great light in his soul; with a whip of scorpions I have scourged his wickedness and I have tried to cheer him when doing right; and yet I am compelled to testify on the stand to-day that he has sometimes rejected my mission. Oh, how many cups of life have I pressed to his lips that he dashed down, and how often has he stood with his hard heel on the bleeding heart of the Son of God! It pains me very much that I have to testify against this Christian man, and yet I must, in behalf of Him who will in no wise clear the guilty, say that this Christian man has done wrong. He has been worldly. He has been neglectful. He has done a thousand things he ought not to have done and left undone a thousand things he ought to have done." That will do, Conscience. You can sit down.

The third witness I call in the case is an angel of God. Bright and shining one, what doest thou here? What hast thou to say against this man on trial? "Oh," says the angel, "I have been a messenger to him and have guarded him. I have watched him. With this wing I defended him, and oftentimes when he knew it not I led him into the green pastures and beside the still waters. I snatched from him the poisoned chalices. When bad spirits came upon him to destroy him, I fought them back with infinite fierceness; and yet I have to testify to-day that he has rejected my mission. He has not done as he ought to have done. Though I came from the sky he drove me back. Though with this wing I defended him and though with this voice I wooed him, I have to announce his multiplied imperfections. I dare not keep back the testimony, for then I should not dare to appear again among the sinless ones before the great white throne."

There is only one more witness to be called on behalf of the prosecution and that is the great, the holy, the august, the omnipotent Spirit of God. We bow down before Him. Holy Spirit, knowest thou this man? "Oh, yes," says the Holy One. "I know him. I have striven with him ten thousand times and though sometimes he did seem to repent, he fell back again as often from his first estate. Ten thousand times ten thousand has he grieved me, although the Bible warned him, saying: 'Grieve not the Holy Ghost. Quench not the Spirit.' Yes, he has driven me back. Though I am the Third Person of the Trinity, he has trampled on my mission, and the blood of the atonement that I brought with which to cleanse his soul, he sometimes despised. I came from the throne of God to convert, and comfort and sanctify, and yet look at that man and see what he is compared with what, unresisted, I would have made him."

The evidence on the part of the prosecution has closed. Now let the defence bring on the rebuttal testimony. What have you, O Christian soul, to bring in reply to this evidence of the world, of the conscience, of the angel and of the Holy Ghost? No evidence! Are all these things true? "Yes. Unclean, unclean," says every Christian soul. What? Do you not begin to tremble at the thought of condemnation?

We have come now to the most interesting part of this great trial. The evidence all in, the advocates speak. The profession of an advocate is full of responsibility. In England and the United States there have arisen men who in this calling have been honored by their race and thrown contempt upon those who in the profession have been guilty of a great many meannesses. That profession will be honorable as long as it has attached to it such names as Mansfield and Marshall and Story, and Kent and Southard, and William Wirt. The court room has sometimes been the scene of very marvellous and thrilling things. Some of you remember the famous Girard will case, where one of our advocates plead the cause of the Bible and Christianity in masterly Anglo-Saxon, every paragraph a thunderbolt.

Some of you have read of the famous trial in Westminster Hall, of Warren Hastings, the despoiler of India. That great man had conquered India by splendid talents, by courage, by bribes, by gigantic dishonesty. The whole world had rung with applause or condemnation. Gathered in Westminster Hall, a place in which thirty Kings had been inaugurated, was one of the most famous audiences ever gathered. Foreign Ministers and Princes sat there. Peers marched in clad in ermine and gold. Mighty men and women from all lands looked down upon the scene. Amid all that pomp and splendor, and amid an excitement such as has seldom been seen in any court-room, Edmund Burke advanced in a speech which will last as long as the English language, concluding with this burning charge which made Warren Hastings cringe and cower: "I impeach him in the name of the Commons House of Parliament, whose trust he has betrayed. I impeach him in the name of the English nation, whose ancient honor he has sullied. I impeach him in the name of the people of India, whose rights he has trampled on, and whose country he has turned into a desert. And lastly, in the name of human nature, in the name of both sexes, in the name of every age and rank, I impeach him as the common enemy and oppressor of all."

But I turn from the recital of those memorable occasions to a grander trial and I have to tell you that in this trial of the Christian for the life of his soul the advocates are mightier, wiser and more eloquent. The evidence all being in, Justice rises in behalf of the prosecution to make his plea. With the Bible open in his hand, he reads the law, stern and inflexible, and the penalty: "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Then he says: "O, thou Judge and Lawgiver, this is Thine own statute and all the evidence in earth and heaven agrees in stating that this man has sinned against all these enactments. Now let the sword leap from its scabbard. Shall a man go through the very flames of Sinai unsinged? Let the law be executed. Let judgment be pronounced. Let him die, I demand that he die."

O Christian, does it not look very dark for thee? Who will plead on thy side in so forlorn a cause? Sometimes a man will be brought into a court of law and he will have no friends and no money, and the judge will look over the bar and say: "Is there any one who will volunteer to take this man's case and defend him?" and some young man rises up and says: "I will be his counsel," perhaps starting on from that very point to a great and brilliant career. Now, in this matter of the soul, as you have nothing to pay for counsel, do you think that any one will volunteer? Yes, yes; I see One rising. He is a young man, only thirty-three years of age. I see His countenance suffused with tears and covered with blood, and all the galleries of heaven are thrilled with the spectacle. Thanks be unto God, "we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous."

O Christian soul, your case begins to look better. I think perhaps after all you may not have to die. The best advocate in all the universe has taken your side. No one was ever so qualified to defend a man as this advocate is qualified to defend you. He knows all the law, all its demands, all its penalties. He is always ready. No new turn of the case can surprise Him, and He will plead for you for nothing as earnestly as though you brought a world of treasures to His feet. Besides that, He has undertaken the care of thousands who were as forlorn as you, and he has never lost a case. Courage, O christian soul. I think that after all there may be some chance for you, for the great Advocate rises to make his plea, he says: "I admit all that has been proved against my client. I admit all these sins, aye, more; but look at that wounded hand of mine, and look at that other wounded hand and at my right foot and at my left foot. By all these wounds I plead for his clearance. Count all the drops of my tears. Count all the drops of my blood. By the humiliation of Bethlehem, by the sweat of Gethsemane, by the sufferings of the cross I demand that he go free. On this arm he hath leaned; to this heart he hath flown; in my tears he hath washed; on my righteousness he hath depended. Let him go free. I am the ransom. Let him escape the lash, I took the scourgings. Let the cup pass from him, I drank it to the dregs. Put on him the crown of life, for I have worn the crown of thorns. Over against my cross of shame set his throne of triumph."

Well, the counsel on both sides have spoken and there is only more thing remaining, and that is the awarding of the judgment. If you have ever been in a court-room you know the silence and the solemnity when the verdict is about to be rendered or when the judgment about to be given. About this soul on trial, shall it be saved or shall it be lost? Attention! above, around, beneath. All the universe cries: "Hear! Hear!"

The judge rises and gives this decision, never to be changed, never to be revoked: "There is therefore now no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus."

"The soul that on Jesus hath leaned for repose,
I will not, I will not desert to his foes;
That soul, though all hell should endeavor to shake,
I'll never, no never, no never forsake."

But, my friends, there is coming a day of trial in which not only the saint but the sinner must appear. That day of trial will come very suddenly. The farmer will be at the plough, the merchant will be in the counting-room, the woodman will be ringing his axe on the hickories, the weaver will have his foot on the treadle, the manufacturer will be walking amid the buzz of looms and the clack of flying machinery, the counsel may be standing at the bar, pleading the law, the minister may be pleading the Gospel, the drunkard may be reeling amid his cups, and the blasphemer with the oath caught between his teeth.

Lo! the sun hides. Night comes down at mid-noon. A wave of darkness rolls over all the earth. The stars appear at noon-day. The earth shudders and throbs. There an earthquake opens and a city sinks as a crocodile would crunch a child. Mountains roll in their sockets and send down their granite cliffs in an avalanche of rock. Rivers pause in their chase for the sea, and ocean uprearing cries to flying Alps and Himalayah. Beasts bellow and moan and snuff up the darkness, clouds fly like flocks of swift eagles. Great thunders beat and boom and burst. Stars shoot and fall. The almighty, rising on His throne, declares that time shall be no longer and the archangel's trump repeats it till all the living near and the continents of dead spring to their feet, crying: "Time shall be no longer!" Oh, on that day will you be ready?

I have shown you how well the Christian will get off in his trial. Will you get off as well in your trial? Will Christ plead on your side or will He plead against you? Oh, what will you do in the last great assize, if your conscience is against you, and the world is against you, and the angels of heaven are against you, and the Holy Spirit is against you and the Lord God Almighty is against you? Better this day secure an advocate.

HABITS OF THE COON.

It Forages at Night Only, and Always Takes Water Before Eating.

Although the coon prefers the vicinity of civilization as his habitat, he plans to keep aloof from the eyes of men, and his habits make this an easy task. By day he lies close in out-of-the-way retreats, in the depths of hollow trees or isolated crevices and holes in the rocks. He wanders forth only at night, and although his foraging expeditions may take him to the very doors of farm houses, and even within the boundary lines of villages, he never betrays his presence. If more than one coon is brought to bay in a tree they will invariably be females, or a mother coon and her offspring. The female brings forth her litter only once in two years, and from the coming of one litter until the arrival of another she and her young are never separated. She keeps her little family together until they are two years old, and in protecting them will fight the attacking dog or hunter until she dies. Many a good coon dog has been forced to retreat before the fury of a she coon fighting for her young, and if she is captured the whole family fall victims to the hunter. The animal scent the coon leaves on the trail is at all times less than that of any other game quadruped, but when the female is nursing her young during the summer months her scent is hardly perceptible to the most delicate-nosed dog. The scent of the coon grows stronger as cold weather advances, and through November and December the dogs follow it with little difficulty.

In the spring and summer the margins of brooks and ponds, and the soft mud in swamps and bays in every coon country, are always thickly indented with the graceful footprints of the coon, for in those months he spends his nights in catching frogs, fish, lizards, grubs and mussels, which are then his chief subsistence. Later on he ranges among the huckleberry and blackberry patches, and feasts on their fruit. With the coming of the milk in the green corn comes the coon's gala time, for he loves the tender, succulent grains, as the farmer knows to his sorrow, and great are the risks he will take to forage in the fields. It is not until the berries are gone and the corn has grown tough in the ear that the coon begins to look about for his winter stores. These he lays by plentifully, from the beechnut, chestnut, and acorn crops, and on these crops depends the hunting of the coon when he is at his best. During the nutting season he is fat and solid and wide-awake, provided that nuts are plentiful. When the coon grows inordinately fat and large he lessens his chances of falling a victim to the hunter, for then he ventures but a short distance from his hiding place and gives the dog small opportunity for finding his trail. Even in the days when coon hunting was a science it was rare that a coon weighing over twenty pounds was ever bagged, although they have been known to attain a weight of forty pounds. A coon at that weight, however, must have been simply a ball of fat, and but little would have been left of him but bones and gravy after cooking.

If the nut crop is a failure, the coon goes to his winter quarters thin and miserable, and poorly prepared for the long winter's sleep and fast. It is in seasons of such straits that the coon wanders forth on every day of thaw, although the snow may lie deep on the ground, in search of such fag ends of provender as may fall to his lot. At such times the unfortunate coon may be seen hovering, wan and haggard, on the edges of farms and dooryards, waiting for his opportunity to pick up scraps from the kitchen, poultry yard, or pig sty.

One peculiarity of the coon which, by the way, is the cleanest of animals, and, as has been seen, eats only the most wholesome of food, and one which does not seem to have attracted the attention of book naturalists, is that he never touches food until he has quaffed at some spring or brook, even if he is compelled to go far to find one. Old coon hunters say that the coon dips every mouthful of his food in water before eating it; but, like all hunters, old coon hunters say many things it would bother them like smoke to prove.

What Fools We Mortals Be.

Wife—"A penny for your thoughts, my dear."

Husband—"I was thinking of one of Shakespeare's sayings: "What fools we mortals be.""

Wife—"I suppose that does come home to you rather hard at times, but what particular train of thought brought about this recollection?"

Husband—"The recollection of our courtship, dear, when I used to call you 'Birdie.'"—Drake's Magazine.

Great Luck.

"What luck did you have, dear?" asked his wife as he returned home from a day's fishing.

"Splendid," he said; "just look at them."

Opening his basket he displayed a lot of sausages.

The butcher had mixed those baskets up.

VANITAS.

When after long battle the prize has been gained,
When after long searching the jewel is found,
When after long climbing the peak is attained,
When after long sowing the harvest is bound,
Then we halt;
And we fret 'neath the burden of
For we feel that the victory's not worth the strife.

To fall in the heat of the on-rushing race;
To love and receive for our recompense hate;
To worship and find that our idol is base;
To trust and awake to deception too late;
Is our lot—
Each a sign on the pathway of life,
Pointing out that the victory's not worth the strife.

Our joys never seem the same pleasures we thought;
Our hopes never come to their fruitage unmarred;
Our future ne'er brings us the grandeur we sought;
Our past to our vision appears but ill-starred;
Such is fate;
But it darkens the glory of life,
Thus to find that the victory's not worth the strife.

Over sights that are beauty, dull clouds grimly sail;
Over days that are lightsome, cares blightingly fall;
Over fond-cherished gardens, blows Boreas's gale;
Over plans full of promise drops failure's black pall;
So they go;
But the memories cumber our life
With the tale that the victory's not worth the strife.

But we look to a land where the skies never dull,
Where the flowers never fade, where the lights never dim,
Where the hopes never ebb, where the joys never lull,
Where no failures are found to its uttermost rim.
Happy land!
Where we'll feel through an unending life
That the victory there is well worth all the strife.

—Chas. M. Harger, in Detroit Free Press.

WHAT HE BELIEVED IN.

"That's a great note of Jem's, I do think, marrying a church woman. They say she teaches a class in Sunday-school, too, and has a face as flat and solemn as a half-baked pancake!"

"What—Jem Knight—has he married a reg'lar-built-pious-go-to-church-and-be good woman, and him one of the jolliest, take-it-easy-and do-as-you-please cusses between here and Chicago?"

"That's the talk."

"Great Jee-rusalem! a sweet time he'll have. Jest fancy her making him slick up to the music of slow church bells Sunday mornings and marching him off, 'stead of having a good time at the gardens, to a straight-backed pew to listen to Gospel mush!"

Thus spoke a couple of Jem Knight's familiar chums, amid a knot of the same ilk, who were seated in the enjoyment of their customary beer and cigars in Bottler's popular saloon. Tom Winter, a third one of the party, seemed to be particularly impressed by the conversation. He was a sharp-eyed young chap of twenty-three or thereabouts, who was noted for the almost reckless manner in which he went in for "having a good time." Not that there was anything really vicious about him. He was straightforward, manly and honest, but full of desire to enjoy life in its freest-going aspects, and especially liberal in his views touching the observance of Sunday as a religious ordinance. No one had ever heard of his going to church, or that he cared a button either one way or the other about church-going or any of its straight-laced arrangements. Hence it was with more than common surprise that his chums heard him say:

"Well, I don't undertake to know, gents. If Jem's wife is the right woman otherwise, I should say he'd made a good strike, getting one who goes to church. I don't go much on churches myself. I used to go with the old folks when I was a little shaver about knee-high to a duck. But that was when I had to. It's a good many years now since I was inside of one. As I said, I don't go much on it myself. It's too slow for my taste. At the same time, I believe in a woman going to church. I've noticed the women that go to church are generally the best sort. A man can depend on 'em. They keep things straight at home and bring the children up right. A man can feel safe when he's away having his own fun, that they won't be running into any of the blamed dance-hall and beer-garden foolishness that winds up so often in disgrace to a man's home. Oh, you boys may sneer. I allow it may be all humbug, and too slow for men like us. But it's dead sure: the women who go to church are the steadiest sort a man can tie to. I don't care how much you laugh and poke fun. I've seen too many wrecked homes and ruined lives grow out of picking wives from free dances and Sunday picnics. There's too much nonsense in it for me. If I every marry I shall do as Jem has done—pick a wife that goes to church."

And he did. To the increased surprise and astonishment of his chums, the jovial, rollicking, devil-may-care Tom, who had all his life gone in for every species of free-and easy enjoyment; made fun of parsons and what he called long-faced, church-going milk-sops, more recklessly than any of them, actually married a member of the Rev. Mr. Gracely's church, a woman who was noted for the solidly serious aspect of her face and strict observance of the Sabbath.

A nice-looking woman, to be sure, and steady, with not a bit of nonsense about her. A rare good housekeeper, too, who kept herself and all things about her in the very best of "apple-pie order." That much was conceded: only, as one of the boys put it, "too thundering orderly! A nice time poor Tom'll have now. We shall see him creeping about with a face as long as a fiddle."

This proved a mistake. So far as outer appearance was concerned, Tom lost none of his old-time jollity of speech and demeanor, and he seemed to retain all his old pleasure-loving disposition. Whenever he met the boys he was as keen as ever to have a good time; neither did he fall into going to church. On the latter point he remarked once in strict confidence that it was all right, and a mighty good thing for a woman to go to church, but too slow and hum-drum for a man's enjoyment.

Still, it came to be noted after awhile that he was not exactly the old Tom. As the years rolled by and three handsome children began to accompany their mother to Sunday-school, and who were so neatly clothed and well-behaved as to call forth the admiring comments of all who saw them, their father grew a trifle more staid and dignified, as one beginning to be somewhat impressed with the more serious aspects of life; to feel that a man was made for something more serious than an endless round of careless frolic. It was seen, too, that he was more careful not to let the good times he indulged in come within the scope of his home surroundings. This much, at least, his wife's influence had accomplished.

"I don't go to church," he said apologetically to a friend one day, "but it wouldn't be the right thing to let those boys of mine get to know their father's free didos. It's all right enough so far as I am concerned, because I know when I've gone far enough. But it's best to let the children come up sort of straight; the way their mother wants."

A most admirable woman this same mother had turned out to be, as Tom very well knew, and no little he was proud of her. Yet not half proud enough. Indeed, it was not yet in his apprehension to appreciate her full value. It did not enter his conception that the respect which had fallen to himself in connection with his excellently-ordered home was entirely due to his church-going wife.

An especially sensible woman, too. Albeit it had grieved her more than words can express that her husband could find enjoyment in pleasures which at best were empty and frivolous, if not positively wrong, by not the slightest petulant complaint had she ever upbraided him or striven by aught save the gentlest suggestions to lead him to her own better way of life.

There came a sad day, alas! for him, and still more, alas! for the three beautiful children. The good wife and mother was called away from them, and they were left desolate indeed. The blow was a hard one. What now was the bereaved husband to do? So far as worldly goods were concerned he was amply provided. He had abundance; but not all the wealth in the universe could have made up the loss they had sustained. Even his old roystering companions confessed to each other that it was "awful rough, you know"; that in his case there could be no doubt that Tom had "struck it rich" when he got the wife who went to church.

What would he do? A year later he told a bosom friend that he must secure a second mother for his children.

"You will marry one that goes to church?"

"More resolved on that than ever."

"But you don't go yourself?"

"No. The fact is, it's too slow for me. I like to enjoy myself with things more lively; and when I've got one at home who pulls steady in the traces, as these church-going women do, I can feel safe and comfortable."

He found the woman he thought would suit. A lady who had been somewhat intimate with his wife, a member of the same church, and altogether after the same right-going pattern. In fact, a steady, clear-headed woman, who knew when things were right, and was prompt and decisive to have them so.

"True," as Tom whispered to himself, "I expect she'll try to pull me short up into straight strings, a good deal tighter than Emily did. She is not as soft and yielding as I'd like. But she'll be all right for the children. I can trust her. When it comes to a question of what's best to be done, there ain't a bit of nonsense about her. So I'll take her."

To his great surprise, however, he found that the second church-going woman was not prepared to accept his offer with the pleased alacrity he had expected. Knowing that she was in rather straightened circumstances, entirely dependent on her own exertions for a livlihood, he had felt sure that his own well-appointed home would prove a temptation the lady would not dream to refuse. But, instead of the gratefully expressed "yes" he had looked for, she replied:

"May I ask why you have given me the preference, Mr. Winter?"

"Because I want a mother for those children who goes to church. I married Emily on that account, and she managed so well that I determined to choose one of the same good sort."

"I commend the wisdom of your decision. But you do not attend church yourself?"

"O, it don't matter about me, you know. So long as the mother is all right to keep things straight at home it don't make a bit of difference whether a man goes to church or not."

"In his own estimation, perhaps. But have you thought, Mr. Winter, that your church-going wife may be just as anxious to have a husband whose integrity of principle may be under the saving influence of church attendance as you are in regard to the lady of your choice? If you desire to feel at rest touching your wife's conduct at home is it not equally desirable that your wife's mind should be at rest touching your honesty of conduct when out of her sight?"

Here was a new aspect, and at first he thought it was a very foolish aspect, not to say ridiculous. He could not understand the idea of a man being amenable to the same rules of moral conduct that are required in a woman. And he said so. But to all his arguments and pleadings the lady turned a deaf ear. She would not marry a man who did not go to church; that much of safeguard to the clean life of the man she would accept must be given in return for her own wholesome purity and unblemished principles.

At first Tom vowed to himself that he would not tie himself down to any such unmanly giving way to a woman's foolish whim. As he more and more observed, however, that the lady was possessed of precisely the excellent qualities he especially desired in a mother for his children, he finally gave the requisite pledge that he would accompany his wife to church at least once each Sabbath-day.

"Poor chap!" said his old chums, "now he is shorn of his liberty, tied to the apron-strings of a hard-faced, church-going fanatic. He'll be in a lunatic asylum in less than six months."

They were mistaken. Certainly, a great change came over him. That was apparent to the least observant. He was no longer the roystering, free-and-easy Tom. The old card-playing, dice-throwing, time-wasting haunts lost his presence. No more was he seen in the noisy, brawling, tippling beer-gardens on Sunday. He now sought rest and peaceful quiet from the cares of the week's business within the blessed safeguards of his own fireside. And when, with wife and children, he walked to church, no more beautiful picture could anywhere be seen. And, as time sped on, and he found that the influence of the church going he had always seen to be so good for a woman equally refining and excellent in its effects on a man, he blessed the impulse that led his second wife to impel him into the path of life's truest enjoyment; and, albeit, here were those of his old chums who still wondered that he could have been "led by the nose by a woman," most of them were free to confess that, after all, he was more of a man, a better man, in fact, than he had ever been before.

To one who asked him how he ever came to let himself be tied to a woman's apron-strings, he said:

"If the chief bulk of married men could be tied to the apron-strings of wives who are anchored on a foundation of church-going principles, we should have a far greater number of happy homes and vastly more peace and happiness in the world at large."—Cleveland Leader.

The Lion Hunter's Pet.

The story is told of Gerard, the great lion-hunter, that he captured a whelp in the mountains of Jebel-Mezours, Algiers, named it "Hubert," and brought it up as he would bring up a dog from puppyhood. After some time, his huge pet becoming too dangerous to go at large, Gerard made a present of the animal to his friend, the Duc d'Aumale, and Hubert traveled to Paris in a big cage, bemoaning his separation from his old master. The next year Gerard himself visited Paris on leave of absence from the army, and went at once to the Jardin des Plantes to see his exiled favorite. He describes the interview as follows:

Hubert was lying down, half asleep, regarding at intervals with half shut eyes the persons who were passing and repassing before him. All of a sudden he raised his head, his tail moved, his eyes dilated, a nervous motion contracted under the muscles of his face. He had seen the uniform of the Spahis, but had not yet recognized his friend. I drew nearer and nearer, and no longer able to restrain my emotion I stretched my hand out to him through the bars.

Without ceasing his earnest gaze he applied his nose to my hand and drew in knowledge with a long breath. At each inhalation his attitude became more noble, his look more satisfied and affectionate. Under the uniform that had been so dear to him he began to recognize the friend of his heart.

I felt that it only needed a single word to dissipate all doubt.

"Hubert!" I said, as I laid my hand on him—"my old soldier!"

Not another word. With a furious bound and a note of welcome he sprang against the iron bars, that bent and trembled with the blow. My friends fled in terror, calling on me to do the same. Noble animal! You made the world tremble even in your ecstacy of pleasure.

Hubert was standing with his cheek against the grating, attempting to break down the obstacle that separated us, magnificent to behold as he shook the walls of the building with his roars of joy and anger. His enormous tongue licked the hand that I abandoned to his caresses, while with his paws he gently tried to draw me to him. If any one tried to come near me he fell into frenzies of rage, and when the visitors fell back to a distance he became calm and caressing as before, handling me with his huge paws, rubbing against the bars, and licking my hand, while every gesture and moan and look told of his joy and his love.

When I turned to leave him he shook the gallery with his heart-rending roars; and it was not till I had gone back to him twenty times, and tried to make him understand that I would come again, that I succeeded in quitting the place.

After that I came to see my friend daily, sometimes spending several hours with him in his cage. But after a while I noticed that he became sad and dispirited, and when the keepers alluded to his furious agitation and excitement every time I left him, and attributed his worn-out and changed appearance to this cause, I took their advice and made my visits as seldom as possible. One day, some four months from the time of my first meeting with him in Paris, I entered the garden, and one of the keepers came forward, saluting, and said—"Don't come any more, sir. Hubert is dead."

A Paragraph "Going the Rounds."

I.

Joseph Marcel was trying to set a game hen at Point au Prince, when the game cock flew in his face and pecked him severely on the left eyelid.

II.

A Canuck farmer had his eye pecked out by a game cock the other day. It served him right for trying to set the hen on china eggs.

III.

The ferocity of the game cock at certain seasons of the year was strikingly illustrated at Point au Prince recently, when a Canadian farmer had to kill one of those noble birds in self-defense.

IV.

A Canadian farmer was killed the other day by his favorite game cock. A man never knows when he is safe from harm.

V.

One of the most brutal exhibitions on record was the fight at Point au Prince, Canada, a few days ago, between a brawny farmer, with his hands tied, and a ferocious game cock. The bird had been trained to fly at a man's eyes, and in the fifth round pecked his left orb into giblets. After thirty-nine bloody rounds the human brute caught his feathered adversary between his teeth and bit off its head.—Omaha Bee.

Thou mayest well dispense with a pleasure if at the same time thou overcomest grief.

TWO OLD PEOPLE.

Once he was twenty and she only ten,
She was a child, he scarcely in his prime;
Youth seemed so long, and age so distant then,
And noon came not, as now, ere morning time.

But later on, they chanced again to meet,
And he was thirty and she twenty now;
"Why, he is old," exclaimed the maiden sweet,
And passed with careless heart and cloudless brow.

Ten years (a weary round) roll on again,
Whose days and weeks, so like each other, pass,
That, when they meet, 'tis he, with sudden pain,
Who cries, in turn, "Why, she is old, alas!"

But often on those tender April eyes,
When hearts beat time to hidden melodies,
"Why was I never loved?" he asks—and grieves.
"Why did I never love?" she asks—and sighs.

And now, opprest with vain regret, they say,
As years wear on in ever-deepening gloom;
"Children, enjoy the sunshine while you may,
And pluck the flower in its morning bloom."

—Alex. Hayes in Argosy.

PITH AND POINT.

Moves in the best society.—A fan.

The first woman in the land—the first woman who was born.—Siftings.

"What is it that we can't bear in summer and yet are very fond of in winter?" Heat.

Lawyers dress pretty well, notwithstanding the fact that they occasionally lose a suit.

"I really believe my work is telling," remarked the society reporter.—Burlington Free Press.

"Mark my words," said the public speaker, and the stenographer marked them.—Boston Transcript.

Who is rich? And who is happy?
Who could be content with less?
Let us see—his name is—name is—Pshaw, we've lost the man's address!
—Washington Critic.

"This way, gentlemen, to the American dwarf, to be seen only through a hundredfold magnifying glass; totally invisible to the naked eye."—Fliegende Blaetter.

He (with a view toward further acquaintance with owner): "What a pretty little dog! He wouldn't bite me, would he?" She: "Oh, no, we give salt food only."—Tid-Bits.

"Well, what do you think of the new neighbors who have moved in next door, Mrs. Pryer?" "I haven't had a chance to form an opinion. They haven't had a washing hung out yet."—Boston Courier.

A small boy surprised his teacher at one of the grammar schools yesterday by asking her how far a procession of the Presidents of the United States would reach if they were placed in a row. On her expressing her ignorance he calmly announced: "From Washington to Cleveland."—Springfield Republican.

ONLY A BARBER.

The maidens saw him at the beach;
They thought he was a lord,
So handsome and so debonnair—
By all he was adored.

He's shaving bearded chins again,
And also cutting hair,
While chinning to his customers,
Behind the barber's chair.
—Boston Courier.

The Smallest Kingdom.

On the northeast coast of the island of Sardinia lies the much smaller island of Tavolara, five miles long and one broad. Its possession and absolute sovereignty were formally granted by King Charles Albert, of Sardinia, to the Bartoleoni family, and for more than half a century Paul I., King of Tavolara, reigned over it in peace. On the 30th of May last King Paul was compelled to go

$1.50
75
50

There are about twenty-five candidates for the office of State Inspector of convicts.

The colored people's World's Exposition will be held at Birmingham instead of Montgomery as was first reported.

Length of life is estimated not by the number of years so much as by good work done--not by endeavors solely to advance our own fortune and reputation or comfort, but by persevering efforts to promote the welfare of our fellow-men.

On yesterday the governor tendered the office of private secretary to Mr. William Kirk Jackson, of North Alabama. Mr. Jackson for the past four years has been clerk to the railroad commission, in which capacity he has given satisfaction to the commission. He is a young man, skilled in the stenoghraphic art and has an aptitude for the duties of the office which we understand during Governor Seay's administration will be purely clerical.—Dispatch.

A girl baby was born in New York, a few weeks ago, without a mouth. The doctors knew that would never do for a female, as the power of speech would be lacking. So they went to work and actually made a mouth for the child. At least so the papers report, and we are not prepared to dispute it, for we can imagine the difficulty which even nature would encounter in permanently closing the month of a female, if she wanted to speak.

Give Us Bread.

Birmingham Chronicle.

Farmers of Alabama, before you pitch another crop the Chronicle would like to talk with you a little. You laugh at us newspaper men when we talk farming to you and like that New York politician you speak of us as "durned literary fellows," but we know enough to keep in bread and clothes but you do not. You are pursuing the most independent business in the world in a way that makes it the most dependent.

Birmingham has 35,000 people who have to be fed, and a close enquiry tells us that a little more than $500,000 are spent from here for food. Less than $100,000 is spent in Alabama when every dollar of it should be spent in her borders. Just think of one Alabama town sending $400,000 to other states for food. Kansas City sends us meat. The northwest sends us what bread Tennessee does not furnish. Turkeys, chickens, eggs and what little cow butter we use comes from Tennessee and Kentucky. Oat meal, rye meal, beans, peas, potatoes all come from other states. So beef, rabbits, squirrels venison, partridges, grouse, etc.

Now you claim that you cannot waste time with these things from your cotton crop. Farmers in other states raise them at a profit, why not you plain policy of erchants ng rich.

firm of ery, Moot own
s. You is not crop lien not conhe bread put the

In five fall due a meat osed and to buy ass into begin a at will a.
ned for never be ow long ead from ng will oor way.
make a e what r you.

of the e.

a month
plete re-vote in Our es-Voice, the to-ey have sults are may be Prohibi-marvels

at the interest tion ref in the as taken for granted that there was nothing impressive or sensational in the Prohibitionist demonstration this year, and so the matter was dismissed.

Late information swells the Prohibitionist totals to dimension of unexpected magnitude. Instead of any decline in interest, any signs of weakening as a political organization, we find enormous gains almost everywhere for the Prohibitionists.

Comparing the vote of 1886 with that for St. John two years ago in the States where the figures have been officially ascertained, or where there is material for a close estimate, we have this table:

States.	1886.	1884.	Per cent of gain.
California	6,349	2,920	117.
Connecticut	4,687	2,405	100.
Illinois	19,997	12,074	65.
Indiana	9,186	3,028	203.
Maine	3,023	2,160	81.
Maryland	7,243	2,794	159.
Michigan	25,500	18,403	38.
Nebraska	8,206	2,158	280.
New Jersey	19,810	6,159	221.
New York	36,436	25,016	45.
Ohio	28,982	11,968	161.
Oregon	2,753	492	459.
Pennsylv'a	32,422	15,283	112.
Wisconsin	17,100	7,656	123.

In Kansas, Minnesota, Texas, and other States where the figures are not yet definitely determined, the gains have been equally impressive. The Voice is confident that the aggregate vote cast last month by the Probihitionists will not fall much below 300,000 in the United States. St. John's vote for President was 150,369.

All this amounts to saying that the voting strength of the Prohibitionist party has doubled in two years, a fact sufficiently remarkable to engage the attention of all students of the political situation.

These men mean business.

The Other Side.

A well-known humorist has something to say on a much-vexed ques- which cannot fail to please the ladies, who must be tired of being lectured on their uselessness as wives: Oh, yes, I know all that, my son. I have heard much of that before. You mourn and grieve over the lack of true womanhood among the girls of your acquaintance. Mere butterflies of fashion, you say, who can rattle the keys of a grand piano, dance like faries, chatter nonsense and society nothings by the hour, and for their lives cannot bake a loaf of bread, roast a turkey or make a shirt. You demand the ablest type of womanhood in your wife, and you want to know where you can find the wife you want. Well, I will tell you, my dear boy. If that is the sort of woman you want, marry Nora Mulligan, your laundress' daughter. She wears cowhide shoes, is guiltless of corsets, never had a sick day in her life takes in washing, goes out house cleaning and cooks for a family of seven children, her mother and three men who board with her. I don't think she would marry you, because Con Regan the track-walker, is her style of a man. She is the useful sort of a woman you appear to want, but I don't think she'd look at you twice. Can you shoulder a sack of flour and carry it in the house? Can you saw and split ten cords of hickory wood in the fall? so as to have ready fuel all the winter? Can you spade up half an acre of ground for a kitchen garden? Do you know what will take the limy taste out of the new cistern? and can you patch the little leak in the kitchen roof? what would you do if the chimney got choked up? if the front door binds at the top? What if a lock gets out of order? If an extra shelf is wanted in the pantry? Can you bring home a pane of glass and a wad of putty and repair damages in the sitting-room window? Can you hang some cheap paper on the kitchen? Can you fix the front gate so it will not sag? Can you help the man carry the big stove into the summer kitchen? Can you, in short, do anything about the house that Con Regan can? My dear boy, you see why Nora Mulligan will not have you! she wants a higher type of true manhood. You expect to hire men to do all the man's work about the house, but you want your wife to do everything a woman can do. Believe me, my dear son, nine-tenths of the girls who play the piano and sing so charmingly, whom your limited knowledge set down as "mere butterflies of fashion," are better for wives than you are for a husband. The girls know more about these things than you do. If you want to marry a first class-cook and experienced house-keeper, do your courting in the intelligence office. But if you want a wife, marry the girl you love, with dimpled hands and a face like the sunlight, and her love will help you risk the rest.

Another Letter from Sam Ming

Christmas is over. Old Santa has been doing some very successful work. Mrs. Ming and the children had some very pleasant times. On Christmas eve night Mrs. Ming would have all the children hang up their stockings and socks, but the little ones did not like the way much; little Iky wanted a Christmas tree. He said his uncle Ike told him that hanging socks had gone out of fashion. Still Mrs. Ming said she adhered to the old style, as laid down in Maj. Jones Courtship, and her argument prevailed. Little Iky got a pound of candy and a knife in his sock and was very well pleased, but he wanted a toy pistol. Bro. Ike was over very soon Christmas morning to see how the children were pleased. He claimed gifts on them all and Mrs. Ming told the children to have a frolic, and to bounce right on him and wallow him good; so they did every one bounce him, and you ought to have seen the scuffle. Some of the little fellows were up in the air at different times, and some were rolling on the ground at the same time. And little Iky said he did believe if uncle Ike had not been so groggy he would have wallowed every one of them. Oh! if the snow had not all been gone Bro. Ike would have been rolled up well, but there was mud on the ground, and brother Ike was quite muddy when he came out of the scuffle.

Bro. Ike is very much stirred up about the bill before the Legislature, authorizing the Governor to appoint the county commissioners. He says the Governor don't know who are the men for that office, not half as well as we do, and he wants the old method of getting the commissioners. Said he was going to hunt up Lee Hays, and sign the petition asking the General Assembly not to pass such a bill, and said he was going to try to get Lee to go down and stop it just as soon as the Legislature convenes. I told brother Ike he was right, and that he could'nt get a better man than Lee to go. And then Bro. Ike kinder backed down on me, because he said he was afraid the bill would pass before Lee would find the speaker of the Senate. Bro. Ike is troubled about this thing. He is afraid the Governor don't know him and if he has to appoint them Bro. Ike is afraid he will be left out in the cold. But then I told him if he wanted the commissioner's office that bad he better go down and stay all night with the Governor, and make his acquaintance. He said he believed he would.

Much success for the VIEW.

SAM MING.

A Prospective Millionaire.

One of the longest headed men in this city is Alfred Billingslea, the colored proprietor of the Exchange hotel barber shop. He owns considerable valuable property in Montgomery, and a few years ago invested in two or three hundred acres of red dirt just outside of the city limits of bad Birmingham. The land cost him $10 an acre. By advice of that other long headed financier Mr. Josiah Morris, who is the banker and confidential adviser of Billingslea, the latter held on to his land, refusing all offers for it, even the most seductive. To show the enormous rise in the price of real estate about Birmingham, and how fortunes are created as though by magic, a Dispatch reporter was told yesterday that Billingslea had been recently offered $400,000 for his land, but that he had refused it by advice of Mr. Morris, who believes the land will yet bring a million! How's that for a small tract of dirt?

The reporter asked the lucky owner of this land as to the truth of this rumor, but he would neither affirm nor deny it, but his answers to the reporter's questions plainly showed that there was something in the wind.

Think of a colored man who has been a barber all his life, suddenly becoming a millionaire! it sounds like the story of Alladin's lamp, only more so.—Dispatch.

The quickest time on record! Neuralgia of the worst type, cured by one dose of SMITH'S BILE BEANS in from one to four hours, as many who have tried it can testify. It does seem strange that sensible people will suffer with this terrible disease when speedy relief can surely be found in this simple safe and inexpensive remedy. 25 cents. For sale by all druggists and dealers in medicine, or sent anywhere on receipt of price in stamps.

Sick Headache and a sensation of oppression and dullness in the head are very commonly produced by indigestion; morbid despondency, irritability and over-sensitiveness of the nerves may, in a majority of cases, be traced to the same cause. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm and Pillets will positively cure. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton. sep11 3

Clanton Barber Shop

—BY—

MEREDITH CANN,

Who is prepared to do all work in the tonsorial line. Hair dressing and shaving in the best style. Prices low.

Administrator's Sale.

Under and by virtue of an order and decree of the honorable M. T. Porter, Judge of Probate for Jefferson county Ala., I will sell at public auction in front of the courthouse at Clanton in Chilton county Alabama on Monday the 24th day of January, 1887, at twelve o'clock M., all the following described personal and real estate belonging to the estate of N. H. Thornton deceased, to-wit: One sole leather trunk, one picture and frame, and one spring mattress. The north half of north east quarter, and the north east quarter of north west quarter of section seven township twenty-one and range fifteen. Also north east quarter of north east quarter of section twenty-eight, township twenty-two and range fourteen. Also lot No. 2, block 1, and the east half of lot 8 block 2, in the town of Clanton, on the west side of the South and North R. R., all in Chilton Co., Ala., with all the improvements thereon.

These lots are most desirably located in the thriving town of Clanton, county seat of Chilton Co., Ala., noted for its pure atmosphere and water and close proximity to the famous "Hot Well" which is still hot and will some day be to Alabama as Hot Springs is to Arkansas. The lands are also within a mile of the "Hot Well," of light loamy soil and lying well and most desirable for dairy and truck farming.

Terms of sale cash. I will show the property to any one calling on me at this place.

I. A. THORNTON, Administrator.

Clanton, Ala.
Jan'y 5th, 1887. 6in 3t
Printer's fee $10.

E. WALL. P. GIACOPAZZI.

WALL & GIACOPAZZI,
Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Commission Merchants,
Second Ave. and Twentieth St.
Birmingham, - - - Ala.

References: S. Oteri, New Orleans; Jos. Denunzio, Louisville; Buhr, Wendte & Co., Cincinnati; Underhill, Stewart & Shotts, N. Y.; Wm. D. Clarke & Co., New Orleans; Cowing & Clark, Cincinnati; A. G. Conant & Co., N. Y.; First National Bank, Birmingham, Ala,

H. H. BARCLIFT & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Grocers,
No. 2118 2d Ave. Bet. Twenty-first and Twenty-Second Sts.
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

☞ We solicit a share of the patronage of the merchants of Chilton County. Send us your orders.

HUDSON & CO.,
Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Commission Merchants,
Morris Avenue Between 21st and 22nd Streets,
BIRMINGHAM, - - - - ALA.
Send us your orders for fruits and produce.

The Chilton View

FOR

A New Year Present to Your Friend.

$1.50 A YEAR.

SUBSCRIBE WITH THE NEW YEAR.

1887.

Specialty For Wholesale Trade.
THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC TEA CO.
2d Avenue bet. 21st and 22d Streets.
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
HAVE FRESH ROASTED COFFEE DAILY.
Their Own Importation of TEAS and SPICES.
Supply the trade generally with FRESH PACKAGE COFFEE.
[July8]

WINTER! SPRING!
During the Season of Winter MALARIA Lurks in the System!
COLLINS AGUE CURE
One Dose a day, taken three days in succession, each month, or when you feel badly in any way, will fully Cleanse your Blood, Remove all Bilious Secretions & Malarial Poison from your System, and Insure GOOD HEALTH IN THE SPRING.
PRICE, FIFTY CENTS PER BOTTLE.
If you are troubled with a COUGH, COLD, SORENESS in CHEST, or any Affection of Throat or Lungs, use DR. JACKSON'S
Syrup LUNGWORT & WILD CHERRY
Sold at 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 a Bottle.
If your EYES are affected in any way, use DR. JACKSON'S CELEBRATED INDIAN EYE SALVE.
Sold Everywhere at 25 cents per Box.
Send for Collins Bros. "Present Century Almanac" for 1887. Mailed to any address or at any Drug Store.
COLLINS BROS. DRUG CO., St. Louis, Mo.
jun24-y

Sleepless nights made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by M. J. Greene Clanton. jun10y

MARRIAGE GUIDE
260 PAGES. Illustrated, in Cloth and Gilt Binding, 50c. money or stamps. Same, paper cover, 25c. This Book contains ALL the curious, doubtful or inquisitive want to know. Full of very interesting and valuable information. HEALTH, BEAUTY and HAPPINESS are promoted by its advise—who may Marry, who not, why; Medical Aid, when necessary, brought home to you. 50 Wonderful PEN PICTURES, true to life. Young or old, married or single, sick or well, should read it. Sent sealed by DR. WHITTIER, St. Louis. Mo.
CUT THIS OUT AND SEND WITH ORDER.

VOLINA CORDIAL
CURES
Dyspepsia, Indigestion
Weakness,
Chills and Fevers,
Malaria,
Liver Complaint, Kidney Troubles, Neuralgia and Rheumatism.

IT is invigorating and delightful to take, and of great value as a Medicine for Weak and Ailing Women and Children. It gives New Life to the whole system by Strengthening the Muscles, Toning and Invigorating the Nerves, and completely Digesting the food. VOLINA CORDIAL contains no hurtful Minerals, is composed of carefully-selected Vegetable Medicines, combined skillfully, making a Safe and Pleasant Remedy.

A BOOK, "Volina," by leading physicians, telling how to treat diseases at Home, mailed, together with a Set of Handsome Cards by new Heliotype process, on receipt of 10 cents.

For sale by all Druggists and Grocers. Should the dealer near you not keep VOLINA CORDIAL, remit $1.00, and a full-size bottle will be sent, charges paid. Prepared only by

VOLINA DRUG AND CHEMICAL COMPANY, BALTIMORE, MD., U. S. A.

No family should be without Ellis' Magic Oil Liniment, the greatest external remedy known. It cures all aches and pains. Price 25 cents per bottle, at W. H. Phillips.

GREETING
TO THE
PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY:
E. ERSWELL,
19th STREET, BETWEEN FIRST AND SECOND AVENUE.
Birmingham, Ala.
BEGS TO ANNOUNCE THAT HE WOULD LIKE A SHARE OF YOUR PATRONAGE AND IS PREPARED TO SELL AS LOW AS ANY.
Mail orders solicited and satisfaction guaranteed. Telegrap orders promptly filled. Rooms carpeted to order. Decorating and House Furnishing a Specialty.
Largest Carpet Parlor in Alabam.
FINEST SELECTION OF FURNITURE IN THE SOUTH.
WINDOW SHADES OF NEWEST AND LATEST STYLES.
Heavy Stock of Picture Frames.
E. Erswell has the most complete stock of Carpets in Alabama Carpets, Oil Cloths, Linoleums, Mattings of all grades and endless varieties. Office Furniture. Desks of all Styles. Book Cases in Walnut, Mahogany, &c., Wardrobe Settees, Side Boards, Folding beds, Washstands, Extension Tables In fact everything in the Furniture and Carpet line. Wall Papers of all Grades.
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED AND WARANTED FIRST CLASS MATERIAL.
No shoddy goods, but genuine and honest work. Full line of Undertakers goods. Telegraph orders promptly attended to
E. ERSWELL.
☞ Next Door to Opera House. P. O. Box 30. ☜

BAINS & HERRING.
(SUCCESSORS TO JONES & CO., JONES & BASS, W. A. COOK CO.)
WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.
Mail and Express Orders Will Receive Promt Attention.
FINE WINES AND LIQUORS A SPECIATY.
1926 FIRST AVENUE, BETWEEN 19th and 20th STREETS.
Birmingham, Ala.
☞ Fine Stock of Chess Carley's Oils at Company's Prices. ☜
P. O. BOX 570. Jun9 y

BEST GRADES OF MERCHANDISE
At JOHN GARNER'S, Clanton.

sep3-tf

J. C. HENDRICKS, Presd't. T. T. ASHFORD, Sec'y & Treas,
Birmingham Paint, Glass and Wall Paper Co.
Successors to
MAYBERRY & ASHFORD.
Jobbers and Retailers of
Paints, Oils, Window Glass, Plate, Sky-Light and Colored Glass, Sash, Doors, Blinds and Moulding,
Painters' and Artists' Supplies.
WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES, and CURTAIN FIXTURES.
1912 Second Avenue, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
☞ Write for Samples of Wall Paper and Estimates on Glass. jun10

MINERAL CITY TIN AND STOVE HOUSE
SECOND AVENUE BETWEEN 18TH AND 19TH STREETS,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
Pat Walsh, Manager.
A Large Line of HEATING and COOKING STOVES always on hand. All Kinds of
Tin, Sheet Iron Roofing and Job Work
DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.
☞ Orders by mail will receive prompt attention. nov 11

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH.
The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, many of them handsomely illustrated, and all are printed from good type upon good paper. Please examine the list and see if you do not find therein some that you would like to possess. In cloth-bound form these books would cost $1.00 each. Each book is complete in itself:

Anecdotes of the Rebellion. A collection of humorous, pathetic, and thrilling narratives of the war, stories of bivouac and battle-field, march and picket, adventures of scouts and spies, stories of prison life, of the great Generals, of Mr. Lincoln, etc.
The Life of General U. S. Grant. By W. A. Peters. With portrait and other illustrations.
Poems, by John G. Whittier. The only cheap edition published—should be in every household. Illustrated.
Poems, by Henry W. Longfellow. No one can afford to be without this fine collection. Illustrated.
Poems, by Alfred Tennyson. This work contains some of the finest compositions of the great Poet Laureate.
Parlor Amusements. A large collection of Acting Charades, Parlor Dramas, Shadow Pantomimes, Games, Puzzles, etc., for social gatherings, public and private entertainments and evenings at home. Illustrated.
Manual of Floriculture. Teaches the best method of propagating all the different plants, tells how to cure disease and eradicate insect pests, gives directions for making beautiful floral and other devices, for window gardening, etc. Illustrated.
Guide to Needlework, Knitting and Crochet. Containing designs and directions for all kinds of Fancy Needlework, Artistic Embroidery, Lace Work, Knitting, Tatting, Crochet and Net Work. Illustrated.
Famous Detective Stories. A collection of thrilling narratives of Detective experience, many of them written by actual members of the profession.
Yankee Wit and Humor. A collection of humorous stories, sketches, poems and paragraphs by the leading funny men of the American Press. Illustrated.
The Mystery at Blackwood Grange. A Novel. By Mrs. May Agnes Fleming.
The Evil Genius. A Novel. By M. T. Caldor.
The Story of a Storm. A Novel. By Mrs. Jane G. Austin.
Out of the Sea. A Novel. By Clara Augusta.
Agatha's History. A Novel. By Margaret Blount.
The Morwick Farm Mystery. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins. Illustrated.
The Last of the Ruthvens. A Novel. By Miss Mulock. Illustrated.
A Dead Heart. A Novel. By Author of "Dora Thorne."
Out of the Depths. A Novel. By Hugh Conway.
The Romantic Adventures of a Milkmaid. A Novel. By Thomas Hardy.
In the Holidays. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay.
The Heir to Ashley. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood.
Miss or Mrs.? A Novel. By Wilkie Collins. Illustrated.
More Bitter than Death. A Novel. By the Author of "Dora Thorne."
Carriston's Gift. A Novel. By Hugh Conway. Illustrated.
The Fatal Lilies. A Novel. By Author of "Dora Thorne."
A Shadow on the Threshold. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay.
The Curse of Carew. A Novel. By Author of "Dora Thorne."
The Blatchford Bequest. A Novel. By Hugh Conway. Illustrated.
A Queen Amongst Women. A Novel. By the Author of "Dora Thorne."
The Fatal Marriage. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon.
A Tale of Sin. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood.
A Bridge of Love. A Novel. By author of "Dora Thorne."
A Passive Crime. A Novel. By "The Duchess."
Ingledew House. A Novel. By author of "Dora Thorne."
The Knightsbridge Mystery. A Novel. By Charles Reade. Illustrated.
Wedded and Parted. A Novel. By author of "Dora Thorne."
A Fortune Hunter. A Novel. By Annie Thomas.
Among the Ruins. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay.
Rose Lodge. A Novelette. By Mrs. Henry Wood.

☞ We will send any four of the above books by mail post-paid upon receipt of only Twelve Cents; any ten for 25 Cents; any twenty-five for 50 Cents; the entire list (40 books) for 75 Cents; the entire list bound in boards with cloth back, for $1.10. These are the cheapest books ever published and guarantee worth three times the money asked for them. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Postage stamps taken for fractions of a dollar. As to our reliability, we refer to any newspaper published in New York, likewise to the Commercial Agencies.
Special Offer! To every one sending for the entire list of books as above, we will send, without extra charge, either sixty cents' worth of the [illegible] Patterns, to be selected by yourself from a catalogue which will be sent you, or The [illegible], a large 16-page, 64-column illustrated literary paper, for one year. All orders filled by return mail.
Address all letters: F. M. LUPTON, Publisher, No. 2 Park Place, New York.

VIEW.

AN. 6, 1887.

d every Thursndeavor to covcountry journ-quarter to the
or the ungodly.
ood natured, alecessary.

dvertisements will tioning this paper.

LENDAR.

after the first Monctober.
Monday in March,
fter the fourth Mon-

Regular term sec-bruary and August,
April and Novem-second Monday in

nday in each month.

N. ALA. RAILROAD.
ton daily, as follows:

G SOUTH.

5:45 a. m.
5:43 p. m.
3:00 p. m.
00:5 a. m.

G NORTH.

9:21 a. m.
9:55 a. m.
*9:43 p. m.
6:45 p. m.

DOTTINGS.

ter's Devil.

l was pierced to the

as of a dear little miss, ass, "My dear, ere we our love with a kiss."

ien replied, as the imp she k I'd let you revel

s before you have vainly

"I'll not kiss the devil!"

d away, and the sweet little old, sorrowful maid;

l, but then, alas!
d all decayed;
met, and fain the old

ne former issue; replied, as the old maid
e eyed,
the devil now wouldn't kiss ou!"

new jail is a model structure.

inches of snow fell here on ay night.

W. M. Wilson's new resiis now nearly completed.

cribe for the VIEW. It will ou warm these cold nights.

man's Southern Flower Cologne est. For sale by W. H. Phil-anton.

thermometer fell to ten de-above zero at this place, on ay morning.

te us full accounts of what place in your neighborhoods the holidays.

lame back, side or chest, use
's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts.
le by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

t week was one continuous of pleasure for our young
e.

are in receipt of Vick's splenloral Guide, for which we re-thanks to the publisher.

would like for all our corresents to write up the news in respective localities as often ssible.

loh's Cough and Consumption is sold by us on a guarantee. It consumption. For sale by M. J. e, Clanton Ala.

anton now has eighteen b[illegible] houses, fifteen of which are pied and one in course of con-tion.

e have just received a large lot rinter's stationery and are pred to do your job work cheap.
us your work and we will antee satisfaction.

whiskey election will be held eat No. 7, this county, on the of February. Let every body n out and vote for prohibition.
election notice elsewhere.

oup is a treacherous disease, and erally the most severe at night n unable to properly watch it. The known remedy is Ellis' C. S. A. sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

he number of visitors Clanton had during the holidays is sufent evidence of her importance the position she occupies in galaxy of booming towns in bama.

drove of Texas ponies and les were stopped in Clanton last k at Mr. Jno. Gullahorn's sta-and the consequence was horseding was the popular thing for w days.

The Methodist's cleared about 0,00 on their supper given at the rt house on the night of the 29th
. It was a grand success in ry other respect as well as fincially.

interesting letter from Tus-loosa will be published in these lumns next week, written by our aveling correspondent. Be sure to bscribe for the paper and get it

Personals.

Dr. J. S. Pitts, of Verbena, was in Clanton, Friday.

Mr. A. J. Brooks, of Verbena, was in Clanton yesterday.

Mr. J. P. VanDeveer, of Clear Creek, was in to see us Monday.

Miss Emma Boykin, of Verbena, visited friends in Clanton last week.

Miss Jennie Wilson, of Maplesville, is visiting friends in Clanton.

Mrs. J. D. Lamar, of Deatsville, visited relatives in Clanton last week.

Mr. R. Ehrman, of this place, made a prospecting trip to Sheffield last week.

Mr. I. B. Bowdoin has opened a grocery store in the house next to Garner & Co.

Mr. Lucien Day, the obliging clerk of W. L. Sampey, is confined to his bed with a billious attack.

Miss Rosa Gullahorn has again returned to Tuscaloosa, after spending a pleasant Christmas at her home in this place.

Mr. W. H. Lawrence, the senior editor of this paper, who has been on a visit to relatives in Tuskaloosa, for the past two weeks, is now in Greensboro.

Mrs. Chas. J. Duncan, who has been visiting relatives at this place, left Friday morning for Talladega where she will remain awhile before returning to her home in Nashville.

Our young men turned out in full force New Year's night and painted the town red with torchlights. The procession was a long one and everybody in it wore a mask.

Croup, Whooping cough and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. jun16 y

Catarrh cured, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal Injector free. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Tramps are getting to be very numerous and annoying around Clanton. Hardly a day passes but what the homes in our town are visited by two or three of these worthless creatures and nuisances.

We understand that the colored people will repeat their concert at an early day. The programme will have some changes made in it. The money made on these concerts goes to the completion of their new church building.

We learn that our young friend Reuben Duke expects to leave Clanton soon for the city of Louisville, Ky., where he will attend a commercial college. "Rube" has more than an ordinary share of good hard sense and will no doubt make a splendid business man. We wish him success in the Falls City, where he will probably remain after completing his business course of studies.

The hoosier or tacky party as it was called, at Phillip's hall, Friday night, was a very amusing affair. The object was to appear as tacky as posible, and the endeavor to do so, on the part of some off the maskers was quite successful. A good deal of fun was afford all present, and the tacky party will long be remembered as the most "tackified" entertainmenet in Clanton's history and as a decided success.

Our young friend Buist Bivings brought us a nice lot of birds which he killed himself one evening last week, for which he has our thanks. Buist says he does not kill them like the editor, but he gives them a chance for their life by letting them fly up before shooting them. We are glad to know that he has returned home from Birmingham, where he has been attending school, to remain.

Mr. John P. Spencer, of Columbiana, that popular drummer who was so well known in this community while in the roll of the "commercial tourist," was married in Montgomery on the morning of the 30th ult., to Mrs. Piccioli. Mr. Spencer has given up traveling and has settle down to business in Columbiana. We wish him and his accomplished bride much joy and happiness.

Slate Works.

The VIEW Job Office has just turned out a lot of printed stationery for the Clear Creek Slate Works, of which Mr. J. P. VanDeveer, is gen'l manager. This is a new step to fame for Chilton Co. We hope the slate quarries to be worked at Clear Creek will soon be followed by other like enterprises to develop the vast mineral wealth of our county.

The good effects of Ellis' P. P. P. on a debilitated person are felt at once, and a cure follows its use. If suffering from blood poison try a bottle. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

We visited our new jail in company with sheriff Smitherman on Monday morning and were surprised to find everything so neat and comfortable. There are three large stoves in the building in which good fires are kept up all the time and while the thermometer marked 10 degrees above zero outside the degree of warmth and comfort inside was all that could be desired. We remarked this fact to one of the prisoners who replied that he would rather take his chances outside notwithstanding. There are only four prisoners now in jail; one white man and three colored. If they are fed as in accordance with their other means of comfort they can have no complaint to make against our sheriff or the county.

Mr. Francis B. Lloyd, the talented city editor of Alabama's great daily, the Montgomery Advertiser, was married at the residence of the bride's father, at Butler Springs, Ala., on the morning of the 29th ult., to Miss Lily Carter. The groom is a young man of many fine qualities, and with a future full of bright promise of a place in fame's calendar. We are sure he has chosen a helpmeet worthy of him and we extend congratulations and wish them all the happiness human nature is heir to.

Noteheads, billheads, letterheads, envelopes, statements, programmes, posters, dodgers, circular letters, visiting and business cards, commissary checks, &c. &c., printed at the VIEW Job Office, at reasonable prices and on short notice.

See notice of administrator's sale of valuable property in Clanton. The estate of N. H. Thornton deceased.

OVER THE COUNTY.

News Gathered up by Our Correspondents.

Jemison.

Married,—At the residence of N. L. Meroney in Jemison, on the evening of the 27th ult., by Rev. A. E. Burns, Mr. M. Filmore McNeil, to Miss Emma A. Whatley.

That a kind Providence will bestow upon this pair the true happiness their mutual worth and high moral character deserve is the sincere wish of many admiring friends. ADMR.

Lilly Dots.

The weather is very cold.

The fire is the best friend we have or at least we stick the closest to it.

We see our Kincheon "pointer" has "sloped." Pity but that he had gone long ago. Pat acknowledged that Titus was part human but Titus won't say that there is any humanity in Pat. We don't think that Pat was at home when humanity was shared out.

Our new preacher was at his post the first Sunday in Jan., 1887. His name is Lindsay. We hope he will have a pleasant year, and will do much good in the cause of Christ. Let us all put our shoulders to the wheel and help him.

Mr. Editor, the "whiskey devil" over in beat 7 drank his fill Xmas and has coiled himself for a nap; let us hope that he will sleep himself to death, never to awake again in these parts.

We understand that Lummy Wooley, who left this country some years ago is dead. Lummy was an especial friend of Titus.

O! sad the thought that Lummys dead,
In silence rests his peaceful head;
His soul renewed by early grace,
In heaven hath sought its resting place.

Shiloh's Vitalizer is what you need for Constipation, loss of appetite, dizziness, and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle.

Life will acquire new zest, and cheerfulness will return, if you will impel your liver and kidneys to the performance of their functions Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm will stimulate them to healthful action. $1.00 per bottle. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

If you are suffering with weak or inflamed eyes, or granulated eyelids, you can be quickly cured by using Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve. 25 cents a box. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Take one of Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pillets at night before you go to bed and you will be surprised how buoyant and vigorous you will feel the next day. Only 25 cents a vial.

Election Notice.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA,
CHILTON COUNTY.

Under and by virtue of an order issued to me by the Hon. H. J. Callen, Judge of Probate for said county, notice is hereby given that there will be an election held in beat No. 7, at the places of voting in said beat, in the county of Chilton, on the 8th day of February, 1887, for the purpose of determining whether or not spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, shall be sold, given away or otherwise disposed of anywhere within the limits of said beat. Those voting against prohibition will write or print upon their tickets, "No Prohibition." Those voting for prohibition will write or print upon their tickets "Prohibition."

T. SMITHERMAN,
Sheriff Chilton Co.

Jan6 3in-3t
Printer's fee $5.00

MONTGOMERY
FURNITURE COMPANY.
—DEALERS IN—
Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Looking Glasses, Lounges, Hall Racks, Wardrobes, Chairs, Safes, Side Boards, Cradles, Cribs, Baby Carriages, Spring Beds. Mattresses, Refrigerators, Pianos. Organs, Carpets,
And All Kinds of Furniture!
A. C. ROGERS, Manager,
210 Bibb Street, Wharton's Old Stand Next to McDonald's Opera House.
sep2 y

FURNITURE AND WALL PAPER FOR EVERYBODY!
OUR STOCK OF FURNITURE, WINDOW SHADES, LACE CURTAINS, WALL PAPER, SPRING BEDS, AND MATTRESSES IS NOW COMPLETE.
Anybody in need of the above articles will find it to their interest to look at our immense stock. We guarantee everything we sell, and sell it cheaper than anybody in this State.
SQUARE DEALING IS OUR MOTTO!
B. WOLFF & BRO., Montgomery.
20 Commerce and Corner Court and Coosa Streets.
sept 15-6

Ellis' Magic Liver Pills are safe for children, and are more effective than any other cathartic pill on the market. If not found satisfactory return and get your money. For sale by W. H. Phillips. aug26-y

Will you suffer with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

That hacking cough can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's cure. We guarantee it. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Money to Loan!
I am prepared to negotiate mortgage loans on farming lands in Chilton county in sums of three hundred dollars and upwards. Rates cheap and negotiations speedily concluded. Apply to or correspond with
H. L. WILLIAMS,
oct7 Att'y at Law, Wetumpka.

NOTICE NO. 5783.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 4, 1886.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the Circuit court, or in his absence, before the Register and Receiver U. S. Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., on Febuary 19th, 1887, viz: Maria House, Homestead application No. 18475, for the s ½ of n e ¼ sec 28 t 20 n range 15 e. She names the following witnesses to prove her continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: John Ray, Monroe Gill, Stephen Price, Lewis Price, all of Verbena, Ala.

d30 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5884.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 28, 1886.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on Febuary, 5th 1887, viz: Nancy J. Norris, Homestead 12737 for the se ¼ of sec. 21, township 21, range 16 east. He names the following witness to prove his continuance residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Thos. Mims, William D. Goss, Harrison Kendrick and Clopton Ray, all of Verbena, Ala.

dec30 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5806.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery Ala., Dec. 13, 1886.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the Clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on January 22, 1887, viz: Sarah Mahan widow Archelis Q. Mahan, Homestead 9542 for the w ½ of of n w ¼ sec 8, township 20 n range 13 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Frank Fuller, Thomas R. Roberts, Robert M. Robuck, and John Chambers, all of Maplesville, Ala.

dec16 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

STOP AT
Morris Avenue Hotel,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
Corner Morris Avenue and 20th Street
ELYTON LAND CO. BUILDING.
HUGH KIRKMAN, PROPRIETOR.
Splendid rooms, well ventilated and elegantly furnished. Rates reasonable.

FARMER'S TAKE NOTICE!
When You Come to Town to buy Goods, Call at
R. P. Wooley & Co.'s Cheap Cash Store!
Next to the Railroad on North side of Main Street, Clanton.
—DEALER IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
[sep9-6]

A. J. BROOKS
AT VERBENA, ALA.
Has the largest stock of goods ever in Chilton County, and does and will sell them for less money.
All goods guaranteed as represented, and no shoddy goods are kept.
COME EVERYBODY
AND SEE FOR YOURSELVES.
I BUY COTTON AT MONTGOMERY PRICES FREIGHT OFF AND PAY CASH FOR IT. NO BARTER.
I have everything you want to buy and will buy everything you have to sell
☞ At the Highest Market Price. ☜

JUST RECEIVED AT
S. E. HIRSCHER'S
21 Dexter Ave., Montgomery,
An endless variety of New Novelties in HOLIDAY GOODS, and placed before our patrons for inspection. You are cordially invited to call and see us. HEADQUARTERS FOR EVERYTHING IN THE MUSIC LINE. Agency world renowned
WEBER, DECKER BROS., STIEF and KRANICH & BACH PIANOS.
☞ Sold on Easy Terms. Prices the Lowest in the State. [nov 18 3]

SHAW & DAVIN,
Machinery & Mill Supplies,
—MORRIS AVENUE AND 22D STREET.—
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
ENGINES,
BOILERS,
SAW MILLS,
CORN MILLS,
SHINGLE MACHINES,
CORN MILLS,
SUGAR MILLS,
COTTON GINS,
COTTON PRESSES
PULLEYS,
SHAFTI
BELTING, a MACHINIS
SUPPL
Largest Stock in the State.
Write for Circulars and Prices. P. O. Box 808. [July8]

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT
THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.
FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE.
PARSONS' MAKE NEW, RICH BLOOD. PILLS
MAKE HENS LAY

BRICK WO
J. M. DAWS
CLANTON, ALA.
Is prepared to do all kinds of work in the best style. The patronage of the public solicited.
feb15-tf

A. W. KEY & CO.,
Manufacturers' State Agents for
Engines, Saw Mills,
BOILERS,
—AND—
General Machinery.
P. O. Box 741,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Nabers & Morrow,
Wholesale Druggist.
FIRST AVENUE,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
MEDICINES,
Fine Wines, Liquors,
Oils, Etc.
☞ Agents for Chess Carley & Co.'s Oils. [June 10]

J. M. Hutchason's
BOARDING, LIVERY
—AND—
SALE STABLES.
Select Dray and Plantation Mules constantly on hand.
Draying and Hauling Promptly Attended to
Always ready to take Contracts for filling in Dirt
Moving Stone, Engines, Boilers, Machinery and other heavy hauling.
RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS AND DAMAGE.
Satisfaction Guaranteed. Handsome Carriages and Double Teams, with or without Drivers.
☞ MONTGOMERY STABLES, ☜
Lawrence Street, Opp. P. O.,
Telephone 446. janly

Life Size Photographs a Specialty.
TRESSLAR,
Artistic Photographe
10 COURT SQUARE,
Montgomery.
All Sittings made Instantaneous;
Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged.
[jan21-tf]

A FINE
FLORIDA TO
MR. F S. C
One of Drug tr writes:
"I c
the n
"Guin
what the b have Toni

BILE BEAN

pson, Francis & C

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA,

—DEALERS IN—

HARDWARE,

Sash, Doors and Blinds, Paints, Oils and Glass, Cement and Plaster, Mantels and Grates, and a complete line of Cooking and Heating Stoves.

SOUTHERN BUSINESS COLLEGE.

No. 407½ W. Jefferson St., Next Door below Masonic Temple.

Louisville, - - - Kentucky.

NO TEXT BOOKS USED.

k-Keeping, Penmanship, Commercial Arithmetic, Short Hand, Type Writing, &c.

We guarantee to teach more real, practical Book-keeping, Commercial or Business Calculations, more practical ideas about business in general in two to four months than any other Business College in this section can in twelve months.

We teach forms of book-keeping (actual forms used in business) not taught in any other Business College in this section.

No Scholar Has Ever Completed Our Entire Course and Left us Dissatisfied.

For Circulars call at College or address,

BEN. C. WEAVER, Principal.

NEW GOODS! NEW GOODS!

B. WELLMAN'S

"LOUISVILLE CLOTHING HOUSE"

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

—DEALER IN—

Fine Clothing and Gent's Furnishing Goods

Bottom Prices at Last!

"The best Goods for the Least Money," is the motto of this house, and I am now selling an Immense Stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS at the Lowest Cash Prices.

BLOOM,

The Tailor, of Montgomery, Alabama,

—DOES—

yeing, Scouring, Cleaning and Repairing

ents' and Ladies' garments of all colors.
rs by Mail or Express will receive prompt attention.
s to suit the times. Work Guaranteed.

rt Street, Upstairs, Opposite Dollar Store.

-1y

NT

THE LOUISVILLE

BUSINESS COLLEGE,

Cor. Third & Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

NG, PENMANSHIP, SHORT-HAND,
NG, ARITHMETIC, &c.

d recopied by students. Has the largest honest ine no trouble in obtaining situations.

Improve your spare hours and obtain a practical

COLLEGE AS ABOVE.

[mar18-1y

L&N

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.

THE GREAT

Through Trunk Line

Between the Cities of CINCINNATI, LEXINGTON, LOUISVILLE, EVANSVILLE, ST. LOUIS, And the Cities of N. ORLEANS, MOBILE, and MONTGOM'Y, MEMPHIS, NASHVILLE,

Change and with Speed Unrivaled

ORTEST AND QUICKEST ROUTE

From New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery, to

NORTH, EAST & WEST

PULLMAN CARS Without change to Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, with but one change to all NORTHERN AND EASTERN CITIES.

THROUGH COACHES From Chattanooga and Nashville to St. Louis, connecting direct for Cities in the Northwest.

EMIGRANTS Seeking homes on the line of this road will receive special low rates.

See Agents of this Company for rates, routes &c., or write C. P. ATMORE, G. P. & T. A. Louisville, Ky.

[jan28-dm

LAR ORGAN

ion Books and Piano Stools.

and Price Lists on application, free.

cago Cottage Organ Co.

Randolph and Ann Streets,

CHICAGO, ILL.

A COMPLETE STOCK of Fancy Stationery, and everything usually kept in a Stationery Establishment

WAYS ON HAND

Sale at City Prices at the

VIEW

TIONERY STAND.

WOMAN'S WO RLD.

EATURES FOR E READERS.

Shopping Toilets.

Is unfitness in dress a peculiarity of American women? asks Clara Belle in one of her New York letters. Are the women of other nations as insensible to the incongruous as are ours? These questions were suggested by the scene in a basement room of one of the large stores in this city. There were hundreds of women passing in and out and strolling from one counter to the other, and among them were worn some of the handsomest street toilettes I ever saw. Often was the eye almost blinded by the sparkling of jet in the electric light, and satins, velvets, plushes of all colors formed a moving kaleidoscope. The department was one for housekeeping goods, and some of those gorgeously arrayed women were selecting chopping bowls, carving knives, tin pans, fire shovels, etc. The climax was reached when, through an opening in the throng, I saw a young woman whose toilet was largely made up of white watered silk and lace poising a black-bottomed kettle with a dainty-gloved hand! Her costume would have answered for an elegant reception; perhaps she intended going to one after purchasing a preserving kettle.

Thackeray in Praise of Woman.

Thackeray, in one of his novels, says: "There are more clever women in the world than men think for. Our habit is to despise them; we believe they do not think because they no not contradict us; and are weak because they do not rise up against us. A man only begins to know women as he grows old; and for my part my opinion of this cleverness rises every day. When I say that I know women I mean that I don't know them. Every single woman I ever met is a puzzle to me, as I have no doubt she is to herself. Say they are not clever! They are constantly exercising cleverness of the finest sort.

"You see a demure-looking woman, faithful in house bills and shirt buttons, obedient to her lord and anxious to please him in all things; silent on politics or literature, and, if referred to, saying with a smile of humanity: 'Oh, women are not judges upon such matters; we leave learning to men.' 'Yes,' says Jones, 'attend to the house, my dear, and leave the rest to us.' Benighted idiot! She has long ago taken your measure; she knows your weakness and ministers to them in a thousand artful ways. She knows your obstinate points, and marches round them with the most curious art and patience, as you will see an ant on a journey turn round an obstacle."

The Man Milliner's Reign.

Everywhere uptown cloth jackets that fit like jerseys and ulsters that are molded to the graceful, rounding figures of the ladies, as men can scarcely hope or wish their overcoats to be, inclose the persons of all well-dressed women. It is impossible for any man (except a woman's tailor) to judge whether the new fashion is or is not a good one. And I would not give a fig for the opinion of a man so dull that he could see a half-dozen Murray Hill girls, who have strained art and poured out money in order to look their best, and then could express any but the one opinion. Amid the rack and stress of shifting fashions since I have been among them each alteration in their gowns has seemed to make them more and more entrancing. What brought about this revolution? Well, first the common jersey, which made a display of the outline of the figure popular, and then the demand for an equally tight-fitting overgarment to keep up the accurate exposure of outline when the weather called for something outside and on top of the jersey. The men's tailors were called upon to construct these feminine "ulsters," as they were called. These tailors got extra prices for this new work and liked it (that is, the extra prices) so well that they enlarged their signs to attract more ladies. This encroached on the field of the men dressmakers, who then hired tailors and also altered their signs. Thus the words "ladies' tailor" appeared on the signs of two sets of tradesmen. And thus, also, came it to pass that the original men's tailors went on from making ulsters to making dresses, and the men dressmakers became the makers of tailor-made garments of all sorts. It is interesting to visit one of these ladies' tailor shops, as I did yesterday. Here were trousers by the score hung in a line on hooks, like beeves before a butcher's stall, and across the room were great glass cases filled with ladies jackets and skirts, blazing with embroidery in gold, with gaudy ribbons and with buttons big as butter dishes. A young man with his coat off and one arm out stiff, like a mailbag catcher on a postal car, was being measured for a coat in the thick of a bevy of circling ladies, one of whom stood on a low platform while a young girl encircled her with a tape measure and the great woman's tailor talked of whalebones, linings, flounces and I don't know what not.—New York Letter.

Fashion Notes.

Postilion backs, pointed fronts and short sides are seen on basques.

Gold brooches representing a tennis racquet, with ball, are popular.

In frocks, basques and mantles the shoulder seams are made very short.

For general wear this season cheviot, tweed and canvas goods take the lead.

Among the fashionable combinations black and yellow retains its popularity.

With tulle or lace neckwear small brooches of rare workmanship will be worn.

For elderly ladies gray watered silk is combined with black cashmere in gowns.

Jet beads, it is said, will give way to balls of feathers as a finish for hat brims.

The tape stripe among the new woolens looks as if it had been sewed on the fabric.

English gowns are plaited and plain, and French frocks are gathered and puffed.

Fall hats have crowns of cloth, velvet and satin, and have a seam directly in the back.

Tiny shells of mother-of-pearl are scattered over a handsome fichu of tulle and old point lace.

Bright red will in a great measure be supplanted by bright yellow in brightening dark costumes.

Pale pink veils are worn with every sort of bonnet. They are more becoming than the red ones so long in favor.

Link sleeve buttons have a cat's head in low relief and a pug's face in high relief, signs of the zodiac, or any two objects not alike.

All American frocks for little girls are made short in the waist, full of skirt, and loose and comfortable in fit all over the person this fall.

Hand-made underwear is shown in plain and embroidered styles. It grows steadily in favor, and is among the best of ready-made goods of this class.

Silver bead bracelets are much worn and the bead pattern figures conspicuously in gold and silver trinkets of all kinds. A new bracelet shows alternate beads of gold and platinum.

English tailor styles in dresses remain the same in general cut and retain favor at the East for the promenade. French fashions in walking dresses are favorably regarded in the South and West.

There is a revolt against small birds and feathers of the same for millinery ornaments among those ladies who wish to put a stop to the slaughter of the forest birds of America, and the whole world.

The hair is no longer massed over the forehead, but a few light curls or waves fall on each side. It is still piled up at the top of the head, and well brushed up from the nape of the neck. It is well off the temples, and leaves the ears quite free.

Ostrich feathers are in high favor in fashionable millinery. They are seen in all colors, also in ombre and mottled effects, while novelties with tinted tips upon which glisten pearl beads, will be very effective for evening wear in the hair or on the bonnet.

Ashantee and Its People.

Ashantee, a new kingdom on the Gold Coast, has given the British no little trouble, and may give them a good deal more. It is mountainous, well watered and healthful, except in the lower districts, and has a population of about 1,500,000, one-fifth of whom are warriors. The beginning of the kingdom is obscure; but traditions say that it was occupied several centuries ago by immigrants from a region north of the King Mountains, caused, probably, by the spread of the Mohammedan Empire to Timbuctoo. The first known of it in Europe was in 1700, when Coomassie was made the capital by Osai Tootoo I., who, having overcome various separate states, was established as a kind of feudal prince over a large district. In their course of conquest over the Fantees the Ashantees followed them even to the large seaport towns, and butchered them by thousands. The British sided with the weaker party, when the savage foe attacked the fort of Anamboe, and would have slaughtered the garrison had not the British Governor displayed a flag of truce. Hostilities lasted, with some interruptions, from 1807 to 1826 when the Ashantees were finally driven from the sea coast. Some fourteen years ago the British were involved in another war with their old enemy. Then an army under Sir Garnet Wolseley penetrated to the heart of the Kingdom, burned Coomassie and returned safely to the coast. Notwithstanding their reverses and losses, the Ashantees are still belligerent and powerful, and enjoy as much prosperity as any negro nation in western Africa. They are very barbarous and bloodthirsty; but their abundant gold, extent of territory and successful campaigns have yielded them prestige and prominence. They have no military knowledge, but depend upon their savage bravery and overwhelming numbers, including many slaves, which the chiefs can put in the field. The King is commander-in-chief, and often leads his host in person. As an instance of their desperate courage, many of them, after defeat by the British, were so mortified and so fearful of degradation that they coolly sat down on kegs of gunpowder and blew themselves into the air, in presence of the hostile camp. The government of those negroes is an absolute despotism, the King exercising complete control over the lives and property of his subjects. He has spies everywhere, and the slightest act or word of disaffection is at once reported, and the rebel is put to death. He is the great property owner; he levies a tax of twenty per cent. on all manufactured gold and all gold taken from the mines, so that he is the richest individual in Africa. Slavery prevails extensively, the chiefs often holding 1,000 slaves each; these beings are for the most part pagan negroes, captured in war by Mohammedans, brought from the interior and sold into bondage. Polygamy is a favorite institution, a man's importance being rated by the number of his wives. The King is limited, poor fellow, to 3,333, who occupy two entire streets and are rigorously secluded from everybody save the sovereign and his feminine relatives. To look on one of them, even accidentally, is a capital offence. Adultery is punished by a fine, and retaliation of any violent kind on the part of the husband is thought mean and degrading. The Ashantees seem to delight in shedding blood, and human sacrifice is a part of their religious ceremony.—Commercial Advertiser.

Indian Gamblers.

For the last two weeks, a lot of sharp, good-looking Indians have been lounging about the town. They own race horses, good clothes and the showiest of blankets and carry plenty of silver. Old settlers know them well. They are the gamblers of the Moses tribe, and yearly make their pilgrimages to this point at the time when the Yakima and Klickitat Indians are well provided with money, earned by laboring in the hop fields. They are expert card players—up to all the tricks—and are not afraid to try their skill and nerve with the sportive frontiersmen to the north, with whom they frequently have long sieges of "draw," and oftentimes to their material profit. To these experienced gamblers the local siwashes are as children, and lose their earnings and ponies in a prodigal manner. This season is just a repetition of the last and many previous ones, and Moses's men will go home well fattened with wealth, while the home Indian and money-earner will pass a lean and hungry winter.—Yakima (Arizona) Signal.

A Pretty Experiment.

With so simple an article as a red cabbage, a very old but pretty little chemical experiment may be made by the young people, with the result of amusing and astonishing those around them. The effects may be strikingly shown in this manner: Cut three leaves of the cabbage into small pieces, and after placing them in a basin pour a pint of boiling water over them, letting them stand an hour; then pour off the liquid into a decanter. It will be of a fine blue color. Then take four wine glasses—into one put six drops of strong vinegar; into another six drops of solution of soda; into a third the same quantity of strong solution of alum; and let the fourth glass remain empty. Fill up the glasses from the decanter, and the liquid poured into the glass containing the acid will quickly change to a beautiful red; that poured with the soda will be a fine green, and that poured into the empty glass will remain unchanged.

There are numerous Masonic lodges in France composed exclusively of women.

THE WASHINGTON WILLARDS.

Three Brothers Who Have Grown Rich and Famous in the Hotel Business.

[From the Pittsburgh Times.]

"The Willards" in Washington are three Vermont brothers, Joseph, Henry and Caleb, named in the order of their ages. The latter is the proprietor of the Ebbitt, worth one or two millions. Henry owns much property in bonds. With Joseph, the elder, he is joint owner of the Willard Hotel, which they kept for many years. His estate is away up in the millions and growing. Joseph is the richer, as well as the elder of the three, and is said to spend much of his time cutting coupons from bonds. He is in no active business. He is a widower and one son is the only heir. He lives the life of a recluse. If he is not a good lover he is a good hater. He has little to do with mankind in general, albeit he has the appearance of a mild-mannered, benevolent-minded gentleman of 65 years. He and Caleb have not spoken for years. Joseph does the hating and Caleb the grinning and bearing. The latter owns a long row of property on F street, beginning with the Ebbitt. Only one strip of twelve feet interrupts his continuous ownership from Thirteenth to Fourteenth street. It is next to the Ebbitt. This strip Joseph owns. Caleb has tried every means to buy it. Joseph holds it solely to spite his brother. It is occupied by a tenantless one-story structure. Not a great while ago a suave, business-like gentleman called upon Joseph and stated that he was looking for a location to establish a candy manufactory. He was impressed with the F street location and wanted to know if it was in the market. Joseph Willard replied that he would sell if he could get his price. Then his visitor asked the terms. Looking up and catching the business man's eye he said: "My price is $500,000. You go back to C. C. Willard, who sent you here, and tell him that." It is said that Joseph has so fixed it in his will that the property can never fall into Caleb's hands or the hands of his heirs. That he is insane is not suspected. He loves his mother, and makes a daily visit to her in the house of the brother he so hates. He and Henry though not alienated have little intercourse. There is nothing the matter between Henry and Caleb. The singularity spoken of is lodged specially with Joseph. He dresses neatly, does not seek intercourse with his fellows, and only a few persons have dealings with him. General Boynton has his confidence and is sometimes the medium of communication between him and others in business transactions. He appears to be as happy as any one and attends the church of which he is a member. He is tall and handsome and active. His wife was one of the handsomest women in Washington.

Henry and Caleb are enterprising citizens and loving brothers. Both contribute liberally to benevolent objects, especially to the churches to which they belong.

A Driving Business.

Jones wanted a hansom the other night, it having reached the "Wee, sma' hours ayont the twal'" before the club adjourned. Just then one of the two-wheeled conveniences whirled by, and Jones made a frantic endeavor to stop the vehicle.

"Hello, cabby, hold up; here's a fare."

Jehu, who had an engagement, drove on, shouting back:

"Oh, no; I dont stop; my business is driving."

A Valuable Medical Treatise.

The edition for 1887 of the sterling Medical Annual, known as Hostetter's Almanac is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States, Mexico, and indeed in every civilized portion of the Western Hemisphere. This Almanac has been issued regularly at the commencement of every year for over one-fifth of a century. It combines, with the soundest practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amusing light reading, and the calendar, astronomical calculations, chronological items, &c., are prepared with great care, and will be found entirely accurate. The issue of Hostetter's Almanac for 1887 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

A dog lost in Kansas made its way back to the home of his master in Michigan.

Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is not extolled as a "cure-all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent specific in those chronic weaknesses peculiar to women. Particulars in Dr. Pierce's large treatise on Diseases Peculiar to Women, 160 pages, sent for ten cents in stamps. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Consider yourself engaged for this set," as the ring said to the diamond.

"Consumption Can be Cured."

Dr. J. S. COMBS, Owensville, Ohio, says: "I have given SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites to four patients with better results than seemed possible with any remedy. All were hereditary cases of Lung disease, and advanced to that stage when Coughs, pain in the chest, frequent breathing, frequent pulse, fever and Emaciation. All these cases have increased in weight from 16 to 28 lbs., and are not now needing any medicine."

The book that makes the greatest stir in society is the plethoric pocketbook.

Rupture, pile tumors, fistulæ and all diseases of the lower bowel (except cancer), radically cured. Send 10 cents in stamps for book. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

It takes a goose to believe in a goose bone as prophetic of winter weather.

For restoring youthful freshness and color to gray hair, use Hall's Hair Renewer.

A neglected cough often terminates fatally. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral affords speedy relief.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS
WILL CURE

HEADACHE
INDIGESTION BILIOUSNESS
DYSPEPSIA
NERVOUS PROSTRATION
MALARIA
CHILLS AND FEVERS
TIRED FEELING
GENERAL DEBILITY
PAIN IN THE BACK & SIDES
IMPURE BLOOD
CONSTIPATION
FEMALE INFIRMITIES RHEUMATISM NEURALGIA
KIDNEY AND LIVER TROUBLES

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

The Genuine has Trade Mark and crossed Red Lines on wrapper.

TAKE NO OTHER.

Pensions [illegible]

OPIUM Habit Cured. [illegible]

An Honest Man.

The Italian peddler had retired for the night, when there sounded a heavy knock at the door.

"Whose there," he demanded.

"I'm the man you sold a pint of chestnuts to this afternoon."

"Well, what-a you want!"

I have come to return a sound chestnut to you. It was the only good one in the lot, and, as I'm an honest man, and you probably put it in by mistake, I've brought it back to you."

A single fact is worth a ship load of argument. This may well be applied to St. Jacobs Oil, which is more efficacious than all other liniments. Mr. John Gregg, a well-known citizen of Watsonville, California, found it to be indispensable as a cure for rheumatism. Price, fifty cents.

In 1884 Miss Gould undertook to provide her father's tenantry, in Limerick, with means of obtaining remunerative employment, and has established a knitting enterprise, a complete cottage industry, in which the women take the keenest interest.

An ounce of discretion is better than a pound of knowledge. Why not spend twenty-five cents for a bottle of Red Star Cough Cure, and save a large doctor's bill?

A writer says that when a girl is being courted, she sets a great deal by a young man. True enough; but the sentence is not grammatical. It should read, "she 'sits' a great deal by a young man." Anyway the young man sits a great deal by the girl.

"I do not like thee, Dr. Fell,
The reason why, I cannot tell."

It has often been wondered at, the bad odor this oft-quoted doctor was in. 'Twas probably because he, being one of the old-school doctors, made up pills as large as bullets, which nothing but an ostrich could bolt without nausea. Hence the dislike. Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" are sugar-coated and no larger than bird-shot, and are quick to do their work. For all derangements of the liver, bowels and stomach they are specific.

The woman who neglects her husband's shirt front is no longer the wife of his bosom

---

LADIES! Those dull, tired looks and feelings speak volumes! Dr. Kilmer's FEMALE REMEDY corrects all conditions, restores vigor and vitality and brings back youthful bloom and beauty. Price $1.00—6 bottles $5.00.

Important to All Who Work for a living. Write to Hallet & Co., Portland, Maine, and they will send you full information, free, showing you how you can make from $5 to $25 and upwards a day and live at home, wherever you are located. Some have made over $50 in a day. Capital not required; you are started free. All ages; both sexes. All is new. Great incomes sure from the start. Fortunes await all workers who begin at once.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.

Send for Pamphlet on Female Diseases, free, securely sealed. Dr. J. B. Marchisi, Utica, N.Y

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is agreeable to use. It is not a liquid or a snuff. 50c.

Engraved from photograph Taken January 1885.

PROF. S. ANDRAL KILMER, M.D.
BINGHAMTON, N.Y.
THE INVALID'S BENEFACTOR.
Discoverer of Dr. Kilmer's

COMPLETE FEMALE REMEDY

Ladies' Home Treatment

Special and Specific treatment for all Complaints and Diseases peculiar to Daughters, Wives and Mothers.

Each package contains 3 bottles.

☞ Each kind is also sold separately:

Female Remedy, (Blood and System) $1.
Autumn-Leaf Ext., (Local Treatm't) $1.
U & O Anointment, (External " .50
☞ Or the three in one Package $2.00.

Recovers the "run-down;" bed-ridden" or "abandoned." It Eliminates Humors and Blood Impurities that cause Scrofula, Cancer, Tumor, pimples and blotches.

The age for Pessaries and Exposures is past. Woman's Health and usefulness again restored.

Dr. Kilmer treats Internal Tumor, Cancer.

You can't afford to neglect early symptoms.

Letters of inquiry promptly answered.

Dr. Kilmer's Female Dispensary, Binghamton, N. Y.

"Invalids' Guide to Health" (Sent Free).

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

DROPSY

TREATED FREE.

DR. H. H. GREEN & SONS,

Specialists for Thirteen Years Past,

Have treated Dropsy and its complications with the most wonderful success; use vegetable remedies, entirely harmless. Remove all symptoms of Dropsy in eight to twenty days.

Cure patients pronounced hopeless by the best of physicians.

From the first dose the symptoms rapidly disappear, and in ten days at least two-thirds of all symptoms are removed.

Some may cry humbug without knowing anything about it. Remember, it does not cost you anything to realize the merits of our treatment for yourself. In ten days the difficulty of breathing is relieved, the pulse regular, the urinary organs made to discharge their full duty, sleep is restored, the swelling all or nearly gone, the strength increased and appetite made good. We are constantly curing cases of long standing, cases that have been tapped a number of times, and the patient declared unable to live a week. Give full history of case. Name sex. How long afflicted, how badly swollen and where, are bowels costive, have legs bursted and dripped water? Send for free pamphlet, containing testimonials, questions, etc.

Ten days' treatment furnished free by mail.

If you order trial send 10cts in stamps to pay postage.

Epilepsy (Fits) Positively Cured.

H. H. GREEN & SONS, M. Ds.,
250½ Marietta Street, Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA SAW WORKS.

Manufacturers of and Dealers in

Saws and Saw-Mill Supplies.

Repairing a Specialty.

Agents for L. POWER & COMPANY'S Wood Working Machinery. Large and complete stock. Write for catalogue. ATLANTA, GA.

J. P. STEVENS & BRO.

JEWELERS.

Atlanta, Ga.

Send for Catalogue.

Young Men Can get the most Practical Business Education at Goldsmith's School of Business, 38½ S Broad St. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Circulars & Specimen of Penmanship.

Blair's Pills. Great English Gout and Rheumatic Remedy. Oval Box $1.00; round, 50 cts.

Invalids' Hotel and S

BUFFAL

Organized with a ful Experienced and Sk and Surgeons for all Chronic

OUR FIELD OF

Chronic Nasal Catar Lung Diseases, Live Diseases, Bladder Dis of Women, Blood Dis ous Affections, cured with or without seeing the see us, or send ten cents "Invalids' Guide Boo all particulars.

DELICATE DISEASES. Nervous I tency, Noct and all Morb caused by lies and Pe tary Practi and permanent Specialists. Book, post-paid, RUPTURE. Rupture, cally cured wi without truss and without Guaranteed ten cents in stamps.

PILE TUMORS and treated under guarantee sent for ten cents in stamps. DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCI Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

DISEASES OF WOMEN. The treatm thousands of diseases pecul WO at the Inv Surgical In forded large experience in ad for their cure, and is the result of this vast exp

DR. PIER

Favorite Pres

It is a powerful Restora and Nervine, imparts vigor a to the system, and cures, as if by corrhea, or "whites," flowing, painful menstrua natural suppressions, pro falling of the uterus, we anteversion, retroversion, down sensations, chronic tion, inflammation and u of the womb, inflammati and tenderness in ovaries, heat, and "female weakne It promptly relieves, and cures and Weakness of Stomach tion, Bloating, Nervous P and Sleeplessness, in eit

PRICE $1.00, OR FOR

Sold by Druggists ev ten cents in stamps for D. Treatise on Diseases of Wom

World's Dispensary Medical Association,
663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

SICK-HEADACHE,

Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, and Bilious Attacks, promptly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. 25 cents a vial, by Druggists.

PATENTS Inventors' Hand-book free. 15 yrs. experience. FLENNER & CO., Attorneys, Washington, D. C.

MASON & HAMLIN

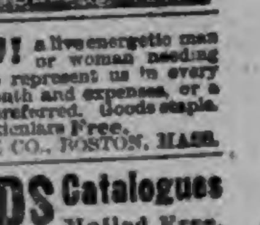
UNRIVALED ORGANS

On the EASY PAYMENT system, from $3.25 per month up. 100 styles, $22 to $900. Send for Catalogue with full particulars, mailed free.

UPRIGHT PIANOS,

Constructed on the new method of stringing, on similar terms. Send for descriptive Catalogue.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN AND PIANO CO.
Boston, New York, Chicago.



No Rope to Cut Off Horses' Manes.

Celebrated 'ECLIPSE' HALTER and BRIDLE Combined, cannot be slipped by any horse. Sample Halter to any part of U. S. free, on receipt of $1. Sold by all Saddlery, Hardware and Harness Dealers. Special discount to the Trade. Send for Price-List.

J. C. LIGHTHOUSE, Rochester, N. Y.

PENSION CLAIMS of all KINDS prosecuted without fee unless successful. TWENTY-TWO YEARS' EXPERIENCE. ☞ CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED.

MILO B. STEVENS & CO.

WASHINGTON, D. C. CLEVELAND, OHIO.
CHICAGO, ILL. DETROIT, MICH.

HARTSHORN'S Shade Rollers BEST

NOTICE NAME ON LABEL AND GET THE GENUINE

WE WANT YOU! a live energetic man or woman needing profitable employment to represent us in every county. Salary $75 per month and expenses, or a large commission on sales if preferred. Goods staple. Every one buys. Outfit and particulars Free. STANDARD SILVERWARE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

GARDEN SEEDS Catalogues Mailed Free. Francis Brill, HEMPSTEAD, LONG ISLAND, N. Y.

ENCYCLOPEDIA AGENTS. Address for valuable information, ENCYCLOPEDIA PUBLISHING CO., 21 Wooster Street, New York.

THURSTON'S IVORY PEARL TOOTH POWDER Keeping Teeth Perfect and Gums Healthy.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. Refer to 1000 patients cured in all parts. DR. MARSH, Quincy, Mich.

FREE Package of Fronefield's Cattle Powder for Horses, Cattle and Poultry. The best made. FRONEFIELD, 346 Dillwyn St., Phila'a, Pa.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE Lines not under the horse's feet. Address BREWSTER'S SAFETY REIN HOLDER, Holly, Mich.

PATENTS Obtained. Send stamp for Inventor's Guide. L. BINGHAM, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

A. N. U .... Fifty-two, '86

FREE. LIBERTY ENLIGHTENING THE WORLD. FREE.

A Beautiful Statuette of Bartholdi's Great Work.

The MOST LIBERAL & ATTRACTIVE OFFER Ever Made.

By arrangement with the Statue of Liberty Manufacturing Company, I am enabled to make the following unexampled offers, which place this beautiful statuette, of bronze and nickel, within the reach of every one:

The statuette has been specially made for me, and is a fac simile of the identical material of the great statue. The pedestal and base are heavily nickeled, and will, with proper care, last brilliant and untarnished a lifetime. Thousands of statuettes of inferior workmanship, of less height, without base, have been sold at $1 each.

This is the only statuette authorized by M. Bartholdi or the American Committee, and can be obtained by no other publisher in the United States or Canada. We make the following offers:

I. To any person sending us a new subscriber to the Illustrated Newspaper ($4), or to the Popular Monthly ($3.00), for one year, we will mail, postpaid, the statuette of Liberty.

II. To any person sending two new subscribers to the Sunday Magazine ($2.50), for one year, we will send the statuette.

III. To any person sending not less than $4, except as stated above, for any of our publications, singly or in combination, we will send the statuette.

In each case the full subscription price must be sent directly to this office, and request for the statuette distinctly stated with the remittance.

☞ The Statuette will not be sold, without subscription, at any price.

FRANK LESLIE'S POPULAR MONTHLY for 188

This old favorite, "The Monarch of the Monthlies," will, in the coming year, be more attractive than ever. Among its features will be:

Subjects of the Day, in the Old World or the New, [illegible] with illustrations to bring the whole vividly before the mind of the reader.

Popular Science, by able and skillful writers.

Papers on Our National Capital, the Great Seaports and [illegible]

Outdoor Amusements of the American People on Land [illegible] Water.

Modern War Material.

Articles and Stories by General Lew Wallace, [illegible]

[illegible] and other talented and popular writers.

All the other publications of this house [illegible] high standard of merit [illegible]

Specimen copies of each [illegible]

[illegible] FRANK LESLIE [illegible]

Rates of One Dollar pe space or less, fo
Cents for each

INCHES.
1 Inch ....
2 Inches ......
3 Inches ......
4 Inches ......
5 Inches ......
¼ Column ......
½ Column ......
1 Column ......

Artificially gro
the best fattened the Boston mar
pond in Americ
Mass., where 7, this season. It is patent incubators public notice, an basis of a large in

Mr. Carpenter, spondent who ha
the British Isles, this point that f
England is the can only be appr it, and by the thousands of f
during a trip s
There are al
gaged in ma in agricultur

A newly m terior of N never before train, took th wedding trip came around t bridegroom w novelty of the out his marri ductor looke handed it ba was a high place, and plated se possessi

te inch d Fifty ertion.

22 50
27 00
30 00
40 00
60 00
100 00

d to be in duck Easton, hatched rs since ay into rm the corretour of k with ict that world through tens of ne sees rection.
ero enngaged the inidently ailroad n their aductor ts, the
by the anded con-
and at it in its ontemhat its lder to t pace ial life on an room.
other
A cabin be bedven a class rlor to ub and d from ng par-occa-
nful of ily oc gation unkey hint
Bag-court ndant es ofompliwith ntempt as the quadimant, ly the ing no en the failure ltation
, deafmarily ery the swer to ave no the oil rope!"
a said:
est any-n a fine,
I spare
ted out known put a rience, out on water f these couple repairs ier will a Gern one-people and she

The Chilton View.

W. H. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors. "WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION." TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1887. NUMBER 10.

Special Advertising.

Business Notices Ten Cents per line each insertion.

Obituaries and Tributes of Respect, half rates.

Announcing candidates for office, Five Dollars, strictly in advance.

Communications recommending candidates for office will be headed as advertisements and charged for accordingly.

Liberal contracts made with those advertising by the year.

☞ The money is due on all advertising after the first publication.

THE BARTHOLDI STATUE.

Not like those temples of the olden times,
  Built by the bleeding hands of toiling slaves,
  The corner-stones laid over new-made graves,
In bold commemoration of dark crimes;
Not like the mystic Sphinx, whose dull, cold face
  Left to the world no lesson and no [illegible].

Is this majestic emblem of the Free!
  No history of wrongs, her wearing mars—
  But, rival and companion of the stars,
She lifts her glorious torch, that all may see
This symbol of a Nation's Motherhood,
Fair Liberty, the beautiful, the good!

Stupendous triumph of ambitious art,
  Helped by a million eager, earnest hands
  Up to the lofty height whereon she stands,
She knits two great republics heart to heart
And, smiling from our country's open door,
Welcomes the homeless wanderer to our shore.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

OUT OF THE DEPTHS.

"I tell you, Hawksworth, I know what I'm talking about, and I don't believe in any chicken-heartedness when it comes to a clear matter of justice; and if I caught tramp, beggar or thief on my premises, and could prove he'd been taking anything belonging to me, I'd show him no mercy whatever."

And Captain Whippleton brought his strong fist down on the railing by which he happened to be standing with a thump which made the metals ring again.

He was on his way home from the Mariner's Club rooms, and had encountered the Chief of Police, Marshal Hawksworth, who had been telling how some young thieves were destroying the peace of some of the residents of Prince avenue, but how hard it was to arrest mere boys.

Captain Wipperton's fine house was a little way out of the city proper, and now, after having chatted with several friends on the shipping news at the club, he was on the way home to eat his Thanksgiving dinner.

The Captain was rather given to bluster and flourish, but was strongly suspected of being a kind man at heart, though some wondered that, well off as he was, he never seemed very charitably disposed. His housekeeper dispensed small charities occasionally, but the Captain, a bounteous provider where his own table was concerned, thought but little of the wants of the "Great Outside."

"Rather a strange time to be talking of justice and tramps," said the minister, who cheerily joined the two men at the railing on his way home from church. "I hope," he added, a genial smile overspreading his benevolent countenance, "we shall not forget the Giver of all good gifts this bright Thanksgiving Day," and the minister passed on.

Marshal Hawksworth started for the station, and Captain Whippleton turned toward home, visions of a savory meal preceding his heavy footsteps.

A short distance from his own door his reflections received a sudden shock as he saw a boy dart out of the side gate, a suspicious looking bundle in a handkerchief dangling in one hand. The boy without looking either to the right or left darted along the road, soon turning into a side street.

"Oh, I'll catch you, you young rascal," said the Captain to himself as he sprang along with surprising agility, considering his weight.

The boy, still without turning, sped along, the Captain following with equal swiftness. The child led him a long race, and many persons along the lower part of the city where he was now traveling gazed curiously at the large, well-dressed man evidently bent on reaching a given point within a limited time.

The narrow streets grew still narrower as the boy, apparently fancying himself more secure on his own soil, slackened his pace, so allowing his unseen follower to gain upon him rapidly. At length he turned into a contracted court, and entered a door just as Captain Whippleton entered the alley. The boy also disappeared round the top of a flight of stairs just as the Captain entered the outside door.

For two reasons the Captain went over the stairs guardedly. He wished to make no noise, and he half feared the rickety stairs would give way beneath what he styled his "uncommon heft."

At the far end of the first landing was a room with the door ajar. The Captain approached and listened, a boyish voice was saying:

"Now then, let's sit right up in our little bed, and see what we've got for a nice Thanksgiving dinner. Up-a-diddy; that's it! Now then, what's in this bundle, we wonder."

The hall in which the sturdy Captain was standing was almost as dark as pitch, but of the little him

ing breakfast, and not being used at all to such scenes, his eyes were getting blurred disagreeably, and a great lump in his throat seemed threatening to choke him every moment. But the low voice began again:

"You know, little brother, mother, she knew all about the Bible, and nights, when she lay, a-dying, she used to repeat things she knowed to me, and I remember, ma, she used to say as 'twas better to starve than to take what wasn't our'n, and Miss Limpsey, my Sunday-school teacher, she said what I've often and often told you, Bony boy; we must obey God first of all, and He certainly will care for us."

There was a tremble in the poor voice which made Captain Whippleton swallow so hard he nearly strangled in his efforts to suppress a cough. "Bony," pausing in the midst of the fire he was making, asked in a voice so piteous its tones lingered in the Captain's memory long afterwards.

"Why don't your teacher ever come to see you, I'd like to know; and say, Janie, you don't 'speck God wants a cove and his poor, sick sister to starve, do you? I worked like time'n Cæsar all last week an' only got money nuff to buy these chips and coals, for I won't let you freeze, Janie, a nice ole sister that's took care o' me from a baby, when I warn't nothin' but a bag o' bones an' got named after my own 'pearance. Why! bless you, Janie girl, I could a-fleeced the e rich folks like sixty! There warn't no one in the kitchen, an' there stood a big chicken pie all ready for the table—my! how she looked, and how it must a-tasted!"

Bony paused, a dreamy look of some delicious imagination transfixing his far-off gaze for a moment, then he went on:

"And then there was vegetables, oranges, nuts, puddin's, pies. Gracious! You never saw anythin' like the things they had—but all I took was a pan o' ole leavin's. You don't call that bad for a hungry cove, do you? Thanksgiving Day too."

Only to God alone was known the heroism involved in the sick girl's reply:

"I'd rather you'd take them back again, dear little brother."

"Well then, I will!" impetuously burst out poor Bony, gulping down a great sob. "I'll take 'em all back and beg 'em—"

"No, you won't!" thundered the Captain, bursting pell-mell into the little room; "no, you won't, because I won't have it! You just come with me, little feller, and I'll give you half that chicken pie you saw, and a few slices of turkey beside. Then you shall have some potatoes and turnips and squash and onions and cranberries. I'll sling in a pie and a taste of pudding, too, and a few oranges, and jim cracks, like tea and sugar, for Janie over there. Come, we'll start right along. You needn't look so frightened; I only hollered like a hurricane because my throat hurt, and I couldn't master my voice somehow; and I tore in wilder than a nor'easter because I—I was in a hurry."

Then he added in a voice tender as a woman's, turning to Janie:

"My poor child, how long have you lain here, and what's the trouble?"

"It's my hip, sir," answered Janie, her eyes dilated, and still only half recovered from the fright the Captain's unexpected entrance had given her. "I fell and broke it; but one of these days I may walk again when I get a doctor to it. But please don't blame poor Bony, sir; he meant no wrong, I'm sure. We want to be honest people, indeed we do, sir!"

"Well, well," said the Captain, gruffly, "the first thing's to get some dinner down both your throats. Throw that stuff away, there. Come on, my boy."

Marshal Hawksworth, on his way from the station-house to his Thanksgiving dinner, suddenly encountered Captain Whippleton striding along by the side of a small, ragged boy of about ten years, as between them they carried a great market basket, which evidently taxed the Captain's herculean strength, for it was evident the boy's share of the burden was only a mere pretense.

For the first time since he peered into Janie's narrow room, his conversation concerning his terrible threats as to tramps and thieves, recurred to his mind upon seeing Hawksworth's face.

"Halloo!" shouted the Marshal, "what's up?"

"Oh, we're bearing away to a shallow port, sort o' loading up for a fresh cruise," shouted back the Captain without stopping.

When Janie's astonished eyes beheld the wondrous supply contained in the great basket, her first remark was:

"Oh, how splendid! now what a Thanksgiving dinner Granny Beers shall have!"

"Who's Granny Beers? inquired the Captain.

She was an old bed-ridden woman on the next floor above, who at the time of her mother's death, years before, had been very kind to Janie.

Impelled by some sudden impulse, Whippleton told Janie to keep brought, it was all for her would attend to Granny creaking stairs, serable room, slowly fad-

n. d sat by heard d seen ntent

ward soul, ing unof ru

at bout adma r and er be-aves or nething n tow

l, pow-ugh his with a earer's

I did kin to t the s all,

might teach me a lesson. I believe, now, that vengeance is not always justice; what looks like justice is not generally what God calls mercy." Then he added with charming humility from such a towering figure:

"Here I've been taking God's bounties for years and years without ever a truly thankful feeling in my sinful old heart. Since I gave up the seas I've often fretted over not having enough to do. Bless your heart, man, some of the best, most graceful and loving of God's creatures are all but starving within sight of my own door! I've found occupation. From this time forth I propose to recognize some of the claims, human and divine, which, in my ignorance of their existence, I've shirked like a thief heretofore."

"They do say," remarked the City Marshal, a few months later, "there ain't a kinder or more charitable man in the place than old Captain Whippleton. He didn't used to be just like that, but I guess something kind of woke him up about Thanksgiving time. I suppose he knows all about it."

Yes; the Captain knew.—Golden Rule.

English Rural Superstitions.

There are workingmen in secluded hamlets who still cling to their ancestors' faith in astrology and in the "voices of the stars," as translated to mundane comprehension through the medium of the prophetic almanacs. And this not vaguely, tentatively, but with a robust credulity which can shape and govern their every-day actions, their buying and selling, their sowing and reaping, their contracts, whether social, commercial or matrimonial. We quote a bona fide example.

A skilled country mechanic, a man of distinct pretensions to ability, lost his situation after fifteen years of approved service. He sought another, but at first unsuccessfully. Trade was depressed, and the outlook sombre. An opening offered in a somewhat novel quarter. The inquiry was made if he would commence work on the Monday succeeding his engagement. He hesitated, and lugubriously demurred.

"I will come on Tuesday, without fail," he said.

"Why not on the previous day?" curiously asked the employer.

"It's a bad one, sir."

"A bad one! How? I don't understand."

"By the almanac, sir. I wouldn't marry on that day if I were ever so deeply smitten by 'Cupid's arrow,' as they call it on the valentines, and if it were a choice between then and never; and I won't start at a new job on Monday next for any master in the country. Sorry to disoblige, sir."

Remonstrance and ridicule were alike vain. "No, no; I mayn't be able to explain it—there's a heap o'things in the world that we can't tell just the why and the wherefore of—but I've proved, and that's better than explaining it;" "in fact, there's a proof here in this little bit of business. My almanac told me I was to have changes this year. I looked all round, but couldn't so much as guess where they were to come from. But you see that after all the almanac was right; and I've noticed it scores of times."

This same artisan stood sponsor on another occasion for a statement so curious as to be worth reproducing as a specimen of the humor not simply of rural, but of technical superstition also. He was descanting on various occult influences of the heavenly bodies—a favorite topic with a congenial audience.

The moon's power is very remarkable," he said; "as is well-known and admitted, it rules the tides. And it likewise makes a wonderul difference to timber. You may hardly credit this, but it's a matter of experience again. Timber felled when the moon is waxing planes or cuts up nigh as easy again as the very same sort, and age, and growth of timber felled when the moon is on the wane. It's queer, but true."—Cassell.

Sugar Statistics.

The ordinary sugar of commerce is made from sugar cane and beets. There is very little difference in the quality of the two varieties. The bulk of the cane sugar is grown in the tropical regions of North and South America, the East and West India Islands, British India and Southern China. The beet sugar is produced chiefly in France, Germany, Russian Poland and Austria-Hungary. The relative amount of cane and beet sugar is very nearly equal, the prospective crop of cane sugar for the current year in what are known as exporting countries, being 2,445,000 tons, while the prospective crop of beet sugar will not be far from 2,525,000 tons, making a total available supply for the year of 4,980,000 tons.

Statistics show, however, that sugar, like some other good things in the world, is not distributed evenly. Great Britein consumes more sugar per capita than any other country, and the United States come next in the list.

For the year 1885 the consumption of sugar, so far as it can be traced by reliable figures, was as follows:

	Tons.		Tons.
United States	1,254,000	Other European countries	333,000
Great Britain	1,203,000	Non-exporting countries	1,600,000
France	570,000
German Empire	886,000
Austria	1[illegible]8,000
Holland	45,000	Total	5,432,000

This statement, allowing the last year's crop to have been as great as the prospective crop for 1886, would leave 1,149,000 tons on hand or to have gone into consumption unaccounted for. The per capita consumption of Great Britain was a trifle over 60 pounds; that of the United States, 49.3 pounds; that of France was scarcely 30 pounds, and that of Germany still less. The consumption for the United States varies somewhat, according to the condition of business. While in 1885 it was 39.8 pounds per capita, in 1864 it was 51 and in 1883 only 47.6.—Philadelphia Times.

The Tragedy of Life.

(Scene First.)

Ponsonby—"You see the Continental?"

De Twirliger—"Ya-as."

Ponsonby—"My father was about the first man to enter that hotel when it was opened."

(Scene Second.)

First Old Mechanic—"See that young dude across the way?"

Second Ditto—"Ay."

First Old Mechanic—"I knew his father well; he used to be a [illegible] the Continental."—Philadelphia

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Subject of Discourse: "A December Christ."

TEXT: "When they had heard the King they departed; and lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it stood over where the young child was."—St. Mathew, ii. 9.

At this season all Christendom celebrates the incarnation. Step down out of the comfortable surroundings in which you are into a chill December night in Bethlehem. Two plain people hoteled in a village barn after a walk of eighty miles, too long for one in poor health. No lords of state waiting in an ante-chamber as at the birth of other kings, no messenger mounted at the doorway ready to herald the advent from city to city, no kindly medical attendance, no satin lined cradle to receive the infantile guest, but a monarch born in a hostelry called the House of ——, the night with diamonded finger pointing to the place, the Door of Heaven swung wide open to look out, from orchestral baton dripping overtures of the Messiah, minstrels of God standing on the lowest doorstep of Heaven to announce glory and good will. Soon after the white bearded astrologers kneel and from leathern pouch chink the shekels, and from open sack exhale the tufts of frankincense and rustle out the bundles of myrrh. The loosened star, the escaped doxology of celestials. Our world, a lost star, and another star rushing down the sky that night to beckon it home again. All that scene will yet make all nations keep Christmas. Now, are there not some new lessons coming from this old story? Lessons not hackneyed by oft repeated? Oh, yes. Notice, first of all, it was a sidereal appearance. Lo, the star went before them. Why not a black cloud in the shape of a hand or a finger pointing down to the sacred birthplace? Oh, a cloud means trouble. The world had had trouble enough. Why not a shaft of lightning quivering in the sky and striking down to the sacred birthplace? Lightning means destruction—writhing, all-consuming destruction, and the world had had destruction enough. It was a star. That means joy, that means good cheer, that means hope, that means ascendancy. A star! That means creative power, for did not the morning stars sing together when the portfolio of worlds was opened! A star! That means defence, for did not the stars in their course fight against Sisera and for the Lord's people? A star! That means brilliant continuance, for are not the righteous to shine as the stars forever and ever? Day-star on high. Morning star of the Redeemer. That unusual appearance in the sky that night may have been a strange conjunction of worlds. You know astronomers calculated long years before it occurred the transit of Venus, and they can see a thousands years ahead and can tell you what will be the conjunction of worlds in the year 1986, and so they can calculate backward, and Christian astronomers go into a calculation and they find that in what we call the year one there was a strange appearance in the Heavens; and the infidel, rejecting the Bible and despising Christianity, he goes into the same calculation; and he is compelled to declare that in the year one there was a strange appearance in the Heavens. The Chinese record, made up, of course, entirely independent of the Word of God, declares that in what we call the year one, there was a strange appearance in the Heavens. That, after all, it may have been a meteoric appearance, such as you and I have sometimes witnessed. I stood on the plain and I saw in the western heavens, some years ago, a meteor flash with such brilliancy and precision that I thought then that if I had been on a hill as high as that of Bethlehem I could have calculated within a few yards the place where it alighted. In the University of Iowa and in the British Museum there are fragments of rock that have been hurled off from meteors as they went trailing their glory on the sky. So it does not seem to me at all improbable, this sidereal, or, if you will, this meteoric appearance on that Christmas night. Oh I am so glad that it was not a cloud of threat but a star of hope that shone that night. I do not wonder that the dying college student when he caught a glimpse of that star, took his pen and the light seemed flashing from his fingers and the star seemed pouring its lustre from his lips while Kirk White wrote those immortal words:

When marshaled on the nightly plain,
  The glittering host bestud the sky;
One star alone of all the train
  Could fix the sinner's wandering eye.
Hark, hark to God, the chorus breaks
  From every host, from every gem;
But one alone the Saviour speaks,
  It is the star of Bethlehem.

Once on the raging sea I rode,
  The storm was loud, the night
And rudely blew the wind that tossed
  My foundering bark.
Deep low within my vitals froze
  Death struck I ceased the tide to stem,
When suddenly a star arose,
  It was the star of Bethlehem.

People are sorry that Kirk White died after writing that. It was enough for a lifetime to have written it, and no wonder when he completed it the glories of Heaven swallowed him up.

I notice also in that scene that other worlds seemed to adore our Lord and Master. Bright star of night, wheel on in thine orbit. "No," says the star, "I must come nearer, I must bend, I must watch to see what they will do with Jesus." Another world in worship. That star bowed in obedience. I sometimes hear people talk as though the few thousand miles of this world of ours were all of the Savior's dominion; but I suppose all the millions and billions and quadrillions of worlds are inhabited—perhaps not by such creatures as we are, but by such creatures as God designed, and all those worlds are the Saviour's realm. Only one disloyal world in the universe. You know that the great organ of the universe with its stops, its keys, its pedals, its pipes, had a complete harmony save one injured pedal, save one broken key, the vox humana of the human race. This disloyal world. You know that however grand an instrument, if there is one broken key it spoils the harmony. And Christ is to mend this broken key, and restore this injured pedal, and the world will be in accord, and all worlds will be in accord. Isle of Wight, larger in comparison with the British Empire than our world is compared with Christ's dominion. That Christmas night astronomy surrendered to Christ. Our planet for Christ. The solar system for Christ. Worlds ablaze and worlds burned out—all worlds for Christ. Minutest and keenest microscope cannot see the one side of Christ's dominion, and farthest-reaching telescope cannot see the other side of Christ's dominion. But I will tell you how the universe is bounded. It is bounded on the north and south, and east and west by God, and God is Christ, and Christ is God, and that God is ours. Oh, my friends, does it not enlarge your ideas of a Saviour's dominion to realize that all the worlds are only so many sparks struck from His anvil? That the worlds are so many fleecy flocks following the one shepherd? That all the islands of light in immensity are a great archipelago of Christ's dominion?

But I notice also in this science that I have spoken of the fact that it was the profound and the learned men of the world who came to Christ. The Bible says the wise men of the East. We call them the magi, the astrologers, the alchemists, and we pronounce their names with a depreciating accentuation. Do you know who they were? They were the most splendid and magnificent men of the century. They knew all that was known. Do you not recognize the fact that astrology is the mother of astronomy? Do you not recognize the fact that alchemy is the mother of chemistry? And you do not despise the mother because you admire the child. Why these astrologers spent their lives in studying the stars; 2,850 years before Christ was born these astrologers studied the procession of the equinox and calculated the orbit and return of the comets. Professor Smith says he thinks they understood the distance between the sun and the earth. You find not only that in Job, but you have suggested to you that other men in his day knew that the world was not flat, but globular—Isaiah knew it; as though it were a modern discovery, or within a few centuries, that the world is round. Isaiah knew it. He says of God: "He sitteth on the circle of the earth." After the world has progressed in study hundreds of years it may get up to the point where the ancients began to forget. I believe that the lost arts may be as great as the living arts. How was it with those alchemists? Why, they spent their lives in the study of metals and gases and solids and liquids, and they filled whole libraries with their discoveries. They understood embalmment as no men in our time understand embalmment. And they were very wise men. They were not only among wise men, but they were the three wisest men. Caspar, a young man; Balthazar, a man of middle age, and Melchior, an octogenarian. The three wisest men of all the century at the feet of Christ. So it is now. The brainiest men of this century are Christians. Who was the greatest metaphysician of America? Jonathan Edwards, the Christian. Who was the greatest astronomer of the world? Herschel, the Christian. Who was the greatest poet the world has ever seen? John Milton, the Christian. Who wrote the mightiest treatises on law that have ever been written? Blackstone, the Christian. Why is it that in every college and university they have a chapel? It is the place where the wise men bow at the manger. Come, now, let us have it settled in ounces and in inches. People say that the men who believe in Christianity are small-brained men. Let us find the largest brain ever known in America. By post mortem examination distinguished men have been measured and their intellectual capacity has been calculated, and the size of the brain has been found out. Let us find the largest brain ever known in America, and find out then what that brain thought of Christ. We have found it. It is the brain weighing some sixty-three ounces. What did that man in his lifetime think of Christ? In his dying moment he said: "Lord, I believe; help Thou mine unbelief. Almighty God, whatever I do, accept me at the last for Christ's sake. This night I shall be in joy unutterable." So Daniel Webster bowed at the manger. So the mighty men of the East are followed by the mighty men of the West.

My subject also impresses me with the fact that it was the winter season that God assigned for the nativity of His Son. Had it been the month of May, that is the season of blossoms; had it been the month of June, that is the season of roses; had it been the month of July, that is the season of great harvests; had it been the month of September, that is the seasoned of ripened orchards; had it been the month of October, that is the season of upholstered forests; but it was December, when all the flowers outdoors are dead and all the crops that have not been gathered are perished, and there are no ripening fruits on the hill, and the leaves are driven over the bare earth. In the closing days of December, to show that this Christ is for people in sharp blasts, for people of frosted hopes, for people under dark skies, for people with the thermometer below zero, for people snowed under. Christ heard in His memory the wind whistling around the Bethlehem caravansary, and He is in sympathy with those who in their poverty bear the shutters clatter on a cold night. That was the Christ Washington and his army worshipped when they lay down without blankets in the December snow. That was the Christ that the Pilgrim Fathers appealed to when the Mayflower wharfed at Plymouth Rock, and for years after that December landing the graves digged were more in number than the houses built. Not a fair weather Christ, but a December Christ. Oh, the world wants to be solaced and soothed and lullabied in the arms of sympathetic omnipotence and no mother ever with more tenderness put her foot on the rocker of a cradle to hush a sick child than the tenderness of this Christ comes to our invalid world, and He rocks it into placidity and quiet with the words: "My peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you." Oh, ye burden bearers, oh, ye persecuted and tired and heartbroken, I declare to you a December Christ.

But here is a fact which many seem to forget, perhaps all forget—my subject impresses me with the fact that Christ was born amid the sheep, and the cattle, and the horses, and the camels that He might be the alleviation of the whole brute creation. Mercy for overdriven, underfed, poorly sheltered, outraged brute creation. Do you think that the Christ who compared Himself to a dove has no indignation at the cruelties of a pigeon shooting? Do you think that the Christ who compared Himself to a lamb has no indignation at the rough tying and the contortion of the sheep and the hanging of their neck over the sharp edge of the butcher's cart, and the cattle train from Omaha to New York, with no water in summer time,—1,500 miles of agony? Do you think that the Christ who said: "Go to the ant," does not notice the transfixed insects? Do you think that the Christ whose tax was paid by the fish does not notice the tossing of a fin in the fish market? Do you think that the Christ who said: "Behold the fowls of the air," hath no sympathy with the brute creation that cannot articulate its grief? Christ, born in a stable that He might be the Saviour, not only of the human race but the alleviation of all the pangs and hardships of the brute creation.

In the millenial time a child is to lead a lion and to play with a cocatrice only because brute and reptile will have no more outrages to avenge. The Lamb of God gave its first bleat amid the tired flocks of Bethlehem. The white horse of eternal victory stabled in a barn. When you tread on the brute creation you tread on God. Christ born amid the beasts that He might sympathize with the beasts, and help the beasts, and thunder His indignation and His wrath against men who abuse the beasts.

I notice also, in this wonderful story of the text three Christmas presents brought to Christ. Just three. Gold, myrrh, frankincense. Gold brought to Christ. What does that mean? It means the affluence of the world is going to be surrendered to Jesus. For lack of money no more asylums limping on their way like the invalids they support, or feeling their slow way like the blind whom they shelter. Millions of dollars for Christ there are now thousands of dollars. Railroad companies owned by Christian stockholders and controlled by Christian directors and carrying freights and passengers at Christian prices. Bank of England, Bourse of France and U. S. Treasury, all the world's moneyed institutions for Christ. The gold for Christ. No other meaning to it. The gold no more paid the way for Mary and Joseph and the divine refugee in Egypt than the gold shall pay the way for Christ all 'round the world. The gold for Christ, the silver for Christ, the jewels for Christ. Our great round, beautiful world like a soltaire set on the bosom of Christ. All His, and He is worthy. But the second Christmas present was the myrrh. Why the myrrh? The cattle snuffed it, but did not eat it. It was too bitter. Why the myrrh? Why this pungent gum resin of Abysinnia brought for Christ? It meant bitterness. Bitterness of betrayal, bitterness of persecution, bitterness of days of suffering and nights of anguish.
Myrrh. That is what they put into His cr when He was dying. Myrrh. That is wh the women wrapped in the shroud of the ified Christ. Myrrh. Aye, says the "all thy garments smell of myrrh.
heighth, the depth, the length, t of a Saviour's sorrow. No won men brought myrrh. But th other thing they brought. Th from the sack the frankincense.
the rafters of the barn the perf
it floated out to the furthes the hostler and the came placed, and it floated out air, and people passing by dered and said, who could of alabaster at that place b incense. That was what t
sers in the ancient temp
Frankincense. That mea cense. That is what we sh souls this day until the once crimsoned with the b cross are filled with the perfu adoration. Frankincense. That is to fill all the homes and all the churches and all the nations and all the worlds. From deepest cellar of stalactite cave clear up to the silver rafters of the sunlit dome. Frankincense. Put it in the song, and the sermon, and the prayer. Frankincense. No wonder they brought it. No wonder they put it down at the feet of Christ. But do you know how these censers were employed, and how the frankincense was burned? Here is a metal pan, and here is the handle by which it is held. This metal pan is filled with living coals. On the top of it is put a perforated cover. The frankincense is brought to the temple in a square box. The frankincense is taken out and sprinkled over the coals, and then the perforated cover is put on, and they wait for the beginning of the service. When they are all ready all the covers are lifted from all the censers and the ancient temple was filled with the perfume. It floated up amid the arches, it dropped amid the altars. On the top of the temple it arose in a column to the throne of God. And so it is to-day. I have two censers. Here is the censer of earthly frankincense and here is the censer of heavenly frankincense. First of all, the censer of earthly frankincense. Come, people of God, and put on it your thanks—thanks for the mercies of the past year, thanks for the mercies of all the years—individual mercies, family mercies, national mercies. Bring on more censers. Then let the perfume float up to the throne of God. Alleluia, alleluia. Amen! But here is the other censer—the censer of Heavenly frankincense. Let all the redeemed bring their thanks and put them on this censer. Let the cherubim bring theirs, let the seraphim bring theirs, let the one hundred and forty and four thousand bring theirs, let all the eternities bring theirs, and then I take these two censers and I swing them before the throne of God and the Lamb, and then I clash them together in one great alleluia unto him to whom the wise men of the East brought their gold and myrrh and frankincense when the star that they saw in the East went before them.

HABITS OF THE COON.

It Forages at Night Only, and Always Takes Water Before Eating.

Although the coon prefers the vicinity of civilization as his habitat, he plans to keep aloof from the eyes of men, and his habits make this an easy task. By day he lies close in out-of-the-way retreats, in the depths of hollow trees or isolated crevices and holes in the rocks. He wanders forth only at night, and although his foraging expeditions may take him to the very doors of farm houses, and even within the boundary lines of villages, he never betrays his presence. If more than one coon is brought to bay in a tree they will invariably be females, or a mother coon and her offspring. The female brings forth her litter only once in two years, and from the coming of one litter until the arrival of another she and her young are never separated. She keeps her little family together until they are two years old, and in protecting them will fight the attacking dog or hunter until she dies. Many a good coon dog has been forced to retreat before the fury of a she coon fighting for her young, and if she is captured the whole family fall victims to the hunter. The animal scent the coon leaves on the trail is at all times less than that of any other game quadruped, but when the female is nursing her young during the summer months her scent is hardly perceptible to the most delicate-nosed dog. The scent of the coon grows stronger as cold weather advances, and through November and December the dogs follow it with little difficulty.

In the spring and summer the margins of brooks and ponds, and the soft mud in swamps and bays in every coon country, are always thickly indented with the graceful footprints of the coon, for in those months he spends his nights in catching frogs, fish, lizards, grubs and mussels, which are then his chief subsistence. Later on he ranges among the huckleberry and blackberry patches, and feasts on their fruit. With the coming of the milk in the green corn comes the coon's gala time, for he loves the tender, succulent grains, as the farmer knows to his sorrow, and great are the risks he will take to forage in the fields. It is not until the berries are gone and the corn has grown tough in the ear that the coon begins to look about for his winter stores. These he lays by plentifully, from the beechnut, chestnut, and acorn crops, and on these crops depends the hunting of the coon when he is at his best. During the nutting season he is fat and solid and wide-awake, provided that nuts are plentiful. When the coon grows inordinately fat and large he lessens his chances of falling a victim to the hunter, for then he ventures but a short distance from his hiding place and gives the dog small opportunity for finding his trail. Even in the days when coon hunting was a science it was rare that a coon weighing over twenty pounds was ever bagged, although they have been known to attain a weight of forty pounds. A coon at that weight, however, must have been simply a ball of fat, and but little would have been left of him but bones and gravy after cooking.

If the nut crop is a failure, the coon goes to his winter quarters thin and miserable, and poorly prepared for the long winter's
It is in seasons of s wanders fort though the s ground, in provender such times seen hover edges of for his c from the sty.

One p
the way, as has whole not

CHILTON VIEW.

Published Every Thursday Morning.

CLANTON, ALA., JAN. 13, 1887.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One copy one year - - - -	$1.50
One copy six months - - -	75
One copy four " - - -	50

The Birmingham Hornet, has been revived by Tom Ellis. Look-out for squalls.

Let us all encourage immigration by all means, and encourage it especially to the agricultural section of the state.

Several serious difficulties resulting in as many deaths, occurred in different sections of Alabama during the Christmas holidays.

The Montgomery Dispatch says that the big fire at the wharf last week, and near the union depot did not even singe the car shed.

The number of commercial failures in the country during 1886 was 800 fewer than in 1885, and the liabilities were less by $10,000,000.

The Atlanta Constitution seems to make the mistake of thinking Mr. Grady's excellent speech the cause instead of the result of the harmony that prevails between the South and North.

Congressman Scott, of Erie, has devised a new plan of disposing temporarily of the surplus by loaning it on call to the national banks at 2 per cent. The place for the surplus is not in the banks, but in the pockets of the poeple.

The farmers are wonderfully agitated about who shall be Commissioner of Agriculture, and acting on this impulse the Young Farmers' Club of Daleville, Dale county, have endorsed Col. H. Hawkins for that position.

A century of experience demonstrates the fact that every time the country moves toward the practice of free trade doctrines, and in exact proportion to the movement in that direction, there is an infliction of hard times; but that every time the country moves toward the practice of protective principles, and precisely to the extent these are applied, there is a return to prosperity.—Mfg. Record.

Some malicious person forced an entrance into the office of the Opelika Times by prizing open the door, and with a heavy hammer, they broke into pieces the large gear wheel of Col. Keiser's new Campbell press. This will prevent the appearance of Times this week. Mr. Keiser received through the mail an anonymous letter notifying him to leave Opelika in ten days, which demand he says he will decline to obey.

"Desuetude" is a good word, there are several other excellent parts of speech that are not handed around on earthen-ware every day but are "kept for holidays or so as men their best apparel do." "Recherche" is also a good word, Mark Twain used it but said he did not know its meaning; it sounded grand, looked well in print and he took it at a venture. By all means put in a good looking word whether it means anything or not.—Dispatch.

The New South, of Birmingham, Ala., is doing splendid work in behalf of Southern industrial interests. The January number will contain a splendid full-page portrait of Col. Enoch Ensley, one of the ablest and most useful men in the South. The history of his eventful life, and of his great and successful efforts in [illegible] eveloping the [illegible] labama and [illegible] uilding up [illegible] hese States [illegible] nteresting. The New [illegible] bscribe for a copy.

[illegible] lontgom- [illegible] ly other [illegible] m have [illegible] solu-

Interstate Agricultural Convention, at Lake Charles.

Governor McEnery, of Louisiana, has issued a call for an Interstate Convention in the interest of stock-raising, dairying, fruit-growing, and general agriculture, to be held at Lake Charles La., on the 22d, 23rd and 24th of February, 1887.

The convention will be formally opened on Wednesday morning, after the close of Mardi Gras.

One of the most noteworthy indications of the great industrial progress of the Gulf States is the marked attention of their public men to agriculture and the efforts they are making to bring the theory and the methods of agriculture in those States into harmony with the teachings of science and the highest demands of progressive civilization. Nature has been prodigal of her gifts to the State of Louisiana. For fertility of soil, salubrious climate, and for great variety of products, Louisiana ranks among the most favored countries of the globe.

Governor McEnery has shown commendable wisdom in thus giving the weight of his official influence to call a convention which cannot fail to be of inestimable value to the farming interest of the State and the country generally. We trust it may be widely noticed by the press, and that the results may be all the people anticipate.

This convention is so called that excursionists can remain in New Orleans till the close of Mardi Gras and take the train for Lake Charles Tuesday evening.

Full information in regard to the convention and the low rates of transportation, can be obtained by addressing the Secretary, S. A. Knapp, Lake Charles, La.

Jemison.

We visited this thriving little town, just north of us, last week and found it enjoying quite a little boom. A great deal of improvement has been made in this place in the past year. The large two story business house of Mr. I. N. Langston is a well put up structure and is nicely finished off and painted. A large roomy hall composing the upper story of this building fills a long felt want to the people of Jemison. Prof. J. M. Corderie has opened a nice drug store which he keeps arranged next in order to that of Clanton. This drug store building is also a new one. Prof. Corderie speaks of starting a mathematical school in Jemison, and we hope his efforts in that direction will be crowned with great success.

Messrs. J. P. Allen & Co., still hold the reins as the largest firm doing an advancing business. Messrs. Chas. H. Smith, G. W. Deramus, and other merchants seem to be doing considerable business. The cross tie business seems to be the best paying of any of the pursuits of the denizens of this thriving burg.

We learned while there that the Nights of Labor and one of the numerous farmer's clubs of that section and for which our county has now become famous, each intends opeing a store in that place shortly.

We also learned that Mr. S. J. Heath, the principal merchant of Strasburg, a village near Jemison, has sold his entire business to a son-in-law of Mr. Jeffries, and on account of bad health will retire from business.

The people of Jemison are preparing to build an Academy, and have the lot, up which it is to be erected, all laid off. The building will be completed in time for the opening of a large school next fall.

We were very much pleased with the progress Jemison is making and hope she may continue to improve. --Ed.

Tuskaloosa and Her Institutions.

TUSKALOOSA, JAN. 1st, 1887.

This has been a pleasant Christmas spent with the Grandma folks in the city on the Warrior. The quiet elegance of the old town is an incomparable relief to one after passing through the bustle and chaos of Birmingham. Tusaloosa is yet a city of expecta[illegible] ns, that is, she was expecting a [illegible] " this week which came not, [illegible] refore she is expecting one [illegible] will come, and it is in the [illegible] he will no longer con- [illegible] cawber like, to wait for [illegible] g to turn up," but her [illegible] prising citizens propose [illegible] this time and turn [illegible] emselves. That's the [illegible] towns, if the history [illegible] lding in this State [illegible] ng, there is no loca- [illegible] entire country that [illegible] ater advantages for [illegible] large inland city than this particular part of Alabama. The place certainly has a great future and it is not a distant one.

A new building is going up at the University, and when it is completed President Clayton will proceed to carry out the wishes of the Board of Trustees in rearing monumental mounds of the ruins of the old buildings destroyed during the war, and beautifying them by planting flowers thereon. The University grounds will then be the most beautiful in the State.

One of the greatest institutions in any country is the Asylum for the insane, so ably managed by Dr. Peter Bryce, one of the old school of South Carolinians. Though the history of Tuskaloosa as a home for the white man, dates back beyond the annals of the revolution, there has never been a greater establishment within her precincts than the building of this noble public charity.

The old custom of receiving New Year callers is dying out and to-day the receptions were confined to Mrs. Bryce's elegant parlors at the hospital, where she was assisted by the following array of charming and accomplished lady friends: Mrs. Clayton, Mrs. Gorgas, Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. McCorvey and Mrs. Palmer of the University; Mrs. Dr. Wm. Gorgas, of Fort Randall. Dakota; Misses Stella, Evie and Abbie Harris, of Tuskaloosa; Miss Phadie Johnston, of Marengo; Miss Flora Parker, of the University, and Miss Nellie Thompson, of Charleston, S. C.

Last week, it was the pleasure of the scribe to attend a musical entertainment given by the Philharmonic Society of the Tuskaloosa Female College, in which one of our Clanton young ladies acquitted herself most creditable. The large audience on this occasion was only once bothered by that conglomeration of individuals, who always occupy the higher rows of seats, and who with no music in their souls, much nervousness in their toes, and perhaps as much brains in their heads as could be found in a last year's bird's nest, kept up a battery upon the floor for ten minutes after a performance. This institution is a monument to Tuskaloosa as an educational point, and Prof. Hill deserves the reward which his efforts are now reaping. The Central Female College, the University High School for boys, and the city public school are all flourishing institutions. The last mentioned is especially deserving of praise. It was inaugurated through the great wisdom and energy of the city Mayor, Jemison, and if his administration should do no other good it will deserve all praise for the establishment of these great public necessities.

Your space will not allow more; and as all things in this world have an end, save the speeches of some eloquent orators, this must end here.

W. H. L.

Clanton is on a very huge boom notwithstanding that the VIEW is not filled with long articles on the subject.

"Hi Pompey! what you 'fraid of?
What makes you shake and shibber?"
"Law chile! ise got de ague
An got de tropic libber."
"De tropic libber, Pompey?
I don't know what you means:
But you can cure your ague
By taking SMITH'S BILE BEANS.
Two bits a bottle, don't pay more!
You'll get dem at de drugman's store."
The most economical and best remedy for ague. 25 cents, per bottle.

Sick Headache and a sensation of oppression and dullness in the head are very commonly produced by indigestion; morbid despondency, irritability and over-sensitiveness of the nerves may, in a majority of cases, be traced to the same cause. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm and Pillets will positively cure. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton. sep11 3

NOTICE OF ESTRAY.

STATE OF ALABAMA,
CHILTON COUNTY. }

To all whom it may concern. Take notice that on the 7th day of January 1887 a certain black mule found estray was taken up by Jas. A. Mullins. The value of which animal has been duly appraised according to law by A. J. Hall and W. H. Foshee, summoned by W. E. Stewart, Justice peace for said county, to be fifty dollars; with the following description: dark bay horse mule, under medium size, with long mane and tail and is about nine years old.

H. J. CALLEN,
Jan13-3t Judge of Probate.

Administrator's Sale.

Under and by virtue of an order and decree of the honorable M. T. Porter, Judge of Probate for Jefferson county Ala., I will sell at public auction in front of the courthouse at Clanton in Chilton county Alabama on Monday the 24th day of January, 1887, at twelve o'clock M., all the following described personal and real estate belonging to the estate of N. H. Thornton deceased, to-wit: One sole leather trunk, one picture and frame, and one spring mattress. The north half of north east quarter, and the north east quarter of north west quarter of section seven township twenty-one and range fifteen.

Also north east quarter of north east quarter of section twenty-eight, township twenty-two and range fourteen. Also lot No. 2, block 1, and the east half of lot 8 block 2, in the town of Clanton, on the west side of the South and North R. R., all in Chilton Co., Ala., with all the improvements thereon.

These lots are most desirably located in the thriving town of Clanton, county seat of Chilton Co., Ala., noted for its pure atmosphere and water and close proximity to the famous "Hot Well" which is still hot and will some day be to Alabama as Hot Springs is to Arkansas. The lands are also within a mile of the "Hot Well," of light loamy soil and lying well and most desirable for dairy and truck farming.

Terms of sale cash. I will show the property to any one calling on me at this place.

L. A. THORNTON,
Clanton, Ala., Administrator.
Jan'y 5th, 1887. 5in 3t
Printer's fee $10.

E. WALL. P. GIACOPAZZI.

WALL & GIACOPAZZI,
Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Commission Merchants,
Second Ave. and Twentieth St.
Birmingham, - - - Ala.

References: S. Oteri, New Orleans; Jos. Denunzio, Louisville; Buhr, Wendte & Co., Cincinnati; Underhill, Stewart & Shotta, N. Y.; Wm. D. Clarke & Co., New Orleans; Cowing & Clark, Cincinnati; A. G. Conant & Co., N. Y.; First National Bank, Birmingham, Ala.

H. H. BARCLIFT & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Grocers,
No. 2118 2d Ave. Bet. Twenty-first and Twenty-Second Sts.
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

☞ We solicit a share of the patronage of the merchants of Chilton County. Send us your orders.

The Chilton View
FOR
A New Year Present to Your Friend.
$1.50 A YEAR.
SUBSCRIBE WITH THE NEW YEAR.
1887.

WINTER! SPRING!
During the Season of Winter MALARIA Lurks in the System!
COLLINS
AGUE CURE
One Dose a day, taken three days in succession, each month, or when you feel badly in any way, will fully Cleanse your Blood, Remove all Bilious Secretions & Malarial Poison from your System, and Insure GOOD HEALTH IN THE SPRING.
PRICE, FIFTY CENTS PER BOTTLE.
If you are troubled with a COUGH, COLD, SORENESS in CHEST, or any Affection of Throat or Lungs, use DR. JACKSON'S
Syrup LUNGWORT & WILD CHERRY
Sold at 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 a Bottle.
If your EYES are affected in any way, use
Dr. JACKSON'S CELEBRATED INDIAN EYE SALVE.
Sold Everywhere at 25 cents per Box.
SEND FOR COLLINS BROS. "PRESENT CENTURY ALMANAC" for 1887. Mailed to any address or at any Drug Store.
COLLINS BROS. DRUG CO., ST. LOUIS, Mo.
jun24-y

Election Notice.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA;
CHILTON COUNTY.

Under and by virtue of an order issued to me by the Hon. H. J. Callen, Judge of Probate for said county, notice is hereby given that there will be an election held in beat No. 7, at the places of voting in said beat, in the county of Chilton, on the 8th day of February, 1887, for the purpose of determining whether or not spiritous, vinous or malt liquors, shall be sold, given away or otherwise disposed of anywhere within the limits of said beat. Those voting against prohibition will write or print upon their tickets, "No Prohibition." Those voting for prohibition will write or print upon their tickets "Prohibition."

J. T. SMITHERMAN,
jan6 3in-3t Sheriff Chilton Co.
Printer's fee $6.00

Sleepless nights made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by M. J. Greene Clanton. jun16y

Take one of Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pillets at night before you go to bed and you will be surprised how buoyant and vigorous you will feel the next day. Only 25 [illegible]

MARRIAGE GUIDE
260 PAGES. Illustrated, in Cloth and Gilt Binding, 50c. money or stamps. Same, paper cover, 25c. This Book contains ALL the curious, doubtful or inquisitive want to know. Full of very interesting and valuable information. HEALTH, BEAUTY and HAPPINESS are promoted by its advise—who may Marry, who not, why; Medical Aid, when necessary, brought home to you. 50 Wonderful PEN PICTURES, true to life. Young or old, married or single, sick or well, should read it. Sent sealed by DR. WHITTIER, St. Louis, Mo.
CUT THIS OUT AND SEND WITH ORDER.

VOLINA C
Liver Complaint, Kidney Tr
IT is invigorating and delightful to take, and of [illegible] Women and Children. It gives New Life to t[illegible] Toning and Invigorating the Nerves, [illegible] and completely Digesting the food. [illegible] contains no hurtful Minerals, is composed of carefully-selected Vegetable Medicines, combined sk[illegible]
A BOOK, "Volina," by leading physicians, telling [illegible] together with a Set of Handsome Cards by new Heliotype p[illegible]
For sale by all Druggists and Grocers. Should the dealer [illegible] CORDIAL, remit $1.00, and a full-size bottle will be sent, cha[illegible]
VOLINA DRUG AND CHEMICAL COMPANY, BALTIMORE, [illegible]

GREETI
TO THE
PEOPLE OF CHILT[illegible] UNTY:
E. ERSW[illegible] L,
19th STREET, BETWEEN FIRST A[illegible] D AVENUE.
Birmingham
BEGS TO ANNOUNCE THA[illegible] ULD LIKE A SHARE OF YOUR PAT[illegible] AND IS PREPARED TO SELL AS [illegible] ANY.
Mail orders solicited and satisfaction gu[illegible] Telegraph orders promptly filled. Rooms carpeted to [illegible] rating and House Furnishing a S[illegible] Largest Carpet Parlor [illegible] bama.
FINEST SELECTION OF FURNITU[illegible] E SOUTH, WINDOW SHADES OF NEWEST A[illegible] T STYLES.
Heavy Stock of Pic[illegible] rames.
E. Erswell has the most complete stoc[illegible] in Alabama
Carpets, Oil Cloths, Linoleums, Matting[illegible] and in endless varieties. Office Furniture. De[illegible] s. Book Cases in Walnut, Mahogany, &c., W[illegible] , Side-Boards, Folding beds, Washstand[illegible] bles,
In fact everything in the Furn[illegible] t line. Wall Papers of a[illegible]
EVERYTHING GUARANTEE[illegible] RRANT-ED FIRST CLASS M[illegible]
No shoddy goods, but genuine and hones[illegible] e of Undertakers goods. Telegraph orders [illegible] l to.
E. ERSW[illegible]
☞ Next Door to Opera Hou[illegible]

BAINS & HE[illegible]
(SUCCESSORS TO JONES & CO., JONES [illegible] & CO.)
WHOLESALE DR[illegible]
Mail and Express Orders W[illegible] tentio[illegible]
FINE WINES AND LIQ[illegible]
1926 FIRST AVENUE, BETWEEN 1[illegible]
Birmingham
☞ Fine Stock of Chess Carley's Oils [illegible]
P. O. BOX [illegible]

BEST GRA[illegible]
MERCHA[illegible]
At JOHN GARNER[illegible]
sep3-tf

J. C. HENDRICKS, Presd't.
Birmingham Paint, Glass a[illegible]
Successors t[illegible]
MAYBERRY & A[illegible]
Jobbers and Retaile[illegible]
Paints, Oils, Window Glass, Colored Glass, Sash, and Mouldi[illegible]
Painters' and Arti[illegible]
WALL PAPER, WINDOW S[illegible] TAIN FIXTU[illegible]
1912 Second Avenue, BI[illegible]
☞ Write for Samples of Wall Paper and [illegible]

MINERAL CITY TIN AN[illegible]
SECOND AVENUE BETWEEN 1ST [illegible]
BIRMINGHA[illegible]
Pat Walsh, [illegible]
A Large Line of HEATING a[illegible] always on hand. A[illegible]

CHILTON VIEW.

CLANTON, ALA., JAN. 13, 1887.

THE VIEW is published every Thursday morning, and will endeavor to cover the field of reputable country journalism. It will show no quarter to the deceitful, the immoral or the ungodly. It will always be good natured, although it can bite if necessary.

Those answering advertisements will confer a favor by mentioning this paper.

COURT CALENDAR.

Chancery—Friday after the first Mondays in April and October.

Circuit—Fourth Monday in March, and fifth Monday after the fourth Monday in August.

Commissioners'—Regular term second Monday in February and August, and first Monday in April and November. Special term second Monday in July.

County—First Monday in each month.

SCHEDULE S. & N. ALA. RAILROAD.
—Trains pass Clanton daily, as follows:

GOING SOUTH.

No. 1 at	5:45 a. m.
No. 3	5:43 p. m.
No. 7	3:00 p. m.
No. 51	60:5 a. m.

GOING NORTH.

No. 2	9:21 a. m.
No. 12	9:55 a. m.
No. 4	*9:43 p. m.
No. 50	6:45 p. m.

* Don't stop.

LOCAL DOTTINGS.

Good Advice.

Trip lightly over trouble,
Trip lightly over wrong;
You only make it double
By dwelling on it long.

Trip lightly over sorrow,
Tho' this day may be dark.
The sun may shine to-morrow,
And gayly sing the lark.

Fair hope has not departed,
Tho' roses may have fled;
Then never be down hearted,
But look for joy instead.

Read estray notice in another column.

We have received two copies of the Shelby Sentinel this week with the heads changed.

Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures consumption. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton Ala.

The Baptists have offered the use of their church building to the [illegible] new church built.

See the advertisement of the Chicago Cottage Organ Co., on the fourth page. We endorse every word in it, as we have seen their organs and know what they are.

There were no services at the churches Sunday on account of the illness of Rev. A. E. Burns, the Baptist pastor, whose day it was to hold religious service.

Croup is a treacherous disease, and generally the most severe at night when unable to properly watch it. The best known remedy is Ellis' C. S. A. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

See the advertisement of Bandman & Co., wholesale grocers, Birmingham, Ala. This house is well known to our merchants and will receive a liberal share of their trade.

The court house well has had no bucket on it now for sometime. If the county is not able buy a new one, a subscription should be taken up for that purpose. The VIEW will go its share towards it.

Rev. J. J. D. Renfroe, of the Alabama Baptist, has accepted a call of the Southside Baptist church in Birmingham and has moved to that city. The Alabama press regret to lose him. His work on the Baptist had only fairly begun.

Croup, Whooping cough and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. jun16 y

Catarrh cured, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal Injector free. For sale by M. J. Greene.

The editor and his better-half are under obligations to Mrs. O. R. Bell, for some very fine Irish potatoes of the second crop and a lot of the best pork sausage that we have worked our jaws on in a long time. Thanks.

The old Methodist church building was sold at auction on the 5th inst., and was bought in by Mr. Tom Gullahorn for the small amount $37.50. Mr. Gullahorn will move it back on his lot in the rear of present site and convert it into dwelling house.

The advertisement of the machinery firm of Shaw & Davin, [illegible] another column [illegible] read by all parties in [illegible] machinery of any kind, and if they will consult their own interest they will give this firm their orders.

Clanton is the best point in the state for truck farming. Situated as it is on the L. & N. railroad between Birmingham and Montgomery, a vegetable garden on a large scale, at this place, where land is cheap, and the soil well adapted to the raising of vegetables, to supply the market of these cities, would pay handsomely.

Personals.

Hon. E. Wells, of Verbena, has just returned from a visit to his son in Mississippi.

We are sorry to hear of the illness of little Annie Bell, a daughter of Mrs. O. R. Bell.

Mrs. McCants, of Birmingham, is visiting her sister Mrs. Dr. Bivings, at this place.

Miss Inez Collier, after spending a few week's holiday whith her parents and friends in Clanton has returned to school in Montgomery.

Mrs. John Chandler, who lives on the suburbs of Clanton, made enough butter from the milk of two cows, from April to November 1st 1886, to use from three to five pounds a week on her table and sold thirty-two pounds besides. This is a very good showing and it would be a good idea for others around here to follow her example of industry and thrift.

[From the Bibb Blade.]

During the holidays a Blade man had the pleasure of dining with Mr. Joe VanDeveer, of Clear Creek, Chilton county. Mr. V. is opening a slate mine on his place, which is unusually rich. He has already sold shares in his mine and in a short time he will be putting its products on the market.

Several of our young people including the junior editor of the Blade, spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Curry, of Chilton county. Mr. Curry is one of those wholesouled, jovial gentlemen, who know so well how to entertain his friends, while his wife is one of those ladies whom to know abroad is to love at home and no gayer, more pleasant time was ever spent than was enjoyed by those who went from here to visit them during the holidays. Much of the pleasure was due to the efforts of that jolly good gentleman Mr. Gip West, and the family of Mr. Chap. Hester, all of whom seemed to believe that in entertaining friends one's self is best entertained. May many joyous returns of the day come to gladden the hearts of that happy family in their beautiful home; and if never that same little band is gathered together again, may each in his or her own swift time sail as merily through the Christmas tide.

An elegant organ bran new and now in the factory can be purchased cheaply by applying at this office.

The editor is under obligations to Mr. Luther Barclift, of the grocery firm of H. H. Barclift & Co., of Birmingham, for a nice New Year present.

Newman's Southern Flower Cologne is the best. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

The good effects of Ellis' P. P. P. on a debilitated person are felt at once, and a cure follows its use. If suffering from blood poison try a bottle. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

At the annual shooting of the Dallas Gun Club, our circuit clerk, Mr. W. H. Foshee, who is a member, made the best score again as usual. Mr. Foshee has been a member of this club for a number of years and never fails to make the best score at all their shootings.

Married, in Montgomery, Ala., on the evening of the 11th inst., Miss Hallie V. Ray, of that city, to Mr. Chas. Phillips, of Opelika. Both of the contracting parties have many friends in this place, who join with the VIEW in extending congratulations.

Notice.

The public are hereby warned not to buy or trade for three waive notes, of fifty dollars each, made May 29th, 1886, and payable to D. W. Killingsworth. As said notes are now void and I will not pay them. W. H. PARK.

Clear Creek. Ala.,
January 13th, 1887.

A young boy, a horse jockey, from Pittsburg, was on the express train which pass down the road Saturday morning, en route to Mobile, but who had gone crazy while on board the train just after leaving Nashville, and caused conductor McGlemmery much trouble in taking care of him. McGlemmery telegraphed the chief of police of Montgomery to be at the depot and take him in charge.

We learn that Mr. J. W. Pritchett, who recently moved to Clanton, contemplates starting a rice mill in Clanton if he can induce our farmers to raise the upland rice. With that end in view he proposes to order the necessary machinery in a very short while to convince the farmers that he means business and will prepare the rice for marketing if they will raise it. He will also give them some idea, as to the culture of rice and the value of a good rice crop, through these columns.

OVER THE COUNTY.

News Gathered up by Our Correspondents.

Jumbo Dots.

As we have not written for sometime don't think that we are lost.

Work has begun again since the Christmas holidays.

We are looking for our new preacher next Sunday.

Mr. J. A. Maddox is taring down his saw mill house for the purpose of building a mill dam.

Those who got so full of Christmas have got allright and gone to work. Some of them got so full they run "plum" over, you bet.

Miss Emily Maddox has returned from a visit to Mr. J. W. Maddox's.

Success to the VIEW.

TOM CAT.

Maplesville Dots.

Mrs. Mary DuBose has gone to Plantersville to visit her sister Mrs. Vincent who is in bad health.

Mrs. M. E. Glover has been suffering with a severe attack of malarial fever for several weeks, but is a great deal better now. We hope she may recover.

Maplesville is not quite dry yet but she is getting very muddy. If the citizens, of beat No. 7, will vote like gentlemen, which they will do, she will be a dry beat.

Some young men serenaded the town Christmas night. Their chief musical instruments were blank cartridges. They used their vocal powers to great advantage, but the serenade was enjoyed by no one but the young men. D.

Dots From Six Mile Creek.

The holidays passed off quietly here.

Mr. Walter Smith has been very low with pneumonia.

We hear some talk of mumps in the community.

We notice that Mr. D. H. Hudgeons, has been making some improvements around his residence.

We have heard of but few sociables in the community during the holidays.

We have heard of a few attempts to have a dance in the community, but so-far all were glorious failures.

M. J. T. Armstrong is building a new residence.

Miss Sudie Thomas, of the Pleasant Grove neighborhood, has been visiting relatives here.

We hope every reader of the VIEW, especially christians, will read the article on prohibition in the VIEW of Dec. 30th, and let us continue to pray and labor until every dram-shop and infernal still, shall be things of the past.

Mr. G. W. Armstrong was thrown from his wagon recently, caused by his oxen running away, but was not hurt seriously. JULIUS.

Verbena.

We paid a visit to this pretty town last Saturday morning and was pleased to find everybody busily engaged at work. It is blessed with fewer loafers than is usually shared out to small towns. Verbena wears an air of culture and refinement found in few villages of its size. Of course this garb is lent it by the citizens; a reflection, so to speak. We think some of the monied men of the place have invested in the Decatur Land Company's stock. We hope they will make a good "spec."

Verbena is not exactly on a boom but the town is the prettiest infant of "Ellen N," and is "holding her own" admirably.

The Verbena Academy, under the control of Prof. W. U. Acree, with Mrs. Tarrant as assistant is one of the best country schools in the state and is well patronized; having quite a number of boarding students and an average attendance of seventy-five pupils.

In Drs. Pitts and Williamson, it has two as well skilled and efficient physicians, in every branch of their profession as can be found in a radius of many miles; notwithstanding the health of the place is excellent. They do a good deal of practice in other portions of the county, also in Autauga.

Our stay was as brief as it was pleasant so we haven't more to say this time.—Ed.

Our farmers should go to work and raise more food stuffs this year to supply the city markets.

Shiloh's Vitalizer is what you need for Constipation, loss of appetite, dizziness, and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle.

Life will acquire new zest, and cheerfulness will return, if you will impel your liver and kidneys to the performance of their functions Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm will stimulate them to healthful action. $1.00 per bottle. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

If you are suffering with weak or inflamed eyes, or granulated eyelids, you can be quickly cured by using Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve. 25 cents a box. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

No family should be without Ellis' Magic Oil Liniment, the greatest external remedy known. It cures all aches and pains. Price 25 cents per bottle, at W. H. Phillips.

MONTGOMERY
FURNITURE COMPANY.
—DEALERS IN—
Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Looking Glasses, Lounges, Hall Racks, Wardrobes, Chairs, Safes, Side Boards, Cradles, Cribs, Baby Carriages, Spring Beds. Mattresses, Refrigerators, Pianos. Organs, Carpets,
And All Kinds of Furniture!
A. C. ROGERS, Manager,
sep2 y 210 Bibb Street, Wharton's Old Stand Next to McDonald's Opera House.

FURNITURE AND WALL PAPER FOR EVERYBODY!
OUR STOCK OF FURNITURE, WINDOW SHADES, LACE CURTAINS, WALL PAPER, SPRING BEDS, AND MATTRESSES IS NOW COMPLETE.
Anybody in need of the above articles will find it to their interest to look at our immense stock. We guarantee everything we sell, and sell it cheaper than anybody in this State.
SQUARE DEALING IS OUR MOTTO!
B. WOLFF & BRO., Montgomery.
sept 15-6 20 Commerce and Corner Court and Coosa Streets.

Ellis' Magic Liver Pills are safe for children, and [illegible] more effective than any other cathartic pill on the market. If not found satisfactory return and get your money. For sale by W. H. Phillips. aug26-y

Will you suffer with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

That hacking cough can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's cure. We guarantee it. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Money to Loan!
I am prepared to negotiate mortgage loans on farming lands in Chilton county in sums of three hundred dollars and upwards. Rates cheap and negotiations speedily concluded. Apply to or correspond with
H. L. WILLIAMS,
oct7 Att'y at Law, Wetumpka.

NOTICE NO. 5783.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 4, 1886.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver United States Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., on Febuary 19th, 1887, viz: Maria House, Homestead application No. 18475, for the s ½ of n e ¼ sec 28 t 20 n range 15 e. She names the following witnesses to prove her continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: John Ray, Monroe Gill, Stephen Price, Lewis Price, all of Verbena, Ala.

d30 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5884.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 28, 1886.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on Febuary, 5th 1887, viz: Nancy J. Norris, Homestead 12737 for the se ¼ of sec. 21, township 21, range 16 east. He names the following witness to prove his continuance residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Thos. Mims, William D. Goss, Harrison Kendrick and Clopton Ray, all of Verbena, Ala.

dec30 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5806.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery Ala., Dec. 13, 1886.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the Clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on January 22, 1887, viz: Sarah Mahan widow Archelis Q. Mahan, Homestead 9542 for the w ½ of of n w ¼ sec 8, township 20 n range 13 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Frank Fuller, Thomas R. Roberts, Robert M. Robuck, and John Chambers, all of Maplesville, Ala.

dec16 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

STOP AT
Morris Avenue Hotel,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
Corner Morris Avenue and 20th Street
ELYTON LAND CO. BUILDING.
HUGH KIRKMAN, PROPRIETOR.
Splendid rooms, well ventilated and elegantly furnished. Rates reasonable.

FARMER'S TAKE NOTICE!
When You Come to Town to buy Goods, Call at
R. P. Wooley & Co.'s Cheap Cash Store
Next to the Railroad on North side of Main Street, Clanton.
—DEALER IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE.
[sep9-6]

This space is reserved by
A. J. BROOKS
AT VERBENA, ALA.,
FOR FUTURE ADVERTISING
☞WATCH IT.☜

JUST RECEIVED AT
S. E. HIRSCHER'S
21 Dexter Ave., Montgomery,
An endless variety of New Novelties in HOLIDAY GOODS, and placed before our patrons for inspection. You are cordially invited to call and see us. HEADQUARTERS FOR EVERYTHING IN THE MUSIC LINE. Agency world renowned
WEBER, DECKER BROS., STIEF and KRANICH & BACH PIANOS.
☞ Sold on Easy Terms. Prices the Lowest in the State. [nov 18 3]

SHAW & DAVIN,
Machinery & Mill Supplies,
—MORRIS AVENUE AND 22D STREET.—
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

ENGINES, BOILERS, SAW MILLS, CORN MILLS, SHINGLE MACHINES, CORN MILLS, SUGAR MILLS,
COTTON GINS, COTTON PRESSES. PULLEYS, SHAFTING, BELTING, and MACHINISTS' SUPPLIES.
Largest Stock in the State.
Write for Circulars and Prices. P. O. Box 803. [july8]

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT
THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.
FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE.
CURES—Diphtheria, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Bleeding at the Lungs, Hoarseness, Influenza, Hacking Cough, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Chronic Diarrhoea, Kidney Troubles, and Spinal Diseases. Pamphlet free. Dr. I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass.

PARSONS' MAKE NEW, RICH BLOOD. PILLS
These pills were a wonderful discovery. No others like them in the world. Will positively cure or relieve all manner of disease. The information around each box is worth ten times the cost of a box of pills. Find out about them and you will always be thankful. One pill a dose. Illustrated pamphlet free. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25c. in stamps. Dr. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., 22 C.H. St., Boston.

MAKE HENS LAY
Sheridan's Condition Powder is absolutely pure and highly concentrated. One ounce is worth a pound of any other kind. It is strictly a medicine to be mixed with food.
Nothing on earth will make hens lay like it. It cures chicken cholera and all diseases of hens. Is worth its weight in gold. [illegible]

BRICK WORK
J. M. DAWSON,
CLANTON, ALA.
Is prepared to do all kinds of brick work in the best style. The patronage of the public solicited.
feb15-tf]

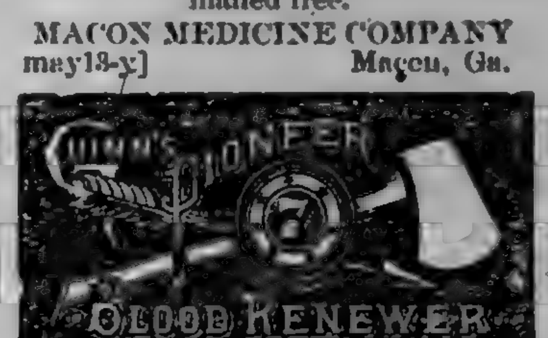
A. W. KEY & CO.,
Manufacturers' State Agents for
Engines, Saw Mills,
BOILERS,
—AND—
General Machinery.
P. O. Box 741,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Nabers & Morrow,
Wholesale Druggists,
FIRST AVENUE,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
MEDICINES,
Fine Wines, Liquors,
Oils, Etc.
☞ Agents for Chess Carley & Co.'s Oils. [june 10]

J. M. Hutchason's
BOARDING, LIVERY
—AND—
SALE STABLES.
Select Dray and Plantation Mules constantly on hand.
Draying and Hauling Promptly Attended to
Always ready to take Contracts for filling in Dirt
Moving Stone, Engines, Boilers, Machinery and other heavy hauling.
RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS AND DAMAGE.
Satisfaction Guaranteed. Handsome Carriages and Double Teams, with or without Drivers.
☞MONTGOMERY STABLES,☜
Lawrence Street, Opp. P. O.,
Telephone 446. jan1y

Life Size Photographs a Specialty.
TRESSLAR,
Artistic Photographer
10 COURT SQUARE,
Montgomery.
All Sittings made Instantaneously. Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged.
[jan21-tf]

A FINE
FLORIDA TONIC!
MR. FOSTER S. CHAPMAN,
One of the landmarks of the Georgia Drug trade, now of Orlando, Florida, writes:
"I can hardly select a single case of the many to whom I have sold "Guinn's Pioneer Blood Renewer," but what have been satisfied, and I find it the best remedy for all skin diseases I have ever sold, and a Fine Florida Tonic.
FOSTER S. CHAPMAN,
Orlando, Florida.
A Certain Cure for Catarrh!
A SUPERB
FLESH PRODUCER, & TONIC!
Guinn's Pioneer Blood Renewer.
Cures all Blood and Skin Diseases. Rheumatism, Scrofula, Old Sores. A perfect Spring Medicine.
If not in your market it will be forwarded on receipt of price. Small bottles $1.00, large $1.75.
Essay on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free.
MACON MEDICINE COMPANY
may13-y] Macon, Ga.



Clanton Barber Shop
—BY—
MEREDITH CANN,
Who is prepared to do all work in the tonsorial line. Hair dressing and shaving in the best style. Prices low.

SMITH'S BILE BEANS
CURE Biliousness; Sick Headache in Four hours. One dose relieves Neuralgia. They cure and prevent Chills & Fever, Sour Stomach & Bad Breath. Clear the Skin, Tone the Nerves, and give Life & Vigor to the system. Dose: ONE BEAN. Try them once and you will never be without them. Price, 25 cents per bottle. Sold by Druggists and Medicine Dealers generally. Sent on receipt of price in stamps [illegible]

Thompson, Francis & Chenoweth,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA,

—DEALERS IN—

HARDWARE,

Sash, Doors and Blinds, Paints, Oils and Glass, Cement and Plaster, Mantels and Grates, and a complete line of Cooking and Heating Stoves.

SOUTHERN BUSINESS COLLEGE.

No. 407½ W. Jefferson St., Next Door below Masonic Temple.

Louisville, - - - - Kentucky.

NO TEXT BOOKS USED.

Book-Keeping, Penmanship, Commercial Arithmetic, Short Hand, Type Writing, &c.

We guarantee to teach more real, practical Book-keeping, Commercial or Business Calculations, more practical ideas about business in general in two to four months than any other Business College in this section can in twelve months.

We teach forms of book-keeping (actual forms used in business) not taught in any other Business College in this section.

No Scholar Has Ever Completed Our Entire Course and Left us Dissatisfied.

For Circulars call at College or address,

BEN. C. WEAVER, Principal.

NEW GOODS! NEW GOODS!

B. WELLMAN'S

"LOUISVILLE CLOTHING HOUSE"

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

—DEALER IN—

Fine Clothing and Gent's Furnishing Goods

Bottom Prices at Last!

"The best Goods for the Least Money." is the motto of this house, and I am now selling an Immense Stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS at the Lowest Cash Prices.

BLOOM,

The Tailor, of Montgomery, Alabama,

—DOES—

Dyeing, Scouring, Cleaning and Repairing

Of Gents' and Ladies' garments of all colors.
Orders by Mail or Express will receive prompt attention.
Prices to suit the times. Work Guaranteed.

No. 5 Court Street, Upstairs, - - Opposite Dollar Store.

sep14 '86-1y

BRYANT AND STRATTON.

THE LOUISVILLE

BUSINESS COLLEGE;

Cor. Third & Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

BOOK-KEEPING, BANKING, PENMANSHIP, SHORT-HAND, TYPE-WRITING, ARITHMETIC, &c.

No Text Books or Manuscripts copied and recopied by students. Has the largest honest indorsement as to true merit. Graduates have no trouble in obtaining situations.

HOME STUDY. } Instruction given by mail. Improve your spare hours and obtain a practical education.

ADDRESS COLLEGE AS ABOVE.

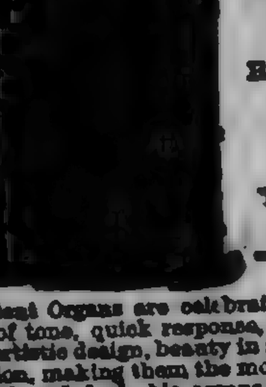
[mar18-1y

THE

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.

It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.



OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.

EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

These excellent Organs are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty in finish, perfect construction, making them the most attractive, ornamental and desirable organs for homes, schools, churches, lodges, societies, etc.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,
UNEQUALED FACILITIES,
SKILLED WORKMEN,
BEST MATERIAL,
COMBINED, MAKE THIS

THE POPULAR ORGAN.

Instruction Books and Piano Stools.

Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, FREE.

The Chicago Cottage Organ Co.

Corner Randolph and Ann Streets,

CHICAGO, ILL.

HEADACHE

[illegible] are relieved by taking WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS [illegible]

L & N

(LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.)

THE GREAT

Through Trunk Line

Between the Cities of CINCINNATI, LEXINGTON, LOUISVILLE, EVANSVILLE, ST. LOUIS, And the Cities of N. ORLEANS, MOBILE, and MONTGOM'Y, MEMPHIS, NASHVILLE,

Without Change and with Speed Unrivaled

SHORTEST AND QUICKEST ROUTE

From New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery, to

NORTH, EAST & WEST

PULLMAN CARS Without change to Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, with but one change to all NORTHERN AND EASTERN CITIES.

THROUGH COACHES From Chattanooga and Nashville to St. Louis, connecting direct for Cities in the Northwest.

EMIGRANTS Seeking homes on the line of this road will receive special low rates.

See Agents of this Company for rates, routes, &c., or write C. P. ATMORE, G. P. & T. A., Louisville, Ky.

jan28-6m

A COMPLETE STOCK of Fancy Stationery, and everything usually kept in a Stationery Establishment, is

ALWAYS ON HAND

and For Sale at City Prices at the

VIEW

STATIONERY STAND.

AGRICULTURAL.

TOPICS OF INTEREST RELATIVE TO FARM AND GARDEN.

Bushes and Weeds on the Farm.

It seems a very strange thing, says a correspondent of the Country Gentleman, that our farmers should allow so many bushes, shrubs and weeds growing along the public highways and in other conspicuous places on their farms. What a bad effect it has on the appearance of a man's farm! So small an expense would be required in removing them all. Can it be that some farmers want their farms to revert to wilds? They all the time receive no profit from them, but they have to pay taxes on them. I cannot see why it is that farmers sometimes increase the acreage of their land. They do not see the extent of land which might, with large profits, be brought under control, and produce more on a small area with less labor, and without extra taxes and cost.

Farmers are careless, and try to do a great deal without doing it well. If they had only considered it in time they would have been the first to exclaim against the folly of refraining from doing a thing which could be done so easily, and which was of so much importance.

All will agree with me when I say that if the highway is simply mowed every year clear up to the fence, no weeds will grow up there as a general thing, but grass, on the other hand, will take their place, and cause as beneficial a supply as any part of the farm. Every one knows too well for me to express it, that weeds and bushes cannot live where they are regularly mowed every year. Every one who has any sense of propriety will be struck with the folly of so mowing a field that when the central part is cut for harvest, a streak will be left along the fence which is not mowed. Let me say to every farmer who has not mown up to his fences fully this year, or who has bushes and coarse weeds growing along them, which are in consequence of that space not having been mown in years back, to do so this year: mow every one of those weeds and bushes, and do not fail to do this every year, and in a few years he will have no bushes along his fence, and every inch of his farm will pay and look better.

Farm and Garden Notes.

A New York State cow-feeder says that wheat-bran and middlings have given him the best results.

Rye, if sown now, will grow, and as it is hardy, will furnish early green food before the grass makes its appearance in the spring.

The natural life of sheep is shorter than that of any other domestic animal. Five or six years is the limit of practical usefulness, though valuable breeding ewes may be kept one or two years longer by careful treatment.

It is cheaper to clean out the poultry-house every day than to allow the droppings to accumulate, for the reason that it requires but a short time for the volatile elements of the manure to escape. What is saved by not frequently cleaning the house, as labor, is lost in the depreciation of the droppings.

It is a singular fact that gypsum or plaster of paris is so little used. The cheapest of all mineral fertilizers, and the one best adapted to clover, its use rarely extends far beyond the locality where it is dug and ground. There its cheapness insures a large use by neighboring farmers, who find it very profitable.

A late cultivation of strawberries, with the application of a bag of superphosphate per acre, scattered in the rows near the roots of the plants, will give good results next spring. All the runners between the rows should be removed, the grass hoed away between the plants, and the ground made as clean as possible.

It is asserted that "a mixture of lime in clay soil has the effect of making them porous and friable; hence, by such treatment they are made more workable and are better fitted for nourishing the life of plants. Clays that harden into solid lumps after a shower of rain are little better than rocks, in so far as the food of plants is concerned."

Most cellars in early winter will be decidedly benefited by thorough ventilation. The air is usually too warm at this season, and ventilating on cold days to lower the temperature will not only remove the foul air, but will also to some extent prevent the decay of vegetables which causes it. With a thermometer in the cellar it is easy to decide when the air approaches a freezing point, and after this the ventilation may be restricted to warm days in winter when no danger of frost need be apprehended.

It is not wise to put leaves for protection thickly over plants. They hold moisture, and rot instead of protect, and often breed mildew, which is as bad as cold. It is bright light, together with frost, that injures plants, and enough leaves to shade is all that is required. This is why evergreens—such as rhododendrons and kalmias—suffer so much in winter. Something to keep off the sun is as beneficial as something to keep off the frost. For this reason the ground is itself a good protector. Many tender fruits can be taken care of by bending the branches and covering with earth.

Roots want air as well as water, and the soil should be somewhat open in order to permit air to circulate through it. When the earth does not dry up rapidly something is wrong. It is no uncommon sight to see benches of roses, carnations and other things completely sodden, and the plants then die from root fungus. When fungus does appear, sulphur exposed to the hot sun's rays, is among the best remedies. The above remarks have in view mainly the culture of flowers in benches, as practiced in florists' greenhouses. But similar instructions are needed for the smaller grower.

Professor Shelton has found that in feeding cooked corn and raw corn to pigs the advantage was decidedly with the latter. In an experiment which he made the corn was cooked by steam in a barrel, to which a pipe was run from the boiler. It was so thoroughly acted upon by the heat that each grain could be easily crushed between the thumb and fingers. During the coldest weather the cooked corn froze in the troughs, often before the pigs could eat. Every detail of the experiment goes to confirm the opinion that nothing is gained by cooking the food; that the trouble and expense are given for nothing.

A physician says: "When a teaspoonful of warm honey is taken every fifteen, twenty or thirty minutes, it has a surprising effect on catarrh. Every family should have a glass of pure honey in the house, in order at once, after catching cold, to be able to use some.

The United States has 6,000,000 miles of fence, which cost the farmers and stockmen about $1,900,000, and have to be renewed every fifteen years.

HOUSEHOLD MATTERS.

The Buffalo Bug.

The name of all others that rhymes best with rug
Is the name of a mite, called the Buffalo Bug!
It's a hairy, horny, and horrible thing,
Though, thanks to kind nature, it cannot sting.
It can run like a fox, or creep like a snail,
Whilst its appetite never was know to fail.
Your carpets, your mats, your coats and your hats,
'Twill quickly devour them just like the rats,
Slip into a cranny and hide like a thief;
And, as true as I live, it is my belief
The creature is only a witch in disguise,
Who delights in taking some folks by surprise,
Who delights in making mischief and trouble,
Then eluding one's grasp like a blown bubble—
It's a waste of your time, your strength and your skill,
The Buffalo Bug to hunt and to kill.
'Twill make its appearance, some unlucky day,
When you are sure you have chased the whole herd away;
'Twill haunt you and daunt you until you will cry:
"I wish, in my heart, I could lie down and die!"

—Good Housekeeping.

Sauerkraut.

Emilia Custer writing in Good Housekeeping about German cooking says: Next in order comes a recipe for sauerkraut. I can see some of the readers smile, and hear them say: "Oh, of course, I thought that was coming! Whoever can think of German cooking without being reminded of sauerkraut? Who wants to eat the nasty stuff?" Now, I cannot see that sauerkraut is more nasty than anything else that has to undergo a chemical change before it is considered ready for use. Beer and wine have to be fermented, and the odor that emanates from them during this process is not always an agreeable one. Tainted meat, as long as it comes under the head of game, is eaten and relished by many, then why be disgusted with sauerkraut, which is merely cabbage which has become sour (not putrid)? The popular idea that it is put into casks and stamped down with the feet has about as much truth in it as the one that bakers knead the dough with their feet. I have never seen it done myself, nor do I know of any one that has seen it. Of course, when it is prepared at home that objection cannot be urged. However, the following recipes are given for the benefit of those who are cosmopolitan enough to eat it and like it:

Trim off the coarse outer leaves of as many heads of cabbage as you wish to use; quarter them and take out the stalks, then shave each piece very fine on a cold-slaw cutter; when you have cut up one head of cabbage lay it in a large stone pot or wooden tub, sprinkle about as much salt over this layer as you would use in boiling it—no more, if anything a little less, as, if it gets too much salt, the cabbage will probably not turn sour—and pound each layer down with a potato-masher until the water comes. Proceed in like manner with each successive layer, and then cover with a cloth, board, and heavy stone. The sauerkraut should be looked after once a week, the scum carefully removed, and if the water evaporates, boil a little salt and water, and when cold pour over it.

This is one method, and the simplest and best. The other is more of what some would call "an incongruous mixture."

The cabbage is cut the same as above, then, instead of putting salt between the layers, green grapes, small lady apples, whole peppers and caraway seeds are put in, merely sprinkling the cask or tub with salt.

There are various ways of cooking sauerkraut. One way is to cook a nice piece of fresh pork in it, and this, with mashed potatoes, makes a very good plain dinner.

Useful Hints.

Crackers that have been softened by exposure will become crisp and fresh again by being heated in an oven a few minutes.

Cover house plants with newspapers before sweeping; also, give them a little ammonia once a week in the water you put on them.

To prevent children losing their mittens or gloves sew on each one a long ribbon, and fasten the ribbon to the inside of the coat sleeve.

When cooking cabbage or onions put a small quantity of vinegar in a cup on the stove. This neutralizes in a great measure the disagreeable odor from the cooking vegetables.

Feathers slightly uncurled by the damp air may be restored by holding them over a hot stove, then shaking and repeating until curled. Care should be taken not to burn the feather.

Do not let your laundress or washerwoman put clothes into the blueing water until they have been well shaken. If tossed in while folded as they come through the wringer they are almost certain to be streaked with blueing, and although after repeated washings these streaks will come out, every one knows how aggravating it is to use napkins or handkerchiefs that show traces of careless washing.

Friday in American History.

Friday has long been regarded as a day of evil omen, but it has been, to say the least, an eventful one in American history.

Friday Columbus sailed his voyage of discovery.

Friday, ten weeks after, he discovered America.

Friday, Henry VIII. of England gave John Cabot his commission, which led to the discovery of North America.

Friday, St. Augustine, the oldest town in the United States, was founded.

Friday, the Mayflower, with the Pilgrims, arrived at Plymouth; and on Friday they signed that august compact, the forerunner of the present Constitution.

Friday, George Washington was born.

Friday, Bunker Hill was seized and fortified.

Friday, the surrender of Saratoga was made.

Friday, Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown; and on Friday the motion was made in Congress that the United Colonies were, and of right ought to be, free and independent.

Double-Footed Cats.

Double-footed cats are not found every day. Policeman Odlin had an offer of one with six feet, to be sent from down East. He wrote that he didn't want it. He had cats enough. The other day in opening his front door a cat came in. Each of her fore paws was plainly subdivided into two separate, well marked feet, making six feet in all. It is not the same cat that his relatives had written to him about. It is altogether another. The cat has lived with them ever since. They can't drive her away if they would. Two-footed cats are a good sign, say the grandmothers.—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

Hydrophobia Without a Cause.

A few weeks ago Harry Gibson, a hotel boy in Chicago, was taken to the insane department of the county jail, suffering from a malady which seemed at times to resemble hydrophobia. It cannot be ascertained that young Gibson was ever bitten by a dog, either rapid or otherwise, yet he snapped his teeth and growled at people, frothed at the mouth and in every way gave evidence of suffering from rabies. Before Gibson's removal to the jail he was cared for at the hotel and a porter named John Heilland was detailed to watch him. He would argue with his attendant in a most rational manner, saying that there was no necessity for his being watched; but the moment the attendant turned his back Gibson would leap upon him and endeavor to bite him. After Gibson's removal Heilland was relieved from the duty of caring for the patient. He went to his room and spent the next forenoon in sleep. When he went to work he complained to his fellow-porters of being ill, but thought nothing serious of it. The day following, however, he was attacked with the same symptoms manifested by young Gibson and became violently mad and unmanageable. He frothed at the mouth and acted like a person having the hydrophobia, though at times he was perfectly rational. He declares that he was not bitten by Gibson, and had not been bitten by a dog. The attacks recur at regular intervals each day. The cases will be thoroughly investigated.

Paste Diamonds.

"I know her diamonds were made from paste."

Nonsense! Why, Beesley the jeweler says they are of the first water."

"Still they were made from paste."

"How do you make that out?"

Her father was a bill poster."

The Only Way to Conquer Dyspepsia.

It is perfectly preposterous to introduce pepsin and other artificial solvents into the stomach, in the expectation that they will assist digestion by acting on the food itself. They will not. Nor is it possible thus to overcome dyspepsia. The only way to conquer that disorder, and prevent the numerous diseases and disabilities which it assuredly provokes, is to renew the activity of gastric action by strengthening the stomach. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters eradicates the most inveterate forms of indigestion by restoring vitality to the alimentary organs, and those which are tributary to them. The liver, the bowels, the kidneys and the nerves, no less than the stomach, experience the invigorative effects of that standard tonic, which possesses alterative properties that greatly enhance its beneficial influence, and give a permanence to its effects which they would not otherwise possess.

"Your presents is desired at our Christmas celebration," was a boy's letter to his uncle.

"The Blood is the Life."

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and soundness of constitution will be established.

Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors, from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the worst Scrofula or blood-poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing Salt-rheum or Tetter, Fever-sores, Hip-joint Disease, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Enlarged glands, and Eating Ulcers.

Golden Medical Discovery cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating and nutritive properties. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Asthma and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. It promptly cures the severest Coughs.

For torpid Liver, Biliousness, or "Liver Complaint," Dyspepsia and Indigestion, it is an unequaled remedy. Sold by druggists.

Passing around the hat is one way of getting the cents of the meeting.

"Consumption Can be Cured."

Dr. J. S. COMBS, Owensville, Ohio, says: "I have given SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites to four patients with better results than seemed possible with any remedy. All were hereditary cases of Lung disease, and advanced to that stage when Coughs, pain in the chest, frequent breathing, frequent pulse, fever and Emanciation. All these cases have increased in weight from 16 to 20 lbs., and are not now needing any medicine."

For a man to be efficient, like a cable car, he mustn't lose his grip.

More Money for Your Work.

Improve the good opportunities that are offered you and you will receive more money for your labor. Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, will mail you, free, full information showing how you can make from $5 to $25 and upwards a day and live at home, wherever you may be located. You had better write to them at once. A number have made over $50 in a day. All is new. Capital not required; Hallett & Co. will start you. Both sexes; all ages. Grand success attends every worker. Send your address at once and see for yourself.

Chicago clergymen sincerely hope that the ballet is on its last legs.

Use Dr. Pierce's "Pellets" for all bilious attacks.

A dime museum man eats live frogs, puts them in his hopper as it were.

The farmers, in their swamps, we're sure,
Could find the roots and plants that cure;
If by their knowledge they only knew
For just the disease each one grew,
Take courage now and "Swamp-Root" try—
(for kidney, liver and bladder complaints),
As on this remedy you can rely.

If afflicted with sore eyes use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye-water. Druggists sell at 25c per bottle.

If a cough disturbs your sleep, take Piso's Cure for Consumption.

DYSPEPSIA

Is a dangerous as well as distressing complaint. If neglected, it tends, by impairing nutrition, and depressing the tone of the system, to prepare the way for Rapid Decline.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

QUALITY P PURITY NOT QUANTITY. Trade Mark On Every Bottle.

PHYSICIANS AND DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND IT.

—THE BEST TONIC

Quickly and completely Cures Dyspepsia in all its forms, Heartburn, Belching, Tasting the Food, etc. It enriches and purifies the blood, stimulates the appetite, and aids the assimilation of food.

MR. W. T. WYATT, a well-known builder, Montgomery, Ala., says: "I have been a sufferer with Dyspepsia for eight years. I have tried various remedies without much relief. Brown's Iron Bitters has entirely cured me. I cheerfully recommend it."

MR. J. M. KIMBROUGH, cor. Philip and Magazine Sts., New Orleans, La., says: "For some time I was a martyr to Dyspepsia and tried various remedies without relief. I used Brown's Iron Bitters, and I am now enjoying excellent health and do recommend it."

Genuine has above Trade Mark and crossed red lines on wrapper. Take no other. Made only by

BROWN CHEMICAL CO., BALTIMORE, MD

PENSIONS, Officers' pay, bounty procured; deserters relieved. 21 years' practice. Success or no fee. Write for circulars and new laws. A. W. McCormick & Son, Washington, D.C.

OPIUM HABIT absolutely cured. NOT A PARTICLE PAIN or self-denial. Pay when cured. Handsome book free. DR. C. J. WEATHERBY, Kansas City, Mo.

Blair's Pills. Great English Gout and Rheumatic Remedy. Oval Box $1.00; round, 50 cts.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Address BREWSTER'S SAFETY REIN HOLDER, Holly, Mich.

Pensions to Soldiers & Heirs. Send stamp for Circulars. COL. L. BINGHAM, Att'y, Washington, D.C.

OPIUM Habit Cured. Treatment sent on trial. HUMANE REMEDY CO., LaFayette, Ind.

A Screw Loose.

"Well, Fred, they tell me that every sailor in the whaling ship Northern Lights deserted as soon as she got into port. Do you know why they did so?"

"Couldn't guess it for the life of me, Henry. There must have been a ship's crew loose somewhere."

"That's exactly it—they just turned out and slipped away."

Dr. Green, physician at St. Vincent's Hospital, Baltimore, Md., considers Red Star Cough Cure perfectly harmless, being purely vegetable and entirely free from opiates, poisons, and other narcotics. Other professionals also endorse it as prompt, safe and sure. Price, twenty-five cents a bottle.

Munkacsy, the artist, is painting a potrait of Mrs. J. W. Pulitzer, wife of one of the proprietors of the New York World, and who is an exceptionally beautiful woman. She is as beautiful as her husband is homely. They are spoken of together as "beauty and the beast."

The magical effects of St. Jacobs Oil in removing soreness and stiffness makes it invaluable at all times. Rheumatism and Neuralgia promptly yield to it.

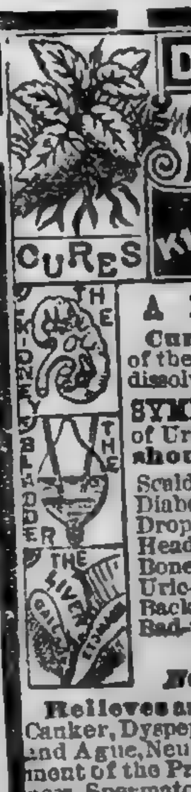
Nokes' small boy was seen hanging over a barrel half filled with water, when Mrs. Nokes vigorously shouted to know what he was doing there. "I want to get drowned so that I can get my name in the paper," was the reassuring and prompt reply.

Pile tumors, rupture and fistulæ, radically cured by improved methods. Book, 10 cents in stamps. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Heathen are the people who don't know enough about religion to fight over it.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.

Send for Pamphlet on Female Diseases, free, securely sealed. Dr. J. B. Marchisi, Utica, N.Y.



DR. KILMER'S SWAMP ROOT

KIDNEY, LIVER & BLADDER CURE.

A MEDICAL VICTORY!

Cures Brights' Disease, Catarrh of the Bladder, Torpid Liver. It dissolves Gall-Stones and Gravel.

SYMPTOMS and CONDITIONS of Urine for which this Remedy should be taken.

Scalding Stoppage Blood-tinged
Diabetic Albumen Brick-dust
Dropsical Dribbling Milky-pink
Headache Frequent Costiveness
Boneache Nervous Reddish-dark
Uric-acid Settlings Catarrhache
Backache Nerveache Phosphates
Bad-taste Foul-Breath Gall-color

IT IS A SPECIFIC.

Every dose goes to the spot.

Relieves and Cures internal Slime-fever, Canker, Dyspepsia, Anæmia, Malaria, Fever and Ague, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Enlargement of the Prostate Gland, Sexual Weakness, Spermatorrhœa and Gout.

It Eliminates Blood Impurities, Scrofula, Erysipelas, Salt-Rheum, Syphilis, Pimples, Blotches, Fever-sores, and Cancer-taints.

It is a most Wonderful Appetizer. Builds up Quickly a Run-down Constitution.

☞ Tell your neighbors all about it.

PRICE 25c, $1.00—6 bottles $5.00.

☞ Prepared at Dr. Kilmer's Dispensary, Binghamton, N. Y., U. S. A.

Invalids' Guide to Health (Sent Free.)

All letters of inquiry promptly answered.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

ELY'S CREAM BALM

We have never handled a catarrh remedy that has increased so rapidly in sales as Ely's Cream Balm or that has given such universal satisfaction.—C. N. Crittenton, 115 Fulton St., New York City.

CATARRH

HAY-FEVER

A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable to use. Price 50 cts. by mail or at druggists. Send for circular. ELY BROTHERS, Druggists, Owego, N. Y.

Ask your retailer for the James Means' $3 Shoe. Caution! Some dealers recommend inferior goods in order to make a larger profit. This is the original $3 Shoe. Beware of imitations which acknowledge their own inferiority by attempting to build upon the reputation of the original. None Genuine unless bearing this Stamp.

JAMES MEANS' $3 SHOE.

For Gentlemen.

Made in Button, Congress and Lace. Best Calf Skin. Unexcelled in Durability, Comfort & Appearance. A postal card sent to us will bring you information how to get this Shoe in any State or Territory.

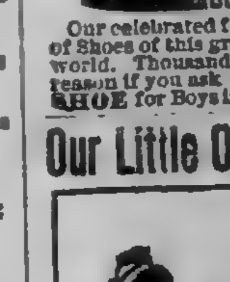
J. Means & Co
41 Lincoln St.
Boston, Mass.

Our celebrated factory produces a larger quantity of Shoes of this grade than any other factory in the world. Thousands who wear them will tell you the reason if you ask them. JAMES MEANS' $2 SHOE for Boys is unapproached in Durability.

Our Little Ones and the Nursery.



The Prince of Magazines for children from 4 to 10 years old. 32 pages each month of original Stories and Poems, beautifully illustrated with artistic and original drawings by the best living artists. Clubs with all Periodicals. Newsdealers sell it. Agents wanted. Send a two cent stamp for specimen copy.

One year, $1.50 Single Copies, 15 cts.

Russell Publishing Co., 36 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.

PENSIONS procured or no Fee. Soldiers & heirs. New laws. Fienner & Co., Att'ys, 15 yrs., Washington, D.C.

ATLANTA SAW WORKS.

Manufacturers of and Dealers in

Saws and Saw-Mill Supplies.

Repairing a Specialty.

Agents for L. POWER & COMPANY'S Wood Working Machinery. Large and complete stock. Write for catalogue. ATLANTA, GA.

J. P. STEVENS & BRO. JEWELERS. Atlanta, Ga.

Send for Catalogue.

CATARRH

In its worst form can be cured. Canadian Catarrh Cure, during 10 years' trial, has never failed to effect a cure. We guarantee a cure, or price of medicine refunded. Pamphlet sent free. We refer to Atlanta National Bank of this city, as to our standing and responsibility. Address

CANADIAN CATARRH CURE CO.,
16½ Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.

PILES! DR. WILLIAMS' Indian Pile Ointment will cure any case of Itching, Bleeding, Ulcerated or Protruding Piles. CURE GUARANTEED. Prepared for Piles only. [Physicians' jars by express, prepaid, $2.50.] Price per box, 50c. and $1. Sold by druggists or mailed on receipt of price by LAMAR, RANKIN & LAMAR, Agents, Atlanta, Ga.

OPIUM and WHISKEY HABITS cured at home without pain. Book of particulars sent FREE. B. M. Woolley, M. D., Atlanta, Ga. Office 65½ Whitehall Street. Mention this paper.

BUSINESS Education a specialty at MOORE'S BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, Ga. One of the best schools in the Country. Send for Circulars.

Young Men Can get the most Practical Business Education at Goldsmith's School of Business, 32½ S Broad St. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Circulars & Specimens of Penmanship.

$15.00 First top No. 7 Cook Stove for $10.00 with fixtures. Send for catalogue. A. P. Stewart & Co., 67 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.

Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute

BUFFALO, N. Y.

Organized with a full Staff of eighteen Experienced and Skillful Physicians and Surgeons for the treatment of all Chronic Diseases.

OUR FIELD OF SUCCESS.

Chronic Nasal Catarrh, Throat and Lung Diseases, Liver and Kidney Diseases, Bladder Diseases, Diseases of Women, Blood Diseases and Nervous Affections, cured here or at home, with or without seeing the patient. Come and see us, or send ten cents in stamps for our "Invalids' Guide Book," which gives all particulars.

DELICATE DISEASES. Nervous Debility, Impotency, Nocturnal Losses, and all Morbid Conditions caused by Youthful Follies and Pernicious Solitary Practices are speedily and permanently cured by our Specialists. Book, post-paid, 10 cts. in stamps.

RUPTURE. Rupture, or Breach, radically cured without the knife, without trusses, without pain, and without danger. Cures Guaranteed. Book sent for ten cents in stamps.

PILE TUMORS and STRICTURES treated under guarantee to cure. Book sent for ten cents in stamps. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

DISEASES OF WOMEN. The treatment of many thousands of cases of those diseases peculiar to WOMEN at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, has afforded large experience in adapting remedies for their cure, and is the result of this vast experience.

DR. PIERCE'S

Favorite Prescription

It is a powerful Restorative Tonic and Nervine, imparts vigor and strength to the system, and cures, as if by magic, Leucorrhea, or "whites," excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus or falling of the uterus, weak back, anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, internal heat, and "female weakness."

It promptly relieves and cures Nausea and Weakness of Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Nervous Prostration, and Sleeplessness, in either sex.

PRICE $1.00, OR 6 BOTTLES FOR $5.00.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's large Treatise on Diseases of Women, illustrated.

World's Dispensary Medical Association,
663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

SICK-HEADACHE, Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, and Bilious Attacks, promptly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. 25 cents a vial, by Druggists.

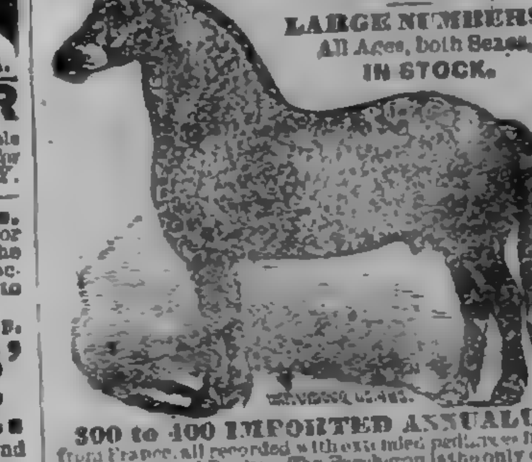
OAKLAWN

The Great Nursery of

PERCHERON HORSES.

200 Imported Brood Mares Of Choicest Families.

LARGE NUMBERS, All Ages, both Sexes, IN STOCK.



300 to 400 IMPORTED ANNUALLY from France, all recorded with extended pedigrees in the Percheron Stud Books. The Percheron is the only draft breed of France possessing a stud book that has the support and endorsement of the French Government. Send for 120-page Catalogue, illustrations by Rosa Bonheur.

M. W. DUNHAM,
Wayne, DuPage Co., Illinois.

MASON & HAMLIN

UNRIVALED ORGANS

On the EASY PAYMENT system, from $3.25 per month up. 100 styles, $22 to $900. Send for Catalogue with full particulars, mailed free.

UPRIGHT PIANOS,

Constructed on the new method of stringing, on similar terms. Send for descriptive Catalogue.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN AND PIANO CO.
Boston. New York. Chicago.

WELL DRILLING

Machinery for Wells of any depth, from 20 to 3,000 feet, for Water, Oil or Gas. Our Mounted Steam Drilling and Portable Horse Power Machines set to work in 20 minutes. Guaranteed to drill faster and with less power than any other. Specially adapted to drilling Wells in earth or rock 20 to 1,000 feet. Farmers and others are making $25 to $40 per day with our machinery and tools. Splendid business for Winter or Summer. We are the oldest and largest Manufacturers in the business. Send 4 cents in Stamps for Illustrated Catalogue H. Address,

Pierce Well Excavator Co., New York.

JONES HE PAYS the FREIGHT

5 Ton Wagon Scales, Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box for $60.

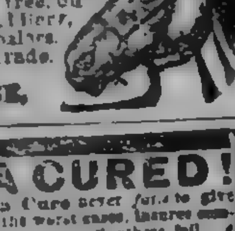
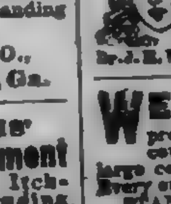
Every size Scale. For free price list mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

No Rope to Cut Off Horses' Manes. Celebrated 'ECLIPSE' HALTER and BRIDLE Combined, cannot be slipped by any horse. Sample Halter to any part of U. S. free, on receipt of $1. Sold by all Saddlery, Hardware and Harness Dealers. Special discount to the Trade. Send for Price List.

J. C. LIGHTHOUSE,
Rochester, N. Y.



ASTHMA CURED! German Asthma Cure never fails to give immediate relief in the worst cases, insures comfortable sleep; effects cures where all others fail. A trial convinces the most skeptical. Price 50 cts. and $1.00, of Druggists or by mail. Sample FREE for stamp. DR. R. SCHIFFMANN, St. Paul, Minn.



FACE, HANDS, FEET, and all their imperfections, including Facial Development, Hair and Scalp, Superfluous Hair, Birth Marks, Moles, Warts, Freckles, Red Nose, Acne, Black Heads, Scars, Pitting and their treatment. Send 10c. for book of 50 pages, 4th edition. Dr. J. H. Woodbury, 37 N. Pearl St., Albany, N. Y. Est'b'd 1870.

WE WANT YOU! alive energetic man or woman needing profitable employment to represent us in every county. Salary $75 per month and expenses, or a large commission on sales if preferred. Goods staple. Every one buys. Outfit and particulars Free. STANDARD SILVERWARE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

GARDEN SEEDS Catalogues Mailed Free. Francis Brill, Hempstead, Long Island, N. Y.

THURSTON'S IVORY PEARL TOOTH POWDER Keeping Teeth Perfect and Gums Healthy.

PATENTS Obtained. Send stamp for Inventors' Guide. L. Bingham, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Also good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Hay Fever, &c. 50 cents.

A. N. U.

The Chilton View.

W. H. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors.

"WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION."

TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1887. NUMBER 11.

Rates of Advertising.

One Dollar per Square, of One Inch space or less, for the first, and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion.

[illegible]	3 m.	6 m.	12 m.
1 Inch	$ [illegible]	$ 7 00	$ 11 25
2 Inches	7 00	11 [illegible]	16 00
3 Inches	10 00	15 00	22 50
4 Inches	12 [illegible]	20 00	27 00
5 Inches	15 00	22 [illegible]	30 00
[illegible] Column	18 00	27 00	40 00
[illegible] Column	27 00	40 00	60 00
[illegible] Column	40 00	60 00	100 00

Special Advertising.

Business Notices Ten Cents per line each insertion.

Obituaries and Tributes of Respect, half rates.

Announcing candidates for office, Five Dollars, strictly in advance.

Communications recommending candidates for office will be headed as advertisements and charged for accordingly.

Liberal contracts made with those advertising by the year.

☞ The money is due on all advertising after the first publication.

A new use for tobacco has been found. The stems and waste of the plant are said to be equal to linen rags in the manufacture of paper. Tobacco waste sells for less than $10 a ton, while linen rags bring $70 to $80.

One of the results of the Charleston earthquake is the loss of animals from terror. Many of the milch cows have gone dry since the earthquake in the country about Charleston, and one man lost seven horses from the effects of terror.

Christmas is not celebrated in Mexico with a tree, but with a pinata. The latter is a large earthen vessel, gaily decorated and filled with toothsome dainties or candies, hung from the ceiling in the middle of the room. The children are blindfolded and armed with sticks to break the jug, when it is shattered they throw off their masks and scramble for the scattered goodies. Presents are then distributed, and dancing follows.

Garrett P. Serviss, the astronomical lecturer and writer, notes in a recent newspaper letter a curious sensation which he has experienced in gazing through a telescope, and which doubtless has been felt by others. He says: "Looking into another world from a safe perch upon this one—for that is what the observer with a powerful telescope seems to himself to be doing—is in itself an occupation that almost takes one's breath away. I have more than once gazed at the full orb of the moon through a telescope until the palpable rounding of its globe under the eye made one positively dizzy, as if one should be held over the edge of the world with a 4,000-mile drop beneath him."

It is related that Queen Margherita, of Italy, wears on every occasion, even when she has to conceal it under a diamond necklace, a string of corals, the history of which is as follows: Five years ago the Prince of Naples, the heir presumptive, in promenading with his tutor in Venice, noticed at a jeweler's shop a coral necklace which he desired to buy for his mother. The price asked being, however, too high for his slender purse, he proposed to the jeweler that he would buy five corals on the spot, and pay for the rest in installments, as soon as he had saved sufficient money. It took him two years to pay for the entire necklace, and when the Queen learned how it had been bought she vowed that she would never part from it.

Surgery has made wonderful advancements in modern times. Since the introduction of anesthetics and anti-septics the living body can be operated upon with comparative safety, and where formerly the physician stood helpless at the bedside of the patient, he now resorts to the scalpel and removes the deceased portion of the body, whether within or without the abdominal cavity. Thus an operation performed recently in New York by Dr. Ball excited the attention of the medical fraternity. A man was brought to the hospital whose intestines were perforated in several places by pistol balls. In former times the victim would have been an unfailing prey of death. Not now. Dr. Ball opened the abdominal cavity, laid the intestines bare, and sewed up the injured intestines. The man recovered.

Baseball magnates have their own troubles. Listen, for instance, to President Von der Ahe, of St. Louis: "There is an unlimited number of people who think that they are cut out for ball players, and if only given an opportunity to appear on the diamond would prove veritable wonders. I am pestered to death with such people. There is scarcely a week but that some one comes to me and implores for a trial. He is positive that if he is only given a chance to display his abilities he will be engaged at once. I never pay any attention to them, unless they can give some assurance that they have played with a professional club. At first I used to give them trials, but their utter inability to fill any of the positions for which they claimed they were best suited has caused me to give them no countenance whatever. A good man will not remain long undiscovered. Ball players are not born. They are made only by experience."

Europe has been described as breaking down under her weight of armor, and when we consider that the expenditure of the six leading States last year, upon their armies alone, was more than $500,000,000, and that their navies under the same flags were an additional expense of over [illegible],000,000, we can begin to realize [illegible] the necessity of preparing for war, as a means of preserving peace, means to the jealous powers of the Old World. Europe may summon more than [illegible],000,000 men, more than one-sixth of the population of the entire United States, to slaughter and be slaughtered. These men, too, are all in the prime of manhood, the bone and sinew of their respective countries, so that the death of the hundreds of thousands who must inevitably fall means more even than the sentimental loss to wives, mothers and children. It is a great question what these ten millions of men might accomplish if war was a relic of the past, and they might turn their attention to productive labor; but it is, unfortunately, a question that we can scarcely hope will be solved without delays and bloodshed.

THE TALE OF LIFE.

Man is to-day what man was yesterday—
Will be to-morrow; let him curse or pray
Drink or be dull, he learns not, nor shall learn
The lesson that shall laugh the world away.

The world as gray or just as golden shines,
The wine as sweet or just as bitter flows
For you and me; and you, like me, may find
Perfume or canker in the reddest rose.

The tale of life is hard to understand;
But while the cup waits ready to your hand
Drink, and declare the summer roses blow
As red in London as in Samarcand.

Lips are as sweet to kiss and eyes as bright
As ever flattered Omar with delight:
English or Persian, while the mouth is fair,
What can it matter how it says good-night!

—Justin McCarthy.

AN ORANGE HUMMOCK.

BY HARRIET PRESCOTT SPOFFORD.

Julian could hardly remember the fine old times before the war, although it could not be said to be the fault of his mother and his elder sisters, or of old Mammy Dinah, all of whom kept the legends of those times pretty constantly before his eyes and ears. The splendor, the company, the feasts, the slaves, all seemed to him the veriest idle story beside the fact of unvarying corn bread and bacon now.

The house was tumbling to pieces; he wondered if there was a worse ruin in all Florida; the almost boundless extent of the lands was uncultivated; the slaves were all gone.

"I don't see why we should be poor," said Julian, having made up his mind for a good square talk at last, "with all the land that is here."

"That's half the reason," said his father.

"But I thought that it was off the land people made their money."

"When they already have money and the hands with which to cultivate land. It takes hands and it takes means to grow cotton and sugar. I can hardly be expected to go to work myself!"

"Then," persisted Julian, "why couldn't we hire people, and pay them from the crop when it comes?"

"You don't know what you are talking about, my son."

"I know we have hundreds of acres of land, and if they were mine, I think that I could do something with them."

"You may do what you please with them," said his father. "I give you carte blanche," and he went back to the reading of the Congressional Record. Or at least he would have gone back, if Julian would have let him. But Julian had not begun to talk without being very much in earnest, and now he meant to go through.

"Well," he said, laughing, "carte blanche is a good thing to have, but one needs some help to do anything with even that. I think if you will let me have the hummock in Okemolkokee Everglade, and will lend old Cy to Dandridge and me"—

"Old Cyrus! What would your mother do without him, and what would Rachel and Rebecca do? The only one of all the hands that has stayed faithful to us! You can do nothing without capital."

"But Northern people come here, and seem sure of doing well. And we have the land they come to buy. That's capital. If you lend old Cy to Dan and me, we won't ask you for more, for we've been saving our odd pennies for this, and we've got enough to buy all the grafts we want, and Col. Burbeck will give us some besides."

"Grafts?" said his father, pushing up his silver-bowed spectacles in perplexity. "Grafts?"

"Yes."

"What are you going to do with grafts?"

"Look at them," said Julian, with a grin. "So I see you'll lend me Cy. What if Rachel went along with us?"

"Your mother might not approve."

"Mother'll approve fast enough, I reckon, when we're getting five-thousand a year."

"Five thousand a year!" cried his father, letting the Congressional Record fall. "Have you gone daft, Julian?"

"Well, father," said Julian, with a great laugh, throwing back the dark curl that was always dropping into his eyes, "I'll send for you to make us a visit on the big hummock in Okemolkokee Everglade by-and-by, and then we'll see."

"I don't know about it; I don't know," said his father, picking up the scattered leaves of his cherished document. But Julian knew that his father would lend old Cy to Danbridge and himself, and he made his preparations for the enterprise, saying little or nothing. Rachel had already agreed to come to them whenever they should send for her.

It was a week from that day that, with a pack of simple provisions, with rifles, picks, hatchets and pruning-knives, and some twine hammocks in addition, Julian and his party started on their excursion, as they called it, Julian carrying on his back—greatly to old Cy's disturbance, but, then, old Cy couldn't carry everything himself—a bundle wrapped in moss, which he gayly declared they must save first in case of fire, for it was all their fortune.

"Bress yer heart, honey," said old Cy, where's dis yer fire gwine to be, onlest Mars' Dan knocks my pipe onto a cypress-tree? An' it's so damp in dese yer swamps, 'spect it'll put de pipe out anyhow."

They made their beds that night in the hammocks that they slung high in the boughs, and that Julian had brought along against the wishes of old Cy, who thought a bed of broken boughs fit for a king, snakes or not.

What a scene it was on which their eyes opened in the early morning! Cedars superb as the cedars of Lebanon, dropping great circles of shade, the huge live-oaks, trembling with webs and festoons of grey moss, that made sheets of diamonds as it swung in the sun, here and there a palm-tree, lifting its green crown in the clear air, and vistas into the rich verdure of the swamp beyond, gay with every color, and sweet with every scent of honeymoon suckle, vanilla, heliotrope, and great unknown flowers.

In and out the thickets flashed wings like jewels; scarlet flamingoes stood in the pools, the great white heron rose heavily, and little alligators, that looked as if they were living bronzes, crept up to sun themselves on the banks.

After they had finished their frugal breakfast, and rolled their hammocks in the smallest knot they could make, they pushed on after old Cyrus, who knew the paths and by-paths to everywhere, and they were only a week on their way, adding to their larder game brought down by their rifles before they came up from the swamp they had skirted, and found themselves on the hummock of Okemolkokee Everglade.

What a strange place it was, and what a wilderness of wealth it looked to Julian! It was a slight elevation, but a few feet in all above the swamp, and its rich lands had become a forest of the bitter wild orange, at present of no good to anybody, except in its season of bloom, when the rapturously delicious fragrance drifted for miles on the soft air.

"We will explore a mile or two to-day," said Julian, "and mark the trees we think best to keep, and thin out all the others, the first thing we do."

It was a busy day they had of it, and many a busy day that followed, while they let sun and air into the great thicket, and, as far as possible, saved trees in the regularity they would have had if set out in an orchard. Three or four times before they finished Cyrus left them and returned for provisions, the second time bringing his son Darius with him. And at last the wilderness was cleared, and every tree remaining in the first section had received the bud of the sweet orange, which had been the precious freight of Julian's moss-wrapped bundle.

"Now," said Julian, "while these are accommodating themselves to the new circumstances, we will go ahead and clear out next year's extension. I don't know exactly how long this hummock is, but in time I mean to get all the worthless growth cleared out of so much of it as belongs to father, if its ten miles, and every tree left grafted, and we'll have every sort of orange that grows; the blood-red Maltese, the spicy little Mandarin, and all the rest. This is better than standing behind counters or over desks, isn't it, Dan?"

"Heap sweeter work than picking cotton on the field honey," said old Cy.

What a day it was to the boys and the old servant when the whole orange forest, as far as eye could see, burst out in flower, with such a blossoming as would have wreathed all the brides of the earth with snowy sprays, and whose rich, rare odors one would think might have sailed over the seas themselves, and penetrated foreign countries with their sweetness.

"Now," said Julian, to his brother and confidante, "we want to be fit for what's coming. Don't let's waste any time. Dr. Yancey has books enough, and he'll tell us what to read, and we'll go and see him and begin to get an education." And so much of their plan as this they announced to the family.

"I'm sure I don't see what you can be thinking about," whimpered his sister Frarnie, "when we're all but starving."

But Rachel was the only one who took hold of the books with them, and labored along as near them as she cold follow; and before the year was out it was surprising how much those lads and the young girl had put into their memories. Twice a year Julian and Dan and old Cy and Darius went off on what their mother called their wicked and idle shooting, for which she didn't see why their father was willing to spare them old Cy. But the father kept the secret. They believed it would make the mother happy enough by-and-by.

Some years later, they set out early one morning for the orange hummock, the father having left a note for the mother, saying that he was going with the boys, and going to take Rachel.

Nobody enjoyed the whole enterprise more than Rachel, who was a helpful little body, and knew of countless methods of adding to their comfort on the way. Her own comfort was secured by the little donkey that Cy had borrowed of Dr. Yancey and on which she rode.

"You'll have to be a lot of use, Rachel, as soon as we get there," said Julian, "and so has Mr. Father."

But when she did get there, she found as romantic a little hut, made of orange boughs, with two rooms in it, too, that the boys had made for her the last time they were there, as one could have out of a fairy story; and long before she reached the place she could have found the way by the odors blowing toward her; and when, all at once, the orange-forest—not an orange-grove or plantation, but the orange-forest—burst upon her in full gorgeous fruit she could have cried with rapture, only she knew her father liked to have her staid and quiet. But she knew she had come to help them gather their fortune, and all hands began at once.

"We made a raft, you see, father," said Julian, "the last time we were here, too, and we can float it; and there is a raft tied up under the bushes there, and that will let us into the water ways to the St. John's. If we sell our oranges well, we'll have a better equipment next year. After that, patience, patience, father! When we've rafted down one lot we'll come back for the next. When those first old Spanish colonists, three hundred years ago, brought over a few orange shoots from Seville, do you believe it ever occurred to them that such a forest as this would find a place here?"

It was all as Julian said, and when they had finished their voyaging and sold the last orange, the boys went back with their father, and made their mother a visit, and stopped all her reproaches by telling her their story. Shortly after that, masons and carpenters and gardeners were at work upon the house and the grounds; and then the boys had taken servants and mules with them, and had gone back to the Okemolkokee hummock, and Rachel, with her mother's consent, had gone along, to keep the mildew off, Dan said, while they cleared out the hummock farther along, grafting new trees and tending old ones, and read their books at night, by the light of burning pitch-pine knots, before the little hut in the centre of their orange-trees, that seemed to bud and bloom as if they knew the work they were doing for the family that had two such sons and such a daughter as Rachel, in it.

It was a half-dozen years later, that I met at New Orleans a stately old gentleman, dressed faultlessly; on his arm was a pale and graceful lady, whose face, happy and smiling though it was, bore traces of old discontent and sorrow. There was a group of young people in the distance, busy over trunks and baskets and wraps,—Frarnie and Rebecca, and little Rachel, grown as tall and handsome as they; and their pert and pretty quadroon waiting maid; and James, who had grandly thrown up the place under Government, anxiety to keep which had once nearly worn his life out; and the two boys, who had forgotten there was such a thing as a shop-counter or an oyster-scow; and Darius, grinning like a masque and old Cy, hovering round Julian and Dandrigde as if they were the chief treasures of the family, and losing them one lost orange-groves and all.

"Yes," said the stately old gentleman, "yes, we are on the way to see the boys off to Europe, to give them the advantages of the best education. Splendid bys, sir—deserve the best there is, and I am able to give it to them, and they shall have it.

"Am I still in the cotton business? Oh, no; the cotton business left me with the war. I am largely interested in orange growing. My boys—fine young men—early turned their attention to the wild bitter orange on my waste lands, and thanks to them—I mean, thanks to Julian and Dandridge there—you will hardly believe it, but I receive more than ten thousand dollars a year clear profit from my orange groves."

The steamer bore away over the old Spanish main, to Gibraltar and Genoa, two promising young men, if young they might be called, when nearly thirty. Ten years had changed their fortune. The old hummock still blossoms and bears, and becomes a richer income yearly, and is likely to do so until "the boys" are old.—Youth's Companion.

Beecher on Gladstone.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher heard ex-Premier Gladstone speak at Liverpool, and writes his impressions of the great English leader for the New York World as follows:

Taking the address as a whole, and comparing it with the elaborate efforts of such an American as Daniel Webster, or with some of the old Greek orators, it could scarcely be said to have the form and finish that applies to many of the masterpieces of eloquence. Judging of its effect on myself, a stranger, a foreigner, one not well versed in the details which he discussed, I found myself, nevertheless, glowing with the sympathy of the audience and in full admiration of this remarkable man. Whatever may be the issue of the great question upon which he has expended his genius, which he regards as his last great life's work—the emancipation of Ireland—there can be no doubt that Gladstone is pre-eminently the central figure in the politics of Great Britain, and that he also is or has been a leading figure in the affairs of all Europe.

His versatility is proverbial. His knowledge of classical languages and of modern languages, which is not so profound or so minute as that of many other men, is, nevertheless, remarkable. There are few subjects which interest thinking men to-day about which he cannot wisely and instructively discourse. His memory is something prodigious. His command of material very striking; his accuracy in statement marvelous. He impresses one as a far-seeing and comprehensive statesman, void of the arts of politicians, in deep earnest and with strong moral convictions.

Mr. Gladstone seems to be a man, I should say, of about five feet ten inches in height. He is active, supple and erect; capable of enduring great fatigue, quite elastic in spirits, genial and social. His head is said to be a Websterian head, but in my judgment it will hardly bear that comparison. The lines upon his face are strong; his features are large, and, being nearly bald, the impression of the height of his foreheap is apt to be exaggerated. A strong nose, a mouth fine, but very firm, the chin only moderately full. Altogether a striking head and physiognomy.

I met him subsequently at his own dwelling in London at a breakfast. He was very simple and unpretentious in his manner; grave and very dignified, yet familiar. I cannot say that he is a good conversationalist, but he is an excellent talker. Although there were several gentleman present, pretty much all the discourse fell from his lips.

Mr. Gladstone has not escaped very bitter detraction. The hatred of him on some sides is intense and even malignant. Even his personal morality has not escaped virulent criticism. It is probable that no statesman for the last hundred years has been subjected to greater abuse and vindictive misrepresentations. To me he seemed like a great man seeking great ends and by very noble measures and from pure motives. Whatever may be the outcome of the present struggle, I think it beyond all controversy that when the rights of Ireland are acknowledged and established all men will see that the redeeming measures must be traced back to the wisdom of William E. Gladstone.

A Great Sea on Fire.

The shores of the Caspian abound in naphtha springs extending for miles under the sea, the imprisoned gases of this volatile substance often escaping from fissures in its bed and bubbling up in large volumes to the surface. This circumstance has given rise to the practice of "setting the sea on fire," which is thus described by a traveler:

"Hiring a steam-barge, we put out to sea, and, after a lengthy search, found at last a suitable spot. Our boat having moved round to windward a sailor threw a bundle of burning flax into the sea, when floods of light dispelled the surrounding darkness. No fireworks, no illuminations, are to be compared to the sight that presented itself to our gaze. It was as though the sea trembled convulsively amid thousands of shooting, dancing tongues of flame of prodigious size. Now they emerged from the water, now they disappeared. At one time they soared aloft and melted away; at another a gust of wind divided them into bright streaks of flame, the foaming, bubbling billows making music to the scene.

"In compliance with the wishes of some of the spectators our barge was steered toward the flames, and passed right through the midst of them, a somewhat dangerous experiment, as the barge was employed in the transport of naphtha, and was pretty well saturated with the fluid. However, we escaped without accident, and gazed for an hour longer on the unwonted spectacle of a sea on fire."

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Subject: "These Flying Years."

TEXT: "How Old Art Thou?"—Genesis xlvii., 8.

The Egyptian capital was the focus of the world's wealth. In ships and barges there had been brought from India, cinnamon and frankincense and ivory and diamonds. From the north, marble and iron. From Syria, silks and purples. From Greece, the finest horses in the world and the most brilliant chariots. From all parts of the earth, everything that could please the eye, or charm the ear, or gratify the taste. There were temples of flaming red sandstone entered by gateways guarded by pillars bewildering with hieroglyphics, and wound around by brazen serpents, and adorned with winged creatures, their eyes and beaks and pinions glittering with precious stones. There were marble pillars blooming into white flower beds. There were stone pillars, the top bursting into the shape of the lotos in full bloom. Along the avenues lined with sphinx and fane and obelisk, Princes rode in gorgeous palankins, or were drawn in vehicles by snow white horses golden bitted, six abreast, dashing at full run. There were fountains from stone-wreathed vases climbing the ladders of the sun. A bolt would above and a door of brass would open like a flash of the sun. There were the odors of gardens all around about the palaces—odors climbing the terraces, or dripping from the arbors, or burning their incense in the Egyptian noon. The floors of mosaic were written all over with the glories of Pharaoh, written in letters of porphyry and beryl and flame. There were ornaments twisted out of the wood of tamarisk embossed with silver breaking into foam. There were footstools made out of a single precious stone. There were chairs spotted with the sleek hide of leopards. There were beds fashioned out of a crouched lion in bronze. There were sofas footed with the claws of wild beasts and armed with the beak of birds. As on some summer day you stand on the level of the sea beach, and for miles in this direction and miles in that direction you see the foam of the breakers driven shoreward, so it seemed as if the sea of the world's pomp and wealth in that Egyptian capital were flung up in white breakers of temple and mausoleum and obelisk. It was to that splendid city, and to the finest building in that city, the palace of Pharaoh, that old Jacob, the shepherd farmer, came to find his son, Joseph, who had become Prime Minister and was living in one of the royal apartments. There Pharaoh and Jacob met. Dignity and rusticity. The gracefulness of the palace and the plain manners of the field. And Pharaoh, the King, to put the old countryman at ease, and noticing how white his beard was, and how feeble his limbs, looks familiarly in the face of the aged shepherd farmer and says: "How old art thou?"

Night before last, the gate of eternity opened to let in amid the throng of departed centuries the soul of the dying year. Under the twelfth stroke of the brazen hammer of the city clock the old patriarch fell dead. What a fortunate thing it is that we have this milestone on the road of life showing how far we are getting on toward the end of the journey, and this morning it is appropriate that I look into your faces as Pharaoh looked into the face of Jacob, and ask you the same question: "How old art thou?" People who are truthful about everything else will lie about their ages! So I will put no one of you under temptation. I want this morning to apply a higher test than the ordinary test. There is a right way and a wrong way of measuring a door, measuring a wall, measuring an arch, measuring a tower, and there is a right way and there is a wrong way of measuring our earthly existence. Therefore, with this higher meaning I approach you to-day, and with all the solemnity involved in the question I ask you: "How old art thou?" A great many people, I notice, measure their existence by worldly gratification. When Lord Dundas was wished a happy New Year, he replied: "I hope it will be a great deal happier than the old year, for I did not have one happy moment in all the twelve months." But that has not been the experience of most of us. The most of us found out that though this world is sin blasted, it is a bright and beautiful and glorious world. There is no war between the Gospel and merriment and festivity and innocent hilarity. I really think we do not thank God enough for worldly pleasures. Why do not you go back further in recounting your mercies? Why do not you go clear back to the time when you lay an infant in your mother's arms, looking up into the heaven of her smile? Why do not you go back to the time when you filled the house with uproar of boisterous merriment—to the time when with shout you pitched the ball on the play-ground, to the time, the cold, severe, winter night, when, muffled up to the chin, on the skates you shot out over the resounding ice of the pond? Were you ever a boy? Were you ever a girl? Have you thanked God for early blessings? Joy! joy! Joy! From those times to this, oh how many blessings have breathed up to us from the flowers, and shone down to us from the stars, and shouted to us with the voice of soaring bird, and tumbling cascade, and booming sea, and thunders with bayonets of fire charging down the mountain side. Joy! joy! joy! But while all this is true, how unwise that man who measures his life by worldly gratification. Life is not a game of chess, it is not the foam of an ale pitcher, it is not the dregs of a wine cup. It is not to be a scene of intoxication and roystering. I will tell you what life is. Life is the first step on a ladder that mounts into the skies, or the first step on a road that plunges into a horrible abyss. It is the keying up of a harp or it is the forging of a chain. Standing here to-day in the first Sabbath in the new year, mansions on one side and dungeons on the other, songs on one side and groans on the other, Heaven on one side and hell on the other, I put to you the tremendous question of my text: "How old art thou?" Toward what destiny art thou tending? How soon will you reach it?

But I notice a great many other people measure their earthly existence by their sorrows and their misfortunes. Through the life of many of you the plow has gone deep, turned up a terrific furrow. How you have been lied about, and maltreated, and slapped of impertinence and pounded of misfortune. In the brightest life there are shadows. In the smoothest road there are thorns. Upon the most beautiful brood the hawk pounces. John Milton, while he was losing his eyesight heard that Salmatos was glad of it. Pope, applauded for his poetry all the world over, was so annoyed at his stooping shoulders that in order to avoid the eyes of the public, he had a tunnel dug through which he walked day by day from garden to grotto and from grotto to garden. Sheridan, while his play was being enacted in Drury Lane Theatre, heard that his enemy, Cumberland, was growling at it in the stage box. Bishop Cooper's lexicon manuscript, the result of a lifetime's toil, is by a termagant wife thrown into the fire. Canno, the Spanish artist, was disgusted with the crucifix the priest handed him, because it was not a good specimen of sculpture. And sometimes through the taste, and sometimes through learned menace, and sometimes through the persecution of the world, and sometimes through physical distress, aye, in ten thousand ways, there come annoyances and sorrows and misfortunes and tragedies. But that is a very unwise man, that is a very unwise woman, who measures life by misfortune and trial, for where there is one stalk of nightshade there are fifty harebells and marigolds; where there is one cloud thunder-charged there are whole flocks of clouds straying across the hills of Heaven, all the glories of land and sea asleep in their bosom. Because you lose your child do you forget the five or ten or fifteen years when she came every night for a kiss, all the tones of your heart responding to the arrow of her voice or the touch of her soft hand. Because in the convulsion of a great panic your fortune went down, have you forgotten all the years in [illegible] which the comforts and the luxuries and the extravagances of life were showered on your pathway! Oh, that is an unwise man, that is an unfair man, that is an ungrateful man, that is an unphilosophic man, and more than all, that is an unchristian man who measures his life by loss and trial and rheumatic twinge and neuralgic thrust—by the things that went against him rather than by the things that went for him.

Again, I notice a great many people estimate their life by the amount of money they have made. A man tells me: "The year of 1866, or 1876, or 1886 was all wasted," I say, "Why?" He says: "I made no money." How is it, then, that you are here to-day, and clad and fed and sheltered? You had nothing at the hands of God, perhaps you tell me; you have no resources. Who clothed you? Who fed you? Who sheltered you? Certainly you did not steal these resources. Then God gave them to you. Be thankful. I have no sympathy with the cant and hypocrisy of people who in pulpit and pew talk against money as though it had no value. It is refinement, it is education, it is a thousand blessed surroundings, it is hands, it is feet, it is sails to great enterprises, it is the table spread to feed the hunger of your children, it is the fire to keep your family warm, it is the building of churches, the endowing of colleges, the taking of Bibles across the sea, under God it is the evangelization of nations—money put to right uses. The more a man gets the better, if it comes honestly and goes usefully. What would this world have been without the William E. Dodges, and the George Peabodys and the James Lenoxes, and men of that type? Who sent $75,000 to earthquake stricken Charleston? New York Chamber of Commerce. When breadstuffs were to be sent across the sea to Ireland, starving Ireland, we took up collections in all our churches, but the great mass of the money sent, the most of the breadstuffs were sent out by men of means. While we acknowledge the uses, the Christian uses, of money and have no sympathy with the insincerity or the cant that is always talked against rich men, as though they were not as good members of society as others, as though they were to be suspected—the complaint chiefly made by men who have not been successful against men who have been successful—while we have no sympathy with that thing, I tell you plainly a man is most unwise who measures this life by monetary achievements, and he will find out this mistake when the glittering stuff slips out of his hands as he goes out of the world without a dollar of money or a certificate of stock. He might better have been the Christian porter that opened his gate, or the Christian workman who heaved the coal into his cellar. "They that trust in their wealth and boast themselves in the multitude of their riches, none of them can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him that he should not see corruption. The wise men die, likewise the fool, and the brutish person perish and leave their wealth to others."

"Substantial comfort will not grow
In nature's barren soil;
All we can boast—till Christ we know,
Is vanity and toil."

Now, I am glad to say—turning a brighter leaf in my discourse—I am glad to say that there are a great many people who are wiser than those of whom I have spoken, and they are measuring their life by moral and spiritual development. It is not egotism for a man to say: "I am better than I used to be; my thoughts are purer; I live by the inspiration of higher motives; I have by the grace of God put down a great many of my evil habits; I am a better man now entering 1887 than when I entered 1877." It is no egotism for a soldier to say: "I understand more military tactics than when I first took up a musket and learned to present arms and when I was the pest of the drill officer." It is no egotism for a sailor to say: "I know more of voyaging on the sea and more of ratlines than I did when I first learned to clew down the mizzen topsail." It is no bad thing, no mean thing, no self-righteous thing for a Christian man to say: "I know more about the battles of the Lord or I can sail better the voyage of this life than when I first entered Christ's service." Why there are people here to-day who are mighty for God who once were very weak in the Christian life, but they have measured lances with many a foe and unhorsed it. They have grown swarthy hammering at the anvil of calamity. They have come upon a different platform from the one on which they stood years and years ago. They measure their life on earth by golden gated Sabbaths and Pentecostal prayer meetings and communion seasons and baptismal fonts and hallelujahs in the temple. Oh how changed is their life. They have stood on Mount Sinai and heard it thunder. They have stood on Mount Pisgah and looked over into the Promised Land. They have written over their life's troubles: "Life is but a moment." They are only waiting for the gates to open and the shackles to fall and the glory to begin.

Then I notice there are a great many people—I wish there were more of them—who are measuring their life by the amount of good they can do. John Bradford said he considered the day wasted in which he did not by pen or tongue accomplish some good. I cannot tell how much a man might accomplish if he devoted all his life to right purposes. I cannot tell. I have not the mathematical capacity, to make the calculation, of how many tears he could wipe away; of how many burdens he could lift; of how much ignorance he could illumine; of how many outcasts he could bring back to God. There are men who have gone their whole life in the right direction. All their faith, all their natural force, all their mental acumen, all their physical energy, all their enthusiasm of soul for God, and they climbed mountains, and they crossed seas and they trudged deserts and they dropped into martyr graves waiting for the resurrection of the just. They measured their lives by the chains they had broken, by the sorrow they had alleviated, by the garments with which they clothed nakedness, by the miles they journeyed to relieve suffering of any kind and of all kinds. That is the way they measured life. How long have they lived? "How old art thou?" How old was Sutter? How old was Richard Baxter? How old was Philip Dodridge? Why, in practical usefulness they have lived thousands of years. Add ten thousand times ten thousand more years and you cannot express the time they lived. Forever. Forever. Forever. Add all the immortalities, all the thousands of souls they brought to God, add up all the immortalities. Heaven to Heaven, throne to throne, glory to glory, and make the estimate. While that is so, there are persons in this house who have not yet begun life. We have got to be babes in Christ before we begin the Christian life. You say you are 50, or you are 60, or you are 70, or you are 80. My brother, if you are not a Christian, you have not begun to live. I do not know what your opportunities are; I do not know what your manners are, attractive or repulsive; I do not know what your education, elaborate or nothing at all; but I know there is a field for you to work, there is a soul for you to save, there is an especial mission for you to execute. If you have wealth, give it to Christ. If you have eloquence, use it where Paul and Wilberforce used theirs, on the side of Christ. If you have learning put it into the poor box of the world's suffering. But if you have neither wealth, nor eloquence, nor learning, you have a smile with which to encourage the disheartened, and you have a frown with which you can blast injustice, and you have a voice with which you can call sinners home to God. "Oh," says some one, "that's a very sanctimonious view of life. My brother, it is not; it is the only bright view of life, and it is the only bright view of death. I do not know how a man can exist in a moment like this—one year gone the other come, amid all the solemn suggestions that come to every thoughtful man and woman—I do not know how one an exist without trying to make some preparation for the great future and trying to offer some repentance for the past. You compare the death scene of those who have measured life by a worldly standard and the death scene of those who have measured life by a Christian standard. Quinn, the dying actor, said: "I hope this tragic scene will soon end. I hope to preserve my dignity to the last." Malherbes cried out to the confessor: "Hold your tongue, your miserable style puts me out of conceit of heaven." Lord Chesterfield, when he ought to have been praying for his soul, bothered himself about the proprieties of the sick room, saying: "Give Dayroles a chair." Geoffrey Knelter died while making a diagram for his own monument. Oh, compare such a silly and horrible getting out of life with the departure of Edward Payson, who said: "The breezes of heaven fan me. I float in a sea of glory!" Or, with Paul, as he said: "I and now ready to be offered and the time of my departure is at hand." He was looking up then through the aperture of his dungeon and the officers of the law were standing there looking down in the dungeon, and Paul said, when they asked him: "Are you ready; are you ready to go out on the road to Ostea and be beheaded; are you ready now?" And the old missionary, decrepit with exposure and hard work for God, looked up and said: "I am now ready; I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand; I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, and not only for me, but for all those that love His appearing." Perhaps just as grand a deathbed in your own home. Oh, the measurement of this life by the worldly standard and the measurement of this life by the Christian standard. It seems to me to-day is the time for me to begin to do better, and it is time for you, my brother, my sister, to begin to do better. The swift years have flown. The old year has gone, the new year has come, and for what purpose you and I have been launched on this other year God only knows. And I would like to ask you in this crisis of time, what is your preparation for eternity. You are not surprised at the man on the North River steamboat who, when a Christian man gave him a tract, was very indignant and tore it up and threw it into the river; but one word of that tract fell upon his coat-sleeve and he looked at it after the rest of the tract had flown, and it was that one word, that broad word, that high word, that deep word, that long word, "eternity!" "Call it back!" said a dying woman, "call it back!" "Why," they said, "what do you want to come back?" "Oh," she said, "call it back—time! time! call it back!" We may lose our fortunes and may gain them again. We may lose our health and have it restored again. We may lose our good name and by a life of virtue subsequently may restore our good name; but time gone is gone forever. Now, some people say they would like to go back again to boyhood and live their life over again; they would do so much better next time. I would not dare to go back to boyhood as I am afraid I would do worse than I have done. You, my brother, could not afford to go back to boyhood; you might do worse than you have done. But we cannot go back. The future is before us, and I congratulate you, oh, people of God, I congratulate you that another year has gone. What does it mean? It means nearer home; it means nearer our Father's house; it means that you are nearer the companionship of loved ones who have gone before. Why should you be sad about that? When I tell you that your face ought to be illumined with a great joy. Why how strange it is, this fact that we hang on to this world with so much avidity when there is a much brighter world ahead, and we ought to be glad that we have got nearer it. Why not go to the centre? Why stay clear out here on the rim of the universe? Why not glad we are going nearer to the centre? We study God here only by a Bible photograph. But you know that in five minutes of interview you get better acquainted with a friend than you could by fifty years of looking at a photograph; and the little babe that died last night, six months old, this moment knows more of God than all Andover, all Princeton, all Rochester, all Middletown and all Edinqurgh, all the theological institutions of earth. But here we want to stay on the outside, on the rim of this great universe, and when we get a little sick we are frightened, and we are alarmed about this accident and that accident, lest suddenly we be hurled into light and glory unutterable; and we go around asking what is good for rheumatism, and what is good for a bad cough, and what is good for this and that, and are fearfully alarmed, and when we get sick we call in the doctor in wild haste, lest we be rushed into a land where they are never sick, but have immortal health. And here we hold on to the circumference, afraid to go to the centre, while we look through the cracks and the keyholes of heaven, afraid the door of the mansion will be swung wide open and we will stand in the glory the infinite. Hanging on to the pauperism of sin and sorrow of this world and afraid that some time suddenly we will have presented to us an Emperor's palace surrounded by parks and beautiful paths on which the angels of God walk two and two. Would it not be awful if we were suddenly to get a crown, a throne and a triumph? Sorry another year has gone? Glad of it. Nearer the glory that God has provided for His people. We are like a group of people standing on the cold steps of the National Picture Gallery, London, under umbrellas in the rain, and you come along and say: "Why don't you go into the picture gallery?" They say: "We don't know whether we can get in." You say: "The door is open." "Yes," they say, "it is open, but we have been staying here a while and we have got so attached to these cold steps we propose to stay here." You say: "You ought to go in, it is so grand and beautiful inside." They say: "No, we know just how it is out here, and we don't know how it is in there." That is you and that is me. Clinging on to this life as though it were all: forgetful of the fact that the great picture gallery, the great throne room, the great grandeur and glory are all ahead. In the year 1815, the French thought in Ghent they would have a musical demonstration such as the world had never seen, and it was made up of the chime of bells and discharge of cannon. It was a grand and glorious success, nothing ever, perhaps, like it heard on earth. It was a triumphal march that has become a matter of history. When the cannon were fired and when the bells of all the churches and all the towers rang the effect was overwhelming. But grander will be the accompaniment of God's children when they go out of this world at the blast of the judgment trumpet, and when God shall call them home the bells of the churches and all the towers and all the light houses will chime, and the sound will be joined by the booming of bursting magazine and fortress and augmented by all the cathedral towers of Heaven. The harmonious celestial and the harmonious terrestial united in one great march fit to celebrate the ascent of a soul to where it shall shine as the stars forever and forever. With such considerations we may look back upon the flying years without a single regret, and with exultation forward to the time when the archangel, with one foot on the sea and the other on the land, shall swear by Him that liveth forever and ever that time shall be no longer.

MOCK TURTLE.

A little boy came home from the country in high glee because he had caught five small mudturtles. "Here, mother. Here you are!" he said, putting all the turtles in her lap. "Now we'll have some turtle soup, won't we?"

"My boy," said the mother, giving him a kiss to pay for his disappointment, "that kind of turtle won't make soup."

With a quiver on his lips he was turning away, when his face brightened as asked, "couldn't you make mock turtle of 'em, mother?"—Boston News.

NOT A LOVE MATCH.

"Was it a love match?"

"Not exactly. She lived next door, you know. Charles had dread somewhere that few women continue their piano-playing after marriage, and he concluded to trust to it. We didn't want to leave the neighborhood, you see, so Charles married her. Very good in him, wasn't it?"—[illegible]

CHILTON VIEW.

Published Every Thursday Morning.

CLANTON, ALA., JAN. 20, 1887.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One copy one year	$1.50
One copy six months	75
One copy four "	50

A good many New Year resolutions have already gone to the bad.

There is a great difference between unscrupulous speculators and true developers.

Hon. L. Q. C. Lamar, Secretary of the Interior, was recently married to Mrs. Wm. Holt, at Macon, Ga. They were old sweet hearts.

The Decatur Chemical Charcoal Company have purchased the Sam Jones tent that was at Nashville, and have it erected on their grounds for a workshop.

There is a call for a coast defence convention to be held at DeFuniak Springs, Fla., on the 9th of February. "In time of peace prepare for war."

A great deal can be said in favor of immigration that never has been said. The papers are not large enough to hold it all.—Advertiser.

That is just our fix. We have been thinking, for sometime, of "spreading ourselves" on this subject but cannot do so until our subscribers will pay up sufficiently to enable us to enlarge our paper.

It is high time Alabama, as well as other Southern States, do something to encourage and induce white farmers to seek homes and settle among us. Over 400,000 immigrants came to this country last year, but compartively few of them came South. The Northwest attracted them. The tide can be turned this way. The sooner the better.—Clayton Courier.

Let us have genuine and healthy business activity all over the state. Let every newspaper in the state "boom" as it is called, its town by constant reference to its advantages. Let legitimate transactions in real estate be chronicled, but for the good of Alabama let a warning note be issued against organised booms for purely speculative purposes.—Selma Times.

Cluverius the murder of Lillian Madison, was hanged in Richmond on the 14th inst. There is much speculation as to the doomed man's guilt, but in our humble opinion his sentence was a just one. All the evidence brought up and all the talent employed in his defence failed to keep the jury from returning a verdict of "guilty of murder in the first degree," within a few minutes after the close of the trial.

The wonderful popularity attained by Hood's Calendar last year, will be repeated by Hood's Household Calendar Almanac for 1887, just published. A happier combination of calendar and almanac, of beauty and utility, of art and advertising, has seldom been produced. The lovely child's head, lithographed in many delicate colors, will be welcome anywhere, while the pad is a wonder of condensed, useful information. Copies may be obtained of the druggists, or by sending six cents in stamps for one copy, or ten cents for two, to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Editorial Correspondence.

GREENSBORO, ALA., JAN. 19, 1887.

Greensboro, the county seat of Hale county, is a very pretty little city of the olden times. It has 2,000 people and controls an extensive trade of a rich agricultural section. The writer had not visited the place since during the Tilden and Hendricks campaign of 1876, when Houston was running for his second term. This campaign will always be memorable in the history of Hale county, as then it was the shackles of radical misrule were first thrown off under the white man's banner. It is well remembered how confident were the radicals of carrying the county with a whoop, and how they marched two or three thousand of their dusky followers through the streets of Greensboro to the sound of martial music with a vain hope of discouraging the gallant Democracy by the parade of their hordes. It was all for naught. The election was a signal victory for Democracy and reform.

Greensboro has the blues this year, on account of the short crops, and yet it is by one hundred per cent a better town than in 1876. It is no venture to say that it contains more newly painted residences to-day than any other place in the State of the same size. The patriotic denizens evidently have some faith in the theory of presenting a good appearance. Many of the old time palatial residences built in reign of King Cotton are as bright and cheerful to the beholder to-day as they could ever have been. There is very little if any delapidation to be seen in the town, and real estate commands a good price. Notwithstanding the Birmingham and Sheffield fever is at a high ebb through all this section. Nearly everybody is ready to sell at a fair price with a desire to invest in North Alabama. Many have done so and succeeded. But all cannot hope to succeed, and it may be "better to bear the ills we have than fly to those we know not of." This quotation expresses an individual opinion which is subject to revision in the light of larger knowledge.

Greensboro is the home of our young and progressive Governor. Hale county is proud of Gov. Seay and Alabama will be proud of him before he has filled his position long. Gov. Seay has his law office in a neatly painted brick building adjoining his handsome cottage residence. At present he is giving his entire attention to his duties as chief executive.

The Southern University under the control of the Alabama Conference of the M. E. Church is situated here. There are 150 students in attendance and the present is the most prosperous session in its history.

Greensboro has two excellent weekly newspapers. The fool who thinks that his local paper ought to publish just as much news as the New York Sun or the Philadelphia Times needs caring for. Though there may not be as much news in its columns, yet the local paper has a monoply as to local matters which the metropolitan daily can never intrude upon or compete with. The scribe paid a hurried visit to Bro. Yerby, of the Watchman, who, by the way is the finest looking country editor to be seen in a day's journey. He manages to keep fat in some indexplicable way, and publishes a good paper. He is not married, and that is how he accounts for the fact that he is forever and eternally happy. Col. John G. Harvey, the light of the Beacon office is still here "shedding his rays around" and pumping thunder into a large list of subscribers.

Having taken occasion to visit some of the fine farms in the vicinity of Greensboro, it may be interesting to your farmer readers to note impressions received. Here we are in the midst of the canebrake and black lands of the greatest cotton country in the world and even here it is demonstrated year in and year out that raising cotton don't pay; every body else who handles the staple makes money out of it except the poor fellow who does the work of raising it. So he will have to raise something else or go to the poor house. Have been looking into melon raising. It pays well here and is a surer crop than almost any other. For the benefit of those who may wish to know something on the subject the following is furnished. It was written out by a farmer here, Mr. S. H. Lawrence, who has a place half a mile from Hatch's depot on the C. S. & M. R. R., and about five miles from Greensboro. It is his own experience in his own words. He says: "In December, 1885, I selected a poor piece of hillside land about a quarter of an acre, white sand and to poor to make peas. Plowed it up broad cast early in December, and in February, 1886, I broke it up again in eight feet lands. Dug my holes 10x8 and to each hole put one bushel of well rotted stable manure covered the manure with dirt, and let it stand until the 15th of April when I began planting. I then took my hoe and mixed the manure up well with the soil or rather the sand, and leveled off the hills even with the ground. Then I put in about 12 seed to the hill, and after they were ready to work I plowed them with turn plow, bar side next to the hill. I let them stand about ten days and then went through with my hoe loosening up the soil and thinning them out to three in a hill. Let them stand ten days longer when they began to run; I then put in a 16 inch sweep and plowed them out and out. Did not do any more work except keeping the weeds pulled out until the vines were bearing, and I went around and clipped off the end of every vine or runner. I marketed over 800 good melons, some to weigh as much as 48 pounds. My vines continued to bear until late when I went through in August and put in some fresh seed among the old vines. Ate my last melon November 15th."

Mr. Lawrence sold his melon crop for $80, or 10 cents per melon. Now the same land would not have raised $10 worth of cotton, and the expense of raising the cotton would have been as great or greater than that of raising the melons. He says the expense of raising the melons was between $10 and $12. Can anybody doubt that our Chilton farmers could make money raising melons for the Birmingham, Nashville and Louisville markets? It should be tried by all means.

W. H. L.

Bro. Ike Takes a Trip.

This morning soon Bro. Ike came over and I heard him giving Mrs. Ming a detailed account of a visit he had just taken, but he said he must not let Sam hear a word, for, he said Sam would be telling it in the VIEW, but I overheard him and got the most of it. He went to Clanton first, and he said he was ashamed to let himself be known. He kinder went on the detective order. His first place to see was the VIEW office. And he said he was carried away. The office was kept so neatly, and everything was in such nice order. System prevailed throughout the whole office. He said he fell in love with the junior editor, he was so kind and polite. Said he was going to do his best to get everyman to take the VIEW. His next place was in the probate office. There he said he met that genial old Callens, who treated him with every respect due from a gentleman. And he said he wanted to look up some papers, and the Judge spared no pains in showing and giving him all the information he wanted. O, says he, Judge Callen is a star officer. He then went into the clerk's office and met that jovial Hugh, who always makes a man feel at home in his office.

The next place was the jail, he said it made him feel mighty solemn to look in there. It impressed me he says, with a kind of feeling that I should always try to be good. He says that jail reflects credit upon the judge and commissioners, if they were cursed for building it. After leaving Clanton Bro. Ike called at an old gentleman's to stay all night. The old lady came out, set her foot up in the crack of the fence, her elbow on her knee, and chin in hand, says she, Mister how you off fer "terbacker" my old man went to Strasburg "yestiday" and did'nt have but 10 cents and got a nickle's worth of coffee, and a nickle's worth of meat, and I "ain't got narry crum o' terbaco," and she says, "What ye think, weil sir that ar little Heath wanted to sell out to my ole man, cause he bot so much coffee and meat." "Well," she continued, "Mister I reckon its how you can stay but we uns is mighty poor." Bro. Ike "hit the grit." Before he got home that night he struck with the squire going to a negro wedding, and he turned about and went with him. He says he saw Clanton, saw the "terbacker" woman, and went to a "nigger" wedding. Next week he will continue his travels.

SAM MING.

Changes in the Revenue Laws.

The following are some of the most important chages made in the revenue laws which should be carefully noted by taxpayers and revenue officers:

1 Under the old law, exemptions abatement and deductions were allowed without conditions; as amended, the law now requires the taxpayer to return all his property, taxable and exempt, under oath to the tax assessor and unless he makes a return of all his property, under oath whether taxable or not, no exemption, deduction or abatement can be allowed him.

2 Poll tax now becomes delinquent on the 1st day of December whereas it heretofore became delinquent on the 1st day of November each year.

3 Section 11 of the old law has been amended so as to require the auditor to report to the governor any probate judge who fails to make his report of licenses within ten days after the expiration of any quarter; and if such probate judge fail to show cause for his failure to make his report and pay over the money received from licenses, the governor must direct the attorney-general to institute impeachment proceedings against him before the supreme court of the state.

4. The price of retail liquor license on steamboats or other water crafts or on dining room or buffet cars, is $250.00.

For retailers in places of less than one thousand inhabitants the price of the license is $125.00.

In places of more than one thousand and less than three thousand inhabitants, $175.00.

In places having from three to ten thousand inhabitants, $250.00.

In cities of more than ten thousand inhabitants, $300.00.

Dealers in lager beer exclusively are charged one fourth of the rates for retailers of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors.

5. Compounders and rectifiers are raised from $100 to $200 for a license to engage in that business. Distillers are also raised to $200.

* * * * * *

8. Sewing machine companies selling through consignees, are required to pay a license of $25 in each county.

9. Fortune tellers are required to pay a license of $25.

10. Drummers are required to pay the same price for license as heretofore, but contracts made by unlicensed drummers are void.

11. Dealers in pistols and cartridges are now required to pay a heavy license which will effectually close up the small dealers and also stop the sale of them by country merchants.

E. WALL. P. GIACOPAZZI.

WALL & GIACOPAZZI,

Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Commission Merchants,

Second Ave. and Twentieth St.

Birmingham, - - - Ala.

References: S. Oteri, New Orleans; Jos. Denunzio, Louisville; Buhr, Wendte & Co., Cincinnati; Underhill, Stewart & Shotta, N. Y.; Wm. D. Clarke & Co., New Orleans; Cowing & Clark, Cincinnati; A. G. Conant & Co., N. Y.; First National Bank, Birmingham, Ala.

H. H. BARCLIFT & CO.,

Wholesale and Retail Grocers,

No. 2118 2d Ave. Bet. Twenty-first and Twenty-Second Sts.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

☞ We solicit a share of the patronage of the merchants of Chilton County. Send us your orders.

"Hi Pompey! what you 'fraid of?
What makes you shake and shibber?"
"Law chile! ise got de ague
An got de tropic libber."
"De tropic libber Pompey?
I don't know what you means:
But you can cure your ague
By taking SMITH'S BILE BEANS.
Two bits a bottle, don't pay more!
You'll get dem at de drugman's store."

The most economical and best remedy for ague. 25 cents, per bottle.

The good effects of Ellis' P. P. P. on a debilitated person are felt at once, and a cure follows its use. If suffering from blood poison try a bottle. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Shiloh's Vitalizer is what you need for Constipation, loss of appetite, dizziness, and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle.

No family should be without Ellis' Magic Oil Liniment, the greatest external remedy known. It cures all aches and pains. Price 25 cents per bottle, at W. H. Phillips.

Sleepless nights made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by M. J. Greene Clanton. jan16y

Take one of Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pillets at night before you go to bed and you will be surprised how buoyant and vigorous you will feel the next day. Only 25 cents a vial.

NOTICE OF ESTRAY.

STATE OF ALABAMA,
CHILTON COUNTY. }

To all whom it may concern. Take notice that on the 7th day of January 1887 a certain black mule found estray was taken up by Jas. A. Mullins. The value of which animal has been duly appraised according to law by A. J. Hall and W. H. Foshee, summoned by W. E. Stewart, justice peace for said county, to be fifty dollars; with the following description: dark bay horse mule, under medium size, with long mane and tail and is about nine years old.

H. J. CALLEN,
Jan13-3t Judge of Probate.

NOTICE NO. 5650.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 19, 1887. }

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court, or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., March 8th, 1887, viz: Isaac M. Deason, Homestead, 11877, for the e ½ of the se ¼ and se ¼ of sw ¼, and sw ¼ of se ¼, sec 2, township 20 N, range 13 E. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said lands, viz: John H. Gray, Mac D. Gray, William I. Mullins and Joseph Popwell, all of Kincheon, Ala.

jan20 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

Election Notice.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA,
CHILTON COUNTY.

Under and by virtue of an order issued to me by the Hon. H. J. Callen, Judge of Probate for said county, notice is hereby given that there will be an election held in beat No. 7, at the places of voting in said beat, in the county of Chilton, on the 8th day of February, 1887, for the purpose of determining whether or not spiritous, vinous or malt liquors, shall be sold, given away or otherwise disposed of anywhere within the limits of said beat. Those voting against prohibition will write or print upon their tickets, "No Prohibition." Those voting for prohibition will write or print upon their tickets "Prohibition."

J. T. SMITHERMAN,
jan6 3in-3t Sheriff Chilton Co.
Printer's fee $6.00

Assessor's Notice.

SECOND ROUND.

I will attend the following named places and days for the purpose of assessing the taxes of Chilton county for the year 1887:

Thomas Robert's, Beat 8, Tuesday February 15th.
Stanton, Beat 8, Wednesday, Feb. 16th.
Dixie, " 8, Thursday, " 17th.
Howison, " 8, Friday, " 18th.
Latham's " 7, Monday " 21st.
Maplesville " 7, Tuesday " 22nd.
Benson " 3, Wednesday " 23rd.
Macedonia Church Beat 3, Thursday February 24th.
Providence Church, Beat 2, Friday February 25th.
Jemison, Beat 2, Saturday, Feb. 26th.
Jemison, " 2, Monday, " 28th.
Mullins " 1, Tuesday, March 1st.
Clanton " 4, Wednesday, " 2nd.
Clanton " 4, Thursday, " 3rd.
Cooper's " 5, Friday, " 4th.
Cooper's " 5, Saturday " 5th.
Verbena " 5, Monday, " 7th.
Verbena " 5, Tuesday, " 8th.
Kincheon " 6, Thursday, " 10th.

WM. A. SMITH,
jan20-3 Tax Assessor, C. C. A.

For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Sick Headache and a sensation of oppression and dullness in the head are very commonly produced by indigestion; morbid despondency, irritability and over-sensitiveness of the nerves may, in a majority of cases, be traced to the same cause. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm and Pillets will positively cure. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton. sep11 3

Administrator's Sale.

Under and by virtue of an order and decree of the honorable M. T. Porter, Judge of Probate for Jefferson county Ala., I will sell at public auction in front of the courthouse at Clanton in Chilton county Alabama on Monday the 24th day of January, 1887, at twelve o'clock M., all the following described personal and real estate belonging to the estate of N. H. Thornton deceased. to-wit: One sole leather trunk, one picture and frame, and one spring mattress. The north half of north east quarter, and the north east quarter of north west quarter of section seven township twenty-one and range fifteen. Also north east quarter of north east quarter of section twenty-eight, township twenty-two and range fourteen. Also lot No. 2, block 1, and the east half of lot 8 block 2, in the town of Clanton, on the west side of the South and North R. R., all in Chilton Co., Ala., with all the improvements thereon.

These lots are most desirably located in the thriving town of Clanton, county seat of Chilton Co., Ala., noted for its pure atmosphere and water and close proximity to the famous "Hot Well" which is still hot and will some day be to Alabama as Hot Springs is to Arkansas. The lands are also within a mile of the "Hot Well," of light loamy soil and lying well and most desirable for dairy and truck farming.

Terms of sale cash. I will show the property to any one calling on me at this place.

L. A. THORNTON,
Clanton, Ala., Administrator.
Jan'y 5th, 1887. 3in 3t

The date of the above sale has been changed to January 31st.

BANDMAN & CO.,

Wholesale Grocers,

P. O BOX 251,

1st Avenue, bet. 18th and 19th Streets,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

jan 13 6m

MARRIAGE GUIDE

260 PAGES. Illustrated, in Cloth and Gilt Binding, 50c. money or stamps. Same, paper cover, 25c. This Book contains ALL the curious, doubtful or inquisitive want to know. Full of very interesting and valuable information. HEALTH, BEAUTY and HAPPINESS are promoted by its advice—who may Marry, who not, why; Medical Aid, when necessary, brought home to you. 50 Wonderful PEN PICTURES, true to life. Young or old, married or single, sick or well, should read it. Sent sealed by DR. WHITTIER, St. Louis, Mo. CUT THIS OUT AND SEND WITH ORDER.

VOLINA CORDIAL

CURES

Dyspepsia, Indigestion
Weakness,
Chills and Fevers,
Malaria,

Liver Complaint, Kidney Troubles, Neuralgia and Rheumatism.

IT is invigorating and delightful to take, and of great value as a Medicine for Weak and Ailing Women and Children. It gives New Life to the whole System by Strengthening the Muscles, Toning and Invigorating the Nerves, and completely Digesting the food. contains no hurtful Minerals, is composed of carefully-selected Vegetable Medicines, combined skillfully, making a Safe and Pleasant Remedy.

VOLINA CORDIAL

A BOOK, "Volina," by leading physicians, telling how to treat diseases at Home, mailed, together with a set of Handsome Cards by new Heliotype process, on receipt of 10 cents.

For sale by all Druggists and Grocers. Should the dealer near you not keep VOLINA CORDIAL, remit $1.00, and a full-size bottle will be sent, charges paid. Prepared only by—

VOLINA DRUG AND CHEMICAL COMPANY, BALTIMORE, MD., U. S. A.

WINTER! SPRING!

During the Season of Winter MALARIA Lurks in the System!

COLLINS AGUE CURE

One Dose a day, taken three days in succession, each month, or when you feel badly in any way, will fully Cleanse your Blood, Remove all Bilious Secretions & Malarial Poison from your System, and Insure GOOD HEALTH IN THE SPRING. Price, Fifty Cents per Bottle.

If you are troubled with a COUGH, COLD, SORENESS in CHEST, or any Affection of Throat or Lungs, use DR. JACKSON'S Syrup LUNGWORT & WILDCHERRY Sold at 25 cts., 50 cts. and $1.00 a Bottle.

If your EYES are affected in any way, use Dr. JACKSON'S CELEBRATED INDIAN EYE SALVE. Sold Everywhere at 25 cents per Box.

Send for Collins Bros. "Twentieth Century Almanac" for 1887. Mailed to any address or at any Drug Store. COLLINS BROS. DRUG CO., St. Louis, Mo.

jun24-y

GREETING TO THE PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY:

E. ERSWELL,

19th STREET, BETWEEN FIRST AND SECOND AVENUE.

Birmingham, Ala.

BEGS TO ANNOUNCE THAT HE WOULD LIKE A SHARE OF YOUR PATRONAGE AND IS PREPARED TO SELL AS LOW AS ANY.

Mail orders solicited and satisfaction guaranteed. Telegraph orders promptly filled. Rooms carpeted to order. Decorating and House Furnishing a Specialty.

Largest Carpet Parlor in Alabama.

FINEST SELECTION OF FURNITURE IN THE SOUTH.

WINDOW SHADES OF NEWEST AND LATEST STYLES.

Heavy Stock of Picture Frames.

E. Erswell has the most complete stock of Carpets in Alabama Carpets, Oil Cloths, Linoleums, Mattings of all grades and in endless varieties. Office Furniture. Desks of all Styles. Book Cases in Walnut, Mahogany, &c., Wardrobe Settees, Side-Boards, Folding beds, Washstands, Extension Tables, In fact everything in the Furniture and Carpet line. Wall Papers of all Grades.

EVERYTHING GUARANTEED AND WARRANTED FIRST CLASS MATERIAL.

No shoddy goods, but genuine and honest work. Full line of Undertakers goods. Telegraph orders promptly attended to.

E. ERSWELL.

☞ Next Door to Opera House. P. O. Box 30. ☜

BAINS & HERRING.

(SUCCESSORS TO JONES & CO., JONES & BASS, W. A. COOK & CO.)

WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.

Mail and Express Orders Will Receive Prompt Attention.

FINE WINES AND LIQUORS A SPECIALTY.

1926 FIRST AVENUE, BETWEEN 19th and 20th STREETS,

Birmingham, Ala.

☞ Fine Stock of Chess Carley's Oils at Company's Prices. ☜

P. O. BOX 570. June 19 y

BEST GRADES OF MERCHANDISE

At JOHN GARNER'S, Clanton.

sep5-tf

J. C. HENDRICKS, Presd't. T. T. ASHFORD, Sec'y & Treas

Birmingham Paint, Glass and Wall Paper Co.

Successors to

MAYBERRY & ASHFORD.

Jobbers and Retailers of

Paints, Oils, Window Glass, Plate, Sky-Light and Colored Glass, Sash, Doors, Blinds and Moulding,

Painters' and Artists' Supplies.

WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES, and CURTAIN FIXTURES.

1912 Second Avenue, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

☞ Write for Samples of Wall Paper and Estimates on Glass. jun10

MINERAL CITY TIN AND STOVE HOUSE

SECOND AVENUE BETWEEN 18TH AND 19TH STREETS,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Pat Walsh, Manager.

A Large Line of HEATING and COOKING STOVES always on hand. All Kinds of

Tin, Sheet Iron Roofing and Job Work

DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.

☞ Orders by mail will receive prompt attention. nov 11

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH.

The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, many of them handsomely illustrated, and all are printed from good type upon good paper. Please examine the list and see if you do not find therein some that you would like to possess. In cloth-bound form these books would cost $1.00 each. Each book is complete in itself:

Anecdotes of the Rebellion. A collection of humorous, pathetic, and thrilling narratives of the war, stories of life and battle field, march and picket, adventures, escapes and spies, stories of prison life, [illegible] etc.
The Life of General U. S. Grant. By Wm. A. Peters. With portrait and other illustrations.
Poems, by John G. Whittier. The only cheap edition published [illegible]. Illustrated.
Poems, by Henry W. Longfellow. No one can afford to be without this fine collection. Illustrated.
Poems, by Alfred Tennyson. This work contains some of the most popular poems of the great Poet Laureate.
Parlor Amusements. A large collection of Acting Charades, Parlor Dramas, Shadow Pantomimes, Games, Puzzles, etc., for social gatherings, public and private entertainments and evenings at home. Illustrated.
Manual of Floriculture. Teaches the best method of propagating [illegible]. Illustrated.
Guide to Needlework, Knitting and Crochet. Containing designs and directions for all kinds of Fancy Needlework, [illegible] Lace Work, Knitting, Tatting, Crochet, Net Work. Illustrated.
Famous Detective Stories. A collection of thrilling narratives of detective experience, many of them written by actual members of the profession.
Yankee Wit and Humor. A collection of humorous stories, sketches, poems and paragraphs by the leading funny men of the American Press. Illustrated.
The Mystery of Blackwood Grange. A Novel. By Mrs. May Agnes Fleming.
The Evil Genius. A Novel. By M. T. Caldor.
The Story of a Storm. A Novel. By Mrs. Jane G. Austin.
Out of the Sea. A Novel. By Clara Augusta.
Agatha's History. A Novel. By Margaret Blount.
The Morwick Farm Mystery. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins. Illustrated.
The Last of the Ruthvens. A Novel. By Miss Mulock. Illustrated.
A Dead Heart. A Novel. By Author of "Dora Thorne."
Out of the Depths. A Novel. By Hugh Conway.
The Romantic Adventures of a Milkmaid. A Novel. By Thomas Hardy.
In the Holidays. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay.
The Heir to Ashley. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood.
Miss or Mrs? A Novel. By Wilkie Collins. Illustrated.
More Bitter than Death. A Novel. By the Author of "Dora Thorne."
Carriston's Gift. A Novel. By Hugh Conway. Illustrated.
The Fatal Lilies. A Novel. By Author of "Dora Thorne."
A Shadow on the Threshold. A Novel. By Mary C. Hay.
The Curse of Carew. A Novel. By author of "Dora Thorne."
The Blatchford Bequest. A Novel. By Hugh Conway. Illustrated.
A Queen Amongst Women. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."
The Fatal Marriage. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon.
A Tale of Sin. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood.
A Bridge of Love. A Novel. By "The Duchess."
A Passive Crime. A Novel. By author of "Dora Thorne."
Ingledew House. A Novel. By [illegible]
The Knightsbridge Mystery. A Novel. By Charles Reade. Illustrated.
Wedded and Parted. A Novel. By author of "Dora Thorne."
A Fortune Hunter. A Novel. By Annie Thomas. Illus.
Among the Ruins. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay. Illus.
Rose Lodge. A Novelette. By Mrs. Henry Wood.

☞ We will send any four of the above books by mail post-paid upon receipt of only Twelve Cents; any [illegible] 25 Cents; any [illegible] for 50 Cents; the entire list ([illegible] books) for 75 Cents; the entire list bound in boards with cloth back, for $1.25. These are the cheapest books ever published and guaranteed worth three times the money asked for them. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Postage stamps taken for fractions of a dollar. As to our reliability, we refer to any newspaper published in New York, likewise to the Commercial Agencies.

Special Offer! To every one sending for the entire list of books as above, we will send, without extra charge, either sixty cents' worth of the Imperial Flower [illegible] Patterns, to be selected by yourself from a catalogue which will be mailed you, or The People's [illegible], a large 16 page, 64 column illustrated literary paper, for one year. All orders filled by return mail. Address all letters:

F. M. LUPTON, Publisher, No. 5 Park Place, New York.

CHILTON VIEW.

CLANTON, ALA., JAN. 20, 1887.

THE VIEW is published every Thursday morning, and will endeavor to cover the field of reputable country journalism. It will show no quarter to the deceitful, the immoral or the ungodly. It will always be good natured, although it can bite if necessary.

Those answering advertisements will confer a favor by mentioning this paper.

COURT CALENDAR.

Chancery—Friday after the first Mondays in April and October.

Circuit—Fourth Monday in March, and fifth Monday after the fourth Monday in August.

Commissioners'—Regular term second Monday in February and August, and first Monday in April and November. Special term second Monday in July.

County—First Monday in each month.

SCHEDULE S. & N. ALA. RAILROAD. —Trains pass Clanton daily, as follows:

GOING SOUTH.
No. 1 at	5:45 a. m.
No. 3	5:43 p. m.
No. 7	3:00 p. m.
No. 51	60:5 a. m.

GOING NORTH.
No. 2	9:21 a. m.
No. 12	9:55 a. m.
No. 4	*9:13 p. m.
No. 50	6:45 p. m.

* Don't stop.

LOCAL DOTTINGS.

The building boom in Clanton continues.

See tax assessor's notice in another column.

Improvements are still going on in Clanton.

"Sam Ming" has an interesting letter in this issue.

Croup, Whooping cough and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. jun16 y

Mr. P. D. Wilson, of this place, is off on a prospecting trip.

We have had very changable weather during the past week.

Mr. W. H. Phillips, now has one of the prettiest places in town.

Dr. W. E. Stewart, has a new fence around his premises.

Newman's Southern Flower Cologne is the best. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Miss Mollie Hannon, of this place, visited friends in Birmingham this week.

Papers have been filed in the contest case for the probate judgeship of this county.

Notice change in the date of administrator's sale of the N. H. Thornton estate.

Mr. Danforth an old time citizen of Clanton has returned to make this his home again.

Catarrh cured, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal Injector free. For sale by M. J. Greene.

An elegant organ bran new and now in the factory can be purchased cheaply by applying at this office.

The senior editor, W. H. Lawrence, is trying farm life near Greensboro, in the hope of regainhis health.

Mrs. O. A. Duke, of this place, visited Jemison Sunday. Her daughter, Miss Anna Lou accompanied her.

We return thanks to our Congressman, Hon. Thos. W. Saddler, for a very valuable map of the United States.

Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures consumption. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton Ala.

Mr. J. R. Jones, of this place, sprained his ankle very badly several weeks ago and is just now able to go about on crutches.

The barber shop has been moved into the Willis Lowe building and is better fitted up than ever. Our barber should be well patronized.

Croup is a treacherous disease, and generally the most severe at night when unable to properly watch it. The best known remedy is Ellis' C. S. A. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Mr. J. E. Evans, has his new store house nearly completed and when finished it will be quite an improvement on the one he now occupies.

Mr. Tom Gullahorn has moved the old Methodist church building which he purchased, and we learn that the work on the new church will soon begin.

Life will acquire new zest, and cheerfulness will return, if you will impel your liver and kidneys to the performance of their functions Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm will stimulate them to healthful action. $1.00 per bottle. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

We knew the boom was coming this way. It has gotten already as near as Stanton, in the western part of the county, where large quantities of iron ore have been discovered. It will soon reach us, so be prepared for it.

Col. H. Hawkins, of Eufaula, the VIEW's candidate for Commissioner of Agriculture, accompanied by Mr. Cox, also of Eufaula, were in Clanton last Friday morning.

Rev. J. C. Armstrong, of Birmingham, preached a very able sermon in the Baptist church at this place Monday night. He will preach in the same church next Monday night.

We visited Strasburg Friday and found Mr. Heath still in posession of the mercantile business of that place, but learned that he would probably sell out this week to Mr. Swinford.

On last Sunday morning the Baptist Sunday school elected the following officers for the ensuing year: J. H. Chandler, Superintendent; J. M. Ponder, Assistant Superintendent; L. C. Day, Secretary and Treasurer; Mrs. J. C. Lawrence, Organist.

The Collin's Chappel farmer's club near Strasburg, held a meeting last Friday, at which they endorsed Col. Hiram Hawkins for Commissioner of Agriculture and passed resolutions to that effect which we will publish next week.

Mr. J. M. Dawson, who spent the day in Jemison Tuesday, reports a fire at Hand's mill, near that place, which consumed the blacksmith shop and one cottage. Another cottage occupied by a sister of Mr. Dawson, who was sick at the time, also caught on fire but was saved.

Mr. Kennely Williamson, who has been in Texas for many months past, had a very severe spell of sickness which made it necessary for his father to go out to Texas and bring him back to his home in Verbena. He is now convalescent and we hope to soon see his bright contenance in Clanton.

Married—In Chilton county, recently, Miss Rachael Wallace, of Six Mile, to Mr. Edins, of Chilton county. Miss Rachael is a daugher of Mr. Elizabeth Wallace, of this vicinity, and was teaching school in that community, when she married. We wish her much success and happiness in her future life.—Bibb Blade.

The alarm of fire was given Friday morning and the residence of Mr. John Garner, in West Clanton, was discovered to be on fire. By the timely action of Clanton's efficient fire company, which is composed of any of our citizens who happen to be on hand at the time, the fire was extinguished before any very great damage was done. We did not learn the exact extent of the damage done, but hear it was slight.

Cupid's Arrows

Are still getting in their work in these parts. On last Saturday Miss Emma Boykin and Mr. Wallace Glover, both of Pratt Saw Mill, near Verbena, this county, were married at West Point, Ga. Having gone there for that purpose only they returned as soon as the holy rites, making them one, were performed. Miss Emma was a Clanton girl at one time and had many admirers among our young men, who now feel sad over lost hopes. We wish the happy couple much joy.

The Yellow Pine Lumber Association,

Of which Mr. W. W. Wadsworth, is Pres., and Maj. J. M. Bivings, of Clanton, is Secretary, and which is composed of lumber men of nearly all the Southern states, held a meeting at the Exchange hotel in Montgomery last week, and decided to entertain a large party of excursionists from several of the Northern states who will visit Montgomery in February. The following we clip from the Montgomery Capital:

"It will be the biggest excursion that ever came into the state," said Maj. J. M. Bivings, of Clanton, speaking of the affair to the boom propeller of the Capital this morning. "Fully 500 lumber men from the states of Ohio, Wisconsin, Minesota, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Illinois will come and about 200 of their friends in other pursuits of commerce. With the wives and daughters of the gentlemen, the excursionists may make a total of 1,000 persons. They will be entertained while here, with excursions by river and rail to places adjacent to the city, and a grand banquet to be given at one of the hotels. The excursionists will probably arrive here on the morning of the 22d of February."

If you are suffering with weak or inflamed eyes, or granulated eyelids, you can be quickly cured by using Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve. 25 cents a box. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

OVER THE COUNTY.

News Gathered up by Our Correspondents.

Bivings, Duke & Co's Mills.

Mr. John C. Lawrence and wife spent a day at the Mills last week. Hope their visit was as much enjoyed by them as it was appreciated by their friends.

Mrs. L. C. McCants and family, who have been on a visit to Mrs. A. E. Bivings, have returned to their home in Birmingham much improved in health.

Miss Lucy Harrell, who has been quite sick in Birmingham is down spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. A. E. Bivings.

Maj. J. M. Bivings spent two days last week in Montgomery attending Court and the meeting of the Yellow Pine Lumber Association.

We have a flourishing school of thirty pupils under the management of Miss Mattie Smith, of Cross Keys, Ala.

Business is flourishing at the Mills and everybody is busy.

Lost, strayed or stolen, from the residence of Dr. A. E. Bivings, a colored woman answering to the name of Jane. No reward is offered.

Success to the VIEW.

OLD MAID.

One of the most pleasant as well as profitable trips we have taken in some time was on last Saturday, when accompanied by our better-half we sallied forth to visit the large saw mill of Bivings, Duke & Co., about 3½ miles from this place.

We found Maj. Bivings absent, he being in attendance upon court in Montgomery. We were very hospitably entertained by his excellent wife and charming daughter Miss Mamie.

Everything is life and bustle around the mill. This firm does the largest business of any of the Clanton mills.

The VIEW has a fine list of subscribers out there, and we found no trouble in getting them to renew their subscriptions for another year.

Mr. O. A. Duke, of this firm, is a saw mill man of large experience and is the patentee of the famous Duke Lumber Dryer.

We found Dr. Albert Bivings very enthusiastic over his fine hunting dogs.

Mr. Chas. K. Bivings makes things hum around the plainer with the help of some of our subscribers.

To our subscribers out there, who are too numerous to mention, we wish much success during the year and may their shadows never grow less.—Ed.

Lilly Dots.

We are having some fair weather at last and log rollings are all the go.

The farmers are starting about their crops sooner this year than we ever knew them. This tells better for the farming interest of our country. Little newgrounds dot the country here and there and new rails are to be seen scattered around.

News is scarce this week. There are no deaths, no marriages no fights, foot races or anything of the kind. Everything is quiet and moving on in peace in this part of the country.

We understand that Mr. John Baker, Jr., is the proud father of a bouncing baby boy.

The baby boy's a beauty, and is'nt he a size,
They say he's got his father's nose and his darling mammy's eyes.
Now Mrs. Baker she declares he's the image of his Ma,
While aunt Tabby she maintains that he's the picture of his Pa.

Of course they're going to celebrate this very great event;
They're going to have a big time, all the "invites" are sent.
And when the darling's christened we'll startle all the town;
We're going to name him Marcus Antonious Julius Ceasar Brown.

TITUS.

Take Notice.

It will be seen in this paper that my appointments for assessing the taxes for the year 1887, will close March the 10th. The law under section 33, page 33, Revenue Code, makes it my duty to increase the taxes of all tax payers who fail to make returns of their property for the assessment of taxes as the law requires, 50 per cent.

WM. A. SMITH,
Tax Assessor, C. C. A.

Clanton Grist Mill.

Messrs. Aldridge & Rutherford, proprietors of this mill, desire us to say to the public generally that they are now prepared, at all times, to grind corn into first class A1 meal, and they respectfully solicit the patronage of all who need their services and want nice fresh meal to eat. ja20tf

Mr. McGregor, who will be remembered by many of our readers as night operator at this place last winter, was in Clanton last week. We think one of Clanton's pretty girls is the attraction which draws him hither.

Subscribe for the VIEW, and get the county news.

MONTGOMERY FURNITURE COMPANY.

—DEALERS IN—

Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Looking Glasses, Lounges, Hall Racks, Wardrobes, Chairs, Safes, Side Boards, Cradles, Cribs, Baby Carriages, Spring Beds, Mattresses, Refrigerators, Pianos, Organs, Carpets,

And All Kinds of Furniture!

A. C. ROGERS, Manager,
sep2 y 210 Bibb Street, Wharton's Old Stand Next to McDonald's Opera House.

FURNITURE AND WALL PAPER FOR EVERYBODY!

OUR STOCK OF FURNITURE, WINDOW SHADES, LACE CURTAINS, WALL PAPER, SPRING BEDS, AND MATTRESSES IS NOW COMPLETE.

Anybody in need of the above articles will find it to their interest to look at our immense stock. We guarantee everything we sell, and sell it cheaper than anybody in this State.

SQUARE DEALING IS OUR MOTTO!

B. WOLFF & BRO., Montgomery.

sept 15-6 20 Commerce and Corner Court and Coosa Streets.

Ellis' Magic Liver Pills are safe for children, and are more effective than any other cathartic pill on the market. If not found satisfactory return and get your money. For sale by W. H. Phillips. aug26-y

Will you suffer with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

That hacking cough can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's cure. We guarantee it. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Money to Loan!

I am prepared to negotiate mortgage loans on farming lands in Chilton county in sums of three hundred dollars and upwards. Rates cheap and negotiations speedily concluded. Apply to or correspond with

H. L. WILLIAMS,
oct7 Att'y at Law, Wetumpka.

NOTICE NO. 5783.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 4, 1886.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver United States Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., on Febuary 19th, 1887, viz: Maria House, Homestead application No. 18475, for the s ½ of n e ¼ sec 28 t 20 n range 15 e. She names the following witnesses to prove her continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: John Ray, Monroe Gill, Stephen Price, Lewis Price, all of Verbena, Ala.

d30 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5884.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 28, 1886.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on Febuary, 5th 1887, viz: Nancy J. Norris, Homestead 12737 for the se ¼ of sec: 21, township 21, range 16 east. He names the following witness to prove his continuance residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Thos. Mims, William D. Goss, Harrison Kendrick and Clopton Ray, all of Verbena, Ala.

dec30 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5806.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery Ala., Dec. 13, 1886.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the Clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on January 22, 1887, viz: Sarah Mahan widow Archelis Q. Mahan, Homestead 9542 for the w ½ of of n w ¼ sec 8, township 20 n range 13 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Frank Fuller, Thomas R. Roberts, Robert M. Robuck, and John Chambers, all of Maplesville, Ala.

dec16 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

STOP AT

Morris Avenue Hotel,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Corner Morris Avenue and 20th Street

ELYTON LAND CO. BUILDING.

HUGH KIRKMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Splendid rooms, well ventilated and elegantly furnished. Rates reasonable.

FARMER'S TAKE NOTICE!

When You Come to Town to buy Goods, Call at

R. P. Wooley & Co.'s Cheap Cash Store!

Next to the Railroad on North side of Main Street, Clanton.

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

[sept6-tf]

This space is reserved by

A. J. BROOKS

AT VERBENA, ALA.,

FOR FUTURE ADVERTISING

☞WATCH IT.☜

JUST RECEIVED AT

S. E. HIRSCHER'S

21 Dexter Ave., Montgomery,

An endless variety of New Novelties in HOLIDAY GOODS, and placed before our patrons for inspection. You are cordially invited to call and see us. HEADQUARTERS FOR EVERYTHING IN THE MUSIC LINE. Agency world renowned

WEBER, DECKER BROS., STIEF and KRANICH & BACH PIANOS.

☞ Sold on Easy Terms. Prices the Lowest in the State. [nov 18 3]

SHAW & DAVIN,

Machinery & Mill Supplies,

—MORRIS AVENUE AND 22D STREET.—

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

ENGINES,
BOILERS,
SAW MILLS,
CORN MILLS,
SHINGLE MACHINES,
CORN MILLS,
SUGAR MILLS,

COTTON GINS,
COTTON PRESSES,
PULLEYS,
SHAFTING,
BELTING, and
MACHINISTS' SUPPLIES.

Largest Stock in the State.

Write for Circulars and Prices. P. O. Box 808. [July8]

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE.

CURES—Diphtheria, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Bleeding at the Lungs, Hoarseness, Influenza, Hacking Cough, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Chronic Diarrhoea, Kidney Troubles, and Spinal Diseases. Pamphlet free. Dr. I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass.

PARSONS' PILLS MAKE NEW, RICH BLOOD.

These pills were a wonderful discovery. No others like them in the world. Will positively cure or relieve all manner of disease. The information around each box is worth ten times the cost of a box of pills. Find out about them and you will always be thankful. One pill a dose. Illustrated pamphlet free. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25c. in stamps. Dr. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., 22 C. H. St., Boston.

MAKE HENS LAY

Sheridan's Condition Powder is absolutely pure and highly concentrated. One ounce is worth a pound of any other kind. It is strictly a medicine to be given with food.

Nothing on earth will make hens lay like it. It cures chicken cholera and all diseases of hens. Is worth its weight in gold. Illustrated book by mail free.

Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. [illegible] by mail, $1.20. Six cans by express, prepaid, for $5.00. Dr. I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston.

BRICK WORK

J. M. DAWSON,

CLANTON, ALA.

Is prepared to do all kinds of brick work in the best style. The patronage of the public solicited.

feb15-tf]

A. W. KEY & CO.,

Manufacturers' State Agents for

Engines, Saw Mills,

BOILERS,

—AND—

General Machinery.

P. O. Box 741,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Nabers & Morrow,

Wholesale Druggists,

FIRST AVENUE,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

MEDICINES,

Fine Wines, Liquors, Oils, Etc.

☞ Agents for Chess Carley & Co.'s Oils. [june 10]

J. M. Hutchason's

BOARDING, LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLES.

Select Dray and Plantation Mules constantly on hand.

Draying and Hauling Promptly Attended to

Always ready to take Contracts for filling in Dirt

Moving Stone, Engines, Boilers, Machinery and other heavy hauling.

RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS AND DAMAGE.

Satisfaction Guaranteed. Handsome Carriages and Double Teams, with or without Drivers.

☞MONTGOMERY STABLES,☜

Lawrence Street, Opp. P. O.,

Telephone 446. jan1y

Life Size Photographs a Specialty.

TRESSLAR,

Artistic Photographer

10 COURT SQUARE,

Montgomery.

All Sittings made Instantaneously. Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged.

[jan21-tf]

A FINE

FLORIDA TONIC!

—:o:—

MR. FOSTER S. CHAPMAN,

One of the landmarks of the Georgia Drug trade, now of Orlando, Florida, writes:

"I can hardly select a single case of the many to whom I have sold "Guinn's Pioneer Blood Renewer," but what have been satisfied, and I find it the best remedy for all skin diseases I have ever sold, and a Fine Florida Tonic.

FOSTER S. CHAPMAN,
Orlando, Florida.

A Certain Cure for Catarrh!

A SUPERB

FLESH PRODUCER & TONIC!

Guinn's Pioneer Blood Renewer

Cures all Blood and Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Scrofula, Old Sores. A perfect Spring Medicine.

If not in your market it will be forwarded on receipt of price. Small bottles $1.00, large $1.75.

Essay on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free.

MACON MEDICINE COMPANY
may13-y] Macon, Ga.

Clanton Barber Shop

—BY—

MEREDITH CANN,

Who is prepared to do all work in the tonsorial line. Hair dressing and shaving in the best style. Prices low.

SMITH'S BILE BEANS

CURE Biliousness; Sick Headache in Four hours. One dose relieves Neuralgia. They cure and prevent Chills & Fever, Sour Stomach & Bad Breath. Clear the Skin, Tone the Nerves, and give Life & Vigor to the system. Dose: ONE BEAN. Try them once and you will never be without them. Price, 25 cents per bottle. Sold by Druggists and Medicine Dealers generally. Sent on receipt of price in stamps, postpaid, to any address.

J. F. SMITH & CO.,

Manufacturers of "Bile Beans." ST. LOUIS, MO.

[illegible]

Thompson, Francis & Chenoweth,
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA,
—DEALERS IN—
HARDWARE,
Sash, Doors and Blinds, Paints, Oils and Glass, Cement and Plaster, Mantels and Grates, and a complete line of Cooking and Heating Stoves.

SOUTHERN BUSINESS COLLEGE.
No. 407½ W. Jefferson St., Next Door below Masonic Temple.
Louisville, - - - Kentucky.
NO TEXT BOOKS USED.
Book-Keeping, Penmanship, Commercial Arithmetic, Short Hand, Type Writing, &c.

We guarantee to teach more real, practical Book-keeping, Commercial or Business Calculations, more practical ideas about business in general in two to four months than any other Business College in this section can in twelve months.

We teach forms of book-keeping (actual forms used in business) not taught in any other Business College in this section.

No Scholar Has Ever Completed Our Entire Course and Left us Dissatisfied.
For Circulars call at College or address,
BEN. C. WEAVER, Principal.

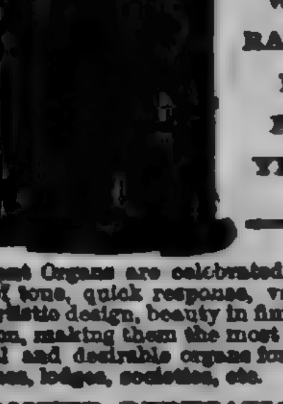
NEW GOODS! NEW GOODS!
B. WELLMAN'S
"LOUISVILLE CLOTHING HOUSE"
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.
—DEALER IN—
Fine Clothing and Gent's Furnishing Goods
Bottom Prices at Last!

"The best Goods for the Least Money," is the motto of this house, and I am now selling an Immense Stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS the Lowest Cash Prices.

BLOOM,
The Tailor, of Montgomery, Alabama,
—DOES—
Dyeing, Scouring, Cleaning and Repairing
Of Gents' and Ladies' garments of all colors.
Orders by Mail or Express will receive prompt attention.
Prices to suit the times. Work Guaranteed.
No. 5 Court Street, Upstairs, - - Opposite Dollar Store.
sep14 '86-1y

BRYANT AND STRATTON. THE LOUISVILLE BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Cor. Third & Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.
BOOK-KEEPING, BANKING, PENMANSHIP, SHORT-HAND, TYPE-WRITING, ARITHMETIC, &c.
No Text Books or Manuscripts copied and recopied by students. Has the largest honest indorsement as to true merit. Graduates have no trouble in obtaining situations.
HOME STUDY. Instruction given by mail. Improve your spare hours and obtain a practical education.
ADDRESS COLLEGE AS ABOVE.
[mar18-1y

THE
CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN
Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.
It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.



OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.
EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.
These excellent Organs are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty in finish, perfect construction, making them the most attractive, ornamental and desirable organs for homes, schools, churches, lodges, societies, etc.
ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,
UNEQUALED FACILITIES,
SKILLED WORKMEN,
BEST MATERIAL,
COMBINED, MAKE THIS
THE POPULAR ORGAN
Instruction Books and Piano Stools.
Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, Free.
The Chicago Cottage Organ Co.
Corner Randolph and Ann Streets,
CHICAGO, ILL.

HEADACHE
and [illegible] are relieved by taking
WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS
Purely Vegetable; No Griping. Price 25c. All Druggists.

L&N
(LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.)
THE GREAT
Through Trunk Line
Between the Cities of CINCINNATI, LEXINGTON, LOUISVILLE, EVANSVILLE, ST. LOUIS,
And the Cities of N. ORLEANS, MOBILE, and MONTGOM'Y, MEMPHIS, NASHVILLE,
Without Change and with Speed Unrivaled
SHORTEST AND QUICKEST ROUTE
From New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery, to
NORTH, EAST & WEST
PULLMAN CARS Without change to Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, with but one change to all
NORTHERN AND EASTERN CITIES.
THROUGH COACHES
From Chattanooga and Nashville to St. Louis, connecting direct for Cities in the Northwest.
EMIGRANTS Seeking homes on the line of this road will receive special low rates.
See Agents of this Company for rates, routes &c., or write C. P. ATMORE, G. P. & T. A. Louisville, Ky.
jan28-6m

A COMPLETE STOCK of Fancy Stationery, and everything usually kept in a Stationery Establishment, is ALWAYS ON HAND
and For Sale at City Prices at the VIEW
STATIONERY STAND.

AGRICULTURAL.

TOPICS OF INTEREST RELATIVE TO FARM AND GARDEN.

Fattening Hogs.

It is the part of a good farmer to conduct all his operations on the best and least expensive plan. His chief profits arise from doing things at the right time, in the best manner, and with the least possible expense. In nothing does this show itself more plainly than in fattening of hogs.

The most important point in this direction is to begin so early in the fall that his hogs will be ready for the knife as soon as the weather is cold enough for salting and curing pork—it being a well-established fact that hogs will fatten faster and on less food when the weather is mild than when it is excessively cold. As a striking example of this, from an experiment made last fall at the Wisconsin Experimental Farm, it was found that a lot of hogs weighed and shut up to fatten on the tenth day of October, and weighed again on the twenty-third day of November, just forty-four days, had gained ten pounds each for every bushel of corn each had eaten. They were again weighed just forty-four days thereafter, when it was found that they had only gained four pounds each for every bushel of corn each had eaten, thus going to show that a hog will gain more than double as much on the same amount of food when the weather is mild as it will when the weather is intensely cold. In this respect the animal system is like a stove the colder the weather the more fuel (food) it requires to keep up the internal heat, for let the weather be as cold as it will, the temperature of the body must be kept up to the normal point of ninety-eight degrees, and if the food is not more than sufficient to supply this, there will be none to go to the formation of fat—hence the colder the weather the larger the consumption of food. A barrel of corn in the latter part of October and first half of November, as shown above, will go as far and put on as much fat as will two barrels in December and January, because it requires but half as much to keep up the animal heat. In other words, the loss of heat from the animal's body is then small, and therefore the less food is required to keep it up.

For fattening purposes there is nothing so good as corn, as it is richer in oily matter than any other cereal or vegetable substance used for the purpose. A plenty of charcoal during the time is also especially useful, in that it corrects the acidity to which the stomach of a hog is so subject when fed exclusively on corn.

Complete quietude is also a matter of the first importance, as it is well known that an animal in confinement will fatten much faster than one whose liberty is not so restricted as to prevent him from taking too much physical exercise. Muscular exertion increases respiration and accelerates the flow of blood, which, as it passes through the lungs, becomes charged with atmospheric oxygen, and which latter introduced more freely burns out the fat. Hence it is that in confinement as soon as a hog begins to fatten the less inclined he is for physical exercise, and consequently accumulates fat the faster. In other words, the faster he grows the more sluggish he becomes and the more rapidly he take on fat.—Baltimore Sun.

Farm and Garden Notes.

A cow that wastes much of her time fighting flies will do very little work at the pail.

There is nothing so attractive and ornamental as a well-kept hedge, and it adds to the value of the farm.

A good poultry house may be built of tarred felt, and will assist in keeping off vermin. Whitewashing it improves its appearance.

Warm and cold milk should not be mixed. The new milk should be rid of its animal heat before adding it to that of previous milkings.

One of the greatest drawbacks that new beginners in poultry raising have is the desire to crowd fifty fowls into the space that half that number should occupy.

It is now generally believed that a solution of copperas is the best remedy known for grape rot. It is sprinkled freely on the ground around the vines and on the leaves.

Save all worthless heads of cabbage and the waste leaves for the cows. They will appreciate and eat them greedily and materially increase their flow of milk as a result of the extra feed.

An exchange recommends feeding young pigs with equal parts of meal, ground oats and shorts; one quart of the mixture in a bucket of skim milk, allow them all they can drink of it three or four times daily.

Milking should be done rapidly and thoroughly; if any milk is left in the udder the secretion will be checked to some extent, and within reasonable limits; the more that is taken away the greater the secretion.

Lime water is recommended to destroy earth worms in the soil of flower pots. By lime water is meant water containing all the lime it will hold in solution. After slaking lime in water it is allowed to settle, and then the clear liquid is poured off. This is lime water. The soil of the plant can be saturated with it by pouring it on or by immersing the pot in it for a time. This operation will destroy earthworms or compel them to escape.

Some varieties of sweet apples are such abundant bearers that the trees are worth keeping if the fruit can only be used for feed. There is a good deal of nutriment in sweet apples and they are relished by every kind of stock. Given in moderation and with other feed they are good for everything. It is because cows, if allowed their run in an orchard, will gorge and thus injure themselves, that apples have the reputation of drying up cow's milk.

W. S. Chapin, Montgomery county, Missouri, says the best way to manage sunflowers is to go over the patch and bend over the heads of all which are nearly ripe—don't let them get fully ripe or they will scatter their seeds badly—and when the seed has hardened, cut off the heads with a few inches of stalk attached; string on wire or heavy cord, and put away in an airy loft in the barn to become thoroughly seasoned. We know of no machine to take out the seed. Our method is to pound the heads on the floor to remove the seed, and then run the seed through the fanning mill to clean out the chaff, when you can store it in a bin or granary. Rats and mice, as well as poultry, are fond of this seed.

Most window plants will do well in the west window if the conditions are right for them, but north windows are not favorable for the growth of ordinary house plants. Ferns and many kinds of plants cultivated for their foliage will, however, succeed in north windows. Many kinds of flowering plants that have been raised elsewhere and have been brought to the blooming stage will then flower freely standing in windows with a north aspect. Among such plants may be mentioned hyacinth, tulip, rose, fuchsia, pelargonium, camellia, calla, Chinese primrose, cineraria, azalea, orange, &c. Of course greater success is attained with east and south windows but where this is impracticable, the above hints may be of value.

Hunting the Antelope.

A Fort Keogh (Montana) letter to the Philadelphia Times says: When a band of antelopes scent or see you they run across the wind for about 900 or 1,000 yards, and then turn and run straight up the wind. The species are victims of intense curiosity, and at times have walked straight into death-traps, all the while knowing and scenting danger, yet so unbounded is their curiosity to investigate strange and unusual objects that they are unable to withstand the temptation to look a little deeper and satisfy this truly feminine instinct. A hunter in full knowledge of this failing either flags them or sticks weeds into his hat while crawling. So long as not seen and particularly not understood, they will not run, but merely bound a few steps at a time, then halt, or else run around the strange object in a circle. Even if scented, though not seen, antelopes will want to know more about you and the object of your visit before taking to their heels. An excellent time to hunt them is just before sunset and when about to seek cover or a bed. Get to the leeward and between them and the sun when the latter is about to drop behind the hills; then walk slowly toward the game with as little motion as possible. Unless scented there is little danger of a disturbance or of flight, for this particular animal, gifted with such keen eyesight, cannot see anything that is between them and the sun. I have often approached to within 100 yards of a band by adopting the tactics named, Buffalo will also pass to the windward, like their cousins of the antelope family, but they will stand no such foolishness as sun blindness. A red flannel shirt is extremely fascinating to the antelope; also a red handkerchief or anything else of a crimson hue. As a rule these animals browse in small bands of fifty or sixty, and if in large numbers among the foothills, on the open prairie, or elsewhere, a close examination will discover them to be congregated into smaller groups of four or five dozen, who, amid the multitude, keep closely herded among themselves. They are neat, clean cut, handsome, and as dainty as a lady in their diet, feeding as they do on the tenderest stalks of grass and the delightful prairie clover. Astonishing as it may seem, a crippled animal is, or appears to be, the fleetest of them all, as he generally takes the lead, the whole band following whither he goes.

Fiddle Bows.

The bow of a violin would not at first glance seem a very costly part of the paraphernalia of that instrument. Yet an amateur friend of mine has half a dozen of them that represent an investment of over three hundred dollars. They are all of foreign make, and bear the names of Vuillaume, Tourte, Bausch and several other makers who have escaped me. From their owner's statement there is an aristocracy of fiddle bows as well as fiddles and fiddlers. The chief requirements in a bow is good wood. The ornaments, which are in silver, are another item of expense in their manufacture. A first-class Vuillaume bow costs in this city from $50 to $75 and even a $100. A violoncello bow by the same maker costs from $30 to $50. Brazil wood or Pernambuco wood are the sticks usually employed, ebony and ivory being used in the finish as well as metals. The finest bows are always the plainest. Native made bows, an instrument man tells me, can be had from ten cents up, and very good ones are to be procured for a couple of dollars. In a quiet street uptown I recently saw a trim looking young man shaping a fiddle bow at the window of a snug little cottage. He informed me that he worked entirely to order, and gave me the names of a number of prominent amateur and professional violinists and teachers who are his patrons. He is always well ahead with orders. A few years ago he was a journeyman in a factory. Being of an ingenious turn he worked at home and turned out a number of bows that were of a far superior order to any manufactured at the bench. He found a ready sale for these among the instrument dealers, and having saved enough money to start himself he abandoned the factory forever.

"I can make as good a bow as Vuillaume," said he, proudly, "if any one will order it of me. But people who can afford $50 or more for a bow believe they can't be got here. My customers pay me from $10 to $20 for a bow. I could run a house full of journeymen on $5 bows and make money. But I am satisfied to keep at the higher-priced bows and make less. I expect to see the time when I can get as much for a stick as any maker in the world, and the only way I can get there is by doing only the best work and improving it wherever I can."—New York News.

How Coreans Wear Their Hair.

A letter from Corea to the New York Post says: If there is any feature which points to the common origin of the Chinese, the Coreans, the Japanese, and our own North American Indians, it is not the one usually pointed out—the high cheekbones—so much as their long, straight, black hair. The Coreans here, too, are midway between the Japs and Chinese in the way of wearing the hair. The Japanese have their hair cut short—not so short as we Americans perhaps, but still they do not wear the cue. The Chinese, as is well known, shave all the head except the cue-lock, and wear that as long as it will grow in a braid down the back. (By the way, has any one pointed out the fact that the North American Indians shave all but the scalp-lock, and that this may point to a connection in origin between them and the Celestials?) The Corean neither cuts nor shaves off his hair, but wears all his heavy, black, straight locks in a braid down his back until he is engaged to be married, and then it is dressed into a knot which looks like a little horn on the top of the head, while around the head a hair cap with no crown is pressed down over the forehead. The last is a painful affair at first, and when it is removed for the purpose of dressing the hair it leaves a permanent crease an eighth of an inch in depth. The pain at first must be extreme, but they say that all feeling of inconvenience is soon lost.

The Californian Sheep.

Californian wool always reminds me of the time when the gold diggings were first discovered in California. At Oxford it used to be the custom at Christmas time for the butchers to exhibit the prize sheep which they had bred and purchased. One butcher procured a very fine sheep, dyed its wool purple, gilded its hoofs, and exhibited it as a California sheep. It seems hardly credible, but numbers of persons went away in the firm belief that all California sheep had purple wool and golden hoofs.—Longman's Magazine.

A HORRIBLE MURDER.

A White Woman Killed by Negroes to Sell the Body for Dissection.

BALTIMORE, Md.—About 6 o'clock Friday evening a negro man brought to the Maryland University on Lombard street the body of a white woman and left it with Anderson Perry, the colored janitor, saying he would call again for the $15, the price agreed upon. The body was taken to be prepared for keeping until needed for dissection, but it was found that the head was terribly crushed and that there were two wounds in the left breast, and the police were notified. Yesterday a post mortem examination of the body was made, and the physicians stated positively that the wounds were made after death, leaving the inference that it was simply a case of body snatching and that the work had been done by a novice.

The body was identified as that of Emily Brown, sixty years of age, who for the past six months had been boarding with a colored family in the western part of the city. She was of dissipated habits, and lived on what she could beg. She was at her home three hours before her body was brought to the university, and it is now evident that she was murdered for the price her body would bring for use on the dissecting table. Perry, the janitor who received the body, denies that he ever saw the woman, but he is known to have been a boarder at the same house and to have eaten breakfast with her on the morning of her murder. He was arrested as accessory for the crime.

John Ross and Albert Hawkins, both colored, were arrested and confessed to have killed the woman at the instigation of Janitor Perry. They followed her to her room, and Ross smashed her head with a brick while Hawkins held her and stabbed her through the heart with a knife. They then carried the body to the university in a bag furnished by Perry, who received it and shaved the head to make identification difficult. The blood-stained clothing was thrown into a tub of water. Ross also boarded in the house with the unfortunate woman. The price to be obtained for the body was the sole object of the murder.

Fine Music.

"Do send that organ-grinder away. His music is horrible."

"I don't think so. I consider it fine music."

"Fine!"

Decidedly so. How could it be otherwise, when it's ground so much!"

A Chance for Health
Is afforded those fast sinking into a condition of hopeless debility. The means are at hand. In the form of a genial medicinal cordial, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters embodies the combined qualities of a blood fertilizer and depurent, a tonic and an alterative. While it promotes digestion and assimilation, and stimulates appetite, has the further effect of purifying the life current and strengthening the nervous system. As the blood grows richer and purer by its use, they who resort to this sterling medicinal agent, acquire not only vigor, but bodily substance. A healthful change in the secretions is effected by it, and that sure and rapid physical decay, which a chronic obstruction of the functions of the system produce, is arrested. The prime causes of disease being removed, health is speedily renovated and vigor restored.

A spring mattress like a spring chicken, is in season all the year round.

Another Life Saved.
About two years ago a prominent citizen of Chicago was told by his physicians that he must die. They said his system was so debilitated that there was nothing left to build on. He made up his mind to try a "new departure." He got some of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" and took it according to directions. He began to improve at once. He kept up the treatment for some months, and is to-day a well man. He says the "Discovery" saved his life.

The Private Secretary is the person who makes everything public.

"Consumption Can be Cured."
Dr. J. S. COMBS, Owensville, Ohio, says: "I have given SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites to four patients with better results than seemed possible with any remedy. All were hereditary cases of Lung disease, and advanced to that stage when Coughs, pain in the chest, frequent breathing, frequent pulse, fever and Emanciation. All these cases have increased in weight from 16 to 28 lbs., and are not now needing any medicine."

When love is blind, marriage is a successful oculist.

We ought not to be too anxious to encourage untried innovation, in cases of doubtful improvement. For a quarter of a century Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy has been before the public and passed through the severest test, and is pronounced the most reliable remedy for that disagreeable malady. Thousands of testimonials of its virtues. 50 cents per bottle. By druggists.

An equivical expression for a bald-headed man—Plenty of room at the top.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.
Send for Pamphlet on Female Diseases, free, securely sealed. Dr. J. B. Marchisi, Utica, N.Y.

Bronchitis is cured by frequent small doses of Piso's Cure for Consumption.

TIRED OUT!
At this season nearly every one needs to use some sort of tonic. IRON enters into almost every physician's prescription for those who need building up.
BROWN'S IRON BITTERS—THE BEST TONIC
Trade Mark. QUALITY P PURITY NOT QUANTITY. On Every Bottle.
For Weakness, Lassitude, Lack of Energy, etc., it HAS NO EQUAL, and is the only Iron medicine that is not injurious. It Enriches the Blood, Invigorates the System, Restores Appetite, Aids Digestion
It does not blacken or injure the teeth, cause headache or produce constipation—other Iron medicines do
MR. J. D. BURKE, 18 High St., Montgomery, Ala., says: "My system was generally debilitated and the slightest exertion fatigued me. After using Brown's Iron Bitters a short time I regained my appetite and strength."
MRS. GEO. W. CARR, 26 Chestnut St., Macon, Ga., says: "I used Brown's Iron Bitters for a constant feeling of weariness and lassitude with the most satisfactory results. It gives me much pleasure to recommend it to all feeble women as a complete strengthener."
Genuine has above Trade Mark and crossed red lines on wrapper. Take no other. Made only by BROWN CHEMICAL CO. BALTIMORE, MD.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for
TANSILL'S PUNCH 5¢
Our frequent orders during the past five years attest the merits of your "Tansill's Punch" 5-cent cigar. WINTER & CURRINS, Druggists, Princeton, Ill.
The "Tansill's Punch" 5c. cigar gives No. 1 satisfaction. A. BRADBURY, Waterman, Ill.
Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

Marvellous Memory DISCOVERY.
Wholly unlike Artificial Systems—Cure of Mind Wandering—Any book learned in one reading. Heavy reductions for postal classes. Prospectus, with opinions of Mr. PROCTOR, the Astronomer, Hons. W. W. ASTOR, JUDAH P. BENJAMIN, Drs. MINOR, WOOD and others, sent post FREE, by
PROF. LOISETTE,
237 Fifth Avenue. New York.

PATENTS Obtained. Send stamp for Inventors' Guide. L. BINGHAM, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. Refer to 1000 patients cured in all parts. DR. MARSH, Quincy, Mich.

Charged with Whisky.

"I don't know what I'm arrested for, Your Honor, I'm an oysterman, and went into a restaurant and got clamorous, that's all. Asked the waiter for fish. 'What kind of fish—bluefish?' says he. 'It don't matter,' says I, 'blue or red, it's no difference to me. I'm color blind.' Then he thought I was making fun of him, and there was a free fight."

"Officer, what was this man charged with?"

"Whisky, your Honor."

"Ten dollars fine."

When irritation of the throat causes a tickling cough, use Red Star Cough Cure, which will effect immediate and permanent relief. One of Brooklyn's Board of Health officers recommends it as purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. Price, 25 cents.

The Woman's Exchange of New York City last year paid out nearly forty thousand dollars to consigners of work in the different departments. A total of 1,100 orders were received and filled in the order department during the year.

St. Jacobs Oil deadens pain and makes the lame walk. Major Arnold, of the Occidental Hotel, San Francisco, Cal., was completely cured of rheumatism by its use.

Gail Hamilton, in one of her recent articles, rather vividly describes how a Honolulu woman walks out in the rain. Her escort usually carries her umbrella, her dress, and her shoes, while she wears simply a shawl and a hat trimmed with red and white roses.

"Frailty, thy Name is Woman."
—Hamlet.
That she is frail, often in body,
"'Tis true, 'tis true 'tis pity,
And pity 'tis, 'tis true."
Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is the best restorative tonic for physical frailty in women, or female weaknesses or derangements. By druggists. Price reduced to one dollar.

The Greek plays that New York likes best are those produced by Ned Harrigan.

STOP that Cough, that tickling in the throat!
STOP that Consumptive Condition!
You can be cured! You can't afford to wait!
Dr. Kilmer's Cough Cure (Consumption Oil) will do it quickly and permanently. 25 cents.

A Deep Mystery.
Wherever you are located you should write to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free, full information about work that you can do and live at home, making thereby from $5 to $25 and upwards daily. Some have made over $50 in a day. All is new. Hallett & Co. will start you. Capital not needed. Either sex. All ages. No class of working people have ever made money so fast heretofore. Comfortable fortunes await every worker. All this seems a deep mystery to you, reader, but send along your address and it will be cleared up and proved. Better no delay; now is the time.

DR. KILMER'S INDIAN COUGH CURE CONSUMPTION OIL.
Every ingredient is from Vegetable products that grew in sight of every sufferer.
IT has no Morphine, Opium or Injurious Drugs.

Every dose goes right to the spot.
In Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter, colds settle in the Mucous Membranes Nose, Throat, Bronchal Tubes, Air-cells and Lung Tissues, causing Cough.
What Diseases Invade the Lungs?
Scrofula, Catarrh-poisons, Micro-organisms, Humors, and Blood Impurities.
What are the Primary Causes?
Colds, Chronic Cough, Bronchitis, Congestion, Inflammation, Catarrh or Hay-Fever, Asthma, Pneumonia, Malaria, Measles, Whooping Cough and Croup.
RELIEVES QUICKLY—CURES PERMANENTLY
It will stop that Coughing, Tickling in Throat, Dry-hacking and Catarrh-dropping.
Is your Expectoration or Sputa
Frothy, Blood-Stained, Catarrhal, Pus (Matter), Yellowish, Canker-like, Phlegm, Tubercular, Muco-purulent?
It prevents Decline, Night-Sweats, Hectic-Fever, and Death from Consumption.
25c, 50c, $1.00—6 bottles $5.00.
Prepared at Dr. Kilmer's Dispensary, Binghamton, N. Y., "Invalids' Guide to Health" (Sent Free.)
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

DOG BUYERS' GUIDE. Colored plates, 100 engravings of different breeds, prices they are worth, and where to buy them. Mailed for 15 Cents. ASSOCIATED FANCIERS, 237 S. Eighth St. Philadelphia, Pa.

WE GUARANTEE YOU TO RECEIVE 500 SAMPLES Books, Circulars, Letters and Papers FREE from firms all over the U. S. and Canada if you send 20 cents to have your name in new issue of Agents' Name Directory. ALLEN & CO., Box G, Kennedy, N. Y.

HARTSHORN'S Shade Rollers THE BEST

ATLANTA SAW WORKS.
Manufacturers of and Dealers in
Saws and Saw-Mill Supplies.
Repairing a Specialty.
Agents for L. POWER & COMPANY'S Wood Working Machinery.
Large and complete stock. Write for catalogue. ATLANTA, GA.

J. P. STEVENS & BRO.
JEWELERS.
Atlanta, Ga.
Send for Catalogue.

OLD PICTURES COPIED AND ENLARGED.
Agents wanted in every county in the south. Send for terms and circulars. If you cannot take an agency, get our "retail prices," and send pictures direct to us for enlargement. Address SOUTHERN COPYING COMPANY, No. , Marietta St., Atlanta, Ga.

BUSINESS Education a specialty at MOORE'S BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, Ga. One of the best schools in the Country. Send for Circulars.

Young Men Can get the most Practical Business Education at Goldsmith's School of Business, 23½ S Broad St. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Circulars & Specimen of Penmanship.

$15.00 Flat top No. 7 Cook Stove for $10.00 with fixtures. Send for catalogue. A. P. Stewart & Co., 60 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.

OPIUM HABIT absolutely cured NOT A PARTICLE PAIN or self-denial. Pay when cured. Handsome book free. DR. C. J. WEATHERBY, Kansas City, Mo.

GARDEN SEEDS Catalogues Mailed Free. Francis Brill, Hempstead, Long Island, N. Y.

Blair's Pills. Great English Gout and Rheumatic Remedy. Oval Box $1.00; round, 50 cts.

PULVERIZING HARROW, CLOD Crusher and Leveler.

"ACME"
AGENTS WANTED.
Best-Selling Tool on Earth.

Subjects the soil to the action of a Steel Crusher and Leveler, and to the Crushing, Cutting, Lifting, Turning Process of Double Gangs of Cast Steel Coulters. Cutting power is immense. Absence of Spikes or Spring Teeth avoids pulling up rubbish. Only Harrow that cuts over the entire surface of the ground.
Sizes, 3 to 15 ft. wide. With and without Sulky attachment. We deliver free at Distributing Depots.
ON TRIAL. DO NOT BE DECEIVED. Don't let dealers palm off a base imitation or some inferior tool under the assurance that it is better. SATISFY YOURSELF BY ORDERING AN "ACME" ON TRIAL. We will send a double gang Acme to any responsible farmer in the United States; if it does not suit, he may send it back we paying return freight. We don't ask pay until tried on his own farm.
Send for pamphlet containing thousands of testimonials from 48 States and Territories.
DUANE H. NASH, Sole Manufacturer, 302 West Main Street, LOUISVILLE, KY.
N.B.—"TILLAGE IS MANURE" and other essays sent free to parties who NAME THIS PAPER.

Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute
BUFFALO, N. Y.
Organized with a full Staff of eighteen Experienced and Skillful Physicians and Surgeons for the treatment of all Chronic Diseases.
OUR FIELD OF SUCCESS.
Chronic Nasal Catarrh, Throat and Lung Diseases, Liver and Kidney Diseases, Bladder Diseases, Diseases of Women, Blood Diseases and Nervous Affections, cured here or at home, with or without seeing the patient. Come and see us, or send ten cents in stamps for our "Invalids' Guide Book," which gives all particulars.
DELICATE DISEASES. Nervous Debility, Impotency, Nocturnal Losses, and all Morbid Conditions caused by Youthful Follies and Pernicious Solitary Practices are speedily and permanently cured by our Specialists. Book, post-paid, 10 cts. in stamps.
RUPTURE. Rupture, or Breach, radically cured without the knife, without trusses, without pain, and without danger. Cures Guaranteed. Book sent for ten cents in stamps.
PILE TUMORS and STRICTURES treated under guarantee to cure. Book sent for ten cents in stamps. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.
DISEASES OF WOMEN. The treatment of many thousands of cases of those diseases peculiar to WOMEN at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, has afforded large experience in adapting remedies for their cure, and is the result of this vast experience.
DR. PIERCE'S
Favorite Prescription
It is a powerful Restorative Tonic and Nervine, imparts vigor and strength to the system, and cures, as if by magic, Leucorrhea, or "whites," excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus or falling of the uterus, weak back, anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, internal heat, and "female weakness."
It promptly relieves and cures Nausea and Weakness of Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Nervous Prostration, and Sleeplessness, in either sex.
PRICE $1.00, OR 6 BOTTLES FOR $5.00.
Sold by Druggists everywhere. Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's large Treatise on Diseases of Women, illustrated.
World's Dispensary Medical Association,
663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

SICK-HEADACHE, Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, and Bilious Attacks, promptly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. 25 cents a vial, by Druggists.

Ask your retailer for the James Means' $3 Shoe. Caution! Some dealers recommend inferior goods in order to make a larger profit. This is the original $3 Shoe. Beware of imitations which acknowledge their own inferiority by attempting to build upon the reputation of the original. None Genuine unless bearing this Stamp.
JAMES MEANS' $3 SHOE.
For Gentlemen.

Made in Button, Congress and Lace. Best Calf Skin. Unexcelled in Durability, Comfort & Appearance. A postal card sent to us will bring you information how to get this Shoe in any State or Territory.
J. Means & Co. 41 Lincoln St. Boston, Mass.
Our celebrated factory produces a larger quantity of Shoes of this grade than any other factory in the world. Thousands who wear them will tell you the reason if you ask them. JAMES MEANS' $2 SHOE for Boys is unapproached in Durability.

MASON & HAMLIN UNRIVALED ORGANS
On the EASY PAYMENT system, from $3.25 per month up. 100 styles, $22 to $900. Send for Catalogue with full particulars, mailed free.
UPRIGHT PIANOS,
Constructed on the new method of stringing, on similar terms. Send for descriptive Catalogue.
MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN AND PIANO CO.
Boston, New York, Chicago.

PENSION CLAIMS of all KINDS prosecuted without fee unless successful. TWENTY-TWO YEARS' EXPERIENCE. Correspondence Solicited.
MILO B. STEVENS & CO.
WASHINGTON, D. C. CLEVELAND, OHIO. CHICAGO, ILL. DETROIT, MICH.

WE WANT YOU! alive energetic man or woman needing profitable employment to represent us in every county. Salary $75 per month and expenses, or a large commission on sales if preferred. Goods staple. Every one buys. Outfit and particulars Free. STANDARD SILVERWARE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

THURSTON'S IVORY PEARL TOOTH POWDER Keeping Teeth Perfect and Gums Healthy.

LADY AGENTS wanted in their own town to sell my patent Rubber Undergarment for ladies' wear. 2c. stamp for particulars. HOME MANUFACTURING CO., 349 Broadway, New York.

Pensions to Soldiers & Heirs. Send stamp for Circulars. COL. L. BINGHAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

WORK FOR ALL. $30 a week and expenses paid. Outfit worth $5 and particulars free. P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE Lines not under the horse's feet. Address BREWSTER'S SAFETY REIN HOLDER, Holly, Mich.

PATENTS Inventors' Hand-book free. [illegible]

OPIUM Habit Cured. Treatment sent on trial. HUMANE REMEDY CO., LaFayette, Ind.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

A. N. U. .... Two, '87

Rates of Advertising.

One Dollar per Square, of one inch space or less, for the first, and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion.

Inches.	3 m.	6 m.	12 m.
1 Inch	$ 3 00	$ 7 00	$ 11 25
2 Inches	7 00	11 15	16 00
3 Inches	10 00	15 00	22 00
4 Inches	13 00	20 00	27 00
5 Inches	15 00	22 00	28 00
¼ Column	18 00	27 00	40 00
½ Column	27 00	40 00	60 00
1 Column	40 00	60 00	100 00

The Chilton View.

W. H. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors. "WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION." TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1887. NUMBER 12.

Special Advertising.

Business Notices Ten Cents per line each insertion.

Obituaries and Tributes of Respect, half rates.

Announcing candidates for office, Five Dollars, strictly in advance.

Communications recommending candidates for office will be handled as advertisements and charged for accordingly.

Liberal contracts made with those advertising by the year.

☞ The money is due on all advertising after the first publication.

OLD YEAR AND NEW YEAR

Old Year and New Year—
It is all God's year;
His time for sowing,
His time for reaping,
His time for growing,
For rest and quiet sleeping;
His time for soaring
On wings of the Spirit;
His time for adoring
The Infinite Merit.

O world above our world,
Our times, and our places,
Are but as child's play
To thy marvelous spaces.
But if, as dear children,
With hearts full of yearning,
We love and forget not,
Are docile for learning,
Then New Year and Old Year,
Their hoping, regretting,
Will all turn to God's year,
With no time for fretting.
—Wm. M. E. Butts.

The Lady of Lone Lake.

One beautiful summer evening I was rowing with a friend on one of those romantic lakes in the west of Ireland. The day had been a hot one, and the midsummer sun looked like a ball of fire, as it slowly sank behind the horizon.

It was a beautiful scene. The lake lay like a sheet of silver. To the right were high banks fringed with dark trees, and perpendicular cliffs almost hidden by clinging vines. To the left stretched level meadows, dotted with grazing cattle. Above us was the mellow sky, while from the east arose the full moon to replace the fierce rays of the day-god with her mild radiance. In the distance we could see the dark outlines of an old baronial castle, almost hidden by intervening trees. This, my companion informed me, was Larrimoor Hall.

We laid aside our oars, and for a time floated silently over the glassy surface of the lake, enraptured by the beautiful scene. I was a young artist, living in London at that time, and now taking my summer vacation. It was my first visit to the "Emerald Isle," and I have been wandering with delight among the romantic mountains, glens, and lakes, filling my soul with beauty and my portfolio with sketches. My companion was the young Lord of Glendale, whose acquaintance I had made while traveling on the continent. Happening to meet him in my wanderings, he had insisted on my accompanying him to his country seat, assuring me that the scenery around it surpassed anything I had yet seen.

The scenery was indeed charming; but as yet I had been more charmed with my host's fair sister Nora, who, as their parents were dead, and the heir yet unmarried, was acting as the lady of Glendale.

As we floated the glow faded, and the soft moonlight bathed lake and rocks and meadows with silver. The lake was quite isolated, being on the border between the estates of Glendale and Larimoor, and was seldom visited by any one but the members of these two families. To-night we were its sole visitors. Imagine my surprise after floating for some time in silence, to see a small boat rowed by a figure in white gliding swiftly over the surface. "We are not alone," said I, pointing to it.

"Ah," said my companion, "that is only a spectre. Did you never hear the story of the 'Lady of Lone Lake?'"

"No," said I, "but she rows remarkably well for a spirit; let's chase." I seized the oars and rowed rapidly after the receding boat. As soon as the rower perceived that she was followed, she turned her boat toward the high banks, and in an instant disappeared mysteriously among the ivy clad rocks. Out of breath I dropped the oars and said: "Tell me the story of which you spoke." My companion, who had sat silent during my rapid chase, smiled sadly as he began:

"The present Lord of Larrimoor, who lives in the hall yonder, is a very hard, stern man, and he rules everything in his power with an iron hand. His wife, a beautiful woman, has been dead these many years. He married her to gain possession of her large estate. While wooing her he overcame his harsh manners as much as his nature would permit. But after the prize was fully his, he relaxed into his natural icy sternness. She lived a most secluded life, and died in a few years, had one child, much like its mother, only more high-spirited. Her father idolized her, and, until she was twenty years old, never crossed her by word or deed. Then his avaricious nature got the better of his affection. He desired her to marry a baron nearly as old as himself, but possessed of vast estates. The high-spirited girl rebelled. The father insisted and, in spite of her remonstrance, preparations were made for the wedding. The daughter said no more and the father thought he was going to have his way. The wedding night came. The guest were assembled. The bridegroom was waiting. The hour came but the bride came not. Complaining of weariness she had retired to her room soon after dinner, promising to appear at the appointed time if they would not disturb her. At last her father sent for her. She was not in her room. The house was searched, the grounds, the neighborhood; but she could not be found.

"Next day a shawl belonging to the girl was found down by this lake. As it was the only trace of her, people concluded that, to escape a fate so repulsive to her, she had drowned herself. A little after that the spectre you have just seen began to frequent those waters. Many have tried to overtake it as you did, but it always vanishes among those rocks; and so they think it is the spirit of Lucia, the lost heiress of Larrimoor."

The young lord seemed greatly moved by the sad story he had just related, and I could not help but feel that he had taken more than a passing interest in the unfortunate girl. After a moment of silence, during which he began to pull for the homeward shore, I said: "Had the lady no other admirers?"

"Oh, yes; many," he replied; "but few dared to approach, and these her father repulsed." After a minute he continued: "It is useless for me to try to conceal my feelings from you, for I feel that you have already divined them. I, also, loved the beautiful lady, though she knew not of my affection. My parents were the only people in the country with whom Lord Larrimoor was on friendly terms, and during his lady's last sickness my mother attended her constantly. After her death she took great interest in the child, who was about the age of my sister, and used to bring Lucia home with her to stay a week at a time. Then we three would have grand times romping about the hall, and playing in the park. Some times we were allowed to accompany Lucia home and stay to tea; but I never enjoyed these visits. The old hall seemed so dark and gloomy, and its master so stern and taciturn. As we grew older we were together even more, cantering over the hills on horseback, or taking long rambles in the woods. But most of all we liked to row about on this very lake. My father taught me to row as soon as I was large enough to handle an oar, and I instructed the girls. Lucia became very skillful, and could outrow both of us. Afterward my mother died, and my sister and I were sent away to school. As long as my father lived we spent our vacations at home. But he survived my mother only two years. After his death we made our home with an aunt in Dublin, and Glendale Hall was closed. After I finished my course, we spent three years in travel. After an absence of five years I returned to Glendale to find my playmate, whose memory I had cherished during all the years of our separation, a beautiful and accomplished young lady. She and my sister resumed their former friendship; but she seemed shy of me, and before I had an opportunity to open my heart to her, she sought refuge from her father's cruelty in a watery grave."

During this recital we had left the boat, and were now picking our way along the uneven path which led to the house. It was quite late when we reached the hall, and we soon separated for the night.

I lay down, but not to sleep. The occurrence of the evening filled my mind, and banished sleep from my eyelids. I longed to fathom the mystery. I had no faith in the supernatural, and I no more believed the boat we had seen was rowed by a spirit, than I believed myself to be a ghost. I could not help but think that it was the unfortunate girl whom my friend was mourning as dead; and that she was in hiding somewhere among her native rocks, though how she managed to evade pursuit and vanish so suddenly, was more than I could make out. My convictions were strengthened by the fact that the body had never been recovered, though the old lord had offered large rewards, and every peasant in the country had been on the lookout. Before I went to sleep I had formed a plan, and determined to investigate the matter the next night; with my friend's help if he were willing; if not, alone.

When I disclosed my project to Lord Glendale, he shook his head dubiously, and tried to dissuade me, assuring me that he had tried many times to capture the mysterious rover; but always in vain. But seeing that I was determined to go, he was too gallant to refuse to accompany me. About sunset we took our way to the lake, and embarked in separate boats. I felt that little could be accomplished by pursuit. It was this mysterious vanishing we must prevent if possible. So I determined to take my place near where the boat had disappeared. Lord Glendale, who was a rapid rower, was to wait on the opposite side and, at the right moment give chase, while I would stand guard over the mysterious rock. The evening was not as bright as the preceding one had been, for the sky was overcast by filmy clouds which partially obscured the moon. I pushed my skiff as much into the shadow as possible, and waited in silence. In a few minutes I heard the sound of splashing waters. It seemed to come from behind the rocks. Presently a boat, rowed by the most beautiful creature I had ever seen, parted the vines which hung down over the rocks near by, and shot away across the lake and down the stream. I stationed myself at the exact spot whence the boat had emerged, and waited anxiously for my friend to act. It was sometime before the mysterious boat returned; but I waited patiently, oars in hand. At last it came slowly back. Lord Glendale was on the alert and immediately gave chase, and pursued and pursuer shot towards me with incredible rapidity. I tried to keep down my rising excitement. I felt that now or never was the time, and I crouched low, fearing that she might see me and dart off in another direction. She was evidently wearied with her long row, for my friend was close upon her. She did not see me until her skiff touched mine. Quick as a flash she turned but we were both upon her, and, by some unlucky movement, her frail bark was overturned, and, with a wild cry for help, she sank out of sight.

Glendale was in the water in an instant. He caught her the first time she rose, and we soon had her in the boat. She was no ghost, but a dripping, half-drowned, frightened girl. She reproached us for molesting her, and begged piteously to be released. Glendale wrapped the dripping form in my coat, assuring her that we were friends and would be most happy to serve her. She seemed to recognize him, and I felt sure from their conversation that she was indeed Lucia, the lost heiress of Larrimoor. As the other boats had floated away, Glendale explained to her that it would be necessary for us to convey her to her place of abode, and that we must go quickly, for both of them were dripping wet. To this she seemed reluctant to consent, but, being reassured of our good-will, she showed us an opening in the rocks entirely concealed by overhanging vines. Through this we passed into a shallow channel. It was a very singular place. This channel, enclosed between two high and rocky banks, was about three rods long, and, perhaps, half as wide in the middle, narrowing at each end, its inner wall became continuous with the shore of the lake. Our fair guide directed us to the upper end, where we found a natural landing, which led up to a door in the rocks. In answer to her call this door was opened by an aged woman. She seemed very much frightened on seeing us; but after a few words from Lucia she bade us enter, and busied herself making a fire and otherwise ministering to our comfort.

The apartment was low, but roomy, and divided by screens into parlor, sleeping rooms and kitchen. While Glendale dried his drenched garments, and we drank the cheering cup of tea prepared for us by the old woman, Lucia told her story, which was briefly this:

Despairing of escape from the hated alliance in any other way, she had appealed to her old nurse for aid. This woman, then nearly eighty years old, was living with her son in a cottage on a neighboring estate, having quarreled with Lord Larrimoor some years before. She and her husband, now dead, had been servants to Lucia's grandfather. The old woman readily espoused Lucia's cause, and, the day before the wedding, she entered the hall unnoticed and found her way to Lucia's room. She disguised Lucia as a beggar, and in the bustle of preparation they managed to escape.

The cave had been discovered and occupied by some English fugitives during the troublous times of Cromwell. It was afterward occupied and enlarged by a wizard hermit. But he had been dead for half a century and the cave deserted. Its entrance had been overgrown by vines, and those who had known of its existence, except the old nurse, were dead or gone away. Even she had not thought of it for years, until her anxiety quickened her failing memory. Hither she had conveyed her charge, and here they had lived in seclusion for five years. A lonely life indeed for a beautiful young woman; but she chose it rather than sell herself for gold. She besought us not to reveal her hiding-place. We reassured her of our friendship, and asked permission to visit her again. This was readily granted, and we were invited to return the next evening and bring Nora with us.

Great was Nora's surprise when we recounted our adventures to her. At first she could hardly believe us; but, seeing we were really in earnest, she gladly accepted the joyful news, and expressed herself anxious to visit her old friend in her strange abode. After that we frequently visited the cave, but always with great secrecy. Indeed, it was seldom that the gathering shadows of the evening did not find Lord Glendale on his way thither, and his radiant countenance gave us assurance that his visits were not in vain. As for Nora and I, we loved better to walk in the fragrant garden, or wander among the grand old trees that surrounded the hall.

I had already extended my vacation to unprecedented length, and was beginning to think seriously of returning to my work, when Glendale one evening informed me that on the morrow he would wed the fair Lucia. It was a quiet wedding in the rocky cave which had sheltered the beautiful bride for so many weary years. An old priest performed the ceremony, of which Nora, the nurse, and I were the only witnesses.

A few days later I took my departure with a light heart, for Nora was my promised wife. The Lord and Lady of of Glendale passed their honeymoon quietly at Glendale Hall. The hard old Lord had long looked upon his daughter as dead, and was so overcome to receive her again that he forgave her entirely, and became from that time forth a changed man.

All this happened years ago. Nora and I are married now, and our home is in London; but every summer we spend our vacation with the Lord and Lady of Glendale at their beautiful country seat.
—Mary Keim, in Chicago Current.

The First Death at the White House.

General Harrison, who was the first President to die at the White House (General Taylor being the second), was only one month in office. Inaugurated on the 4th of March, 1841, he expired on the 4th of April following. His malady was pleurisy, from which he suffered for a week before his death.

Even after he went to Washington General Harrison kept up his habit of early rising. It was not unusual for him to rise as early as 4:30 o'clock. On the morning of the 27th of March he made a visit to the Washington market, where he conversed with the farmers in regard to the prices they obtained for their produce, etc. There was a cold, drizzling rain that morning which gave him a severe cold that finally developed into what would now be called pneumonia. After some days the physicians believed they had conquered the malady, and during Friday and until late on Saturday it was confidently asserted that the President was out of danger. About five o'clock in the evening there was a change for the worse, from that time his strength rapidly diminished. About midnight his waning powers seemed to revive, but it was only the last flicker of the expiring flame. He died soon afterward.

General Harrison's last words: "Sir, I wish you to understand the true principles of the Government, I wish them carried out, I ask nothing more," it was said at the time were spoken as if the dying President was addressing the Vice President, who was to become his successor. General Harrison's funeral in Washington was an imposing pageant, in which Congress, the departments and the people participated.—New York Journal.

A Canine Sailor.

The schooner Arab, which foundered a year or two ago, had a brainy Newfoundland dog. He was taken on board ship when a puppy, and during the many years he sailed before the mast he made hundreds of trips around the great lakes. He was thoroughly familiar with all nautical expressions, and when a storm arose he worked as hard as any of the crew. It was then that he would sit upon his haunches and watch the Captain with a pair of big, luminous intelligent eyes. When the command to make sail was given he would spring to the throat of the peak halyards of a sail and tug away at them until driven away. Then he would watch the sails unfurl with a critical eye, and if they were not clean and taut he would manifest his disappointment in many ways. Whenever any of the crew put out in the small boat the dog insisted on going along. He would sit in the bow of the yawl and lick his chops as though he enjoyed the merry "hey-ho" of the oarsmen and the bounding ride over the billows.—Chicago Herald.

A Cure for Laziness.

The following singular treatment was formerly applied in Dutch workhouses to indolent and apathetic individuals: The patient was placed in a sort of large tub, into which water was kept constantly flowing through a pipe, so that in order to keep himself from drowning he had to turn a crank which pumped the water out again. The water supply and the hours of working were nicely adjusted to his strength and endurance, and the amount gradually increased every day. In one report it says: "The inactive limbs are soon brought to the required degree of suppleness, and the men very soon begin to ask for some less irksome labor, which they afterwards perform in a most satisfactory manner."

DR. TALMAGE'S SERMON.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Subject: "Distribution of Rewards."

TEXT: "He shall divide the spoil with the strong."—Isaiah liii, 12.

My family, who saw it with their own eyes year before last, tell me that in the Coliseum at Rome, where persecutors used to let out the half-starved lions to eat up Christians, there is now planted the figure of a cross. And I rejoice to know that the upright piece of wood nailed to a transverse piece has become the symbol not more of suffering than of victory. It is of Christ the Conqueror that my text speaks. As a kingly warrior, having subdued an empire, might divide the palaces, and mansions, and cities, and valleys, and mountains among his officers, so Christ is going to divide up all the earth, and all the heavens, among his people, and you and I will have to take our share if we are strong in faith and strong in our Christian loyalty, for my text declares it: "He shall divide the spoil with the strong."

The capture of this round planet for Christ is not so much of a job as you might imagine, when the church takes off its coat and rolls up its sleeves for the work, as it will. There are sixteen hundred millions of people now in the world, and four hundred and fifty millions are Christians. Subtract four hundred and fifty millions who are Christians from the sixteen hundred millions, and there are eleven hundred and fifty millions left. Divide the eleven hundred and fifty millions who are not Christians by the four hundred and fifty millions who are Christians and you will find that we shall have to average less than three souls each brought by us into the kingdom of God to have the whole world redeemed. Certainly with the church rising up to its full duty no Christian will be willing to bring less than three souls into the kingdom of God. I hope and pray, Almighty God, that I may bring ten thousand. I know evangelists who have already brought 50,000 each for the kingdom of God. There are 200,000 people whose one and only and absorbing business in the world is to save souls. When you take these things into consideration and that the Christian will have to average the bringing of only three souls each into the Kingdom of our Lord, all impossibility vanishes from this omnipotent crusade. Why, I know a Sabbath-school teacher who has for many years been engaged in training the young, and she has had 5 different classes, and they averaged 7 to a class, and they were all converted, and 5 times 7 are 35, as near as I can calculate. So that she brought her 3 into the Kingdom of God and had 32 to spare. My grandmother prayed her children into the Kingdom of Christ, and her grandchildren, and I hope all her great grandchildren, for God remembers a prayer seventy-five years old as though it were only a minute old, and so she brought her three into the Kingdom of God and had more than one hundred to spare. Besides that, through the telephone and the telegraph this whole world within a few years will be brought within compass in ten minutes. Beside that, omnipotence, omnipresence and omniscience are presiding in this matter of the world's betterment, and that takes the question of the world's salvation out of the impossibilities into the possibilities, and then out of the possibilities into the probabilities, and then out of the probabilities into the certainties. The building of the Union Pacific Railroad from ocean to ocean was a greater undertaking than the girdling of the earth with the Gospel, for the one enterprise depended upon the human arm while the other depends upon Almightiness.

Do I really mean all the earth will surrender to Christ? Yes. How about the uninviting portions? Will Greenland be evangelized? The possibility is that after a few more hundred brave lives are dashed out among the icebergs, that great refrigerator, the Polar region, will be given up to the walrus and bear, and that the inhabitants will come down by invitation into tolerable climates, or those climates may soften, and, as it has been positively demonstrated that the Arctic region was once a blooming garden and a fruitful field, those regions may change climate and again be a blooming garden and a fruitful field. It is proved beyond controversy by German and American scientists, that the Arctic regions were the first portions of this world inhabitable; the world hot beyond human endurance, those regions were of course the first to be cool enough for human foot and human lung. It was positively proved that the Arctic region was a tropical climate. Professor Heer, of Zurich, says the remains of flowers have been found in the Arctic, showing it was like Mexico for climate, and it is found that the Arctic was the mother region from which all the flowers descended. Professor Wallace says the remains of all styles of animal life are found in the Arctic, including those animals that can live only in warm climates. Now, that Arctic region which has been demonstrated by flora, and fauna, and geological argument to have been as full of vegetation and life as our Florida, may be turned back to its original bloom and glory, or it will be shut up as a museum of crystals for curiosity seekers once in a while to visit. But Arctic and Antarctic in some shape will belong to the Redeemer's realm.

What about other unproductive or repulsive regions? All the deserts will be irrigated, the waters will be forced up to the great American desert between here and the Pacific by machinery now known or yet to be invented, and, as Great Salt Lake City has no rain and could not raise an apple or a bushel of wheat in a hundred years without artificial help, but is now through such means one great garden, so all the unproductive parts of all the continents will be turned into harvest fields and orchards. A half dozen De Lesseps will furnish the world with all the canals needed, and will change the course of rivers and open new lakes, and the great Sahara Desert will be cut up into farms with an astounding yield of bushels to the acre. The marsh will be drained of its waters and cured of its malaria. I saw the other day what was for many years called the British Swamp of Ohio, its chief crop chills and fevers, but now, by the tiles put into the ground to carry off the surplus moisture transformed into the richest and healthiest of regions. The God who wastes nothing, I think, means that this world, from pole to pole, has to come to perfection of foliage and fruitage. For that reason he keeps us running through space, though so many fires are blazing down in its timbers and so many mock terrors have threatened to dash it to pieces. As soon as the earth is completed Christ will divide it up among the good. The reason he does not divide it now is because it is not done. A kind father will not divide the apple among his children until the apple is ripe. In fulfillment of the New Testament promise: "The meek shall inherit the earth," and the promise of the Old Testament: "He shall divide the spoils with the strong," the world will be apportioned to those worthy to possess it.

It is not so now. In this country, capable of holding, feeding, clothing, and sheltering twelve hundred million people, and where we have only sixty million inhabitants we have two millions who cannot get honest work, and with their families an aggregation of five millions that are on the verge of starvation. Something wrong, most certainly. In some way, there will be a new apportionment. Many of the millionaire estates will crack to pieces on the dissipations of grandchildren, and then dissolve into the possession of the masses who now have an insufficiency.

What, you say, will become of the expensive and elaborate buildings now devoted to debasing amusements? They will become schools, art galleries, museums, gymnasiums, and churches. The world is already getting disgusted with many of these amusements, and no wonder. What an importation of unclean theatrical stuff we have within the last few years had brought to our shores! And professors of religion patronizing such things! Having sold out to the devil, why don't you deliver the goods and go over to him publicly, body, mind, and soul, and withdraw your name from Christian churches, and say: "Know all the world by these presents that I am a patron of uncleanness and a child of hell." Sworn to be the Lord's, you are perjurers.

But at last the tide has turned, and the despisers of purity overdid the matter. A foreign actress of base morals arrived intending to make the tour of the States, but the remaining decency of our cities rose up and canceled the contracts, and drove her back from our American stage, a woman fit for neither continent. In the name of Almighty God I take these abominations by the throat. If you think these offenses are to go on forever, you do not know who the Lord is. God will not wait for the Day of Judgment. All these palaces of sin will become palaces of righteousness. They will come into the possession of those strong for virtue and strong for God. "He shall divide the spoil with the strong."

China and Africa, the two richest portions of the earth by reason of metals and rare woods, and inexhaustible productiveness, are not yet divided up among the good because they are not ready to be divided. Wait until all the doors that Livingstone opened in Africa shall be entered, and Bishop Taylor with his band of self-supporting missionaries have done their work, and the Ashantees and Senegambians shall know Christ as well as you know Him, and there shall be on the banks of the Nile and the Niger a higher civilization than is now to be found on the banks of the Hudson, then Christ will divide up that continent among his friends. Wait until China, which is half as large as all Europe, shall have developed her capacities for rice, and tea, and sugar, among edibles; and her amethyst, and sapphire, and topaz, and opal, and jasper, and porphyry, among precious stones; and her rosewood, and ebony, and camphor, and varnish trees among precious woods; and turned up from her depths a half dozen Pennsylvanias of coal and iron, and twenty Nevadas of silver, and fifty Californias of gold, and her five hundred million of people shall be evangelized; then the Lord will divide it up among the good.

If my text be not a deception, but the eternal truth, then the time is coming when all the farms will be owned by Christian farmers, and all the commerce controlled by Christian merchants, and all the authority held by Christian officials, and all the ships commanded by Christian captains, and all the universities under the instruction of Christian professors; Christian kings, Christian presidents, Christian governors, Christian mayors, Christian common council. Yet, what a scouring out! what an upturning! what a demolition! what a resurrection must precede this new apportionment!

I do not underrate the enemy. Julius Cæsar got his greatest victories by fully estimating the vastness of his foes and prepared his men for their greatest triumph by saying: "To-morrow King Juba will be here with thirty thousand horses, one hundred thousand skirmishers, and three hundred elephants." I do not underrate the vast forces of Sin and Death; but do you know who commands us? Jehovah-jireh. And the reserve corps behind us are all the armies of heaven and earth, with hurricane and thunderbolt. The good work of the world's redemption is going on every minute. Never so many splendid men and glorious women on the side of right as to-day. Never so many good people as now. Diogenes has been spoken of as a wise man because he went with a lantern at noonday, saying he was looking for an honest man. If he had turned his lantern toward himself he might have discovered a crank. Honest men by the ten thousand! Through the International Series of Sunday-school lessons the next generation all through Christendom are going to be wiser than any generation since the world stood. The kingdom is coming. God can do it. No housewife with a chamois cloth ever polished a silver teaspoon with more ease than Christ will rub off from this world the tarnish, and brighten it up till it glows like heaven, and then the glorious apportionment, for my text is reinforced by a score of other texts, when it says of Christ: "He shall divide the spoil with the strong."

"But," you say, "that is pleasant to think of for others, but before that time I shall have passed up into another existence, and I shall get no advantage from that new apportionment." Ah, you have only driven me to the other more exciting and transporting consideration, and that is that Christ is going to divide up heaven in the same way. There are old estates in the celestial world that have been in the possession of the inhabitants for thousands of years, and they shall remain as they are. There are old family mansions in heaven filled with whole generations of kindred, and they shall never be driven out. Many of the victors from earth have already got their palaces, and they are pointed out to those newly arrived. Soon after our getting there we will ask to be shown the Apostolic residences, and ask where does Paul live, and John, and shown the patriarchal residences, and shall say: "Where does Abraham live, or Jacob?" and shown the martyr residences and say: "Where does John Huss live, and Ridley?" We will want to see the boulevards where the chariots of conquerors roll. I will want to see the garden where the princes walk. We will want to see Music Row, where Handel, and Haydn, and Mozart, and Charles Wesley, and Thomas Hastings, and Bradbury have their homes, out of their windows, ever and anon, rolling some snatch of an earthly oratorio or hymn transported with the composer. We will want to see Revival Terrace, where Whitefield, and Nettleton, and Payson, and Rowland Hill, and Charles Finney, and other giants of soul-reaping are resting from their almost supernatural labors, their doors thronged with converts just arrived, coming to report themselves.

But brilliant as the sunset, and like the leaves for number, are the celestial homes yet to be awarded, when Christ to you, and millions of others, shall divide the spoil. What do you want there? You shall have it. An orchard? There it is; twelve manner of fruits, and fruit every month. Do you want river scenery? Take your choice on the banks of the river, in longer, wider, deeper roll than Danube, or Amazon, or Mississippi if mingled in one, and emptying into the sea of glass, mingled with fire. Do you want your kindred back again? Go out and meet your father and mother without the staff or the stoop, and your children in a dance of immortal glee. Do you want a throne? Select it from the million burnished elevations. Do you want a crown? Pick it out of that mountain of diamonded coronets. Do you want your old church friends of earth around you? Begin to hum an old revival tune and they will flock from all quarters to revel with you in sacred reminiscence. All the earth for those who are here on earth at the time of continental and planetary distribution, and all the heavens for those who are there.

That heavenly distribution of spoils will be a surprise to many. Here enters heaven the soul of a man who took up a great deal of room in the church on earth but sacrificed little, and among his good works selfishness was evident. He just crowds through the shining gate, but it's a very tight squeeze, so that the door-keeper has to pull hard to get him in, and this man expects half of heaven for his share of trophies, and he would like a monopoly of all its splendor, and to purchase lots in the suburbs so that he could get advantage of the growth of the city. Well, little by little grace of heart, just enough to get him through, and to him is given a second-hand crown which one of the saints wore at the start, but exchanged for a brighter one as he went on from glory to glory. And he is put in an old house once occupied by an angel who was hurled out of Heaven at the time of Satan's rebellion.

Right after him comes a soul that makes a great stir among the celestials, and the angels rush to the scene each bringing to her a dazzling coronet. Who is she? Over what realm on earth was she queen? In what great Dusseldorf festival was she the cantatrice? Neither. She was an invalid who never left her room for twenty years: but she was strong in prayer, and she prayed down revival after revival, and pentecost after pentecost, upon the churches, and with her pale hands she knit many a mitten or tippet for the poor, and with her contrivances she added joy to many a holiday festival, and now with those thin hands so strong for kindness, and with those white lips so strong for supplication she has won coronation, and enthronement and jubilee. And Christ says to the angels who have brought such a crown for the glorified invalid: "No, not these; they are not good enough. But in the jeweled vase at the right hand side of my throne there is one that I have been preparing for her many a year, and for her every pang I have set an amethyst, and for her every good deed I have set a pearl. Fetch it now and fulfill the promise I gave her long ago in the sick room: 'Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown.'"

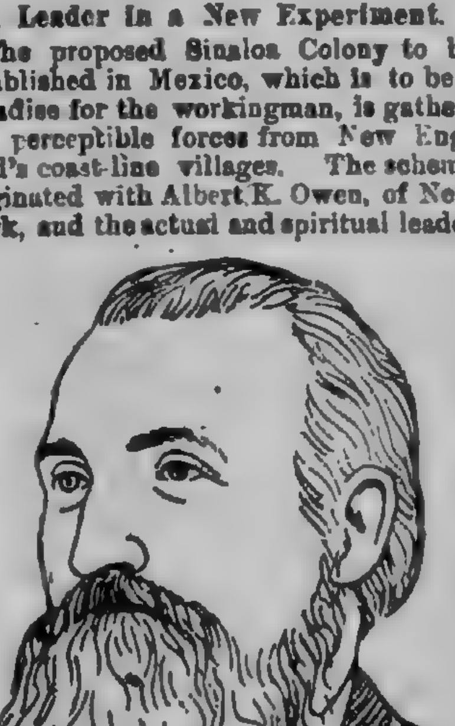
But notice that there is only one being in the universe who can and will distribute the trophies of earth and heaven. It is the Divine Warrior, the Commander-in-Chief of the centuries, the champion of ages, the universal conqueror, the Son of God, Jesus. You will take the spoils from His hand, or never take them at all. Have His friendship and you may defy all time and all eternity, but without it you are a pauper, though you had a universe at your command. We are told in Revelation that Jacob's twelve sons were so honored as to have the twelve gates of Heaven named after them—over one gate of Heaven Naphtali, over another gate of Heaven Issachar, over another Dan, over another Gad, over another Zebulon, over another Judah, and so on. But Christ's name is written over all the gates, and on every panel of the gates; and have His help, His pardon, His intercession, His atonement, I must, or be a forlorn wretch forever. My Lord and my God! make me and all who hear me this day, and all to whom these words shall come, thy repentant, believing, sworn, consecrated and ransomed followers forever.

What a day it will be! This entire assemblage would rise to your feet if you could realize it, the day in which Christ shall in fulfillment of my text divide the spoil. It was a great day when Queen Victoria, in the midst of the Crimean war, distributed medals to the soldiers who had come home sick and wounded. At the Horse Guards, in presence of the Royal Family, the injured men were carried in or came on crutches—Colonel Trowbridge, who lost both feet at Inkerman, and Captain Sayer, who had the ankle joint of his right leg shot off at Alma; and Captain Curre, his disabled limb supported by a soldier, and others maimed, and disfigured, and exhausted—and with her own hand the Queen gave each the Crimean medal. And what triumphant days for those soldiers when, further on, they received the French medal with the imperial eagle, and the Turkish medal with its representation of four flags—France, Turkey, England and Sardinia—and beneath it a map of the Crimea spread over a gun wheel.

And what rewards are suggested to all readers of history by the mere mention of the Waterloo medal, and the Cape medal, and the Gold Cross medal, and the medals struck for bravery in our American wars. But how insignificant all these compared with the day when the good soldiers of Jesus Christ shall come in out of the battles of this world and in the presence of all the piled up galleries of the redeemed and the unfallen, Jesus, our King, shall divide the spoil! The more wounds, the greater the inheritance. The longer the forced march, the brighter the trophy. The more terrible the exhaustion, the more glorious the transport. Not the gift of a brilliant ribbon, or a medal of brass, or silver, or gold, but a kingdom in which we are to reign for ever and ever. Mansions on the eternal hills. Dominions of unfading power. Empires of unending love. Continents of everlasting light. Atlantic and Pacific oceans of billowing joy. It was a great day when Aurelian, the Roman Emperor, came back from his victories. In the front of the procession were wild beasts from all lands, sixteen hundred gladiators richly clad, wagon loads of crowns and trophies presented by conquered cities; among the captives Syrians, Egyptians, Goths, Vandals, Sarmatians, Franks, and Zenobia, the beautiful captive queen, on foot in chains of gold that a slave had to help her carry, and jewels under the weight of which she almost fainted. And then came the chariot of Aurelian drawn by four elephants in gorgeous caparison, and followed by the Roman Senate and the Roman army; and from morning till night the procession was passing. Rome never saw anything like it. But how much greater the day when our Conqueror, Jesus, shall ride under the triumphal arches of heaven! His captives, not on foot, but in chariots, all the kings of earth and heaven in procession; the armies celestial on white horses. Rumbling artillery of thunderbolts never again to be unlimbered. Kingdoms in line, centuries in line, saintly, cherubic, seraphic, archangelic splendors in line, and Christ seated on one great rolling Hosanna, made out of all Hallelujahs of all worlds, shall cry halt to the procession. And not forgetting even the humblest in all the reach of His omnipresence, He shall rise, and then and there, His work done and His glory consummated, proceed, amid an ecstasy such as neither mortal nor immortal ever imagined, to divide the spoil.

A Leader in a New Experiment.

The proposed Sinaloa Colony to be established in Mexico, which is to be a paradise for the workingman, is gathering perceptible forces from New England's coast-line villages. The scheme originated with Albert K. Owen, of New York, and the actual and spiritual leader of the movement is the Rev. William F. Eaton, whose portrait is given herewith. Mr. Eaton is an old man, who in his youth and after days has been identified with the anti-slavery, temperance, greenback, and other issues. He is energetic in all the present schemes of the colony and says they will go "as a peaceful people, eager to find homes where no one will be rich and no one poor, and where there will be no distinction of classes."



Jay Gould Never Hurried.

Jay Gould is never in a hurry. When he is on the witness stand he is as easy as an old shoe, sinks into the chair with a benevolent complacency, looks mildly around with an innocent air and—lets the opposition attorney try his hand on him all he wants. Nothing can surpass the calm urbanity of Mr. Gould at such a time, and nothing can surpass his skill in answering questions. He tells everything he knows; yet he tells nothing. Mr. Gould moves around quietly and unostentatiously and no man knows where he will turn up next, whether in St. Louis or in a pew in Dr. Paxton's church.
—New York Tribune.

TWO FRIENDS.

We have beside us ever two close friends,
Who walk on either hand thro' all our lives;
One with gay laughter takes our eager hand,
And leads us through youth's wondrous Pleasure Land—
Which with a tale of fabled glory vies;

Then guides us to the shade of sylvan groves,
Where love is blushing in the twilight sweet,
And all the air is filled with song of birds—
And heavy with the weight of tender words
From lips that melt together as they speak.

But with us, in our journeying with one,
The other walketh with his head bowed low,
A guest unwelcome is he, and unsought,
And when, by chance, we turn with merry thought,
A glance from him falls on our hearts like snow.

Yet, silent walks he. On our shrinking hearts
He lays no hand until his hour has come,
Then leads he even to the vale of Death,
And in the shadows there, with shuddering breath,
We recognize his features and are dumb!

Both friends! Ah! yes. The name of one is Joy—
Our heart strings quiver with his notes so gay.
But ere the wondrous symphony's complete,
Pale Sorrow's hand across the chords must sweep
To tune in perfect time life's melody.
—Grace D. Roe, in Detroit Free Press.

PITH AND POINT.

"This beats me," as the egg remarked when it saw the spoon.—Boston Bulletin.

It is said that the coming cow will have no horns. In that case the coming man will take none.—Picayune.

There is no oleomargarine about a goat. He is genuine butter every time, and gives full weight.—Drake's Magazine.

"Nerve Food" is advertised in different papers. We suppose it forms the chief diet of book-agents.—Pith and Point.

"How many women marry a good, sensible man?" asks Kate Field. Only one, if the man can help it.—North American.

It is the silly man who slings aside his paper with the comment that "half of it isn't worth reading."—The wise man reads the other half.—Philadelphia Call.

"Every lassie has her laddie"
To whisper words of love—
But every lassie has a daddy
To knock on the floor above.
—Life.

A Western farmer has had his infant son christened with twenty-six names. It is seldom we hear of a man cherishing such bitter enmity against his offspring.—Graphic.

Whene'er the small boy makes a racket
Or annoys his mother with his tunes,
She is sure to say she'll warm his jacket,
Though she always warms his pantaloons.
—Judge.

Why do we always talk about putting on a coat and vest? Who puts on a coat before the vest? We also say shoes and stockings. What's the matter with us, anyhow?—Philadelphia Call.

Kate Field says she is tired of the world, and "would like to live apart from the fashionable bustle." Why don't you take it off, then, Kate, and give it to the hired girl?—Minneapolis Tribune.

That the oyster is nutritious,
Quite exquisitely delicious,
Is a statement that can never be denied,
But he suddenly grows vicious;
Toward your stomach quite malicious,
When he's fried.
—Merchant Traveler.

Bricks That Will Float.

"Floating palaces" are often spoken of, but mostly by a figure of speech to describe certain splendid steamships. But now it seems that modern improvement has made it possible to build a brick house on the sea (?). Floating bricks are now successfully produced in France, the material of which they are composed being a kind of earth found in Tuscany, consisting of fifty-five parts of sandy earth, fifteen of magnesia, fourteen of water, twelve alumina, three lime, one iron. It exhales a clay-like odor, and, when sprinkled with water, throws out a light, whitish smoke. It is infusible in the fire; and though it loses about an eighth part of its weight, its bulk is scarcely diminished. Bricks composed of this substance, either baked or unbaked, float in the water, and a twentieth part of clay may be added to their composition without taking away their property of swimming. These bricks resist water, unite perfectly with lime, are subject to no alteration from the heat or cold, and the baked differ from the unbaked only in the sonorous quality which they acquire from the fire. Their strength is a little inferior to that of common bricks, but much greater in proportion to their weight. Thus a floating brick, measuring seven inches in breadth, and one inch eight lines in thickness, is said to weigh only fourteen and one-fourth ounces, whereas a common French brick was found to weigh five pounds and nearly seven ounces.—San Francisco Call.

Burial Place of the Booth Family.

The burial place of the Booth family is Greenmount cemetery, Baltimore, and Edwin Booth always visits the spot when he is in that city and lays flowers on the graves of his mother and sister. A plain monument stands in the lot. One side of it has these words: "In the same grave with Junius Brutus Booth is buried the body of Mary Ann, his wife, who survived him thirty-three years." On the opposite side is inscribed: "To the memory of the children of Junius Brutus and Mary Ann Booth—John Wilkes, Frederick, Elizabeth, Mary Ann, Henry Byron." On the east side is found: "Junius Brutus Booth, born May 1, 1796," and on the opposite side, "Died November 30, 1852." Close to the monument, on the south side, is a grave covered with ivy, said to mark the spot where lie the remains of John Wilkes Booth. One small rose bush is growing at the head of the grave and another at the foot. Edwin Booth defrays the expense of keeping the lot in order.

About 100 babies have been named after the present President of the United States.

CHILTON VIEW.

Published Every Thursday Morning.

CLANTON, ALA., JAN. 27, 1887.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One copy one year - - - - $1.50
One copy six months - - - .75
One copy four " - - - - .50

NEW POSTAL LAW.

Uncle Sam's New Postal Law to Protect Publishers.

A newspaper in Illinois recently brought suit against forty-three men who would not pay their subscriptions, and obtained judgement in each case for the full amount of each claim. Of these, twenty-eight made affidavit that they owned no more property than the law allowed them, thus preventing attachment. Then under the decision of the supreme court they were arrested for petty larceny and bound over in the sum of three hundred dollars each. All but six gave bond, while six went to jail. The new postal law makes it larceny to take a newspaper and refuse to pay for it.

Prohibition was defeated in Wetumpka recently.

Seven prisoners made their escape from the Scottsboro jail last week.

Selma and Union Springs both sustained heavy losses by fire last week.

The Talladega Advance has been sold to the Talladega Mountain Home and its publication will cease.

The Tuskegee Gazette publishes Dr. M. E. Cass, of Jersy City, N. Y., as a fraud, and asks its exchanges to copy.

We venture to state that there will be more people go crazy in this state over real estate than in any other state in the United States.

The editor of the Opelika Times is red-hot about parties who go from one person to another telling tales to cause trouble. Give it to 'em.

The excursion train of the northern lumbermen to this section came last Friday instead of the 22nd of February as was first stated by the papers.

The North Alabamian, published at Tuscumbia has changed hands. Z. H. Lasseter is now editor. M. A. S. McIver is still with the paper.

As the State is to have control of the money which the passage of the Blair Educational Bill will appropriate for school purposes we say let's have it.

Hon. Walter L. Bragg, of Montgomery, has announced himself as a candidate for the United States Senatorship in the election two years hence.

Maj. E. B. Stahlman, Vice President of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad is prominently spoken of as the winning man in the long term race for U. S. Senator before Tennessee Legislature.

The inter-state commerce bill has passed the house by a large majority and now only awaits the endorsement of the President to become a law. The effect it will have upon commerce is yet to be seen.

Judge Toulmin received Thursday morning the announcement that his nomination to the position of Judge of the United States District Court of Southern Alabama, has been confirmed by the Senate.

The Courier-Journal says that the Mugwump pirates are steering the Democratic ship into a Republican harbor. Come off! All the Mugwumps combined are not doing the Democratic party as much damage as the Courier-Journal.

The balance in the Alabama State Treasury, January 1st, was $140.363. This is $40,000 more than was in the Treasury at the corresponding date last year, and all the money for the payment of the January interest has been withdrawn and forwarded to the points of payments.

The Honorable Sol. Palmer, State Superintendent of Education, has designated and appointed Tuesday, February 22d, as Arbor Day for the schools in Alabama, and repectfully asks all the school officers and teachers in the State to observe the same as such. Every public in school Ala. is requested to plant at least one tree on said day; also one by each class, and, where practicable, one by each pupil, as a memorial, to be named and cared for by the school class or pupil planting the tree.

A Great Difference.

N. Y. Sun.]

It is reported that inasmuch as Mr. Randall opposed Col. Morrison's tariff bill, Col. Morrison is determined to resist the enactment of the scheme to reduce taxation which is to be presented by Mr. Randall.

There is one great difference between the plans of these two revenue reformers, which should cause Col. Morrison to refrain from treating that of his fellow reformer in the manner expected.

Col. Morrison's bill could not have been passed and be followed by Democratic success in 1888. Mr. Randall's plan, on the other hand, can be adopted, and still the Democrats can win in the next national canvass. Futhermore, if it doesn't pass, it is difficult to see how a Republican victory in 1888 can be prevented.

If the Democrats have serious thoughts of retaining what control of the Goverment they already enjoy, they will do well to think these facts over pretty carefully.

Peddlers.

Peddlers have heretofore been required to show their licenses. An amendment to this law requires all itinerant dealers and traveling agents to show their licenses upon demand of any officer authorized to make arrests. Peddlers of fish, oysters, game, fresh meats, poultry, fruits and farm products are exempted from license.

Peddlers of medicines have to pay $100 in each county against $25 under the old law, and peddlers of eye glasses or spectacles are put in the same category. Peddlers of medicines with music, vocal or instrumental, are charged $250 for each county in which they peddle.

The theory of a protective tariff becomes easier to understand to the citizens of the black belt of Alabama, since so many of them have invested in the mineral belt of Alabama. They begin to see why a tariff is necessary to the success of manufacturing in the south. If our congressmen would quit tinkering with the tariff, and agitating capital thereby, there would be any amount of money ready to build manufactories throughout the state of Alabama.—Capital.

In any event, the Democrats in the Fiftieth Congress will lose nothing by comparison of strength with the Forty-ninth. They gain one in California and one in Virginia, and lose one in Nevada. They are entitled to a gain each in New Jersey and Indiana, but if they do not get them their vote in the next senate will be one more than in the present.—Advertiser.

Since the above, New Jersey has elected a Democrat. The Indiana deadlock continues.

Resolutions Adopted by the Cane Creek Farmer's Club.

COLLIN'S CHAPEL, CHILTON CO.,
Jan. 14, 1887.

We citizens of Chilton county and members of the Farmer's Association in county convention assembled, being apprised that the names of different gentlemen have been announced as candidates for the position of Commissioner of Agriculture, have unanimously passed the following resolutions:

Resolved 1st, That, whereas we feel a deep interest in the Department of Agriculture believing that a proper administration of that office will result in much good to us as Agriculturists, and whereas we know of no man more worthy or deserving, and believe that no one would administer the Department to the interest of and give greater satisfaction to the whole people than Hon. Hiram Hawkins, of Barbour county.

Therefore be it resolved by the clubs represented in county convention, that we earnestly appeal to his Excellency the Governor, Hon. Thomas Seay, in behalf of the farming interest of the State to appoint Col. Hawkins Commissioner of Agriculture as successor to the Hon. E. C. Betts.

2nd, That the "Southern Agriculturist" and our county paper are respectfully requested to publish these resolutions.

IN SESSION, Jan. 15, 1887.

We, citizens of Chilton county and members of the Farmer's Association in county convention assembled, being apprised that a bill has been introduced and passed by that honorable body, the House of Representatives, entitled an act to creat a Board of Revenue for Chilton Co., therefore be it resolved 1st, That it is with feelings of the greatest indignation that we are aware of this fact, and consider it an outrage, and as derogatory to us as citizens of said county.

2nd, That the passage of said act by the Senate and its approval by the Gov. will be virtually taking away the right of franchise from us as citizens.

3rd, That the passage of said act will be, if not unconstitutional, tyrannical and very undemocratic.

4th, That we the undersigned citizens and members of the said County Association, petition that honorable body, the Senate of the State of Alabama, in Legislature assembled, not to create said act into a law.

5th, That we appoint a committee of two members to obtain petitions expressive of our sentiments and present them to the honorable body of the Senate at the convening of the Legislature.

6th, That the Southern Agriculturist, Montgomery Advertiser and CHILTON VIEW, be respectfully requested to publish these proceedings.

C. W. STANLEY, Pres. pro. tem.
ALEX G. DAKE, Sec'y pro. tem.

Why They Don't Subscribe.

Twenty-six citizens were recently brought before a conclave of haughty and wealthy editors and invited under the pain of death to give the reason why they do not subscribe for their county paper.

Mr. A said the reason he didn't take it was because he was already taking so many papers he wasn't able.—(Interrupted by hisses.)

Mr. B won't take it because it is full of advertisements, and has so little reading matter in it. (Reports on agriculture were handed him.)

Mr. C because it has too much politics; county editors have no business with politics. (He had no political friends.)

Mr. D because it gave no politics and foreign news; a county paper ought to be filled with matters abroad. (He was sent to travel at Rome, and brought back a fool at home.)

Mr. E because his neighbor takes it, and he borrows it in exchange for the Police Gazette. (A move was made for him to go out.)

Mr. F because he hasn't time to read. (Groans, Weeping, and Gnashing.)

Mr. G because he is afraid the paper will "play out" before the time expires for which he would have to pay. (A voice—"Kill him!")

Mr. H couldn't give any reason. (Chromo was voted Mr. H.)

Mr. I won't take it because it left his name out of a picnic description last year. (Tears and mourning.)

Mr. J because it put his name in a court local which stated that he had a fight with a neighbor's calf, killed and skinned it, and sold the hide to a merchant after dark.—(Forty grains of morphine were voted to him to steady his nerves.)

Mr. K because the editor asked him for last year's subscription, and he wasn't going to be dunned for so small an amount. (He was reminded of the Golden Rule.)

Mr. L won't take it because he is too poor; he needs every cent he can scrape to buy his whiskey. (A kangaroo was bought for him at once.)

Mr. M because there is nothing in it. (Mr. M was employed to run a paper one month.)

Mr. N because his wife reads it so much she forgets to sew on his buttons and cook his meals. (Mr. N takes the cake.)

Mr. O because his neighbors borrow his copy all the time; there is no pleasure in subscribing, and he wants them to pay for it awhile. (The badge of selfishness was voted him.)

Mr. P because it doesn't advocate Prohibition. (Mr. P was caught hiding a bottle that night.)

Mr. Q because it doesn't advocate whisky. (This man was funnelled with a quart of alcohol.)

Mr. R won't take it because he can't dictate the editor's opinions. (He was reminded of the fate of some other people.)

Mr. S because he can't get it regularly. (Taken out on a shutter.)

Mr. T because it is dimly printed. (A pair of spectacles was presented him.)

Mr. U because the paper is too small for the money. (An extra blank sheet is put in for U.]

Mr. V because it has so little county news in it, a county paper should have nothing else; [He is reminded that "to err is human."]

Mr. W because it has no poetry or tales. [Mr. W is a spring poet.]

Mr. X discontinued his because the editor mistook a load of wood for a bundle of peasticks brought to pay a year's subscription. [Sensation.]

Mr. Y won't take it because the editor advocated the other man for office. [Man's inhumanity to man.]

Mr. Z because the county paper costs $1.50 and he can get the Atlanta Constitution for less money. [Tar and feathers were ordered, but on Mr. Z promising to subscribe the sentence was remitted.]—Ex.

Noteheads, billheads, letterheads, envelopes, statements, programmes, posters, dodgers, circular letters, visiting and business cards, commissary checks, &c. &c., printed at the VIEW Job Office, at reasonable prices and on short notice.

TRESSLAR,
Artistic Photographer
10 COURT SQUARE,
Montgomery.
Life Size Photographs a Specialty.
Photograhs, on Silk, Satin and Linen.
Photographs on watch dials.
Enameled Photographs.
All Sittings made Instantaneously.
Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged.
☞ Correspondence solicited. ☜
[jan21-tf]

E. WALL. P. GIACOPAZZI.
WALL & GIACOPAZZI,
Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Commission Merchants,
Second Ave. and Twentieth St.
Birmingham, - - - - Ala.

References: S. Oteri, New Orleans; Jos. Denunzio, Louisville; Buhr, Wendte & Co., Cincinnati; Underhill, Stewart & Shotta, N. Y.; Wm. D. Clarke & Co., New Orleans; Cowing & Clark, Cincinnati; A. G. Conant & Co., N. Y.; First National Bank, Birmingham, Ala.

H. H. BARCLIFT & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Grocers,
No. 2118 2d Ave. Bet. Twenty-first and Twenty-Second Sts.
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
☞ We solicit a share of the patronage of the merchants of Chilton County. Send us your orders.

Take Notice.

It will be seen in this paper that my appointments for assessing the taxes for the year 1887, will close March the 10th. The law under section 33, page 33, Revenue Code, makes it my duty to increase the taxes of all tax payers who fail to make returns of their property for the assessment of taxes as the law requires, 50 per cent.

WM. A. SMITH,
Tax Assessor, C. C. A.

"Hi Pompey! what you 'fraid of?
What makes you shake and shibber?"
"Law chile! ise got de ague
An got de tropic libber."
"De tropic libber Pompey?
I don't know what you means:
But you can cure your ague
By taking SMITH'S BILE BEANS.
Two bits a bottle, don't pay more!
You'll get dem at de drugman's store."
The most economical and best remedy for ague. 25 cents, per bottle.

The good effects of Ellis' P. P. P. on a debilitated person are felt at once, and a cure follows its use. If suffering from blood poison try a bottle. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Shiloh's Vitalizer is what you need for Constipation, loss of appetite, dizziness, and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle.

No family should be without Ellis' Magic Oil Liniment, the greatest external remedy known. It cures all aches and pains. Price 25 cents per bottle, at W. H. Phillips.

Sleepless nights made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by M. J. Greene Clanton. jun16y

Take one of Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pillets at night before you go to bed and you will be surprised how buoyant and vigorous you will feel the next day. Only 25 cents a vial.

NOTICE OF ESTRAY.

STATE OF ALABAMA,
CHILTON COUNTY.

To all whom it may concern. Take notice that on the 7th day of January 1887 a certain black mule found estray was taken up by Jas. A. Mullins. The value of which animal has been duly appraised according to law by A. J. Hall and W. H. Foshee, summoned by W. E. Stewart, justice peace for said county, to be fifty dollars; with the following description: dark bay horse mule, under medium size, with long mane and tail and is about nine years old.

H. J. CALLEN,
Judge of Probate.
Jan13-3t

NOTICE NO. 5962.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 19, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court, or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., March 8th, 1887, viz: Isaac M. Deason, Homestead, 11877, for the e ½ of the se ¼ and se ¼ of sw ¼, and sw ¼ of se ¼, sec 2, township 20 N, range 13 E. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said lands, viz: John H. Gray, Mac D. Gray, William I. Mullins and Joseph Popwell, all of Kincheon, Ala.

jan20* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

Election Notice.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA,
CHILTON COUNTY.

Under and by virtue of an order issued to me by the Hon. H. J. Callen, Judge of Probate for said county, notice is hereby given that there will be an election held in beat No. 7, at the places of voting in said beat, in the county of Chilton, on the 8th day of February, 1887, for the purpose of determining whether or not spiritous, vinous or malt liquors, shall be sold, given away or otherwise disposed of anywhere within the limits of said beat. Those voting against prohibition will write or print upon their tickets, "No Prohibition." Those voting for prohibition will write or print upon their tickets "Prohibition."

J. T. SMITHERMAN,
Sheriff Chilton Co.
jan6 3in-3t
Printer's fee $6.00

Assessor's Notice.

SECOND ROUND.

I will attend the following named places and days for the purpose of assessing the taxes of Chilton county for the year 1887:

Thomas Robert's, Beat 8, Tuesday, February 15th.
Stanton, Beat 8, Wednesday, Feb. 16th.
Dixie, " 8, Thursday, " 17th.
Howison, " 8, Friday, " 18th.
Latham's " 7, Monday " 21st.
Maplesville " 7, Tuesday " 22nd.
Benson " 3, Wednesday " 23rd.
Macedonia Church Beat 3, Thursday February 24th.
Providence Church, Beat 2, Friday February 25th.
Jemison, Beat 2, Saturday, Feb. 26th.
Jemison, " 2, Monday, " 28th.
Mullins " 1, Tuesday, March 1st.
Clanton " 4, Wednesday, " 2nd.
Clanton " 4, Thursday, " 3rd.
Cooper's " 5, Friday, " 4th.
Cooper's " 5, Saturday " 5th.
Verbena " 5, Monday, " 7th.
Verbena " 5, Tuesday, " 8th.
Kincheon " 6, Thursday, " 10th.

WM. A. SMITH,
Tax Assessor, C. C. A.
jan20-3

For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Sick Headache and a sensation of oppression and dullness in the head are very commonly produced by indigestion; morbid despondency, irritability and over-sensitiveness of the nerves may, in a majority of cases, be traced to the same cause. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm and Pillets will positively cure. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton. sep11 3

Administrator's Sale.

Under and by virtue of an order and decree of the honorable M. T. Porter, Judge of Probate for Jefferson county Ala., I will sell at public auction in front of the courthouse at Clanton in Chilton county Alabama on Monday the 24th day of January, 1887, at twelve o'clock M., all the following described personal and real estate belonging to the estate of N. H. Thornton deceased, to-wit: One sole leather trunk, one picture and frame, and one spring mattress. The north half of north east quarter, and the north east quarter of north west quarter of section seven township twenty-one and range fifteen.

Also north east quarter of north east quarter of section twenty-eight, township twenty-two and range fourteen. Also lot No. 2, block 1, and the east half of lot 8 block 2, in the town of Clanton, on the west side of the South and North R. R., all in Chilton Co., Ala., with all the improvements thereon.

These lots are most desirably located in the thriving town of Clanton, county seat of Chilton Co., Ala., noted for its pure atmosphere and water and close proximity to the famous "Hot Well" which is still hot and will some day be to Alabama as Hot Springs is to Arkansas. The lands are also within a mile of the "Hot Well," of light loamy soil and lying well and most desirable for dairy and truck farming.

Terms of sale cash. I will show the property to any one calling on me at this place.

L. A. THORNTON,
Clanton, Ala., Administrator.
Jan'y 5th, 1887. 5in 3t

The date of the above sale has been changed to January 31st.

BANDMAN & CO.,
Wholesale Grocers,
P. O BOX 251,
1st Avenue, bet. 18th and 19th Streets,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
jan 13 6m

MARRIAGE GUIDE
260 PAGES, Illustrated, in Cloth and Gilt Binding, 50c. money or stamps. Same, paper cover, 25c. This Book contains ALL the curious, doubtful or inquisitive want to know. Full of very interesting and valuable information. HEALTH, BEAUTY and HAPPINESS are promoted by its advice—who may Marry, who not, why; Medical Aid, when necessary, brought home to you. 50 Wonderful PEN PICTURES, true to life. Young or old, married or single, sick or well, should read it. Sent sealed by DR. WHITTIER, St. Louis, Mo. CUT THIS OUT AND SEND WITH ORDER.

VOLINA CORDIAL
CURES Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weakness, Chills and Fevers, Malaria, Liver Complaint, Kidney Troubles, Neuralgia and Rheumatism.

IT is invigorating and delightful to take, and of great value as a Medicine for Weak and Ailing Women and Children. It gives New Life to the whole System by Strengthening the Muscles, Toning and Invigorating the Nerves, and completely Digesting the food. contains no hurtful Minerals, is composed of carefully-selected Vegetable Medicines, combined skillfully, making a Safe and Pleasant Remedy.

VOLINA CORDIAL

A BOOK, "Volina," by leading physicians, telling how to treat diseases at Home, mailed, together with a Set of Handsome Cards by new Heliotype process, on receipt of 10 cents.

For sale by all Druggists and Grocers. Should the dealer near you not keep VOLINA CORDIAL, remit $1.00, and a full-size bottle will be sent, charges paid. Prepared only by—
VOLINA DRUG AND CHEMICAL COMPANY, BALTIMORE, MD., U. S. A.

WINTER! SPRING!
During the Season of Winter MALARIA Lurks in the System!
COLLINS' AGUE CURE
One Dose a day, taken three days in succession, each month, or when you feel badly in any way, will fully Cleanse your Blood, Remove all Bilious Secretions & Malarial Poison from your System, and Insure GOOD HEALTH IN THE SPRING.
PRICE, FIFTY CENTS PER BOTTLE.
If you are troubled with a COUGH, COLD, SORENESS in CHEST, or any Affection of Throat or Lungs, use DR. JACKSON'S
Syrup LUNGWORT & WILD CHERRY
Sold at 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 a Bottle.
If your EYES are affected in any way, use DR. JACKSON'S CELEBRATED INDIAN EYE SALVE.
Sold Everywhere at 25 cents per Box.
Send for Collins Bros.' "Present Century Almanac" for 1887. Mailed to any address or at any Drug Store.
COLLINS BROS. DRUG CO., St. Louis, Mo.
jun24-y

GREETING
TO THE
PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY:
E. ERSWELL,
19th STREET, BETWEEN FIRST AND SECOND AVENUE.
Birmingham, Ala.
BEGS TO ANNOUNCE THAT HE WOULD LIKE A SHARE OF YOUR PATRONAGE AND IS PREPARED TO SELL AS LOW AS ANY.
Mail orders solicited and satisfaction guaranteed. Telegraph orders promptly filled. Rooms carpeted to order. Decorating and House Furnishing a Specialty.
Largest Carpet Parlor in Alabama.
FINEST SELECTION OF FURNITURE IN THE SOUTH.
WINDOW SHADES OF NEWEST AND LATEST STYLES.
Heavy Stock of Picture Frames.
E. Erswell has the most complete stock of Carpets in Alabama Carpets, Oil Cloths, Linoleums, Mattings of all grades and in endless varieties. Office Furniture. Desks of all Styles. Book Cases in Walnut, Mahogany, &c., Wardrobe Settees, Side-Boards, Folding beds, Washstands, Extension Tables, In fact everything in the Furniture and Carpet line. Wall Papers of all Grades.
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED AND WARRANTED FIRST CLASS MATERIAL.
No shoddy goods, but genuine and honest work. Full line of Undertakers goods. Telegraph orders promptly attended to.
E. ERSWELL,
☞ Next Door to Opera House. P. O. Box 30. ☜

BAINS & HERRING.
(SUCCESSORS TO JONES & CO., JONES & BASS, W. A. COOK & CO.)
WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.
Mail and Express Orders Will Receive Prompt Attention.
FINE WINES AND LIQUORS A SPECIALTY.
1926 FIRST AVENUE, BETWEEN 19th and 20th STREETS,
Birmingham, Ala.
☞ Fine Stock of Chas Carley's Oils at Company's Prices. ☜
P. O. BOX 570. June 19 y

BEST GRADES OF MERCHANDISE
At JOHN GARNER'S, Clanton.
sep3-tf

J. C. HENDRICKS, Presd't. T. T ASHFORD, Sec'y & Treas
Birmingham Paint, Glass and Wall Paper Co.
Successors to
MAYBERRY & ASHFORD.
Jobbers and Retailers of
Paints, Oils, Window Glass, Plate, Sky-Light and Colored Glass, Sash, Doors, Blinds and Moulding,
Painters' and Artists' Supplies.
WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES, and CURTAIN FIXTURES.
1912 Second Avenue, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
☞ Write for Samples of Wall Paper and Estimates on Glass. jun10

MINERAL CITY TIN AND STOVE HOUSE
SECOND AVENUE BETWEEN 18TH AND 19TH STREETS,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
Pat Walsh, Manager.
A Large Line of HEATING and COOKING STOVES always on hand. All Kinds of
Tin, Sheet Iron Roofing and Job Work
DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.
☞ Orders by mail will receive prompt attention. nov 11

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH.
The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, many of them handsomely illustrated, and all are printed from good type upon good paper. [illegible]
Anecdotes of the Rebellion. [illegible]
The Life of General U. S. Grant. [illegible]
Poems, by John G. Whittier. [illegible]
Poems by Henry W. Longfellow. [illegible]
[illegible]
Special Offer! [illegible]
F. M. LUPTON, Publisher, No. 2 Park Place, New York.

CHILTON VIEW.

CLANTON, ALA., JAN. 27, 1887.

THE VIEW is published every Thursday morning, and will endeavor to cover the field of reputable country journalism. It will show no quarter to the deceitful, the immoral or the ungodly. It will always be good natured, although it can bite if necessary.

Those answering advertisements will confer a favor by mentioning this paper.

COURT CALENDAR.

Chancery—Friday after the first Mondays in April and October.

Circuit—Fourth Monday in March, and fifth Monday after the fourth Monday in August.

Commissioners'—Regular term second Monday in February and August, and first Monday in April and November. Special term second Monday in July.

County—First Monday in each month.

SCHEDULE S. & N. ALA. RAILROAD. —Trains pass Clanton daily, as follows:

GOING SOUTH.
No. 1 at	5:45 a. m.
No. 3	5:43 p. m.
No. 7	3:00 p. m.
No. 51	60:5 a. m.
GOING NORTH.
No. 2	9:21 a. m.
No. 12	9:55 a. m.
No. 4	*9:43 p. m.
No. 50	6:45 p. m.

* Don't stop.

LOCAL DOTTINGS.

Subscribe for the VIEW.

Send us your orders for job work.

Mr. W. M. Burton is deputy tax collector for this beat.

Mr. G. W. Deramus, of Jemison, was in Clanton last Thursday.

Rev. A. E. Burns will preach in the Baptist church next Sunday.

Croup, Whooping cough and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. jun16 y

Mr. Wallace Glover and wife, of Pratt Saw Mill, spent Sunday with friends in Clanton.

Newman's Southern Flower Cologne is the best. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Mrs. W. L. Sampey, of this place, is visiting her mother in Tuskegee, whom we regret to learn is dangerously ill.

Mr. Peyton Aldridge, of this place; supervisor of this division of the L. & N. road, was laid up at home for a few days last week with a sprained foot.

Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures consumption. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton Ala.

Our merchants should remember that dealers in pistols and cartridges are now required to pay a heavy license. And remembering this they should not be violators of the law.

The young men's debating club, at this place, being a thing of the past, the money left in the treasury of the club has been donated, by the members, to the building fund of the new Methodist church.

The date of sale of the N. H. Thornton property has been changed from the 24th to the 31st inst., as will be seen by reference to the bottom of the advertisement of administrator's sale in another column.

Life will acquire new zest, and cheerfulness will return, if you will impel your liver and kidneys to the performance of their functions Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm will stimulate them to healthful action. $1.00 per bottle. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

We learn and chronicle with regret the fact that a license has been issued for the sale of whiskey at Jumbo, beat 1, this county. We did not publish the petition asking for the license because we did not get our hands on it.

If our merchants and business men generally wish to get up a good substantial boom for our town let them advertise extensively in their county paper, so people can see what sort of a town we have, and the boom will come sure.

Read the resolutions, published in another column, adopted at a recent meeting of the Cane Creek farmer's club. They oppose the bill introduced by our representative, and endorse Col. Hiram Hawkins, of Barbour county, for Commissioner of Agriculture.

See the new advertisements in this issue: Notice of Dissolution; Tressler the photographer of Montgomery; J. M. Hutchason's advertisment of the Montgomery Stables; The Troy Steam Laundry card, a new final proof notice and a notice of suit in chancery.

Frank Baker, colored, who was sentenced, at the last term of our circuit court, to the penitentiary for life, for the killing of Sol. Love, another negro, was carried to work on a convict farm last Saturday. His case was carried to the supreme court which affirmed the decision of the lower court, last week.

A New Railroad for Chilton and Bibb Counties.

Messrs. Welch & Bro., of Welch's Mill, on the E. T. V. & G. railroad in the western portion of this county, will apply to the Legislature upon its reassembling, for a charter to extend their narrow guage railroad from its present point of terminus, in this county, to Centerville, the county seat of Bibb, a distant of about thirty miles.

It is to be greatly hoped that the charter will be granted them as the extension of this road will not only increase the taxable property in the two counties but will open a thoroughfare which will be of great usefulness to the traveling public, as they propose to run regular freight and passenger trains over this road and make it a paying enterprise of no small magnitude. We have seen a diagram of the road and think there are many good locations along its route for new towns and villages which as a natural consequence will be built up subsequent to its extension.

The Mexican War Pension Bill

Has become a law and provides that a pension of $8 a month shall be paid to all officers and enlisted men who actually served sixty days or were actually engaged in a battle in said war and were honorably discharged, and to the surviving widows of such officers and enlisted men, provided such widows have not re-married.

I have arrangements made for the speedy and successful prosecution, in Washington, of claims under this law and will receive and attend to all such cases in Bibb, Shelby and Chilton counties as are entrusted to me.

S. R. SHEPPARD.
Att'y at Law, Brierfield, Ala.

ja27-4t

What has become of our Dixie correspondent and why don't he let us hear from him? We have just heard of a sad death in his community but are not positive as to its being correct and would like to know more about it. We also learn of the marriage of Mr. K. Carter Jr., of that place, to an Arkansas lady. We extend congratulations and wish them much happiness.

We learn that several parties were arrested by revenue officers, in this county last week, for the illegal distilling and selling of intoxicating liquors. This God-forsaken industry was being carried on near Jemison. The distilling was done several miles out in the country around however and we suppose the selling of it was also.

Some interesting communications are crowded out this week but will appear in our next issue.

OVER THE COUNTY.

News Gathered up by Our Correspondents.

Dots from Six Mile Creek.

More sickness in the community than usual.

A little child of Mr. John Martin's was painfully burned a short time since, caused by standing too near the fire.

Mrs. David Crumpton has been very low with typhoid fever.

Mr. Joseph Waldrup, accidentally fell from his wagon recently, and was badly hurt.

A Baptist Sunday-school was organized at Crumpton's school house on the 16th inst. May much good result therefrom.

Mr. S. E. Waldrup, has an attack of the fever.

Misses Darthulia and Alice Davenport, of the Mulberry neighborhood, are visiting friends here.

We hope the cause of prohibition will gain the victory in beat No 7, every christian should be deeply interested and cast his vote against the monster evil of intemperance.

JULIUS

Jumbo Dots.

Jumbo, Jan. 20th, 1887.

We don't know of any sickness in this community.

Farmers are beginning to make another crop and we hope everybody will make a good one and enough so that the miller can have a hot-cake occasionally.

Our new preacher, Rev. Mr. Lindsay, filled his appointment last Sunday and he preached a very interesting sermon which was liked by all. He also preached at the Baptist church on Saturday.

Rev. A. E. Burns filled his regular appointment, last Saturday and Sunday at this place.

Beat No. 1 is as dry as it has been in a long time, and we hope it will stay dry and the saloon keeper quit selling hell by the ten cents worth.

Mr. James Atkinson is going to move up in Shelby county soon.

Mr. W. A. Davis is teaching school near "Trink" Littleton's.

Wonder if "Pat" has got home yet. We'd like to hear.

Everybody ought to take the VIEW. Success to it.

YOU KNOW.

Concord Locals.

Not since we had the pleasure of reading the interesting CHILTON VIEW has there been any news from this neighborhood. Therefore we send a few dots to let the world know where we are and what we are doing.

This neighborhood is situated in the northern part of Chilton county. It has a beautiful valley, upon which a beautiful creek runs, on whose banks there are many pleasant farms situated.

The health of the community is good.

Mr. John Garner, of Clanton, visited friends here the 21st.

Mr. L. H. Reynolds, after spending a few days with his parents, has returned to Chattanooga.

Miss Ida Hester has returned to Six Mile to attend school.

Mr. Henry Lyman, of Birmingham, visited the family of Mr. R. L. Woolley last Sunday.

Mr. W. A. Reynolds got his foot badly mashed by a tram car passing over it.

Married, on the 15th inst., Mr. Newton Eddins to Miss Racheal Wallace, of Six Mile.

New buggies were flying around last Sunday like it was Spring.

The school of Miss Lucy Meredith is on a boom. It only takes a good church and a good school to make a good community and we have both.

PEACEFUL BOY.

Bivings, Duke & Co's Mills.

Dr. A. E. Bivings, of this place, met the excursion of the Union Lumber Association at Birmingham to assist in escorting to the banquet that was held at the Exchange Hotel, Montgomery, Ala.

The infant son of Mr. Wm. A. Jones, who has been very sick for the past week, is improving.

Miss Rebecca Holder who has been on a visit to her father at the Pratt Saw Mills, has returned.

We regret to say that Yancy, the little son of Dr. Bivings, is quite sick.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Herbert spent last Saturday and Sunday in Verbena attending quarterly meeting.

Maj. and Dr. Bivings returned Saturday evening much pleased with the excursionists.

The latest wonder we can boast of is the baby of a colored woman, Joanna Bugg, that has six well formed fingers on each hand.

We are sorry to hear of the death of Mr. Newton Culp, who lived a few miles west of us. A very strange and unfortunate circumstance occurred in connection. He was buried last Friday morning. His wife and children did not return home but went to the house of friends. Sunday morning about four o'clock neighbors discovered that Mrs. Culp's house was on fire, and when they reached the house the flames had already reached every part of the building, burning up the house and everything on earth they possessed in the way of clothing and food. This is truly a distressing case and the people of the county should respond to their call for help.

OLD MAID.

Croup is a treacherous disease, and generally the most severe at night when unable to properly watch it. The best known remedy is Ellis' C. S. A. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

If you are suffering with weak or inflamed eyes, or granulated eyelids, you can be quickly cured by using Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve. 25 cents a box. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

NOTICE OF DISSOLUTION.

The partnership heretofore existing between W. M. Wilson and P. D. Wilson, under the firm name of W. M. Wilson & Bro., is this day desolved by mutual consent. The business will be continued by W. M. Wilson, who becomes liable for all the debts of the late firm and all persons indebted to said firm, of Wilson & Bro. are requested to settle their accounts with W. M. Wilson.

W. M. Wilson,
P. D. Wilson.

jan27-3t

NOTICE NO. 5969.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 20, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March, 5th, 1887, viz: Elijah B. Wyatt, Homestead application, No. 16689, for the e ½ of se ¼, sec. 24, township 22, range 15 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: Redding E. Jones, Andrew J. Peters, Monroe J. Parish and Moses Bater, all of Clanton, Ala.

jan27* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

SUIT IN CHANCERY.

B. H. Chesnutt, Complainant, vs. John H. Easterling, Defendant. In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of Wm. A. Collier, Esq., solicitor for the Complainant in the above stated cause that the Defendant, John H. Easterling, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, that his particular place of residence is unknown to affiant, and futher that in the belief of affiant the defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Chilton View, a newspaper published in the town of Clanton, for four consecutive weeks requiring him the said John H. Easterling to answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 28th day of February, 1887, or in thirty days thereafter a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office this 25th day of January 1887. W. E. STEWART, Register.

jan27-4t

Printer's fee $7.50.

MONTGOMERY FURNITURE COMPANY.

—DEALERS IN—

Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Looking Glasses, Lounges, Hall Racks, Wardrobes, Chairs, Safes, Side Boards, Cradles, Cribs, Baby Carriages, Spring Beds, Mattresses, Refrigerators, Pianos. Organs, Carpets,

And All Kinds of Furniture!

A. C. ROGERS, Manager,
210 Bibb Street, Wharton's Old Stand Next to McDonald's Opera House.

sep2 y

FURNITURE AND WALL PAPER FOR EVERYBODY!

OUR STOCK OF FURNITURE, WINDOW SHADES, LACE CURTAINS, WALL PAPER, SPRING BEDS, AND MATTRESSES IS NOW COMPLETE.

Anybody in need of the above articles will find it to their interest to look at our immense stock. We guarantee everything we sell, and sell it cheaper than anybody in this State.

SQUARE DEALING IS OUR MOTTO!

B. WOLFF & BRO., Montgomery.
20 Commerce and Corner Court and Coosa Streets.

sept 15-6

Ellis' Magic Liver Pills are safe for children, and are more effective than any other cathartic pill on the market. If not found satisfactory return and get your money. For sale by W. H. Phillips. aug26-y

Will you suffer with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

That hacking cough can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's cure. We guarantee it. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Money to Loan!

I am prepared to negotiate mortgage loans on farming lands in Chilton county in sums of three hundred dollars and upwards. Rates cheap and negotiations speedily concluded. Apply to or correspond with

H. L. WILLIAMS,
Att'y at Law, Wetumpka.

oct7

NOTICE NO. 5783.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 4, 1886.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver United States Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., on Febuary 19th, 1887, viz: Maria House, Homestead application No. 18475, for the s ½ of n e ¼ sec 28 t 20 n range 15 e. She names the following witnesses to prove her continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: John Ray, Monroe Gill, Stephen Price, Lewis Price, all of Verbena, Ala.

d30 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5884.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 28, 1886.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on Febuary, 5th 1887, viz: Nancy J. Norris, Homestead 12737 for the se ¼ of sec. 21, township 21, range 16 east. He names the following witness to prove his continuance residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Thos. Mims, William D. Goss, Harrison Kendrick and Clopton Ray, all of Verbena, Ala.

dec30 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5991.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery Ala., Jan. 26, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the Clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March 5th, 1887, viz: Asa J. Rolinson, Homestead 18106, for the se ¼ of the ne ¼ and the ne ¼ of se ¼, sec. 24, township 20 n, range 12 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William Roberts, Wm. Robuck, Wm. Klinner and Wm. H. Foshee, Jr., all of Dixie, Ala.

jan27 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

STOP AT

Morris Avenue Hotel,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Corner Morris Avenue and 20th Street

ELYTON LAND CO. BUILDING.

HUGH KIRKMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Splendid rooms, well ventilated and elegantly furnished. Rates reasonable.

FARMER'S TAKE NOTICE!

When You Come to Town to buy Goods Call at

R. P. Wooley & Co.'s Cheap Cash Store!

Next to the Railroad on North side of Main Street, Clanton.

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

[sep8-6]

This space is reserved by

A. J. BROOKS

AT VERBENA, ALA.,

FOR FUTURE ADVERTISING

☞WATCH IT.☜

JUST RECEIVED AT

S. E. HIRSCHER'S

21 Dexter Ave., Montgomery,

An endless variety of New Novelties in HOLIDAY GOODS, and placed before our patrons for inspection. You are cordially invited to call and see us. HEADQUARTERS FOR EVERYTHING IN THE MUSIC LINE. Agency world renowned

WEBER, DECKER BROS., STIEF and KRANICH & BACH PIANOS.

☞ Sold on Easy Terms. Prices the Lowest in the State. [nov 18 3]

SHAW & DAVIN,

Machinery & Mill Supplies,

—MORRIS AVENUE AND 22D STREET.—

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

ENGINES, BOILERS, SAW MILLS, CORN MILLS, SHINGLE MACHINES, CORN MILLS, SUGAR MILLS,

COTTON GINS, COTTON PRESSES. PULLEYS, SHAFTING, BELTING, and MACHINISTS' SUPPLIES.

Largest Stock in the State.

Write for Circulars and Prices. P. O. Box 808. [july8

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE.

☞ CURES—Diphtheria, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Bleeding at the Lungs, Hoarseness, Influenza, Hacking Cough, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Chronic Diarrhoea, Kidney Troubles, and Spinal Diseases. Pamphlet free. Dr. I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass.

PARSONS' MAKE NEW, RICH BLOOD. PILLS

These pills were a wonderful discovery. No others like them in the world. Will positively cure or relieve all manner of disease. The information around each box is worth ten times the cost of a box of pills. Find out about them and you will always be thankful. One pill a dose. Illustrated pamphlet free. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25c. in stamps. Dr. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., 22 C. H. St., Boston.

MAKE HENS LAY

Sheridan's Condition Powder is absolutely pure and highly concentrated. One ounce is worth a pound of any other kind. It is strictly a medicine to be given with food. Nothing on earth will make hens lay like it. It cures chicken cholera and all diseases of hens. Is worth its weight in gold. Illustrated book by mail free. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. 2 1-4 lb. air-tight tin cans, $1; by mail, $1.20. Six cans by express, prepaid, for $5.00. Dr. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston.

TROY STEAM LAUNDRY,

Nos. 17 & 19 N. Lawrence Street,

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

P. O. BOX 282.

☞ Orders by mail are solicited and will receive prompt attention.

J. W. GUR, Proprietor.

BRICK WORK

J. M. DAWSON,

CLANTON, ALA.

Is prepared to do all kinds of brick work in the best style. The patronage of the public solicited.

feb15-tf]

Clanton Barber Shop

—BY—

MEREDITH CANN,

Who is prepared to do all work in the tonsorial line. Hair dressing and shaving in the best style. Prices low.

A. W. KEY & CO.,

Manufacturers' State Agents for

Engines, Saw Mills, BOILERS,

—AND—

General Machinery,

P. O. Box 741,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Nabers & Morrow,

Wholesale Druggists,

FIRST AVENUE,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

MEDICINES,

Fine Wines, Liquors, Oils, Etc.

☞ Agents for Chess Carley & Co.'s Oils. [june10]

J. M. Hutchason's

BOARDING, LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLES.

Select Dray and Plantation Mules constantly on hand.

Draying and Hauling Promptly Attended to Always ready to take Contracts for Putting in Dirt

Moving Stone, Engines, Boilers, Machinery and other heavy hauling.

RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS AND DAMAGE.

Satisfaction Guaranteed. Handsome Carriages and Double Teams, with or without Drivers.

☞ MONTGOMERY STABLES, Lawrence Street, Opp. P. O., Telephone 446. janly

A FINE

FLORIDA TONIC!

MR. FOSTER S. CHAPMAN,

One of the landmarks of the Georgia Drug trade, now of Orlando, Florida, writes:

"I can hardly select a single case of the many to whom I have sold "Guinn's Pioneer Blood Renewer," but what have been satisfied, and I find it the best remedy for all skin diseases I have ever sold, and a Fine Florida Tonic.

FOSTER S. CHAPMAN,
Orlando, Florida.

A Certain Cure for Catarrh!

A SUPERB

FLESH PRODUCER & TONIC!

Guinn's Pioneer Blood Renewer

Cures all Blood and Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Scrofula, Old Sores. A perfect Spring Medicine.

If not in your market it will be forwarded on receipt of price. Small bottles $1.00, large $1.75.

Essay on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free.

MACON MEDICINE COMPANY
Macon, Ga.

may13-y]

SMITH'S BILE BEANS

CURE Biliousness; Sick Headache in Four Hours. One dose relieves Neuralgia. They cure and prevent Chills & Fever, Sour Stomach & Bad Breath. Clear the Skin, Tone the Nerves, and give Life & Vigor to the system. Dose: ONE BEAN. Try them once and you will never be without them. Price, 25 cents per bottle. Sold by Druggists and Medicine Dealers generally. Sent on receipt of price in stamps, postpaid, to any address.

J. F. SMITH & CO.,
Manufacturers and Sole Props., ST. LOUIS, MO.

feb25-6

Catarrh cured, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal Injector free. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Thompson, Francis & Chenoweth,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA,

—DEALERS IN—

HARDWARE,

Sash, Doors and Blinds, Paints, Oils and Glass, Cement and Plaster, Mantels and Grates, and a complete line of Cooking and Heating Stoves.

SOUTHERN BUSINESS COLLEGE.

No. 407½ W. Jefferson St., Next Door below Masonic Temple.

Louisville, - - - Kentucky.

NO TEXT BOOKS USED.

Book-Keeping, Penmanship, Commercial Arithmetic, Short Hand, Type Writing, &c.

We guarantee to teach more real, practical Book-keeping, Commercial or Business Calculations, more practical ideas about business in general in two to four months than any other Business College in this section can in twelve months.

We teach forms of book-keeping (actual forms used in business) not taught in any other Business College in this section.

No Scholar Has Ever Completed Our Entire Course and Left us Dissatisfied.

For Circulars call at College or address,

BEN. C. WEAVER, Principal.

NEW GOODS! NEW GOODS!

B. WELLMAN'S

"LOUISVILLE CLOTHING HOUSE"

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

—DEALER IN—

Fine Clothing and Gent's Furnishing Goods

Bottom Prices at Last!

"The best Goods for the Least Money," is the motto of this house, and I am now selling an Immense Stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS the Lowest Cash Prices.

BLOOM,

The Tailor, of Montgomery, Alabama,

—DOES—

Dyeing, Scouring, Cleaning and Repairing

Of Gents' and Ladies' garments of all colors.
Orders by Mail or Express will receive prompt attention.
Prices to suit the times. Work Guaranteed.

No. 6 Court Street, Upstairs, - - Opposite Dollar Store.

sep14 '86-1y

BRYANT AND STRATTON.

THE LOUISVILLE

BUSINESS COLLEGE,

Cor. Third & Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

BOOK-KEEPING, BANKING, PENMANSHIP, SHORT-HAND, TYPE-WRITING, ARITHMETIC, &c.

No Text Books or Manuscripts copied and recopied by students. Has the largest honest inducement as to true merit. Graduates have no trouble in obtaining situations.

HOME STUDY. Instruction given by mail. Improve your spare hours and obtain a practical education.

ADDRESS COLLEGE AS ABOVE.

[mar18-1y

THE

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.

It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.

OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.

EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

These excellent Organs are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty in finish, perfect construction, making them the most attractive, ornamental and desirable organs for homes, schools, churches, lodges, societies, etc.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,
UNEQUALED FACILITIES,
SKILLED WORKMEN,
BEST MATERIAL,
COMBINED, MAKE THIS

THE POPULAR ORGAN

Instruction Books and Piano Stools.

Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, free.

The Chicago Cottage Organ Co.

Corner Randolph and Ann Streets,

CHICAGO, ILL.

HEADACHE

and all Bilious Diseases are relieved by taking WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS

Purely Vegetable; No Griping. Price 25c. All Druggists.

L&N

(LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.)

THE GREAT

Through Trunk Line

Between the Cities of CINCINNATI, LEXINGTON, LOUISVILLE, EVANSVILLE, ST. LOUIS, And the Cities of N. ORLEANS, MOBILE, and MONTGOM'Y, MEMPHIS, NASHVILLE,

Without Change and with Speed Unrivaled

SHORTEST AND QUICKEST ROUTE

From New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery, to

NORTH, EAST & WEST

PULLMAN CARS Without change to Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, with but one change to all NORTHERN AND EASTERN CITIES.

THROUGH COACHES

From Chattanooga and Nashville to St. Louis, connecting direct for Cities in the Northwest.

EMIGRANTS Seeking homes on the line of this road will receive special low rates.

See Agents of this Company for rates, routes &c., or write C. P. ATMORE, G. P. & T. A. Louisville, Ky.

jan20-6m

A COMPLETE STOCK of Fancy Stationery, and everything usually kept in a Stationery Establishment, is

ALWAYS ON HAND

and For Sale at City Prices at the

VIEW

STATIONERY STAND.

BLITZ NEVER BEATEN.

The Famous Basket Trick Done Years and Years Ago on the Bowery.

(From the Chicago News.)

One of the most famous public exhibitions of Signor Blitz was to walk down Chatham street with a cavalry sword strapped to his belt, accompanied by a boy carrying an ordinary looking willow clothesbasket. Arriving at the Bowery corner, "Sid" would commence a harangue, as though he had merchandise to sell, first performing a few interesting feats, just for the benefit of the public. Taking the basket from the hands of his boy assistant he would hold it aloft, turning it about that all might see its common structure, then set it down, bottom upward, in the street, enjoining the surrounding audience to see that no one approached where it stood. His next move was to speak to the boy, calling him to his side. Receiving no reply, he discovered, to his own embarassment and the disappointment of the crowd, that the boy had "slopped" and hid himself from view. No amount of calling, hunting, or searching, even by the anxious lookers-on, could find where he had concealed himself. Finally, when the people were ready to turn away in disgust at being thus fooled in their expectation of seeing some remarkable show, Blitz would cry out: "Never mind, good friends, if the boy has given me the slip I'll play the trick without him."

With this he would take up the basket again, when, behold! out would pop the boy from beneath. Grabbing the scamp before he could make his escape, Blitz would give him a couple of cuffs about the ears, accompanying the boxing with angry words and ending the drubbing with chucking the lad under the basket and telling him he could stay there now for not letting the people know where he was hid when everybody was hunting him. Of course, the boy would squirm and struggle to get out, but Blitz, thoroughly mad, would climb upon the basket on his knees, saying: "You infernal rogue, if you don't keep quiet I'll fix you!" With that he would pull his sword from its scabbard, and the boy continuing his struggles, Blitz would thrust the sharp blade into the side of the basket repeatedly. The boy would yell with pain, crying "Murder!" and "Help!" while the infuriated master exclaimed "I'll kill you," and keep thrusting the blade into the poor boy's body. The crowd, aroused at such inhuman brutality, would rush forward to rescue the boy from apparent death, when the basket, being overturned, would be found to be empty. The excited mob, supposing that Blitz had murdered the boy and disposed of him by his sorcery, would be about to wreck their vengeance upon his person, when he once more lifted the basket and disclosed the assistant alive and unhurt. Not until the very last development of the trick was it evident that the senses of a hundred people had been juggled.

Soldiers Snowballing.

In January, 1864, while the Confederate troops were in winter quarters at Dalton, there came a big snow-storm and 20,000 troops went into a regular organized snowballing. On one side of a branch was the parade ground of the Georgia and South Carolina troops, and back of that the quarters. On the opposite side of the branch was the parade ground of the Tennesseeans and back of their parade ground were their quarters. The ground was frozen to a depth of five feet, the snow was a foot deep and no indications of melting. A day was appointed for a snow battle. The Tennesseeans marched out and formed a line of battle, their drums beating, bugles blowing, colors flying and officers mounted. Every soldier had a knapsack full of snowballs. The Georgians formed and prepared to make the attack by crossing the branch. There were 10,000 men on each side and the scene was very imposing. As soon as the Georgians crossed the branch they met a terrific fusilade from the Tennesseeans, who were at home in the snow. The commander of the Tennesseeans, a handsome fellow named Gordon, who was from Franklin, Tenn., was captured., but a bold dash was made by the Tennesseeans, and he was rescued. The Georgians and South Carolinians, being unused to the snow, were at a great disadvantage and were forced to back across the branch. As the Tennesseeans crossed the branch they wet their snowballs, and the next volley fired at the Georgia and Carolina boys was terrible in its effect. Pressing on, the Tennesseeans captured the quarters and proceeded to loot the whole shebang, carrying off rations, tobacco, pipes, and everything that did not belong to the government. That snowballing, in which 20 000 men took part, was no doubt the biggest thing of the kind that ever occurred in Georgia, or will ever occur again.—Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution.

A Genial Restorative.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are emphatically a genial restorative. The changes which the great botanic remedy produces in the disordered organization are always agreeably, though surely progressive, never abrupt nor violent. On this account it is admirably adapted to persons of delicate constitution and weak nerves, to whom the powerful mineral drugs are positively injurious. That it initiates those processes which result in the reëstablishment of healthful vigor is conspicuously shown in cases where it is taken to overcome that fruitful cause of debility, indigestion, coupled, as it usually is, with biliousness and constipation. Thorough digestion, regular evacuation and abundant secretion, are results which promptly and invariably attend its systematic use. It is, besides, the best protective against malaria, and a first rate diuretic.

The time when the cold water party largely predominated. During the flood.

A Convert.

Some years ago Paul Bert, the French savant just dead, visited Havre while a severe epidemic of small-pox was raging in that port. Noticing on his return to Paris that the mortality was daily on the increase, he began to entertain doubts as to the efficacy of vaccination as a prophylactic, and resolved to solve the problem to his own satisfaction by experiments on his own person. He accordingly got himself vaccinated, and, going a fortnight afterward to the Charite Hospital, he courageously had himself inoculated with the virus of a man who was dying of the small pox. No ill effects having resulted from the terrible experiment, M. Paul Bert was completely won over to the cause of vaccination, which throughout the remainder of his life had no warmer supporter. It is characteristic of the savant that he never breathed a word of this to any one, evidently regarding the trial to which he had subjected himself and the fearful risk which he had run, as a commonplace episode in the career of a votary of science.

A HORSE GRILLED ALIVE.

The Steam Heating Company's Pitfall on Park Row an Oven.

In the excavation on Park Row, in front of the Potter Building, in order that the New York Steam Heating Company might repair its main pipe, a horse perished Wednesday morning by roasting upon the hot iron pipe. The animal was three hours dying, and only its shrill shrieks of agony, that as time wore on sank into moaning cries of almost human intensity, evinced the torture it suffered. The blinding vapor that floated over the pit made its frenzied struggles unseen.

The horse was owned by Edward Southard, wholesale newspaper dealer, of 30 Clinton Place. Robert Gordon, of No. 401 East Seventeenth street, was driving one of Mr. Southard's delivery wagons laden with newspapers. It was half-past four o'clock in the morning and very dark. Gordon says that he was driving rapidly up Park Row, the wagon wheels rolling along the car tracks. When just in front of the pit the horse shied at the white vapor, caught his right hind hoof in the planking between the tracks, fell, and in his struggles to regain his footing demolished the barricade of boards and tumbled into the hole. Gordon held the reins until the animal had disappeared and was dragging the wagon after, when he leaped out, cut the traces and left him to his fate.

One of Mr. Bergh's ambulances was summoned by telephone at ten minutes to seven A. M., over two hours after the accident. Having made sure that the horse was dead, a derrick was hoisted over the pit, and one of the society's employees, a courageous colored man, jumped in with a spade and felt around for places to put the rope and chain gear. Had any life remained in the horse he would have been kicked and possibly maimed for life if not killed.

The bottom of the hole was much more narrow than the top, being only four feet long and two wide, and this funnel was gridironed by other pipes besides the large steam main. The horse lay on his back, wedged so that his back lay on the hot main, which had almost cooked the flesh from his bones. His head was jammed against the earth and his legs were tangled up among the pipes. The horse could never have been rescued alive, nor could he have been shot, owing to the blinding steam cloud.

Mr. Bergh's society is collecting evidence with the design of suing the Steam Heating Company for violating the law, which enforces adequate safeguards against just such accidents as this. The company, on the other hand, have secured two affidavits to the effect that the fencing was in position and a red light burning ten minutes before Mr. Southard's horse fell. A truckman, who claims to have seen the whole affair, told the superintendent of the society that Gordon was driving fast along Mail street, from Broadway, and crashed directly into the barricade.

"It is probable that the company will make some compromise with Mr. Southard," said the superintendent of Mr. Bergh's society, "as he cares only for the value of the horse. We care nothing for its value, only for the principle involved, and will not compromise."—New York Herald.

Hideous Crime in France.

A Paris letter to the London Daily News has the following: It is hard to conceive any more awful crime than the burning alive some time since of an old woman by her children, yet a case of the murder of a brother under circumstances well nigh as appalling is being tried before the Ardeche Assizes, and sheds a gruesome light on a hideous side of the character of too many French peasants, and suggests the query, are the worst Parisians as bad as the worst rustics? The pair of malefactors tried in the Ardeche killed their brother in his bed, and cut up and boiled his remains to feed their pigs. The indictment states that the brothers Faure lived together in the hamlet of Barnas, in the Ardeche mountains. Claude, the elder one, was a widower, and had saved up a small fortune. His brother Jean, who was idle and covetous, was in a state verging upon misery. He had married a woman named Rosine Plancher, who urged him on to all manner of wickedness, and she seemed to have remotely inherited the character of her grandfather, who had been sentenced to penal servitude for life for having been an accessory to burning a woman alive. Claude, the elder brother, had the misfortune to say that he intended to leave his money to a near neighbor, a Mme. Dreton. From that moment he was a doomed man. One night Jean went up to his brother's bedroom and broke in his head with a crowbar. Behind him were his wife and her brother, an ex-policeman, who has hanged himself in prison, who were abetting him. They all three, carried the body down stairs to the stables, where they sawed it to bits, and after this boiled the remains in a caldron, together with potatoes and cabbages for the pigs. Jean buried the bits of skin in a field, and threw away the bones in a mountain rift; but "the way of transgressors is hard." These precautions availed them nothing. The neighbors suspected a foul murder and helped the police to find the few festering remains, and then the murderers owned to their guilt. In court Jean Faure attempted to cast all the blame upon his wife, who, he said, had urged him on by threats of poison and set him when drunk to do the deed. Rosine was then ushered in. She first denied everything, but when the presiding Judge told her what her husband had said she cried out to him: "Wretched man! I wanted to save you, and I would have taken all on my own shoulders." Here Jean Faure was taken ill, and so the court adjourned.

A MOTHER'S GIFT.—It was a singular fancy for the mother of Brooks, who is under sentence of death for the murder of his companion, Preller, to send the condemned man a package of candles and school-books all the way from her English home. And yet it spoke a mother's love for her boy: and, poor soul, it was probably all she had to give. Secretary Manning directed that the gifts should be immediately forwarded to their destination, duty free.

Dr. Morse, Physician at Marine Hospital, Baltimore, Md., found Red Star Cough Cure a harmless and most effective remedy in the cure of coughs. He recommends it especially for children who are irritable and obstinate, as pleasant to take and prompt in its effect. Price, twenty-five cents.

Dentist, who was formerly a photographer (to patient)—Take a seat, please. Now turn your head a trifle this way—that's it. There! Look right at the knob on that door, and assume a pleasant expression. Now keep perfectly still, and I'll be through in a moment.

"A most extraordinary and absolute cure for rheumatism and other bodily ailments is St. Jacobs Oil," says Hon. James Harlan, ex-Vice Chancellor, Louisville, Ky.

26,587,335

BOTTLES OF

Warner's SAFE Cure

Sold to Dec. 27, 1886.

NO OTHER REMEDY IN THE WORLD CAN PRODUCE SUCH A RECORD.

This wonderful success of "Warner's SAFE Cure" is due wholly to the real merit of the Remedy. For a long time it has been REGARDED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES AS THE ONLY SPECIFIC FOR KIDNEY, LIVER AND URINARY DISEASES AND FEMALE COMPLAINTS.

Thousands of people owe their life and health to "Warner's SAFE Cure" and we can produce 100,000 TESTIMONIALS to that effect.

Read the following and note the large number of bottles distributed. We guarantee these figures to be correct, as our sales-books will prove:

Boston, - - 1,149,122.

CAPT. W. D. ROBINSON (U. S. Marine Insp., Buffalo, N. Y.), in 1885 was suffering with a skin humor like leprosy. Could not sleep; was in great agony. For two years tried everything, without benefit. Was pronounced incurable. "Twenty bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure completely cured me, and to-day I am strong and well." (Feb. 5, 1885.)

Providence, - - 171,929.

EX-GOV. T. G. ALVORD (Syracuse, N. Y.), in 1884 began running down with General Debility, accompanied with a sense of weight in the lower part of the body, with a feverish sensation and a general giving out of the whole organism. Was in serious condition, confined to his bed much of the time. After a thorough treatment with Warner's SAFE Cure he says: "I am completely restored to health by its means."

Portland, Me., - 441,105.

MAJOR S. B. ABBOTT (Springfield, Mo.), in 1871 was afflicted with lame back, Rheumatism and Kidney trouble. Consulted the very best physicians in San Francisco, and visited all the mineral springs there. Took a health trip to the New England States, but for seven years suffered constantly from his malady, which had resulted in Bright's disease. After using a couple dozen bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and two of SAFE Pills, he wrote: "My back and Kidneys are without pain, and, thank God, I owe it all to Warner's SAFE Remedies."

Bal. of New Eng., - 441,753.

MRS. J. T. RITCHEY (562 4th Ave., Louisville, Ky.) was a confirmed invalid for eleven years, just living, and hourly expecting death. Was confined to bed ten months each year. Was attended by the best physicians. Her left side was paralyzed. Could neither eat, sleep, nor enjoy life. The doctors said she was troubled with female complaints; but she was satisfied her kidneys were affected. Under the operation of Warner's SAFE Cure she passed a large stone or calculus, and in Nov., 1885, reported: "Am to-day as well as when a girl."

New York State, - 3,870,773.

Pennsylvania, - 1,821,218.

F. MAYER (1020 N. 12th St., St. Louis, Mo.), afflicted with tired feelings, dizziness and pain across the back, and lost appetite. Was sallow and care-worn all the time. The doctors failing, he began the use of Warner's SAFE Cure, and reports: "I feel like a fighting cock."

Chicago, - - 2,808,693.

MR. R. BROWN (2221 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.) injured his back from a fall. Was confined to his bed six weeks. The fall injured his kidneys, producing intense suffering. Warner's SAFE Cure restored his kidneys to their natural condition," and he writes: "I am now eighty years of age, smart and active."

Detroit, - - 846,946.

MRS. THOS. SCHMIDT (Wife of the Vice-Consul of Denmark, 69 Wall St., New York), reported that her little son, after an attack of Diphtheritic Sore Throat eight years ago, was afflicted with Bright's Disease in advanced form; by the advice of Gen'l Christiansen, of Drexel, Morgan & Co, Bankers, New York, she prescribed Warner's SAFE Cure, with the consent of the physicians, and reports, "the physicians say that he will be perfectly well."

Milwaukee, - - 458,894.

MISS Z. L. BOARDMAN (Quechee, Vt.), in in May, 1882, began to bloat, thence came stomach trouble, terrible headaches, and finally the doctor's opinion that it was Bright's disease, and incurable. Eventually she became nearly blind, pronounced by the doctors to be the last stage of Bright's disease. After having been under treatment by Warner's SAFE Cure for one year, she reported: "I am as well as any one."

Minnesota, - - 648,017.

HON. N. A. PLYMPTON (Worcester, Mass.), in May, 1880, was prostrated by Gravel. Under the operation of Warner's SAFE Cure alone he passed a large stone, and subsequently wrote: "I have had no recurrence of my trouble since Warner's SAFE Cure cured me."

Bal. N. W. States, - 1,767,149.

ASK YOUR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS ABOUT

WARNER'S SAFE CURE.

THE MOST POPULAR REMEDY EVER DISCOVERED.

Cleveland, - - 682,632.

EX-GOV. R. T. JACOB (Westport, Ky.) was prostrated with severe Kidney trouble and lost 40 pounds of flesh. After a thorough treatment with Warner's SAFE Cure he reports, "I have never enjoyed better health."

Cincinnati, - - 873,667.

GEN. H. D. WALLEN (144 Madison Ave., New York), scarcely able to walk two blocks without exhaustion, and, having lost flesh heavily, began the use of Warner's SAFE Cure and says: "I was much benefited by it."

Bal. Ohio, (State,) - 633,158.

COL. JOSEPH H. THORNTON (Cincinnati, O.) in 1885 reported that his daughter was very much prostrated; had palpitation of the heart, intense pain in the head, nervous disorder and catarrh of the bladder. She lost fifty-five pounds. Other remedies failing, they began the use of Warner's SAFE Cure, SAFE Pills and SAFE Nervine, and within three months she had gained fifty pounds in weight and was restored to good health. That was three years ago, and she is still in as good health as ever in her life. Col. Thornton, himself, was cured of Chronic Diarrhœa of eighteen years' standing, in 1881, by Warner's SAFE Cure.

Southern States, - 3,534,017.

S. H. ALLEN (Leavenworth, Kan.), son Edwin, two years of age, afflicted with extreme case of Bright's disease, and the doctors gave him up. By the advice of the doctor's wife, began the use of Warner's SAFE Cure, and after taking seven bottles he is perfectly well and has had no relapse.

Canada, - - 1,467,824.

St. Louis, - - 1,530,527.

CAPT. GEO. B. WILTBANK (919 Spruce St., Phila., Pa.), prostrated in Central America, with Malarial Fever, caused by congestion of Kidneys and Liver. Delirious part of the time. Liver enlarged one-third. Stomach badly affected. Could hold no food; even water was ejected. Using less than a dozen bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure he writes: "I was Completely Cured."

Kansas City, - - 717,860.

MRS. (PROF.) E. J. WOLF (Gettysburg, Pa., Wife of the Ed. of the Lutheran Quarterly), began to decline with pulmonary consumption. (Over 50 per cent. of all cases of Consumption are caused by diseased kidneys.) Despaired of living. After a thorough course of treatment with Warner's SAFE Cure, she writes: "I am perfectly well."

Bal. S. W. States, - 746.789.

EX-SENATOR B. K. BRUCE (South Carolina), after doctoring for years for what he supposed was Malaria, discovered he was afflicted with Sugar Diabetes, and having obtained no relief whatever from his physicians, he began the use of Warner's SAFE Diabetes Cure, and he says: "My friends are astonished at my improvement."

San Francisco, - 1,242,946.

J. Q. ELKINS (Elkinsville, N. C.) suffered for ten years from Gravel, which attacked him every six months. He lost 40 pounds in three months, and his strength was nearly gone. After a thorough use of Warner's SAFE Diabetes Cure he reports: "I am as well as I ever was, after using fourteen bottles."

Bal. Pacific Coast, - 732,317.

☞ Every Testimonial we publish is genuine. Write to the testators enclosing stamp for reply, and learn for yourselves.

A Corpse, but no Pauper.

Mrs. Ann Eliza Young, an aged widow, once quite well to do, and residing all her life at Tuckahoe, was taken to the Westchester County Almshouse and died in the carriage which landed her at the door. Instead of being received there as a pauper she was carried in a corpse. The old lady wept all the way to the Almshouse, and prayed that death might overtake her before she became a pauper. Her prayer was answered at the very threshold. When the carriage stopped at the great door which is opened to so many unfortunates, she looked out of the carriage window, gave a shriek threw up her hands, and fell over dead. She died of shock and excitement.—N. Y. Herald.

We think we violate no confidence when we state that a hard conundrum is like an artist's model, inasmuch as it is a poser.

"What we learn with pleasure we never forget."—Alfred Mercier. The following is a case in point: "I paid out hundreds of dollars without receiving any benefit," says Mrs. Emily Rhoads, of McBrides, Mich. "I had female complaints, especially 'dragging down,' for over six years. Dr. R. V. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescription' did me more good than any medicine I ever took. I advise every sick lady to take it." And so do we. It never disappoints its patrons. Druggists sell it.

Passing around the hat is one way of getting the cents of the meeting.

Relief is immediate, and a cure sure. Piso's Remedy for Catarrh. 50 cents.

An exchange has an article on "Why Bees Make Honey." They make it to cell.

For weak lungs, spitting of blood, shortness of breath, consumption, night-sweats, and all lingering coughs, Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is a sovereign remedy. Superior to cod liver oil. By druggists.

It looks as if somebody would have to be put on the Bulgarian throne and held there.

If Sufferers from Consumption,

Scrofula, Bronchitis and General Debility will try SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, they will find immediate relief and permanent benefit. The Medical Profession universally declare it a remedy of the greatest value and very palatable. Read: "I have used Scott's Emulsion in several cases of Scrofula and Debility in children. Results most gratifying. My little patients take it with pleasure."—W. A. HULBERT, M. D., Salisbury, Ill.

The wind is not evidently tempered the shorn Wall street lamb.

Stranger than Fiction are the records of some of the cures of consumption effected by that most wonderful remedy—Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Thousands of grateful men and women, who have been snatched almost from the very jaws of death, can testify that consumption, in its early stages, is no longer incurable. The Discovery has no equal as a pectoral and alterative, and the most obstinate affections of the throat and lungs yield to its power. All druggists.

If every man was as big as he feels there couldn't be standing room in this country.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.

Send for Pamphlet on Female Diseases, free, securely sealed. Dr. J. B. Marchisi, Utica, N.Y.

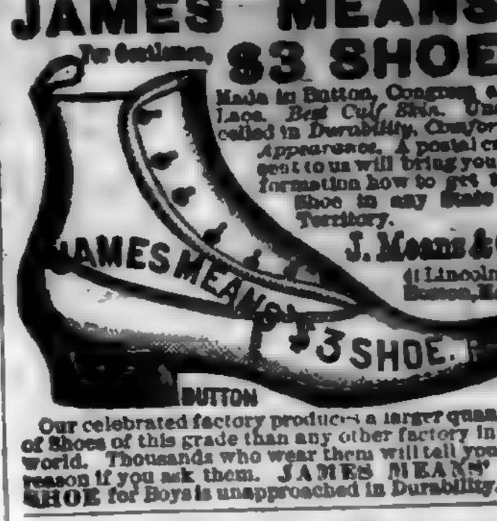
If afflicted with sore eyes use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye-water. Druggists sell at 25c per bottle.

Ask your retailer for the James Means' $3 Shoe. Caution! Some dealers recommend inferior goods in order to make a larger profit. This is the original $3 Shoe. Beware of imitations which acknowledge their own inferiority by attempting to build upon the reputation of the original. None Genuine unless bearing this Stamp.

JAMES MEANS'

For Gentlemen.

$3 SHOE.



Made in Button, Congress and Lace. Best Calf Skin. Unexcelled in Durability, Comfort & Appearance. A postal card sent to us will bring you information how to get this Shoe in any State or Territory.

J. Means & Co
41 Lincoln St.,
Boston, Mass.

Our celebrated factory produces a larger quantity of Shoes of this grade than any other factory in the world. Thousands who wear them will tell you the reason if you ask them. JAMES MEANS' $2 SHOE for Boys is unapproached in Durability.

Marvellous Memory DISCOVERY.

Wholly unlike Artificial Systems—Cure of Mind Wandering—Any book learned in one reading. Heavy reductions for postal classes. Prospectus, with opinions of Mr. PROCTOR, the Astronomer, Hons. W. W. ASTOR, JUDAH P. BENJAMIN, Drs. MINOR, WOOD and others, sent post FREE, by

PROF. LOISETTE,
237 Fifth Avenue, New York.

THURSTON'S IVORY PEARL TOOTH POWDER

Keeping Teeth Perfect and Gums Healthy.

---

6 Magnificent WORKS of ART FREE

The greatest offer ever made to subscribers of an agricultural periodical. Every subscriber (at $1.50 per year) to the American Agriculturist for 1887 will receive the above absolutely free. Canvassers wanted everywhere. For particulars, samples, etc., address O. JUDD CO., 751 Broadway, N.Y.

WELL DRILLING

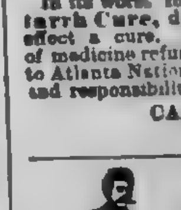
Machinery for Wells of any depth, from 20 to 3,000 feet, for Water, Oil or Gas. Our Mounted Steam Drilling and Portable Horse Power Machines set to work in 20 minutes. Guaranteed to drill faster and with less power than any other. Specially adapted to drilling Wells in earth or rock 20 to 1,000 feet. Farmers and others are making $25 to $40 per day with our machinery and tools. Splendid business for Winter or Summer. We are the oldest and largest Manufacturers in the business. Send 4 cents in Stamps for Illustrated Catalogue H. Address,

Pierce Well Excavator Co., New York.

CATARRH

In its worst form can be cured. Canadian Catarrh Cure, during 10 years' trial, has never failed to effect a cure. We guarantee a cure, or price of medicine refunded. Pamphlet sent free. We refer to Atlanta National Bank of this city, as to our standing and responsibility. Address

CANADIAN CATARRH CURE CO.,
16½ Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.



ATLANTA SAW WORKS.

Manufacturers of and Dealers in Saws and Saw-Mill Supplies.

Repairing a Specialty.

Agents for L. POWER & COMPANY'S Wood Working Machinery. Large and complete stock. Write for catalogue. ATLANTA, GA.

PATENTS Obtained. Send stamp for Inventors' Guide. L. Bingham, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

J. P. STEVENS & BRO. JEWELERS.

Atlanta, Ga.

Send for Catalogue.

WHETHER YOU WANT A

PIANO OR ORGAN

It will pay you to write to

PHILLIPS & CREW,

ATLANTA, GA.,

For Catalogue (free) and Prices. Mention this paper.

PILES! DR. WILLIAMS' Indian Pile Ointment will cure any case of Itching, Bleeding, Ulcerated or Protruding Piles. CURE GUARANTEED. Prepared for Piles only. [Painless] [illegible] by express prepaid, $2.50.] Price per box 50c. and $1. Sold by druggists or mailed on receipt of price by LAMAR, RANKIN & LAMAR, Ag'ts, Atlanta, Ga.

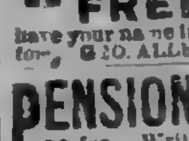
OPIUM and WHISKEY HABITS cured at home without pain. Book of particulars sent FREE. B. M. Woolley, M. D., Atlanta, Ga. Office 65½ Whitehall Street. Mention this paper.

BUSINESS Education a specialty at MOORE'S BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, Ga. One of the best schools in the Country. Send for Circulars.

ACME PULVERIZING HARROW, Clod Crusher and Leveler.

The Best Tool in the world for preparing corn, cotton and other ground. D. H. NASH, Sole Man'f'r, [illegible] Main St. Louisville, Ky.

DO YOU WANT A DOG



DOG BUYERS' GUIDE, Colored plates, 100 engravings of different breeds, prices they are worth, and where to buy them. Mailed for 15 Cents. ASSOCIATED FANCIERS, 237 S. Eighth St. Philadelphia, Pa.

WE WANT YOU! a live energetic man or woman needing profitable employment to represent us in every county. Salary $75 per month and expenses, or a large commission on sales if preferred. Goods staple. Every one buys. Outfit and particulars Free. STANDARD SILVERWARE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

WE GUARANTEE YOU TO RECEIVE 500 SAMPLES Books, Circulars, Letters and Papers FREE from dealers all over the U.S. and Canada if you send 25 cents to have your name in a new issue of 'Agents' Name Directory.' GEO. ALLEN & CO., 908 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

PENSIONS, Officers' pay, bounty procured; deserters relieved. 21 years practice. Success or no fee. Write for circulars and new laws. A. W. McCormick & Son, Washington, D.C.

GARDEN SEEDS Catalogues Mailed Free. Francis Brill, Hempstead, Long Island, N. Y.

Blair's Pills. Great English Gout and Rheumatic Remedy. Oval Box $1.00; round, 50 cts.

Young Men Can get the most Practical Business Education at Goldsmith's School of Business, 24½ S. Broad St. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Circulars & Specimen of Penmanship.

PENSIONS procured or no Fee. Soldiers & heirs. New laws. [illegible] & Co., Att'ys, 10 yrs., Washington, D.C.

ELY'S CREAM BALM IS WORTH $1000 TO ANY MAN Woman or Child suffering from CATARRH.

—A. E. NEWMAN, Grayling, Mich.

A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable to use. Price 50 cts. by mail or at druggists. Send for circular. ELY BROTHERS, Druggists, Owego, N. Y.

OPIUM HABIT Painlessly cured. NOT A PARTICLE of PAIN or self-denial. Pay when cured. Handsome book free. Dr. C. J. WEATHERBY, Kansas City, Mo.

$15.00 Flat top No. 7 Cook Stove for $10.00 with fixtures. Send for catalogue. A. P. Stewart & Co., 89 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.

WORK FOR ALL. $30 a week and expenses paid. Outfit worth $5 and particulars free. P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

Pensions to Soldiers & Heirs. Send stamp for Circulars. COL. L. BINGHAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Address BREWSTER'S SAFETY REIN HOLDER, Holly, Mich.

OPIUM Habit Cured. Treatment sent on trial. HUMANE REMEDY CO., LaFayette, Ind.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Also good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Hay Fever, &c. 50 cents.

Rates of Advertising.

One Dollar per Square, of one inch space or less, for the first, and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion.

Inches.	3 m.	6 m.	12 m.
1 Inch	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
2 Inches	7 00	11 15	16 00
3 Inches	10 00	15 00	22 50
4 Inches	13 00	18 00	27 00
5 Inches	15 00	22 00	35 00
¼ Column	18 00	27 00	40 00
½ Column	27 00	40 00	60 00
1 Column	40 00	60 00	100 00

The Chilton View.

W. H. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors.

"WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION."

TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY. FEBRUARY 3, 1887. NUMBER 13.

Special Advertising.

Business Notices Ten Cents per line each insertion.

Obituaries and Tributes of Respect, half rates.

Announcing candidates for office, Five Dollars, strictly in advance.

Communications recommending candidates for office will be headed as advertisements and charged for accordingly.

Liberal contracts made with those advertising by the year.

☞ The money is due on all advertising after the first publication.

FRIENDSHIP.

As the day declines to even,
Falling in the arms of night,
One by one the stars of heaven
Shed on earth their constant light.

So when life's bright sun is hidden
By the heavy gloom of woe,
True friends like the stars, unbidden,
One by one their lustre show.
—Barry Lyndon, in the Chicago Current.

LOUIE AND I.

BY HARRIET PRESCOTT SPOFFORD.

If I had been the least bit pretty I shouldn't have been surprised at it all; or if I had even been bright and witty; but such a little simpleton as I!

I never in all my life had the least expectation of lovers, or of any sort of admiring glances; and I never had any. And sometimes mother used to say she guessed it was just as well, for if she had had to dress two girls out for their pretty looks, as she did one, it would have beggared her. Mother only had a little money, just barely enough to live on, and some of the principal going every year, but it wouldn't have been in human nature, having a daughter so pretty as Louie, not to want her to have the best that would set off her peach-bloom beauty; and, for my part, I never grudged Louie a rose or a ribbon. I couldn't have worn them if I had had them, for I was far too proud to try to do what Nature hadn't, or to pretend I thought such things became me; and I liked my print dresses and plain collars better for myself.

But when Louie was dressed in her muslins till she looked like one of the old-fashioned blush roses, so white without and so delicately flushed within, her lovely yellow hair breaking out in sunny curls all over her head, and she all radiant, as you might say, with her skin, her smiles, her teeth, her great blue, beaming eyes—then I used to like to look at her as much as any of her lovers did; to look at her as I would look at any lovely picture; and she always turned from her gayest scene—the dear little person—to give her sweetest smile to me.

So when Dennis began all at once to come to our house, as if he had just seen Louie for the first time in his life, I was only delighted. For every one who knew him loved and honored Dennis Reed, who was the soul of all integrity; and if he wasn't a beauty himself, he was a stalwart son of Saul, and had the nicest little place in the region—a cottage up a lane, overlooking the river, and with a wood behind its orchard and across the railway cut, to keep off the east wind—if the east wind could ever blow in that sunny nook with a garden spot made and blooming in every cranny of the rocks around it.

He married her, and took her away; and a happier nest of singing birds than that in the little cottage among the rocks and flowers could nowhere have been found, unless it were in my own heart, at the sight of the happiness there.

But then mother fell sick, and it took all my time to care for her; and I couldn't go up to Louie's very often; for I had everything to do at home, and was tired out by nightfall, and often up half the night besides. Louie couldn't very well come down often; and if she had come, she wouldn't have known what to do. Poor mother! Once I remember, she said to me, "I don't know but it's more satisfactory to have one daughter plain, than anything else." And it made my heart bound. And then I reproached my selfishness in caring to have her say that over Louie's head, as it were; but I remembered it long afterward, and sometimes it used to give me a throb of joy when everything was dreary, and I seemed to be alone in the world.

For mother died presently. And then it turned out that she had been living on her little property more than we had dreamed, and Louie's outfit and her own long illness and its bills had used up money. And when everything was paid, they had only enough left for me to hire one room as a sort of refuge when I came home at night from working at my trade; for I had quite a knack at dressmaking. I did not put on mourning; for I was glad that mother was out of pain, and I was glad that she was gone before she knew that all the property was gone, and she, with her proud spirit, would have had to be dependent. But Louie did—and oh! what a beauty she was, with her black crapes falling around her, so waxen, fair and rosy and transparent! Of course she didn't miss mother the way I did. How could she, with Dennis waiting on her every wish? And she didn't seem to want anybody but Dennis, either; so I didn't see a great deal of her, only when she had something new to make up, or something old to alter over; and then, she and Dennis were out most of the time, strolling among the rocks or planting a new flower-garden, or she was going to meet him coming from his work, or running into the next neighbor's, across the pasture, and I had almost nothing of her, except at trying-on times. I used to wonder at Louie then, a little, sometimes; not for not sitting at home sewing and helping me on the work, because you might as well have asked a humming bird to do that; but for not taking more interest in the house and keeping things trig and tidy. And I used to be afraid that if I were Dennis, and there were holes in my socks, and half the buttons off my clothes, and my coat and hat never brushed, and I came home and found nothing for dinner—not even the cloth laid—and my wife off enjoying herself somewhere else, and the dust everywhere so that I could write my name, that I couldn't feel recompensed for all that by having my wife stroll round hanging on my arm, looking as pretty as a new-blown rose. And yet although the house must often have been thoroughly uncomfortable to Dennis, he never gave a sign that it was not paradise itself; and I came to the conclusion that he didn't really miss those other things, and was satisfied with what he had.

I used to go up into the Eden sometimes without being sent for, and mend up everything, and put the whole house straight; but I couldn't go so very often on account of my work; and, beside, I had a sensation of intruding where two people wanted but each other.

But at last the babies came; and then I had to go. And Louie was wild with delight, and insisted on having them laid on the pillow close to her cheek, and talked and laughed and cooed and cried to them with such glittering eyes and dazzling color in her face, and said it was all she wanted, even if she were in Heaven to-morrow!

"But your husband, Louie!" I exclaimed.

"Oh! husbands are all very well," she said. "But I haven't been such an awfully good wife. You'd have made Dennis a great deal better wife, dear, for the matter of that. But my little sons! Oh! I know I could be a good mother!"

She was in Heaven to-morrow, the dear little innocent soul, and one of the babies went with her.

I was glad that the little body went too. For I remembered that she had said then she would have all she wanted; because it troubled me to think that, for all his grief to-day, Dennis wouldn't be like any other man in the world if he didn't marry to-morrow; and the other wife would have the long life with him, and become dearer and dearer, and Louie would fade into just a beautiful dream; and when the next life came, it would be the dear wife of the long-continuing time that would be his companion, and Louie would be all alone if it wasn't for the baby, and she had said that the baby was enough. Of course all this was only a sort of flash through my consciousness, not any deliberate thought. Nobody could have thought about anything of the kind who saw Dennis's grief. He was all beside himself. I don't like to tell you what he said and did; I was half afraid sometimes that a thunderbolt would fall and destroy him; and then again I was afraid that he would destroy himself. I don't know how we ever contrived to get him to let Louie be placed in her casket, and I thought he would jump into the very grave itself. But at last that agonizing time—every moment of which knows how to give a fresh stab—was over, and the worse time came, of the absence and silence, and wild, vain, bitter longing. And Dennis couldn't look at the baby. "Take it away" he said. "It killed her!" So I took him into my own room, and cuddled him close to my heart every night, and every morning he awoke me with his laughing and gurgling and crowing, playing with the shadows of the dancing leaves across the bed; and he had Louie's yellow hair and rosy cheeks and perfect features, her great longing blue eyes, and Dennis's black eyebrows, and every day he grew dearer and dearer, and more inexpressibly dear, and I said to myself that, much as I missed poor Louie, here had been made up to me all I had failed of in my life: for this child was to take the place to me of mother and sister and husband and child altogether. And the dearer he grew, the more angry I became with Dennis for his indifference; and one day, when the boy was about four months old, I said:

"I think you had better let old Nancy come in again and do your chores, the way she used to do, and I will go away and take the baby—"

"Take the baby?"

"Certainly," I said. "You can't bear the sight of him, and I love him. And then if ever you marry again"—

"I shall never marry again," he said, the gloom settling in his eyes.

"I don't believe you will!" I exclaimed. "I don't believe there's the woman living who will ever take such an unnatural, wicked father, for her husband! Louie's own child, too, and the very image of her. I wonder what she'd think of you!" And I snatched the baby up out of the cradle, and ran from the room, lest I should break out crying before his face.

The next afternoon when Dennis came in from his work, he went and made himself all nice, and changed his clothes, and came down to where I stood in the side-door with the baby in my arms, looking at the sunset. And he stooped to take the child; and the little darling turned, with a low, frightened cry, and hid his face in my neck. And then, all at once the tears that I hadn't seen Dennis cry in all this time, gushed out, and he put his arms around the child, who began to scream with terror; and as I half turned and maintained my own hold, he took him forcibly away from me. "Let go!" he said, in his low, half-smothered tone. "He's my child!"

"I suppose he is!" I cried. "By some wicked form of law, the cruel flaw that men made for men. But you don't deserve him."

I never was so angry. I thought I would take my things and go away that moment. But how could I leave the baby? His little screams were torturing me then. I sat down on the door-stone, and flung my apron over my head, and put my thumbs in my ears, and wished the baby and I were dead along with Louie.

Perhaps it was an hour afterward when I looked up, and there was Dennis coming through the orchard with the baby, and the boy was crowing and jumping and catching at the bending boughs, and catching at his father's great mustache, and rubbing his little wet lips all over Dennis's face, chirruping and joyous; and I couldn't help it, I ran to meet them.

"You see," said Dennis, as he let me have him back, "blood is thicker than water, after all."

Oh! what a long journey I felt as if that baby had been on as I took him and could hardly have done kissing him.

"Come," said Dennis, laughing, "leave something of him for me."

It was the first time he had laughed since that child was born. And the darling had gone a long journey—a journey into the infinite depths of a father's heart.

Well, after that, Dennis couldn't get home early enough in the afternoon, and it seemed as if he hated to go away in the morning, and Sundays he had the baby in his arms from morning till night. And in the evenings, when I sat sewing on the little clothes, he would come and sit opposite, or where he could see how the work went on; and he brought home all sorts of little, impossible toys, and he talked and sang to him, and walked with him; and the baby began to look out for his coming as much as I did. And all that, of course, helped me a good deal in my work about the house, for I kept everything as fine and orderly as a honeycomb; only, with the baby to tend and see to, I sometimes had to sit up nights to do it.

"I shall call him Louie, for his mother," said Dennis, one night.

"Do you think you can bear it?" I asked.

"To hear him called Louie? Yes. He is Louie over again," said Dennis.

And I couldn't tell you how pleasant life grew to be as we watched the child grow, unfolding like a rose. There was absolutely a sort of rivalry between us presently as to who should discover his first tooth. When he took his first step, it was between Dennis's arms and mine, as we both sat on the floor. And when he spoke his first word, how we listened to learn if it were Dennis's name or mine. The day wasn't long enough for us to watch his dear loveliness in. And I think Dennis was envious of me for having him nights; but he couldn't help that.

So time went on; and I thought then it would not be easy to say how we could be happier; for even the memory of Louie was softened into something that was hardly a grief to us in our love of her boy, though sometimes I used to wonder if the little fellow that went with her was as sweet as the one that stayed with us.

But when the dear child was about three years old there came a snake into Eden. A snake! A whole nest of them! It seemed as if every girl in the whole village had just found out what a rare and charming person I was, and how pleasant it was late afternoons up where I lived, and how nice it was to run up evenings to see me. And sometimes Dennis would have to go home with them then; and sometimes he wouldn't, but just went out the other way, and never came home till they'd gone; and somehow one thing was almost as unpleasant as the other, and I couldn't say why it worried me—I only knew it did. And I used to take the boy and go off by myself and cry. For, of course, sooner or later, Dennis would marry some one of those terrible girls; he couldn't help himself; they wouldn't let him help himself; it would come about after awhile as naturally as water runs down hill.

And then there would be a stepmother for my boy, and Heaven alone knew what would become of him. And what would become of me?

And by this I gave out completely. I should have to go away. I should see Dennis no more. No more of that dear voice and presence, and cheery way of his. And all at once it came over me in a flash of horror and shame what was the matter with me; and then I felt that, happen what would, I really must go away.

But I couldn't go and leave the boy; and there I was. And I grew pale and could eat nothing, and was stiller and stiller every day. I could as soon have talked Hebrew as have smiled.

But one day I had the little fellow asleep in his morning nap, which he had not quite outgrown, although it was getting to be short and fitful; and, thinking that Dennis was there to see, or knowing he was, and thinking nothing, I went out by myself, down the road by the railroad cut; for there was an apple tree there where I gathered the wind-falls, and I liked, too, to sit on the bank and see the train dash by in the cut. I had my apron full of apples, and, as I came back, I stood loitering a moment or so on the steep bank, hearing a train coming, and liking all the rush and roar and rattle that seemed to snatch me out of myself, as if it told of a way to somewhere, some distant region where my trouble might be forgotten; and all at once another sound from that of the approaching train caught my ear, a glad, gay shouting and crying. I turned and looked to right and left, a little confused, for it was the child's voice And, turning back suddenly, I saw him: and there, at the foot of the bank, in the very center of the railway track, stood the little fellow, who had crept from his bed and ran after me, and been beguiled down the slope by some blossoms that he saw there—there, in the centre of the track he stood, waving his little hands and shouting to the coming train. There was not a half minute, it seemed, but in less time I was down there, and was just grasping the child when my foot slipped, and I fell with him in my arms, and the thunder was in my ears and the hot breath in my face, and I knew that was the end.

No; it was only the beginning of the end. When I knew anything more, I was lying on the bank in Dennis's arms, for he had come bounding after the boy, and had snatched us both out of danger as the engine, like a wild dragon, whizzed and roared and thundered by, and he was holding me as if he would never let me go.

And he never has let me go. "Oh!" he cried, "I found out in that second what life would be to me without you, dear; something I couldn't bear a day." And I only clung to him, too ashamed to let him see my face, too tired and weak to lift it. And so it is I that am the second wife, and the boy's mother. And I suppose everybody was surprised; but nobody, as I told you, was half as much surprised as I.—Independent.

Value of Meat.

The belief in meat is ubiquitous with the Anglo Saxon. No one can be strong without meat, it is asserted. "Many people seem to look upon meat almost as though it formed the only food that really nourished and supplied what is wanted for work," says Dr. Pavy, in his work on "Food and Dietetics." "Undoubtedly, a greater feeling of satiety is produced by meat than by other food. It forms a greater stay to the stomach; but this arises from the stomach's constituting the seat of its digestion and a larger time being occupied before it passes on and leaves the organ in an empty condition. The meat fallacy is disproved by the fact that the Sikhs of the Punjaub are pulse eaters. The Italian lives almost solely on maize and macaroni. The dreaded Iroquis were cultivators of maize, as well as hunters. The Spaniard munches his onion and dips his crust of bread in oil. The Kaffir, like the Kirghis, lives mainly on milk, as did the Cymri when Cæsar invaded Britain. The Brahmin prefers the banana. The Hindu, the Chinese and the Japanese find their chief sustenance in rice."—Good Housekeeping.

Force of Habit.

Hotel Clerk—"Look here, sir; do you see what you've written in the register?

"Oh, fairest maid, crowned with effulgent hair,
Let me upon thy bosom fall,
And die in tremulous rapture there—
And that is all!"

Our Poet—"Er—beg pardon; force of habit, you see. I'm continually asked to write in young ladies' albums, and its got to be a kind of second nature with me."—Puck.

The four most important towns of Australasia are now: Melbourne, population 282,947; Sidney, 224,211; Adelaide, 128,482, and Auckland, 60,000.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Subject of Discourse: "A Split Theology."

TEXT: "Some on broken pieces of the ship."—The Acts xxvii., 44.

Never off Goodwin Sands, or the Skerris, or Cape Hatteras was a ship in worse predicament than in the Mediterranean hurricane was the grain ship with 276 passengers driven on the coast of Malta, or Melita five miles from the metropolis of that island, called Citta Vecchia. After two weeks of tempest, and the ship was entirely disabled, and the Captain and crew were completly demoralized, an old missionary took command of the vessel. He was small, crooked-back and sore-eyed, according to tradition. It was Paul, the only unscared man on board. He was no more afraid of a euroclydon that could toss the Mediterranean sea to the gates of Heaven, and then sink it to the gates of hell, than he was afraid of a kitten playing with a string. He orders them all down to take their rations, first asking a blessing on their food. Then he insures all their lives, promising them complete rescue, and so far from losing their heads, they would not lose so much of the hair as you could cut off with one clip of the scissors. Aye, not a thread of it, whether it were gray with age or golden with youth. "There shall not a hair fall from the head of any of you." Realizing that they would never be able to reach the desired haven, they make the sea, on that fourteenth night, black with the overthrown cargo, so that when that vessel does strike the ground it may not strike heavily. In the early dawn they see a creek and they resolve to make for it. They cut the cables, take in the paddles which were on the side of those old boats and lift the mainsail so that the vessel may be driven with great speed, and perhaps on the top of some fortunate billow be lifted high and dry upon the beach. There she goes tumbling toward the rocks, sometimes prow foremost, sometimes stern foremost—now rolling over to starboard, now rolling over to larboard: and now a great wave dashes over the decks, and it seems as if the old craft had gone out of sight forever. But up she comes, and Paul with his arm around the mast stands there crying: "All is well; God hath given me all them that sail with me in this ship." Crash! went the prow against the rocks; with much force the mast falls. Crash! goes the vessel, until the waves rush through from side to side. She parts amidships, goes into a thousand fragments, and 276 immortals are precipitated into the sea. Some of these passengers had been brought up on the seabeach and had learned to swim, and with the chin a little above the angry wave and with the stroke of both arms and the propulsion of both feet they started for the shore and reached it. But alas for the others. They have never learned to swim, or they have been wounded by the falling of the mast, or the nervous shock was too great for them, or they have been weakened by long sea sickness. What is to become of them? "Take that piece of rudder," says Paul to one, "and head for the beach.' "Take that fragment of a spar," says Paul to another. Take that table, take that image of Castor and Pollux, take that fragment of lifeboat, take anything. Put for the beach." Oh what a struggle in the breakers, or the merciless waters that dash clear over these poor creatures. Hold on there! Almost ashore! Keep your courage up. Remember what Paul told you. Here they come in, a whole family. As the wave recedes it leaves them in the sand on the beach. Here comes in the Centurion on a splinter of the spar. Here comes in a plank freighted with a whole crowd of immortals. Now they are all in, I think. Yes, the last one comes in, Paul, for he has been overseeing all the rest, and as he clambers up out of the surf and wrings the water from his gray beard, he cries: "Thank God, all are here." They gather around the fire, for the Bible says Paul built a fire, and the bundle of sticks begin to crackle, and the passengers begin to recover from the chill, and their wet clothes begin to dry, and warmth and health seem to be coming back into the bodies of these passengers. Now let the purser of the ship go around and see if any of these poor creatures are missing. Count them all up, beginning one, two three and on to 100, and then on to 200, and then on to 276, until you have counted them all. See, all are here—276. What a relief it is as I read the account: "Some on broken pieces of the ship. And so it came to pass that they escaped all safe to land."

In a previous discourse I examined some of these passengers, but to-day I confine my attention more especially to those who came in on broken pieces of the ship. There is something about them that excites in me an intense interest. I have not so much interest in those who could swim. They got ashore. I knew they would. A mile of water is not a very great pull for a strong swimmer; nor are two miles. But those who were on the broken pieces of the ship, I cannot stop thinking of them. The great gospel ship is the finest vessel that was ever launched, and can carry more passengers than any ship that was ever constructed, and you could no more wreck it than you could wreck the throne of God Almighty. I wish all the people would come on board her. I could not promise them smooth sailing all the way, for sometimes it will be tempestuous and a chopped sea; but I do promise safe arrival to all who come on board this Great Eastern—called so by me because its commander came out of the East, and the star of the East was the badge of his authority. But there is a vast multitude who do not take regular passage. Somehow their theology is all broken into pieces, or their life is all broken into pieces, or their worldly or spiritual prospects are broken into pieces, and yet I hope that they will come to the shining shore, for I am encouraged by the experience of these people in my text—"some on broken pieces of the ship."

One object in preaching this sermon is to encourage those who, while they do not adopt all our systems of religion, nevertheless believe some one thing, and I want them to come in on that plank. "Some on broken pieces of the ship." There is a vast multitude of people who are kept out of the kingdom of God because they cannot believe everything. I know men who are ruining their souls because they cannot make up their minds who Melchizidec was not; on the non-essentials of religion wrecking their immortal hopes. I do not underrate the value of a great theological system, but where in the Bible does it say: "Believe in John Calvin and thou shalt be saved;" or, "Believe in Arminius and thou shalt be saved;" or, "Believe in the Thirty-nine articles and thou shalt be saved." A man may be orthodox and go to hell, or heterodox and go to heaven. Take Jesus Christ into the deep affection of our soul and we are saved. Refuse to take Him into the deep affection of our soul and we are lost. I believe in the Heidelbergh Catechism and the Westminster Catechism, and I wish you all did; but you may believe nothing they contain except that Christ came to save sinners, and that you are one of them, and you will be rescued. If you cannot come in on a great ship, just find a piece of wood as long as the human body, or a piece of wood as wide as the outspread human arms, and if you find that, either piece is a piece of the cross, come in on that piece. "Some on broken pieces of the ship."

I am talking with a man about his soul. He has recently been traveling in New England and he stopped over night at Andover. He says to me: "I don't become a Christian because I don't think that a man's fate is irrevocably fixed in this world. I think there is such a thing as repentance after death." "My brother," I say to him, "what is all that to you? Do not you realize that a man who, in the hope that there may be a chance after death, gives up a good chance before death is a stark fool? Do not you realize it is imbecility for a man to refuse to come ashore "on a plank that is thrown him before death because he hopes there will, by invisible hands, be a plank thrown him after death? Do as you please, my brother, but since I am offered pardon for all my sins now, and offered all the joys of time and eternity now, I accept them instantly because I do not want to depend on a chance which some wise men think they can peel off or twist out of a Scripture passage which, for all the Christian centuries has been interpreted another way." But, says a man: "I don't believe in Princeton theology, or New Haven theology, or in Andover theology." My brother, I do not ask you to go on board of either of those men-of-war, their portholes filled with the great siege guns of ecclesiastical battle. Come in on the gospel plank and strike out for the pearl-strung beach of Heaven. "Some on broken pieces of the ship."

I am talking with another man about his soul and he says: "I don't become a Christian because I don't know about the doctrine of election and free agency; those doctrines mix me all up." There was a time when I was bothered about those things, but I am no longer bothered about them. I have settled them in this way: I have made up my mind that if I love Christ and live an honest and useful life I am elected to be saved, and if I do not love Christ and live a bad life I am elected to be damned, and all the theological institutions of the universe cannot make it any different. I once floated on that sea of sin and doubt farther out than the 276 passengers on the fourteenth night when they threw the grain overboard: but I heard of the mercy of God through Jesus Christ for a sinner, and I came in on that plank, and I have been warming myself by the great genial fire of Gospel comfort and Gospel hope for three decades.

I am talking with another man about his soul. He says: "I don't become a Christian because I don't believe there is any hell." Ah! do you not? Do you believe that people of all beliefs and of no beliefs, of good morals and of bad morals, go straight to a happy Heaven? Do the holy and the debauched have the same distinction? In a hallway at midnight, the burglar meets the house-owner, and they both fire and are both wounded. The burglar instantly dies. The house owner suffers on for a week and expires. Does the burglar stand at the gate of Heaven to welcome in the house-owner when he comes up, and say: "I beat you a whole week into Heaven?" Do the libertines and the debauched go amid the families of Heaven? I wonder if Herod is on the banks of the River of Life playing with the children whom he massacred. I wonder if Charles Guiteau and John Wilkes Booth are in glory shooting at a mark! I will not controvert these theories just now, but will say in passing that for such a miserable and terrific Heaven I have no admiration. But where is the Bible passage that says: "Believe in perdition and be saved?" Because all are going to be saved according to your theory are you discharged from the duty of loving and serving Jesus Christ? Because, according to your theory, all the others are going ashore do you refuse to go ashore? Because you have different theories about chemistry, about astronomy, about the atmosphere, do you refuse action? Because you have a different theory about light, do you refuse to open your eyes? Because you have a different theory about atmosphere, do you refuse to breathe? Because you have a different theory about the stellar system, do you refuse to acknowledge the North star? Because you have a different theory about religion, do you refuse to act? If you cannot come in on a ship fashioned in the theological drydocks, come in on a plank. "Some on broken pieces of the ship."

I am talking with another man about his soul. He says: "Oh, I don't believe in revivals." Then, my brother, go to your room, lock the door and all alone give your heart to God and join some church where the thermometer never rises above fifty in the shade! "But I don't believe in baptism." Then come into the Kingdom of God without it, and settle that ordinance afterward. "But there are so many inconsistent professors of religion." Then come in, and by your example show what a professor ought to be. "But I don't believe in the Old Testament." Come in on the new. "But I don't like the book of Romans." Come on Matthew and Luke. Your refusal to come to Christ, whom you admit to be the Savior, because you cannot believe everything, makes me think of a man who out in the Mediterranean hurricane, just off the island of Melita, should refuse to go ashore until he can get the whole ship fixed up, until he can make up his mind where all these loose planks belong. He says: "I'm going ashore when I can get that windlass in the right place, and this keel piece where it belongs, and all these ropes disentangled and this mast set up—when I get everything shipshape then I'll come ashore. Why, I'm an old sailor for forty years I know all about a ship, and when I get the ship just right I'll come in." Here is a man floating on a plank and he hears it and he says: "My friend, you will drown out here if you wait till you get that ship reconstructed. Better do as I am doing. I know nothing about a ship. I never saw one till I got aboard that one. I can't swim a stroke, but I am coming in on this shivered timber." The man that comes in on the plank is saved. The man who stays out in the offing to mend the old ship is lost. Oh, my brother, let your smashed up theology go to the bottom while you come in on a splintered spar. "Some on broken pieces of the ship." I think—for I am not talking on abstraction—there are a thousand men in this house this morning in just the mood and mental condition that I am now speaking of, and I have been asked this last week over and over again about this and about that and about the other, and I am told every day of my life almost: "I can't adopt the whole system of religion, I can't believe all you believe and therefore I can't become a Christian:" so I am speaking at a tremendous practicality—let me say, my brother, you will probably get your difficulties settled the way Garibaldi, the magnetic Italian, got his gardens made. When the war broke out between Austria and Sardinia, Garibaldi was living at Caprera, a rough, uncultured island home. He went forth with his sword to achieve the liberation of Sicily and Naples, and he gave to 9,000,000 of people free government under Victor Emanuel. After two years' absence in the war Garibaldi came back to his island home and as he approached it he found that Victor Emanuel as a matter of surprise had Edenized the whole place. Trimmed shrubbery in place of thorny jungle. Beautiful gardens and terraces in place of barrenness; and instead of the old rookery where he once lived there was a picturesque mansion where he passed the rest of his days in ease and luxury. Oh, my brother, come under the standard of our Victor Emanuel and follow Him through thick and thin, and fight His battles and endure His sacrifices, and you will find that your heart has been changed from a jungle of thorny scepticism into a garden abloom with luxuriant joys such as you never dreamed of—from a Caprera of sadness and desolation into a very Paradise of God. I do not know how your theory went to pieces. Perhaps your father and mother started you on a plank, they having no religion that amounted to much of their own. Or perhaps your parents were too severe and rigid and cracked you over the head with a psalm book. Perhaps you had a business partner who was a member of the church and he played on you a very mean trick, and ever since you have been disgusted with religion. Perhaps you have infidel associates who are every day talking against Christianity until you are all at sea, and you think more of what you do not believe than of what you do believe. In one respect you are like Lord Nelson, who wished in battle to disregard a certain signal, and he put his sea glass to his blind eye and said: "I don't see any signal that you speak of." Oh, instead of putting this field glass of the gospel to your blind eye and saying "I can't see," put it to your other eye, the eye of faith, and you will see Christ, and seeing Him, you see all. Whatever you believe or do not believe, you certainly believe in vicarious suffering, for you see it every day around you in some shape. Last month the steamship Knickerbocker, of the Cromwell line, plying between New Orleans and here, got in a great storm, and the Captain saw that the schooner Mary D. Cranmer, of Philadelphia, was going on the rocks, so the chief officer, the second officer of the ship and four men put out in a lifeboat to help the schooner. They came up near where the schooner was and a hawser was thrown to the boat, the schooner was steared away, towed away from the rocks. Then the wind shifted and the schooner was in perfect safety. But oh, what a time those five men had in going to the steamer. The boat capsized and was righted. The sailors were all coated with the ice. Three times the boat capsized and three times was righted. After a while it came quite near the steamship, and from the steamship a rope was thrown, but the poor fellows were so frozen and exhausted they could not grasp it, and a great wave rolled over them and they went down, never to rise until the sea gives up it's dead. Oh, we admire the heroism and the self-sacrifice of those brave fellows in order to save the lives of others, and can we not admire the love of Christ, who put out into a fiercer gale, a wilder tempest, to deliver us from peril and set us on the throne of eternal safety? A wave of human hate rolling over Him from one side and a wave of hellish fury rolling over Him from the other side. Oh, the thickness of the night and the thunder of the tempest into which Christ plunged to save us—us. Come in on that narrow plank of the cross. Come in on that narrow beam. Let all else go. Cling to that. Put that under you, that narrow beam of the cross, and with the earnestness of a swimmer struggling for his life, put for the beach of Heaven. A great warm fire is already kindled to welcome you, and some who were as far out at sea as you are, are already standing in its genial and Heavenly glow. The angels of God's rescue are wading down into the surf to clutch your hand and the redeemed prodigals of Heaven are coming down with white robes to clothe all those who come "on broken pieces of the ship." My sympathies are the more aroused for those to whom I am speaking to-day, because I myself was naturally sceptical. I questioned everything about this life and about the next life, and I was farther out at sea than the 276 passengers on the fourteenth night when they threw their grain overboard; and I was the annoyance of my theological professor because I asked so many questions. But I heard that Christ came to save sinners, and I knew I was one of them, and I came ashore, and I have been there ever since, and I do not propose to put out on that sea again. I would not risk it all. I have not in the last thirty years spent thirty minutes in discussing the controverted points of religion, and I shall not for the rest of my life spend thirty seconds in discussing the controverted points of religion. I would rather in a canoe go out and dare the worst cyclone that ever swept up from the Carribean, than trust myself in a discussion so useless, so dangerous and so destructive, in which many of my theological brethren are indulging. They make me think of a group of sailors on Ramsgate Pierhead, from which lifeboats are usually launched, coolly discussing the different styles of oarlocks, and how a boat ought to set in the water, and discussing coolly the laws of navigation when there is a hurricane in full blast and three steamers laden with passengers going to pieces in the offing. A jack tar, his face twitching with nervous excitement, says: "My lads, this is no time to discuss such things. Man the life-boat. Who will man the pier? Out with her into the surf. Pull away for the wreck, my lads, pull, pull! There we have them. Lay them down in the bottom of the boat Now, Jack, try to bring them to. Wrap them up warm in these flannels, while I pull for the beach. God help me! God help us all! There's land His all saved! All of them!" Oh, when there are thousands and tens of thousands out in the awful surf of sin and death and lost, out with the lifeboat. Let all else go for this one effort of salvation—salvation for time, salvation forever. I bethink myself of the fact that in this audience there are those who because of their opportunity, or because of their peculiar life, have made wreck, complete wreck. You started life with a fair prospect You promised a peaceful, bright and beautiful voyage, but you have sailed in the wrong direction, or you have foundered on the rocks, so there is only a fragment of time left. Come in on that plank. "Some on broken pieces of the ship." "Oh," you tell me, "I am all broken up; a decade of my life gone, two decades gone, three decades gone, four decades gone, perhaps half a century gone, perhaps three-quarters of a century gone. The minute hand and the hour hand of your clock of life are almost parallel, and it will soon be twelve o'clock and your day of grace ended. All discouraged are you! I admit it is sad enough to give to sin and the devil the best part of our lives, and then at the close make God the present of a first rate corpse. You can never come in on that old ship: it has gone to pieces. You can never re all the past: it has gone forever. If there is only a fragment of a year left, or a fragment of a month, or a fragment of a week, or a fragment of a day, or a fragment of an hour, come in on that plank. Perhaps when you get to heaven God may let you go out on some great mission to some other world, partially to atone for your lack of service in this. From how many deathbeds I have seen hands thrown up in declarations something like this: "My life has been wasted: I have good talents; I had fine social position; I had grand opportunities, but through worldliness or neglect, all are gone except these few remaining moments I now accept Christ and I shall through His mercy enter Heaven. But alas! alas! when I might have sailed into the haven of eternal rest with a full cargo, and been greeted by the waving hands of a great multitude in whose salvation I had taken a blessed part, I must confess, that I go into the harbor of Heaven "on broken pieces of the ship."

A Reasonable Request.

Colonel Percy Yerger is much addicted to coming home late, and his wife's interrogatories on this point exasperate him very much.

"When are you going to come home?" she asked, as he put on his overcoat a few evenings ago.

"I don't know. Perhaps not at all," he replied, angrily.

"Perhaps not at all?"

"Yes, perhaps not at all."

"Well, don't stay out any later, please, dear. You know how nervous I am."—Texas Siftings.

ABOUT 17,000 pounds of silk cocoons, averaging $1 per pound, have been raised in Utah during the last year. The industry is still in its infancy, but the outlook is very flattering.

SUNSET PICTURES.

At eve, when the day is dying
Adown in the clouded west,
I climb to my lonely garret,
Athirst for its peace and rest.
I look from my western window
Away to the sunset sky,
And watch, with a vague heart-aching,
Its pageantry glow and die.

From out of the deepening shadows,
And up through the rifts of gold,
Troop memory-haunting faces,
And forms that were dear of old.
And the dismal years sweep backward
Their burden of woe and pain,
Their heartaches and tears and partings,
And leave me my past again.

Oh, memory, treasure-laden!
If only your gates would close
To open no more, forever,
On our deep, heart-piercing woes—
If only the glad and joyous
Might break from your magic train,
How many would hail you gladly
Who shrink from you now in pain!

One face—Oh, the years of darkness
That lie 'twixt its bloom and me!
Beams out of the falling shadows
That darken the sunset sea.
And the dear, bright eyes, all smiling,
Are bright as the sunset's gold!
Dear eyes! and the sweet hands beckon
Away to the Father's fold.

Another face so sweet and gentle,
With a serious, boyish grace,
Shines out of the flaming splendor,
Ah, this is my lost love's face;
But it greets me now, as never,
Save out of some sunset sheen;
For years of rebellious grieving
Lie his and my face between.

I watch them with heartsick longing!—
These two—they were all my own!
And my life seems strangely blighted,
And joyless now they are gone.
But over the sunset borders,
Adown by the jasper sea,
I shall some day find my children,
Awaiting and watching for me.
—Nellie Watts McVey, in Current.

PITH AND POINT.

Strange as it may seem, when money is close it is difficult to get very near it.—Boston Post.

A fashion journal says there is a knack in putting on gloves. Come to think of it, that's so. You have to get your hands in, as it were.—Washington Post.

The nineteenth century is marching on apace, yet no man has been able to discover how a woman can put thirty yards of cloth into a winter suit.—Call.

The rockers on a chair never stick out half so far behind at any other time as when a man is prowling around in the dark barefooted.—Danville Breeze.

It is very difficult for a lady to enter or leave a carriage properly. It requires practice and a carriage. The carriage is the hardest part to acquire.—Puck.

Customer (entering a notions shop and pointing out an article)—"What is that for?" Obliging clerk (continuing to read a newspaper)—"That's for sale."—Lowell Citizen.

Smith—"My wife wants a new dress every day in the year. Jones—"She must be awfully extravagant. Does she get it?" Smith—"No; that is the reason she is compelled to want it."—Binghamton Republican.

Father—"You are a bad boy." Johnny—"No, I ain't." "Yes you are, and if you give me any more impudence I'll punish you severely. I'll tell your sister to play a tune on the piano for you." Johnny promised to behave himself henceforth.—Siftings.

A fond father has a fair daughter at boarding school. An old teacher of the girl met the father and asked: "Is your daughter making progress in her school work?" "I should judge she is," replied the fond father. "Why, she has one grammar that cost $11."—Buffalo Express.

"Oconomowoc!" yelled the brakeman. "O'Connor may walk, may he!" exclaimed an Irishman at the other end of the car. "An' faith, if yes mane me, me, yer'll have a foine time makin' O'Connor walk when he's paid foive dollars for this bit o' pasteboard."—St. Paul Herald.

The Oldest Newspaper.

The oldest newspaper in the whole wide world is the King-Pau, or Capital Sheet, published in Pekin. It first appeared A. D. 911, but came out only at irregular intervals. Since the year 1351, however, it has been published weekly, and of uniform size. Now it appears in three editions daily. The first, issued early in the morning, and printed on yellow paper, is called Hsing-Pau (business sheet), and contains trade prices and all manner of commercial intelligence. The second edition, which comes out during the forenoon, also printed upon yellow paper, is devoted to official announcements and general news. The third edition appears late in the afternoon, is printed on red paper, and bears the name of Tita i-Pau (country sheet). It consists of extracts from the earlier editions, and is largely subscribed for in the provinces. The number of copies printed daily varies between 13,000 and 14,000.

Invention of the Lock.

This is not a modern device. Among the ruins of the great temple of Kunak its general principles have been discovered. From this we gather that it is at least forty centuries old. The locksmiths of China, we are told, had, centuries before the birth of Christ, perfected a lock out of which a sharp bamboo thorn would dart and strike the hand of any one wrongfully tampering with it. The end of this bamboo thorn was steeped in a poisonous decoction, and should the luckless thief escape death he would be maimed for life. But this story is hardly entitled to full belief, for the reason, as the Chinese themselves claim that gunpowder was manufactured by them at that time, a Celestial safe blower could easily render the thorn harmless by the aid of a few grains of powder.

Boston's gross city debt has increased nearly $1,000,000 in the past two years. The total liability is more than [illegible] 000, and it keeps growing steadily.

CHILTON VIEW.

Published Every Thursday Morning.

CLANTON, ALA., FEB. 3, 1887.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One copy one year	$1.50
One copy six months	75
One copy four "	50

The Wetumpka Times wants a printer.

Mr. Tilghman Offut, the well known news dealer of Montgomery died Tuesday morning.

Rev. C. W. Hare, of the Camden Home Ruler, has accepted a position as business manager of the Alabama Baptist. Shake! Bro. Hare.

The Birmingham Chronicle in a short editorial calls Mr. Keiser, of the Opelika Times, Bro. Hawkins. We wonder how our champion of the prohibition cause likes his new name.

The Attorney General has given his opinion that cartridges labelled "target or rifle cartridges" come under the head of pistol cartridges, and dealers in them are subject to the state and county license amounting to $450.

There is a large size difference between a-whoop-er-up prosperity and a genuine boom. Montgomery is on the latter platform, and also stands square for the Blair bill and a protective tariff.—Capital.

We hope the Advertiser and Dispatch don't feel bad.

An interesting article on the culture of the upland rice will be found in another column. This is a new feature in the agriculture of this section and our farmers should look into it thoroughly and adopt it if they can do so to their interest; and that fact is made very plain in the article elsewhere.

Some papers are still writing long articles on the hanging of Cluverius which have a tendency to make the public mind believe that he was not guilty of the crime for which he was hanged. If Cluverius had been allowed to go free or given his liberty by being pardoned by the Gov., how much louder these same papers would have howled.

Mr. C. L. Barker, who lives in the edge of Bibb county, made a success, in a small way, in raising rice last year, and will go into the business on a much larger scale this year, and if successful, will continue to enlarge his crop. Growing rice has proven very profitable wherever it has been tried in Perry county on the right sort of land.

We clip the above from an exchange. If Bibb and Perry county farmers can make a success of rice growing why not Chilton? How many of our farmers are going to give it a trial this year?

We supposed some of those who took a leading part in the question of the Coosa River opening last week, would have furnished the Express with the proceedings, but this was not done. It is an indisputable fact that a printer is not ubiquitous. He cannot, everytime fill his place, at the case, and run around hunting up items, hence it is not at all strange that items which should come in are sometimes left out. However, when that 1½ million bill of Congressman Morgan's becomes a tangible element then the Coosa River may be opened "provided however" there are not too many leaks before the dollars can reach the pockets of those with the bone and muscle which will be necessary to be brought into active play before this important desideratum can be accomplished, for its going to take muscle as well as brains.—Elmore Express.

A Striking Contrast.

The Savannah (Ga.) News, reviewing Dr. Bacon's anti-prohibition article in the October number of The Forum, says:

There are scores of towns in this State where, before the sale of whiskey was prohibited, women were afraid to appear on the streets, and merchants closed their stores a great part of the time during court week. Since the enforcement of prohibition in these towns perfect order prevails every day in the year, and they have an appearance of thrift, comfort and prosperity which is in striking contrast with their appearance when whiskey was free.

Where State prohibition cannot be had, give the people local option. There is no good reason why the people of any town in the United States should not have the privilege of prohibiting the sale of intoxicants in their midst if they want to. And when once they have tried it there is not the least danger that they will ever return to free whiskey.

OVER THE COUNTY.

News Gathered up by Our Correspondents.

Stanton Taffs.

Mr. Henry Crawford had the misfortune to lose his infant son last week. The little fellow was left in a little rocking chair in front of the fire and while his mother was attending to her household duties an older child kicked the chair over, and the baby fell on the fire and was so badly burned that it died in five hours.

Mrs. John Lethcher has been sick with typhoid fever for the last two weeks. We are glad to know she is convalescing.

The preachers in this part of the county are working faithfully for prohibition in Maplesville beat. May success crown their efforts.

I was at Pleasant Grove church yesterday and it was a noticable fact that the whiskey men from Maplesville remained outside and electioneered all through services. Is this morality? It shows the disposition of such men to ignore everything that man holds sacred, to accomplish their fiendish purposes.

Mrs. Leckie, of Butler county, has moved to Stanton to get advantage of Stanton Academy for her two boys.

Prof. E. D. Acker is giving his patrons satisfaction as "Dominie" of Stanton Academy. May he live long and prosper.

Stanton is still improving and we hope to see her catch a boom from Selma.

"89" will soon have a house to hide her head.

Lumber is on the lot to build Mr. J. O. Butler a residence.

89.

Lilly Dots.

The guano question comes up next. What kind shall we use and who shall we deal with?

Titus has been rambling over the country some lately. Stopped one night at the residence of Mr. W. H. Mills, and met with a warm welcome. Things looked like business around him. A crib full of corn, fat hogs, fat cows and plenty of them, and milk and butter in an abundance. And such a nice family. A wife whom "Titus" said was worth forty thousand dollars. Nice children and a beautiful daughter, left for some worthy young man, if there is one in the country. We all know young men, worthy of such a young lady, are scarce.

Next we spent a night and a day with one of our old playmates, Mr. C. E. Boon. We found him the same jolly good natured, good hearted Charley as years ago. Charley has to be a good boy to be worthy of the love of the beautiful Laura who is his wife.

Tom R. don't be uneasy there are as honest men in the farmer's club as there are at your house or ever will be.

TITUS.

Dixie Dots.

Mrs. M. A. Hare, who has been visiting her daughter Mrs. Crum, of this place, left last Saturday for her son's home in Dallas Co., Ala.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. Crum who has been quite sick for six weeks, is convalescent.

Mrs. E. G. Adams, Camden, Ala., has moved up to Dr. T. E. Callier's, and will make this her home.

The "little ones" had a nice time at Mr. J. W. Stewarts last Friday night "stretching candy."

Mr. Ed. Adams, of Montgomery, spent two or three days with his family at Dixie.

Mr. and Mrs. K. Carter, of Howison, Ala. were in our town one day last week.

Dr. T. E. Callier is on a business trip to his place at Bladen Springs Ala.

Mr. John E. Callier, is acting postmaster, at this place, the office of P. M. being vacant by the death of Mrs. E. J. Callier our former postmistress.

What has become of "Blockhead"? I guess he spends most of his time in writing to the girls, is why we can't hear from him; any way I will write this week, as I don't have any boys to write to; yet, I'm glad I'm living.

A young man of our town, wants to know where he can get a good wife. I will say, just call on "Daisy," she takes a matrimonial paper.

DAISY.

Dots from Concord.

Jan. 27th, 1887.

The weather is pleasant this week.

The rain that fell last Sunday was greatly appreciated by the farmers.

Miss Lucy Meredith spent last Saturday and Sunday at her home in Montevallo.

Mr. S. A. Curry lost a fine mule one day this week, by the mule kicking; got its foot fastened in the fork of a sapling and jerked its hoof off.

Mr. L. H. Reynolds, who left us for Chattanooga, was taken sick in Birmingham and had to return home. He is now quite ill.

Mr. G. G. West was appointed Notary by the Governor for beat No. 2.

We learn that Mr. P. C. Gardner's store at Montevallo was opened and the cash drawer was taken but the drawer did not have any money in it, luckily.

The farmers are busy sowing oats and preparing for another crop; one that is much heavier than has been for years and we wish them a great deal of success.

PEACEFUL BOY.

Maplesville Dots.

We have had some good weather for the past two weeks and some of our industrious citizens have taken the advantage of it.

We must give Mr. Fayette Gandy credit for having sense enough to surprise his neighbors by bringing himself a better-half to this part of the world.

I am glad to have the opportunity of telling the friends and subscribers of the VIEW that Mr. N. W. Foshee is convalescing from a severe attack of typhoid fever.

Mr. H. C. Bearden has made a wonderful discovery in the medical science. He says the old way to cure the mumps is to get the marrow from the jaw bone of a hog and rub it on the afflicted jaw; but he puts the marrow on a piece of bread and eats it and then rubs the bone on his jaw.

D.

Dots from Six Mile Creek.

We hear of a few cases of mumps in the community.

We have heard of but few log-rollings this season. Messrs. Jasper Jones, and James and Ezekiel Nix, are the first men in that business so far.

Mr. Walter Smith who has been low with pneumonia, is improving.

Mr. W. E. Posey, son of Rev. S. D. Posey, has been quite sick.

Mrs. David Crumpton, who has been low with typhoid fever, is improving.

Mr. James Atchison is preparing to build a new residence.

JULIUS.

Upland Rice and Its Culture.

For the VIEW.]

There has been so many questions asked about upland rice and its culture, that I have promised to write some articles with directions how to plant and cultivate it.

To plant upland rice, bed up the land as for cotton 2½ to 3 feet apart as the strength of the land will indicate; plant, like corn, as early as the season will allow, plant with a drill, opening the furrow, and plant at the rate of one peck to the acre. Then cover with a turn plow, with two furrows, then let it lay for a week or such a matter, or until the rice commences to sprout, then put a board on a plow and board it off as deep as it will bear. Let it lay for a week or two and then plow with a small plow and lap as near as possible; let it lay for a week, or until it needs work again, then use a larger turn plow, then leave it for another week and then take a sweep and turn all the dirt it will bear. Where there is a bunch of grass that was not covered in the first plowing stop and pull it out; then it is clean of grass. One more plowing with a sweep will be as much as it will require.

PRODUCTION.

Good average up land that will make one bale of cotton to 2 acres, will make from 40 to 50 bushels of rice per acre. The average price of rough rice the world over is one dollar per bushel. The standard weight of rice is 44 lbs. per bushel. One bushel of rough rice will make 31 lbs. of clean rice; the price for cleaning is one cent per pound or one fifth for toll, leaving 25 lbs. clean rice after paying the toll.

Rice cleaned by the new process sells commonly in market from one to two cents per pound more than the old process of mortar and pestle cleaned.

Say two acres of land that will make one bale of cotton at 8 cents, will bring $40. Two acres of the same land will make say 40 bushels per acre of rice at $1 per bushel, and you have $80 for your rice against $40 for your cotton, and less than half the expense for cultivating and preparing it for market.

J. W. PRITCHETT.

A Woman's Industrial College for Alabama.

I see that Hon. S. W. Johns, member of the Legislature from Dallas county, has offered a bill in the Legislature asking the State to appropriate a certain amount of money to establish a Woman's Industrial College in Alabama, where our girls, will be given not only a good education but will be taught some useful trade or art, by which they can earn their own living. This is certainly a grand thing for our daughters, and we should use all our influence to bring about so glorious a result. I understand his bill has been read in the House and reported on favorably by the committee. Col. Johns has asked the co-operation and assistance of the W. C. T. Union and they have pledged him their support. I presume the bill will come up again when the Legislature reassembles, and let me urge and beg the ladies of Verbena and Clanton to use all their influence through our Representative and Senator in giving it a favorable consideration. I know of nothing that Alabama needs more, at this time, than an institution which will enable her young women to prepare themselves for the active and responsible duties of life.

Mississippi already has one, and I know the thoughtful and progressive men of Ala. will not deny to the daughters of their State a fair chance of preparing themselves, by study and application to learn the various arts and industries by which they can be self-supporting.

S. E. GREENE.

Verbena, Ala.

E. WALL. P. GIACOPAZZI.

WALL & GIACOPAZZI,

Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Commission Merchants,

Second Ave. and Twentieth St.

Birmingham, - - - Ala.

References: S. Oteri, New Orleans; Jos. Denunzio, Louisville; Buhr, Wendte & Co., Cincinnati; Underhill, Stewart & Shotta, N. Y.; Wm. D. Clarke & Co., New Orleans; Cowing & Clark, Cincinnati; A. G. Conant & Co., N. Y.; First National Bank, Birmingham, Ala.

H. H. BARCLIFT & CO.,

Wholesale and Retail Grocers,

No. 2118 2d Ave. Bet. Twenty-first and Twenty-Second Sts.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

☞ We solicit a share of the patronage of the merchants of Chilton County. Send us your orders.

"Hi Pompey! what you 'fraid of?
What makes you shake and shibber?"
"Law chile! ise got de ague
An got de tropic libber."
"De tropic libber Pompey?
I don't know what you means:
But you can cure your ague
By taking SMITH'S BILE BEANS.
Two bits a bottle, don't pay more!
You'll get dem at de drugman's store."

The most economical and best remedy for ague. 25 cents, per bottle.

Croup, Whooping cough and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. jun16 y

Newman's Southern Flower Cologne is the best. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Shiloh's Vitalizer is what you need for Constipation, loss of appetite, dizziness, and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle.

The good effects of Ellis' P. P. P. on a debilitated person are felt at once, and a cure follows its use. If suffering from blood poison try a bottle. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

No family should be without Ellis' Magic Oil Liniment, the greatest external remedy known. It cures all aches and pains. Price 25 cents per bottle, at W. H. Phillips.

Sleepless nights made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by M. J. Greene Clanton. jun16y

Take one of Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pillets at night before you go to bed and you will be surprised how buoyant and vigorous you will feel the next day. Only 25 cents a vial.

Croup is a treacherous disease, and generally the most severe at night when unable to properly watch it. The best known remedy is Ellis' C. S. A. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

If you are suffering with weak or inflamed eyes, or granulated eyelids, you can be quickly cured by using Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve. 25 cents a box. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Sick Headache and a sensation of oppression and dullness in the head are very commonly produced by indigestion; morbid despondency, irritability and over-sensitiveness of the nerves may, in a majority of cases, be traced to the same cause. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm and Pillets will positively cure. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton. sep11 3

NOTICE NO. 5962.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 19, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court, or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., March 8th, 1887, viz: Isaac M. Deason, Homestead, 11877, for the e ½ of the se ¼ and se ¼ of sw ¼, and sw ¼ of se ¼, sec 2, township 20 N, range 13 E. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said lands, viz: John H. Gray, Mac D. Gray, William I. Mullins and Joseph Popwell, all of Kincheon, Ala.

jan20* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

SUIT IN CHANCERY.

B. H. Chesnutt, Complainant, vs. John H. Easterling, Defendant. In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of Wm. A. Collier, Esq., solicitor for the Complainant in the above stated cause that the Defendant, John H. Easterling, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, that his particular place of residence is unknown to affiant, and futher that in the belief of affiant the defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Chilton View, a newspaper published in the town of Clanton, for four consecutive weeks requiring him the said John H. Easterling to answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 28th day of February, 1887, or in thirty days thereafter a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office this 25th day of January 1887.

W. E. STEWART,
jan27-4t Register.

Printer's fee $7.50.

Assessor's Notice.

SECOND ROUND.

I will attend the following named places and days for the purpose of assessing the taxes of Chilton county for the year 1887:

Thomas Robert's,	Beat 8,	Tuesday,	February 15th.
Stanton,	Beat 8,	Wednesday,	Feb. 16th.
Dixie,	" 8,	Thursday,	" 17th.
Howison,	" 8,	Friday,	" 18th.
Latham's	" 7,	Monday	" 21st.
Maplesville	" 7,	Tuesday	" 22nd.
Benson	" 3,	Wednesday	" 23rd.
Macedonia Church	Beat 3,	Thursday	February 24th.
Providence Church,	Beat 2,	Friday	February 25th.
Jemison,	Beat 2,	Saturday,	Feb. 26th.
Jemison,	" 2,	Monday,	" 28th.
Mullins	" 1,	Tuesday,	March 1st.
Clanton	" 4,	Wednesday,	" 2nd.
Clanton	" 4,	Thursday,	" 3rd.
Cooper's	" 5,	Friday,	" 4th.
Cooper's	" 5,	Saturday	" 5th.
Verbena	" 5,	Monday,	" 7th.
Verbena	" 5,	Tuesday,	" 8th.
Kincheon	" 6,	Thursday,	" 10th.

WM. A. SMITH,
jan20-6 Tax Assessor, C. C. A.

NOTICE OF DISSOLUTION.

The partnership heretofore existing between W. M. Wilson and P. D. Wilson, under the firm name of W. M. Wilson & Bro., is this day desolved by mutual consent. The business will be continued by W. M. Wilson, who becomes liable for all the debts of the late firm and all persons indebted to said firm, of Wilson & Bro. are requested to settle their accounts with W. M. Wilson.

W. M. Wilson,
jan27-3t P. D. Wilson.

NOTICE NO. 5969.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 20, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March, 5th, 1887, viz: Elijah B. Wyatt, Homestead application, No. 16689, for the e ½ of se ¼, sec. 24, township 22, range 15 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: Redding E. Jones, Andrew J. Peters, Monroe J. Parish and Moses Bater, all of Clanton, Ala.

jan27* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

TRESSLAR,

Artistic Photographer

10 COURT SQUARE,

Montgomery.

Life Size Photographs a Specialty.

Photograhs, on Silk, Satin and Linen.
Photographs on watch dials.
Enameled Photographs.

All Sittings made Instantaneously.
Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged.

☞ Correspondence solicited. ☜

[jan21-tf]

BANDMAN & CO.,

Wholesale Grocers,

P. O BOX 251,

1st Avenue, bet. 18th and 19th Streets,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

jan 13 6m

MARRIAGE GUIDE

260 PAGES. Illustrated, in Cloth and Gilt Binding, 50c. money or stamps. Same, paper cover, 25c. This Book contains ALL the curious, doubtful or inquisitive want to know. Full of very interesting and valuable information. HEALTH, BEAUTY and HAPPINESS are promoted by its advice—who may Marry, who not, why; Medical Aid, when necessary, brought home to you. 50 Wonderful PEN PICTURES, true to life. Young or old, married or single, sick or well, should read it. Sent sealed by DR. WHITTIER, St. Louis, Mo.

CUT THIS OUT AND SEND WITH ORDER.

VOLINA CORDIAL

CURES Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weakness, Chills and Fevers, Malaria, Liver Complaint, Kidney Troubles, Neuralgia and Rheumatism.

IT is invigorating and delightful to take, and of great value as a Medicine for Weak and Ailing Women and Children. It gives New Life to the whole System by Strengthening the Muscles, Toning and Invigorating the Nerves, and completely Digesting the food. Contains no hurtful Minerals, is composed of carefully-selected Vegetable Medicines, combined skilfully, making a Safe and Pleasant Remedy.

VOLINA CORDIAL

A BOOK, "Volina," by leading physicians, telling how to treat diseases at Home, mailed, together with a Set of Handsome Cards by new Heliotype process, on receipt of 10 cents.

For sale by all Druggists and Grocers, should the dealer near you not keep VOLINA CORDIAL, remit $1.00, and a full-size bottle will be sent, charges paid. Prepared only by—

VOLINA DRUG AND CHEMICAL COMPANY, BALTIMORE, MD., U. S. A.

WINTER! SPRING!

During the Season of Winter MALARIA Lurks in the System!

COLLINS AGUE CURE

One Dose a day, taken three days in succession, each month, or when you feel badly in any way, will fully Cleanse your Blood, Remove all Bilious Secretions & Malarial Poisons from your System, and Insure GOOD HEALTH IN THE SPRING.

PRICE, FIFTY CENTS PER BOTTLE.

If you are troubled with a COUGH, COLD, SORENESS in CHEST, or any Affection of Throat or Lungs, use DR. JACKSON'S

Syrup LUNGWORT & WILD CHERRY

Sold at 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 a Bottle.

If your EYES are affected in any way, use DR. JACKSON'S CELEBRATED INDIAN EYE SALVE.

Sold Everywhere at 25 cents per Box.

Send for COLLINS BROS. "PRESENT CENTURY ALMANAC" for 1887. Mailed to any address or at any Drug Store.

COLLINS BROS. DRUG CO., St. Louis, Mo.

jun24-y

GREETING

TO THE

PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY:

E. ERSWELL,

19th STREET, BETWEEN FIRST AND SECOND AVENUE.

Birmingham, Ala.

BEGS TO ANNOUNCE THAT HE WOULD LIKE A SHARE OF YOUR PATRONAGE AND IS PREPARED TO SELL AS LOW AS ANY.

Mail orders solicited and satisfaction guaranteed. Telegraph orders promptly filled. Rooms carpeted to order. Decorating and House Furnishing a Specialty.

Largest Carpet Parlor in Alabama.

FINEST SELECTION OF FURNITURE IN THE SOUTH.

WINDOW SHADES OF NEWEST AND LATEST STYLES.

Heavy Stock of Picture Frames.

E. Erswell has the most complete stock of Carpets in Alabama Carpets, Oil Cloths, Linoleums, Mattings of all grades and in endless varieties. Office Furniture. Desks of all Styles. Book Cases in Walnut, Mahogany, &c., Wardrobe Settees, Side-Boards, Folding beds, Washstands, Extension Tables, In fact everything in the Furniture and Carpet line. Wall Papers of all Grades.

EVERYTHING GUARANTEED AND WARRANTED FIRST CLASS MATERIAL.

No shoddy goods, but genuine and honest work. Full line of Undertakers goods. Telegraph orders promptly attended to.

E. ERSWELL.

☞ Next Door to Opera House. P. O. Box 30. ☜

BAINS & PEEBLES.

(SUCCESSORS TO BAINS & HERRING.)

WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.

Mail and Express Orders Will Receive Prompt Attention.

FINE WINES AND LIQUORS A SPECIALTY.

1926 FIRST AVENUE, BETWEEN 19th and 20th STREETS,

Birmingham, Ala.

☞ Fine Stock of Chess Carley's Oils at Company's Prices. ☜

P. O. BOX 570. June 19 y

BEST GRADES OF

MERCHANDISE

At JOHN GARNER'S, Clanton.

sep3-tf

J. C. HENDRICKS, Presd't. T. T ASHFORD Sec'y & Treas.

Birmingham Paint, Glass and Wall Paper Co.

Successors to

MAYBERRY & ASHFORD.

Jobbers and Retailers of

Paints, Oils, Window Glass, Plate, Sky-Light and Colored Glass, Sash, Doors, Blinds and Moulding,

Painters' and Artists' Supplies.

WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES, and CURTAIN FIXTURES.

1912 Second Avenue, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

☞ Write for Samples of Wall Paper and Estimates on Glass. jun10

MINERAL CITY TIN AND STOVE HOUSE

SECOND AVENUE BETWEEN 18TH AND 19TH STREETS,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Pat Walsh, Manager.

A Large Line of HEATING and COOKING STOVES always on hand. All Kinds of

Tin, Sheet Iron Roofing and Job Work

DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.

☞ Orders by mail will receive prompt attention. nov 11

BOOKS, THREE CENTS EACH.

The following books are published in neat pamphlet form, many of them handsomely illustrated, and all are printed from good type upon good paper. Please examine the list and see if you do not find therein some that you would like to possess. In cloth-bound form these books would cost $1.00 each. Each book is complete in itself:

Anecdotes of the Rebellion. A collection of humorous, pathetic, and thrilling narratives of the war, stories of bivouac and battle-field, march and picket, adventures of scouts and spies, stories of prison life, of the great generals, of Mr. Lincoln, etc.

The Life of General U. S. Grant. By W. A. Peters. With portrait and other illustrations.

Poems, by John G. Whittier. The only cheap edition published—should be in every household. Illustrated.

Poems, by Henry W. Longfellow. No one can afford to be without this fine collection. Illustrated.

Poems, by Alfred Tennyson. This work contains some of the finest compositions of the great Poet Laureate.

Parlor Amusements. A large collection of Acting Charades, Parlor Dramas, Shadow Pantomimes, Games, Puzzles, etc., for social gatherings, public and private entertainments and evenings at home. Illustrated.

Manual of Floriculture. Teaches the best method of propagating all the different plants, tells how to cure disease and eradicate insect pests, gives directions for making beautiful floral and other devices, for window gardening, etc. Illustrated.

Guide to Needlework, Knitting and Crochet. Containing designs and directions for all kinds of Fancy Needlework, Artistic Embroidery, Lace Work, Knitting, Tatting, Crochet and Net Work. Illustrated.

Famous Detective Stories. A collection of thrilling narratives of detective experience, many of them written by actual members of the profession.

Yankee Wit and Humor. A collection of humorous stories, sketches, poems and paragraphs, by the leading funny men of the American Press. Illustrated.

The Mystery at Blackwood Grange. A Novel. By Mrs. May Agnes Fleming.

The Evil Genius. A Novel. By M. T. Caldor.

The Story of a Storm. A Novel. By Mrs. Jane G. Austin.

Out of the Sea. A Novel. By Clara Augusta.

Agatha's History. A Novel. By Margaret Blount.

The Morwick Farm Mystery. A Novel. By Wilkie Collins. Illustrated.

The Last of the Ruthvens. A Novel. By Miss Mulock. Illustrated.

A Dead Heart. A Novel. By Author of "Dora Thorne."

Out of the Depths. A Novel. By Hugh Conway.

The Romantic Adventures of a Milkmaid. A Novel. By Thomas Hardy.

In the Holidays. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay.

The Heir to Ashley. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood.

Miss or Mrs.? A Novel. By Wilkie Collins. Illustrated.

More Bitter than Death. A Novel. By the Author of "Dora Thorne."

Carriston's Gift. A Novel. By Hugh Conway. Illustrated.

The Fatal Lilies. A Novel. By Author of "Dora Thorne."

A Shadow on the Threshold. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay.

The Curse of Carew. A Novel. By author of "Dora Thorne."

The Blatchford Bequest. A Novel. By Hugh Conway. Illustrated.

A Queen Amongst Women. A Novel. By the author of "Dora Thorne."

The Fatal Marriage. A Novel. By Miss M. E. Braddon.

A Tale of Sin. A Novel. By Mrs. Henry Wood.

A Bridge of Love. A Novel. By author of "Dora Thorne."

A Passive Crime. A Novel. By "The Duchess."

Ingledew House. A Novel. By author of "Dora Thorne."

The Knightsbridge Mystery. A Novel. By Charles Reade. Illustrated.

Wedded and Parted. A Novel. By author of "Dora Thorne."

A Fortune Hunter. A Novel. By Annie Thomas. Illus.

Among the Ruins. A Novel. By Mary Cecil Hay. Illus.

Rose Lodge. A Novelette. By Mrs. Henry Wood.

We will send any four of the above books by mail post-paid upon receipt of only Twelve Cents; any ten for 25 Cents; any twenty for 50 Cents; the entire list (40 books) for 75 Cents; the entire list bound in boards with cloth back, for $1.10. These are the cheapest books ever published and guaranteed worth three times the money asked for them. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Postage stamps taken for fractions of a dollar. As to our reliability, we refer to any newspaper published in New York, likewise to the Commercial Agencies.

Special Offer! To every one sending for the above list of books, we will send, without extra charge, either sixty cents' worth of the Imported Fancy Patterns, to be selected by yourself from catalogue [illegible], or The [illegible], a large 16-page, 64 column illustrated literary paper for one year. All orders filled by return mail. Mention this paper.

F. M. LUPTON, Publisher, No. 2 Park Place, New York.

CHILTON VIEW.

CLANTON, ALA., FEB. 3, 1887.

THE VIEW is published every Thursday morning, and will endeavor to cover the field of reputable country journalism. It will show no quarter to the deceitful, the immoral or the ungodly. It will always be good natured, although it can bite if necessary.

Those answering advertisements will confer a favor by mentioning this paper.

COURT CALENDAR.

Chancery—Friday after the first Mondays in April and October.

Circuit—Fourth Monday in March, and fifth Monday after the fourth Monday in August.

Commissioners'—Regular term second Monday in February and August, and first Monday in April and November. Special term second Monday in July.

County—First Monday in each month.

SCHEDULE S. & N. ALA. RAILROAD.—Trains pass Clanton daily, as follows:

GOING SOUTH.

No. 1 at	5:45 a. m.
No. 3	5:43 p. m.
No. 7	3:00 p. m.
No. 51	00:5 a. m.

GOING NORTH.

No. 2	9:21 a. m.
No. 12	9:55 a. m.
No. 4	*9:43 p. m.
No. 50	8:45 p. m.

* Don't stop.

LOCAL DOTTINGS.

Subscribe for the VIEW.

Corner lots are at a premium.

Gardening season will soon be here.

The front of the new jail is being built higher.

We hear that a large hotel will soon be built in Clanton. Particulars later.

The Baptists are thinking of building a new and much larger church.

The court house well might be of some service to the public if it had a bucket on it.

For the benefit of "Pat" we will say that we live at No. 7777 Hot Well Avenue.

Valentine's Day on the 14th. Comic ones on sale at the VIEW Stationery Stand.

A number of Clantonians went over about Maplesville on a dove hunt Tuesday.

Tickets for the prohibition election can be printed cheaply at the VIEW office.

We presume the Clanton Call is dead as we have heard nothing of it for several weeks. The mourners are few.

Not since we have been in Clanton do we remember a time when there was no building of any kind going on.

Judging from the number of deeds we have sold from this office recently, real estate transfers have been numerous.

Our Sunday schools have begun to flourish again. The worst of the winter weather is over and picnics will soon be in order. See?

The farmer's store has been changed from the old Ehrman store house to the Johnson building formerly occupied by S. T. Nelson.

Quite a number of citizens from different sections the county were in Clanton Monday at the sale of valuable real estate. And some invested.

The Baptist choir seems to be the most popular place in that church now; for the seats are always crowded so that the members of the choir cannot find seats, if a little late. Reserved seats cannot be had, even at fancy figures.

We have three new organs for sale cheap for cash. They are now in the factory and will be shipped to any point desired by the purchaser. One Estey and two of the Chicago Cottage Organs. Come and see or write us before purchasing elsewhere.

The south bound accommodation train and a north bound freight, collided near Mountain Creek in this county on last Saturday Morning. Killing the engineer and fireman on the freight. It was caused by the accommodation train running off time.

Churches come very cheap in Clanton. One sold there the other day for $37.50.—Birmingham Age.

Churches are cheapening. One sold in Clanton last week for $37.50. After awhile an editor will be able to own a pew.—Wetumpka Times.

Yes the one in question sold very cheap indeed, but we will soon have another one erected on the site of the old one which will be worth as much as a corner lot in Birmingham, and it is doubtful whether an editor will even be allowed to sit on a back seat without a permit from the sexton.

Personals.

Mr. J. C. Traywick, of Verbena, was in Clanton Monday.

Mr. J. M. Hanlin, of Verbena, has moved to Birmingham.

Mr. J. L. Williams, our county surveyor was in to see us yesterday.

Mr. J. E. Evans has moved into his new store house which is one of the nicest in the place.

Mr. Fox Maull, of Strasburg, was on hand Monday to auction off the N. H. Thornton property.

Rev. A. E. Burns preached two able sermons in the Baptist church, at this place, last sabbath.

Hon. K. Wells, of Verbena, was in Clanton Monday buying property. He paid the VIEW a pleasant call.

Mr. I. B. Bowdoin has moved his stock of goods into the Aldridge storehouse lately vacated by J. E. Evans.

The Rev. H. Urquhart, presiding elder, preached in the Baptist church, at this place, on Wednesday night of last week.

W. E. Johnston, Esq., our representative left Monday evening for Montgomery. The Legislature reconvened Tuesday.

Mr. Chas. Hannon, of this place, is on a prospecting trip to Birmingham. He will probably go into the lumber business there.

We learn that Miss Minnie Phillips will open a school next Monday and will teach in the new building of W. H. Burton's in East Clanton.

Mr. "Jabe" Woolley is building a nice residence in West Clanton. He says it is for his father but he is accused by some of having another motive in building.

"Pat" has come home to stay and consequently cannot write dots for the VIEW unless we employ him as local editor, so he wants his fellow correspondents to give him a rest.

Messrs. P. D. Wilson, of this place, and N. A. Kicker, formerly of Clanton but now of Birmingham, will start a lumber yard in the "Magic City." We wish them success.

The popular wholesale drug firm of Bains & Herring, Birmingham, has changed its firm name to Bains & Peebles, as will be seen by reference to their advertisement in another column.

Mr. Charlie Bivings, of Bivings, Duke & Co's Mill, has accepted a position as traveling agent for the Enterprise Manufacturing Company of Birmingham and has gone to fill the same. We hate to lose "C. K." but wish him much success.

Mrs. J. H. Chandler, of this place, sold 132 lbs. of butter from April to Nov. 1886 and used from three to five lbs. per week on her on table. We made a mistake of 100 lbs. in our statement of this matter a few weeks ago. She only has two cows. A splendid showing.

We learn that Mr. J. P. Allen, of Jemison, has begun practicing law in the justice courts of that burg. We always thought he was too honest to be a lawyer but if he is going to try his hand at the profession he should hang out his sign by letting the VIEW publish a card for him.

Mr. H. Evans, of Bozeman, Autauga county, was in Clanton Monday. He bought a valuable residence lot which he says he will sell to the Baptists for $50 less than he gave for it, or in other words he proposes to give that much towards the erection of a new Baptist church, in that way.

Our representative, Hon. W. E. Johnston, went to Jemison one day last week on legal business and while there had a small sized fight with Mr. W. H. Shelby, his late opponent in the race for the Legislature, neither were much worsted by the scuffle and the matter was afterwards settled very amicably. The difficulty occurred in Prof. Corderie's drug store. It was about a case in the justice court over which Mr. Shelby presides and in which Mr. Johnston was prospecting attorney.

They say they don't intend to fight in the Jemison drug store any more as no one interferes with them but just lets 'em go it till somebody hollers.

We expect Bro. Corderie wanted to get to sell some sticking plaster to patch up wounds.

Send us your orders for job work.

Noteheads, billheads, letterheads, envelopes, statements, programmes, posters, dodgers, circular letters, visiting and business cards, commissary checks, &c. &c., printed at the VIEW Job Office, at reasonable prices and on short notice.

"Coming Events Cast Their Shadows Before Them."

Clanton's boom is surely dawning if the advancement in the price of real estate is a foreshadowing evidence of that fact. On last Monday there was an auction sale, by an administrator, of property lying in and around Clanton, which brought parties from adjoining towns and counties here for the purpose of buying, and investing their money in this property.

One small lot facing 75 feet on the L. & N. railroad and running back 87½ feet, which was only half of the original lot, brought $200 and was bought by Mr. R. Ehrman, of this place.

A beautiful residence lot in West Clanton 75x175 feet was bought by Mr. K. Wells, of Verbena, for which he paid $210, and sold it again inside of an hour for $225 to Mr. H. Evans, of Bozeman.

A track of farming land was also sold which brought $2.35 per acre.

Considering the fact that the sale was for spot cash and at a public auction this property brought good prices.

We hear of other parties who have unimproved property in Clanton and have been offered bargains, in cash for it; but who, like us, have faith in the future of our town and are holding it for higher prices.

Improvements are going on all the time which are of a solid, substantial nature; nearly fifty buildings have been erected in the past few years, and still they continue to be built.

The boom we are looking for will be composed of solid substantial growth and progress, no wind and but little paper. It will be like the one we have been enjoying for the last few years only on a large scale.

Orange Blossoms.

PHILLIPS—JACKSON: Mr. W. H. Phillips, of this place, and Miss Eleanora K. Jackson, of Florence, Ala., were married in the Episcopal church at Florence on the evening of the 27th ult.

The groom is one of Clanton's most prosperous and progressive business men. The bride is well known in Clanton and Alabama. She visited our little city several times prior to her marriage and made many friends while here, as well as added much to the life and enjoyment of social circles. She is a sister of Mr. "Kirk." Jackson, now private secretary of the Governor. We congratulate our friend Phillips upon having won so worthy a help-mate and wish them both more joy and happiness than we are capable of expressing.

Rheumatism and Neuralgia Cured in 2 Days.

The Indiana Chemical Co. have discovered a compound which acts with truly marvelous rapidity in the cure of Rheumatism and Neuralgia. We guarantee it to cure any and every case of acute Inflammatory Rheumatism and Neuralgia in 2 Days, and to give immediate relief in chronic cases and effect a speedy cure.

On receipt of 30 cents, in two cents, stamps, we will send to any address the prescription for this wonderful compound, which can be filled by your home druggist at small cost. We take this means of giving our discovery to the public instead of putting it out as a patent medicine, it being much less expensive. We will gladly refund money if satisfaction is not given.

THE INDIANA CHEMICAL CO.,
Crawfordsville, Ind.

CLANTON, ALA., Jan. 27th, 1887.
ED. VIEW:

I have been gone for some time and have not had the pleasure of reading the VIEW. I have been traveling in the western part of this county. I find the farmers all busy preparing for the coming crop year. There are a good many industrious farmers in this part of the county. I have also been on a trip to Elmore county. There are a good many good farmers in Elmore too but Chilton is ahead of it. But I saw more work in the way of farming in Dallas and Perry counties. There are a good many men down there who have their cotton land bedded and ready to plant when the time comes. You know I have come home and would like to come and see you if you will let me know where you live. PAT.

A Woman's Industrial College would be a great Institution for Alabama, and if the state funds can stand it we think it ought to be established.

Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures consumption. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton Ala.

Life will acquire new zest, and cheerfulness will return, if you will impel your liver and kidneys to the performance of their functions Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm will stimulate them to healthful action. $1.00 per bottle. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

MONTGOMERY FURNITURE COMPANY.

—DEALERS IN—

Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Looking Glasses, Lounges, Hall Racks, Wardrobes, Chairs, Safes, Side Boards, Cradles, Cribs, Baby Carriages, Spring Beds. Mattresses, Refrigerators, Pianos. Organs, Carpets,

And All Kinds of Furniture!

A. C. ROGERS, Manager,
sep2 y 210 Bibb Street, Wharton's Old Stand Next to McDonald's Opera House.

FURNITURE AND WALL PAPER FOR EVERYBODY!

OUR STOCK OF FURNITURE. WINDOW SHADES, LACE CURTAINS, WALL PAPER, SPRING BEDS, AND MATTRESSES IS NOW COMPLETE.

Anybody in need of the above articles will find it to their interest to look at our immense stock. We guarantee everything we sell, and sell it cheaper than anybody in this State.

SQUARE DEALING IS OUR MOTTO!

B. WOLFF & BRO., Montgomery.
sept 15-6 20 Commerce and Corner Court and Coosa Streets.

Ellis' Magic Liver Pills are safe for children, and are more effective than any other cathartic pill on the market. If not found satisfactory return and get your money. For sale by W. H. Phillips. aug28-y

Will you suffer with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

That hacking cough can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's cure. We guarantee it. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Money to Loan!

I am prepared to negotiate mortgage loans on farming lands in Chilton county in sums of three hundred dollars and upwards. Rates cheap and negotiations speedily concluded. Apply to or correspond with

H. L. WILLIAMS,
oct7 Att'y at Law, Wetumpka.

NOTICE NO. 5783.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 4, 1886.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver United States Land Office at Montgomery, Ala., on Febuary 19th, 1887, viz: Maria House, Homestead application No. 18475, for the s ½ of n e ¼ sec 28 t 20 n range 15 e. She names the following witnesses to prove her continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: John Ray, Monroe Gill, Stephen Price, Lewis Price, all of Verbena, Ala.

d30 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5884.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 28, 1886.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on Febuary, 5th 1887, viz: Nancy J. Norris, Homestead 12737 for the se ¼ of sec. 21, township 21, range 16 east. He names the following witness to prove his continuance residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Thos. Mims, William D. Goss, Harrison Kendrick and Clopton Ray, all of Verbena, Ala.

dec30 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5991.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery Ala., Jan. 26, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the Clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March 5th, 1887, viz: Asa J. Rolinson, Homestead 18106, for the se ¼ of the ne ¼ and the ne ¼ of se ¼, sec. 24, township 20 n, range 12 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William Roberts, Wm. Robuck, Wm. Klinner and Wm. H. Foshee, Jr., all of Dixie, Ala.

jan27 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

STOP AT

Morris Avenue Hotel,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Corner Morris Avenue and 20th Street
ELYTON LAND CO. BUILDING.
HUGH KIRKMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Splendid rooms, well ventilated and elegantly furnished. Rates reasonable.

FARMER'S TAKE NOTICE!

When You Come to Town to buy Goods, Call at

R. P. Wooley & Co.'s Cheap Cash Store!

Next to the Railroad on North side of Main Street, Clanton.

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

[sep6-6]

This space is reserved by

A. J. BROOKS

AT VERBENA, ALA.,

FOR FUTURE ADVERTISING

☞WATCH IT.☜

JUST RECEIVED AT

S. E. HIRSCHER'S

21 Dexter Ave., Montgomery,

An endless variety of New Novelties in HOLIDAY GOODS, and placed before our patrons for inspection. You are cordially invited to call and see us. HEADQUARTERS FOR EVERYTHING IN THE MUSIC LINE. Agency world renowned

WEBER, DECKER BROS., STIEF and KRANICH & BACH PIANOS.

☞ Sold on Easy Terms. Prices the Lowest in the State. [nov 18 3]

SHAW & DAVIN,

Machinery & Mill Supplies,

—MORRIS AVENUE AND 22D STREET.—

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

ENGINES, BOILERS, SAW MILLS, CORN MILLS, SHINGLE MACHINES, CORN MILLS, SUGAR MILLS,

COTTON GINS, COTTON PRESSES. PULLEYS, SHAFTING, BELTING, and MACHINISTS' SUPPLIES.

Largest Stock in the State.

Write for Circulars and Prices. P. O. Box 808. [july8]

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE.

PARSONS' PILLS

MAKE NEW, RICH BLOOD.

MAKE HENS LAY

TROY STEAM LAUNDRY,
Nos. 17 & 19 N. Lawrence Street,
MONTGOMERY, ALA.
P. O. BOX 282.

☞ Orders by mail are solicited and will receive prompt attention.

J. W. GUE, Proprietor.

BRICK WORK

J. M. DAWSON,

CLANTON, ALA.

Is prepared to do all kinds of brick work in the best style. The patronage of the public solicited.

feb15-tf]

Clanton Barber Shop

—BY—

MEREDITH CANN,

Who is prepared to do all work in the tonsorial line. Hair dressing and shaving in the best style. Prices low.

A. W. KEY & CO.,

Manufacturers' State Agents for

Engines, Saw Mills, BOILERS, —AND— General Machinery.

P. O. Box 741,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Nabers & Morrow,

Wholesale Druggists,

FIRST AVENUE,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

MEDICINES, Fine Wines, Liquors, Oils, Etc.

☞ Agents for Chess Carley & Co.'s Oils. [june 10]

J. M. Hutchason's

BOARDING, LIVERY —AND— SALE STABLES.

Select Dray and Plantation Mules constantly on hand.

Draying and Hauling Promptly Attended to

Always ready to take Contracts for filling in Dirt

Moving Stone, Engines, Boilers, Machinery and other heavy hauling.

RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS AND DAMAGE.

Satisfaction Guaranteed. Handsome Carriages and Double Teams, with or without Drivers.

☞MONTGOMERY STABLES,☜
Lawrence Street, Opp. P. O.,
Telephone 446. jan1y

A FINE FLORIDA TONIC!

MR. FOSTER S. CHAPMAN,

One of the landmarks of the Georgia Drug trade, now of Orlando, Florida, writes:

"I can hardly select a single case of the many to whom I have sold "Guinn's Pioneer Blood Renewer," but what have been satisfied, and I find it the best remedy for all skin diseases I have ever sold, and a Fine Florida Tonic.

FOSTER S. CHAPMAN,
Orlando, Florida.

A Certain Cure for Catarrh!

A SUPERB FLESH PRODUCER & TONIC!

Guinn's Pioneer Blood Renewer

Cures all Blood and Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Scrofula, Old Sores. A perfect Spring Medicine.

If not in your market it will be forwarded on receipt of price. Small bottles $1.00, large $1.75.

Essay on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free.

MACON MEDICINE COMPANY
may13-y] Macon, Ga.

SMITH'S BILE BEANS

CURE Biliousness; Sick Headache in Four hours. One dose relieves Neuralgia. They cure and prevent Chills & Fever, Sour Stomach & Bad Breath. Clear the Skin, Tone the Nerves, and give Life & Vigor to the system. Dose: ONE BEAN. Try them once and you will never be without them. Price, 25 cents per bottle. Sold by Druggists and Medicine Dealers generally. Sent on receipt of price in stamps, postpaid, to any address.

J. F. SMITH & CO.,
Manufacturers and Sole Props., ST. LOUIS, MO.

feb25-6

Catarrh cured, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal Injector free. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Thompson, Francis & Chenoweth,
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA,
—DEALERS IN—
HARDWARE,
Sash, Doors and Blinds, Paints, Oils and Glass, Cement and Plaster, Mantels and Grates, and a complete line of Cooking and Heating Stoves.

SOUTHERN BUSINESS COLLEGE,
No. 407½ W. Jefferson St., Next Door below Masonic Temple.
Louisville, - - - Kentucky.
NO TEXT BOOKS USED.
Book-Keeping, Penmanship, Commercial Arithmetic, Short Hand, Type Writing, &c.
We guarantee to teach more real, practical Book-keeping, Commercial or Business Calculations, more practical ideas about business in general in two to four months than any other Business College in this section can in twelve months.
We teach forms of book-keeping (actual forms used in business) not taught in any other Business College in this section.
No Scholar Has Ever Completed Our Entire Course and Left us Dissatisfied.
For Circulars call at College or address,
BEN. C. WEAVER, Principal.

NEW GOODS! NEW GOODS!
B. WELLMAN'S
"LOUISVILLE CLOTHING HOUSE"
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.
—DEALER IN—
Fine Clothing and Gent's Furnishing Goods
Bottom Prices at Last!
"The best Goods for the Least Money," is the motto of this house, and I am now selling an Immense Stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS the Lowest Cash Prices.

BLOOM,
The Tailor, of Montgomery, Alabama,
—DOES—
Dyeing, Scouring, Cleaning and Repairing
Of Gents' and Ladies' garments of all colors.
Orders by Mail or Express will receive prompt attention.
Prices to suit the times. Work Guaranteed.
No. 5 Court Street, Upstairs, - - Opposite Dollar Store.
sep14 '86-1y

BRYANT AND STRATTON.
THE LOUISVILLE BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Cor. Third & Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.
BOOK-KEEPING, BANKING, PENMANSHIP, SHORT-HAND, TYPE-WRITING, ARITHMETIC, &c.
No Text Books or Manuscripts copied and recopied by students. Has the largest honest indorsement as to true merit. Graduates have no trouble in obtaining situations.
HOME STUDY. Instruction given by mail. Improve your spare hours and obtain a practical education.
ADDRESS COLLEGE AS ABOVE.
[mar18-1y

THE CHICAGO
COTTAGE ORGAN
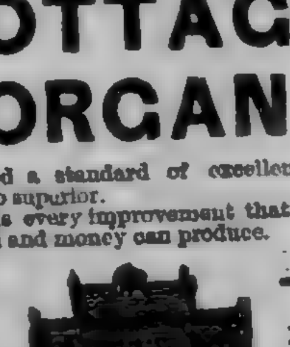
Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.
It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.



OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.
EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.
These excellent Organs are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty in finish, perfect construction, making them the most attractive, ornamental and desirable organs for homes, schools, churches, lodges, societies, etc.
ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,
UNEQUALED FACILITIES,
SKILLED WORKMEN,
BEST MATERIAL,
COMBINED, MAKE THIS
THE POPULAR ORGAN
Instruction Books and Piano Stools.
Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, free.
The Chicago Cottage Organ Co.
Corner Randolph and Ann Streets,
CHICAGO, ILL.

HEADACHE
[illegible] are relieved by taking
WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS
[illegible]

L&N
LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.
THE GREAT
Through Trunk Line
Between the Cities of CINCINNATI, LEXINGTON, LOUISVILLE, EVANSVILLE, ST. LOUIS,
And the Cities of NASHVILLE, MEMPHIS, MONTGOM'Y, MOBILE, and N. ORLEANS
Without Change and with Speed Unrivaled
SHORTEST AND QUICKEST ROUTE
From New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery, to
NORTH, EAST & WEST
PULLMAN CARS Without change to Cincinnati, Nashville, Louisville, Chicago, with but one change to all NORTHERN AND EASTERN CITIES.
THROUGH COACHES
From Chattanooga and Nashville to St. Louis, connecting direct for Cities in the Northwest.
EMIGRANTS Seeking homes on the line of this road will receive special low rates.
See Agents of this Company for rates, routes, &c., or write C. P. ATMORE, G. P. & T. A., Louisville, Ky.
jan16-6m

A COMPLETE STOCK of Fancy Stationery, and everything usually kept in a Stationery Establishment, is ALWAYS ON HAND
and For Sale at City Prices at the VIEW
STATIONERY STAND.

THE WIFE OF WINSLOW.

The Vindication of a Woman who Loved her Criminal Husband.

A month ago a home letter brought to me the news of the death of the wife of Ezra D. Winslow, a noted Boston forger. Mrs. Winslow was a woman of the sort that always brings about her hosts of friends. She made them continually, and she kept them. Still, I do not believe that there was one who knew that she was dead that would have wished it otherwise. Mrs. Winslow, formerly Miss Ayres, was married to Mr. Winslow while he was nineteen and she was seventeen, the result of a pure and simple love match. This was shortly before the beginning of the late war, through which Mr. Winslow served with honor and respect as an active chaplain. Very soon after their marriage a boy was born, and as years went on the sweet mother and handsome child and the honored father became known and loved everywhere. Later on Mr. Winslow became interested in many things; journalism, real estate, his ministry, politics and speculation of a number of kinds. He was a man without the slightest ostentation, genial, generous, practical, affable—in fact, as correct and as interesting a man as ever made his way in the world. He moved to Auburndale, one of the villages of Newton, near Boston, and fairly made it, socially and practically. He made money honestly and rapidly, and spent it like a shrewd business man. No one could have been more respected. His word and his smile were valued as only those of one man in a village of that sort can be in a century. The best men were his friends and intimates.

One night about Christmas tide ten years ago his house was burned to the ground. A few nights later he carried his weeping, fainting wife into a waiting train, the pale, questioning lad of fifteen years following with a sister of Mrs. Winslow. In a day's time the news spread that Mr. Winslow was on his way to Amsterdam, a self-exiled criminal. For days and days, until it was proved beyond a doubt, business men absolutely refused to believe the statements printed and reprinted in the papers.

On arriving at Amsterdam the fugitives were detained, and again in London Mrs. Winslow was robbed of money that was probably her own, but was certainly never returned to those whom her husband had wronged. Then Mr. Winslow went to Brazil and his wife came back to her home, bringing her boy to be educated. She parted from her husband, whom she had learned to know as a criminal, but loved as dearly as ever, only temporarily, she thought. She expected from him a speedy summons to return, and the means to do so. This summons failed to come.

Instead, there came one day from the man whose wife she was, and whom she loved so well, a copy of a newspaper he had established in Rio. Her first thought was pride and hope commingled. He was clever; he would retrieve his fortunes; he would wipe out the disgraceful debt!

Then there met her eye a faint pencil mark. In encircled a note of her death at her home in Newton.

Can you imagine the intensity of that blow? No one can. Nor of the one that waited four short weeks to follow. Another page came. It contained the notice of his marriage to another woman.

Hideous as this woman's sufferings must have been, she gave no sign. For a long time even her boy, her own sisters did not know of this. All they saw or knew was that she no longer planned to go to her husband; that the sad face grew thinner; that the blue eyes grew larger but faded; that there was neither a word of hope nor a word of reproach on her lips; that she lived only to see her boy grow up an honest, loving man, and do good and be good to all.

For nine years this woman was condemned to live this horrible existence. A sadder, sweeter, purer, better woman than in all her pure life she had been before, imagine her sufferings if you can, and be glad with those that loved her that a month ago she died.—Fannie B. Merrill, in New York Graphic.

Soothing Syrup for Cowbows.

The Northern Pacific train from the West came into this town a few days days since with twenty-five or thirty cowboys, bound for Fort Worth. The festive cow punchers had taken possession of the emigrant sleeper. Every one of them had a huge revolver slung to his belt, all of them were full of bug juice, each man sporting a bottle of forty-rod whisky. When the Dakota division conductor came into the car for their tickets they refused to produce the pasteboards, drawing instead their bottles of chain lightning, and insisted on the ticket puncher drinking with them. A quiet old German passenger who had been much annoyed by the hilariousness of the wild riders of the Western plains, took the conductor to one side and said:

"If I were conductor of this train I would expend a half dollar at some convenient drug store for opium, and slip it into their bottles."

On reaching Bismarck the conductor acted on this happy suggestion, and sent his brakeman to a drug store for 50 cents' worth of the quieting drug. The brakeman went into the train and accepted their generous offer to drink, quietly slipped a small quantity of the soothing drug in each bottle. Quiet soon reigned where before all had been pandemonium. These denizens of the wild rowdy West were soon sleeping sounder than the Cardiff giant. The exultant conductor rolled them over like logs, went through their pockets, punched their tickets, and rolled them back in their berth. A more peaceful car of passengers never traveled over the Northern Pacific—in fact, the train load of deaf-mute excursionists of the past summer were hilarious when compared with the quiet Texas cowboys. They were turned over to the conductor of the Minnesota division at Fargo, with the remainder of the unexpended drug to use if an emergency should arise before reaching St. Paul.—Mandan Pioneer.

The Rapidity of Progress Toward Health.
Even when a good remedy for disease is selected, depends in some measure upon the manner in which it is taken. Irregular, interrupted doses can afford no fair test of the efficacy of any medicine, however salutary. Taken in proper doses at prescribed intervals, a reliable curative will effect the object of its use. Among remedies which, systematically and persistently used, accomplish thorough and lasting cures, and prevent the recurrence of periodic disease, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters ranks specially high. In cases of dyspepsia, debility, rheumatism, fever and ague, liver complaint, inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, constipation, and other organic maladies, it is a tried remedy, to which the medical brotherhood have lent their professional sanction, and which, as a tonic, alterative and household specific for disorders of the stomach, [illegible] popularity.

A NEW AND NOVEL REMEDY.

How the President is Said to be Getting His Flesh Reduced.

(From the Omaha Herald.)

Since he came to the White House the President has been rapidly gaining flesh, until he now weighs fifty pounds more than he did when elected. He does not take any exercise. He drives out for an airing every pleasant afternoon in a comfortable carriage, but the ride doesn't give him any more exercise than if he spent so much time in a rocking chair. He is getting to be so fat as to be uncomfortable as well as ungainly, and has been in consultation with a doctor of the Swedish massage school. This doctor does not prescribe any drugs, nor does he use the Banting system, of dieting. He simply recommends the movement cure, and his treatment of the President is very funny. If his excellency would only admit spectators he might make a large fortune by charging an admission fee. It would not be a very dignified performance, but people would go a long distance to see the President of the whole United States go through the motions. First the doctor makes him lie flat on his back on the floor, stiffen himself out with his arms down at his side, and then raise his feet in the air with his heels together, until his legs are at an angle of forty-five degrees. This is repeated several times, and until one has tried it he cannot realize how difficult and exhausting it is, for none of the joints in the body can be moved except those at the hips. The next movement is to raise the feet in the same position, and move them around in the air, so that the heels will describe a circle. This is more difficult still, and none but accustomed gymnasts can do it at the first attempt. The third movement is to stretch out on the floor, with the face down, and then raise the body on the hands and toes. After this has been tried, the patient is to stand on the tips of his toes and fingers, and make motions as if he were swimming. By going through this process three times a day, at first only a few minutes, and then longer, as the muscles of the stomach will permit, it is claimed that a fat man can reduce his flesh with remarkable rapidity.

The Good Old Times in Maine.

Mr. L. W. Small has in the Oxford County Record some interesting reminiscences of the old Cornish meeting house of his boyhood. One of its quaint institutions was the arrangement of the pew seats on hinges. Mr. Small says that when the people arose for prayers and turned up the seats they "made a noise louder than thunder." The pulpit had a big gate which the preacher closed with a bang after he entered. The building was never painted or warmed. Women in delicate health brought little iron boxes of live coals on which to place their feet.

Mr. Small writes that the dedication of the edifice was celebrated with a horse trot. The morals of those days could not tolerate a stove in the house of worship, but permitted going to a horse race and filling up with Medford rum. The singers had the front pews in this old meeting house, but during the singing of the hymns the musical people of the congregation used to go forward, stand as near the regular singers as possible, and help them out. Mr. Small remembers a gay widower who was wont to go forward in a blue coat with brass buttons, and had birch bark placed in the soles of his shoes so they would squeak and call the attention of all the women to his noble person.

After a while they organized a choir with a bass viol and a clarionet in it. A few Sundays passed and the conservatives of the congregation rose in revolt, declaring that as these instruments had no souls it was wicked to employ them in worship. The viol and clarionet had to go. Later on, charging that the leader of the choir was not a church member, and ought not to sing praises to God for the congregation, they banished the choir, too.

Closer than a Brother.

Fred had been complaining of a lame back for several days, and, after consultation with everybody about the establishment, invested in a porus plaster to relieve his misery.

Next day he acted like a person who was incased in corsets, and appeared a little down in the mouth. To make the matter more binding, he was met by inquiries in regard to his poor old back at every turn, until life seemed a burden to the young man.

When Henry came in he at once inquired:

"Well, Fred, how does the porus plaster work?"

"Please don't say plaster to me again; I'm sick of the whole thing. My back has been thrown in my face all day. Were it not for strict business principles, I'd have torn the thing off entirely before this."

"Why, what have business principles got to do with it?"

"Nothing; only I've got to stick to my bargain, you know."

The Proper Medium.

"My wife wants my picture for a Christmas present," said Smith, the other day, "and I can't make up my mind in what style to have it taken. Those photographs on porcelain are very neat, don't you think so, Jones?"

"Porcelain is out of style, Smith," returned his friend; "don't you have that. Besides, it is not appropriate—have it on old hammered brass, by all means."

The most severe cough can at once be removed by Red Star Cough Cure. "Give it to your children by all means," says Professor Williams, ex-State Chemist of Delaware, who found it wonderfully efficacious. Price, only twenty-five cents for a bottle.

A young woman at Banksville, Pa., went in a trance and visited heaven. Her father thinks her experiences in the celestial kingdom are too holy for a daily paper, and he proposes to have the story written out for the Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

$10,000 were spent in eighteen years by Prof. C. A. Donaldson, of Louisville, Ky., in trying to get rid of his rheumatism, but he found no relief until at last he used St. Jacobs Oil, which speedily cured him.

Miss Ida Porter, a "Vassar Girl," a niece of Jay Gould, who has successfully managed a school in Camden, N. J., so interested her uncle that he has presented her with a school edifice, which was dedicated by President Kendrick, of Vassar.

"As Good as New,"
are the words used by a lady, who was at one time given up by the most eminent physicians, and left to die. Reduced to a mere skeleton, pale and haggard, not able to leave her bed, from all those distressing diseases peculiar to suffering females, such as displacement, leucorrhœa, inflammation, etc., etc. She began taking Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," and also using the local treatments recommended by him, and is now, she says, "as good as new." Price reduced to one dollar. By druggists.

After a man has painted things red, he is very apt to be blue himself.

SHAMEFUL ABUSE

Heaped upon a Noted Englishman for His Open Manner.

Wm. Ed. Robson, M.D., L.R.C.S.I., M.K.Q.C.P.I., late of the Royal Navy, of England, has got into professional trouble for writing the following open letter to the editor of the London Family Doctor:

"I believe it to be the duty of every physician to make known any means or remedy whereby sickness can be prevented, and it is for this purpose I write to give my experience both here and abroad. I ask the publication of the statement that people may be warned before it is too late, to say to them that there is at hand a means by which they may be restored to perfect health. It is well known to the medical world, and indeed, to the laity, that a certain disease is making a terrible havoc; that next to consumption it is the most fatal, and that when fully developed there is nothing to be done for the sufferer."

"Physicians and scientists have long been trying to throw light upon the cause, and if possible, find in nature a medicine for this fatal malady. They have shown, absolutely, that the blood-purifying organs of vital importance are the kidneys, and that when they once fail, the poison which they should take out of the blood is carried by the blood into every part of the body, developing disease."

"In my hospital practice in England, India and South America, and also while a surgeon in the Royal Navy of Great Britain, I gave a great deal of attention to the study of diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs, and found that not only was the cure of chronic Bright's Disease hopeless, but that kidney disease was remarkably prevalent, much more so than generally known, and was the cause of the majority of cases of sickness, and further, that the medical profession has no remedy which exerts any absolute control over these organs in disease."

"Some time ago when I had a case which resisted all regular treatment,—which is very limited,—complicated with the passing of stones from the kidneys, much against my will I permitted my patient to use Warner's safe cure, of which I had heard marvelous results. In his case the result was simply marvelous, as the attack was a severe one, and development very grave, for an analysis showed per cent. of albumen and granular tube casts."

"The action of the medicine was singular and incomprehensible to me. I had never seen anything like it. The patient recovered promptly, and is to-day a well and healthy man. This stimulated my inquiry into the merits of the remedy, and after analysis I found it to be of purely vegetable character, harmless to take under all circumstances."

"Casting aside all professional prejudice, I gave it a thorough trial, as I was anxious that my patients should be restored to health, no matter by what medicine. I prescribed it in a great variety of cases, Acute, Chronic, Bright's Disease, Congestion of the Kidneys, Catarrh of the Bladder, and in every instance did it speedily effect a cure."

"For this reason I deem it my duty to give to the world this statement regarding the value of Warner's safe cure. I make this statement on facts I am prepared to produce and substantiate. I appeal to physicians of large practice who know how common and deceptive diseases of the kidneys are, to lay aside professional prejudice, give their patients Warner's safe cure, restore them to perfect health, earn their gratitude, and thus be true physicians."

"I am satisfied that more than one-half of the deaths which occur in England are caused, primarily, by impaired action of the kidneys, and the consequent retention in the blood of the poisonous uric and kidney acid. Warner's safe cure causes the kidneys to expel this poison, checks the escape of albumen, relieves the inflammation and prevents illness from impaired and impoverished blood. Having had more than seventeen years' experience in my profession, I conscientiously and emphatically state that I have been able to give more relief and effect more cures by by the use of Warner's safe cure than by all the other medicines ascertainable to the profession, the majority of which, I am sorry to say, are very uncertain in their action."

"Isn't that a straightforward, manly letter?"

"Indeed it is."

"Well, but do you know the author has been dreadfully persecuted for writing it?"

"How so? What has he done to merit it?"

"Done? He has spoken the truth 'out of school,' and his fellow physicians, who want the public to think they have a monopoly in curing diseases, are terribly angry with him for admitting professional inability to reach certain disorders.

"That letter created a wonderful sensation among the titled classes and the public. This jarred the doctors terribly. The College of Surgeons and Queen's College, from which institution he was graduated, asked for an explanation of his unprofessional conduct, and notified him that unless he made a retraction they would discipline him.

"The doctor replied that he allowed his patients to make use of Warner's safe cure only after all the regular methods had failed, and when he was satisfied that there was no possible hope for them. Upon their recovery, after having used Warner's safe cure, he was so much surprised that he wrote the above letter to the Family Doctor. He regretted that the faculties found fault with his action in the matter, but he could not conscientiously retract the facts as written to the Family Doctor.

"The faculties of both colleges replied that unless he retracted they should cut him off, which would naturally debar him from again practicing his profession, and also prevent his securing another appointment in the Royal Navy!"

The illustrious doctor's dilemma is certainly an unpleasant one, emphasizing, as it does, both his own honesty and the contemptible prejudice and bigotry of English medical men. The masses, however, having no sympathy with their nonsense, keep on using the remedy he so highly recommends and get well, while the rich and able depend upon the prejudiced doctors and die!

A Slight Hint.

The car was reasonably well filled, but the Chicago drummer had looked out for number one, to the extent of two seats, while directly in front were two ladies, one with a baby in her arms, crowded into one.

Pretty soon the younger of the ladies picked up a paper lying on the floor and handed it to the gentleman(?) behind with the query:

"Perhaps this is your newspaper, sir?"

He took it, remarking: "I think it did drop from my seat," at the same time glancing at the page, which was folded in such a manner that the heading stood out in bold relief, "Hog Cholera Very Fatal This Year."

The c. t. gave one brief glance into the sly face of the polite young lady, and went forward to smoke.

Easy Enough.

"Well, Jennie, I hear you and Tom are out."

"Yes; I gave him his quietus last evening. He really thought I would have him, when I was only flirting."

"How did he take his rejection?"

"Oh, easily enough. You know he is used to taking negatives. He's a photographer."

After Diphtheria
The patient recovers strength slowly, as the system is weak and debilitated, and the blood poisoned by the ravages of the disease. What is needed is a good reliable tonic and blood purifier like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has just the elements of strength for the body, and vitality and richness for the blood which soon bring back robust health. After scarlet fever or pneumonia it is also of great benefit.
"After recovering from a prolonged sickness with diphtheria, and needing something to build me up, I took two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I felt good results from the first dose. It seemed to go from the top of my head to the ends of my toes. I know Hood's Sarsaparilla is a good thing."—G. H. Stratton, Druggist, Westfield, Mass.
"Upon our little girl, who had been sick with scarlet fever, the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla was most marvelous, entirely removing the poison from her blood and restoring her to good health. Hood's Sarsaparilla deserves our highest praise."—E. G. Stratton, Swampscott, Mass.
Hood's Sarsaparilla
Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.
100 Doses One Dollar

PATENTS Obtained. Send stamp for Inventors' Guide. L. Bingham, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

Whisky Soaked Letters.

WHY TWO RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS WERE DISMISSED.

One of the regulations of the Railway Mail Postal Service is to the effect that postal clerks shall not take whisky with them, externally or internally, on their runs. Any small amount tucked away snugly in a pigeonhole would hardly be apt to bring its owner into trouble; but an unfortunate choice of hiding place has resulted in the removal of two of the postal clerks under the jurisdiction of the Chicago Superintendent. Yates, one of the clerks, took a much needed pledge to abstain from the use of liquors when he secured the position, but one night early this month Wise, the second postal clerk, and he left Chicago very much the worse for drink and with a flask of whisky for use on the trip. One of the two slipped the flask into an empty mail pouch and then went to sleep. Somebody else filled the pouch with mail matter, and it eventually reached Pekin, Ill. The flask was broken and most of the letters in the pouch were the worst for a whisky bath. It is alleged that, to make matters worse, some of the good prohibitionists of the town refused to take their whisky soaked letters and proceeded to inaugurate a good sized row. The Postmaster had therefore no alternative but to report the condition of the mail to headquarters. An investigation was at once started here with the result that the two young men in question were removed for disobeying the regulations and carrying intoxicating liquors on their mail car.

Ready for the Funeral.

You must admit that our city is well laid out, anyway," remarked a St. Louis man after showing a Chicago friend over the town.

"Yes, indeed; and I'm sure it ought to be—its been dead long enough."

"It Knocks the Spots," and everything in the nature of eruptions, blotches, pimples, ulcers, scrofulous humors, and incipient consumption, which is nothing more nor less than scrofula of the lungs, completely out of the system. It stimulates and invigorates the liver, tones up the stomach, regulates the bowels, purifies the blood and builds up the weak places of the body. It is a purely vegetable compound, and will do more than is claimed for it. We refer to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery."

A wise night key—One that knows its own keyhole.

If Sufferers from Consumption,
Scrofula, Bronchitis and General Debility will try SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, they will find immediate relief and permanent benefit. The Medical Profession universally declare it a remedy of the greatest value and very palatable. Read: "I have used Scott's Emulsion in several cases of Scrofula and Debility in children. Results most gratifying. My little patients take it with pleasure."—W. A. HULBERT, M. D., Salisbury, Ill.

The tender passion—The antipathy against tough beef.

How to Save Money.
Wherever you live, you should write to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, and learn about work that you can do while living at your own home at a profit of at least from $5 to $25 and upwards daily. Some have made over $50 in a day. All is new. Either sex. All ages. Hallett & Co. will start you. Capital not needed. All particulars free. Send along your address at once and all of the above will be proved to you. Nothing like it ever known to workingmen.

The wind is not evidently tempered the shorn Wall street lamb.

For weak lungs, spitting of blood, shortness of breath, consumption, night-sweats, and all lingering coughs, Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is a sovereign remedy. Superior to cod liver oil. By druggists.

If every man was as big as he feels there couldn't be standing room in this country.

No lady should live in perpetual fear, and suffer from the more serious troubles that so often appear, when Dr. Kilmer's COMPLETE FEMALE REMEDY is certain to prevent and cure Tumor and Cancer there.

ONE DOLLAR AND FIFTY CENTS will pay for a $3 Family Story Paper for one year. Sample copies free. Address THE CHICAGO LEDGER, Chicago, Ill.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.
Send for Pamphlet on Female Diseases, free, securely sealed. Dr. J. B. Marchisi, Utica, N.Y.

The best cough medicine is Piso's Cure for Consumption. Sold everywhere. 25c.

OH! MY BACK
Every strain or cold attacks that weak back and nearly prostrates you.
BROWN'S IRON BITTERS
QUALITY P PURITY NOT QUANTITY. Trade Mark. On Every Bottle.
THE BEST TONIC
PHYSICIANS AND DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND IT.
Strengthens the Muscles, Steadies the Nerves, Enriches the Blood, Gives New Vigor.
MRS. SALLIE DUFFEE, Jonesboro, Ga., says: "I have suffered for nearly three years with Weak Back and Liver and Kidney trouble. Four bottles of Brown's Iron Bitters have cured me. I cordially recommend it."
MR. T. LESSING, 47 Enghein St., New Orleans, La., says: "I tried everything for Weakness of the Back—plasters of all kinds, liniments, etc., but nothing afforded me relief until I used Brown's Iron Bitters. In a short time the trouble entirely disappeared."
Genuine has above Trade Mark and crossed red lines on wrapper. Take no other. Made only by BROWN CHEMICAL CO., BALTIMORE, MD.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for
TANSILL'S PUNCH 5¢
The "Tansill's Punch" 5c. cigars are booming. Never sold so many in so short a time. Will try and give you another order this month.
P. & A. L. MILLARD, Ellisburg, N. Y.
Your "Tansill's Punch" 5c. cigar is a good seller.
W. D. CRAIG, Druggist, Aledo, Ill.
Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

ATLANTA
SAW WORKS.
Manufacturers of and Dealers in
Saws and Saw-Mill Supplies.
Repairing a Specialty.
Agents for L. POWER & COMPANY'S Wood Working Machinery.
Large and complete stock. Write for catalogue. ATLANTA, GA.

J. P. STEVENS & BRO.
JEWELERS.
Atlanta, Ga.
Send for Catalogue.

THURSTON'S IVORY PEARL TOOTH POWDER
Keeping Teeth Perfect and Gums Healthy.

GARDEN SEEDS Catalogues Mailed Free.
Francis Brill, Hempstead, Long Island, N. Y.

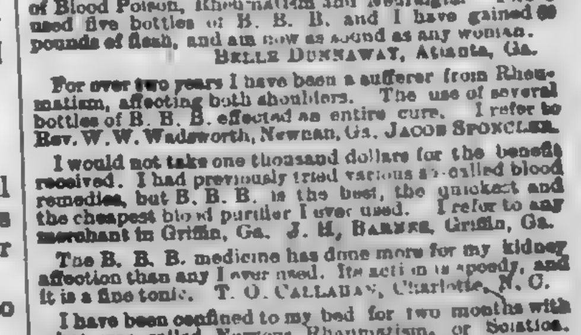
Young Men Can get the most Practical Business Education at Goldsmith's School of Business, 22½ Broad St., Atlanta, Ga. Send for Circulars & Specimens of Penmanship.

$15.00 Flat top No. 1 Cook Stove for $10.00 with fixtures. Send for catalogue. A. P. Stewart & Co., 60 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit cured in [illegible]

THE GREATEST BLOOD PURIFIER AND INVIGORATOR Of the Age.
BBB BOTANIC BLOOD BALM.
The Giant of the Medicines
Botanic Blood Balm.
IT POSITIVELY CURES
All Chronic Diseases.
Scrofula, Blood Taint, Syphilitic Complaint, Consumption, Glandular Diseases, Ulcers, Chronic Rheumatism, Erysipelas, Kidney, Bladder and Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Eczema, Scalp Disease, Female Diseases, Affections of the Lungs and Throat.
It purifies the blood, restoring health and vigor, and removes all debility.
IT IS A SPLENDID TONIC.
Malaria in its various forms gives way under its influence.
Of the Thousands Cured we Give the Testimony of a Few Grateful Patients.
Miss Minnie Wallace, of Atlanta, lost her hearing, her sight and sense of taste. Sores covered her body and limbs. She is now a well woman. Write to her.
For four years I have been afflicted with a severe case of Blood Poison, Rheumatism and Neuralgia. I have used five bottles of B. B. B. and I have gained 60 pounds of flesh, and am now as sound as any woman.
BELLE DUNNAWAY, Atlanta, Ga.
For over two years I have been a sufferer from Rheumatism, affecting both shoulders. The use of several bottles of B. B. B. effected an entire cure. I refer to Rev. W. W. Wadsworth, Newnan, Ga. JACOB SPONCLER.
I would not take one thousand dollars for the benefit received. I had previously tried various so-called blood remedies, but B. B. B. is the best, the quickest and the cheapest blood purifier I ever used. I refer to any merchant in Griffin, Ga. J. H. BARNES, Griffin, Ga.
The B. B. B. medicine has done more for my kidney affection than any I ever used. Its action is speedy, and it is a fine tonic. T. O. CALLAHAN, Charlotte, N. C.
I have been confined to my bed for two months with what was called Nervous Rheumatism, or Sciatica. Four bottles of B. B. B. enabled me to discard the use of my crutches. J. P. DAVIS, Atlanta, Ga.
WORTH MILLIONS!
Send to us for our book of wonders, Free. It contains information that is worth millions to you.
BOTANIC BLOOD BALM CO.,
ATLANTA, GA.

Ask your retailer for the James Means' $3 Shoe. Caution! Some dealers recommend inferior goods in order to make a larger profit. This is the original $3 Shoe. Beware of imitations which acknowledge their own inferiority by attempting to build upon the reputation of the original. None Genuine unless bearing this Stamp.
JAMES MEANS' $3 SHOE.
For Gentlemen.
Made in Button, Congress and Lace. Best Calf Skin. Unexcelled in Durability, Comfort and Appearance. A postal card sent to us will bring you information how to get this Shoe in any State or Territory.
J. Means & Co.
41 Lincoln St.
Boston, Mass.



Our celebrated factory produces a larger quantity of Shoes of this grade than any other factory in the world. Thousands who wear them will tell you the reason if you ask them. JAMES MEANS' $2 SHOE for Boys is unapproached in Durability.

DROPSY
TREATED FREE.
DR. H. H. GREEN & SONS,
Specialists for Thirteen Years Past,
Have treated Dropsy and its complications with the most wonderful success; use vegetable remedies, entirely harmless. Remove all symptoms of Dropsy in eight to twenty days.
Cure patients pronounced hopeless by the best of physicians.
From the first dose the symptoms rapidly disappear, and in ten days at least two-thirds of all symptoms are removed.
Some may cry humbug without knowing anything about it. Remember, it does not cost you anything to realize the merits of our treatment for yourself. In ten days the difficulty of breathing is relieved, the pulse regular, the urinary organs made to discharge their full duty, sleep is restored, the swelling all or nearly gone, the strength increased and appetite made good. We are constantly curing cases of long standing, cases that have been tapped a number of times, and the patient declared unable to live a week. Give full history of case. Name sex. How long afflicted, how badly swollen and where, are bowels costive, have legs bursted and dripped water? Send for free pamphlet, containing testimonials, questions, etc.
Ten days' treatment furnished free by mail.
If you order trial send 10cts in stamps to pay postage.
Epilepsy (Fits) Positively Cured.
H. H. GREEN & SONS, M. Ds.,
250½ Marietta Street, Atlanta, Ga.

SOUTHERN SEED for SOUTHERN SOIL
Being desirous of having some of our seed planted in every garden in the South, and knowing, as we do, there are no purer or better stocks offered in the United States than ours, if you will send us $1.00 we will send to any address thirty papers of our regular size packets of Garden Seed (your own selection) and a quarter pound of Pride of Georgia Melon Seed. Southern Seed Company, Seed Growers, Macon, Ga. Send for our price list of all varieties of field and garden seed.

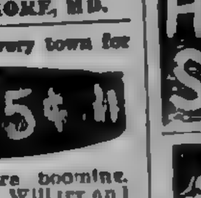
Ladies! Those dull tired looks and feelings speak volumes! This Remedy corrects all conditions, restores vigor and vitality and brings back youthful bloom and beauty. Druggists. Prepared at Dr. Kilmer's DISPENSARY, Binghamton, N. Y. Letters of inquiry answered. Guide to Health (Sent Free).

ACME PULVERIZING HARROW,
Clod Crusher and Leveler.
The Best Tool in the world for preparing corn, cotton and other ground. D. H. NASH, Sole Manuf'r, 302 West Main St., Louisville, Ky.

PENSION CLAIMS of all KINDS prosecuted without fee unless successful. TWENTY-TWO YEARS' EXPERIENCE. Correspondence Solicited.
MILO B. STEVENS & CO.
WASHINGTON, D. C. CHICAGO, ILL. CLEVELAND, OHIO. DETROIT, MICH.

HARTSHORN'S Shade Rollers BEST
NOTICE NAME ON LABEL [illegible]

DO YOU WANT A DOG



DOG BUYERS' GUIDE, Colored plates, 100 engravings of different breeds, prices they are worth, and where to buy them. Mailed for 15 Cents.
ASSOCIATED FANCIERS,
237 S. Eighth St. Philadelphia, Pa.

WE WANT YOU! a live energetic man or woman needing profitable employment to represent us in every county. Salary $75 per month and expenses, or a large commission on sales if preferred. Goods staple. Every one buys. Outfit and particulars Free.
STANDARD SILVERWARE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

BUSINESS Education a specialty at MOORE'S BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, Ga. One of the [illegible] schools in the Country. Send for Circulars.

Blair's Pills. Great English Gout and Rheumatic Remedy. Oval Box $1.00; round, 50 [illegible]

OPIUM HABIT absolutely cured. NOT A PARTICLE OF PAIN or self-denial. Pay when cured. Handsome book free. DR. C. J. WEATHERBY, Kansas City, Mo.

WORK FOR ALL. $30 a week and expenses paid. Outfit worth $5 and particulars free. P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Me.

Pensions to Soldiers & Heirs. Send stamp for Circulars. COL. L. BINGHAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Address BREWSTER'S SAFETY REIN HOLDER, Holly, Mich.

OPIUM Habit Cured. Treatment sent on trial. HUMANE REMEDY CO., La Fayette, Ind.

[illegible] Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

Rates of Advertising.

One Dollar per Square, of one inch space or less, for the first, and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion.

Inches.	3 m.	6 m.	12 m.
1 Inch	$ 5 00	$ 7 00	$ 11 25
2 Inches	7 00	11 50	16 00
3 Inches	10 00	15 00	22 50
4 Inches	12 50	20 00	27 00
5 Inches	15 00	22 50	30 00
¼ Column	18 00	27 00	40 00
½ Column	27 00	40 00	60 00
1 Column	40 00	60 00	100 00

The Chilton View.

W. H. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors.

"WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION."

TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1887. NUMBER 14.

Special Advertising.

Business Notices Ten Cents per line each insertion.

Obituaries and Tributes of Respect, half rates.

Announcing candidates for office, Five Dollars, strictly in advance.

Communications recommending candidates for office will be handed as advertisements and charged for accordingly.

Liberal contracts made with those advertising by the year.

☞ The money is due on all advertising after the first publication.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Subject: "The Flying Doves."

TEXT: "Who are these that fly as a cloud, and as the doves to their windows?"—Isaiah lx., 8.

When God would set fast a beautiful thought He plants it in a tree. When He would make it float the waters He fashions it into a fish. When He would have it glide the air He molds it into a bird. For some of us the structure and habits of birds have a very great fascination. The blackbird, floating like a flake of the darkness through the sunshine. The meadow lark, with bead of fawn and throat of velvet, and breast of gold. The red flamingo, flying over the swamp like a spark struck from the forge of the setting sun. The pelican, black and white, morning and night tangled in his wing. They seem to be not more of earth than Heaven, because they are all the time vacillating between the two. I do not wonder that Audubon took his gun and tramped through the American forests to find some new specimens of birds. Geologists have given whole years to find the track of a bird's claw in the new red sandstone. There is enough of God's architecture in a snipe's bill or a grouse's foot to confound all the universities. Musicians have tried with bars and clefs to represent the music of the nightingale and the robin. One of the first things that a child notices is the swallow at the eaves of the house, while grandfather comes out with a handful of crumbs to feed the snowbirds. "Behold the fowls of the air," said Christ in His great sermon, and Isaiah, looking forward to the time when there would be a great multitude of people coming to Christ and coming to the church, is reminded of a flock of pigeons alighting on a coop, and then all those pigeons together trying to get into the window of the coop, and he cries out in the words of my text: "Who are these that fly as a cloud, and as the doves to their windows?"

This is a memorable day in Brooklyn Tabernacle. On other days we drop the net; to-day we haul it in. On other days we send out invitations to the King's party; to-day we sit at the banquet. On other days we fight the battle; to-day we claim victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Men and women who have toiled and contributed and prayed for the advancement of this church, take into your soul to-day with high satisfaction all this scene. Bring garlands and music, and spirit of consecration to celebrate this harvest home. Oh the mercy of God. People tell me it is a notion. Then I put on it four swift sailing crafts, with choice rigging and with compass and chart and with skillful navigators, and tell them to launch away and tell us the extent of this ocean of God's mercy. And they start, and one ship goes to the north, and another to the south, and another to the east, and another to the west, and they sail on ten thousand years, and after a while they come up to the harbor of Heaven and some one cries from the Heavenly land: "Have you found the shore of God's mercy?" and they reply: "No shore, no shore to God's mercy." And then swift angels are dispatched from the throne, and they try to fly across this ocean of divine mercy, and they fly on ten thousand years, and they fly on a million years and then come back, and they fold their wings at the foot of the throne of God, and some one cries out: "Have you found the shore to the ocean of God's mercy?" And they say: "No shore, no shore to the ocean of God's mercy." Mercy, mercy! I sing it, I plead it, I pray it. Here is a man bound hand and foot by Satan, and one stroke of this Gospel hammer makes him everlastingly free. Mercy, mercy! There is no height it cannot clear. There is no depth it cannot fathom. There is no immensity it cannot compass. When a large number of persons join a church the first natural question that arises is, who are they? What has been their character? Where did they come from? What is their history? And so looking off upon this great multitude who to-day have connected themselves with the Christian church, I cry out in the words of my text: "Who are these that fly as a cloud and as the doves to their windows? They are slaves who have been emancipated. They are soldiers who have enlisted for a thirty years' war; they are heirs of immortality; they are a blood-washed throng. This multitude who flock into the kingdom of God to-day are like doves to their windows because they fly low. The eagle darts up as though with his beak to strike the sun, and many of the other birds fly so high that sometimes they appear like specks against the sky, and you cannot tell the contour of their bodies, or the style of their plumage. If a sportsman discharges his gun at them they are so high up they do not for an instant change their course. But the pigeons fly low. They fly all around the roof of the house; they fly around the door. They are afraid of great altitudes. They never make any high excursions. They are like the souls who this day come into the dovecote of God's mercy, wanting no high things, willing to crawl under the feet of Christ, willing to crawl under the table and take the crumbs that fall from the Master's table. Not so were they once. Once they were proud; once they were puffed up; once they were inexorable; once perhaps they were very hard to please, but not now. They have changed their course; they have come into the dovecote of God's mercy. But they fly low. They remember the years of their sin—sins of boyhood, girlhood, manhood, womanhood, dark brooding, deceitful sins, sins against God, sins against the Bible, sins against their soul, sins against the judgment day, sins against a long eternity. They remember all these things. They fly low. I have heard that in England, in an institution of charity where people are taken and cared for, that before they take off the rags of their poverty and wash off the filth of their abomination, a picture is taken of them as they are; so that in after time they may remember what the institution has done for them. And here is a picture of what we were before Christ redeemed us. We were in the rags of our sin and the filth of our abomination. Unseemly, unclean. Though now in the light and the peace and the prosperity of the gospel, and robed in the righteousness of the Son of God, let us once in a while come and look at the old picture of what we once were. Then we will fly low. Those souls who come into the kingdom to-day should remember that they are coming into the presence of a God who hates sin. He abhors iniquity. He cannot abide transgressions. He slew the 185,000 of Sennacherib's host in a night. "Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God Almighty." Fly low! An emperor a thousand years ago planted a rose-bush which is blooming yet and nineteen centuries ago, at the foot of the cross of the Son of God, a red rose was planted which is blooming yet. You want to stoop down and pluck that rose. You want to stoop down and breathe that fragrance. Oh, for more of the humility of the Gospel. Oh, for more of the childlike spirit. Let us fly low.

This multitude who flock into the Kingdom of God also come like doves to their windows because they fly for shelter. The albatross makes a throne of the tempest. The seagulls have a frolic in the storm, and the higher the surf dances the better they are pleased. But the pigeons at the first blow of the north-east storm hie to the dovecot, and when the birds of prey, with flashing eye and iron beak and filthy talons come down the pigeons, the doves, immediately hie to the dovecot. And so it is with those who come here to-day, who enter the Kingdom of God. They come, what for? For shelter. Sin has been after them. Sorrow has been after them. You are followed out by your dog when you want him to go back, and you bid him home. You start on your walk, look back and the dog is following. You say, "Back with you, home with you." You go on, and after a while accidentally you look back and with sneaky tread he is still following you, and will not go back. So, too, after every man there is some sin following; where he goes this sin goes: where he stays this sin stays; trying to destroy him, trying to tempt him away from the right, trying to overthrow him. Every man has some besetting sin. For every dove a hawk. These who come to-day are coming for shelter. They say practically: "If there is any power in prayer, pray for me; if there is anything in Christian association, let me try its influence; if there is anything in kindly surroundings, let me have it." "Where thou goest I will go. Thy people shall be my people, thy God my God. Where thou diest I will die and there will I be buried. The Lord do so to me and more also if aught but death part thee and me." They come for shelter. When trouble comes to you, you take valerian to soothe the nerves, or you take alcohol to revive the spirits; but the medicines fail and the stimulants fail. Then you try the excitements of business, or you try the merry making of the clubrooms; but you are like the dove that went out from the ark. It flew to the north and there was a waste of water, to the south, to the east and to the west—there was nothing but a waste of waters in which floated the carcasses of the dead world, and the first solid thing the dove touched after leaving the ark was the window of the ark. No peace out of God. No hope, no comfort, no solace. I have tried the solace of this world. It is most insufficient. Oh, the infinite quackery of this world's comfort. It cannot help an immortal spirit.

"Substantial comfort will not grow
In Nature's barren soil;
All we can boast, till Christ we know,
Is vanity and toil.
But where the Lord has planted grace,
And made His glories known,
The fruits of Heavenly peace are found.
And there alone."

The world has tried to comfort you. You lost a parent. A friend came in and said: "Well, that is according to a law of nature that your father should expire." Any comfort in that? None. You lost your little child. Somebody came in and said: "Well, perhaps if the child had lived it might have turned out badly." Any hope, any comfort in that? None at all. You lost your property. A friend came in and said: "Well, it only shows that riches are very uncertain." You knew that before. No comfort. It is miserable quackery when the world tries to comfort a soul. But here Christ comes and he says: "I took your property that you might appreciate better the Heavenly treasures; I took physical health that you might better appreciate spiritual health. I took your loved ones for I had a better and brighter place for them, and I wanted them at the gate when you come through." So your soul is comforted, and the tears are dried and the wounds are healed. The air sometimes gets very dark with ravens wings, and they shut out all brightness and all comfort, and when it is so dark, and the voices of these ravens make the air horrible with their sound, then Christ comes in to soothe the soul, and He says: "The mountains may depart and the hills be removed, but my loving kindness will never fail you." Shelter—everlasting shelter—in this dovecot of the Gospel.

But this flock of souls that have come into the Kingdom of God to-day, are like doves to their windows because they fly home. The most of the birds have no home. Winter in one clime summer in another clime. This year a nest in one tree; next year a nest in another tree. The golden oriole of Germany stays only three months there and then it is gone. The linnet of Norway flies across the sea to get rid of the wintry blast. The heron, the grossbeak and the goldfinch are all migratory. They have no home. But the pigeons, the doves spoken of in the text, they have the dovecot for the summer and for the winter. It is a perpetual home like the warm heart of Christ, the dovecot of eternal mercy. Oh, how many have found the mercy and favor of Christ all they needed in all weathers, bright weather and dark weather, winter weather and summer weather, spring weather and autumn weather. A perpetual and loving Christ. What does the Psalmist say? "We come under the feathers of the Almighty." Our fortunes may drop ten degrees below zero. The snows of trouble may fall around us, the winds of persecution may blow against us, the jackals of death may stalk forth at us. Home, safely home, in the heart of God, nothing can disturb us. Nothing can overthrow us. The everlasting God is our shelter. The Sheriff may sell us out and our comfortable homes may go into the hands of strangers; but Christ, our home, is a home forever. And yet I hear people talking as though when a man became a Christian he put out on a trackless moor, as though he went wandering in the sands of a great Sahara. No, "As doves to the windows."

This great flock of souls that come into the Kingdom of God to-day, are like doves to their windows, because they come in flocks. The buzzard, with filthy wing, flitting up from the carrion, is alone. You look into the sky and once in a while you can find a solitary bird winging by; but the doves spoken of in the text come in flocks. So these souls to-day come by scores and hundreds, whole flocks of them. Not a straggler trying to catch up with an army, but a solid column. Not a stray drop on the cheek or the hand so that you are hardly aware whether it rains or not; but the rush of an unmistakable shower. Not the raking up of a few gleanings, but the full sheaves tossed into the garner. "As doves to their windows." Some of them are young, you have noticed, and the first time they use their wings is to fly into the Kingdom of God. Some are old and their wings have been torn of the shot and ruffled of the tempest, and they flew far out at sea, and we thought they would never come back again, and some have dipped their wings in fountains of sin and death, and some made very crooked course as they flew along; but they have changed their course; they have come back "as doves to their windows." Oh, I shall not to my dying hour cease to praise God for the manifestation of His grace here to-day. Praise Him, sun and moon and stars. Praise Him, Church militant on earth. Praise Him, Church triumphant in Heaven. Let the Church on earth raise its right hand, and let the Church of Heaven lower its right hand, until they clasp in joy and congratulation, and then let the elders of the church put the wine of celebration to our lips, and let the cupbearers of Heaven bring from the vaults of eternity, the oldest wine prepared by Him who trod the winepress alone, and let two worlds at once keep jubilee. Oh yes, I am glad so many of the young have come. Before the time of Robert Raikes there was no combined effort for the salvation of the young. People were allowed to go on in their sin, and after a while were brought back, if they were brought back at all. There has been a notion in the church that people must be allowed to sow their wild oats and after a while they will come back. I have noticed that 99 out of 100 of the people who sow wild oats never reap any other crop; they sow to the wind and they reap the whirlwind. The church has found out that it is easier to keep a train on the track than to get it on the track when once it is off the track. The experienced trainsman checks the fiery steed at the first jump, for he knows that if it get under full swing and its hoof strike fire and it take the bit in its teeth, the momentum is irresistible. And so we rejoice at the coming of the young. Oh, that Christ to-day would take all these flowers of youth and make them into a garland for His own blessed brow. In the heaviest snowstorm that I ever saw, I went to see a dying girl in my parish. Her cheek on the pillow was as white as the snow on the casement. Loved ones stood around the couch. They could not give her up. They seemed to be trying to hold her back in this world. Father could not give her up. Mother could not give her up; and one nearer and dearer than father or mother was frantic with grief as he stood there. I said: "Fannie, how do you feel to-day?" She said: "Mr. Talmage, I feel happy. I feel very happy. I wish you would tell all the young folks next Sunday that religion will make them happy." As I left the room, above the sobbing and the wailing of grief was heard—I heard—the calm, clear, resonant voice of that dying girl, as she said to me, "Good night; we will meet again on the other side the river." On the following Sabbath we gathered for her burial, and out of the conservatory we brought white flowers and put them on the casket, and in all that crowded church there was only one bright and delighted face; that was the face of Fannie. Religion had made her happy while she lived, and happy when she died, and has made her happy forever. Oh, I am so glad the young come to-day. I have no words to express my emotion at the coming of these young men. Christ Himself died while yet a young man, and His sympathies go out toward the young. Oh, that this regiment for God might be reinforced to-day by the coming of all these young men and young women who have not yet surrendered themselves to the Lord Jesus.

But while this great flock have come into the dovecot, the largest flock have flown the other way. It is easy to feed the pigeons, the doves. You go out with a handful of corn or wheat, and they fly all around you. They alight on your shoulder, and your hands, and your head, and you feed them, and they stand around you, they are so very tame. But do you know, my brother, the Lord has been feeding you with the finest of the wheat all these years! And yet you have flown away from him. You took your clothes from His wardrobe. You took your bread from His hand, and yet you have been flying the other way. While these others come into the dovecot, you are out in the storm. And as some morning, after a severe winter tempest, you have gone out and you have seen dead birds all over the snow, so there will be a time come when all those who reject His mercy and despise the Gospel will perish. Ah, the storm must come, the storm will come. It will shiver the masts of pride and drive into the white reefs of death the last cargo of sin. The cedars of Lebanon will be split in the hurricane, and the islands will be moved out of their place, and the continents will be rent asunder, and the two hemispheres will spin like a top in the fury of the last gale. The wild beasts of the forest in affright will come to the cliffs and leap off in an avalanche of terror. The dead will come out of their sepulchres to look at the scene, and all those who rejected Christ must die. Knowing that that day is coming, would not I be a coward if standing here I did not tell you of it? The probability is that many of us will sleep the last sleep near each other in the gardens of the dead, how would I feel if on resurrection morn when I come up at the call of my God, I should hear your voice saying from an adjoining lot in the last resting place: "You never told me of this: it is through your neglect I am unprepared for this?" Oh I cannot steel my nerves for such a consternation. I tell you now, except a man be born again he cannot see the Kingdom of God.

"How far is it from here to hell?" said a scoffer on horseback one Sunday morning, as he dashed past a good Christian deacon on the way to church. "How far is it from here to hell?" At the next turn of the road the horse threw the rider, and he was dashed instantly to death. He found out how far it was to ruin without any information from the church deacon. Oh, man on the swift course of death, speeding on toward thy doom, do you cry to me to-day, "How far to ruin?" I answer: "Near, very near."

"Perhaps this very day
Thy last accepted time may be;
Oh! shouldst thou grieve Him now away,
Then hope may never beam on thee."

Would that my Lord God would show you your sin and help you to fly from it, and your duty and help you to do it, so that when the last great terror shall spread its two great wings over our world and with talons of death shall clutch for thy soul, it cannot harm thee, for thou art in the safe dovecot of a Savior's mercy. What does the dove in the coop care for the hawk in the sky?

"Come in! Come in!
Eternal glory shalt thou win."

A HORROR OF THE SLUMS.

Five Dead and Dying Children and a Father Besotted With Drink.

A letter from Detroit, Mich., says: "Isn't it terrible?"

"Yes, awful."

There was a large crowd about the house at No. 456 Woodbridge street. It was noon and the gathering was soon swollen by people going home to dinner. The women's faces were blanched and men's had a stern and forbidding look. If there had not been several city officers present another dreadful tragedy might have been enacted.

The house is a dilapidated frame building, and in it Thomas Grears, a stonecutter, thirty-three years of age, lives with his family, consisting at present of five children. Last Sunday Mrs. Grears died in childbirth, the infant living. She was buried on Wednesday. Since the funeral nothing was seen of Grears or any of the children. The house was closed and the doors locked. A neighbor, becoming suspicious, broke in the door one morning and saw a sight which caused him to retreat as from a pestilence.

Lying with the children upon the one bed was the father, crazy drunk. The cold, naked and bloody body of another child lay on the floor, where it had been thrown by the brutal father to make more room on the bed. The living children were down with an virulent attack of scarlet fever. A girl three years old was dead and cold. A boy eight years old was dying, and the other children, a girl of five years and a boy of one year old, were so ill that they could not move. A child a year old was unconscious. The house was cold, the blanket of the bed filthy and bloody. The little sufferers on the bed were almost naked, and the burly form of the father lay partly over the younger lad and the babe. Not a morsel of food was found in the house except a little milk frozen hard.

Horrified at the sight, the neighbors rushed out and gave the alarm. The Poor Commissioner, took immediate charge of the case. Physicians were called and food and fire provided, and several fiercely indignant women neighbors set to work to clean up the house. Grears was put in charge of the officer. He is said to be a fine workman at his trade of stonecutting, and was recently employed at Lett's Stone Yard. The family came from London, Ont., five months ago.

A Fortunate Escape.

A citizen of Buffalo suffering from an ulcerated tooth sought relief in the flowing bowl, much to his wife's alarm. One night he came home about 10 o'clock, and as he entered the house he saw a big rat. To seize the poker and go for it was the work of an instant, and in the chase that followed, the rat rushed into the bedroom where the man's wife was about going to bed. She didn't see the rat, and was naturally agitated at seeing her husband, in boots, overcoat, and cap, banging away with the poker and yelling: "I'll have that rat if I die for it." "Oh, dear, there's no rat here" she said; but he kept right on, hammered on some of her clothing that lay on a lounge, and then triumphantly held up the dead body of the rat. The wife looked at it a moment and then, in accents of inexpressible relief, said: "Thank heaven, there was a rat after all!"

THE NEW YEAR.

With what gifts will you make amends,
New Year, for the one that has flown!
He and I were the best of friends,
And he gave me much for my own.
Have you aught in your hoard I need,
Spirit to strengthen, soul to feed,
Heart to lighten, day to illume,
Waste places to coax into bloom?

We were sorry to let the Old Year go
Across the old world's outer rim;
We knew his ways, but we do not know
What the New Year brings with him.
We remember all of the Old Year's smiles,
His moons that lighted us, miles and miles,
His summer woods, with their cool, sweet scents,
And all of his pleasant blandishments:
Though he brought us many a wound and pain,
Yet, in spite of his frosty atmosphere;
We long to summon him back again;
Will the New Year bring us a panacea?

—Mary A. Prescott.

TIGERS AND CATNIP.

A SKIPPER'S YARN.

In the days when there was no restriction on the trade, Captain Griffith of the schooner Tropic Bird sailed from Whydah, coast of Guinea, for Barbados, with a cargo of slaves, as he had done before; but he had hardly crossed the Bight of Benin, when the schooner was struck by a white squall and thrown on her beam-ends. All the white people on board were on deck at the time, except one passenger, and with them there were a few trusted slaves, who were employed in various ways. The rest of the slaves were confined below. The schooner had but one small boat, which was taken possession of by the Captain, Mate, and four hands, who loaded her so deeply that they were obliged to push off, leaving seven souls, white and black, clinging to the vessel's bottom. They had four oars, a few gallons of palm oil, but no sail, and no bread and water. A tarpaulin, found under a seat, was rigged for a sail, and in this unpromising condition they headed for the shore they had recently left. The sea was still running high, and frequently came on board. The sun beat down upon them with terrible force, and all but one man and the mate died raving mad before there was a sight of land. At last the survivors were cheered by the outline of a low shore, which they made a desperate effort to reach, and as night again closed in they ran under the shadow of overhanging trees, where all was a marsh—the home of fevers and the abode of serpents. On every hand it was a low jungle, in which no white man could hope to live; an impenetrable undergrowth of ferns, young palms, climbing vines, rattans, the thick-leaved ficus, and tall gum trees, woven together. To penetrate it was a hopeless task, and, after pushing further on the next day, and crossing many arms of what appeared to be the mouth of a river, they found a place to land. There they killed a number of snakes, which they devoured. On this spot there was another death, and the mate was the only survivor. He was reduced to a shadow when some natives found him and took him, with his boat, to them a prize, to their village, Wari, where there was a mission station. Once there, he could hardly trust his senses, for he heard a voice speaking English, and saw before him a comely English-woman, the wife—widow, for she had been bereft a few days before—of a missionary, who had labored in that unpromising field. The missionary had been carried off by a tiger, and his widow, half crazed by her sudden and terrible loss, was in no condition to do much for a shipwrecked mariner; but his haggard face, shrunken limbs, and woe-begone looks aroused her sympathies, and she gave him food and garments and the medicine he needed.

The village was made up of kraals and wigwams covered with a thatch of leaves. The mission, removed but one degree from such abodes, was a low cottage of wattle, by contrast neat and attractive. It had but little furniture—a few stools, a table, skins and coarse mats, and in the part that might be called a kitchen, wooden spoons, gourds and the like hung on the walls. But the charm of the place was its flower garden—not native flowers, but flowers that carried the missionary and his wife back to where they had spent their early days, and were grown from seeds they had brought with them, or were sent out in letters from time to time by distant friends—blossoming beans, tufts of rocket and sweet William, nodding sprays of ragged-sailor, and spikes of fox-glove, bee-larkspur, holly-hocks of many colors, and marigolds and asters, all growing together. Red clover, beds of roses and balsam shared the ground with the humbler but no less valued catnip, motherwort and golden-rod; while honeysuckles and woodbines clung to what was intended for a porch, and which was as like one as the missionary could make it with the materials at hand. It was these flowers, objects of love and admiration, that softened the lot of the missionary and his wife, and made them forget many of the privations they had to bear. And it was while seated on this low porch, in the cool of the evening, enjoying his pipe—his only indulgence—that he was seized by a tiger and carried off. Traces of tigers had been seen in the flower garden, and some of the negroes had said, with trembling limbs, that they had seen one there; but the alarm was never given in time for the missionary and his wife to catch sight of the dreaded creature. The presence of such a terrible foe in the immediate neighborhood sent a chill to every heart, for they were powerless to contend with him, having only one shotgun. There was a constant dread that he would suddenly burst upon them; and when, with a bound, he carried off the head of the house, they were paralyzed.

The mate said he would do what he could to drive off the monster; but almost before he had time to take it all in the tiger again appeared, as he sat on the doorstep ruminating. The creature this time did not come with glaring eyes, intent on his prey, but was spiritless and evidently ill. Whether the missionary had not agreed with him, or, in satisfying his voracious appetite, he had swallowed too many brass buttons, or, perhaps, the missionary's false teeth, could not be ascertained. Certainly the creature was moping, and for a long time (no one caring to go out and drive him off) he lay in a part of the garden he had frequented before, apparently munching something.

The next morning the mate carefully examined the spot, and saw that the tiger had confined his attention to the catnip bed. Here was a revelation, and from it the mate was quick to draw a conclusion. "Cats," said he to himself, "love catnip, eat of it freely, and always turn to it when ailing. A cat," he went on, "is a diminutive tiger; a tiger is a monstrous cat; whether large or small, cat or tiger, they have one taste in common; a love of catnip."

Having reasoned thus, he set about turning his conclusions to account, satisfied that with the aid of catnip he might capture this troublesome tiger—perhaps many tigers, greatly to his profit. Exactly how it was to be done required more reflection. At last it came to him that with the aid of the negroes about the mission, he could make a corral of timber, with sides so high and sloping in that a tiger, once caught, could not climb up and over the paling. The work was begun, and the corral when completed was to be planted thick with catnip, especially about the trap, which the tiger was expected to spring when rolling in the savory bed. The widow entered heartily into the scheme, the negroes were encouraged to work, and in time the corral was made and planted. It worked to a charm, for the first night after it was opened the old tiger (who had recovered his vigor) came snuffing around, and not finding a sprig of catnip in the garden, followed up the scent and struck the trail. But when he came to the corral he was rather suspicious, for everything about it was new, and the ground was covered with fresh chips. There was plenty of catnip within; he could see that, and he could find it nowhere else; and after many feints he entered stealthily, touched the spring as he pushed on, and in a moment was secured.

But the catching of the tiger was nothing compared to the labor and anxiety attending getting him into a cage (which had to be made) and sending him to market. Meanwhile he had to be fed, which duty was assigned to one of the negroes, who scoured the country for kids, shotes and jack-rabbits; for he had no weapon with which to secure large game. The cage, rude beyond description, was bated with a shote and backed up to the trap, which was lifted just high enough for the tiger (hungry from fasting) to rush in and pounce on the porker, when the door, with a slam, dropped into its place.

Nothing could be finer, and the captain of a canoe manned with forty paddles, agreed to take the tiger, with the necessary provision, to Whydah, for a consideration. There a trader consigned the tiger to a house in London, the widow paying freight, for the mate was "broke" when the Tropic Bird went over. The consignment reached London safely, the tiger, an exceptionally fine one, found a ready market, and the consignee, in remitting the proceeds, solicited other like consignments. To meet the difficulty of providing cages, he agreed to keep cages, Manchester made, in stock at Whydah. This was pleasant news, and when received at Wari, the mate and the widow, who had become attached to each other and were only waiting for a missionary to turn up and splice them, concluded to push the business and make regular shipments of tigers.

From that time all went well till the business attracted the attention of Ahgrimy, king of Dahomey, who ordered Kankore, the petty king who ruled in the Wari district, to bring the mate to his country seat, which was not far from Abomey, the capital. This was startling, but there was no help for it, and with a heavy heart the mate left the widow and started on the journey. He and Kankore traveled toward Abomey as rapidly as circumstances would admit, receiving many attentions on the way, which Kankore appropriated to himself till they drew near to their journey's end, when he evidently wished that it was over. At Alladda, their first post, they were met by a delegation headed by Bullbil, the chief of that section, who sought to do honor to the mate and show proper respect for Kankore. At Whyboo, the next station, they were invited to a barbecue—a pig roasted under a gum tree, with side dishes of yams, shark's steak (a delicacy at that distance from the coast), and toasted owls; the toasting being done by maidens dressed in parrot feathers. At Hocholla, the last station before reaching Abomey, they were treated to a war dance, which was thought ominous by the travelers, but they had but little time for reflection, for they were hurried on to Abomey, where they were made to pass in and out of the six gates of the capital, and then up to the three palaces of the King, to see, possibly, their high, red-clay walls, stuck over with skulls and marrow-bones.

At last they reached the King's country seat, and found him on a throne of skulls: his Prime Minister, Mikenno, standing on one side, and on the other Chopum, the public executioner, with his broad axe over his shoulder. The King frowned and scowled when the party drew near, impatiently waved his hand for the drums, horn blasts, cow bells, and yells to cease their noise, took a swig of malofu, handed the gourd back to the cup-bearer, and stared at the mate as though he would look him out of countenance.

These preliminaries over, he told the mate that he had sent for him to build a corral and put it in working order, for he, the King, intended to go into the business of catching and shipping tigers. This was unpleasant news to Mikenno, the Prime Minister, who saw that the catching of tigers so near the capital would be attended with more or less trouble to him, and he at once suggested that it would take time to build a corral, while the King, by confiscating the one at Wari, which had been run without a license, could have the advantage of what had already been done, and at once derive a revenue from the enterprise. The King saw the point, commended the wisdom of his servant, ordered the mate and all who were associated with him to quit the country, and appointed Stanbi a commissioner to go to Wari and run the corral on the King's account.

The mate, accompanied by Kankore and Stanbi, started at once for the coast; and when they reached Wari he told the widow to pack their kit, while he gave attention to pulling up and rooting out every vestige of catnip—clearing up, he said, which satisfied Stanbi, so long as no injury was done to the corral. It was with a heavy heart that the widow at last turned from the spot that had been so interwoven with her life, and having plucked a few sprigs of ragged-sailor, a bit of rocket, and a primrose or two, with the mate she stepped on board the canoe that was to take them to Whydah, where their passage was engaged on board a vessel up for Barbados, for they wanted to be beyond the reach of the King as soon as possible.

After waiting a reasonable time, King Ahgrimy asked for returns from his tiger enterprise, and when told that no tiger had been caught he ordered the head of Stambi to be cut off, and Baraka, a chief of equal note, was sent to Wari in his place. He, too, was beheaded, for not coming up to time. Other chiefs were sent down with like results, and still the London demand for tigers could not be filled: prices thereupon began to go up, and soon they reached the old quotations.

At Barbados the mate and the widow were united and opened a sailors' boarding-house, where Captain Ben Lindsey, the skipper, heard them tell their adventures in Guinea, as here narrated.—New York Evening Post.

Lafayette's Americanism.

Lafayette identified himself so thoroughly with those for whose independence he fought that, referring to the revolution, he always spoke of himself as an American. One evening in 1824, while visiting Boston, Mrs. Josiah Quincy said to him:

"The American cockade was black and white was it not, General?"

"Yes, madam," he replied; "it was black at first, but when the French came and joined us we added the white in compliment to them."

At the siege of Yorktown, in the assault which hastened the surrender of Cornwallis, Lafayette and his American division captured one redoubt some minutes before the French carried the redoubt assigned to them.

"You don't remember me, General!" cried an old soldier, pressing through the crowd assembled at the State house to welcome Lafayette on his arrival in Boston. The General looked at him keenly, holding the hand of the old man, who added:

"I was close to you when we stormed our redoubt at Yorktown—I was just behind Captain Smith—you remember Captain Smith? He was shot through the head just as he mounted the redoubt."

"Yes yes, I remember!" answered Lafayette, his face lighting up. "Poor Captain Smith! But we beat the French! We beat the French!"

At the surrender of Cornwallis the American troops were drawn up on the right and the French troops on the left of the road along which the British army marched in solemn silence. Lafayette, noticing that the English soldiers looked only at the Frenchmen on the left and ignored the American light infantry, the pride of his heart, and being determined to bring their "eyes to the right," ordered the band to strike up "Yankee Doodle."

"Then," said he, narrating the change, "they did look at us, but were not very well pleased."—Youth's Companion.

Burmah's Ruby Mines.

They are situated about eight miles from Mandalay, and are unquestionably very valuable. Indeed, they are the only mines in the world where really valuable rubies are found. There are a few mines in Ceylon; but Ceylon rubies of the true red are very rare, most of them being of the pink topaz color. In Siam, too, rubies are plentiful, but they are of the color of garnets. Within the last twenty years small rubies have gone up about fifty per cent. in value, and large ones about 200 per cent. The best rubies go to America. In the British crown jewels there are none of any size and color. So dear are the perfect stones that few can afford to purchase them. The French Rothschilds have a fine collection, so have the Orleans princes, and there are some fine stones amongst the Russian crown jewels. Very lately, a fine stone was sold to one of the Russian Grand Dukes for about $35,000.

Nothing certain is known about the Burmah ruby mines. They are supposed to consist of the beds of old rivers that have dried up, because the stones always have a water-worn appearance. The only Europeans that have ever visited them are a Frenchman and an Italian, who were in the service of King Theebaw. So far as is known, they are worked by the villagers upon a curious system. All stones below twenty-one "rhitis" in weight (twenty-one "rhitis" are equivalent to twenty-two carats—i. e., about one-seventh of an ounce troy) belong to the villagers, all above to the crown. A perfect specimen ruby of twenty-one "rhitis" would be worth $50,000, a moderately good one $5,000, and an inferior one about $250.—New York Hour.

Soldiers Mounted on Ponies.

"The Corps of Mounted Infantry in Upper Burmah," writes the officer to whom we are indebted for our sketches, "are just being reorganized. The proposed strength is 800 and the force is to be scattered over several districts in squadrons of seventy-five each. The men are composed of smart lightweights from infantry regiments here, and are all mounted on strong, hardy Burmese ponies, about twelve hands two inches high. They are armed with Martini carbines and sword-backed sword bayonets. The ammunition is carried in bandolier belts over the left shoulder, and ordinary light hunting saddles and bridles are used. This corps is found most efficient in driving out Dacoits from the thick dense forest jungle and long elephant grass, where the enemy is in the habit of lying in ambush and suddenly firing on our troops. A similar corps of mounted men is also being formed from the native regiments."—London Graphic.

Died of Too Much Debt.

"No, sir! he did not die of pneumonia; he died of bill brokers, sir. He projected an unwise improvement of a piece of real estate, made loans, covered himself with bonds and mortgages, and finally incurred a street debt of $2,000, which rapidly rolled up to $8,000 and crushed the life out of him. He borrowed money on call, got paper discounted, and he worked, lived and died for the bill brokers. Yes, sir, he died of a street debt, upon which he expended his strength every week, throwing it ahead from one day to seven.—Dry Goods Chronicle.

LITTLE SNOWFLAKES FALL.

The little snowflakes fall
And melt upon the pane,
While all around the russet ground,
Is growing white again.
Fall, fall, fall,
Little snowflake bright;
Fall until the russet earth
Is mantled o'er with white.

Across the village street,
A cottage stands aloof,
There's joy within and children's din—
Snow gathers on the roof.
Fall, fall, fall,
Silver snowflake bright,
Fall until the cottage roof,
Is covered o'er with white.

Two little ones are there,
A looking at the snow;
Two little girls, in chestnut curls,
With sweet cheeks all aglow.
Fall, fall, fall,
Tiny snowflakes bright;
Fall until those little eyes
See nothing out but white.

With heart o'erbrimmed with joy,
Along the shining street,
A whistling lad, attired in plaid,
Gambols with nimble feet.
Fall, fall, fall,
Little snowflake bright;
Fall until his little shoes
Are covered o'er with

The cheery sound of bells
Comes floating through the flakes;
How sweet the spell, when music's swell
Upon the daydream breaks!
Fall, fall, fall,
Little snowflake bright;
Fall until the sleigh runs
Upon a bed of white.

O, little snowflake, fall!
And whiten all the earth;
That eyes may beam, that hearts may dream,
Of nothing else but mirth
Fall, fall, fall,
Silver snowflake bright;
Fall until the russet earth
Is mantled o'er with white.

—Caleb Dunn.

PITH AND POINT.

Weather profits—The coal dealers.

Not a windy affair—Meeting a draft.

A cyclone is like three school girls walking abreast—it doesn't turn out for anything.—Waterloo Observer.

A man who had a scolding wife, being asked what he did for a living, replied that he "kept a hot-house."

An exchange says the Jersey cow is making her way into France. That's what comes of not having a good fence.—Goodall's Sun.

The enormously large hats worn by some very little girls make it difficult to decide which there is more of—hat or child.—Free Press.

"Which author, Miss Evanston, do you most love to devour?" Miss Evanston (Chicago girl)—"Lamb, although I don't object to Hogg."—New York Journal.

The ladies—bless 'em—it beats all!
When they are young and squallers,
Their hearts are set upon the doll—
When grown, upon the dollars.

—Tid-Bits

Two merchants of Bakersville, Penn., have purchased 35,000 pounds of dried apples this season. Evidently somebody is going to have a swell dinner.—Boston Transcript.

Some one wants to know what the work of a great man is. Well, we don't know, unless it is to have his picture in an imported soap advertisement.—New Haven News.

We always know what to expect when a public speaker says: "One word more and I am done." And when a woman exclaimed: "There's no use talking," we understand that she is going to talk until her tongue is tired.—Boston Transcript.

Thompson's as much as he can do,
He plays and writes his pieces, too.
A listener, though, is soon a dozer—
His music is not known to fame,
Yet through it he can fairly claim
The merit of a rare composer.

—Rambler.

After the clerk had pulled down everything in the store without satisfying his customer, a woman, she asked him if there was anything else he had not shown her. "Yes, ma'am," he said, "the cellar; but if you wish it I will have brought up and shown to you."—Lowell Citizen.

He was trying to teach the rules
With which grammar is heavily laden—
'Twas in one of the "deestrect" schools—
And his pupil, a very fair maiden.
Now, I vow by the blue sky above you,
In his teaching—though they called it "schooling"—
When he said: "Now say this: I love you!"
She answered: "Now you quit your fooling."

—Goodall's Sun.

Horseshoes Versus Naked Hoofs.

There have always been two theories upon the shoeing of horses. One is that they ought to be shod, and the other, supported by what we will call the Barefooted Brigade, is that they should go without shoes. The Shoers are much the more numerous, but the Barefoots are, if anything, more cocksure that they are right. We have always been inclined to approve of shoes, not for weak and defective feet only, but as the proper appliances for all feet, however good, and as practically indispensable for horses that are liable to be called on for a high rate of speed. When it comes to pounding, there must be something to pound with more substantial than the naked hoof.

We have often seen instances of horses belonging to quiet country families going shoeless with perfect comfort and safety, but the performance of Governor Stanford's trotting colt Antevolo, a flyer of the first rank, without shoes, maintains the arguments for bare feet in the highest prominence. Antevolo has been trotting now for several years without shoes, or with tips only. He made a record of 2:19¼ in September, 1885, and in the great race recently won by Harry Wilkes, Antevolo was timed in each of the four heats with this splendid result: 2:16, 2:17, 2:17½, 2:18½. It must have been a good, hardish track to allow Harry Wilkes to beat that, and trot a half mile in 1:04¼ besides; but it seems that the barefooted horse's hoofs were fit to pound about as hard and fast in the fourth heat as in the first. It was a very noticeable performance, and well worthy the careful consideration of all horse-loving economists.—New York Sun.

CHILTON VIEW.

Published Every Thursday Morning.

CLANTON, ALA., FEB. 10, 1887.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One copy one year	$1.50
One copy six months	.75
One copy four "	.50

The inter-state commerce bill has become a law.

Col. Jno. M. McKleroy, of Montgomery, has moved to Anniston.

Giving space to communications in these columns does not commit us as endorsing them.

Mrs. Thos. H. Watts, wife of ex-Governor Watts, died at her home in Montgomery last week.

Sixty years ago, two brothers, Robin and Allen Wiber, of Hartford, Ind., agreed that their business and property should be in common. This life partnership has never been dissolved, and it is said that they have never had the slightest misunderstanding. To-day, they are rich and highly esteemed. Their property is absolutely the property of both. They have never given any but joint notes, and never contracted a debt that was not equally binding upon each. They are rare examples of happiness and prosperity.

Judge Cobb says he receives letters daily forwarded from Washington, asking for garden seed. This phase of national benevolence to the dear people has so grown within the last few years that it foreshadows all the other duties of congressmen. While we do not wish to speak disparagingly of this magnificent invention of statesmen, we will hazard the opinion that Judge Cobb will do something besides address packages of dead-head-all-the-way-round seed when he takes his seat in the popular conclave of the United States.—Tuskegee Gazette.

A story is told of a couple of drummers, who having a leisure day in Birmingham, concluded to indulge their sporting propensities. They procured guns and dogs and started out early in the morning. Late in the afternoon they found themselves about fifteen miles from the city, completely lost in a dense forest. Meeting a countryman, they began to enquire their way back to Birmingham, when to their astonishment, they were right in the edge of the city, and the countryman proceeded to point out a stone sticking edgewise in the earth, saying as he did so, "You are now on 958th avenue."

The senate bill to require all fast mail and passenger trains to stop at the nearest town to the county site of the counties through which they are run; while it is not a local bill it becomes localized in its effect upon the said "nearest town to the county site," and we hope, for the benefit that Clanton will derive from having the fast express train No. 4 going north at night to stop here, that the bill will become a law.

All the passenger trains on this road stop here except the one mentioned and our citizens have been trying for a long time to secure its stoppage by appealing to the railroad company.

This paper is friendly to the railroad company, which has and is still doing much towards the building up of our town, and we would not advocate anything which we think would be detrimental to their interests, but are satisfied that if the express train would stop here at night it would not only be a great convenience to our people but would be in the interest of the railroad company, pecuniarily. We are sorry to know that our Senator from this district opposes the bill.

Since the above was written the bill has passed the senate.

A School of Mines.

While a number of our contemporaries are appealing to the Legislature to appropriate funds for the erection of a School of Mines, somewhere in the mineral region of the State, the Faculty of the University of Alabama have gone to work and met that popular demand, by organizing a new department under that name. This step, for which not enough praise can be bestowed upon President Clayton, and the members of the Faculty, meets a popular demand which has its foundation in the necessities of the times. No better place could have been selected for the location of such a School, than the halls of Alabama's foremost institution of learning. There is now enough of mining carried on in the vicinity of the University, to furnish practical illustrations to the lectures, and in the immediate future, that branch of mineral industry, as well as numerous kindred ones, will grow and multiply far beyond the needs of the school. The University of Alabama, in extending the range of its instruction, in this manner, does not ask for any support or appropriation from the Legislature. All she asks is the privilege of working out the solution of the problems which the new department presents, in her own way, and in her own time, and this way is certain to be the best, and the time the shortest possible.—Tuscaloosa Times.

George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

Feb. 22d will be the 155th anniversary of the birth of George Washington, a man who proved eminently fitted to be millitary leader and the first President of the young republic. Born in Virginia, he early showed a taste for surveying and millitary exercises. He fought bravely in the French and Indian war, led the country through the war for independence, served two terms as President, and died in 1799.

Abraham Lincoln, born in Kentucky, Feb. 12th 1809, has been called "the most remarkable products of the possibilites of American life." From his humble log cabin home he battled with the world for an education, and succeeded in making himself lawyer, politician, and President. With firm hand and clear head he conducted the country through a great civil war, and yielded up his life after serving only one month of his second term as President.

RAILROAD LEGISLATION.

A Card From Mr. E. B. Stahlman.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., FEB. 1, '87.
Editors of the Advertiser.

Affliction in my family detained me in Virginia for quite a time preceeding the recess taken by the general assembly. In the columns of the Advertiser of November the 30th, and during my absence, I find the following with the published proceedings of the senate:

"Mr. Richardson moved that the bill (meaning the railroad bill) be printed, and stated that his reason was that on the 25th of November the vice-president of the Louisville & Nashville railroad company, Mr. E. B. Stahlman, had made a personal attack on him because of his introduction of this and other railroad bills, and told him plainly that the bill should not pass the legislature."

The mere introduction of the bills by Mr. Richardson did not alarm or disturb me in the slightest degree. I sought the introduction to Mr. Richardson, and so informed him, because he represented a district on the line of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. It was my impression that the people on the line of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad were satisfiied with the treatment they were receiving at its hands, and I was anxious to ascertain whether or not there were any complaints, and the nature of such complaints. These reasons I endeavored to make quite plain to Mr. Richardson; saying to him that if there were any complaints the facts had been kept from the executive officers of the road, and that we should be glad to know if the officials in charge of our affairs in Alabama had been derelict in the discharge of their duties. After interrogating Mr. Richardson at some length to ascertain the nature and cause of the complaints, and by whom they were made, and failing to receive any response that would lead us to an intelligent conclusion on the subject, I turned to Mr. Welch, general freight agent of our Alabama division, who was present, and asked him if he knew of any complaints. Mr. Welch said that he did not, that since the Louisville & Nashville had assumed control of the Montgomery & Mobile road, the rates had been reduced from thirty to forty per cent, and that according to his information the people were more than satisfied. I then said to Senator Richardson I hoped he would put his complaints in some tangible form, and give us some clue upon which we can go to work to correct any evils which may exist. This he declined to do, adding that he was not on the witness stand and did not care to be interrogated any further. I then said to him: "Senator, you are a representative of a district located on the line of our road. The Louisville & Nashville Railroad is one of your constituents and the largest tax-payer in your district. Don't you think that as the representative of that district you should give us information that would lead to a correction of evil, if any exist? And don't you consider it a part of your duty to see to it that no legislation, unfair to any interest, is enacted?"

Mr. Richardson responded that he was not the representative of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, that he represented the other side of the question, and that the Louisville & Nashville and all other railroads must look out for their own interests; that the people wanted the legislation, and he would press it to the utmost.

I said to him: "Senator, if you feel that the people want this legislation you ought to press it. If you believe it is right you ought to do your utmost to enact the proposed bills into a law. But, I don't agree with you as to the sentiment of the people. I do not believe the people of Alabama want such legislation; and since you entertain a contrary opinion, if you will add a provision to the bill, that the question shall be submitted to the people and not become a law until ratified by the people, we shall most cheerfully lend our aid to help you pass your bills."

After some further parleying, in which I undertook to draw out specific causes of complaint against the Louisville & Nashville Railroad in the senator's district, with a view of holding our Alabama officials responsible for any shortcomings, Mr. Richardson sought to cut the interview short by saying the corridor of the hotel was no place in which to discuss the question. I admitted, in part, the force of what the gentleman said, but suggested that a simple discussion or talk over the question in a public place should not be considered improper; that we had no concealment to make and that we would much prefer to talk over the question where all could hear, than to take a man around the corner and discuss such matters. I reiterated my reasons for having sought the enterview, adding that the introduction of the bill did not alarm me; that I was satisfied he could not pass his bill. Just as we were separating Mr. Richardson said, "I understand what you mean when you say 'no bill shall pass.'"

I stopped him instantly, and said, "I am glad you brought this question up; I do not intend that this conference shall end leaving you under such an impression. I did not say that 'no bill should pass.' What I said was that 'you could not pass your bill;' that the legislature cf Alabama is, in my jugment, too conservative and intelligent to pass such bills as you have introduced."

This is the substance of the interview which occurred in the presence of Mr. Gaylord Clark and Mr. Theodore Welch, and will be corroberated by them. Col. Arrington introduced me to the senator, and I thought was present; but he has since informed me that he was not present long enough to hear much of the discussion; that he certainly heard nothing of the kind attributed to me by Senator Richardson.

It is a marvelous stretch of imagination to claim that what I stated was designed as a personal attack or threat, and to assume that I would have been guilty of such an act in the sense that Senator Richardson has seen fit to put it, would be to rate me an idiot.

I trust the newspapers of Alabama, which have generally manifested a disposition to do the fair thing, will do me the justice to publish this communication.

E. B. STAHLMAN.

Bro. Ike Visits Stump Hills.

After visiting Clanton Bro. Ike turned up in Stump Hills, and he says it is stump hills "shore nuff." But the people are all good and kind, and well to do. Bro. Ike says he was careful to examine the corn cribs as he rode along, and the most of them were nearly full, and the smoke oozing through the boards of their meat houses, indicated meat within, in the curing process. He is well pleased with the people, and he thinks the near future will develop some rich mines in these hills. He says the people are stirred up on the bill authorizing the Governor to appoint the commissioners. He met with a man in the hills, who told him, he couldn't blame the Legislature if they let the bill pass, because that body, judging from the present representative, might naturally conclude that all of Chilton county's officers ought to be appointed. Bro. Ike says that kinder got away with him, says he "lows" to go back and have that over. Bro. Ike is mighty sensitive, and don't like to have his officers slurred.

He says the people, everywhere he has been, are sowing lots of oats, and talking strong about reducing the acreage in cotton. Says when the people get at this, the country will prosper, and not before.

Bro. Ike came down from the hills to the flourishing little town of Jemison. After hitching his horse he gazed around at the church buildings. Then he went into the large and commodious store building of Mr. I. N. Langston; found the shelves all well filled with select goods. He fell in love with the polite clerks, who he said showed him every courtesy, and more than was due him. He then went into Mr. Allen's store, where he met that jovial old gentleman and clerks, who gave all the attention necessary to make him feel comfortable and at home. He then went through the post-office and store of Mr. Lowery, where he observed the neat and tidy order of the office and the politeness of the post-master indicated to him that Jemison could boast of her post-office. He then entered the nice drug store of Prof. J. M. Corderie, where he made the acquaintance of the Professor and Dr. Caffey. He says Jemison could not do without those to gentlemen. Corderie to blow up and Caffey to apply the healing balm and sticking plaster. But Ah! says he, before he had got through looking at the well arranged little drug store a little chunk of a fight took place between the court and lawyer which frightened him so much he found himself pulling the grade for home.

Success to the VIEW.

SAM MING.

Croup, Whooping cough and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. jun16 y

Shiloh's Vitalizer is what you need for Constipation, loss of appetite, dizziness, and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle.

The good effects of Ellis' P. P. P. on a debilitated person are felt at once, and a cure follows its use. If suffering from blood poison try a bottle. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

No family should be without Ellis' Magic Oil Liniment, the greatest external remedy known. It cures all aches and pains. Price 25 cents per bottle, at W. H. Phillips.

Sleepless nights made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by M. J. Greene Clanton. jun16y

Take one of Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pillets at night before you go to bed and you will be surprised how buoyant and vigorous you will feel the next day. Only 25 cents a vial.

Croup is a treacherous disease, and generally the most severe at night when unable to properly watch it. The best known remedy is Ellis' C. S. A. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

If you are suffering with weak or inflamed eyes, or granulated eyelids, you can be quickly cured by using Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve. 25 cents a box. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures consumption. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton Ala.

Life will acquire new zest, and cheerfulness will return, if you will impel your liver and kidneys to the performance of their functions Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm will stimulate them to healthful action. $1.00 per bottle. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Ellis' Magic Liver Pills are safe for children, and are more effective than any other cathartic pill on the market. If not found satisfactory return and get your money. For sale by W. H. Phillips. aug26-y

Will you suffer with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

That hacking cough can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's cure. We guarantee it. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Sick Headache and a sensation of oppression and dullness in the head are very commonly produced by indigestion; morbid despondency, irritability and over-sensitiveness of the nerves may, in a majority of cases, be traced to the same cause. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm and Pillets will positively cure. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton. sepl1 3

NOTICE NO. 6037.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 7, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Ala., on March 19th, 1887, viz: Andy Foshee Homestead 16955, for the sw ¼ of sw ¼, sec. 10, township 21 n, range 14 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Prince Wilson, Hunter Zimmerman, Lewis Williams and Arch Oden, all of Clanton, Ala.

feb10* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE OF DISSOLUTION.

The partnership heretofore existing between W. M. Wilson and P. D. Wilson, under the firm name of W. M. Wilson & Bro., is this day desolved by mutual consent. The business will be continued by W. M. Wilson, who becomes liable for all the debts of the late firm and all persons indebted to said firm, of Wilson & Bro. are requested to settle their accounts with W. M. Wilson.

W. M. Wilson,
jan27-3t P. D. Wilson.

SUIT IN CHANCERY.

B. H. Chesnutt, Complainant, vs. John H. Easterling, Defendant. In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of Wm. A. Collier, Esq., solicitor for the Complainant in the above stated cause that the Defendant, John H. Easterling, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, that his particular place of residence is unknown to affiant, and futher that in the belief of affiant the defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Chilton View, a newspaper published in the town of Clanton, for four consecutive weeks requiring him the said John H. Easterling to answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 28th day of February, 1887, or in thirty days thereafter a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office this 25th day of January 1887. W. E. STEWART, jan27-4t Register.

Printer's fee $7.50.

Assessor's Notice.

SECOND ROUND.

I will attend the following named places and days for the purpose of assessing the taxes of Chilton county for the year 1887:

Thomas Robert's, Beat 8, Tuesday, February 15th.

Stanton,	Beat 8,	Wednesday,	Feb. 16th.
Dixie,	" 8,	Thursday,	" 17th.
Howison,	" 8,	Friday,	" 18th.
Latham's	" 7,	Monday	" 21st.
Maplesville	" 7,	Tuesday	" 22nd.
Benson	" 3,	Wednesday	" 23rd.

Macedonia Church Beat 8, Thursday February 24th.

Providence Church, Beat 2, Friday February 25th.

Jemison,	Beat 2,	Saturday,	Feb. 26th.
Jemison,	" 2,	Monday,	" 28th.
Mullins	" 1,	Tuesday,	March 1st.
Clanton	" 4,	Wednesday,	" 2nd.
Clanton	" 4,	Thursday,	" 3rd.
Cooper's	" 5,	Friday,	" 4th.
Cooper's	" 5,	Saturday	" 5th.
Verbena	" 5,	Monday,	" 7th.
Verbena	" 5,	Tuesday,	" 8th.
Kincheon	" 6,	Thursday,	" 10th.

WM. A. SMITH,
jan20-3 Tax Assessor, C. C. A.

NOTICE NO. 5884.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 8, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March 9th, 1887, viz: Benjamine F. Abbott, Homestead for the n ½ of ne ¼ and n ½ of nw ¼, sec. 28, township 20, range 13. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: John J. Roberts, J. Thomas Anderson John M. Chandler and Richard P. Kendrick, all of Dixie, Ala.

feb10 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5991.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery Ala., Jan. 26, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the Clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March 5th, 1887, viz: Asa J. Rolinson, Homestead 18106, for the se¼ of the ne ¼ and the ne ¼ of se ¼, sec. 24, township 20 n, range 12 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William Roberts, Wm. Robuck, Wm. Klinner and Wm. H. Foshee, Jr., all of Dixie, Ala.

jan27 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5962.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 19, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court, or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., March 8th, 1887, viz: Isaac M. Deason, Homestead, 11877, for the e ½ of the se¼ and se ¼ of sw ¼, and sw ¼ of se ¼, sec 2, township 20 N, range 13 E. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said lands, viz: John H. Gray, Mac D. Gray, William I. Mullins and Joseph Popwell, all of Kincheon, Ala.

jan20* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5969.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 20, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March, 5th, 1887, viz: Elijah B. Wyatt, Homestead application, No. 16689, for the e ½ of se ¼, sec. 24, township 22, range 15 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: Redding E. Jones, Andrew J. Peters, Monroe J. Parish and Moses Bater, all of Clanton, Ala.

jan27* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

TRESSLAR,
Artistic Photographer
10 COURT SQUARE,
Montgomery.
Life Size Photographs a Specialty.
Photograhs, on Silk, Satin and Linen.
Photographs on watch dials.
Enameled Photographs.
All Sittings made Instantaneously
Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged.
☞ Correspondence solicited. ☜
[jan21-tf]

BANDMAN & CO.,
Wholesale Grocers,
P. O BOX 251,
1st Avenue, bet. 18th and 19th Streets,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
jan 13 6m

STOP AT
Morris Avenue Hotel,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
Corner Morris Avenue and 20th Street
ELYTON LAND CO. BUILDING.
HUGH KIRKMAN, PROPRIETOR.
Splendid rooms, well ventilated and elegantly furnished. Rates reasonable.

Money to Loan!
I am prepared to negotiate mortgage loans on farming lands in Chilton county in sums of three hundred dollars and upwards. Rates cheap and negotiations speedily concluded. Apply to or correspond with
H. L. WILLIAMS,
oct7 Att'y at Law, Wetumpka.

MARRIAGE GUIDE
250 PAGES. Illustrated, in Cloth and Gilt Binding, 50c. money or stamps. Same, paper cover, 25c. This Book contains ALL the curious, doubtful or inquisitive want to know. Full of very interesting and valuable information. HEALTH, BEAUTY and HAPPINESS are promoted by its advice—who may Marry, who not, why; Medical Aid, when necessary, brought home to you. 50 Wonderful PEN PICTURES, true to life. Young or old, married or single, sick or well, should read it. Sent sealed by DR. WHITTIER, St. Louis, Mo. CUT THIS OUT AND SEND WITH ORDER.

WINTER! SPRING!
During the Season of Winter MALARIA Lurks in the System!
COLLINS
AGUE CURE
One Dose a day, taken three days in succession, each month, or when you feel badly in any way, will fully Cleanse your Blood, Remove all Bilious Secretions & Malarial Poison from your System, and Insure GOOD HEALTH IN THE SPRING.
PRICE, FIFTY CENTS PER BOTTLE.
If you are troubled with a COUGH, COLD, SORENESS in CHEST, or any Affection of Throat or Lungs, use DR. JACKSON'S
Syrup LUNGWORT & WILD CHERRY
Sold at 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 a Bottle.
If your EYES are affected in any way, use DR. JACKSON'S CELEBRATED INDIAN EYE SALVE.
Sold Everywhere at 25 cents per Box.
Send for COLLINS BROS. 'PRESENT CENTURY ALMANAC' for 1887. Mailed to any address or at any Drug Store.
COLLINS BROS. DRUG CO., St. Louis, Mo.
jun24-y

GREETING
TO THE
PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY:
E. ERSWELL,
19th STREET, BETWEEN FIRST AND SECOND AVENUE.
Birmingham, Ala.
BEGS TO ANNOUNCE THAT HE WOULD LIKE A SHARE OF YOUR PATRONAGE AND IS PREPARED TO SELL AS LOW AS ANY.
Mail orders solicited and satisfaction guaranteed. Telegraph orders promptly filled. Rooms carpeted to order. Decorating and House Furnishing a Specialty.
Largest Carpet Parlor in Alabama.
FINEST SELECTION OF FURNITURE IN THE SOUTH.
WINDOW SHADES OF NEWEST AND LATEST STYLES.
Heavy Stock of Picture Frames.
E. Erswell has the most complete stock of Carpets in Alabama Carpets, Oil Cloths, Linoleums, Mattings of all grades and in endless varieties. Office Furniture. Desks of all Styles. Book Cases in Walnut, Mahogany, &c., Wardrobe Settees, Side-Boards, Folding beds, Washstands, Extension Tables, In fact everything in the Furniture and Carpet line. Wall Papers of all Grades.
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED AND WARRANTED FIRST CLASS MATERIAL.
No shoddy goods, but genuine and honest work. Full line of Undertakers goods. Telegraph orders promptly attended to.
E. ERSWELL.
☞ Next Door to Opera House. P. O. Box 30. ☜

BAINS & PEEBLES.
(SUCCESSORS TO BAINS & HERRING.)
WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.
Mail and Express Orders Will Receive Prompt Attention.
FINE WINES AND LIQUORS A SPECIALTY.
1926 FIRST AVENUE, BETWEEN 19th and 20th STREETS,
Birmingham, Ala.
☞ Fine Stock of Chess Carley's Oils at Company's Prices. ☜
P. O. BOX 570. June 19 y

BEST GRADES OF MERCHANDISE
At JOHN GARNER'S, Clanton.
sep3-tf

T. T ASHFORD, Pres. J. E. MALAHY, Vice Pres. T. L. MCGOWAN, Sec. & Treas.
Birmingham Paint, Glass and Wall Paper Co.
Successors to
MAYBERRY & ASHFORD.
Jobbers and Retailers of
Paints, Oils, Window Glass, Plate, Sky-Light and Colored Glass, Sash, Doors, Blinds and Moulding,
Painters' and Artists' Supplies.
WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES, and CURTAIN FIXTURES.
1912 Second Avenue, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
☞ Write for Samples of Wall Paper and Estimates on Glass. jun10

MINERAL CITY TIN AND STOVE HOUSE
SECOND AVENUE BETWEEN 18TH AND 19TH STREETS,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
Pat Walsh, Manager.
A Large Line of HEATING and COOKING STOVES always on hand. All Kinds of
Tin, Sheet Iron Roofing and Job Work
DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.
☞ Orders by mail will receive prompt attention. nov 11

E. WALL. P. GIACOPAZZI.
WALL & GIACOPAZZI,
Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Commission Merchants,
Second Ave. and Twentieth St.
Birmingham, - - - Ala.
References: S. Oteri, New Orleans; Jos. Denunzio, Louisville; Buhr, Wendte & Co., Cincinnati; Underhill, Stewart & Shotta, N. Y.; Wm. D. Clarke & Co., New Orleans; Cowing & Clark, Cincinnati; A. G. Conant & Co., N. Y.; First National Bank, Birmingham, Ala.

H. H. BARCLIFT & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Grocers,
No. 2118 2d Ave. Bet. Twenty-first and Twenty-Second Sts.
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
☞ We solicit a share of the patronage of the merchants of Chilton County. Send us your orders.

CHILTON VIEW.

CLANTON, ALA., FEB. 10, 1887.

THE VIEW is published every Thursday morning, and will endeavor to cover the field of reputable country journalism. It will show no quarter to the deceitful, the immoral or the ungodly. It will always be good natured, although it can bite if necessary.

Those answering advertisements will confer a favor by mentioning this paper.

COURT CALENDAR.

Chancery—Friday after the first Mondays in April and October.

Circuit—Fourth Monday in March, and fifth Monday after the fourth Monday in August.

Commissioners'—Regular term second Monday in February and August, and first Monday in April and November. Special term second Monday in July.

County—First Monday in each month.

SCHEDULE S. & N. ALA. RAILROAD. —Trains pass Clanton daily, as follows:

GOING SOUTH.

No. 1 at	5:45 a. m.
No. 3	5:37 p. m.
No. 7	4:12 p. m.
No. 51	6:00 a. m.

GOING NORTH.

No. 2	9:15 a. m.
No. 12	9:55 a. m.
No. 4	*9:48 p. m.
No. 50	6:55 p. m.

* Don't stop.

LOCAL DOTTINGS.

Damp mornings.

See new final proof notices.

Mrs. W. H. Burton is quite sick.

Send us your orders for job work.

Valentine parties are now in order.

Commissioners' court next Monday.

Comic valentines at the VIEW Stationery Stand.

Notice slight change in schedule of accommodation trains.

Considerable surveying was done around Clanton last week.

Mrs. W. L. Sampey, of this place, has returned from Tuskegee.

Mr. W. L. Weaver, of Dixie, was in to see us one day last week.

Work has been commenced on the new Methodist church.

Parties are digging for another hot well, near the old one.

Mr. F. J. Davis, of Birmingham, spent a day in Clanton last week.

See the advertisement of the Clanton Academy in another column.

S. G. DuBose, editor of the Uniontown Herald, was in Clanton last week.

Lumber is on the ground for building a new Methodist church in Jemison.

We hear of several streets to be opened soon. Clanton is still spreading herself.

We would like to have a few bushels of sweet potatoes in exchange for subscription.

Mr. S. J. Brock, of Birmingham, spent Sunday in Clanton visiting his girl and other friends.

Mr. H. A. McKinney, formerly deputy sheriff, of this county, has a like position in Birmingham.

"If at first you don't succeed try, try again;" give us a bucket on the court house well if you would ease our pain.

Rev. Mr. Briggs, our new Methodist pastor preached two excellent sermons, to large congregations, last Sabbath.

Mr. Chas. Hannon has accepted a position at Tate's Mill near Birmingham and has gone to fill the same. Success to thee Charles.

Judge Clark, of the 2nd judicial circuit, will exchange places with Judge Lapsley and preside over the next term of our circuit court.

Misses Sydney and Fannie Pitts, have returned to their home in Verbena, from Tuskaloosa, where they have been attending school.

Quite a number of the teachers of the public shools were in Clanton Saturday to meet County Superintendent of Education Acree, and draw their pay.

We have to inform some of our correspondents this week that we reserve the [illegible] reject all communications of a personal nature liable to create ill feeling.

We regret to see so many of our young men leaving Clanton for the larger cities. We hope however that their places, made vacant here by their departure, will be well filled by the boys who remain. Every time any one leaves, who holds a good position, it affords those still here a better opportunity to rise. By taking their places and filling them better if possibly, than they were filled by the former party.

Gretna Green.

MARRIED—In LaGrange Ga., on the 27th ult., Miss Mollie Gulledge to Mr. H. B. Oliver, both of Verbena, Ala.

The news of the above happy union reached us last week. The parties to the affair were not opposed by relatives but desiring to rid themselves of the formalities of a fashionable wedding, and to add romance to solemnity, they boarded a train for LaGrange and were quietly married in that city.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. F. A. Gulledge, an ex-Coosian, and is a highly accomplished and beautiful young lady.

The groom is also a native of Coosa and only for a few years has been a resident of Chilton. He is a stirring, popular young man, with splendid business facilities and bids fair to make his mark in the commercial world.

We extend hearty congratulations, and throw after them the most extensively worn old shoe within our command.—Rockford Enterprise.

For Sale.

Owing to ill health I will sell at my residence in town 29, range 28, west, according to goverment survey, one crushed-strawberry colored cow, aged about 9 or 2 years more or less. She is a good milkster, and is not afraid of the cars—or anything else. She is a cow of undaunted courage and gives milk frequently. To a man who does not fear death in any form she would be a great boon. She is very much attached to her home at present—by the ties of a rope, but she will be sold for the reason above given for $11. She is ¼ short-horn, ¾ hyena. Purchaser need not be identified. I will also throw in a double-barrelled shot gun which goes with her. In May she generally goes away somewhere for a few days and returns with a tall, red calf, with long wabbly legs. Her name is Rose, and I would prefer to sell her to a non-resident. For any other information apply within.

BILL NYE.

The index to your town is the newspaper published therein, consequently every business man of any kind should have an advertisement of his business in it. No matter how small it may be, though the larger the better, it will pay you more interest on the money invested than any other investment you can make. It may come in such an indirect way that you will not attribute it to its correct source, nevertheless it is the newspaper that is attracting attention to your town and causing people to move in here, which brings you trade and puts money in your pockets. And now in order to support that paper, in such a manner that the proprietors will not have to live on a credit, come up and patronize it by advertising in it to the amount of five, ten, fifteen, twenty, thirty, forty, fifty dollars or more a year and keep it here to blow and boom your town and county. We wait to see how many of our business men will give us an advertisement for our next issue.

Clanton Academy.

The public school time having expired, the Academy is now open and under control of Prof. R. E. R. Hicks, with very low rates of tuition. The public school under his control had the largest attendance of any school in this place heretofore, and we predict for the rest of the session much success for both pupils and teachers.

We have three new organs for sale cheap for cash. They are now in the factory and will be shipped to any point desired by the purchaser. One Estey and two of the Chicago Cottage Organs. Come and see or write us before purchasing elsewhere.

Suppose our courthouse was to catch on fire with no bucket attached to the well near by. We would be compelled to "chuck" the old barn like structure to the bottom of the well to extinguish the flames. Then we would have to build a brick one.

Parties writing for this paper will please bear in mind that we do not publish communications unless furnished with the name of the writer, so send us your name with your communication, if you want it inserted.

Testimony in the contest case for the office of Judge of Probate, for this county, was taken in Lomax this week for the contestant. The case will probably come up at the next term of our circuit court.

OVER THE COUNTY.

News Gathered up by Our Correspondents.

Dots from Concord.

The weather has been quite gloomy this week.

The family of Mr. J. W. Reynolds is quite sick.

The farmers are busy sowing oats.

A child of Mr. Reynolds, of Montevallo, came near being burned to death last week, by standing to near the fire.

Miss Lucy Meredith spent last Sunday at her home in Montevallo.

This part of the county is on a boom. The land is selling for $25 per acre and going up.

PEACEFUL BOY.

Cooper's Station Dots.

There is a good deal of sickness in this community.

Cooper's Station seems to be on rising ground. We understand there will be a large saw mill in operation in a few days, run by Mr. Wm. Wright.

Mr. W. A. Goodson has moved his new stock of goods into the Dennis store house.

The farmes are busy preparing for the coming crop.

Mr. F. R. McCary is running his tan yard this year.

We would like to encourage Mr. Pritchett with his rice mill. It would be a good thing for Chilton county if there was a good rice mill at Clanton, as it would be so convenient for the farmers of Chilton.

SUBSCRIBER.

Bivings, Duke & Co's Mills.

Mrs. A. E. Bivings returned home last Friday after spending a week in Birmingham with her sister Mrs. McCants.

The public school at this place closed last Friday. Miss Smith deserves much credit for the way the children stood their examinations and the speeches that were made at the close. Prizes were offered for the greatest No. of perfects and good deportment, the following are the names of those who received them: 1st grade, Bessie Bivings; 2rd grade, Lizzie Taylor and Laura Bivings; 3rd grade, Mack Gray; good deportment, Hosey Hall.

Mrs. O. A. Duke, and daughters, came out to attend the examination and seemed much pleased with the improvements in the children.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bivings have gone on a visit to relatives at Blount Springs.

Maj. J. M. Bivings went up to Birmingham last Monday on a business trip. OLD MAID.

Stanton Puffs.

Married, near Stanton, Feb. 6th, by Eld. W. J. Ruddick, Mr. James Sims to Miss Fannie Roberts.

We hear that Mr. Hernandez, who recently purchased an interest in Squire Kings plantation, contemplates opening a dairy and truck farm.

Mr. Wash Lodge has returned from Lomax and will resume business with his brother at Needmore, on the G. & C. L. R. R.

Our progressive citizens will petition the next commissioner's court for an order to open a public road directly across Mulberry Creek, which will make a trip to Clanton two miles shorter.

Eld. W. J. Ruddick's appointment at the Clanton Ford, has been changed to the 2nd Sabbath in each month, to enable him to give the 4th to Autaugaville.

The Baptist Sunday school here is very interesting. Our Baptist brethren expect to paint their church very soon.

Next Sabbath there will be services at the Presbyterian church by Rev. R. A. Lapsley pastor. 89.

The New Methodist Church.

[Intended for last week's issue.]

"The foxes have holes. The birds of the air have nests. But the son of man hath not where to lay his head." This scriptural quotation is so apropos to the congregation of the M. E. church here that I cannot refrain from using it as a caption to this article.

In the past, not the distant past either, there stood a house in the town of Clanton known by and called the Methodist church. It was an humble structure, its pretentions were meague, but it was a place where members of the M. E. church could assemble and "lay their heads." Bad company killed "old dog Tray," worse than bad management has swept our church away. Charity, oh charity, thou art no less than a freezer, a refrigerator, an icicle. Canst we then expect thee to come and build us another house? No no, not this year. I doubt not that our minister will expect ere he comes to preach for us again, we will have a church well under way of construction. But alas, he is destined to disappointment. In the kindest of feeling I will say to my brothers of the church, that I think as I did (and so expressed myself prior to the selling of the church) that it was a very poor piece of financeering to do so, and urged that the matter of moving away the old church be deferred, until at least there was a reasonable prospect of having it replaced with even as good a one. I could only submit to the inevitable, and I only fear we will all submit together to no church, for a long time, unless we devise a more tangible plan upon which to build than any I have heard of. We will have a church just so sure as time exists, but when? Brothers of the building committee have you a plan that you are reasonably assured will succeed in erecting a church, such a one as will be in keeping with our beautiful and progressive town; such a one as you are willing to hand down to posterity and say this is the kind of a house we worshipped in? If not brothers, then accept the hospitalities of that good people who constitute the Baptist church, until we can build a modern church. The greatest trouble I see in the way of our success is a want of concert of action. "United we stand divided we fall." Pull together, have but one head. It is a truthful adage, "What's everybody's business is nobody's business." Our various church committees are all ineffectual because every one feels, when he has done as much as his brother committeeman, "my skirts are clear," a criminal mistake. With a fond good night to all I will retire.

***

Newman's Southern Flower Cologne is the best. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Rheumatism and Neuralgia Cured in 2 Days.

The Indiana Chemical Co. have discovered a compound which acts with truly marvelous rapidity in the cure of Rheumatism and Neuralgia. We guarantee it to cure any and every case of acute Inflammatory Rheumatism and Neuralgia in 2 Days, and to give immediate relief in chronic cases and effect a speedy cure.

On receipt of 30 cents, in two cents, stamps, we will send to any address the prescription for this wonderful compound, which can be filled by your home druggist at small cost. We take this means of giving our discovery to the public instead of putting it out as a patent medicine, it being much less expensive. We will gladly refund money if satisfaction is not given.

THE INDIANA CHEMICAL CO.,
Crawfordsville, Ind.

Clanton Academy.

CLANTON, CHILTON CO., ALA.

The course of instruction is divided into three departments, Primary, Junior and High School.

RATES OF TUITION:

Primary Department............$1.50
Junior "............2.50
High School "............3.50

Tuition payable monthly IN ADVANCE.

Public examinations of the pupils of the school will be held at the close of each session, but exhibitions will not be had at any time.

Board can be obtained by pupils of the school in private families in Clanton at very moderate rates.

For further information address
R. E. R. HICKS,
feb10] Principal.

FARMER'S TAKE NOTICE!
When You Come to Town to buy Goods, Call at
R. P. Wooley & Co.'s Cheap Cash Store!
Next to the Railroad on North side of Main Street, Clanton.
—DEALER IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE.
[sep6-4]

MONTGOMERY FURNITURE COMPANY.
—DEALERS IN—
Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Looking Glasses, Lounges, Hall Racks, Wardrobes, Chairs, Safes, Side Boards, Cradles, Cribs, Baby Carriages, Spring Beds, Mattresses, Refrigerators, Pianos, Organs, Carpets,
And All Kinds of Furniture!
sep2 y A. C. ROGERS, Manager,
210 Bibb Street, Wharton's Old Stand Next to McDonald's Opera House.

FURNITURE AND WALL PAPER FOR EVERYBODY!
OUR STOCK OF FURNITURE, WINDOW SHADES, LACE CURTAINS, WALL PAPER, SPRING BEDS, AND MATTRESSES IS NOW COMPLETE.
Anybody in need of the above articles will find it to their interest to look at our immense stock. We guarantee everything we sell, and sell it cheaper than anybody in this State.
SQUARE DEALING IS OUR MOTTO!
sept 15-6 B. WOLFF & BRO., Montgomery.
20 Commerce and Corner Court and Coosa Streets.

This space is reserved by
A. J. BROOKS
AT VERBENA, ALA.,
FOR FUTURE ADVERTISING
☞WATCH IT.☜

JUST RECEIVED AT
S. E. HIRSCHER'S
21 Dexter Ave., Montgomery,
An endless variety of New Novelties in HOLIDAY GOODS, and placed before our patrons for inspection. You are cordially invited to call and see us. HEADQUARTERS FOR EVERYTHING IN THE MUSIC LINE. Agency world renowned
WEBER, DECKER BROS., STIEF and KRANICH & BACH PIANOS.
☞ Sold on Easy Terms. Prices the Lowest in the State. [nov 18 3]

SHAW & DAVIN,
Machinery & Mill Supplies,
—MORRIS AVENUE AND 22D STREET.—
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
ENGINES, BOILERS, SAW MILLS, CORN MILLS, SHINGLE MACHINES, CORN MILLS, SUGAR MILLS,
COTTON GINS, COTTON PRESSES, PULLEYS, SHAFTING, BELTING, and MACHINISTS' SUPPLIES.
Largest Stock in the State.
Write for Circulars and Prices. P. O. Box 808. [july8]

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT
THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.
FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE.
☞ CURES—Diphtheria, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Bleeding at the Lungs, Hoarseness, Influenza, Hacking Cough, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Chronic Diarrhoea, Kidney Troubles, and Spinal Diseases. Pamphlet free. Dr. I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass.

PARSONS' MAKE NEW, RICH BLOOD. PILLS
These pills were a wonderful discovery. No others like them in the world. Will positively cure or relieve all manner of disease. The information around each box is worth ten times the cost of a box of pills. Find out about them and you will always be thankful. One pill a dose. Illustrated pamphlet free. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25c. in stamps. Dr. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., 22 C. H. St., Boston.

MAKE HENS LAY
[illegible]

TROY STEAM LAUNDRY,
Nos. 17 & 19 N. Lawrence Street,
MONTGOMERY, ALA.
P. O. BOX 282.
☞ Orders by mail are solicited and will receive prompt attention.
J. W. GUE, Proprietor.

BRICK WORK
J. M. DAWSON,
CLANTON, ALA.
Is prepared to do all kinds of brick work in the best style. The patronage of the public solicited.
feb15-tf]

Clanton Barber Shop
—BY—
MEREDITH CANN,
Who is prepared to do all work in the tonsorial line. Hair dressing and shaving in the best style. Prices low.

A. W. KEY & CO.,
Manufacturers' State Agents for
Engines, Saw Mills,
BOILERS,
—AND—
General Machinery.
P. O. Box 741,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Nabers & Morrow,
Wholesale Druggists,
FIRST AVENUE,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
MEDICINES,
Fine Wines, Liquors,
Oils, Etc.
☞ Agents for Chess Carley & Co.'s Oils. [june 10]

J. M. Hutchason's
BOARDING, LIVERY
—AND—
SALE STABLES.
Select Dray and Plantation Mules constantly on hand.
Draying and Hauling Promptly Attended to
Always ready to take Contracts for filling in Dirt
Moving Stone, Engines, Boilers, Machinery and other heavy hauling.
RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS AND DAMAGE.
Satisfaction Guaranteed. Handsome Carriages and Double Teams, with or without Drivers.
☞MONTGOMERY STABLES,☜
Lawrence Street, Opp. P. O.,
Telephone 446. jan1y

A FINE
FLORIDA TONIC!
MR. FOSTER S. CHAPMAN,
One of the landmarks of the Georgia Drug trade, now of Orlando, Florida, writes:
"I can hardly select a single case of the many to whom I have sold "Guinn's Pioneer Blood Renewer," but what have been satisfied, and I find it the best remedy for all skin diseases I have ever sold, and a Fine Florida Tonic.
FOSTER S. CHAPMAN,
Orlando, Florida.
A Certain Cure for Catarrh!
A SUPERB
FLESH PRODUCER & TONIC!
Guinn's Pioneer Blood Renewer
Cures all Blood and Skin Diseases. Rheumatism, Scrofula, Old Sores. A perfect Spring Medicine.
If not in your market it will be forwarded on receipt of price. Small bottles $1.00, large $1.75.
Essay on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free.
MACON MEDICINE COMPANY
may13-y] Macon, Ga.
GUINN'S PIONEER BLOOD RENEWER

SMITH'S BILE BEANS
CURE Biliousness; Sick Headache in Four hours. One dose relieves Neuralgia. They cure and prevent Chills & Fever, Sour Stomach & Bad Breath. Clear the Skin, Tone the Nerves, and give Life & Vigor to the system. Dose: ONE BEAN. Try them once and you will never be without them. Price, 25 cents per bottle. Sold by Druggists and Medicine Dealers generally. Sent on receipt of price in stamps, postpaid, to any address.
J. F. SMITH & CO.,
Manufacturers and Sole Props., ST. LOUIS, MO.
feb25-6

Catarrh cured, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal Injector free. For sale by M. J. Green.

Thompson, Francis & Chenoweth,

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA,

—DEALERS IN—

HARDWARE,

Sash, Doors and Blinds, Paints, Oils and Glass, Cement and Plaster, Mantels and Grates, and a complete line of Cooking and Heating Stoves.

SOUTHERN BUSINESS COLLEGE.

No. 407½ W. Jefferson St., Next Door below Masonic Temple.

Louisville, - - - Kentucky.

NO TEXT BOOKS USED.

Book-Keeping, Penmanship, Commercial Arithmetic, Short Hand, Type Writing, &c.

We guarantee to teach more real, practical Book-keeping, Commercial or Business Calculations, more practical ideas about business in general in two to four months than any other Business College in this section can in twelve months.

We teach forms of book-keeping (actual forms used in business) not taught in any other Business College in this section.

No Scholar Has Ever Completed Our Entire Course and Left us Dissatisfied.

For Circulars call at College or address,

BEN. C. WEAVER, Principal.

NEW GOODS! NEW GOODS!

B. WELLMAN'S

"LOUISVILLE CLOTHING HOUSE"

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.

—DEALER IN—

Fine Clothing and Gent's Furnishing Goods

Bottom Prices at Last!

"The best Goods for the Least Money," is the motto of this house, and I am now selling an Immense Stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS at the Lowest Cash Prices.

BLOOM,

The Tailor, of Montgomery, Alabama,

—DOES—

Dyeing, Scouring, Cleaning and Repairing

Of Gents' and Ladies' garments of all colors.
Orders by Mail or Express will receive prompt attention.
Prices to suit the times. Work Guaranteed.

No. 5 Court Street, Upstairs, - - Opposite Dollar Store.

sep14 '86-1y

BRYANT AND STRATTON.

THE LOUISVILLE

BUSINESS COLLEGE,

Cor. Third & Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.

BOOK-KEEPING, BANKING, PENMANSHIP, SHORT-HAND, TYPE-WRITING, ARITHMETIC, &c.

No Text Books or Manuscripts copied and recopied by students. Has the largest honest indorsement as to true merit. Graduates have no trouble in obtaining situations.

HOME STUDY. Instruction given by mail. Improve your spare hours and obtain a practical education.

ADDRESS COLLEGE AS ABOVE.

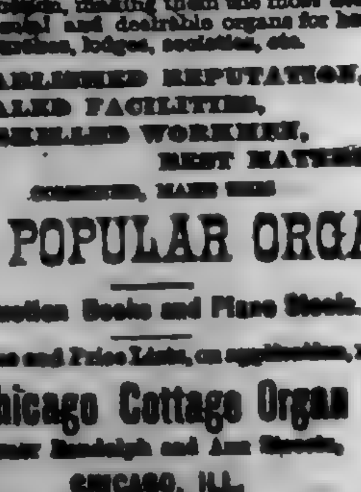
[mar18-1y

THE

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.

It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.



OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.

EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

These excellent Organs are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty in finish, perfect construction, making them the most attractive, ornamental and desirable organs for homes, schools, churches, lodges, societies, etc.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,
UNEQUALED FACILITIES,
SKILLED WORKMEN,
BEST MATERIAL,
COMBINED, MAKE THIS

THE POPULAR ORGAN

Instruction Books and Piano Stools.

Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, free.

The Chicago Cottage Organ Co.
Corner Randolph and Ann Streets,
CHICAGO, ILL.

HEADACHE

and all Bilious Complaints are relieved by taking

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS

Purely Vegetable; No Griping. Price 25c. All Druggists.

L & N
(LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.)

THE GREAT

Through Trunk Line

Between the Cities of CINCINNATI, LEXINGTON, LOUISVILLE, EVANSVILLE, ST. LOUIS, And the Cities of NASHVILLE, MEMPHIS, MONTGOM'Y, MOBILE, and N. ORLEANS

Without Change and with Speed Unrivaled

SHORTEST AND QUICKEST ROUTE

From New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery, to

NORTH, EAST & WEST

PULLMAN CARS Without change to Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, with but one change to all

NORTHERN AND EASTERN CITIES.

THROUGH COACHES

From Chattanooga and Nashville to St. Louis, connecting direct for Cities in the Northwest.

EMIGRANTS Seeking homes on the line of this road will receive special low rates.

See Agents of this Company for rates, routes &c., or write C. P. ATMORE, G. P. & T. A. Louisville, Ky.

jan20-6m

A COMPLETE STOCK of Fancy Stationery, and everything usually kept in a Stationery Establishment, is

ALWAYS ON HAND

and For Sale at City Prices at the

VIEW

STATIONERY STAND.

SHOVING THE QUEER.

Hon. Wm. M. Evarts's Early, but Innocent Experience With a Forged Check.

"Do you know," said a prominent member of the bar the other day, as he watched Senator William Maxwell Evarts sauntering along through the street, "that the Senator's first large fee as a lawyer didn't do him a bit of pecuniary benefit?"

The reporter didn't know it.

"Well, it's rather a good story," the lawyer said, "and as few lawyers even remember it, it can be told without any fear of the chestnut annunciator. The incident occurred in 1842, when Evarts was only 24 years old, and a slim young lawyer with an old-fashioned choker collar, and his interrogative forefinger just beginning to be a noticeable part of his practice. He was then a criminal practitioner, and giving glimpses of that peculiar mastery of sentences of all sizes which has kept pace with the effective use of his forefinger.

"Monroe Edwards, a very skillful and conscientious penman had forged a check, got caught, and hired young Evarts to save him from Sing Sing. The trial came on on June 6, and lasted six days. The future Senator stabbed at witness after witness with his deadly forefinger interrogatories, and finally appealed to the jury for his clients acquittal. It was a marvelous speech, full of fire and impetuosity of youthful enthusiasm. It was the talk of the courts for months, and undoubtedly laid the basis of William Maxwell's fame as an advocate. But the jury freed itself from the glittering heap of brilliant sentences that young Evarts piled up on them, and found Edwards guilty. The Judge complimented Evarts, and then sent his client to Sing Sing for ten years. The prisoner complimented Evarts on his eloquence, too, and just before he walked into the Sheriff's carriage to go to the Sing Sing train gave the tall young lawyer a neat check, bearing the signature of a well-known man. It was for several hundred dollars, and William Maxwell went proudly to the bank with it after he had bade his client good-by.

"'No good,' said the bank cashier, when Evarts handed it up for deposit.

"'Why?' cried young William Maxwell in amazement.

"'The signature is a forgery, sir,' the cashier responded.

"It is related that this was the only occasion in his lifetime that, given a chance to use some vigorous and impressive sentences, William Maxwell Evarts let the opportunity slip. He simply stared at the check in silence."

Keeping Sheep or Cows.

In considering the profit derived from keeping cows or sheep, says Farmer Stewart, many things have to be taken into account, and, first of all the ability of the farmer to manage either. Generally speaking, one branch of business is profitable as another if both are equally well managed. A dairy of cows used for making butter which sells for 18 to 20 cents per pound may be made very profitable if the right kind of cows are kept in the right way. If 200 pounds of butter are made yearly from each cow it gives $40 yearly income, and the skimmed milk would make at least $10 worth of pork and rear a calf worth $5. This gives $55 as the yearly income from a cow. By good management a cow can be kept on three acres of land, and by soiling on one acre or a little more. For 100 acres, then, an income of $1,600 should be made, which would leave a very good profit, as other crops could be grown to pay all the cost of labor and purchased food. On 100 acres 300 sheep should be kept, and each sheep would or should bring in $1.50 for wool and $3 for a lamb. This would give an income of $1,350 from the flock and the grain raised would pay all expenses. Less labor would be required than for the cows. This seems to show that on equal conditions the cows would bring in the most money and profit, and if choice cows were kept which would make 300 pounds of butter yearly and the butter could be sold for 30 or 40 cents a pound, and the heifer calves be worth $25 each, all of which is possible, the profit of the dairy would be far greater than from the flock of sheep.

A Mean Man.

The Philadelphia News says: Old Billy W. was one of the richest men who lived some fifteen years ago, in that part of West Philadelphia called Mantua, and one of the meanest men who ever drew breath. One day he took a Lancaster Avenue car for the city, carrying in his hand a basket of superb white grapes, raised in his own greenhouse. Old Billy W. sat in one corner of the car and a poor mother with a sickly child in her lap sat in the corner opposite. The child looked at the grapes wistfully, as the car rolled on, square after square. At last the old man in a tone of rasping curiosity asked the child where she was going.

"To the park, sir, to see the grass and the birds."

"Do you like grapes?"

"Yes, sir," and the pale little face brightened up as the child half rose from her mother's lap.

The old man lifted up his basket of luscious fruit and plucking one grape from a gigantic bunch, gave it to the child.

The rest of the passengers said nothing, but the way they looked at the old man would have split a stone post.

AT a Christmas tree at one of the colored churches in Elberton, Ga., as but few of the members could read or write, they selected a girl who had been to school to write the names on the presents. When they were distributed and the names called out, the assembly was greatly surprised to find that all the handsomest and most valuable presents had on them the name of the girl that did the writing. An indignation meeting was held, and a redistribution was had.

Archdeacon Farrar says that "in India the English have made one hundred drunkards for one Christian."

The Effects of Mental Exhaustion.

Many diseases, especially those of the nervous system, are the products of daily renewed mental exhaustion. Business avocations often involve an amount of mental wear and tear very prejudicial to physical health, and the professions, if arduously pursued, are no less destructive to brain and nerve tissue. It is one of the most important attributes of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, that it compensates for this undue loss of tissue, and that it imparts new energy to the brain and nerves. The rapidity with which it renews weakened mental energy and physical vitality is remarkable, and shows that its invigorating properties are of the highest order. Besides increasing vital stamina, and counteracting the effects of mental exhaustion, this potential medicine cures and prevents fever and ague, rheumatism, chronic dyspepsia and constipation, kidney and uterine weakness and other complaints. Physicians also commend it as a medicinal stimulant and remedy.

A DESPERATE FIGHT.

It is Made at Night With a Savage Loup-Cervier.

"When I was a boy," said Judge Poland to a newspaper reporter, "the woods in Vermont were mighty thick and the settlers were few. At that time the woods were full of catamounts or loup-cervier—'loo sevee,' the hunters called them—and the farmers had great to do to keep the fierce beasts from carrying off their sheep and killing their cattle. A loup-cervier is pretty nearly as big as a mastiff, as fierce as a tiger, and as strong as a lion, and is altogether about as uncomfortable a creature to deal with as ever lived. My father had with him on his farm then a man named Jonas Shepherd, a fellow of prodigious strength and such great courage that I don't believe he ever knew the sensation of fear. My father had not lost much by the loup-cerviers, because he had kept his stock securely closed in a strong shed, which none of the prowling beasts had yet succeeded in breaking into. The house stood on the edge of the clearing, and back of it for miles and miles there was nothing but the mountains and woods. One night the family had all gone to bed except Shepherd, who sat up by the big pine fire shelling corn with a jack-knife stuck in a log of wood. All of a sudden he heard a crash from the cattle shed and a big noise among the cattle. He dashed out in his shirt-sleeves and found that an enormous loup cervier, the biggest of his kind ever seen in the country, had broken in the roof of the shed and was in among the sheep.

"As soon as he heard Shepherd approaching he jumped to the roof of the shed and, crouching for a moment, sprang through the air for the intruder. Shepherd jumped aside and the big cat landed harmlessly on the ground. In an instant he was up again and a furious battle between the man and the savage brute began. Shepherd had a knife, and for a while he tried to make it reach a vital spot, while the 'loo' screamed and bit and tore its tremendous claws through the man's flesh. The noise of the fight awakened the rest of the family and father, grabbing up a pine torch from the fire, ran out of the house. He was just in time to see a curious spectacle. Shepherd, without a stitch of clothing on and covered from head to foot with blood, was holding the screaming, struggling 'loo' by the throat and heels high above his head, and running as fast as he could towards the woods. We all dashed after him, and were just in time to see the end of the contest. Shepherd ran into the brook until he was in up to his waist, and then plunged the ferocious brute in and out of sight. There was a tremendous struggle for a few minutes, during which Shepherd's blood died the brook red, and then everything was still. Then Shepherd came out, dragging the drowned body of the 'loo' after him. We got him to bed as soon as we could and did everything possible to relieve him, but it was more than three months before he was able to stir, and he never quite recovered from his injuries. My father said he counted more than 200 distinct wounds on his body. Old hunters said that if he had'nt had sense enough to drown the brute he would have been killed sure. The fight took place where one of the finest churches in New England stands to-day."

A Frugal Mind.

"Shall I vind de clock, fadder?" asked Isaac Abramstein, as he shut up for the night.

"No, Yawcob; peesness vas too pad. Choost let it schtop, Yawcob, und ve'll save de vear unt tear on de veels."

EX-MAYOR LATROBE, Baltimore, Md., says the best cough medicine is Red Star Cough Cure. Dr. Samuel K. Cox, D. D., of Washington, D. C., after a careful analysis, pronounced it purely vegetable, and most excellent for throat troubles. Price, twenty-five cents a bottle.

PASSENGER—What's the matter? We're running a little too fast, ain't we? Conductor—Yes, sir; the fireman's run ahead to chase a cow off the track and the engineer crowded on a little more steam in order to keep up with him.

As the greatest pain-cure, St. Jacobs Oil is recommended by public men of America and other countries. Hon. Ellis Flint, Life Senator of the Dominion Parliament, Canada, found it to act like a charm.

"I've been on this road ten years," said a conductor on a "through line" railroad to a passenger who was complaining bitterly of the slow time, "an' I know what I'm talking about." "Ten years, eh! said the passenger. "What station did you get on at?"

"No Physic, Sir, in Mine!"

A good story comes from a boys' boarding school in "Jersey." The diet was monotonous and constipating, and the learned Principal decided to introduce some old-style physic in the apple-sauce, and await the happy results. One bright lad, the smartest in school, discovered the secret mine in his sauce, and pushing back his plate, shouted to the pedagogue, "No physic, sir, in mine. My dad told me to use nuthin' but Dr. Pierce's 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets,' and they are doing their duty like a charm!" They are anti-bilious, and purely vegetable.

A spring mattress like a spring chicken, is in season all the year round.

If Sufferers from Consumption, Scrofula, Bronchitis and General Debility will try SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, they will find immediate relief and permanent benefit. The Medical Profession universally declare it a remedy of the greatest value and very palatable. Read: "I have used Scott's Emulsion in several cases of Scrofula and Debility in children. Results most gratifying. My little patients take it with pleasure."—W. A. HULBERT, M. D., Salisbury, Ill.

For a man to be efficient, like a cable car, he mustn't lose his grip.

"Hello!" we heard one man say to another, the other day. "I didn't know you at first, why! you look ten years younger than you did when I saw you last." "I feel ten years younger," was the reply. "You know I used to be under the weather all the time, and gave up expecting to be any better. The doctor said I had consumption. I was terribly weak, had night-sweats, cough, no appetite, and lost flesh. I saw Dr. Pierce's 'Golden Medical Discovery' advertised, and thought it would do no harm if it did no good. It has cured me. I am a new man because I am a well one."

Heathen are the people who don't know enough about religion to fight over it.

IN another column of this issue will be found an entirely new and novel specimen of attractive advertising. It is one of the neatest ever placed in our paper, and we think our readers will be well repaid for examining the supposed display letters in the advertisement of Prickly Ash Bitters.

Motto for a corset factory—We have come to stay.

How Women Would Vote.

Were women allowed to vote, every one in the land who has used Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" would vote it to be an unfailing remedy for the diseases peculiar to her sex. By druggists.

When love is blind, marriage is a successful oculist.

YOU CAN GET a $3 Family Story Paper one year, postage paid, for $1.58. Sample copy free. Address THE CHICAGO LEDGER, Chicago, Ill.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers. Send for Pamphlet on Female Diseases, free, securely sealed. Dr. J. B. Marchisi, Utica, N. Y.

If afflicted with sore eyes use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye-water. Druggists sell it at 25c per bottle.

Best, easiest to use and cheapest. Piso's Remedy for Catarrh. By druggists, 50c.

Yes, He Drank Beer.

The fact that New York city consumes 6,000,000 barrels of beer annually—which, being averaged, gives each man, woman and child about five barrels—and considering the further fact that there is a large proportion of non-drinking persons, especially children, suggests the idea that there are many people in that metropolis who get more than their share of the amber Teutonic beverage; and it also suggests a story about an old German brewer, who was brought in as a witness to testify as an expert whether or not beer is intoxicating. The lawyer for the defence asked:

"Do you drink much beer?"

"Vell, I trink me a glass aboud efery ten minnid."

"Yes. Well, do you find it intoxicating?"

"Nein."

The judge then asked a question:

"How much beer do you drink every day, sir?"

The brewer looked up with a somewhat puzzled expression, as if he had been plied with a problem impossible of solution, and finally blurted out:

"Vat you mean, shudge? Kegs?"

Dressed Poultry.

"What does this mean, Mrs. Wilkison?" asked the new boarder at the Christmas dinner. "Did this turkey wear a shirt?"

"What do you mean, Mr. Brown?" returned the landlady severely.

"Here is a shirt button in the stuffing; and I merely wanted to know if it belonged to the bird," said Brown, carefully placing the button at the side of his plate.

"Now I think of it, Mr. Brown, it may be all right; I bought that turkey already dressed.

"WHAT does this mean?" asked a scholar who had been scanning some lines written by a friend. "Oh," said another, "it doesn't mean anything! It's poetry."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is a peculiar medicine. It is carefully prepared from Sarsaparilla, Dandelion, Mandrake, Dock, Pipsissewa, Juniper Berries, and other well-known and valuable vegetable remedies, by a peculiar combination, proportion and process, giving to Hood's Sarsaparilla curative power not possessed by other medicines.

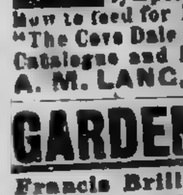
Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best blood purifier before the public. It eradicates every impurity and cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Boils, Pimples, all Humors, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Sick Headache, Indigestion, General Debility, Catarrh, Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver complaints, overcomes that tired feeling, creates an appetite and builds up the system.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Has met peculiar and unparalleled success at home. Such has become its popularity in Lowell, Mass., where it is made, that whole neighborhoods are taking it at the same time. Lowell druggists sell more of Hood's Sarsaparilla than of all other Sarsaparillas or blood purifiers. $1; six for $5. Sold by druggists. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO. Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar



"25 Years in the Poultry Yard"

33d Edition. 108 pages. How to prevent HOG and POULTRY CHOLERA, GAPES and ROUP. I wrote it as a system of practical HOG and POULTRY keeping. Symptoms and remedies for all diseases. How to feed for Eggs. 25c. in stamps. A copy of "The Cove Dale Poultry Yard," containing illus. Catalogue and Price List of 30 varieties FREE. A. M. LANG, Box 346, Cincinnati, O.

GARDEN SEEDS Catalogues Mailed Free. Francis Brill, HEMPSTEAD, LONG ISLAND, N. Y.

WORK FOR ALL. $30 a week and expenses paid. Outfit worth $5 and particulars free. P. O. VICKERY, Augusta, Maine.

A Drawing Lesson.

A teacher of drawing, who advertised, was called on by young Jenks recently. Says Jenks: "I see you give lessons in drawing. I would like to learn how it's done."

"I should be glad to teach you, and will give you the first lessons now. What would you like to try?"

"If it's all the same to you, suppose you show me how to draw a Havana Lottery prize, for the first thing."

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficent influence of

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

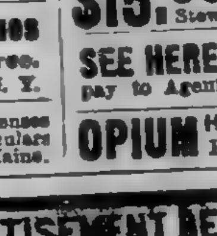
It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health.

It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young. As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

SOUTHERN SEED for SOUTHERN SOIL

Being desirous of having some of our seed planted in every garden in the South, and knowing, as we do, there are no purer or better stocks offered in the United States than ours, if you will send us $1.00 we will send to any address thirty papers of our regular size packets of Garden Seed (your own selection) and a quarter pound of Pride of Georgia Melon Seed. Southern Seed Company, Seed Growers, Macon, Ga. Send for our price list of all varieties of field and garden seed.

DO YOU WANT A DOG



DOG BUYERS' GUIDE. Colored plates, 100 engravings of different breeds, prices they are worth, and where to buy them. Mailed for 15 Cents. ASSOCIATED FANCIERS, 237 S. Eighth St. Philadelphia, Pa.

WE WANT YOU! a live energetic man or woman needing profitable employment to represent us in every county. Salary $75 per month and expenses, or a large commission on sales if preferred. Goods staple. Every one buys. Outfit and particulars Free. STANDARD SILVERWARE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

PENSIONS, Officers' pay, bounty procured; deserters relieved. 21 years' practice. Success or no fee. Write for circulars and new laws. A. W. McCormick & Son, Washington, D.C.

OPIUM HABIT absolutely cured. NOT A PARTICLE PAIN or self-denial. Pay when cured. Handsome book free. DR. C. J. WEATHERBY, Kansas City, Mo.

THURSTON'S IVORY PEARL TOOTH POWDER Keeping Teeth Perfect and Gums Healthy.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Address BREWSTER'S SAFETY REIN HOLDER, Holly, Mich.

Pensions to Soldiers & Heirs. Send stamp for circulars. COL. L. BINGHAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

$15.00 Flat top No. 7 Cook Stove for $10.00 with fixtures. Send for catalogue. A. P. Stewart & Co., 69 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.

SEE HERE! Why not save one-half on 1000 useful Articles? Send for Catalogue. Big pay to Agents. CHICAGO SCALE CO., Chicago, Ill.

OPIUM Habit Cured. Treatment sent on trial. HUMANE REMEDY CO., LaFayette, Ind.

ELY'S CREAM BALM

I have used two bottles of Ely's Cream Balm and consider myself cured. I suffered 20 years from catarrh and catarrhal headache and this is the first remedy that afforded lasting relief.—D. T. Higginson, 145 Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.

A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable to use. Price 50 cts. by mail or at druggists. Send for circular. ELY BROTHERS, Druggists, Owego, N. Y.

WHETHER YOU WANT A PIANO OR ORGAN

It will pay you to write to

PHILLIPS & CREW,
ATLANTA, GA.,

For Catalogue (free) and Prices. Mention this paper.

J. P. STEVENS & BRO.
JEWELERS.
Atlanta, Ga.

Send for Catalogue.

ATLANTA SAW WORKS.

Manufacturers of and Dealers in Saws and Saw-Mill Supplies. Repairing a Specialty. Agents for L. Power & Company's Wood Working Machinery. Large and complete stock. Write for catalogue. ATLANTA, GA.

CATARRH

In its worst form can be cured. Canadian Catarrh Cure, during 11 years' trial, has never failed to effect a cure. We guarantee a cure, or price of medicine refunded. Pamphlet sent free. We refer to Atlanta National Bank of this city, as to our standing and responsibility. Address

CANADIAN CATARRH CURE CO.,
16½ Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.

BUSINESS Education a specialty at MOORE'S BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, Ga. One of the best schools in the Country. Send for Circulars.

PILES! DR. WILLIAMS' Indian Pile Ointment will cure any case of Itching, Bleeding, Ulcerated or Protruding Piles. CURE GUARANTEED. Prepared for Piles only. [Physicians' jar, by express, prepaid, $2.50.] Price per box, 50c. and $1. Sold by druggists or mailed on receipt of price by LAMAR, RANKIN & LAMAR, Agents, Atlanta, Ga.

OPIUM and WHISKEY HABITS cured at home without pain. Book of particulars sent FREE. B. M. Woolley, M. D., Atlanta, Ga. OFFICE 65½ Whitehall Street. Mention this paper.

Young Men Can get the most Practical Business Education at Goldsmith's School of Business, 38½ S Broad St. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Circulars & Specimen of Penmanship.

ACME PULVERIZING HARROW, Clod Crusher and Leveler. The Best Tool in the world for preparing corn, cotton and other ground. D. H. NASH, Sole Manuf'r, 32 West Main St., Louisville, Ky.

Blair's Pills. Great English Gout and Rheumatic Remedy. Oval Box $1.00; round, 50 cts.

PATENTS Obtained. Send stamp for Inventors' Guide. L. Bingham, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Also good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Hay Fever, &c. 50 cents.

A. N. U.................................Five, '87

LET THIS ADVERTISEMENT BE YOUR
GOLDEN ARGOSY
SAILING FROM THE FRAGRANT FLOWER LAND OF BALMY FLORIDA FREIGHTED WITH COMFORT HEALTH & PROSPERITY.
FREE HOMES FOR ALL
THE POOR MAN'S CHANCE
THE RICH MAN'S OPPORTUNITY
20,000 ACRES FREE
LOVELY-ST-ANDREWS-BY-THE-SEA.
WEISBRODT-CIN.

FLORIDA FREE

HOMES AND ORANGE GROVES WITHOUT MONEY AND WITHOUT PRICE.

100 Orange Grove Tracts of 40 acres each.
200 " " " " 20 " "
400 " " " " 10 " "
800 " " " " 5 " "
1600 " " " " 2½ " "
500 City Building Lots.

20,000 ACRES } IN 2½ to 40-ACRE TRACTS ALL FREE.

Every Word of this Advertisement is important. Don't miss it. PROFIT BY IT. It is for YOU

In this day of deceptive advertising we desire to impress that this announcement means exactly what it says: that every applicant can secure, absolutely free of any charge for the land, one of the above divisions of valuable Florida property. No trick! No juggling of words! It means exactly that—nothing less, nothing more.

OUR METHOD! NOTE ITS FAIRNESS!

We have just issued a large sheet of detailed House Plans, illustrating nine different styles of houses, costing from $300 to $1,500 each, which this Company is prepared to build for its patrons at St. Andrew's Bay. In order to defray at least a portion of the very large cost of advertising, getting up these designs, and executing a legal Warranty Deed for each applicant, we will charge 25c. for mailing this sheet of House Plans to applicants. The plans are worth $5 to any one who will ever desire to build a house. They are all new and gotten up expressly for us. If you select from the House Plans any one that suits you, we will build the house on your property, and give you five years' time to pay for the house, charging you 5 per cent. interest on the cost of the house. If you do not care to have a house built you are not obliged to do so, you being left entirely free to decide for yourself without in any way affecting the gift of the property—the property will be given to you FREE, whether you have a house built or not. With the sheet of House Plans will be sent a numbered in a sealed envelope. Upon its receipt you will open the envelope, sign your name in full on the proper blanks, so that a Warranty Deed can be made in your name, and return the same to us. A deed for the piece of land called for by the Free Land Warrant will be immediately executed in your name. No charge of any kind will be made for the Free Land Warrant—the property will be absolutely free.

FREE LAND WARRANT

If your application is received after all the lands are disposed of, you will be so notified, and the 25c. you send for the House Plans be returned to you.

LOCAL COLONY CLUBS Five sheets of House Plans and five Free Land Warrants will be sent to any address, on receipt of $1 for the House Plans; ten for $2; fifteen for $3; twenty for $4, and twenty-five for $5. No more than twenty-five are desired from any one person acting as agent for others. Deeds will be made as the Club Agent directs when he returns the Free Land Warrants.

YOU WILL BE A TRAITOR to your own interests and to those dependent on you if you fail to avail yourself of this Great Free Land Offer. Secure it for your children.

The St. Andrew's Bay Railroad and Land Company numbers among its officers and stockholders some of the most responsible and energetic men of Florida, Ohio, and New York, who are enlisted heart, hand, and pocket book in this great enterprise. We do business through the Second National of Cincinnati, and refer to two thousand prosperous settlers at St. Andrew's. And now we await your pleasure.

Address our Northern Office, where all deeds are executed as follows:

The St. Andrew's Bay R. R. and Land Co.,
227 Main Sts., Cincinnati, O.
29 Park Row, New York.

Remit by postal-note, registered letter, or bank draft. Do not send stamps when it can be avoided.

TO BE READ IN CONNECTION WITH ABOVE.

With a broader business policy than has characterized any other southern corporation, we have steadily appreciated the relative value of land and people. We are holding for our own profit certain lands to be sold in the future; the balance is offered free as air to all who apply in time.

A little more than one year ago the St. Andrew's Bay Railroad and Land Co. acquired control of upward of 300,000 acres of the most desirable lands in the State of Florida, situated around about the beautiful bay of St. Andrew's, on the southwest Gulf coast. Before the war the town known as St. Andrew's Bay was the home of many wealthy people, who had sought the shores of the beautiful bay as a location where could be found in their highest perfection the peculiar delights of a Florida home. During the war the town was bombarded by a Federal fleet and nearly swept out of existence. The inhabitants fled, abandoning their [illegible] homes to the torch and pillage of the enemy, and not until about ten years ago was there any attempt made to reoccupy the town. This Company began active operations a little more than a year ago. Since that time there has been the most remarkable "boom" created for St. Andrew's Bay that has ever been known in the Flower State. Last winter more than 5,000 visitors from all parts of the country reached that point in quest of Florida homes. Business and dwelling houses have been erected by the hundred. Property secured at the beginning of the "boom" has been sold for from $25 to $300 for ordinary Building Lots. Every "old settler" has realized a handsome competency in disposing of a portion of his lands at fancy prices. Docks have been erected; hotels built and added to from time to time; a line of seven boats ply regularly between St. Andrew's Bay and other ports; and, altogether, the outlook promises that St. Andrew's Bay will in a few years become the most important city of the gulf coast. It possesses every natural advantage; a deep bay—more than sixty five miles long with its various branches—with deep channels to the outer gulf, at once the most charming and most useful body of water on the coast; a safe harbor for the fleets of a world. Every species of vegetable fruit, and [illegible] will grow to perfection in [illegible] the best in the [illegible] world [illegible] exhaust [illegible] to furnish cargoes [illegible] nation's fleet; carrying capacity [illegible] a climate that, [illegible] winter and summer, [illegible] absolute perfection of man, [illegible] earthly delight; free from malaria, [illegible] dry land, and beautifully located. These are among other good reasons why St. Andrew's Bay is the most desirable location for a Florida home than the State can offer, and why this company has confidence in the wisdom of its present business policy.

TAXES All taxes have been paid on these lands up to March, 1887, and this Company will pay them again at that date to December, 1887, both on its own lands and those disposed of under this Great Free Offer.

GUARANTY We will buy any property disposed of under this Great Free Land Offer that is substantially improved during the next two years, and pay at the rate of $10 per acre with the cost of the building improvements added. By that time property will be worth $100 per acre.

SHUT OUT This Great Free Land Offer is open to any body except those who are already located and are now living at St. Andrew's Bay, also residents of Pensacola and Washington and Jackson Counties, Fla.

NO CONDITIONS There are no conditions associated with this Great Free Land Offer which can not be complied with. You are not required to move there, or improve it any way, unless you do so freely, and at your own pleasure.

OUR REFERENCES.

Those who have done business with us. In one day the following list of applicants secured Orange Grove tracts, ranging in size from 2½ to 40 acres each. Space in good newspapers costs too much to give a list of all who have received free property at our hands. Each one of the following list can testify, if he is so disposed, to the absolute fidelity of our methods of business. No correspondence has passed between any of them and this office, except the necessary forms of business in applying for and receiving free property, and the names are published without consultation and merely to represent the number who received Orange Grove tracts free, at our hands, in one day's business.

M. McCann, Tyrone, Pa
W. A. Kinslow, Lockhaven, Pa
Salem Hill, Schenley, Pa
E. E. Knowles, Bradford, Pa
T. Murphy, Huntington, W. Va
J. H. Baxtresser, Middlet'n, Pa
W. L. Colvin, Beatrice, Neb
Frank A. Snell, Ansonia, Ct
A. Jarrett, Hutchinson, Minn
Lewis Brindle, Latrobe, Pa
Elmira Kepple, Latrobe, Pa
J. W. McCoach, Santa Fe, N. M
J. A. Davis, Pierce City, Mo
Jas. B. Rowley, Olathe, Kan
M. Minehan, Gurdon, Ark
Geo. A. Copp, Fisher's Hill, Va
W. F. Brewton, Cedar Plain, O
Wm. C. Sampson, Golden, Col
F. R. Riblet, Shinnston, W. Va
M. J. Lunquest, Birgham, Ala
Joel P. Keys, Colwich, Kan
Jno. A. Kramer, Bloomsb'g, Pa
And. Knudsen, Garfield, Kan
Wm. F. Birkelbach, Shaft, Pa
Moses R. Knapp, Gwynedd, Pa
H. E. Lowark, Wabasha, Minn
Mrs. J. A. Davis, Hillsboro, Ill
John [illegible], Hanna, Ind
G. P. Fox, Mt. Carmel, Pa
C. F. Strong, Gloucester, Mass
Andrew Sullivan, "
Geo. W. Davis, "
Jas. N. McMillan, Trans. Sta., 20th Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa
W. S. Davis, Highland Park, Ill
Robt. C. Morrison, Anch'ge, Ky
M. Kennedy, Wabasha, Minn
A. B. Davis, Eureka Sp'gs, Ark
Jas. Kavan, Schuyler, Neb

St. Paul, Minn.

[illegible], cor. Isabel and Starkey Streets
Geo. Steven, 3 Isabel Street

Kansas City, Mo.

J. A. Sullivan, Met. Hotel
L. E. MacKusick, 744 Oak St
Joe Field, Gen'l Delivery
Abram Mann, 716 Penn St
Wm. N. Allen, 744 Oak Street

Philadelphia, Pa.

T. McGrory, S. [illegible] N. 3d St
Wm. H. Bower, 2d & Frie Av
Jas. Brown, 717 Sansom St
J. P. Haines, 1930 Marshall St
A. B. Shipley, 318 Commerce St

Troy, N. Y.

Geo. H. Collins, 17 Fifth St
F. P. Headrick, 127 Fifth St
W. R. Chasterton, [illegible]

The Chilton View.

W. H. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors. "WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION." TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1887. NUMBER 15.

Rates of Advertising.

One Dollar per Square, of one inch space or less, for the first, and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion.

Inches.	3 m.	6 m.	12 m.
1 Inch	$5 00	$7 00	$11 25
2 Inches	7 00	[illegible]	14 00
3 Inches	10 00	15 00	22 00
4 Inches	13 00	20 00	27 00
5 Inches	15 00	22 00	30 00
¼ Column	18 00	27 00	40 00
½ Column	27 00	40 00	60 00
1 Column	40 00	60 00	100 00

Special Advertising.

Business Notices Ten Cents per line each insertion.

Obituaries and Tributes of Respect, half rates.

Announcing candidates for office, Five Dollars, strictly in advance.

Communications recommending candidates for office will be headed as advertisements and charged for accordingly.

Liberal contracts made with those advertising by the year.

☞ The money is due on all advertising after the first publication.

One Australian farmer has shot, trapped and poisoned 18,000 rabbits in the last year, and yet the pests are so numerous and destructive that he has had to give up nearly all his land.

Dr. C. Keller, of Zurich, Switzerland, thinks that spiders destroy more aphides and insect enemies of trees than do all the insect-eating birds. His views have been verified by observations on coniferous trees, a few broad-leafed trees and apple trees.

Although the best of the public lands have gone, it is encouraging to note that there still remain unsurveyed about 9,000,000 acres in Colorado, 12,000,000 in Arizona, nearly 30,000,000 in California, 49,000,000 in Dakota, 7,000,000 in Florida, 44,000,000 in Idaho, 7,000,000 in Minnesota, 39,000,000 in Nevada, 74,000,000 in Montana, 31,000,000 in Utah, more than 20,000,000 in Washington Territory, and so on.

Attorney-General O'Brien, of New York, has decided that all State laws are fully operative on the subjects of oleomargarine, etc., so long as they do not come in conflict with the laws of Congress, and says: "No substitute for dairy butter made from substances prohibited by Section 7 of Chapter 183 of the laws of 1885, as amended, imitation or semblance of natural butter can be made or sold within this State or within any other State or Territory within the United States.

Lieutenant Arthur L. Wagner, United States army, in an article in the Journal of the Military Service Institution on the military and naval policy of the United States, alludes to a statement made some years ago by General McClellan that the pension bills of the civil war would have sustained a regular army of 30,900 additional men from the Mexican war to the breaking out of the rebellion. The writer goes on then to say that the pension bills have now reached a total which would have defrayed the expenses of an army of 45,000 men from the Seminole war to the outburst of the civil strife.

At a recent church fair in Worcester, Mass., there was great curiosity to see and hear a new musical instrument, the humaniphone, which was exhibited in the large ante-room of the hall. The instrument proved to be young ladies representing the tone of the scale, arranged behind a screen, showing only their heads and shoulders. They wore white masks reaching to the mouth, and around the neck of each was suspended by a ribbon the number of the scale represented. A young lady stood in front, who, with a wand, played tunes by pointing to the one whose number was the tone wanted, which was promptly uttered. Pounds and other pieces were sung, making a unique and amusing affair.

It is not generally known that the Falls of St. Anthony, which, years ago, used to be one of the picturesque sights of the northwest, and which were visited by thousands, have been destroyed by the commercial needs of Minneapolis. In 1865 the town had a population of but 8,106. When the falls were most admired Minneapolis had no existence, was really undreamed of. They had gradually yielded to the requirements of civilization until very little is left to remind any one of their former attractiveness. I have known persons to cross the bridges over the Mississippi and, while looking where the series of cascades had been, to inquire what had become of them. Thus it is that beauty is compelled to give way to utility in the course of what we call progress.

Economy in sending cable messages is not always desirable. Relatives in New York of a lady of social celebrity in Paris, hearing she was ill, cabled that if she was not better they would straightway sail, and asked for instructions what to do. The answer came "no better." Only this and nothing more. The relatives sailed on the next steamer, and their astonishment was great upon arriving in Paris to find the supposed stricken lady giving a dinner party. The explanation, although simple, was very annoying. The cable answer had been "no," in response to inquiry whether the relatives should sail, and "better" as to the lady's health. Economy and absence of punctuation cost the "party of the second part" nearly a thousand dollars.

Including all the issues which have ever been printed the number of postage stamps of separate design which have been in actual use is less than 4,300. The first stamps were issued about the year 1840, and some of the earliest specimens are exceedingly rare, although they have never been known to bring anything like the prices which are affixed to them in the catalogues. Dealers usually keep very few of these rarer varieties on hand, and if there is any call for them they are very ready to strike a bargain with the collector after a little higgling. For example there are some stamps valued at $50 or even more, and a large number appear in the price list marked $10 and $5. If a person wishes to find the real value of a stamp he should take his collection to a dealer and try to sell it. It is safe to say he would not probably get an offer of more than ten per cent. of the catalogue price, and he would be lucky if he got even that.

THE LOT OF EARTH.

We love—the grave is deep;
We trust—our faith's denied;
Our storehouse with treasures heap—
They moulder at our side;
So, while the years pass by
We gather naught of worth,
And can but answer wearily:
"It is the lot of earth."

"Oh, mournful voice," he said.
"Wherefore thy mournfulness!
Ours ever are the sainted dead,
And near are they to bless.
Whose store in Heaven is laid
Shall never suffer dearth,
And God ne'er yet a soul betrayed—
'This is 'the lot of earth.'"

—Clare Everest.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

BY LIZZIE I. FOLSOM.

Creak, creak, went the rigging.

Whirr-r-r, went the wind through it.

Tearing and straining at the cording, and tossing the great steamer about as if it were a toy, the wind caught at the masts and made them groan and quiver, then, in sheer wantonness, gathered up a mighty wave and sent it tearing, a white sheet of foam, clear across the deck. And the passengers, most of them who were huddled together in the cabin, shivered and exchanged glances of commiseration, not devoid, in some cases, of very human fear.

Whirr-r-r went the wind; and caught, on its way, a jaunty, red, knitted cap, twirled it aloft in derision, then left it bobbing desolately about at the mercy of the waters, and prepared to give attention to further dishevelment of the wavy, dark head leaning over the bulwarks. There was a dismayed cry, and two hands grasped wildly at the empty air, returning to hold to the small, shapely head, lest it should follow.

"That's a pity! It was such a pretty hat!" said a masculine voice.

"Yes, wasn't it?" in dolorous, wind-tossed quaver.

Then they looked at each other a moment in silence, and then laughed, softly, heartily, with youth's gladness. He spoke first, quickly and positively:

"Forgive me for speaking to you, but it was such a chance. I've wanted to know you all along. My name is Neil Blake, and I live in Boston. May I talk to you? Do you mind?"

"My name is Eugenie Grant, and I live in Buffalo. I think I do not mind."

And they leaned together, clinging to the bulwarks, and watched the bobbing red cap till it was lost to view; then she pulled her water-proof hood over her curls, and they sat down in the shelter of the wheelhouse, and talked together in youthful earnestness.

Four days out from Liverpool. For four days he had been a victim to the charms of the young woman who then sat composedly in dripping waterproof beside him. He had seen her as she came on board, holding her gray skirts daintily about her, while her lace-edged petticoats peeped from beneath. He thought he had never seen a prettier figure than that outlined by the gray suit, nor softer, lovelier eyes than the ones that glanced at him, and looked away—to glance again. He had wanted so much to know her, but she had seemed shy; true, she had peeped at him from behind the floral tower in the centre of the table; she had looked at him and laughed when, the first rough day, he supported his next neighbor in gasping misery from the table, but he had found no chance to speak to her. She had become prettier upon close inspection than he had at first thought, and most distractingly so in the ill-fated red cap, from under which her eyes had shone like twin, laughing stars.

So, you may be very sure that he made the most of the episode of the cap and, leaning on one elbow, talked to her most earnestly and confidingly; he should give her no chance to escape—not, indeed, that she showed any inclination to desert her damp rope coil for the gorgeous upholstery of the salon. She seemed very contented, crossing her small feet in their rubber boots, and settling herself comfortably.

It did not take them long to grow confidential, and before they went into dinner she had the pleasing assurance that he was the only child of a father who dealt in railroads—well, perhaps not "dealt" but something as sweeping and enviable, Eugenie was sure. And he found out that she was a Vassar girl, that she really was near-sighted, though you would never believe it, and that "mamma" was always desperately sick on the water. It is doubtful if the last fact produced the regret it naturally should, and, as the days went by, it seemed to him a positive blessing that "mamma" was safely stowed away in invisibility.

Perhaps it was just as well, for otherwise, they might not have enjoyed the lovely moonlight nights that followed the stormy day; those nights when to think of sleep was sacrilege; when the whole world seemed flooded with moonbeams, soft, yellow moonbeams when the stately ship glided on, leaving behind a path of shining silver, of ripples that blinked and blinked in an ever-widening road that led straight into heaven, Eugenie said, straight to the shining stars at the distant horizon.

They sat together, night after night, in the dangerous moonbeams, and spoke to each other softly, and made of trivial things a low-voiced mystery, and her dark eyes drooped before the near, eager gaze of his brown ones. Oh! it was very well that mamma was quite an invalid! They talked of the red cap that had led to their acquaintance, but he said she looked more lovely with that soft, white affair about her head, and she was very glad he thought her lovely, and foolishly told him so. After that, perhaps, it was not strange that he talked to "Genie," and maybe, it was possible that once or twice his hand happened to lie on hers and neither of them seemed to know.

It had grown to be quite a serious thing for both by the time New York harbor was an immediate possibility; and the last night out, as they parted in their sheltered corner, he held fast both her hands, and the two shadowed heads on the deck melted into one—at any rate that is the way it looked, and Eugenie ran with hot, red cheeks to the cabin.

The next morning all was hub-bub; the bustle of disembarking; the nervous flurry of righteous desire to evade the custom officers; the collecting of mislaid luggage, all made the scene a lively one.

Eugenie was in her state-room, frantically trying to make one satchel do the work of two, when a rap at her door was followed by Neil's voice.

"Please do a favor for me," he said, in his emphatic way. "Wear this ring off the boat for me. It's very valuable: a friend sent by me for it, but I don't know"—with smiling eyes—"that I shall let him have it now. You wear it, and I'll come to your hotel to-night for it—if I must take it; but I hope—you know what, 'Genie!"

He was gone, and Eugenie stood with happy blushes on her fair face, clasping tight the small package containing the ring. Her ring, it might be, if she said so, and was there any doubt what she would say? She pressed it to her lips.

"Hurry, 'Genie," cried a querulous voice, "hurry, child!"

She started, and tore open the package with eager haste, bringing forth on the end of her finger a ring. Her face fell. What a wretched little thing! A cameo of cheapest variety, and considerably too large for her slender fingers.

"Worse than ordinary!" said Eugenie. "What does he mean by asking me to wear such a paltry affair! Well, I don't care," she decided, at last, "but he needn't have said it was very valuable," and it is greatly to be feared that Eugenie's door shut forcibly after her.

The cuckoo on the clock in the hotel parlor had just screeched for 9 o'clock when Neil ran up the stairs and tapped on the door of the parlor allotted to "J. D. Grant, wife and daughter, Buffalo."

Very handsome and eager he looked, and it is small wonder that Eugenie blushed brightly as he took her hands.

"What a swell you are!" he said, admiring the white billows of lace that fell about her, leaving bare the soft neck and rounded arms. "How much time can you give me?"

"Not much; it is time to go. But I will see you to-morrow won't I? Here is your ring; I've been afraid I should lose it, it is so large for me."

She holds it out to him. He takes it, and with it both her hands.

"Then you will keep the other, 'Genie?" in anxious inquiry.

"The other! What other?" said Eugenie.

"Why, the diamond, of course, what do you suppose?"

"The diamond!" in amazement. "There was no diamond!"

He stared a moment and then laughed.

"Oh! come now! That's a joke, and I'll laugh at it by-and-by, but just now I'm more interested in something else—in you."

"But there was no diamond, what do you mean by saying so?" in wonderment.

Neil's face flushed, and his voice was more than unusually positive—almost offensively so, Eugenie thought, as he said:

"You know perfectly well what I mean and, forgive me, but it is in rather poor taste to continue that unwelcome joke."

"I don't know what you are talking about," she replied, with dignity. "I wore your valuable ring; if there was any diamond about it I failed to see it. I shall have to wish you good evening, Mr. Blake."

"Of course I did not ask you to wear thing" in contemptuous designation of the cameo. "It was simply in the package with the other, the diamond that you do not seem able to remember."

"How dare you!" cried angry Eugenie. "You are telling a falsehood. Papa shall——" "Papa!" in elevated, hysteric voice as the door opened; "he says I have stolen a ring!" and subsided into a crushed, tearful heap on the sofa.

Papa Grant was a portly, pompous gentleman, with a great deal of gold-watch chain across a broad expanse of white vest.

Very deliberate and particular, he required that the matter should be fully explained twice by his weeping daughter, before expressing an opinion.

"You are an impudent young rascal," said Papa Grant. "Who gave you leave to address my daughter at all?"

"All I can say, sir," persisted Neil, doggedly, "is that I gave to Miss Grant"—(not 'Genie any more. Alas!)—a package containing a diamond ring, which ring she now declines to produce."

At this there was a fresh explosion of sobs from behind the handkerchief, and two high heels dug wildly into the carpet. Papa Grant swelled with offended dignity, and for a moment it looked as if Neil's chance for a safe exit were not flattering, but there was a new arrival upon the scene.

Fair and slight and delicate, but with a self-possession and sweet calmness that reduced the white vest, calmed Eugenie's sobs, and reassured Neil, all at once—the heretofore invisible mamma.

"You are sure the ring was in the package, Mr. Blake?" after a third explanation had transpired.

"It was," said Neil, firmly.

"It was not," said Eugenie, as firmly. Then they glared at each other.

"Oh, this will never do," said Mrs. Grant, in calm dismay. "Mr. Blake, I know your father, he is a gentleman. I think his son is one; it is impossible that you should try to deceive us." Neil bowed gratefully. "And it is equally impossible that my daughter should do so. There must be some mistake."

"There is not," declared the beligerents in a breath.

"There must be some mistake," repeated the mother, calmly. "Eugenie may have overlooked the ring in her hurry. Of course you are sure you did not, my dear. But it may be." She pondered a moment while Neil and Eugenie watched her breathlessly.

"If we could," she said, at last, "if we could go on the boat, before our state-room had been swept—do you think it possible, Joseph?"

He of the gold watch chain thus appealed to, sniffed contemptuously.

"Absurd! Out of the question! The whole affair is ridiculous, and comes from allowing your daughter to make indiscriminate acquaintances, against which I particularly warned you. I set the whole matter aside."

But the calm-voiced little woman was a power in the household, and, after a little, Neil was despatched for a carriage, and Eugenie to take off her pretty party-dress and bathe her tear-stained face.

Neil was very wretched as he helped Mrs. Grant into a carriage, and when Eugenie flounced by him and stared stonily, with red, angry eyes at him, he felt that he had nothing to live for, and climbed up by the driver a very abject and miserable young man.

After a great deal of driving about muddy streets, of talking, of arguing, and of loss of temper, the party found themselves at the door of the state-room Eugenie had bid a fond good-by at noon. She darted forward, ahead of the rest, and her eyes sought eagerly about its limited area. She kicked away with the tip of her shoe the pile of papers in the corner, and pounced down upon the pink jeweler's paper that had held the cameo. Her face flushed, her eyes brightened, and little dimples came and went as she drew forth from it a tiny box which, opened, sent out glittering, scintillating rays from the gem within.

The lost ring! Down under a pile of rubbish, waiting to be swept out by careless hands, had lain the little package that had caused so much heart-ache and so many tears.

"It's well I suggested coming," said Papa Grant. "I don't know how I happened to think of it. Take care of that step, Agnes," and Neil was left alone.

Left alone; with drooping head and a very real ache at his heart. And so this was the end of it all; of the moonlight nights; of the whispered words; of the clasped hands. And he must prepare to forget it all. The curving rosy mouth, the shining eyes. Forget them! it would be very hard to do.

There came a soft touch on his arm and a jaunty hat rested against his shoulder.

"Oh, Neil! How could I know the wretched ring was there? Can you forgive me? Do forgive me, and then I can forgive you. We'll not think about it any more, will we? I came back to tell you so—dear."

Then he put both arms about her, and kissed her softly before they went out into the night.

All this was a year ago.

The diamond is on Eugenie's finger now, and daily letters fly back and forth, letters long and tender, but which, with May's first flowers, will cease, for then it is their wedding-day will come.—Chicago Current.

Persian Superstitions.

There are many and curious superstitions in Persia. Without meaning to exhaust the subject I will give you some of the more peculiar ones. The "baade khadem" which is approximately rendered in English by the term of evil eye, though literally it would be translated "evil step," plays the largest part in this line. The evil eye is believed in by every body in Persia, the highest as well as the lowest. A baby is healthy and pretty. A friend of the mother admires the little one in glowing terms. That would be "baade khadem"—or evil omen—and would be taken as a diabolical design to injure the child if the phrase "Eenshallah" (may it please God) were not added to every eulogium. An old woman looks at the child from the right-hand side—evil eye again. The child stumbles early in the morning—evil eye. The father, by accident, speaks first to the baby at sunrise—evil eye. A girl, pretty, well-mannered, healthy, with a good dowry, is wedded to a man. The first business undertaking of the young benedict turns out disastrously—evil eye! Nothing could induce that man to keep his young wife. She is "baade khadem" to him, and she's got to go, willy nilly. As the divorce law is such that it virtually lies with the husband alone to keep or send away his wife, and as the ceremony itself is very simple, and requires neither time nor money, he soon gets rid of her. Nobody blames him. "She was 'baade khadem' to him," everybody says in explanation, and that's enough.

The Shah has appointed a very able and deserving man to an important position, for which his previous experience and his capacity eminently qualify him. On the same day the Shah happens to overfeed himself with lamb and raw cucumbers, and has an attack of colic. The new appointee is blamed. He is "baade khadem," and incontinently gets the sack. Every thing is judged in this way. If a man has made a fool of himself and run to too great expense in entertaining a guest, for instance, the blame is put on one of the ladies of his andaroun, on his head servant, or somebody else, and that one is made to suffer. Astrology (moonadshim), the horoscope (taleh), the rosay (tesbin) used as an oracle, and the Koran, the poets, especially Saadi and Hafiz, used in the same way play also a most important role in the life of the modern Persian. In all doubtful cases, called technically "istekharet," recourse is had to one or the other or to all of them. A man is in doubt whether to purchase a horse he desires. Dealer and customer resort to the nearest house of a mollah and the Koran is opened at random. If the eye happens to alight on such a passage as "Happy art thou, oh son of the faith, for Allah will bless thee," the purchase is effected. If not, not.

A Queer Superstition.

Perhaps the strangest fad that any has in this town, says "Halston" in the New York Times, is that of a cashier in a down town bank, who every night at 10 o'clocks walks up Fifth avenue to Forty-third street for the purpose of seeing whether or not a certain millionaire's front door has crape tied on it. For four years he has made this nightly journey. He doesn't know the millionaire. He doesn't know any reason why the millionaire's death should be imminent. Yet he has a superstition that when he discovers the crape he looks for, on that same night some great good fortune is to fall to his own lot. He has tried to shake off the feeling that sends him on this nightly walking tour. It won't shake. And, rain or shine, he goes religiously up and down the avenue at 10 o'clock every night.

A Bad Selection.

Not long ago the owner of a fine new mansion in Washington wished to give a house-warming ball. To be sure that the invitations should go all right he had the Superintendent of the carriers' department of the city Postoffice to recommend the most trustworthy carrier, and the carrier was given $25 to deliver 200 invitations outside of his regular working hours. The ball came off with about twenty guests present, and then it was found that the other persons invited had never received their cards. The carrier had spent his $25 in drink, and had thrown the box full of invitations into a vacant lot, where they were afterward found.

Women are employed as ticket agents at the stations on the Staten Island railroad.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Subject: "Are We Deluded?"

TEXT: "He made his arrows bright, he consulted with images, he looked in the liver."—Ezekiel xx., 21.

Two modes of divination by which the King of Babylon proposed to find out the will of God. He took a bundle of arrows, put them together, mixed them up, then pulled forth one, and by the inscription on it decided what city he should first assault. Then an animal was slain, and by the lighter or darker color of the liver, the brighter or darker prospect of success was inferred. That is the meaning of the text: "He made his arrows bright, he consulted with images, he looked in the liver."

Stupid delusion! And yet all the ages have been filled with delusions. It seems as if the world loves to be hoodwinked, the delusion of the text only a specimen of a vast number of deceits practiced upon the human race. In the latter part of the last century Johanna Southcote came forth, pretending to have divine power, made prophecies, had chapels built in her honor, and one hundred disciples came forth to follow her. About five years before the birth of Christ, Apollonius was born, and he came forth, and after five years being speechless according to the tradition, he healed the sick and raised the dead, and preached virtue, and, according to the myth, having deceased, was brought to resurrection!

The Delphic Oracle deceived vast multitudes of people: the Pythoness seated in the Temple of Apollo uttering a crazy jargon from which the people guessed their individual or national fortunes or misfortunes. The utterances were of such a nature that you could read them any way you wanted to read them. A General going forth to battle, consulted the Delphic Oracle, and he wanted to find out whether he was going to be safe in the battle, or killed in the battle, and the answer came forth from the Delphic Oracle in such words that, if you put the comma before the word "never," it means one thing, and if you put the comma after the word "never," it means another thing, just opposite. The message from the Delphic Oracle to the General was: "Go forth, return never in battle shalt thou perish." If he was killed, that was according to the Delphic Oracle; if he came home safely, that was according to the Delphic Oracle. So the ancient auguries deceived the people. The priests of those auguries, by the flight of birds, or by the intonation of thunder, or by the inside appearance of slain animals, told the fortunes or misfortunes of individuals or nations. The sibyls deceived the people. The sibyls were supposed to be inspired by women who lived in caves and wrote the Sibylline books afterward purchased by Tarquin the Proud. So late as the year 1830, a man arose in New York, pretending to be a divine being, and playing his part so well that wealthy merchants became his disciples and threw their fortunes into his discipleship. And so in all ages, there have been necromancies, incantations, withcrafts, sorceries, magical arts, enchantments, divinations and delusions. The one of the text was only a specimen of that which has been transpiring in all ages of the world. None of these delusions accomplished any good. They deceived, they pauperized the people, they were as cruel as they were absurd. They opened no hospitals, they healed no wounds, they wiped away no tears, they emancipated no serfdom.

But there are those who say that all these delusions combined are as nothing compared with the delusion now abroad in the world, the delusion of the Christian religion. That delusion has to-day over four hundred million dupes. It proposes to encircle the earth with its girdle. That which has been called a delusion has already overshadowed the Appalachian range on this side the sea, and it has overshadowed the Balkan and Caucasian ranges on the other side of the sea. It has conquered England and the United States. This champion delusion, this hoax, this swindle of the ages, as it has been called, has gone forth to conquer the islands of the Pacific; the Melanesia and the Micronesia and Malayan Polynesia have already surrendered to the delusion. Yea, it has conquered the Indian Archipelago, and Borneo and Sumatra and Celebes and Java have fallen under its wiles. In the Fiji Islands, where there are 220,000 people, 102,000 have already become the dupes of this Christian religion, and if things go on as they are now going on, and if the influence of this great hallucination of the ages cannot be stopped, it will swallow the globe. Supposing, then, that Christianity is the delusion of the centuries, as some have pronounced it, I propose this morning to show you what has been accomplished by this chimera, this fallacy, this hoax, this swindle of the ages.

And in the first place, I remark, that this delusion of the Christian religion has made wonderful transformations of human character. I will go down the aisle of any church in Christendom, and I will find on either side that aisle those who were once profligate profane, unclean of speech and unclean of action, drunken and lost. But by the power of this delusion of the Christian religion they have been completely transformed, and now they are kind and amiable and genial and loving and useful. Everybody sees the change. Under the power of this great hallucination they have quit their former associates, and whereas they once found their chief delight among those who gambled and swore and raced horses, now they find their chief joy among those who go to prayer meetings and churches; so complete is the delusion. Yea, their own families have noticed it—the wife has noticed it, the children have noticed. The money that went for rum now goes for books and for clothes and for education. He is a new man. All who know him say there has been a wonderful change. What is the cause of this change? This great hallucination of the Christian religion. There is as much difference between what he is now and what he once was, as between a rose and a nettle, as between a dove and a vulture, as between day and night. Tremendous delusion!

Admiral Farragut, one of the most admired men of the American navy, early became a victim of this Christian delusion, and, seated, not long before his death, at Long Branch, he was giving some friends an account of his early life. He said: "My father went down in behalf of the United States Government to put an end to Aaron Burr's rebellion. I was a cabin boy and went along with him. I could swear like an old salt. I could gamble in every style of gambling. I knew all the wickedness there was at that time abroad. One day my father cleared everybody out of the cabin except myself, and locked the door. He said: 'David, what are you going to do? What are you going to be?' 'Well,' I said, 'father, I am going to follow the sea.' 'Follow the sea! and be a poor, miserable drunken sailor, kicked and cuffed about the world and die of a fever in a foreign hospital?' 'Oh! no,' I said, 'father, I will not be that; I will tread the quarter-deck and command, as you do.' 'No, David,' my father said; 'no, David, a person that has your principles and your bad habits will never tread the quarter-deck or command.' My father went out and shut the door after him, and I said then: 'I will change, I will never swear again. I will never drink again, I will never gamble again;' and, gentlemen, by the help of God I have kept those three vows to this time. I soon after that became a Christian, and that decided my fate for time and eternity."

Another captive of this great Christian delusion! There goes Saul of Tarsus on horseback at full gallop. Where is he going? To destroy Christians. He wants no better playspell than to stand and watch the hats and coats of the murderers who are massacring God's children. There goes the same man. This time he is afoot. Where is he going now? Going on the road to Ostia to die for Christ. They tried to whip it out of him, they tried to scare it out of him, they thought they would give him enough of it by putting him into a windowless dungeon, and keeping him on small diet, and denying him a cloak, and condemning him as a criminal, and hauling of him through the streets, but they could not freeze it out of him, and they could not sweat it out of him, and they could not pound it out of him, so they tried the surgery of the sword and one summer day in the year 65 he was decapitated. Perhaps the mightiest intellect of the 6,000 years of the world's existence hoodwinked, cheated, cajoled, duped by the Christian religion. Ah! that is the remarkable thing about this delusion of Christianity, it overpowers the strongest intellects. Gather the critics, secular and religious, of this century together, and put a vote to them as to which is the greatest book ever written, and by large majority they will say "Paradise Lost." Who wrote "Paradise Lost?" One of the fools who believed in this Bible, John Milton. Benjamin Franklin surrendered to this delusion, if you may judge from the letter that he wrote to Thomas Paine begging him to destroy the "Age of Reason" in manuscript and never let it go into type, and writing afterward, in his old days: "Of this Jesus of Nazareth I have to say that the system of morals He left, and the religion He has given us are the best things the world has ever seen or is likely to see." Patrick Henry, the electric champion of liberty, enslaved by this delusion, so that he says: "The book worth all other books put together is the Bible." Benjamin Rush, the leading physiologist and anatomist of his day, the great medical scientist—what did he say? "The only true and perfect religion is Christianity." Isaac Newton, the leading philosopher of his time—what did he say? That man surrendering to this delusion of the Christian religion, crying out: "The sublimest philosophy on earth is the philosophy of the Gospel." David Brewster, at the pronunciation of whose name every scientist the world over bows his head, David Brewster saying: "O, this religion has been a great light to me, a very great light all my days." President Thiers, the great French statesman, acknowledging that he prayed when he said: "I invoke the Lord God in whom I am glad to believe." David Livingstone, able to conquer the lion, able to conquer the panther, able to conquer the savage, yet conquered by this delusion, this hallucination, this great swindle of the ages, so when they find him dead they find him on his knees. William E. Gladstone, the strongest intellect in England to-day, unable to resist this chimera, this fallacy, this delusion of the Christian religion, goes to the house of God every Sabbath, and often, at the invitation of the rector, reads the prayers to the people. O, if those mighty intellects are overborne by this delusion, what chance is there for you and for me!

Beside that, I have noticed that first-rate infidels cannot be depended on for steadfastness in the proclamation of their sentiments. Goethe, a leading skeptic, was so wrought upon by this Christianity that in a weak moment he cried out: "My belief in the Bible has saved me in my literary and moral life." Rousseau, one of the most eloquent champions of infidelity, spending his whole life warring against Christianity, cries out: "The majesty of the Scriptures amazes me." Altamont, the notorious infidel, one would think he would have been safe against this delusion of the Christian religion. Oh, no! After talking against Christianity all his days, in his last hours he cried out: "Oh, thou blasphemed but most indulgent Lord God, hell itself is a refuge if it hide me from Thy frown." Voltaire, the most talented infidel the world ever saw, writing two hundred and fifty publications, and the most of them spiteful against Christianity, himself the most notorious libertine of the century—one would have thought he could have been depended upon for steadfastness in the advocacy of infidelity and in the war against this terrible chimera, this delusion of the Gospel. But no; in his last hour he asked for Christian burial, and asks that they give him the sacrament of the Lord Jesus Christ. Why, you cannot depend upon these first-rate infidels—you cannot depend upon their power to resist this great delusion of Christianity. Thomas Paine, the god of modern skeptics, his birthday celebrated in New York and Boston with great enthusiasm—Thomas Paine, the paragon of Bible haters—Thomas Paine, about whom his brother infidel, William Carver, wrote in a letter which I have at my house, saying that he drank a quart of rum a day and was too mean and too dishonest to pay for it—Thomas Paine, the adored of modern infidelity—Thomas Paine, who stole another man's wife in England and brought her to this land—Thomas Paine, who was so squalid and so loathesome and so drunken and so profligate and so beastly in his habits, sometimes picked out of the ditch, sometimes too filthy to be picked out—Thomas Paine, one would have thought that he could have been depended on for steadfastness against this great delusion. But no. In his dying hour, he begs the Lord Jesus Christ for mercy.

Powerful delusion, all-conquering delusion, earthquaking delusion of the Christian religion. Yea, it goes on, it is so impertinent, and it is so overbearing, this chimera of the Gospel, that having conquered the great picture galleries of the world, the old masters and the young masters, as I showed in a former sermon, it is not satisfied until it has conquered the music of the world. Look over the programme of that magnificent musical festival a few years ago in New York and see what were the great performances, and learn that the greatest of all the subjects were religious subjects. What was it one night when three thousand voices were accompanied with a vast number of instruments? "Israel in Egypt." Yes, Beethoven deluded until he wrote the High Mass in D. Major. Haydn deluded with this religion until he wrote the "Creation." Handel deluded until he wrote the oratorios of "Jephthah" and "Esther" and "Saul" and "Israel in Egypt," and the "Messiah." On the closing night three thousand deluded people singing of a delusion to eight thousand deluded hearers.

Yes, this chimera of the Gospel is not satisfied until it goes on and builds itself into the most permanent architecture, so it seems as if the world is never to get rid of it. What are some of the finest buildings in the world? St. Paul's, St. Peter's, the churches and cathedrals of all Christendom. Yes, this impertinence of the Gospel, this vast delusion is not satisfied until it projects itself, and in one year gives, contributes, $6,250,000 to foreign missions, the work of which is to make dunces and fools on the other side of the world—people we have never seen. Deluded doctors—two hundred and twenty physicians meeting week by week in London, in the Union Medical Prayer Circle, to worship God. Deluded lawyers—the late Lord Cairns, the highest legal authority in England, the ex-adviser of the throne, spending his vacation in preaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ to the poor people of Scotland. Frederick T. Frelinghuysen, once the Secretary of State of the United States, an old-fashioned evangelical Christian, an elder in the Reformed Church. John Bright, a deluded Quaker. Henry Wilson, the Vice-President of the United States, dying a deluded Methodist or Congregationalist. Earl of Kintore dying a deluded Presbyterian. The cannibals in South Sea, the Bushmen of Terra del Fuego, the wild men of Australia, putting down the knives of their cruelty, and clothing themselves in decent apparel—all under the power of this delusion. Judson, and Doty, and Abeel, and Campbell, and William, and the three thousand missionaries of the cross, turning their backs on home and civilization and comfort, and going out among the squalor of heathenism to receive it, to save it, to help it, toiling until they drop into their graves, dying with no earthly comfort about them, and going into graves with no appropriate epitaph, when they might have lived in this country, and lived for themselves, and lived luxuriously, and been at last put into brilliant sepulchres. What a delusion!

Yes, this delusion of Christian religion shows itself in the fact that it goes to those who are in trouble. Now, it is bad enough to cheat a man when he is well, and when he is prosperous; but this religion comes to a man when he is sick, and says: "You will be well again after a while; you are going into a land where there are no coughs and no pleurisies and no consumptions and no languishing; take courage and bear up." Yes, this awful chimera of the Gospel comes to the poor and it says to them: "You are on your way to vast estates and to dividends always declarable." This delusion of Christianity comes to the bereft, and it talks of reunion before the throne and of the cessation of all sorrow. And then to show that this delusion will stop at absolutely nothing, it goes to the dying bed and fills the man with anticipations. How much better it would be to have him die without any more hope than swine and rats and snakes. That is all. Nothing more left him. He will never know anything again. Shovel him under! The soul is only a superior part of the body and when the body disintegrates the soul dis integrates. Annihilation, vacancy, everlasting blank, obliteration. Why not present all that beautiful doctrine to the dying, instead of coming with this hoax, this swindle of the Christian religion, and filling the dying man with anticipations of another life, until some in the last hour have clapped their hands, and some have shouted, and some have sung, and some have been so overwrought with joy they could only look ecstatic. Palace gates opening, they thought; diamond coronets flashing, hands beckoning, orchestras sounding. Little children dying, actually believing they saw their departed parents, so that, although the little children had been so weak and feeble and sick for weeks they could not turn on the dying pillow, at the last, in a paroxysm of rapture uncontrollable, they sprang to their feet, and shouted: "Mother, catch me, I am coming!"

And to show the immensity of this delusion, this awful swindle of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, I open a hospital and I bring into that hospital the death-beds of a great many Christian people, and I take you by the hand this morning, and I walk up and down the wards of that hospital, and I ask a few questions: "Dying Stephen, what have you to say?" "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." "Dying John Wesley, what have you to say?" "The best of all is, God is with us." "Dying Edward Payson, what have you to say?" "I float in a sea of glory." "Dying John Bradford, what have you to say?" "If there be any way of going to Heaven on horseback, or in a fiery chariot, it is this." "Dying Neander, what have you to say?" "I am going to sleep now—good-night." "Dying Mrs. Florence Foster, what have you to say?" "A pilgrim in the valley, but the mountain-tops are all agleam from peak to peak." "Dying Alexander Mather, what have you to say?" "The Lord who has taken care of me fifty years, will not cast me off now; glory be to God and to the Lamb! Amen, amen, amen, amen!" "Dying John Powson, after preaching the Gospel so many years, what have you to say?" My death-bed is a bed of roses." "Dying Doctor Thomas Scott, what have you to say?" "This is Heaven begun." "Dying soldier in the last war, what have you to say?" "Boys, I am going to the front." "Dying telegraph operator on the battle-field of Virginia, what have you to say?" "The wires are all laid, and the poles are up from Stony Point to headquarters." "Dying Paul, what have you to say?" "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand: I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. O Death, where is thy sting? O Grave, where is thy victory? Thanks be unto God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." O, my Lord, my God, what a delusion, what a glorious delusion! Submerge me with it, fill my eyes and ears with it, put it under my dying head for a pillow—this delusion—spread it over me for a canopy, put it underneath me for an outspread wing, roll it over me in ocean surges ten thousand fathoms deep! O, if infidelity, and if atheism, and if annihilation are a reality, and the Christian religion is a delusion, give me the delusion!

The strong conclusion of every man and woman in the house is that Christianity producing such grand results cannot be a delusion. A lie, a cheat, a swindle, an hallucination cannot launch such a glory of the centuries. Your logic and your common sense convince you that a bad cause cannot produce an illustrious result; out of the womb of such a monster no such angel can be born. There are many in this house this morning, in the galleries and on the main floor, who began with thinking that the Christian religion was a stupid farce, who have come to the conclusion that it is a reality. Why are you here to-day? Why did you sing this song? Why did you bow your head in the opening prayer? Why did you bring your family with you? Why, when I tell you of the ending of all trials in the bosom of God, do there stand tears in your eyes—not tears of grief, but tears of joy, such as stand in the eyes of homesick children far away at school when some one talks to them about going home? Why is it that you can be so calmly submissive to the death of your loved one, about whose departure you once were so angry and so rebellious? There is something the matter with you. All your friends have found out there is a great change. And if some of you would give your experience, you would give it in scholarly style, and others giving your experience would give it in broken style, but the one experience would be just as good as the other. Some of you have read everything. You are scientific and you are scholarly, and yet if I should ask you: "What is the most sensible thing you ever did?" you would say: "The most sensible thing I ever did was to give my heart to God."

But there may be others here who have not had early advantages, and if they were asked to give their experience, they might rise and give such testimony as the man gave in a prayer meeting, when he said: "On my way here to-night, I met a man who asked me where I was going. I said, 'I am going to prayer-meeting.' He said: 'There are a good many religions, and I think the most of them are delusions; as to the Christian religion, that is only a notion, that is a mere notion, the Christian religion.' I said to him: 'Stranger, you see that tavern over there?' 'Yes,' he said, 'I see it.' 'Do you see me?' 'Yes, of course I see you.' 'Now, the time was, as everybody in this town knows, that if I had a quarter of a dollar in my pocket I could not pass that tavern without going in and getting a drink; all the people of Jefferson could not keep me out of that place; but God has changed my heart and the Lord Jesus Christ has destroyed my thirst for strong drink, and there is my whole week's wages, and I have no temptation to go in there. And, stranger, if this is a notion I want to tell you it is a mighty powerful notion; it is a notion that has put clothes on my children's back, and it is a notion that has filled my mouth with thanksgiving to God. And, stranger, you had better go along with me, you might get religion, too; lots of people are getting religion now.'"

Well, we will soon understand it all. Your life and mine will soon be over. We will soon come to the last bar of the music, to the last act of the tragedy, to the last page of the book—yes, to the last line and to the last word, and to you and to me it will either be midnoon or midnight.

Horses in Battle.

Lord George Paget, writing of the famous charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava, says: "One incident struck me forcibly about this time—the bearing of riderless horses in such circumstances. I was, of course, riding by myself, and clear of the line, and for that reason was a marked object for the poor dumb brutes. They subsequently made dashes at me, some advancing with me a considerable distance at one time as many as five on my right and two on my left cringing in on me, and positively squeezing me as the round shot came bounding by them. I remarked their eyes, betokening as keen a sense of the perils around them as we human beings experienced (and that is saying a good deal). The bearing of the horse I was riding, in contrast to these, was remarkable. He had been struck, but showed no signs of fear, thus evincing the confidence of dumb animals in the superior being."

WEYBROCK (Jim Cummings) gave up the coal business to go into the train robbing industry. The transition was easy from a light-weigh-man to a highwayman.

CHILTON VIEW.

Published Every Thursday Morning

CLANTON, ALA., FEB. 17, 1887.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One copy one year	$1.50
One copy six months	75
One copy four "	50

The Montgomery Capital had the blues bad on valentines' day.

Rev. J. J. Porter, the well known evangelist is carrying on interesting revivals in Greenville and neighboring towns.

Capt. Bragg's chance for an appointment on the interstate railroad commission are good. He would fill the position with ability.

An eight room house was built in Birmingham last week in nine and a half hours. Work was commenced on it in the morning and a family had moved into it by dark.

Our Hot Well has had a good long rest now so we propose a stock company be formed to develop its wonderful usefulness, and if they will "salt" us a little we will boom it. You bet.

The inhabitants of New Foundland are said to be in the most destitute condition of any people on earth. The people of Ireland are happy and prosperous in comparison. People are starving to death there.

A bill has been passed appropriating $5,000 to aid in the erection of a monument to the confederate dead on capitol hill in Montgomery. The work on the monument has already begun by the efforts of the ladies of Montgomery.

Notwithstanding that the Clayton Courier is published in Barbour (the 3rd grand division) we don't think it has any right to copy anything from the VIEW without giving us credit for it. Do you hear Bro. Quillin.

Notwithstanding that we do not agree with the Montgomery Dispatch on many important questions it is nevertheless the most fearless and out spoken press in the state and always true to its convictions, no matter who it antagonizes.

The Dispatch in its controversy with solicitor A. V. Lee, of Barbour, on the "Solicitors' lobby," resorts to means usually adopted by Benjamin Franklin in an argument, that of questioning, which is said to be the most effective way in which to gain your point.

The law requires county Treasurers to make a report of the receipts and disbursements of the county's financies twice a year, and requires the same to be published. No report has been made by our Teasurer since February 1886, and another year is now dawning. Whose business is it to look into this matter?

Friday morning at Bangor up the L. & N. railroad, in consequence of somebody's neglecting to open a switch, a section of the north bound freight train No. 16. ran into south bound freight train No. 71. Both engines were upset and a fireman got one of his legs badly hurt. The engineers and the other fireman jumped and escaped unhurt.

The President has allowed the act appropriating $400,000 a year to provide arms and equipments for militia to become a law, the constitutional limitation of ten days, within which he should have acted on this bill, expired Saturday. His failure to sign the bill is regarded as an oversight, as he was not known to object to any of its provisions.

The Senate and House of Representatives of Alabama have passed resolutions asking our representatives in Congress to support the Blair Bill. There is some opposition to the bill which in our opinion will not amount to anything when a vote is taken. The cry of having to sacrifice Democratic principles to support the bill has no foundation on which to base an argument, nor is their any probability of our being made slaves to the federal goverment by accepting this proffered aid to our public schools. The people reserve the right to refuse to have anything further to do with the money thus appropriated should the developement of any feature of the bill appropiating the same become objectionable, and in our judgement this method of building up the public schools of our state is well worth a trial.

"Stick to the Farm."

Fertilize, work hard and raise hogs. This would be a text for a sermon of great length, but this scribe proposes to make it brief. The student of political economy who may have read of the famous Mr. Wilkins' Micawber was no doubt struck with one of the ideas evolved from his fertile brain while he was in jail for debt, and which he expressed in this manner: "Yesterday income 1 pound, expenses 1 pound 2 pence--result misery; to-day income 1 pound, expenses 19 shillings 2 pence--result happiness." Thus it is with us all. Our farmers are in debt and consequently have the blues. They must get out of debt and to do so I know no better plan than to Fertilize, work hard and raise hogs.

When out of debt and happiness begins to reign, when they become satisfied with their farms and give up the desire for immense wealth without work, when the inclination for wild cat speculation in the famous boom and bust companies of the mineral district subsides, then to keep their minds at ease, and their families in peace and plenty there is no better way than to Fertilize, work hard and raise hogs.

The now celebrated Mr. Furman, of Georgia, last year made 150 bales of cotton on 65 acres of sandy land. He bought at $5 per acre, and its enhancement under his system of fertilizing has been such that he now values it at $100 per acre, and proposes to increase his fertilizing until he is able to raise 3 bales of cotton to the acre on this 65 acres. He is one farmer who has found that it will pay to Fertilize, work hard and raise hogs.

His land which was yeilding one bale of cotton to every eight or ten acres and getting poorer every year when he bought it, is now getting richer every year and is yielding now about twenty times as much, and with still greater possibilities ahead. So there is no doubt that my text. if faithfully acted upon and worked up to, will make our country grow and blossom like unto the famous green bay tree.

Fertilize, work hard and raise hogs.

And then raise every thing else that you can that will be food for man or beast. The scribe is stopping a while near Greensboro with a farmer friend and relative, and he has seen among other things that this farmer friend lost money like all of his neighbors last year in raising cotton. But on the other hand, he has raised all the meat he needs, has plenty of corn in his crib and some to sell, has plenty of sorghum for his own use, plenty of honey and some to sell, plenty of peas and some to sell, plenty of butter and some to sell, plenty of milk, and some to fatten his hogs upon, plenty of potatoes and some to sell, plent of fruit and some to sell. This it seems to the scribe is the way to farm.

But Great Scott! he has told about all that he knows, and will have to dilate upon what he don't know at next writing, so his parting words to your farmer readers will be Fertilize, work hard and raise hogs. W. H. L.

Greensboro, Ala.
February, 1st 1887.

Legislative.

The bill to change the boundaries between certain school districts in Chilton county was read a third time and passed.

The bill to incorporate the Welch Mill & Centerville railroad, and further the construction of the said road, was read a third time and passed.

To provide for the use of a uniform series of text books in the pub. schools of the state. Passed.

To make an appropriation for enclosing and keeping up the graves of confederate soldiers who died in service and are buried out side of the state. Military. (Appropriates $5.000.)

The bill to make the keeping of gambling houses a felony was passed.

Furman's Formula.

Following is the formula for compost by means of which the great Georgia farmer, now deceased, increased the yield of 65 acres of land from eight bales of cotton to 150 bales in six years, the land enhancing in value each year in proportion:

Take thirty bushels of well-rotted stable manure, or well-rotted organic matter, as leaves, muck, etc., and scatter it about three inches thick on a piece of ground so situated that water will not stand on it, but shed off in every direction. The thirty bushels will weigh about 900 pounds; take 200 pounds of good acid phosphate, which cost me $22.50 per ton delivered, making the 200 pounds cost $2.25, and 100 pounds of kainit, which cost me by the ton $14 delivered, or 70 cents for 100 pounds, and mix the acid phosphate and the kainit thoroughly, then scatter evenly on the manure. Next take 30 bushels of green cotton seed and distribute evenly over the pile and wet them thoroughly--they will weigh 900 pounds; take again 200 pounds of acid phosphate and 100 pounds of kainit; mix and spread over the seed; begin on the manure and keep on in this way, building up your heap, layer by layer, until you get it as high as convenient, then cover with six inches of rich earth from fence corners and leave at least six weeks, when ready to haul to the field, but with a spade or pickaxe square down and mix as thoroughly as possible. Now we have thirty bushels of manure weighing 900 pounds, and 300 pounds chemicals in the first layer, and thirty bushels cotton seed weighing 900 pounds, and 300 pounds of chemicals in the second layer, and these two layers combine for the perfect compost. You perceive that the weight is 2400 pounds, value at cost is:

30 bushels cotton seed, 12½ cents	$3.75
400 pounds acid phosphate	4.50
200 pounds of kainit	1.40
Stable manure, nominal
Total	$9.65

Or, for 2400 pounds at total value of $9.65. This manure makes practically a perfect manure for cotton and a splendid application for corn."

"This restores to the soil everything the cotton took from it."

"Except silica, which is in the soil in inexhaustable quantity, so that when you put a larger quantity of these than the cotton took out, your soil is evidently richer."

Furman started work with sixty-five acres of the very poorest land in Middle Georgia five years ago. The first year he made eight bales of cotton on the sixty-five acres, or less than one bale to eight acres. This shows that it was the poorest of scrub land.

The second year he put 500 pounds of compost to the acre, and made twelve bales of cotton where he made eight before.

The third year he used 1000 pounds of compost to the acre. increased the yield on the sixty-five acres to twenty-three bales.

The fourth year he used 2000 pounds of compost to the acre, and increased his crop to forty-seven bales on sixty-five acres.

The fifth year he used 4000 pounds of compost to the acre, and his crop is certainly about eighty to the sixty-five acres, and may reach a hundred bales.

He has done all this work with two plows, and eighteen days of extra plowing. His official detailed statement shows that the total expenses were $2300, and his net profits $2725. A fine record on a two horse farm. In addition, the land that was worth $5 an acre, 5 years ago is now worth $100 an acre, so with two mules this year he has raised at least 80 bales of cotton, 1000 bushels of oats and 400 of busbels corn.

Isn't that a better record than he could have made in Congress? Hasn't he done the State more good by this demonstration than he could have done by ten years of political speeches?

Tax Assessments.

Auditor Burke has recently issued the following circular for the instruction of the Tax Assessors. If carried out the result will be a very material reduction in the present high rate of taxation:

"The high tax rate in this state is attributable mainly to the escape of large amounts of taxable property from assessment and taxation. It is in the power of the assessors, and it is their duty to secure a lower rate, by making a full and accurate assessment of all the property in the state at a fair valuation, as they are required by law to do. Sec. 1 and 6, pages 21 and 23 respectively, of the revenue code, both confer the authority and make it the duty of the assessors to do this.

* * * * *

The commissioners' court have power to change assessments and reduce valuations where valuations are above the market value of the property. You cannot appeal from the decisions of the court, but this should not deter you from listing property at what you believe to be its true value in making the assessment. When you raise the valuation of property given in by the tax payer, notify him in writing of the fact before returning your book to the probate judge, as required by section one, page 21, revenue code.

Assessments must be made as the law directs, and not by copying from the old books of assessment.

I earnestly appeal to you to make a full and accurate assessment of all property, personally as well as reality, in your county, at its true value, or it will be my unpleasant duty to proceed by law against any tax assessor who fails to do so.

Very Respectfully,
M. C. BURKE, Auditor.

We have a very desirable farm of 125 acres with a good five room residence and good water, situated only 4 miles from town, for sale cheap and on good terms. Apply at this office.

Some of our State exchanges talk very learned about the "Blair Bill." We venture the assertion that not one of them has read the text of the aforesaid bill. Some throw themselves back on their dignity and vapidly boast of the Jeffersonian Democracy, while others just pompously prate of the Constitution. Phew! one would think after reading their gas the Alabama editorial fraternity had mistaken its calling. "The Gang" ought to be on the bench as Justices of the Supreme Courts of the State and nation. Come down to solid facts, gentleman, and say you know nothing whatever of it. It is strange how learned some people think they can write on subjects that they have no idea of, simply because they have read what some have said on the subject. "What fools these mortals be."—Opelika Times.

Clerk to the Railroad Commission.

There has been a good deal of speculation as to who would be the clerk to the railroad commission. The matter was settled this morning by the appointment of Mr. Chas. P. Jackson of Florence, brother of the former clerk, Mr. J. K. Jackson. We have not the pleasure of the clerk's acquaintance, but if he is anyways near as competent and clever as his brother J. K., he will pass muster anywhere.—Capital, 11th inst.

Mr. Jackson is a brother of Mrs. W. H. Phillips, of this place, and we are glad to hear of his location so near us. He gives up a good position in Evansville, Ind., to return to Alabama, his native state.

"Hi Pompey! what you 'fraid of?
What makes you shake and shibber?"
"Law chile! ise got de ague
An got de tropic libber."
"De tropic libber Pompey?
I don't know what you means:
But you can cure your ague
By taking SMITH'S BILE BEANS.
Two bits a bottle, don't pay more!
You'll get dem at de drugman's store."
The most economical and best remedy for ague. 25 cents, per bottle.

Sleepless nights made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by M. J. Greene Clanton. jun16y

Take one of Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pillets at night before you go to bed and you will be surprised how buoyant and vigorous you will feel the next day. Only 25 cents a vial.

Croup is a treacherous disease, and generally the most severe at night when unable to properly watch it. The best known remedy is Ellis' C. S. A. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

If you are suffering with weak or inflamed eyes, or granulated eyelids, you can be quickly cured by using Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve. 25 cents a box. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures consumption. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton Ala.

Life will acquire new zest, and cheerfulness will return, if you will impel your liver and kidneys to the performance of their functions Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm will stimulate them to healthful action. $1.00 per bottle. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Ellis' Magic Liver Pills are safe for children, and are more effective than any other cathartic pill on the market. If not found satisfactory return and get your money. For sale by W. H. Phillips. aug26-y

Will you suffer with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

That hacking cough can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's cure. We guarantee it. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Sick Headache and a sensation of oppression and dullness in the head are very commonly produced by indigestion; morbid despondency, irritability and over-sensitiveness of the nerves may, in a majority of cases, be traced to the same cause. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm and Pillets will positively cure. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton. sep11 3

NOTICE NO. 6037.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 7, 1887. }

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Ala., on March 19th, 1887, viz: Andy Foshee Homestead 16955, for the sw ¼ of sw ¼, sec. 10, township 21 n, range 14 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Prince Wilson, Hunter Zimmerman, Lewis Williams and Arch Oden, all of Clanton, Ala.

feb10* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

SUIT IN CHANCERY.

B. H. Chesnutt, Complainant, vs. John H. Easterling, Defendant. In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of Wm. A. Collier, Esq., solicitor for the Complainant in the above stated cause that the Defendant, John H. Easterling, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, that his particular place of residence is unknown to affiant, and futher that in the belief of affiant the defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Chilton View, a newspaper published in the town of Clanton, for four consecutive weeks requiring him the said John H. Easterling to answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 28th day of February, 1887, or in thirty days thereafter a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office this 25th day of January 1887. W. E. STEWART,
jan27-4t Register.

Printer's fee $7.50.

NOTICE NO. 6043.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 8, 1887. }

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March 9th, 1887, viz: Benjamine F. Abbott, Homestead 12414, for the n ½ of ne ¼ and n ½ of nw ¼, sec. 28, township 20, range 13. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: John J. Roberts, J. Thomas Anderson John M. Chandler and Richard P. Kendrick, all of Dixie, Ala.

feb10 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5991.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery Ala., Jan. 26, 1887. }

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the Clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March 5th, 1887, viz: Asa J. Rolinson, Homestead 18106, for the se ¼ of the ne ¼ and the ne ¼ of se ¼, sec. 24, township 20 n, range 12 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William Roberts, Wm. Robuck, Wm. Klinner and Wm. H. Foshee, Jr., all of Dixie, Ala.

jan27 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5962.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 19, 1887. }

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court, or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., March 8th, 1887, viz: Isaac M. Deason, Homestead, 11877, for the e ½ of the se ¼ and se ¼ of sw ¼, and sw ¼ of se ¼, sec 2, township 20 N, range 13 E. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said lands, viz: John H. Gray, Mac D. Gray, William I. Mullins and Joseph Popwell, all of Kincheon, Ala.

jan20* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5969.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 20, 1887. }

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March, 5th, 1887, viz: Elijah B. Wyatt, Homestead application, No. 16089, for the e ½ of se ¼, sec. 24, township 22, range 15 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: Redding E. Jones, Andrew J. Peters, Monroe J. Parish and Moses Bater, all of Clanton, Ala.

jan27* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

TRESSLAR,
Artistic Photographer
10 COURT SQUARE,
Montgomery.
Life Size Photographs a Specialty
Photographs, on Silk, Satin and Linen. Photographs on watch dials. Enameled Photographs.
All Sittings made Instantaneously Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged.
☞Correspondence solicited.☜
[jan21-tf]

BANDMAN & CO.,
Wholesale Grocers,
P. O BOX 251,
1st Avenue, bet. 18th and 19th Streets,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
jan 13 6m

STOP AT
Morris Avenue Hotel,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
Corner Morris Avenue and 20th Street
ELYTON LAND CO. BUILDING.
HUGH KIRKMAN, PROPRIETOR.
Splendid rooms, well ventilated and elegantly furnished. Rates reasonable.

Money to Loan!
I am prepared to negotiate mortgage loans on farming lands in Chilton county in sums of three hundred dollars and upwards. Rates cheap and negotiations speedily concluded. Apply to or correspond with
H. L. WILLIAMS,
oct7 Att'y at Law, Wetumpka.

MARRIAGE GUIDE
260 PAGES. Illustrated, in Cloth and Gilt Binding, 50c. money or stamps. Same, paper cover, 25c. This Book contains ALL the curious, doubtful or inquisitive want to know. Full of very interesting and valuable information. HEALTH, BEAUTY and HAPPINESS are promoted by its advice—who may Marry, who not, why; Medical Aid, when necessary, brought home to you. 80 Wonderful PEN PICTURES, true to life. Young or old, married or single, sick or well, should read it. Sent sealed by DR. WHITTIER, St. Louis, Mo.
CUT THIS OUT AND SEND WITH ORDER.

WINTER! SPRING!
During the Season of Winter MALARIA Lurks in the System!
COLLINS
AGUE CURE
One Dose a day, taken three days in succession, each month, or when you feel badly in any way, will fully Cleanse your Blood, Remove all Bilious Secretions & Malarial Poison from your System, and Insure GOOD HEALTH IN THE SPRING.
PRICE, FIFTY CENTS PER BOTTLE.
If you are troubled with a COUGH, COLD, SORENESS in CHEST, or any Affection of Throat or Lungs, use DR. JACKSON'S
Syrup LUNGWORT & WILD CHERRY
Sold at 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 a Bottle.
If your EYES are affected in any way, use
Dr. JACKSON'S CELEBRATED INDIAN EYE SALVE.
Sold Everywhere at 25 cents per Box.
Send for Collins Bros. "Present Century Almanac" for 1887. Mailed to any address or at any Drug Store.
COLLINS BROS. DRUG CO., St. Louis, Mo.
jun24-y

GREETING
TO THE
PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY:
E. ERSWELL,
19th STREET, BETWEEN FIRST AND SECOND AVENUE.
Birmingham, Ala.
BEGS TO ANNOUNCE THAT HE WOULD LIKE A SHARE OF YOUR PATRONAGE AND IS PREPARED TO SELL AS LOW AS ANY.
Mail orders solicited and satisfaction guaranteed. Telegraph orders promptly filled. Rooms carpeted to order. Decorating and House Furnishing a Specialty.
Largest Carpet Parlor in Alabama.
FINEST SELECTION OF FURNITURE IN THE SOUTH.
WINDOW SHADES OF NEWEST AND LATEST STYLES.
Heavy Stock of Picture Frames.
E. Erswell has the most complete stock of Carpets in Alabama Carpets, Oil Cloths, Linoleums, Mattings of all grades and in endless varieties. Office Furniture. Desks of all Styles. Book Cases in Walnut, Mahogany, &c., Wardrobe Settees, Side-Boards, Folding beds, Washstands, Extension Tables, In fact everything in the Furniture and Carpet line. Wall Papers of all Grades.
EVERYTHING GUARANTEED AND WARRANTED FIRST CLASS MATERIAL.
No shoddy goods, but genuine and honest work. Full line of Undertakers goods. Telegraph orders promptly attended to.
E. ERSWELL.
☞ Next Door to Opera House. P. O. Box 30.☜

BAINS & PEEBLES.
(SUCCESSORS TO BAINS & HERRING.)
WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.
Mail and Express Orders Will Receive Prompt Attention.
FINE WINES AND LIQUORS A SPECIALTY.
1926 FIRST AVENUE, BETWEEN 19th and 20th STREETS,
Birmingham, Ala.
☞ Fine Stock of Chess Carley's Oils at Company's Prices.☜
P. O. BOX 570. June 19 y

BEST GRADES OF MERCHANDISE
At JOHN GARNER'S, Clanton.
sep3-tf

T. T ASHFORD, Pres. J. E. MALABY, Vice Pres. T. L. McGOWAN, Sec. & Treas.
Birmingham Paint, Glass and Wall Paper Co.
Successors to
MAYBERRY & ASHFORD.
Jobbers and Retailers of
Paints, Oils, Window Glass, Plate, Sky-Light and Colored Glass, Sash, Doors, Blinds and Moulding,
Painters' and Artists' Supplies.
WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES, and CURTAIN FIXTURES.
1912 Second Avenue, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
☞ Write for Samples of Wall Paper and Estimates on Glass. jun10

MINERAL CITY TIN AND STOVE HOUSE
SECOND AVENUE BETWEEN 18TH AND 19TH STREETS,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
Pat Walsh, Manager.
A Large Line of HEATING and COOKING STOVES always on hand. All Kinds of
Tin, Sheet Iron Roofing and Job Work
DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.
☞Orders by mail will receive prompt attention. nov 11

E. WALL. P. GIACOPAZZI.
WALL & GIACOPAZZI,
Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Commission Merchants,
Second Ave. and Twentieth St.
Birmingham, - - - Ala.
References: S. Oteri, New Orleans; Jos. Denunzio, Louisville; Buhr, Wendte & Co., Cincinnati; Underhill, Stewart & Shotta, N. Y.; Wm. D. Clarke & Co., New Orleans; Cowing & Clark, Cincinnati; A. G. Conant & Co., N. Y.; First National Bank, Birmingham, Ala.

H. H. BARCLIFT & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Grocers,
No. 2113 2d Ave. Bet. Twenty-first and Twenty-Second Sts.
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
☞We solicit a share of the patronage of the merchants of Chilton County. Send us your orders.

CHILTON VIEW.

CLANTON, ALA., FEB. 17, 1887.

THE VIEW is published every Thursday morning, and will endeavor to cover the field of reputable country journalism. It will show no quarter to the deceitful, the immoral or the ungodly. It will always be good natured, although it can bite if necessary.

Those answering advertisements will confer a favor by mentioning this paper.

COURT CALENDAR.

Chancery—Friday after the first Mondays in April and October.

Circuit—Fourth Monday in March, and fifth Monday after the fourth Monday in August.

Commissioners'—Regular term second Monday in February and August, and first Monday in April and November. Special term second Monday in July.

County—First Monday in each month.

SCHEDULE S. & N. ALA. RAILROAD. —Trains pass Clanton daily, as follows:

GOING SOUTH.

No. 1 at	5:45 a. m.
No. 3	5:37 p. m.
No. 7	4:12 p. m.
No. 51	6:00 a. m.

GOING NORTH.

No. 2	9:15 a. m.
No. 12	9:55 a. m.
No. 4	*9:43 p. m.
No. 50	6:55 p. m.

* Don't stop.

LOCAL DOTTINGS.

The book agent is abroad in the land.

Mrs. Ehrman is visiting Brierfield.

Mrs. W. H. McNeil is visiting Birmingham.

Mrs. W. H. Foshee, visited Birmingham last week.

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Duke, visited New Orleans, last week.

Trees are being set out by several of our citizens.

A Mrs. Sherfy, of Indiana, is in Clanton trying our hot well water.

The VIEW and the Montgomery Advertiser (weekly) for $2.50 a year, in advance.

Mr. T. H. Prim will preach in the Baptist church, at this place, next Sabbath.

Mr. F. T. Downey, of Birminham, spent one day in Clanton last week visiting the fair sex.

The farmers' store now has a nice sign out. Our other merchants should follow suit.

Another communication received without the name of the writer. We regret that we cannot publish it.

The Academy has fifty-two pupils in attendance, which is a larger number than it had at this time last session.

Our young friend Sumner Ashley has gone to Birmingham to engage in business. May he be sucessful is our benediction.

It seems that Clanton will never recover from her spell of matrimonial fever. Another wedding on the tapis for next week.

We have seen a plan of a large two story building soon to be erected by Mr. R. Ehrman, on his lot west of the railroad and on Main street.

One of Mr. J. H. Chandler's dry kilns burned last week with several thousand feet of lumber. Mr. Chandler says his loss is about $200.00.

We have not let up on wanting a drink of water from the court well yet. We are just keeping quiet until some body gets that dead object out.

We hear of a negro woman living near Lomax whose limbs have all swollen up and the skin is bursting open in many places. It is thought that she is poisoned.

Conductor LeRoy, of the L. & N. road, has been stopping in Clanton for several days. He is suffering from rheumatism and is doubtless here to try the powers of our hot well water.

Clanton girls have reaped a large harvest from the matrimonial crop during the past eighteen months. The consequence is the number of our young ladies here have grown beautiful—ly less.

Mr. C. R. Hannon, of this place, is now located permanently at Cordova, P. O., Walker county. His many friends here wish him success. He sends us his name and address as a subscriber to the VIEW.

A Methodist church was sold in Clanton recently for $27.—Guntersville Democrat.

Now we "kick." That church sold for $37.50 which 'was little enough and we protest against being swindled out of $10.50 of that amount, and will ask our brethren of the press if they wish to change those figures to please make them larger.

New Streets.

We learn that the street running out by Mr. John Aldridge's place, in the suburbs, which crosses the railroad back of the Adams place, and continuing on through court avenue between Dr. Stewart's and W. H. Foshee's and on out to the eastern suburb, is soon to be opened.

The opening of this street would be a great convenience to citizens on both sides of the railroad, as it would necessitate the building of a bridge over the L. & N. track where the street crosses, on account of the deep cut at that point, which would make it the most popular thoroughfare of our town, as the delay of waiting on trains to clear the track at the crossing on Main street would be avoided and much time saved. We hope to see this matter of opening streets pushed forward for all its worth as it will be a great benefit to the town in increasing the value, of lots along them, and in many other ways add to the developement of our little city.

An exchange truthfully remarks: Build up your churches, have good preaching and pay the preacher. Build up your school houses, have good teachers and pay the teachers. Subscribe for, build up and extend the circulation of your county paper, and take an interest in the general and local views of the day. Encourage these great influences for good and your country will soon bloom and blossom like the rose. Assist in the good work and you will see many bright minds now satisfied with the discussion of the gossip of a neighborhood expanding and beginning to grapple with the great questions of tariffs the Blair bill and evolution.

OUR BOOM.

Not Coal, nor Iron, but Silver.

STANTON, CHILTON CO., ALA.,
February 5th, 1887.

Dr. W. W. Little and Prof. E. D. Acker, of this place, while out on a bird hunt this evening made a discovery of a lot of silver ore. These gentlemen pronounce the ore genuine, and state that there is a large quantity of it.

Stanton will yet come to the front—iron ore, gold and silver lies within her grasp.—"C." in Selma Times.

A Call.

The members of the Executive Committee of the Democratic and Conservative Party of Chilton Co., Ala., are hereby requested to meet at Clanton, Ala., on Monday Feb. 21st, for the transaction of important business. It is essential to the interest of the Democratic party of the county that every member of the committee be present.

WM. A. COLLIER, Chr'm.
J. C. LAWRENCE, Sec'y.

Another Victory for Prohibition.

The whiskey election in beat 7, this county, on the 8th inst., resulted in a victory for the prohibitionist; if such they can be called in this instance, by a majority of 24 votes.

This shuts out the sale of whiskey from our county with the exception of one saloon at Jumbo in beat No. 1.

Mr. "Ab." Hall has moved out to his place about a mile from town again and will probably raise an abundance of vegetables to supply all of our citizens who may not be so fortunate as to have gardens. We regret to lose Mr. Hall and his family from our town.

We have three new organs for sale cheap for cash. They are now in the factory and will be shipped to any point desired by the purchaser. One Estey and two of the Chicago Cottage Organs. Come and see or write us before purchasing elsewhere.

The chances are for a short fruit crop this year as the spring like weather of the past few weeks has caused the sap to rise and many trees in this section have begun budding out and will no doubt be killed before the weather becomes settled.

Noteheads, billheads, letterheads, envelopes, statements, programmes, posters, dodgers, circular letters, visiting and business cards, commissary checks, &c. &c., printed at the VIEW Job Office, at reasonable prices and on short notice.

The good effects of Ellis' P. P. P. on a debilitated person are felt at once, and a cure follows its use. If suffering from blood poison try a bottle. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

No family should be without Ellis' Magic Oil Liniment, the greatest external remedy known. It cures all aches and pains. Price 25 cents per bottle, at W. H. Phillips.

Croup, Whooping cough and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. [jun16 y

OVER THE COUNTY.

News Gathered up by Our Correspondents.

Verbena Views.

Our village has had two of Benton's charming young ladies as visitors, Misses Julia Bostwick and Deedie Maull.

An entertainment at the residence of Mr. J. G. Farley, Monday night, is remembered by all who attended as a very pleasant affair. Even our dignified young pastor enjoyed promenading under the gentle rays of Luma.

Mr. Oliver and bride have returned from a visit to relatives in the Empire State, and are now quietly domiciled in their cottage home over in East Verbena.

A private school opened Monday with ten pupils. Mrs. Bama Powell as teacher.

Mr. Glover and wife leave soon to visit relatives in the north.

We are glad to see among us again the faces of our lady friends Misses Sydney and Fannie Pitts.

Mrs. Catts, of West Florida, has been visiting her father Judge Caffie of our town.

Mrs. Bostwick, of Benton, is on a visit to her sister Mrs. Farley.

Mr. Fred Thornton and family have returned to their old home here. He is engaged in the crosstie business.

Quite a number of our "gallants" with a party of our most pious young ladies passed fifth Sabbath taking a ramble to the junction of Chestnutt and Sandy creeks.

We are having beautiful weather for gardening. Some of us have gardens that remind one that some time in future we will have vegetables.

Miss Etta Haralson left for Montgomery last week. Truly, TWITTERS.

Stanton Puffs.

We congratulate our Maplesville prohibitionists on their victory last week. May the beat always be true her present colors.

Married, near Stanton, Feb. 10th by W. J. Ruddick, Secor Harris to Miss Josey Lenoir. May they live long and prosper.

Mr. Ed. Gregory and wife, Mr. D. Partridge, of Selma, and Mr. Cooley, of Knoxville, Tenn., visited Stanton last week.

Our friends O. H. P. Wright, D. Lodge and A. Lyles, were ordained deacons in the Presbyterian church last Sabbath.

A colored brakeman of one of the north bound freight train on the E. T. V. & G. railroad was killed at Howison Station near here, one day last week. Attempting to get on the train while in motion his foot slipped and he fell on the track the cars passing lengthwise over him. He lived two hours.

Our kind physician, Dr. Little, has provided himself with a handsome set of surgical instruments. They are nice to look at and convenient to have in case of accident, but we hope none of the Stantonians will ever require their use.
89.

Dots from Concord.

Foggie mornings and cloudy nights. But the days are rather bright.

Some sickness in the community yet.

Mrs. Sallie Wilson who has been visiting the family of Mr. J. W. Garner, has been quite sick.

Mr. J. Wilson visited the family of Mr. J. M. Garner last Sunday. He is from Cahaba River.

Miss Lucy Meredith was detained from her school last Friday, on account of sickness, but we hope she will soon recover.

Mr. G. G. West has moved his saw mill, from its former place, near home.

Mr. Charles West visited relatives in this community Friday.

Tax collector White was in our community, Wednesday and Thursday performing his duty.
PEACEFUL BOY.

From Lilly.

[For the VIEW.]

IN MEMORY OF J. T. ROPER, WHO DIED JUNE 9th, 1886.

Thou art gone to the grave—but we will not deplore thee,
Though sorrows and darkness encompass the tomb;
Thy Savior has passed through its portals before thee,
And the lamp of his love is thy guide through the gloom.

Thou art gone to the gave—we no longer behold thee,
Nor tread the rough paths of the world by thy side;
But the wide arms of mercy are spread to enfold thee,
And sinners may hope since the sinless has died.

Thou art gone to the grave—and its mansion forsaking
Perchance thy weak spirit in fear lingered long;
But the mild rays of Paradise beamed on thy waking,
And the sound which thou heardst was the seraphin's song.

Thou art gone to the grave—but we will not deplore thee,
Whose God was thy ransom, thy guardian and guide;
He gave thee, He took thee, and He will restore thee,
And death has no sting for the Savior has died.
R. E. ROPER.

Newman's Southern Flower Cologne is the best. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Shiloh's Vitalizer is what you need for Constipation, loss of appetite, dizziness, and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle.

MONTGOMERY FURNITURE COMPANY.

—DEALERS IN—

Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Looking Glasses, Lounges, Hall Racks, Wardrobes, Chairs, Safes, Side Boards, Cradles, Cribs, Baby Carriages, Spring Beds. Mattresses, Refrigerators, Pianos. Organs, Carpets,

And All Kinds of Furniture!

A. C. ROGERS, Manager,
sep2 y 210 Bibb Street, Wharton's Old Stand Next to McDonald's Opera House.

FURNITURE AND WALL PAPER FOR EVERYBODY!

OUR STOCK OF FURNITURE, WINDOW SHADES, LACE CURTAINS, WALL PAPER, SPRING BEDS, AND MATTRESSES IS NOW COMPLETE.

Anybody in need of the above articles will find it to their interest to look at our immense stock. We guarantee everything we sell, and sell it cheaper than anybody in this State.

SQUARE DEALING IS OUR MOTTO!

B. WOLFF & BRO., Montgomery.

sept 15-6 20 Commerce and Corner Court and Coosa Streets.

Maplesville Dots.

A good many of our fields are green once more with young oats. The oats that were planted in January are looking fine.

One of the liquor men said he wore a horse shoe in order to carry the election; we advise him to wear two horse shoes the next time he tries to beat a prohibition election.

We wish to inform the correspondent of Six Mile Creek that hell and damnation was not sold at Maplesville; it was a substance that was called liquor but we call it essence of hell or something that is distilled from hell with a slow fire.

A family of Gypsies gave us a visit last week. They stayed with us four days, which is a good sign of some body getting beat out of a good horse. D.

Many a person is starving with a full table before them. Appetite gone! Ambition gone! Life a burden!! What is the matter? The Liver has ceased to do its proper work. The life channels are clogged. Poisonous fluids are thrown back into the blood, which should be thrown out. SMITH'S BILE BEANS will surely stimulate the liver to do its work well, and headache, sallowness and bad breath will flee away. Price, 25 cents per bottle. All druggists.

Rheumatism and Neuralgia Cured in 2 Days.

The Indiana Chemical Co. have discovered a compound which acts with truly marvelous rapidity in the cure of Rheumatism and Neuralgia. We guarantee it to cure any and every case of acute Inflammatory Rheumatism and Neuralgia in 2 Days, and to give immediate relief in chronic cases and effect a speedy cure.

On receipt of 30 cents, in two cents stamps, we will send to any address the prescription for this wonderful compound, which can be filled by your home druggist at small cost. We take this means of giving our discovery to the public instead of putting it out as a patent medicine, it being much less expensive. We will gladly refund money if satisfaction is not given.

THE INDIANA CHEMICAL CO.,
Crawfordsville, Ind.

Clanton Academy.

CLANTON, CHILTON CO., ALA.

The course of instruction is divided into three departments, Primary, Junior and High School.

RATES OF TUITION:

Primary Department	$1.50
Junior "	2.50
High School "	3.50

Tuition payable monthly IN ADVANCE.

Public examinations of the pupils of the school will be held at the close of each session, but exhibitions will not be had at any time.

Board can be obtained by pupils of the school in private families in Clanton at very moderate rates.

For further information address
R. E. R. HICKS,
feb10] Principal.

FARMER'S TAKE NOTICE!

When You Come to Town to buy Goods, Call at

R. P. Wooley & Co.'s Cheap Cash Store!

Next to the Railroad on North side of Main Street, Clanton.

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

[sep9-6]

This space is reserved by

A. J. BROOKS

AT VERBENA, ALA.,

FOR FUTURE ADVERTISING

☞WATCH IT.☜

JUST RECEIVED AT

S. E. HIRSCHER'S

21 Dexter Ave., Montgomery,

An endless variety of New Novelties in HOLIDAY GOODS, and placed before our patrons for inspection. You are cordially invited to call and see us. HEADQUARTERS FOR EVERYTHING IN THE MUSIC LINE. Agency world renowned

WEBER, DECKER BROS., STIEF and KRANICH & BACH PIANOS.

☞ Sold on Easy Terms. Prices the Lowest in the State. [nov 18 3]

SHAW & DAVIN,

Machinery & Mill Supplies,

——MORRIS AVENUE AND 22D STREET.——

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

ENGINES,
BOILERS,
SAW MILLS,
CORN MILLS,
SHINGLE MACHINES,
CORN MILLS,
SUGAR MILLS,

COTTON GINS,
COTTON PRESSES.
PULLEYS,
SHAFTING,
BELTING, and
MACHINISTS' SUPPLIES.

Largest Stock in the State.

Write for Circulars and Prices. P. O. Box 808. [July8]

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE.

☞CURES—Diphtheria, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Bleeding at the Lungs, Hoarseness, Influenza, Hacking Cough, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Chronic Diarrhœa, Kidney Troubles, and Spinal Diseases. Pamphlet free. Dr. I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass.

PARSONS' MAKE NEW, RICH BLOOD. PILLS

These pills were a wonderful discovery. No others like them in the world. Will positively cure or relieve all manner of disease. The information around each box is worth ten times the cost of a box of pills. Find out about them and you will always be thankful. One pill a dose. Illustrated pamphlet free. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25c. in stamps. Dr. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., 22 C. H. St., Boston.

Sheridan's Condition Powder is absolutely pure and highly concentrated. One ounce is worth a pound of any other kind. It is strictly a medicine to [illegible]

MAKE HENS LAY

Nothing on earth will make hens lay like it. It cures chicken cholera and all diseases of hens. Is worth its weight in gold. [illegible]

TROY STEAM LAUNDRY,
Nos. 17 & 19 N. Lawrence Street,
MONTGOMERY, ALA.
P. O. BOX 282.

☞Orders by mail are solicited and will receive prompt attention.

J. W. GUE, Proprietor.

BRICK WORK

J. M. DAWSON,

CLANTON, ALA.

Is prepared to do all kinds of brick work in the best style. The patronage of the public solicited.

feb15-tf]

Clanton Barber Shop

—BY—

MEREDITH CANN,

Who is prepared to do all work in the tonsorial line. Hair dressing and shaving in the best style. Prices low.

A. W. KEY & CO.,

Manufacturers' State Agents for

Engines, Saw Mills,

BOILERS,

—AND—

General Machinery.

P. O. Box 741,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Nabers & Morrow,

Wholesale Druggists,

FIRST AVENUE,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

MEDICINES,

Fine Wines, Liquors,

Oils, Etc.

☞ Agents for Chess Carley & Co.'s Oils. [June 10]

J. M. Hutchason's

BOARDING, LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLES.

Select Dray and Plantation Mules constantly on hand.

Draying and Hauling Promptly Attended to

Always ready to take Contracts for filling in Dirt

Moving Stone, Engines, Boilers, Machinery and other heavy hauling.

RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS AND DAMAGE.

Satisfaction Guaranteed. Handsome Carriages and Double Teams, with or without Drivers.

☞MONTGOMERY STABLES,☜
Lawrence Street, Opp. P. O.,
Telephone 446. [janly

A FINE

FLORIDA TONIC!

MR. FOSTER S. CHAPMAN,

One of the landmarks of the Georgia Drug trade, now of Orlando, Florida, writes:

"I can hardly select a single case of the many to whom I have sold "Guinn's Pioneer Blood Renewer," but what have been satisfied, and I find it the best remedy for all skin diseases I have ever sold, and a Fine Florida Tonic.

FOSTER S. CHAPMAN,
Orlando, Florida.

A Certain Cure for Catarrh!

A SUPERB

FLESH PRODUCER & TONIC!

Guinn's Pioneer Blood Renewer

Cures all Blood and Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Scrofula, Old Sores. A perfect Spring Medicine.

If not in your market it will be forwarded on receipt of price. Small bottles $1.00, large $1.75.

Essay on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free.

MACON MEDICINE COMPANY
may18-y] Macon, Ga.

SMITH'S BILE BEANS

CURE Biliousness; Sick Headache in Four hours. One dose relieves Neuralgia. They cure and prevent Chills & Fever, Sour Stomach & Bad Breath. Clear the Skin, Tone the Nerves, and give Life & Vigor to the system. Dose: ONE BEAN. Try them once and you will never be without them. Price, 25 cents per bottle. Sold by Druggists and Medicine Dealers generally. Sent on receipt of price in stamps, postpaid, to any address.

J. F. SMITH & CO.,
Manufacturers and Sole Props., ST. LOUIS, MO.

feb25-6

Catarrh cured, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal Injector free. For sale by M. J. Green.

Thompson, Francis & Chenoweth,
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA,
—DEALERS IN—
HARDWARE,
Sash, Doors and Blinds, Paints, Oils and Glass, Cement and Plaster, Mantels and Grates, and a complete line of Cooking and Heating Stoves.

SOUTHERN BUSINESS COLLEGE.
No. 407½ W. Jefferson St., Next Door below Masonic Temple.
Louisville, - - - Kentucky.
NO TEXT BOOKS USED.
Book-Keeping, Penmanship, Commercial Arithmetic, Short Hand, Type Writing, &c.

We guarantee to teach more real, practical Book-keeping, Commercial or Business Calculations, more practical ideas about business in general in two to four months than any other Business College in this section can in twelve months.

We teach forms of book-keeping (actual forms used in business) not taught in any other Business College in this section.

No Scholar Has Ever Completed Our Entire Course and Left us Dissatisfied.
For Circulars call at College or address,
BEN. C. WEAVER, Principal.

NEW GOODS! NEW GOODS!
B. WELLMAN'S
"LOUISVILLE CLOTHING HOUSE"
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.
—DEALER IN—
Fine Clothing and Gent's Furnishing Goods.
Bottom Prices at Last!

"The best Goods for the Least Money," is the motto of this house, and I am now selling an Immense Stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS at the Lowest Cash Prices.

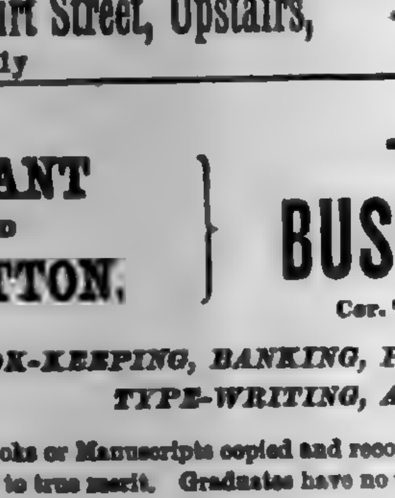
BLOOM,
The Tailor, of Montgomery, Alabama,
—DOES—
Dyeing, Scouring, Cleaning and Repairing
Of Gents' and Ladies' garments of all colors.
Orders by Mail or Express will receive prompt attention.
Prices to suit the times. Work Guaranteed.
No. 5 Court Street, Upstairs, - - Opposite Dollar Store.
sep14 '86-1y

BRYANT AND STRATTON.
THE LOUISVILLE
BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Cor. Third & Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.
BOOK-KEEPING, BANKING, PENMANSHIP, SHORT-HAND, TYPE-WRITING, ARITHMETIC, &c.

No Text Books or Manuscripts copied and recopied by students. Has the largest honest indorsement as to true merit. Graduates have no trouble in obtaining situations.

HOME STUDY. Instruction given by mail. Improve your spare hours and obtain a practical education.
ADDRESS COLLEGE AS ABOVE.
[mar18-1y

THE
CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN
Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.
It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.



OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.
EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

These excellent Organs are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty in finish, perfect construction, making them the most attractive, ornamental and desirable organs for homes, schools, churches, lodges, societies, etc.
ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,
UNEQUALED FACILITIES,
SKILLED WORKMEN,
BEST MATERIAL,
COMBINED, MAKE THIS
THE POPULAR ORGAN
Instruction Books and Piano Stools.
Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, FREE.
The Chicago Cottage Organ Co.
Corner Randolph and Ann Streets,
CHICAGO, ILL.

HEADACHE
and all Bilious Complaints are relieved by taking
WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS
Purely Vegetable; No Griping. Price 25c. All Druggists.

L & N
(LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.)
THE GREAT
Through Trunk Line
Between the Cities of CINCINNATI, LEXINGTON, LOUISVILLE, EVANSVILLE, ST. LOUIS, And the Cities of N. ORLEANS, MOBILE, and MONTGOM'Y, MEMPHIS, NASHVILLE,
Without Change and with Speed Unrivaled
SHORTEST AND QUICKEST ROUTE
From New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery, to
NORTH, EAST & WEST
PULLMAN CARS Without change to Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, with but one change to all NORTHERN AND EASTERN CITIES.
THROUGH COACHES
From Chattanooga and Nashville to St. Louis, connecting direct for Cities in the Northwest.
EMIGRANTS Seeking homes on the line of this road will receive special low rates.
See Agents of this Company for rates, routes, &c., or write C. P. ATMORE, G. P. & T. A. Louisville, Ky.
(3)
[jan28-6m

A COMPLETE STOCK of Fancy Stationery, and everything usually kept in a Stationery Establishment, is ALWAYS ON HAND
and For Sale at City Prices at the VIEW
STATIONERY STAND.

SUPERSTITIONS OF ENGINEERS.

Railroad Men Who Obey Omens—The White Rabbit—A Pilot's Story.

"Railroad engineers, as a rule, are a superstitious class of persons," said an old railroad man. "They have foolish fancies and attach importance to signs and warnings; but I know of instances where hundreds of lives have been saved by engineers' fancies and superstitions. For over thirty years I have been a railroad conductor, and during that time I have seen and heard many things that under ordinary circumstances I would have discredited. One of the best engineers that ever ran on the West Shore Railroad was a man named Bronson. One morning, just before starting time, while he sat chatting with the fireman, the engine bell suddenly rang out three times. As neither the engineer nor fireman had touched the bell, and as no other person was on or around the engine, the men felt troubled over the strange circumstance. They regarded it as an ill omen and both men were filled with dread. The train started on its journey, and mile after mile was quickly traveled, the engineer meanwhile keeping an anxious lookout for danger. When within about an eighth of a mile of a rocky cut, the bell again, apparently of its own accord, sounded three ominous notes, clear and distinct. The engineer beside himself with terror, exclaimed: 'My God, Bill! It's a warning of some great danger, and I believe it's our duty to stop. I'm going to shut her down if I lose my place by it.' The engine came to a sudden standstill, and within ten feet of the engine, lying across the track was a great rock several tons in weight, which had become loosened by a recent storm, and broken away from the great mass above. A terrible calamity was averted and hundreds of lives saved.

"And now I'll tell you of another instance," continued the same speaker, "of how an engineer lost his life by not heeding a voice of warning. One of the most careful and trusted engineers on our road was James Welch. One morning his wife noticed that he was not in his usual cheerful frame of mind, and questioned him about it. He told her that he was not ill, but he said he had a premonition that he would be killed during the day. His wife, being a sensible woman, did not sneer or laugh at his fears, begged him to stay at home that day. Welch, who was a disbeliever in signs and omens, laughed at his fancies and went to his death. Two hours later the engineer was lying, crushed to death, at the bottom of a deep ravine."

"Yes, I know such things to be true," said another man. "Silly as it may seem, I wouldn't run a train after seeing a white rabbit cross the track, without first stopping to investigate, if I were to be made president of the road. I remember one dark night we were scooting across country at a pretty lively rate, when all of a sudden, I saw a white rabbit dart across the track just in front of the engine. The wee thing gave me such a look in that brief second that something compelled me to stop the train. The conductor and train men came rushing up to the engine to find out the cause of our sudden halt, and it didn't take long to find out either. Only a few feet ahead on the track were some heavy logs. They had most likely been placed there and tied down by tramps, who in the confusion of a frightful accident, such as would have taken place if I hadn't stopped the train, would have robbed and plundered the dead and dying passengers."

Making a Mandarin to Order.

John Jacob Astor was determined to send a ship to China in spite of the embargo of 1807-9. The astonishment of the ship owners of New York, whose vessels were lying idle in the docks, may be imagined when they read in the Commercial Advertiser of August 18, 1808, this piece of shipping news:

"Yesterday the ship Beaver, Captain Galloway, sailed for China."

Everybody knew that the ship Beaver was owned by John Jacob Astor. The other merchants of the city were naturally indignant when they heard that Mr. Astor had been so highly favored. At last it was discovered that he had a "special permission from the President of the United States for his ship Beaver, navigated by thirty seamen, ostensibly to carry home to Canton a great Chinese mandarin." It was said that Astor had picked up a Chinaman in the park, dressed him to fit the mandarin story, secured the presidential permit, and despatched his ship before the story got abroad. A rival merchant wrote to President Jefferson, informing him that the Chinese mandarin was no mandarin at all, but only a common Chinese dock loafer. The writer further suggested that, if the government had given the permit under a misunderstanding, the error should be corrected, and the honor of the administration vindicated by punishing the offender. Mr. Astor's friends called upon him that night and congratulated him upon the success of his enterprise, and they had a hearty laugh over the affair. He could well afford to laugh at the result of his brilliant coup, for the Beaver made so successful a voyage that she returned to New York the following year with $2,000,000 more than she carried away.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

He Hit It Twice.

The following is a report of eight tests of butter made by the United States internal revenue collector at Des Moines:

1. Butterine. Pronounced good butter.
2. Creamery butter two years old. Pronounced oleomargarine.
3. Fresh creamery butter, three ounces salt to the pound. Pronounced good butter.
4. Sample, one-third lard. Pronounced good butter.
5. Creamery, five ounces salt to pound, Pronounced good butter.
6. Creamery, churned at 73 degrees temperature. Pronounced oleomargarine.
7. Sample, half lard. Pronounced good butter.
8. Unsalted creamery from the churn. Pronounced oleomargarine.

It will be observed that the government inspector hit it twice out of eight times.

Trouble Ahead.

When the appetite fails, and sleep grows restless and unrefreshing, there is trouble ahead. The digestive organs, when healthy, crave food, the nervous system, when vigorous and tranquil, gives its possessor no uneasiness at night. A tonic, to be effective, should not be a mere appetizer, nor are the nerves to be strengthened and soothed by the unaided action of a sedative or a narcotic. What is required is a medicine which invigorates the stomach, and promotes assimilation of food by the system, by which means the nervous system, as well as other parts of the physical organism, are strengthened. These are the effects of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine whose reputation is founded firmly in public confidence, and which physicians commend for its tonic, anti-bilious and other properties. It is used with the best results in fever and ague, rheumatism, kidney and uterine weakness, and other maladies.

A LEGAL QUESTION.

Liability for Losses of Sheep by Dogs.

Not only is the owner of a dog liable for its acts, but any one who harbors it or allows it upon his premises is also liable. But a person is not responsible for the acts of a dog which he tries to drive away from his premises, or for those of a dog allowed to remain temporarily there, as in the case of one who keeps boarders and allows them to keep a dog on the premises; but in that case the owner of the dog is liable. The laws with regard to liability for injury done by dogs to sheep vary considerably in the different states. In Vermont, New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Ohio, California, Tennessee, Alabama, Minnesota, Oregon, Illinois, New Jersey and Mississippi the statutes expressly provide that any person may kill a dog found worrying or injuring sheep. In Michigan any person may without rendering himself liable to civil or criminal action, kill a dog he may see chasing, worrying, wounding, or killing sheep, swine, cattle, or any other domestic animal. In Maryland the owner of a dog is exempted from liability for sheep killed, if he kills the dog immediately on receiving notice of injury, but if he fails to do so, the owner of the sheep may kill the dog and recover double damages. In New Hampshire and Massachusetts the owner of any domestic animal, and in Wisconsin the owner of any sheep or lambs, may recover from the town for any injury inflicted by a dog. If he chooses, the owner of the injured animal may sue the owner of the dog, instead of claiming damages from the town; but if he prefers to prove his loss to the town supervisors, and accepts an order on the town treasurer for the amount, the claim is transferred to the town, which may recover against the owner of the dog; but the owner of the sheep cannot thereafter recover against him. In Rhode Island the first time a dog worries a sheep the owner can recover damages from the person who harbors or owns the dog. If after the first notice the dog is still allowed to live, and injures sheep again, his owner is liable for double damages, and the court may order the animal killed. In Alabama, California, Vermont, and Wisconsin double damages can also be recovered. In Connecticut whoever has lost by dogs worrying or killing his sheep must give notice to the town selectmen, and these may sue the owner or harborer of the offending dog, and unless the sheep owner is reimbursed by the suit, the town becomes liable for the damages. To provide a fund to meet this liability, dogs are licensed, and the license fees are held to meet such claims.

When several dogs belonging to different owners unite in committing mischief, at common law, each owner is liable only for the acts of his own animal. There would naturally be considerable difficulty in ascertaining the extent of the injury done by each dog, but the jury can adopt any reasonable rule for ascertaining the damages. If the animals are of unequal size, and have different capacities for mischief the jury may take into consideration the damage done by each in approximating the liabilities of the owners. By statute however, in Connecticut, Vermont and Ohio, the several owners of dogs that unite in mischief, are jointly liable therefor; while in Pennsylvania, each owner is liable for the whole injury in the doing of which his dog was jointly engaged.—Rural New Yorker.

A Merited Rebuke.

A gentleman prominent in legal circles in Boston was recently riding in a train, and in the seat before him was a young and gayly dressed damsel. The car was pretty full, and presently an elderly woman entered, and, finding no seat vacant but the one beside the young woman mentioned, sat down beside her. She was a decently dressed woman, but apparently of humble station, and she carried several clumsy bundles, which were evidently a serious annoyance to her seatmate. The young woman made no effort to conceal her vexation, but in the most conspicuous manner showed the passengers around her that she considered it an impertinent intrusion for the new-comer to presume to sit down beside her. In a few moments the old woman, depositing her packages upon the seat, went across the car to speak to an acquaintance she discovered on the opposite side of the aisle. The lawyer leaned forward to the offended young lady and courteously asked if she would change seats with him. A smile of gratified vanity showed how pleased she was to have attracted the notice of so distinguished-looking a gentleman. "Oh, thank you ever so much!" she said, effusively. "I should like to, but it would be as bad for you as for me to sit beside such an old woman." "I beg your pardon," he responded, with undiminished deference of manner; "it was not your comfort I was thinking of, but the old lady's."—Boston Record.

A Boston girl who wears glasses says that she admires pugilism, but considers it immodest to fight with bare knuckles.

Bodily pains are instantly relieved by the use of St. Jacobs Oil. Dr. R. Butler, Master of Arts, Cambridge University, England, says: "It acts like magic."

"Which is the better weather for your business," was asked a down-town bartender, hot or cold?" "It doesn't make much difference," he replied; "in hot weather they take a little something to cool 'em, and in cold weather they take a little something to warm 'em up."

Boards of Health endorse Red Star Cough Cure as a speedy and sure remedy for coughs and colds. Scientists pronounce it entirely vegetable and free from opiates. Price, twenty-five cents a bottle.

Pompous young lawyer to prisoner—As you have no counsel the court has deputed me to defend you. Prisoner—Am dat so? Young lawyer—Yes. Prisoner (to Judge)—Den I pleads guilty, yo' honah, an' frows myse'f on de mercy ob de court.

"Woman and Her Diseases" is the title of an interesting illustrated treatise (100 pages) sent, postpaid, for 10 cents in stamps. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

The book that makes the greatest stir in society is the plethoric pocketbook.

If Sufferers from Consumption,
Scrofula, Bronchitis and General Debility will try Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, they will find immediate relief and permanent benefit. The Medical Profession universally declare it a remedy of the greatest value and very palatable. Read: "I have used Scott's Emulsion in several cases of Scrofula and Debility in children. Results most gratifying. My little patients take it with pleasure."—W. A. Hulbert, M. D., Salisbury, Ill.

"Money is tight." No wonder. So much of it goes to the saloon.

FOOD makes Blood and Blood makes Beauty. Improper digestion of food necessarily produces bad blood, resulting in a feeling of fullness in the stomach, acidity, heartburn, sick headache, and other dyspeptic symptoms. A closely confined life causes indigestion, constipation, biliousness and loss of appetite. To remove these troubles there is no remedy equal to Prickly Ash Bitters. It has been tried and proven to be a specific.

No Opium in Piso's Cure for Consumption. Cures where other remedies fail. 25c.

INJUSTICE CORRECTED.

Convincing Verification of Widespread Public Statements.

TO THE READERS OF THIS PAPER.

In common with many publishers and editors, we have been accustomed to look upon certain statements which we have seen in our columns as merely adroit advertising.

Consequently we feel justified in taking the liberty of printing a few points from a private letter recently received from one of our largest patrons, as a sort of confession of faith to our readers. We quote:

"We have convinced ourselves that by telling what we know to be true, we have produced at last a permanent conviction in the public mind. Seven years ago we stated what the national disease of this country was, and that it was rapidly increasing. Three years ago we stated that a marked check had been given it.

"The statistics of one of the largest life insurance companies of this country shows that in 1883 and 1884, the mortality from kidney disorders did not increase over the previous years; other companies stated the same thing. It is not presumptuous for us to claim credit for checking these ravages.

"Seven years ago we stated that the condition of the kidneys was the key to the condition of health; within the past five years all careful life insurance companies have conceded the truth of this statement, for, whereas, ten years ago, chemical analysis to determine the condition of the kidneys was not required, to-day millions of dollars in risks are refused, because chemical examination discovers unsuspected diseases of the kidneys.

"Seven years ago we stated that the ravages of Bright's Disease were insignificant compared with other unsuspected disorders of the kidneys of many misleading names; that ninety-three per cent. of human ailments are attributable to deranged kidneys, which fills the blood with uric acid, or kidney poison, which causes these many fatal diseases.

"The uric acid, or kidney poison, is the real cause of the majority of cases of paralysis, apoplexy, heart disease, convulsions, pneumonia, consumption, and insanity; over half the victims of consumption are first the victims of diseased kidneys.

"When the recent death of an honored ex-official of the United States was announced, his physician said that although he was suffering from Bright's Disease, that was not the cause of death. He was not frank enough to admit that the apoplexy which overtook him in his bed, was the fatal effect of the kidney poison of the blood, which had eaten away the substance of the arteries and brain; nor was Logan's physician honest enough to state that his fatal rheumatism was caused by kidney acid in the blood.

"If the doctors would state in official reports the original cause of death, the people of this country would be alarmed, yes, nearly panic stricken, at the fearful mortality from kidney disorders."

The writers of the above letter give these facts to the public simply to justify the claims that they have made, that "if the kidneys and liver are kept in a healthy condition by the use of Warner's safe cure, which hundreds of thousands have proved to be a specific, when all other remedies failed, and that has received the endorsement of the highest medical talent in Europe, Australasia and America, many a life would be prolonged and the happiness of the people preserved. It is successful with so many different diseases because it and it alone, can remove the uric acid from the blood through the kidneys."

Our readers are familiar with the preparation named.

Commendation thereof has often appeared in our columns.

We believe it to be one of the best, if not the best ever manufactured. We know the proprietors are men of character and influence.

We are certain they have awakened a wide-spread interest in the public mind concerning the importance of the kidneys. We believe with them that they are the key to health, and that for their restoration from disease and maintenance in health, there is nothing equal to this great remedy.

The proprietors say they "do not glory in this universal prevalence of disease, but having started out with the purpose of spreading the merits of Warner's safe cure before the world, because it cured our senior proprietor, who was given up by doctors as incurable, we feel it our duty to state the facts and leave the public to its own inferences. We point to our claims, and to their public and universal verification with pride, and if the public does not believe what we say, we tell them to ask their friends and neighbors what they think about our preparations."

As stated above, we most cordially commend the perusal of this correspondence by our readers, believing that in so doing we are fulfilling a simple public obligation.

Correct Measurements.

Fashionable Young Woman (to dealer)—"I want to look at a cane that would be suitable for a birthday gift."

Dealer—"For a young or old gentleman, ma'am?"

Fashionable Young Woman—"Oh, quite young."

Dealer—"Do you know what size hat he wears?"

Fashionable Young Woman—"Five and a half, I think."

Dealer—"I see. The largest size will please him best. The smaller the hat, ma'am, the larger the cane."—Texas Siftings.

A Lucky Mortal.

For some months past Hostetter McGinnis has been paying such marked attention to the Longcoffin girls that they began to entertain hopes. All this was knocked in the head by a remark he made a few evenings ago.

"I've always had good luck in my love affairs," remarked Hostetter.

"But you are still single, Mr. McGinnis," exclaimed the Longcoffin girls in chorus.

"That's just what I mean," replied the heartless wretch.—Siftings.

"Yes; I shall break the engagement," she said, folding her arms and looking defiant: "it is really too much trouble to converse with him, he's as deaf as a post, and talks as if he had a mouthful of mush. Besides the way he hawks and spits is disgusting." "Don't break the engagement for that; tell him to take Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It will cure him completely." "Well, I'll tell him. I do hate to break it off, for in all other respects he's quite charming." Of course, it cured his catarrh.

The woman who neglects her husband's shirt front is no longer the wife of his bosom.

Everybody is enquiring for Hood's Calendar for 1887, because it is one of the most attractive bits of coloring which lithographic art has ever produced. It is a beautiful thing, the child's head being a pleasing study, which explains why so many applications are being received at the druggists for them. They can be obtained by sending ten cents in stamps to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

A wise night key—One that knows its own keyhole.

"Delays are Dangerous."

If you are pale, emaciated, have a hacking cough, with night-sweats, spitting of blood and shortness of breath, you have no time to lose. Do not hesitate too long—till you are past cure; for, taken in its early stages, consumption can be cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," as thousands can testify. By druggists.

The wind is not evidently tempered the shorn Wall street lamb.

A Great Offer.

No matter in what part you live, you had better write to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, without delay; they will send you free information about work that you can do and live at home, at a profit of from $5 to $25 and upwards daily. A number have earned over $50 in a day. Both sexes. All ages. You are started in business free. Capital not needed. Every worker who takes hold at once is absolutely sure of a snug little fortune. Now is the time.

The farmers, in their swamps, we're sure,
Could find the roots and plants that cure;
If by their knowledge they only knew
For just the disease each one grew.
Take courage now and "Swamp-Root" try—
(for kidney, liver and bladder complaints),
As on this remedy you can rely.

EVERYBODY who enjoys reading a first-class Family Story Paper should subscribe for THE CHICAGO LEDGER. It is the only $2 paper in the United States which is sold for $1.50. Sample copy free. Send for one. Address THE CHICAGO LEDGER, Chicago, Ill.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.
Send for Pamphlet on Female Diseases, free, securely sealed. Dr. J. B. Marchisi, Utica, N. Y.

Why He Prefers Mules.

The Allentown (Penn.) Register tells this story:—A well-known manufacturer of this city—it isn't necessary to give his name—finds it necessary to employ a double team to do his hauling. For several years he kept two horses, and while they did their work well he suddenly concluded to dispose of them and buy a pair of mules instead. He says that after the horses had done their day's or week's work he was continually annoyed by some of his friends or employes asking for the use of the horses to take pleasure drives. Not caring to offend them he frequently acceded to their requests, while all the time his better judgment told him that it was rough on the horses, which by their honest work were entitled to their just rest. This thing went on for awhile and our friend was pondering by day and by night how he could bring about a change. It occurred to him one day that mules were not very popular for pleasure driving purposes, but that they answered every other purpose of horses—in fact were in several respects preferable for his own use. So he concluded to sell his horses and get a mule team. His plan worked admirably, and the other day he informed us that since he got the mules he hasn't been asked once for their use by his friends or employes.

Something that will Interest the Afflicted.

(From the Weekly Record, Dundee, N. Y.)

There are many people in this country who are suffering untold agony from the ravages of diseases, who have been medicated until the very sound of the word "medicine" sends a thrill of horror through their sensitive organism, and yet they are still looking—looking for something that will prove a benefit to their shattered constitution and restore to them their health. To this class of sufferers the Record, without solicitation, desires to say a few words, not with the intent to advertise a man who to-day is doing more for this class of sufferers than pen can describe, but because we know, not only from personal experience, but from the experience of others, that what we are about to say in regard to Dr. Kilmer, of Binghamton, N. Y., and his Herbal Remedies are facts, and it is a pleasure to let the sufferer know that there is a Medicine that has done, and is still doing so much lasting benefit to the afflicted. Dr. Kilmer has been represented in the advertising columns of the Record for over two years, and during that period we have received many communications asking if his Remedies were as represented, and have always felt that we could safely recommend them. Dr. Kilmer is one of the best-read Physicians of the present day. He probably has the largest practice and examines and treats personally more patients at his large and fully equipped office in Binghamton yearly, than any other physician in the country.

These Herbal Remedies which he sends out are prepared and prescribed by him in his own private practice. Their component parts are carefully selected from Nature's great laboratory, and are compounded in a scientific manner so as to be especially adapted to the different forms of diseases for which they are used. They are the result of years of hard, patient study of the science of medicine.

There seems to be at the present time a tendency toward a great many Kidney, Liver and Bladder troubles with the people of this country, and we wish to speak more particularly about Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root Kidney, Liver and Bladder Cure. We will say on the outset, we are not writing sensational "gush" for Dr. Kilmer, but knowing personally as we do, of many important cures wrought from the use of this medicine, we believe it to be our duty to the afflicted to encourage them to avail themselves of the use of this valuable Remedy.

We know a Mr. Chas. E. Ros, of Unionville, Steuben Co., N. Y. who had Bright's disease, and was told by the best Physicians of Hornellsville, N. Y., that there was no hope for him, who was prevailed upon by a friend to try Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root Kidney Cure. He did so, without the least idea of being benefited, but the result was most gratifying to himself and family, for he was cured. Saved from death by that dreadful disease. Another case, that of Russell Sandford, of Wayne, Steuben Co., who had a terrible bowel difficulty which would not yield to the medical skill of good doctors, who, at our own solicitation, tried Swamp-Root, and he told us after using several bottles his trouble was removed, although he had no control over his bowels for a year previous to using the medicine and had been told that he would never be any better, and that his earthly career was limited. Our druggists here in Dundee tell us they have sold hundreds of bottles of this medicine and in no instance have they ever heard aught but praise from the persons using it. We might mention scores of similar cases that, to our own personal knowledge, have been helped out of serious trouble by using Swamp-Root. We hope it will help some one, and we have no fears of the result of a trial, by any one who is suffering with a Kidney, Liver or Bladder trouble. "It is worth its weight in gold."
W. W. Westcott, Editor.

If every man was as big as he feels there couldn't be standing room in this country.

Get Hood's

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion and preparation, curative power superior to any other article of the kind before the people. Be sure to get Hood's.

"I had been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for dyspepsia, and in one store where I tried to buy a bottle the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was, I had taken it, it agreed with me, I was perfectly satisfied with Hood's Sarsaparilla, and did not want any other. I am always glad to speak a good word for this excellent medicine."—Mrs. Ella A. Goff, 61 Terrace Street, Boston, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.
100 Doses One Dollar

WE WANT YOU! a live energetic man or woman needing profitable employment to represent us in every county. Salary $75 per month and expenses, or a large commission on sales if preferred. Goods staple. Every one buys. Outfit and particulars Free.
STANDARD SILVERWARE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

Young Men Can get the most Practical Business Education at Goldsmith's School of Business, 33½ S Broad St. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Circulars & Specimen of Penmanship.

J. P. STEVENS & BRO.
JEWELERS.
Atlanta, Ga.
Send for Catalogue.

ATLANTA
SAW WORKS.
Manufacturers of and Dealers in
Saws and Saw-Mill Supplies.
Repairing a Specialty.
Agents for L. Power & Company's Wood Working Machinery. Large and complete stock. Write for catalogue. ATLANTA, GA.

BUSINESS Education a specialty at MOORE'S BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, Ga. One of the best schools in the Country. Send for Circulars.

TAPEWORM CURE Illustrated Book sent FREE. Address A. M. BOCK, P. O. Box 466, Atlanta, Ga.

$15.00 Flat top No. 7 Cook Stove for $10.00 with fixtures. Send for catalogue. A. P. Stewart & Co., 49 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.

OPIUM HABIT absolutely cured. NOT A PARTICLE OF PAIN or self-denial. Pay when cured. Handsome book free. DR. C. J. WEATHERBY, Kansas City, Mo.

THURSTON'S IVORY PEARL TOOTH POWDER
Keeping Teeth Perfect and Gums Healthy.

PATENTS Obtained. Send stamp for Inventors' Guide. L. Bingham, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficent influence of
PRICKLY ASH BITTERS
It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health.
It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young.
As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

OAKLAWN
The Great Nursery of
PERCHERON HORSES.
200 Imported Brood Mares
Of Choicest Families.
LARGE NUMBERS,
All Ages, both Sexes,
IN STOCK.

300 to 400 IMPORTED ANNUALLY from France, all recorded with extended pedigrees in the Percheron Stud Books. The Percheron is the only draft breed of France possessing a stud book that has the support and endorsement of the French Government. Send for 120-page Catalogue, illustrations by Rosa Bonheur.
M. W. DUNHAM,
Wayne, DuPage Co., Illinois.

Ask your retailer for the James Means' $3 Shoe. Caution! Some dealers recommend inferior goods in order to make a larger profit. This is the original $3 Shoe. Beware of imitations which acknowledge their own inferiority by attempting to build upon the reputation of the original. None Genuine unless bearing this Stamp.
JAMES MEANS'
For Gentlemen. $3 SHOE.

Made in Button, Congress and Lace. Best Calf Skin. Unexcelled in Durability, Comfort and Appearance. A postal card sent to us will bring you information how to get this Shoe in any State or Territory.
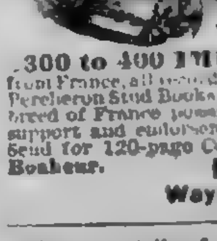
J. Means & Co
41 Lincoln St, Boston, Mass.

Our celebrated factory produces a larger quantity of Shoes of this grade than any other factory in the world. Thousands who wear them will tell you the reason if you ask them. JAMES MEANS' $2 SHOE for Boys is unsurpassed in Durability.



JONES
HE PAYS the FREIGHT
5 Ton Wagon Scales,
Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box for $60.
Every size Scale. For free price list mention this paper and address
JONES OF BINGHAMTON,
BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

Marvellous Memory DISCOVERY.
Wholly unlike Artificial Systems—Cure of Mind Wandering—Any book learned in one reading. Heavy reductions for postal class. Prospectus, with opinions of Mr. Proctor, the Astronomer, Hons. W. W. Astor, Judah P. Benjamin, Drs. Minor, Wood and others, sent post free, by
PROF. LOISETTE,
237 Fifth Avenue, New York.

DR. KILMER'S SWAMP-ROOT KIDNEY LIVER & BLADDER CURE. Price 25¢, $1.00 & For $5.00.
"Jones! What are you talking about?" What every body talks about. They say that for Bright's Disease, Kidney, Liver or Bladder complaints, this remedy has no equal." It goes right to the Spot. Prepared at Dr. Kilmer's Dispensary, Binghamton, N.Y. Letters of inquiry answered. Guide to Health (Sent Free).

SOUTHERN SEED for SOUTHERN SOIL
Being desirous of having some of our seed planted in every garden in the South, and knowing, as we do, there are no purer or better stocks offered in the United States than ours, if you will send us $1.00 we will send to any address thirty papers of our regular size packets of Garden Seed (your own selection) and a quarter pound of Pride of Georgia Melon Seed. Southern Seed Company, Seed Growers, Macon, Ga. Send for our price list of all varieties of field and garden seed.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for

I like your "Tansill's Punch" cigars very much, and wish to have the exclusive sale in this place, and will do all I can to push them. I believe in advertising, and am taking pains to distribute the circulars where they will do the most good.
C. V. Elliott, Mansfield, Pa.
Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

WELL DRILLING
Machinery for Wells of any depth, from 20 to 3,000 feet, for Water, Oil or Gas. Our Mounted Steam Drilling and Portable Horse Power Machines set to work in 20 minutes. Guaranteed to drill faster and with less power than any other. Specially adapted to drilling Wells in earth or rock 20 to 1,000 feet. Farmers and others are making $25 to $40 per day with our machinery and tools. Splendid business for Winter or Summer. We are the oldest and largest Manufacturers in the business. Send 4 cents in Stamps for illustrated Catalogue H. Address,
Pierce Well Excavator Co., New York.

ACME PULVERIZING HARROW,
Clod Crusher and Leveler.
The Best Tool in the world for preparing corn, cotton and other ground. D. H. NASH, Sole Manuf'r, 44 West Main St., Louisville, Ky.

HARTSHORN'S Shade Rollers BEST
BEWARE OF IMITATIONS

DO YOU WANT A DOG
DOG BUYERS' GUIDE, Colored plates, 100 engravings of different breeds, prices they are worth, and where to buy them. Mailed for 15 Cents.
ASSOCIATED FANCIERS,
237 S. Eighth St. Philadelphia, Pa.

ASTHMA CURED!
German Asthma Cure never fails to give immediate relief in the worst cases, insures comfortable sleep; effects cures where all others fail. A trial convinces the most skeptical. Price 50 cts. and $1.00, of Druggists or by mail. Sample FREE for stamp. DR. R. SCHIFFMAN, St. Paul, Minn.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. Refer to 1000 patients cured in all parts. Dr. Marsh, Quincy, Mich.

Blair's Pills. Great English Gout and Rheumatic Remedy. Oval Box $1.00; round, 50 cts.

Pensions to Soldiers & Heirs. Send stamp for circulars. COL. L. BINGHAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Address Brewster's Safety Rein Holder, Holly, Mich.

OPIUM Habit Cured. Treatment sent on trial. Humane Remedy Co., LaFayette, Ind.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

Rates of Advertising.

One Dollar per Square, of one inch space or less, for the first, and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion.

Spaces.	3 m.	6 m.	12 m.
1 Inch	$ 5 00	$ 7 00	$ 11 25
2 Inches	7 00	11 15	15 00
3 Inches	10 00	16 00	22 50
4 Inches	12 50	19 00	27 00
5 Inches	15 00	22 50	30 00
¼ Column	18 00	27 00	40 00
½ Column	27 00	40 00	60 00
1 Column	40 00	60 00	100 00

The Chilton View.

W. H. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors.

"WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION."

TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1887. NUMBER 16.

Special Advertising.

Business Notices Ten Cents per line each insertion.

Obituaries and Tributes of Respect, half rates.

Announcing candidates for office, Five Dollars, strictly in advance.

Communications recommending candidates for office will be treated as advertisements and charged for accordingly.

Liberal contracts made with those advertising by the year.

The money is due on all advertising after the first publication.

A curious mistake has been made in Mexico. The people of that country have mistaken a Frenchman named Thiers, who is visiting the Republic, for the late President of France. The presiding officer of the Mexican Chamber made him an address and a dinner was given in his honor.

General Grant was an excellent draughtsman, but the only oil painting he put his name to is a frontier landscape with Indian figures, which he gave to ex-Secretary Borie. Mr. Borie's nephew, who has become the owner of the picture, has presented it to Mrs. Grant. It is the only specimen of her husband's art work in her possession.

A Georgia paper publishes as truth the story of a Marion county farmer who became satisfied that he had a tapeworm. So he carefully baited a little fishhook, tied a short line to it, swallowed the hook, and tied the line to his buttonhole. Then he waited for a bite. By and by he thought he had one and yanked the line; the hook caught in his throat and had to be dug out. He didn't catch the worm.

Every nation, every city, every town, every community is just what the people make it. A live, progressive people will build up a prosperous town or city where the natural conditions are even unfavorable, while a careless, indolent population will accomplish little, however great the natural advantages of their localities may be. An intelligent traveler can form a correct opinion of the character of the people of a town by passing through it.

Frank Weigman, who died in Cincinnati recently, was born in 1781 in Westphalia. When a boy eighteen years old he entered the English army, and subsequently became a soldier of Frederick II. of Prussia. He fought in the war against Napoleon, and was one of Blucher's men at the battle of Waterloo, when he received a sword thrust which marked him for life. He came to America when he was ninety years old, and on the 26th of last October he celebrated his 105th birthday. He was but four feet and a few inches in height, and as spry and active as a boy of sixteen. His hearing, eyesight and appetite were excellent. He left twenty-three grandchildren and eighteen great grandchildren. His brother died some time ago in Germany at the age of 103, and his mother died at ninety-nine.

Dr. Frank Hamilton, acknowledged to be the most skillful specialist of his time in the treatment of gunshot wounds, located the bullet from Guiteau's pistol in President Garfield's body at a point more than a foot from that at which it was actually found, according to a report of the autopsy given by an eye-witness, and now published for the first time. And Dr. Hamilton had the testimony of the electric induction balance to guide him, and had also experimented upon a cadaver at one of our medical colleges to determine the penetrative power and probable course of the ball after it entered the body. All of which shows, Frank Leslie's Newspaper sagely remarks, how little doctors actually know of what is going on inside of the human body. It is no discredit to them that they don't know more; but those that employ them should remember the limitations to which they are necessarily subject.

In a recent patent decision by Judge Shipman of the United States Circuit Court the following rules were laid down concerning improvements on inventions already in existence: A new combination of old parts for attaining an object may sometimes, and perhaps often, be so obvious as to merit no title to invention. While in ordinary cases of new combinations of old parts for attaining an object novelty and utility are evidences of invention, there should be other evidence to show that it exists. Evidence of invention, in addition to novelty and utility, may often be found in the machine itself, which shows that it came from a creative mind, or the necessary evidence may sometimes be found in the history of the invention. In this case the patentee accomplished a new and beneficial result by means which others had been near to and apparently wanted to find, but did not see. Held that he was entitled to be styled an inventor.

United States Senator Leland Stanford is having the plans drawn for a new $500,000 yacht. It will probably be built in San Francisco. The designer is Capt. Lundberg of the Swedish navy. Capt. Lundberg claims that he can build a ship which will make an average speed of twenty-four knots an hour and possess greater carrying capacity than any of the fast trans-Atlantic steamers. Until he met Senator Stanford he could find neither a government nor a private individual who was willing to test the experiment. Senator Stanford finally became interested in the matter. His fortune of $50,000,000 yields him an enormous annual income, and $500,000 of this sum he has decided to expend in the interest of commerce. The yacht, when finished will be turned over to the Government for the exact amount it will cost to build her, if so desired. She could readily be converted into a dispatch boat, or, if necessary, a gunboat of extraordinary speed and utility.

THE OLD MEETING-HOUSE.

It stood there on the sloping green,
Near the margin of the wood,—
The narrow graveyard lay between,
Where the gray stones silent stood;
Beneath them slept the true and kind,—
And—ah, how near and dear!
Nay, none 'neath those green mounds confined
Were buried without a tear.

The old house walls were warped and seamed,
And the roof was frayed and worn.—
The low door where the sunlight streamed
In the summer Sabbath morn,
Bore impress of the ceaseless tread,—
Through the unremembered years,—
Of passing pilgrims, long since dead,
And gone from a vale of tears.

In fancy—lo, the pulpit plain,—
The benches of yellow pine;
And hark the simple, sweet refrain
Of music that seemed divine;
Songs more melodious to my ear
Than strains of cathedral grand;
E'en now their echo I seem to hear,
Float back from the heav'nly land.

My father's voice there read the Word,
There my mother sat so meek—
Her fair face told her heart was stirred,
And her God not far to seek;
Oh, bless that mother, sweet and mild,
Her days have been lengthened long;
She'll not forget her weary child
When she joins the angel throng.

That chapel old—ah, nevermore
Will it sound with praise and prayer;
Those scenes are now forever o'er—
It standeth no longer there;
And they who sought, in years agone,
Those benches of yellow pine,
Have bid farewell and journeyed on,
To the longed-for home divine.

—F. A. Simkins, in Boston Courier.

M. SASSON'S VALET.

In 1865 M. Paul Sasson resided on the Boulevard de Neuilly, Paris. He was a speculator and financier and about 50 years of age. He was married and had a daughter Corinne and a son Charles. He kept up an expensive establishment and was reputed rich. Early in the year named he became reserved and morose and was constantly talking to his family about their extravagance and the necessity of reducing expenses. At length he grew almost violent in his conduct toward his family and the greatest forbearance had to be exercised by them.

Oct 21 M. Sasson went to the city early. About noon he returned with a van, and set several men to work removing the pictures from the parlors. He was very stern, and took no notice of his family, who did not expostulate. He returned to the city, and was not home until late. The next morning at breakfast he informed his family that he was about to curtail his establishment, and to that end had resolved to move into a smaller and less pretentious dwelling.

"Have you suffered such heavy losses as to render this necessary?" his wife asked. "It is very inopportune just at this juncture, when Corinne expects soon to receive a proposal of marriage."

"Let her marry whom she pleases," he replied, roughly; "she will soon bring him to poverty with her extravagance."

"She is sought by a worthy gentleman," the son said, "and the connection is in every way desirable."

"It is proper for you not to interfere in such matters," the father said; "you will have enough to do to attend to your own cares in life. You have already failed in two examinations at college, and have shown yourself incompetent for anything."

"I am competent," the son replied, with warmth, "to protect my mother and sister."

"Insolent!" exclaimed his father; and, rushing toward him, he clenched his fist as though to strike him.

Mme. Sasson interposed her person between the irate man and his son. M. Sasson ground his teeth with rage, and then struck his wife a violent blow over the side of the head. The son was ready to grapple with his father, but his mother entreated him to forbear. Soon afterward M. Sasson quitted the house.

After a brief consultation Mme. Sasson resolved to seek refuge with her sister, and her children agreed to accompany her. Trunks were hastily packed and preparations made for immediate departure. While her children were engaged in this work Mme. Sasson went to a bureau where her husband kept a revolver.

"If he should return and see us preparing for departure he might do something desperate," she said to herself.

She took the pistol from the drawer; and holding it among the folds of her dress went to her apartments. As she quitted the library she found M. Sasson's valet at the door. He turned aside and made no remark, and she passed on in silence. On reaching the apartments occupied by herself and her husband, she found her children busy packing. She placed the revolver behind a vase on the mantelpiece without being observed.

When M. Sasson returned home in the evening he found his house deserted. The valet told him that his wife and children had departed together, having first packed several trunks, which they had taken with them.

"I saw madame go to your bureau in the library," the valet said at the conclusion of his story.

M. Sasson went to the library and examined the bureau.

"My revolver has been removed," he said.

"I saw madame quit the library," the valet said, "holding by her side something which was concealed by the drapery."

In the evening Mme. Sasson discovered that she had left a large sum of money in her boudoir. She had immediate need of this sum, and how to get it was the subject of much thought. She determined to say nothing of it to her children for fear Charles should insist upon going to their former residence for it, and thus perhaps be brought into collision with his father. Finally she devised a scheme. She had the keys of the side entrance to the garden and of a private entrance from the garden to the house. She thought that in the darkness she could easily find admission to the dwelling-house, reach unperceived the boudoir, procure the money, and return without any one's being the wiser for her adventure. To get her children out of the way she suggested that they should visit her brother, who resided a mile away, and communicate to him the step she had taken. As soon as they were gone she quitted her sister's house unknown to any one but her maid, whom she had taken with her, and, procuring a cab, went to within a hundred yards of her former residence in the Boulevard de Neuilly. Directing the driver to wait for her return she went toward the dwelling, opening the gate into the garden with caution; she left it ajar and crossed the lawn to a side door. This she also left ajar, being afraid that the closing of it might arouse the inmates. Without difficulty or molestation she ascended the stairs and succeeded in getting possession of the money. She quitted the house, still leaving the side door ajar, but on passing out of the garden she closed the gate and hastily walked toward the cab. She reached her sister's house before her children returned and without her absence having been noticed.

The next morning M. Sasson failed to call for his valet as usual. After waiting for some time, according to the valet's statement, he went to his master's apartment and found him lying in bed with a bullet hole in his head. On the coverlet lay his revolver. His watch and purse were missing. His wardrobe had been ransacked and his escritoire broken open. There was no doubt that the assassin had been at work.

The Judge of Instruction and his officers investigated the case and arrived at the conclusion that murder and robbery had been done.

The valet told what he knew about the family troubles and the fact of Mme. Sasson and her children having left their home the previous day on account of what had passed between monsieur and his wife and son. Then the valet related the incident of the revolver.

But how had any one entered the house? Jean Chauban, the valet, testified that early in the morning, as he was taking the milk at the garden floor, he observed that the side door of the house was ajar, and going in that way closed it after him. The garden was high, but an expert climber could easily scale it on either side.

The gendarmes on duty near by testified that between 10 and 11 o'clock the previous night he saw a cab standing within a few hundred feet of the house. He spoke with the driver, who said:

"A very comely woman has just disappeared by the side of that house."

The cabman was easily found by the police. Did he know the lady? No. Where did he take her up? On the corner of the Rue de Morny and the Faubourg St. Honore. Mme. Sasson's sister resided on the Rue de Morny near the Rue de Ponthieu. It was a very painful conclusion to reach, but there was no avoiding it—Mme. Sasson had assassinated her husband and the missing articles were taken merely to turn aside suspicion. She had lived unhappily with him; he had determined to reduce his establishment; he had struck her! All these facts were testified to by domestics. Then came the episode of the pistol, narrated by the valet, and the further fact, admitted by Mme. Sasson's maid when she was cleverly captured on the street and removed to the office of the Judge of Instruction, that Mme. Sasson had a key to the garden and the side door of the house, and that she had been absent from her sister's house for two hours between 9:30 and 11:30 the night of October 22.

Everything being thus clear, Mme. Sasson was arrested and charged with the crime of murder. Mme. Sasson denied the accusation and told the story as the reader has it before him, omitting the episode of the pistol.

"Do you remember going to the bureau in the library before you left the house October 22?" the Judge of Instruction asked her.

"Yes, I do."

"You took a revolver out of the bureau, and you haven't mentioned the fact."

"I did; but I refrained from saying anything about it because I did not wish to have to say that I was afraid my husband might shoot one or the other of us."

"What did you do with the pistol?"

"I put it behind a vase on the mantelpiece in my husband's apartment, intending to remove it, but I forgot it."

In consultation afterward the Judge said to Goupe, a detective:

"This woman does not talk nor look like a guilty person. If she is not guilty—and, mark you, she has just the sum of money she says she went for to her boudoir, and the missing watch has not been found near her or about her—if she is not the assassin, how came the murderer to find the pistol hidden behind the vase? You have seen the vase, and know just how and where she laid it. Is it possible that any one whom Mme. Sasson left behind her did the deed?"

This suggestion put the detective on a line of inquiry, and he pursued it with vigor, but found no clew. Mme. Sasson was convicted of the killing of her husband and sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment.

Jean Chauban, the former valet of M Sasson, assumed the name of Roumaine and opened a wineshop in the Rue Greuse, near the Bois de Boulogne. Six months after Mme. Sasson's conviction, in the spring of 1866, Detective Goupe was looking for a wandering swindler who had cheated several charitable ladies in the suburbs of the city. In his wanderings Goupe dropped into the wineshop of Jean Roumaine, and was soon on friendly terms with that gentleman; for he immediately identified him, elaborately transformed as he was, as M. Sasson's former valet, whom he had watched for a month, in various disguises, to see whether he could connect him with the crime of October 22d.

M. Roumaine had a splendid gold chain on his vest, and Goupe asked him the time. He pulled out the elegant repeater, which Goupe had no hesitation in saying exactly answered the description of the watch stolen from M. Sasson when he was murdered.

"A fine watch," said the officer.

"Yes—a present from a dead friend," answered Roumaine.

"Ah, very precious, no doubt," said the officer.

"A sad remembrance," was the reply, with an assumed look of sorrow.

"I once knew a gentleman who had a watch just like that," said the detective, "and, strange to say, he is dead also."

"A coincidence," said the valet. "Won't monsieur drink?"

"Thanks," was the reply. "It is a strange coincidence, and, would you believe it, my friend was murdered. Why, monsieur, what is the matter with you? Was your friend murdered also?"

"No, no, not that, monsieur," was the answer; "but your words startled me. Murder, you see, is such a dreadful thing, and one never knows, in this great city, who he has near him."

"That is very true," said the officer, "my poor friend, for instance, didn't know. Listen, it is very strange. The jury said that my friend was murdered by his wife—think of that; but I say he was murdered by his valet."

Roumaine, pale as a ghost, was staring with alarmed gaze right at the officer and clinging with both hands to the counter.

"Let us drink," said the officer, apparently not noticing the state in which Roumaine was. Goupe filled his glass with brandy and Roumaine did the same.

"You feel strong and refreshed?" asked the officer. "Just so; now, if you please, you will put on your coat and come along with me, Jean Chauban, for you're wanted for the murder of M. Sasson."

As Goupe covered the man with his revolver at the moment he uttered these words there was no help for him. Quietly and without any show of resistance, Roumaine went with the officer. The watch in his possession, the money which he had invested in the wineshop were evidence against him, and at length he broke down and confessed his guilt.

"I saw madame quitting her boudoir on the night of October 22 and followed her to the garden. I saw her leave the door ajar and go out by the garden. It at once struck me that here was a good chance to rob my master and lay it to his wife. After she and the children had quitted the house I searched for the pistol and found it behind the vase. After I was sure that monsieur was fast asleep I got the revolver and went to his room. He had drank heavily before retiring, but to my surprise he awoke as I was rummaging the wardrobe. He cried: 'Thieves!' and was about to get out of bed, when I fired and he fell back dead. Then I gathered all the plunder I could and hid it away. I did not volunteer too much information during the investigation, because I thought the evidence would convict Mme. Sasson without much say on my part."

It is needless to say that Mme. Sasson was released and Jean Chauban sent to the gallows.

Fruit From the Tropics.

The banana, orange, lemon and pineapple might almost be termed naturalized, so common have they become. But there are other fruits which are so very foreign that we have no English names for them. There is the zapote, for example, which grows in Mexico, South America and the West Indies. The flavor of this fruit is sweet and pleasant. No care is required to bring it to maturity. It is as wild as the acorn, though more toothsome. Another foreign fruit is the caimitos, which grows on a tree as large as our apple tree. This is served for dessert and has a mildly tart flavor. From Peru comes the chirimoyas. Larger than the apple is the mamayes. This has a rough skin and pink interior, and is coarse in flavor. In shape it resembles somewhat the pumpkin. Widely known is guava jelly, which is made from the guava fruit, which grows wild, and is much like the apple in firmness, although resembling in appearance the apricot. With most Northerners it is an acquired taste, being considered at first rather too sweet. Of the grapefruit class is the fruita bomba. The outer covering of this is quite bitter and must be removed from the pulp, which is most delicious.

By the various names of aguacates, avagodo pear and alligator pear is known a peculiar fruit, shaped like a large pear and weighing sometimes as much as three pounds. The shell is smooth and tough. In the centre is a large pit about as hard as a horse chestnut. A curious thing about the pit is the fact that it will make a brownish mark which is indelible. This avagodo pear is also called subaltern's butter, for which it makes an excellent substitute. It is made into a salad in the West Indies and is a popular dish, being much affected by the soldiers. The mango, or West India peach, stands very high among tropical fruits. It has a smooth skin and is of brilliant hues, green, gold and crimson. There is at first a slight suggestion of turpentine in its flavor, but to this one soon becomes accustomed, and all find it a most delightful fruit.

Of course the orange and banana come to us in the greatest perfection. They can be plucked green and will ripen on the voyage, which cannot be done with the pineapple. Larger than the banana is the plantain, which it resembles. In southern countries it is much used for cooking purposes, being baked or fried like our apples, and is a staple article of food. The cassava, or bread fruit, is not often imported. From this is made cassava bread, the chief food of the poorer classes. The yucca and the yam are roots of the potato variety, much esteemed by the negroes. In their season many of these fruits may be purchased in New York, and the demand for them is increasing.—New York Mail and Express.

Sounds and Echoes.

As the ear cannot distinguish between two sounds occurring at an interval of less than one-sixteenth of a second, that time must necessarily elapse between the utterance of a sound and its return to form an echo. An echo is simply a sound reflected from some opposing body, which must be thirty-five feet away from the cause of the sound. The sound will have to pass through seventy feet, and this will take about one-sixteenth of a second—since sound travels at the rate of 1,100 feet per second—so that the direct and reflected sounds may be distinct. The further the reflecting body is away the longer of course will the sound take to reach the ear after reflection.

A Snug Sum.

Wife (reading the paper)—"Here is an account of a man in Iowa who has sold his wife for seventy-five dollars. Isn't it dreadful?"

Husband (thoughtfully)—"Well, I dunno. Seventy-five dollars is a good deal of money."—New York Sun.

A scheme is being promoted by some French capitalists for the construction of a railway through a tunnel to be carried under the sound from Denmark to Sweden.

DR. TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"PILLARS OF SMOKE."

TEXT: "Who is this that cometh out of the wilderness like pillars of smoke?"—Solomon's Song, iii., 6.

The architecture of the smoke is wondrous, whether God with His finger curls it into a cloud, or rounds it into a dome, or points it in a spire, or spreads it in a wing; or, as in the text, hoists it in a pillar. Watch it winding up from the country farmhouse in the early morning, showing that the pastoral industries have begun; or see it ascending from the chimneys of the city, telling of the homes fed, the factories turning out valuable fabric, the printing-presses preparing book and newspaper, and all the ten thousand wheels of work in motion. On a clear day this vapor spoken of mounts with such buoyancy, and spreads such a delicate veil across the sky, and traces such graceful lines of circle, semi-circle and wave, and tosses, and sinks, and soars, and scatters with such affluence of shape, and color, and suggestiveness, that if you have never noticed it you are like a man who has all his life lived in Paris and yet never seen the Luxembourg, or all his life in Rome and never seen the Vatican, or all his life at Lockport and never seen Niagara. Forty-four times the Bible speaks of the smoke, and it is about time that somebody preaches a sermon recognizing this strange, weird, beautiful, elastic, charming, terrific and fascinating vapor. Across the Bible sky floats the smoke of Sinai, the smoke of Sodom, the smoke of Ai, the smoke of the pit, the smoke of the volcanic hills when God touches them, and in my text the glorious Church of God coming up out of the wilderness like pillars of smoke.

In the first place, these pillars of smoke in my text indicate the suffering the Church of God has endured. What do I mean by the Church? I mean not a building, not a sect, but those who in all ages and all lands, and of all beliefs, love God and are trying to do right. For many centuries the heavens have been black with the smoke of martyrdom. If set side by side you could girdle the earth with the fires of persecution. Rowland Taylor burned at Hadleigh; Latimer burned at Oxford; John Rogers burned at Smithfield; John Hooper burned at Gloucester; John Huss burned at Constance; Laurence Saunders burned at Coventry; Joan of Arc burned at Rouen: Protestants have sometimes pointed to the Catholics as having a monopoly of persecutors; but both Protestant and Catholic have practiced infamous cruelties. The Catholics during the reign of Hunneric were by Protestants put to the worst tortures, stripped of their clothing, hoisted in the air by pulleys with weights suspended from their feet, then let down, and ears and eyes, nose and tongue were amputated, and red-hot plates of iron were put against the tenderest part of their bodies. George Bancroft, the historian, says of the State of Maryland: "In the land which Catholics had opened to Protestants mass might not be said publicly; no Catholic priest or bishop might utter his faith in a voice of persuasion; no Catholic might teach the young. If a wayward child of a Papist would but become an apostate, the law wrested for him from his parents a share of their property. Such were the methods adopted to prevent the growth of Popery." Speaking of Ireland, Bancroft, the historian, says: "Such priests as were permitted to reside in Ireland were required to be registered, and were kept like prisoners at large within prescribed limits. All Papists exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction, all monks, friars and regular priests, and all priests not then actually in parishes and to be registered were banished from Ireland under pain of transportation, and, on return, of being hanged, drawn and quartered."

Catholicism as well as Protestantism has had its martyrs. It does seem as if when any one sect got complete dominancy in any land the devil of persecution and cruelty took possession of that sect. Then see the Catholics after the Hugenots. See the Gentiles after the Jews in Touraine, where a great pit was dug and fire lighted at the bottom of the pit, and 160 Jewish victims were consumed. See the Presbyterian Parliament of England, more tyrannical in their treatment of opponents than had been the criminal courts. Persecution against the Baptists by Pedo-Baptists. Persecution of the Established Church against the Methodist Church. Persecution against the Quakers. Persecution against the Presbyterians. Under Emperor Diocletian one hundred and forty-four thousand Christians were massacred, and seven hundred thousand more of them died from banishment and exposure. Witness the sufferings of the Wallenses, of the Albigenses, of the Nestorians. Witness St. Bartholemew's massacre. Witness the Duke of Alva driving out of life eighteen thousand Christians. Witness Herod, and Nero, and Decius, and Hildebrand, and Torquemada, and Earl of Montfort, and Lord Claverhouse, who, when told that he must give account for his cruelties said: "I have no need to account to man, and as for God I will take Him in my own hands." A red line runs through the church history of nineteen hundred years, a line of blood. Not by the hundreds of thousands, but by the millions, must we count those slain for Christ's sake. No wonder John Milton put the groans of the martyrs to an immortal tune, writing:

"Avenge, O Lord, thy slaughtered saints whose bones
Lie scattered on the Alpine mountains cold."

The smoke of martyrs' homes and martyrs' bodies, if rolling up all at once, would have eclipsed the noonday sun and turned the brightest day the world ever saw into a midnight. "Who is this that cometh up out of the wilderness like pillars of smoke?"

Has persecution ceased? Ask that young man who is trying to be a Christian in a store or factory, who is the butt of all the mean witticisms of unbelieving employes. Ask that wife whose husband makes her fondness for the house of God and even her kneeling prayer by the bedside a derision and is no more fit for her holy companionship than a filthy crow would be fit companion for a robin or a golden oriole. Compromise with the world and surrender to its conventionalities and it may let you alone, but all who will live godly in Christ Jesus must suffer persecution. Be a theatre-going, card-playing, wine drinking, round dancing Christian, and you may escape criticism and social pressure. But be an up and down, out and out follower of Christ, and worldling will wink to worldling as he speaks your name, and you will be put in many a doggerel and snubbed by those not worthy to blacken your oldest shoes. When the bridge at Ashtabula broke and let down the most of the carload of passengers to instant death, Mr. P. P. Bliss was seated on one side of the aisle of the car writing down a Christian song which he was composing, and on the other side a group of men were playing cards. Whose landing-place in eternity would you prefer—that of P. P. Bliss, the Gospel singer, or of the card players?

The great complaint comes from the theatres about the ladies' high hats, because they obstruct the view of the stage, and a lady reporter asked me the other day what I thought about it, and I told her that if the indecent pictures of actresses in the show windows of Brooklyn and New York were accurate pictures of what goes on in many of the theatres night by night, then it would be well if the ladies' hats were a mile high, so as to completely obstruct the vision. If professed Christians go to such places during the week, no one will ever persecute them for their religion, for they have none and they are the joke of hell. But let them live a consecrated and Christian life and they will soon run against sneering opposition. For a compromise Christian an easy time now, but for consecrated behavior, grimace and caricature. In America there are no swords or fiery stakes, but there in a figurative sense, rack, and gibbet, and Torquemada. The symbol of the domestic and social and private and public suffering of a great multitude of God's dear children, pillars of smoke.

What an exciting scene in India when during the Sepoy rebellion a regiment of Highlanders came up and found the dead body of one of General Wheeler's daughters, who had been insulted and mauled and slain by the Sepoys. So great was the wrath against these murderers that the Scotch regiment sat down, and cutting off the hair of this dead daughter of General Wheeler, they divided it among them, and each one counted the number of hairs given him, and each took an oath, which was executed, that for each hair of the murdered daughter they would dash out the life of a miserable Sepoy. But as we look over the story of those who in all ages have suffered for the truth, while we leave vengeance to the Lord, let us band together in one solemn vow, one tremendous oath, after having counted the host of the martyrs, that for each one of those glorious men and women who died for the truth, an immortal soul shall live, live with God and live forever.

But, as I already hinted in the first sentence of this sermon, nothing can be more beautiful than the figures of smoke on a clear sky. You can see what you will in the contour of this volatile vapor, now enchanted castles, now troops of horsemen, now bannered procession, now winged couriers, now a black angel of wrath under a spear of the sunshine turned to an angel of light, and now from horizon to horizon the air is a picture gallery filled with masterpieces of which God is the artist, morning clouds of smoke born in the sunrise, and evening clouds of smoke laid in the burnished sepulchres of the sunset.

The beauty of the transfigured smoke is a divine symbol of the beauty of the Church. The fairest of all the fair is she. Do not call those persecutors of whom I spoke the Church. They are the parasites of the Church, not the Church itself. Her mission is to cover the earth with a supernatural gladness, to open all the prison doors, to balsam all the wounds, to moss all the graves, to burn up the night in the fireplace of a great morning, to change iron handcuffs into diamonded wristlets, to turn the whole race around, and whereas it faced death, commanding it: "Right about face for heaven!" According to the number of the spires of the churches in all our cities, towns and neighborhoods, are the good homes, the worldly prosperities, and the pure morals, and the happy souls.

Meet me at any depot the world over, and with my eyes closed take me by the hand and lead me so that my feet will not stumble, and without my once looking down, or looking on the level, take me to some high roof or tower and let me see the tops of the churches, and I will tell you the proportion of suicides, of arsons, of murders, of thefts. According as the churches are numerous are the crimes few. According as the churches are few the crimes are numerous. The most beautiful organization the world ever saw or ever will see is the much-maligned Church, the friend of all good, the foe of all evil, "fair as the moon and clear as the sun." Beautiful in her author, beautiful in her mission, the heroine of the centuries, the bride of Christ, the queen of the nations. There are hundreds of kindly institutions, some caring for inebriates, some for the crippled, some for the imbecile, some for the misled, some for the blind, but the Church is the mother of all these kindly institutions. There are asylums, American, or English, or Scotch, or Irish, or French, or Germany, or Italian, but the Church spreads her mantle over all these, and will yet spread it over all nations. Her gates are beautiful, her songs are beautiful, her prayers are beautiful, her convocations are beautiful, her work is beautiful. All Kings and warriors will yet bow down at her altars, all chains of serfdom be shattered against her doorsten, all nations will yet follow her leading. How amiable are thy tabernacles! How sacred thy altars! How glorious thy auditoriums! So graceful, so aspiring, so grand, and rolling on, and rolling up, we cry out in regard to her: "Who is she that cometh out of the wilderness like pillars of smoke?"

Men may desecrate it, as Cromwell when he stabled his cavalry horses in St Paul's Cathedral; or break off the image of Christ, as did the iconoclasts in York Minster; or hurl against it august literary antipathies, as did Gibbon; or plot its overthrow, as do some in every community whose pride and hate and debauchery are reproved by the Ten Commandments which it thunders, and the Sermon on the Mount which it breathes. But it will stand as long as the earth stands, the same unique, and wonder-working, beatific, and miraculous thing for which God decreed it. Small wits tax their brain to say things that will put her at disadvantage, but many of them will send for its condolence when dying, and their children will be gathered up under its benedictions after the parental curse has been removed. Through her gates will march all the influences for good that shall ever reach our world. Take her membership as a mass, not speaking of the acknowledged exceptions, they are the noblest, grandest, kindest, best men and women of the ages. But for them the earth would long ago have been a burned-out volcano. They have been the salt that has kept the human race from putrefaction insufferable either to human or angelic olfactories. You lying and hypocritical world, shut up those slanders about the Church of Christ, an institution which, far from being what it ought to be and never pretending to be perfect, is five hundred times better than any other institution that the world ever saw or ever dreamt of. The highest honor I ever had, and the highest honor I shall ever receive, and the highest honor I ever want is to have my name on her records as a member. At her altars I repented. At her sacraments I believed. In her service let me die. From her doors let me be buried. Oh, Church of God! Thou home of the righteous! Thou harbor from tempest! Thou refuge for the weary! Thou lighthouse of many nations! Thou type of heaven! I could kiss thy very dust with ecstasy of affection.

"For her my tears shall fall,
For her my prayers ascend,
To her my toils and cares be given
Till toils and cares shall end."

"Perfumed smoke," says Solomon, in the words following my text. Not like the fumes coughed up from the throat of a steam-pipe, or poisoned with the gases of chemical factories, or floating in black wrath from the conflagration of home steads, or sulphurous from blazing batteries, but sweet as a burning grove of cinnamon or jungle of sassafras, or the odors of a temple censer. "Who is this that cometh out of the wilderness like pillars of smoke, perfumed with myrrh and frankincense?" Hear it, men and women everywhere, that the advance of the genuine Church of Christ means peace for all nations.

Victor Hugo, in his book entitled "Ninety-three," says: "Nothing calmer than smoke but nothing more startling. There are peaceful smokes and there are evil ones The thickness and color of a line of smoke make the whole difference between war and peace, between fraternity and hatred. The whole happiness of man or his complete misery is sometimes expressed in this thin vapor which the wind scatters at will." The great Frenchman was right, but I go further and say that as the Kingdom of God advances like pillars of smoke, the black volumes belching from batteries of war and pouring out from portholes of ships will vanish from the sky.

A distinguished General of the late war told me recently that Abraham Lincoln proposed to avoid our civil conflict by purchase of all the slaves of the South and setting them free. He calculated what would be a reasonable price for them, and, when the number of millions of dollars that would be required for such a purpose was announced, the proposition was scouted, and the North would not have made the offer and the South would not have accepted it if made. "But," said my military friend, "the war went on and just the number of millions of dollars that Mr. Lincoln calculated would have been enough to make a reasonable purchase of all the slaves, were spent in war, besides all the precious lives that were buried away in the two hundred and fifty battles." In other words, there ought to be some other way for men to settle their controversies than wholesale butchery.

The Church of God will yet become the arbiter of nations. If the world would allow it it could to-day step in between Germany and France and settle the trouble about Alsace and Lorraine, and between Russia and Bulgaria, and between England and her antagonists, and between all the other nations that are flying at each other's throats, and command peace and disband armies, and harness for the plow the war horses now being hitched to ammunition wagons, or saddled for cavalry charge. That time must come, or, through the increased facility for shooting men and blowing up cities and whelming hosts to instant death, so that we can kill a regiment easier than we could once kill a company, and kill a brigade easier than we could once kill a regiment, the patent offices of the world more busy than ever in recognizing new enginery of destruction, the human race will, after awhile, go fighting with one arm, and hobbling with one foot, and stumbling along with one eye, and some ingenious inventor inspired of the archangel of all mischief, will contrive a machine that will bore a hole to the earth's center, and some desperate nation will throw into that hole enough dynamite to blow this hulk of a planet into fragments, dropping like meteoric stones on surrounding stellar habitations.

But this shall not be, for whatever else I let go, I hang on to my Bible, which tells me that the blacksmith's shop shall yet come to its grandest use when the warrior and the husbandman shall enter it side by side, and the soldier shall throw into its bank of fires his sword, and the farmer shall pick it up a ploughshare, and the straightest spear shall be bent into a crook at each end, and then cut in two, and what was one spear shall be two pruning hooks. Down with Moloch and up with Christ! Let no more war-horses eat out of the manger where Jesus was born.

Peace! Forever roll off the sky the black pillars of smoke from the Marengos and Salamancas and Borodinos and Gettysburgs of earth! And right after them, roll into the heavens the peaceful vapors from the chimneys of farmhouses, and asylums, and churches, and capitols of Christian nations, and, as the sunlight strikes through these vapors they will write in letters of gold all over the sky from horizon to zenith: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men!" Then let all the men-of-war fire a broadside, and all the forts thunder forth a resounding volley, and the earth be girdled with the cannonade over the final victory of the truth.

While thinking of these things I looked out from my window, and the wind was violently blowing, and I saw from many chimneys the smoke tossed in the air and whirled in great velocity, volume after volume, fold after fold, and carried on the swift wind were the great pillars of smoke. And helped by Solomon in the text I saw the speed of the church symbolized. Do you realize the momentum the Church of God is under? Why, the smoke of a chimney on the top of Mount Washington when the wind is blowing sixty miles the hour, is slow as compared with the celerity of good influences. For fifty-nine centuries the devil had it his own way among the nations. Nearly all the great missionary movements have been started within the century, and see what one century has done to recover the world from fifty-nine centuries of devastation. What great revivals! What mighty churches! What saved millions! What advancing civilization! In all the United States, Great Britain, Ireland, France, Germany, Italy full freedom to worship God according to conscience. Along the coasts of China, Japan and Africa the batteries are planted which are to take all these empires for God and civilization. From the ruins of Babylon and Assyria, and Nineveh and the valleys of the Nile, confirmations have been exhumed proving to all fair-minded men that the Bible is the truest book ever written. The mythologies of Egypt were found to have embodied in them the knowledge of man's expulsion from Paradise, and the sacrifice of a great emancipator. Moses' account of the creation, corroborated by the hammer of Christian geologists; the oldest profane writers like Hironnus, Helanicus, and Berosus, confirming the Bible account of ancient longevity; Tacitus and Pliny confirming the Bible account of destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah; Tacitus and Porphyry telling the same story of Christ as Matthew and Luke told; Macrobius telling of the massacre of children in Bethlehem, and Phlegon sketching the darkness at the crucifixion. It is demonstrated to all honest men that it is not so certain that William Cullen Bryant wrote Thanatopsis or Longfellow wrote Hiawatha, as that God by the hand of prophet and apostle wrote the Bible. All the wise men in science and law and medicine and literature and merchandise are gradually coming to believe in Christianity, and soon there will be no people who disbelieve in it except those conspicuous for lack of brain or men with two families who do not like the Bible because it rebukes their swinish proprieties. The time is hastening when there will be no infidels left except libertines and harlots, and money lenders. Millions of Christians where once there were thousands, and thousands where once there were hundreds. What a bright evening this, the evening of the nineteenth century; and the twentieth century, which will dawn in thirteen years from now, will, in my opinion, bring universal victory for Christ and the Church, that now is marching on with step double-quick, or, if you prefer the figure of the text is being swept on in the mighty gales of blessing, imposing and grand and majestic and swift, like pillars of smoke.

"Oh, come into the Church through Christ the door, a door more glorious than that of the Temple of Hercules, which had two pillars, and one was gold and the other emerald! Come in to-day! Come in and be one of the eternal victors! The world you leave behind is a poor world, and it will burn and pass off like pillars of smoke. Whether the final conflagration will start in the coal mines of Pennsylvania which in some places, have for many years been burning and eating into the heart of the mountains; or whether it shall begin near the California geysers, or whether from out the furnaces of Cotopaxi and Vesuvius and Stromboli, it shall burst forth upon the astonished nations, I make no prophecy, but all geologists tell us that we stand on the lid of a world the heart of which is a raging flame, and after a while the probability is that these red monsters will burst out of their imprisonment of centuries, and it will be a blaze that will be seen in other worlds. But after a while those flames will begin to subside and then will go down, and the round globe will be all ablaze and after that the living coal will take on an ashen hue. Then it will begin to smoke, and the mountains will smoke, and the valleys will smoke, and the islands will smoke, and the sea will smoke, and the five continents will be five pillars of smoke, and then these columns of vapor will begin to lose their color, and then will lessen, and they can hardly be seen now as from the sky galleries the inhabitants of other worlds shall look. Finally, there will be only one curling vapor of smoke. Then that will vanish, and there will be nothing left but the charred hulk of a burned out world, the corpse of a dead star, the ashes of an extinguished flame, a fallen pillar of smoke. But that will not hurt any of your investments if you have made the Lord your portion. From your heavenly home you can look down upon a consumed, charred and demolished earth without any perturbation.

When wrapped in fire the realms of ether glow,
And Heaven's last thunder shakes the earth below,
Thou undismayed shalt o'er the ruins smile,
And light thy torch at Nature's funeral pile.

JOHN GRISBY, of Westport, Ky., was out on the ice on the Ohio River the other day, when a large mass broke away and began going down stream. John was on the mass, and he stayed on it for five hours, during which he drifted nearly twenty-five miles and had several narrow escapes from getting into the river. He was rescued unharmed by a fisherman.

CHILTON VIEW.

Published Every Thursday Morning.

CLANTON, ALA., FEB. 24, 1887.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One copy one year	$1.50
One copy six months	75
One copy four "	50

The trade dollars are to be recoined into standard silver dollars and then re-issued.

Candidates for the office of State Inspector of Convicts are becoming numerous. An appointment will soon be forthcoming.

The rivers are all rising on account of the recent continued rains. It is to be sincerely hoped that we will not be visited by another overflow this Spring.

Postmasters who fail to notify publishers when subscribers remove or fail to take papers from the Post Office, are held by the Postmaster General to be responsible for their subscription.

The bill providing for the election of officers for Clanton passed the House. We are in hopes it may reach the Senate and pass that body before adjournment.

Later.—It has passed the Senate.

The omnibus whiskey bill has passed both the House and the Senate. The prohibiting the sale of whiskey within five miles of Mt. Zion church and Collin's Chapel, in this county, is included in this bill.

The bill appropriating $5,000 for the Confederate monument was made a special order for the Senate yesterday, and at this time we have no doubt it only likes the endorsement of the Governor to become a tangible effect.

Secretary Manning has tendered his resignation to the President but it will not be acted upon for several weeks yet. It is generally believed that Carlisle will be his successor. Manning resigns in order to accept the presidency of a New York bank.

State Prohibition.

What we want is state prohibition. The people of Alabama should be given a vote on this question. Some states already enjoy absolute prohibition while others will soon hold elections for it. The following words of commendation of our Senator on a speech he made in favor of a bill before the Senate authorizing such an election we clip from the Eutaw Whig and Observer: .

Senator Falkner made an earnest and strong argument in the State Senate in favor of the joint resolution proposing amendments to the constitution of the State of Alabama, prohibiting the manufacture, sale or giving away of any spirituous, vinous or malt liquors in the State. He read statistics showing the great cost of liquors to the people, and said he would vote for this bill with more pride than he had ever voted in his life. The bill authorizes an election on the subject of prohibition, and the resolution passed—yeas 26 nays 1—Mr. Brewer voting against it.

There is a class of people who have a habit of writing anonymous letters to newspapers deriding and assaulting the reputation of people whom they do not like, or for some reason desire to be revenged upon. These people imagine that the columns of a newspaper are always open to the abuse and misrepresentation of any individual, whether he be in public or private life. They are too cowardly to attack a man openly who may have done them some fancied injury, but they seek a position under the cover of a newspaper and attempt to assault their enemy by cowardly insinuations and slanders. They rarely ever send their name to a paper, merely signing the article with some fictitious one, expecting the newspaper to be silly enough to publish the venomous article without knowing the real name of the author, in order to locate the responsibility for the assertions that may be made. Sometimes when they know full well that the article will not be printed, they merely mail it to the paper in order to create a prejudice in the minds of the editors of a paper against the party about whom the article may be written, so that in case the victim should come into public notice he is liable to be unjustly abused by the press. Such individuals, and it is astonishing to know that they are to be found in the best society, are reptiles of the meanest sort who ought not only to be scorched, but effectually killed in the estimation of right-thinking people.

The Cotton Tax.

Among the many impositions sustained by the people of the South one of the most prominent for its injustice, illegality and unconstitutionality is the cotton tax imposed upon the producers of this staple during 1866-7, and we think that if our Congressmen can secure the repayment of this tax to the parties or the heirs of the parties from whom it was unlawfully collected they will have done more for the South than any body of men heretofore representing our portion of the Union in the legislative halls of our country.

And at this particular time when the depreciation of values in the great cotton raising district of the Union have about reached bottom and the farmer has year to year, gone from bad to worse the repayment of this money, amounting in the aggregate to millions and which is now lying idle, would be a God-send and a blessing to thousands of farmers who would doubtless, through the effect of this substantial aid, throw of their long spell of depression and demoralization and go to work with a will and energy which would cause our fair southland to grow and prosper as in the days of yore.

If our Alabama Congressmen would immortalize themselves in the eyes of the South let them use every effort in their power towards securing the repayment of this tax money to its rightful owners or their heirs and if any should be left on hand appropriate it for the improvement of the agricultural interest of the South, and it would be but a short while when the fine farming sections of the southern states would be keeping pace with the now rapid and prosperous developement of the mineral district.

With the repayment of the cotton tax to our farmers and the securing of the Blair bill appropriation for our public schools the South would be twice blessed.

Legislative.

The Bill to order an election for the purpose of electing officers for the town of Clanton was read and passed.

Mr. Johnston called up the Senate bill regulating the time of holding court in the fifth judicial circuit. Passed.

H. B. 487. For the preservation of game animals and birds, in the counties of Sumter and Chilton. Passed.

Question came up on the substitute reported to the committee. It gives Solicitors salaries of $3,000 a year, the fees now provided to be paid into the treasury. Deputies in counties which have county courts may be appointed by the Solicitors and shall be paid $500. In no case shall the salary exceed the fees collected and paid in.

H. B. 705. Providing for additional accommodation for the colored insane of Alabama.

Mr. Sterrett argued that the State had made ample provision for the white insane, but had been delinquent in doing anything for the colored insane. That many of the jails of the State were crowded with insane negroes and that Dr. Bryce recommended the establishment of such an asylum. The bill provided for an appropriation of twenty thousand dollars and specified that the asylum should be built in Tuskaloosa.

Read a third time and passed.

The Coosa River Convention.

Conventions will be held in Mobile and Montgomery on March 15th, for the purpose of memorializing congress in regard to opening the Coosa river. Delegates are to be appointed from each town and county on the Coosa and it is to be hoped that the attendance upon the conventions will be largely attended and that their petitions to Congress may result in the opening of this great river and make it a source of great profit to our State.

The following are names of delegates appointed by our probate judge, Hon. H. J. Callen, to attend said convention from this county:

Oliver Mullins, J. P. Allen,
L. J. Hand, S. J. Heath,
J. F. Maull, A. J. Hall,
W. H. Foshee, P. C. Dennis,
Mose Robinson, K. Wells,
B. J. Baldwin, F. A. Gulledge
J. S. Pitts, J. R. Kemp,
O. A. Duke, W. Walker, Sr.,
T. E. Gilchrist, and J. C. Lawrence.

The House yesterday passed by a large majority the bill which requires all money collected for the State to be paid into the treasury and prevents its being paid by collectors to county Superintendents. The measure is an eminently wise and proper one and so full of merit, that its speedy passage by the Senate may be considered certain. When it becomes a law the teachers will be as sure as now of getting their money, but the State will have charge of the great sum of money which lies in the hands of Superintendents. With this money in the hands of the treasury all fear of the State's failure to meet any of its obligations will vanish into thin air.—Sunday's Adv.

HOW TO PROSPER.

The Class of Farmers Who Are Successful and, in Consequence, Contented.

The prosperous farmer, like every other business man, is he who takes advantage of circumstances to get the most he honestly can out of what he has to sell. Not all business men follow the golden rule to do unto others what would be desired of them. Not all farmers do this, yet the golden rule is the best in the long run. Why? A man's probity in dealing not only insures respect, but enables him to get better prices than he who does not strictly regard his word.

The man honorable in his dealings may be a man as keen in his bargains are in getting prices as he who does not strictly regard his word. He is more apt to figure closely in personal expenses, while at the same time being liberal in all things. He is apt to feed closely and at the same time fully. He saves by attending closely to the comfort of his stock. No deprecations is allowed to take place in buildings and sheds. His farm machines, wagons and impliments never suffer from undue contact from the weather. Every thing has a place, and all labor is performed at the proper time. He does not undertake work out of season, but in season he drives his work; it never drives him. He hires only the best help, treats his workmen courteously, and hence always gets the best—and keeps it. His workmen may advise, but never dictate to him.

When a crop is ready for the market it is promptly sold if the price suits. If not, it is held until the price is satisfactory, A crop, or animals, are not held for speculative prices. He well knows the cost of holding a crop, and the loss on animals from feeding, while holding from the market when fat.

The prosperous is the reading man. He keeps himself posted on his business through journals devoted to his profession. He may not get rich suddenly, but he does not fail, except from some unavoidable disaster. Are there any of our readers who have been pursuing the slack way of doing business? If so, there is no better time to turn over a new leaf than right now.—Farm, Field and Stockman.

Harmony at Home.

1. We may be quite sure our will is likely to be crossed during the day; so let us prepare for it.
2. Every person in the house has an evil nature as well as ourselves and therefore we must not expect too much.
3. When inclined to give an angry answer, let us lift up our heart in prayer.
4. If from sickness, pain or infirmity, we fell irritable, let us keep a very strict watch over ourselves.
5. Observe when others are suffering, and drop a word of kindness.
6. Watch for little opportunities of pleasing, and put little annoyances out of the way.
7. Take a cheerful view of every thing, and encourage hope.
8. Speak kindly to dependents and servants, and praise them when you can.
9. In all little pleasures which may occur, put self last.
10. Try for the soft answer that turneth away wrath.—Congregationalist.

Where the Trouble Begins.

[Charleston News and Courier.]

The Chicago News very truthfully remarks that President Cleveland is "not lying awake at night thinking of a second term," but that he will have one all the same, and the surest way for him to secure it is by continuing in his present course. The fact is that it is scarcely worth while to worry ourselves about the President's second term. A more necessary and profitable subject for speculation is, where shall we get another like him when his second term has expired? The American people may very well lie awake at night and think about this in the meanwhile, for it will not be easy to solve when the time comes.

Mr. Barnum's Advice to Business Men.

Addressing a body of business men at Bridgeport the other day, P. T. Barnum said: "You do not, any of you advertise enough. You ought to use printers ink every day. You are asleep and allow your business to run itself. Standing advertisements in a paper command confidence. The man who for a year lives in one community and leads a reputable life, even though he be of moderate abilty, will grow in the confidence and esteem of his fellows.

On the same principle, a newspaper advertisement becomes familiar in the eyes of the reader. It may seldom be read, still it makes the name and business of the man familiar, and its presence in the columns of a paper inspires confidence in the stabiltiy of its enterprises."

"Hi Pompey! what you 'fraid of?
What makes you shake and shibber?"
"Law chile! ise got de ague
An got de tropic libber."
"De tropic libber Pompey?
I don't know what you means:
But you can cure your ague
By taking SMITH'S BILE BEANS.
Two bits a bottle, don't pay more!
You'll get dem at de drugman's store."

The most economical and best remedy for ague. 25 cents, per bottle.

Take one of Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pillets at night before you go to bed and you will be surprised how buoyant and vigorous you will feel the next day. Only 25 cents a vial.

Croup is a treacherous disease, and generally the most severe at night when unable to properly watch it. The best known remedy is Ellis' C. S. A. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

If you are suffering with weak or inflamed eyes, or granulated eyelids, you can be quickly cured by using Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve. 25 cents a box. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures consumption. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton Ala.

Life will acquire new zest, and cheerfulness will return, if you will impel your liver and kidneys to the performance of their functions Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm will stimulate them to healthful action. $1.00 per bottle. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Ellis' Magic Liver Pills are safe for children, and are more effective than any other cathartic pill on the market. If not found satisfactory return and get your money. For sale by W. H. Phillips. aug26-y

Will you suffer with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

That hacking cough can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's cure. We guarantee it. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Sick Headache and a sensation of oppression and dullness in the head are very commonly produced by indigestion; morbid despondency, irritability and over-sensitiveness of the nerves may, in a majority of cases, be traced to the same cause. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm and Pillets will positively cure. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton. sep11 3

DON'T

Buy anything in the Grocery line until you have called on

T. M. Edwards,

Who keeps constantly on hand Fancy and Family Groceries and confectioneries.

Clanton, Ala., Feb. 24th, '87.

I. B. BOWDOIN

DEALER IN

Family Groceries,

CLANTON, ALA.

I will keep on hand for sale, a nice line of Family Groceries, such as may be desired by the Clanton trade, and will sell as cheap as they can be purchased elsewhere. f 24 6

Prohibition, Beat No. 7.

State of Alamama, Chilton, County, } Office of Judge of Probate, Clanton, Ala. Feb. 12, 1887.

It appearing on opening the returns of an election held in Beat No. 7 on the 8th day of February 1887, to determine whether spirituous vinous or malt liquor shall be sold given away or otherwise disposed of in said Beat, that there were cast in favor of Prohibition eighty-seven votes and against Prohibition sixty-seven votes. A majority of the votes cast at said election being in favor of Prohibition, therefore the sale giving away or otnerwise disposing of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors in said Beat is prohibited.

H. J. CALLEN,
Judge of Probate.
feb24 1t

NOTICE NO. 6037.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 7, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Ala., on March 19th, 1887, viz: Andy Foshee Homestead 16955, for the sw ¼ of sw ¼, sec. 10, township 21 n, range 14 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Prince Wilson, Hunter Zimmerman, Lewis Williams and Arch Oden, all of Clanton, Ala.

feb10* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

Saw Mill Men.

I am now prepared to hammer your buckled saws. Just received a new outfit of tools for hammering. Can return a saw in 4 days after it arrives. Satisfaction guaranteed. Remittance after trying the saw. Ship to Pratt Saw Mill Co. WM. R. HOLDER.
[feb24 3m]

NOTICE NO. 6088.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
February 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 5th, 1887, viz: Marion A. Barbour, Homestead 12195, for the sw ¼ of ne ¼, se ¼ of nw ¼, sec. 22 towhship 21 north, range 16 east. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: Wm. D. Goss, Wm. B. Jones, Wm. Taylor and Pinckney Jones, all of Verbena, Ala.

feb24* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6079.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge of the circuit court. or in his absence, the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Ala., on April 5th, 1887, viz: Betsy Robuck, guardian Della Robuck, homestead 9298, for the ne ¼ of ne ¼, section 2, township 20 north, range 12 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: James Green Wm. Sansom, Thos. Klinner and H. Hayes, all of Maplesville, Ala.

feb24 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6043.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 8, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March 19th, 1887, viz: Benjamine F. Abbott, Homestead 12414, for the n ½ of ne ¼ and n ½ of nw ¼, sec. 28, township 20, range 13. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultiva- of said land, viz: John J. Roberts, J. Thomas Anderson John M. Chandler and Richard P. Kendrick, all of Dixie, Ala.

feb10 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5991.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery Ala., Jan. 26, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the Clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March 5th, 1887, viz: Asa J. Rolinson, Homestead 18106, for the se¼ of the ne ¼ and the ne ¼ of se ¼, sec. 24, township 20 n, range 12 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William Roberts, Wm. Robuck, Wm. Klinner and Wm. H. Foshee, Jr., all of Dixie, Ala.

jan27 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5962.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 19, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court, or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., March 8th, 1887, viz: Isaac M. Deason, Homestead, 11877, for the e ½ of the se¼ and se ¼ of sw ¼, and sw ¼ of se ¼, sec 2, township 20 N, range 13 E. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said lands, viz: John H. Gray, Mac D. Gray, William I. Mullins and Joseph Popwell, all of Kincheon, Ala.

jan20* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5969.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 20, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March, 5th, 1887, viz: Elijah B. Wyatt, Homestead application, No. 16689, for the e ½ of se ¼, sec. 24, township 22, range 15 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: Redding E. Jones, Andrew J. Peters, Monroe J. Parish and Moses Bater, all of Clanton, Ala.

jan27* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

Money to Loan!

I am prepared to negotiate mortgage loans on farming lands in Chilton county in sums of three hundred dollars and upwards. Rates cheap and negotiations speedily concluded. Apply to or correspond with

H. L. WILLIAMS,
Att'y at Law, Wetumpka.
oct7

MARRIAGE GUIDE

260 PAGES. Illustrated, in Cloth and Gilt Binding, 50c. money or stamps. Same, paper cover, 25c. This Book contains ALL the curious, doubtful or inquisitive want to know. Full of very interesting and valuable information. HEALTH, BEAUTY and HAPPINESS are promoted by its advice—who may Marry, who not, why; Medical Aid, when necessary, brought home to you. 58 Wonderful PEN PICTURES, true to life. Young or old, married or single, sick or well, should read it. Sent sealed by DR. WHITTIER, St. Louis, Mo. CUT THIS OUT AND SEND WITH ORDER.

WINTER! SPRING!

During the season of Winter MALARIA Lurks in the System!

COLLINS AGUE CURE

One Dose a day, taken three days in succession, each month, or when you feel badly in any way, will fully Cleanse your Blood, Remove all Bilious Secretions & Malarial Poison from your System, and Insure GOOD HEALTH IN THE SPRING. PRICE, FIFTY CENTS PER BOTTLE.

If you are troubled with a COUGH, COLD, SORENESS in CHEST, or any Affection of Throat or Lungs, use DR. JACKSON'S Syrup LUNGWORT & WILD CHERRY Sold at 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 a Bottle.

If your EYES are affected in any way, use Dr. JACKSON'S CELEBRATED INDIAN EYE SALVE. Sold Everywhere at 25 cents per Box.

Send for Collins Bros. "Present Century Almanac" for 1887. Mailed to any address or at any Drug Store. COLLINS BROS. DRUG CO., St. Louis, Mo.

jun24-y

GREETING
TO THE
PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY:

E. ERSWELL,

19th STREET, BETWEEN FIRST AND SECOND AVENUE.

Birmingham, Ala.

BEGS TO ANNOUNCE THAT HE WOULD LIKE A SHARE OF YOUR PATRONAGE AND IS PREPARED TO SELL AS LOW AS ANY.

Mail orders solicited and satisfaction guaranteed. Telegraph orders promptly filled. Rooms carpeted to order. Decorating and House Furnishing a Specialty.

Largest Carpet Parlor in Alabama.

FINEST SELECTION OF FURNITURE IN THE SOUTH.

WINDOW SHADES OF NEWEST AND LATEST STYLES.

Heavy Stock of Picture Frames.

E. Erswell has the most complete stock of Carpets in Alabama Carpets, Oil Cloths, Linoleums, Mattings of all grades and in endless varieties. Office Furniture. Desks of all Styles. Book Cases in Walnut, Mahogany, &c., Wardrobe Settees, Side-Boards, Folding beds, Washstands, Extension Tables, In fact everything in the Furniture and Carpet line. Wall Papers of all Grades.

EVERYTHING GUARANTEED AND WARRANTED FIRST CLASS MATERIAL.

No shoddy goods, but genuine and honest work. Full line of Undertakers goods. Telegraph orders promptly attended to.

E. ERSWELL,
☞ Next Door to Opera House. P. O. Box 30. ☜

BAINS & PEEBLES.
(SUCCESSORS TO BAINS & HERRING.)

WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.

Mail and Express Orders Will Receive Prompt Attention.

FINE WINES AND LIQUORS A SPECIALTY.

1926 FIRST AVENUE, BETWEEN 19th and 20th STREETS,

Birmingham, Ala.

☞ Fine Stock of Chess Carley's Oils at Company's Prices. ☜

P. O. BOX 570. June 19 7

BEST GRADES OF

MERCHANDISE

At JOHN GARNER'S, Clanton.

sep3-tf

T. T. ASHFORD, Pres. J. E. MALAHY, Vice Pres. T. L. McGOWAN, Sec. & Treas

Birmingham Paint, Glass and Wall Paper Co.

Successors to

MAYBERRY & ASHFORD.

Jobbers and Retailers of

Paints, Oils, Window Glass, Plate, Sky-Light and Colored Glass, Sash, Doors, Blinds and Moulding,

Painters' and Artists' Supplies.

WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES, and CURTAIN FIXTURES.

1912 Second Avenue, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

☞ Write for Samples of Wall Paper and Estimates on Glass. jun10

MINERAL CITY TIN AND STOVE HOUSE

SECOND AVENUE BETWEEN 18TH AND 19TH STREETS,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Pat Walsh, Manager.

A Large Line of HEATING and COOKING STOVES always on hand. All Kinds of

Tin, Sheet Iron Roofing and Job Work

DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.

☞ Orders by mail will receive prompt attention. nov 11

E. WALL. P. GIACOPAZZI.

WALL & GIACOPAZZI,

Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Commission Merchants,

Second Ave. and Twentieth St.

Birmingham, - - - Ala.

References: S. Oteri, New Orleans; Jos. Denunzio, Louisville; Buhr, Wendte & Co., Cincinnati; Underhill, Stewart & Shotta, N. Y.; Wm. D. Clarke & Co., New Orleans; Cowing & Clark, Cincinnati; A. G. Conant & Co., N. Y.; First National Bank, Birmingham, Ala.

J. M. WILKERSON. JOHN A. CALDWELL.

WIKKERSON CALDWELL & CO.

REAL ESTATE RENTING & COLLECTING AGENTS, AND STOCK BROKERS.

Tuscaloosa, - - Alabama.

Buy and sell for principals. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to us. Collecting rents a specialty.

Office over store of Fitts Bros., next to Telegraph Office. Correspondence solicited. feb24

References: J. H. Fitts & Co., Bankers and First Nat. Bank, of Tuscaloosa.

CHILTON VIEW.

CLANTON, ALA., FEB. 24, 1887.

THE VIEW is published every Thursday morning, and will endeavor to cover the field of reputable country journalism. It will show no quarter to the deceitful, the immoral or the ungodly. It will always be good natured, although it can bite if necessary.

Those answering advertisements will confer a favor by mentioning this paper.

COURT CALENDAR.

Chancery—Friday after the first Mondays in April and October.

Circuit—Fourth Monday in March, and fifth Monday after the fourth Monday in August.

Commissioners'—Regular term second Monday in February and August, and first Monday in April and November. Special term second Monday in July.

County—First Monday in each month.

SCHEDULE S. & N. ALA. RAILROAD. —Trains pass Clanton daily, as follows:

GOING SOUTH.
No. 1 at	5:45 a. m.
No. 3	5:37 p. m.
No. 7	4:12 p. m.
No. 51	6:00 a. m.
GOING NORTH.
No. 2	9:15 a. m.
No. 12	9:55 a. m.
No. 4	*9:48 p. m.
No. 50	6:55 p. m.

* Don't stop.

LOCAL DOTTINGS.

Read the advertisements.

Monday was a gloomy day.

Our boom in real estate continues.

Oh for a bucket on the courthouse well.

Prayer meeting every Wednesday night.

Hot well patients are becoming numerous.

Mrs. J. M. Ponder is on a visit to relatives in Tuskegee.

See the card to "Saw Mill Men," elsewhere in these columns.

Services at the Baptist church next Sabbath. Rev. A. E. Burns pastor.

Newman's Southern Flower Cologne is the best. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Several interesting communications received too late for this issue.

A new lot of fancy stationery just received at the View Stationery Stand.

Representative W. E. Johnston spent Sunday and Monday at his home in Clanton.

The VIEW and the Montgomery Advertiser (weekly) for $2.50 a year, in advance.

Mr. Wm. Walker, Jr., of Maplesville, spent several days in Clanton this week.

Shiloh's Vitaliser is what you need for Constipation, loss of appetite, dizziness, and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle.

Correspondents should get their communications in by Tuesday, or they will be too late.

Prof. R. E. R. Hicks, principal of Clanton Academy, spent several days in Talladega last week.

Real estate has advanced fully 150 per cent in value in Clanton in the last twelve months.

Mrs. W. A. Collier, of this place, is visiting her daughter Mrs. Phil Givhan, in Birmingham.

John N. Thornton, of the Ala. Christian Advocate, Birmingham, is on a visit to his parents at this place.

Maj. J. M. Bivings, accompanied by Mrs. Dr. Bivings and his daughter Miss Mamie, visited New Orleans this week.

Mr. T. H. Prim filled his appointment to preach at this place last Sabbath. A good congregation was out to hear him.

Messrs. T. M. Edwards and I. B. Bowdoin, two of Clanton's progressive merchants have advertisements in the VIEW this week.

Mr. W. L. Sampey sold a small lot in the rear of his store, 60x70 feet, to Dr. Johnson for $221 last week. Dr. Johnson will build an office on it.

We have a very desirable farm of 125 acres with a good five room residence and good water, situated only 4 miles from town, for sale cheap and on good terms. Apply at this office.

Mr. O. A. Duke, who is on the building committee of the Methodist church, has shown us a plan which he has drawn himself for the new building and which the committee would do well to accept.

The county commissioners should have authorized some one, at their last term of court, to purchase a bucket for the courthouse well at the expense of the county. Buckets sell for 50 cents each and we think the county could pay for one.

Hymenial.

On yesterday morning Mr. S. J. Brock and Miss Annie Lewis were united in the holy bonds of wedlock, at the residence of the bride's father, in this place at 8:30 a. m., Rev. Mr. Briggs officiating.

The groom is well known and has many friends in Clanton, having at one time been a resident here. He has recently gone to Birmingham where he is now extensively engaged in the lumber business.

The bride is one of Clanton's most charming young ladies whose friends and admirers here wish her all the happiness which she so richly deserves.

The happy couple left on the morning train for Birmingham where they will make their home in future. The VIEW extends congratulations.

The following marriage licenses were issued by our probate judge during the last ten days to the following parties and their nuptials were celebrated shortly after the licenses were procured:

On the 12th at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. A. C. Pool, in this county, Mr. W. C. Atkinson, of Jumbo, to Miss Nola Pool.

On the 13th, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Willis Lowe, near Clanton, Miss Armanda C. Lowe to Mr. S. E. Butler, Justice Edmund Lowe, officiating.

On the 17th, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Beasley, in Clanton, by Justice Edmund Lowe, Mrs. M. A. Baker to Mr. W. S. Baker.

The VIEW extends congratulations all around and wishes each of the happy couples much joy and happiness.

Iron Ore.

Mr. J. M. Ponder has brought to our sanctum some specimens of iron ore from off his land on the northeastern suburbs of Clanton. We would say that this ore contains about 80 per cent. of iron if we had not recently seen a statement in one of our daily contemporaries of the iron district, and we suppose it is authority on the subject, that ore never contains as much as 80 per cent. of pure iron, nevertheless these specimens are very nearly all iron and Mr. Ponder says it exists in large quantities on his land. Our boom is drawing nearer.

Another Large Storehouse.

Mr. R. Ehrman having bought the mercantile business of B. H. Chesnutt & Co., has decided to erect a large and commodious store house on his vacant lot on the west side of the railroad, and work has already been commenced on it. The building is to be two stories and when completed will be the largest building in Clanton.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. Sheffy, of Indiana, is in Clanton with a view to purchasing a home and locating here permanently. His wife has been here for a few weeks trying our hot well water for rheumatism and being so greatly benefitted thereby has induced her husband to come here to live. Verily the hot well boom is not dead yet.

We regret to chronicle the death of Mr. G. L. Edwards which occurred at his home in the Kincheon neighborhood, this county, on the 14th inst. Mr. Edwards was 72 years of age and was the father of twenty children seventeen of whom are still living. He was married twice. His remains were interred in the Cooper's Station cemetery.

We have three new organs for sale cheap for cash. They are now in the factory and will be shipped to any point desired by the purchaser. One Estey and two of the Chicago Cottage Organs. Come and see or write us before purchasing elsewhere.

Messrs. J. P. Allen, of Jemison, P. C. Dennis, of Cooper's, A. J. Brooks, of Verbena, Oliver Mullins, of Jumbo and B. T. Rasberry, of Lilly, were in Clanton Monday attending a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee.

Noteheads, billheads, letterheads, envelopes, statements, programmes, posters, dodgers, circular letters, visiting and business cards, commissary checks, &c. &c., printed at the VIEW Job Office, at reasonable prices and on short notice.

The good effects of Ellis' P. P. P. on a debilitated person are felt at once, and a cure follows its use. If suffering from bloop poison try a bottle. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Croup, Whooping cough and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. jun16 y

A $20 Bible Reward.

The publishers of Rutledge's Monthly offer twelve valuable rewards in their Monthly for Feb., among which is the following:

We will give $20 to the person telling us which is the middle verse in the New Testament Scripture, (not the revised edition), by March 10th, 1887. Should two or more correct answers be received, the reward will be devided. The money will be forwarded to the winner March 15th, 1887. Persons trying for the reward must send 20 cents in silver or postal notes, (no postage stamps taken) with their answer, for which they will receive the Monthly for April in which the name and address of the winner of the reward and the correct answer will be published, and in which several more valuable rewards will be offered. Address, Rutledge Publishing Company, Easton, Pa.

Not the Editor's Fault.

The following from an exchange so nearly covers the ground that we adopt it, and give it a place in the VIEW.

"A local newspaper is often accused of being biased in regard to giving personal notes of the coming and going of some and omitting others, but the accusation is entirely unjust. The faults are with the people and not with the paper. We are always ready, and even anxious, to publish everything of interest to the public, but a country newspaper cannot afford to employ local reporters. Now, if you have visitors let us know who they are and where they come from. If anything happens in your vicinity let us know about it; if there is a a party at your place, furnish us with the items; if you get married, let us know; if you die, come and tell us; if you know anything let us know about it. You will find us ready to 'notice' one as well as another. Our object is to give the news."

OVER THE COUNTY.

News Gathered up by Our Correspondents.

Dixie Dots.

Miss Tinie Crum left last Monday to visit her sister, Mrs. Dardies, of Sewanee, Tenn.

We are sorry to learn that Mrs. Broadhead is quite sick, but hope she will be well in a few days.

Mr. V. P. Bowlan and family, of Pinetucky, also Mrs. A. M. Callier, of Chadwick, Ala., spent a few days in our town visiting Mrs. E. O. Adams.

A good many oaks are being set out on our streets.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. E. G. Adams' boy is so sick.

Four car loads of guano has been received at this place since January 15th. DAISY.

Dots from Concord.

Cloudy weather.

Mr. John Garner, of Clanton, spent Monday with his many friends, in this community.

Miss Lucy Meredith has been quite sick for the last week, but we hope to see her at her post soon.

We hear a great deal of talk of a railroad to be put through this neighborhood soon, which will add a great deal of improvement to the community.

Bro. Ike ought to visit our neighborhood and he would have something to write about sure enough. For we have the best end of the county. And we hope to give the readers of the VIEW a description of it soon.

PEACEFUL BOY.

Stanton Puffs.

There are measles in our town.

Mr. J. T. Plant, of Knoxville, paid a visit to his brother, C. W. Plant, of Stanton, last week. John is an old friend and we are always glad to see him.

Dixie is uneasy. Our friends down there are circulating a petition against the proposed new road across Mulberry. Don't be uneasy; we will not try to stop your road, as you did our postoffice some time since.

Some of our Stanton friends are trying very hard to find mineral on the hills surrounding Stanton, first iron, then silver, and now it's gold. We hope they will succeed in finding something profitable.

Prof. J. R. McArthur has been at home for several days. The measles have interfered with his school at Wilsonville.

The Baptists propose getting an organ for their church.

The Presbyterians are thinking of building a new house of worship. We hope they will be able to carry the plan into execution.

Our citizens have all commenced gardening operations, and some report their garden truck as growing finely.

Our friend C. W. Plant has disposed of several hives of bees, and he will continue to have "good luck" for he watches his bees closely and makes their keeping profitable.

Mr. Boseman, a civil engineer, has been in our neighborhood for several days, surveying a proposed new road for the G. C. & L. R. R.

89.

Subscribe for the VIEW.

MONTGOMERY FURNITURE COMPANY.

—DEALERS IN—

Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Looking Glasses, Lounges, Hall Racks, Wardrobes, Chairs, Safes, Side Boards, Cradles, Cribs, Baby Carriages, Spring Beds, Mattresses, Refrigerators, Pianos, Organs, Carpets,

And All Kinds of Furniture!

A. C. ROGERS, Manager,

210 Bibb Street, Wharton's Old Stand Next to McDonald's Opera House.

sep2 y

FURNITURE AND WALL PAPER FOR EVERYBODY!

OUR STOCK OF FURNITURE, WINDOW SHADES, LACE CURTAINS, WALL PAPER, SPRING BEDS, AND MATTRESSES IS NOW COMPLETE.

Anybody in need of the above articles will find it to their interest to look at our immense stock. We guarantee everything we sell, and sell it cheaper than anybody in this State.

SQUARE DEALING IS OUR MOTTO!

B. WOLFF & BRO., Montgomery.

20 Commerce and Corner Court and Coosa Streets.

sept 15-6

How to Silence an Enemy.

Generally it is a weak man who goes into the courts to vindicate his character. A strong man does not care what is said about him.

Old Sam Johnson said to Goldsmith: "What harm does it do a man to call him Holnofernes?" Again he asked a lady: Who is the worse of being talked of uncharitably?"

Even great men in their moments of weakness have given color to the charges made against them by envious rivals. When Editor Lyman stated that Daniel Webster was one of the men to whom President Adams refferred as having at one time conspired to dissolve the union, Webster lost his temper, and indicted the editor for libel. The jury disagreed, and the country was disturbed by the annoucement that six jurors were of the opinion that the expounder of the constitution had actually plotted the overthrow of the goverment. How much better it would have been for the great statesman if he had possessed Sam Johnson's stolid indifference. And it would have been better still if he had imitated Julius Cæsar. The great Roman knew how to silence an enemy. When a man slandered him Cæsar always made it a point to invite him home to dinner, and that was the end of it.

There is genuine philosophy in in all this, and when we understand it better there will be fewer suits of libel and slander. If a man is so sensitive that he cannot let a bitter tongue wag, the way to is to win it over.

Base balls, cigarette papers, albums, fancy stationery and all kinds of things for sale at the View Stationery Stand.

No family should be without Ellis' Magic Oil Liniment, the greatest external remedy known. It cures all aches and pains. Price 25 cents per bottle, at W. H. Phillips.

Sleepless nights made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by M. J. Greene Clanton. jun16y

Clanton Academy.

CLANTON, CHILTON CO., ALA.

The course of instruction is divided into three departments, Primary, Junior and High School.

RATES OF TUITION:

Primary Department	$1.50
Junior "	2.50
High School "	3.50

Tuition payable monthly IN ADVANCE.

Public examinations of the pupils of the school will be held at the close of each session, but exhibitions will not be had at any time.

Board can be obtained by pupils of the school in private families in Clanton at very moderate rates.

For further information address

R. E. R. HICKS,
Principal.

feb10]

FARMER'S TAKE NOTICE!

When You Come to Town to buy Goods, Call at

R. P. Wooley & Co.'s Cheap Cash Store!

Next to the Railroad on North side of Main Street, Clanton.

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

[sep9-6]

This space is reserved by

A. J. BROOKS

AT VERBENA, ALA.,

FOR FUTURE ADVERTISING

☞WATCH IT.☜

JUST RECEIVED AT

S. E. HIRSCHER'S

21 Dexter Ave., Montgomery,

An endless variety of New Novelties in HOLIDAY GOODS, and placed before our patrons for inspection. You are cordially invited to call and see us. HEADQUARTERS FOR EVERYTHING IN THE MUSIC LINE. Agency world renowned

WEBER, DECKER BROS., STIEF and KRANICH & BACH PIANOS.

☞ Sold on Easy Terms. Prices the Lowest in the State. [nov 18 3]

SHAW & DAVIN,

Machinery & Mill Supplies,

—MORRIS AVENUE AND 22D STREET.—

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

ENGINES,
BOILERS,
SAW MILLS,
CORN MILLS,
SHINGLE MACHINES,
CORN MILLS,
SUGAR MILLS,

COTTON GINS,
COTTON PRESSES.
PULLEYS,
SHAFTING,
BELTING, and
MACHINISTS' SUPPLIES.

Largest Stock in the State.

Write for Circulars and Prices. P. O. Box 808. [july8]

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE.

☞ CURES—Diphtheria, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Bleeding at the Lungs, Hoarseness, Influenza, Hacking Cough, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Chronic Diarrhoea, Kidney Troubles, and Spinal Diseases. Pamphlet free. Dr. I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass.

PARSONS' PILLS — MAKE NEW, RICH BLOOD.

These pills were a wonderful discovery. No others like them in the world. Will positively cure or relieve all manner of disease. The information around each box is worth ten times the cost of a box of pills. Find out about them and you will always be thankful. One pill a dose. Illustrated pamphlet free. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25c. in stamps. Dr. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., 22 C.H. St., Boston.

MAKE HENS LAY

Sheridan's Condition Powder is absolutely pure and highly concentrated. One ounce is worth a pound of any other kind. It is strictly a medicine to be given with food.

Nothing on earth will make hens lay like it. It cures chicken cholera and all diseases of hens. Is worth its weight in gold. Illustrated book by mail free.

Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. 2 1-4 lb. air-tight tin cans, $1; by mail, $1.20. Six cans by express, prepaid, for $5.00. Dr. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston.

TROY STEAM LAUNDRY,
Nos. 17 & 19 N. Lawrence Street,
MONTGOMERY, ALA.
P. O. BOX 282.

☞ Orders by mail are solicited and will receive prompt attention.

J. W. GUE, Proprietor.

BRICK WORK

J. M. DAWSON,

CLANTON, ALA.

Is prepared to do all kinds of brick work in the best style. The patronage of the public solicited.

feb15-tf]

STOP AT

Morris Avenue Hotel,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Corner Morris Avenue and 20th Street

ELYTON LAND CO. BUILDING.

HUGH KIRKMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Splendid rooms, well ventilated and elegantly furnished. Rates reasonable.

Clanton Barber Shop

—BY—

MEREDITH CANN,

Who is prepared to do all work in the tonsorial line. Hair dressing and shaving in the best style. Prices low.

BANDMAN & CO.,

Wholesale Grocers,

P. O BOX 251,

1st Avenue, bet. 18th and 19th Streets,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

jan 13 6m

TRESSLAR,

Artistic Photographer

10 COURT SQUARE,

Montgomery.

Life Size Photographs a Specialty.

Photographs, on Silk, Satin and Linen. Photographs on watch dials. Enameled Photographs.

All Sittings made Instantaneously. Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged.

☞ Correspondence solicited. ☜

[jan21-tf]

A. W. KEY & CO.,

Manufacturers' State Agents for

Engines, Saw Mills,

BOILERS,

—AND—

General Machinery.

P. O. Box 741,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Nabers & Morrow,

Wholesale Druggists,

FIRST AVENUE,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

MEDICINES,

Fine Wines, Liquors, Oils, Etc.

☞ Agents for Chess Carley & Co.'s Oils. [june 10]

J. M. Hutchason's

BOARDING, LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLES.

Select Dray and Plantation Mules constantly on hand.

Draying and Hauling Promptly Attended to

Always ready to take Contracts for filling in Dirt

Moving Stone, Engines, Boilers, Machinery and other heavy hauling.

RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS AND DAMAGE.

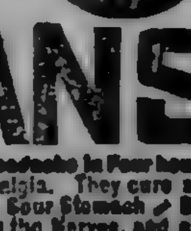
Satisfaction Guaranteed. Handsome Carriages and Double Teams, with or without Drivers.

☞ MONTGOMERY STABLES, ☜

Lawrence Street, Opp. P. O.,

Telephone 446. janly

SMITH'S BILE BEANS



CURE Biliousness; Sick Headache in Four hours. One dose relieves Neuralgia. They cure and prevent Chills & Fever, Sour Stomach & Bad Breath. Clear the Skin, Tone the Nerves, and give Life & Vigor to the system. Dose: ONE BEAN. Try them once and you will never be without them. Price, 25 cents per bottle. Sold by Druggists and Medicine Dealers generally. Sent on receipt of price in stamps, postpaid, to any address.

J. F. SMITH & CO.,

Manufacturers and Sole Props., ST. LOUIS, MO.

feb25-6

Catarrh cured, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal Injector free. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Thompson, Francis & Chenoweth,
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA,
—DEALERS IN—
HARDWARE,
Sash, Doors and Blinds, Paints, Oils and Glass, Cement and Plaster, Mantels and Grates, and a complete line of Cooking and Heating Stoves.

SOUTHERN BUSINESS COLLEGE.
No. 407½ W. Jefferson St., Next Door below Masonic Temple.
Louisville, - - - Kentucky.
NO TEXT BOOKS USED.
Book-Keeping, Penmanship, Commercial Arithmetic, Short Hand, Type Writing, &c.

We guarantee to teach more real, practical Book-keeping, Commercial or Business Calculations, more practical ideas about business in general in two to four months than any other Business College in this section can in twelve months.

We teach forms of book-keeping (actual forms used in business) not taught in any other Business College in this section.

No Scholar Has Ever Completed Our Entire Course and Left us Dissatisfied.
For Circulars call at College or address,
BEN. C. WEAVER, Principal.

NEW GOODS! NEW GOODS!
B. WELLMAN'S
"LOUISVILLE CLOTHING HOUSE"
BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA.
—DEALER IN—
Fine Clothing and Gent's Furnishing Goods
Bottom Prices at Last!

"The best Goods for the Least Money." is the motto of this house, and am now selling an Immense Stock of FALL and WINTER GOODS the Lowest Cash Prices.

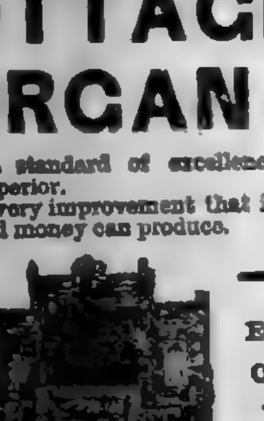
BLOOM,
The Tailor, of Montgomery, Alabama,
—DOES—
Dyeing, Scouring, Cleaning and Repairing
Of Gents' and Ladies' garments of all colors.
Orders by Mail or Express will receive prompt attention.
Prices to suit the times. Work Guaranteed.
No. 5 Court Street, Upstairs, - - - Opposite Dollar Store.
sep14 '86-1y

BRYANT AND STRATTON.
THE LOUISVILLE
BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Cor. Third & Jefferson Sts., Louisville, Ky.
BOOK-KEEPING, BANKING, PENMANSHIP, SHORT-HAND, TYPE-WRITING, ARITHMETIC, &c.

No Text Books or Manuscripts copied and recopied by students. Has the largest honest indorsement as to true merit. Graduates have no trouble in obtaining situations.

HOME STUDY. Instruction given by mail. Improve your spare hours and obtain a practical education.

ADDRESS COLLEGE AS ABOVE.
mar18-1y



THE
CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN
Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.
It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.

OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.
EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

These excellent Organs are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty in finish, perfect construction, making them the most attractive, ornamental and desirable organs for homes, schools, churches, lodges, societies, etc.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,
UNEQUALED FACILITIES,
SKILLED WORKMEN,
BEST MATERIAL,
COMBINED, MAKE THIS
THE POPULAR ORGAN
Instruction Books and Piano Stools.
Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, FREE.
The Chicago Cottage Organ Co.
Corner Randolph and Ann Streets,
CHICAGO, ILL.

HEADACHE
[illegible] are relieved by taking
WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS
[illegible] All Druggists.

L&N
LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.
THE GREAT
Through Trunk Line
Between the Cities of CINCINNATI, LEXINGTON, LOUISVILLE, EVANSVILLE, ST. LOUIS, And the Cities of N. ORLEANS, MOBILE, and MONTGOMERY, MEMPHIS, NASHVILLE,
Without Change and with Speed Unrivaled
SHORTEST AND QUICKEST ROUTE
From New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery, to
NORTH, EAST & WEST
PULLMAN CARS Without change to Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, with but one change to all
NORTHERN AND EASTERN CITIES.
THROUGH COACHES
From Chattanooga and Nashville to St. Louis, connecting direct for Cities in the Northwest.
EMIGRANTS Seeking homes on the line of this road will receive special low rates.
See Agents of this Company for rates, routes, &c., or write C. P. ATMORE, G. P. & T. A.
Louisville, Ky.
jan28-6m

A COMPLETE STOCK of Fancy Stationery, and everything usually kept in a Stationery Establishment, is ALWAYS ON HAND
and For Sale at City Prices at the VIEW
STATIONERY STAND.

SWINDLING WEALTHY MEN.

Two Sharp English Women Locked Up in Paris Jail.

A Paris dispatch says: Two English adventuresses have been arrested here charged with an original form of swindling. The prisoners give the names of Mrs. Lindsay and Miss Eveline Rappy. The latter is a beautiful woman, and about 23 years of age. Mrs. Lindsay is older, not so comely, and easily passed as Miss Rappy's mother or guardian, as occasion required.

The women caused to be published in responsible papers genteelly written and cleverly constructed advertisements, making it known that a young widow with £1,000,000 sterling in her own right, or a rich young girl who had made a false step, was desirous of forming a marital alliance with a gentleman of the right stamp, who could appreciate the situation and who had means sufficient to warrant that on his side the marriage was not entirely a speculation.

Several Frenchmen were in turn introduced to Eveline Rappy as a result of these advertisements, and she was put forth as the young widow or the rich young girl, according to the inclination of the suitor.

She engaged herself to a number of these men, managing to keep alive their ardor until she had exhausted their ability to make presents, and successively married several of the more wealthy ones, securing the best settlement possible, and managing to escape with all the wedding presents and other personal property obtainable within a few hours after the ceremony.

It is learned that Miss Rappy played this marriage trick with great financial success on more than one rich adventurer in England before she sought new victims in France, and it is said that all of her numerous dupes in both countries have been of such high social or political position that they have been ashamed to seek redress of any kind. The police do not mention the name of the person who has brought the career of the two women to an end in Paris, but when Miss Rappy was taken into custody she was at a first-class hotel, living in a grand suite of rooms in a style befitting a princess, and was on the point of being married to a man who had already paid right royally for the betrothal and had invested a snug fortune in wedding presents.

When Miss Rappy realized that she was a prisoner she broke down and made a complete confession, giving the details of all her exploits, telling the dates, sums, and names. She throws all the blame for her conduct upon Mrs. Lindsay, who, she says, controlled her.

Spotters on the Cars.

I was talking with the president of one of the surface roads the other day, says a New York correspondent, and the conversation turned on the subject of "spotters." People who ride in horse cars do not as a rule know that during each trip of a car a "spotter" is one of the passengers. It may be a man or a woman who fills the position, and either he or she pays his or her fare just the same as the other passengers do, and ride the number of blocks assigned to them by the superintendent of the road. They are politely called "special detectives," and their duties are not altogether profitable, for they receive fifteen cents for a round trip on the short line cars and twenty-five cents for the round trip from Harlem to City Hall.

"You would be surprised," said my friend, the horse car president, "to see how many applicants we have for the position of 'spotter.' Why, we employ on our road at present a poor clergyman, a fashion writer and several other men and women who, you would think, could earn good wages elsewhere, but they come to us and we employ only the best. Of course, we cannot employ a 'spotter' for any length of time, for so soon as one of them becomes known to the drivers or conductors then his usefulness ceases. Haven't we faith enough in our men to trust them? Certainly. But we have to take precautions, and we go so far as to put 'spotters' to watch 'spotters.'"

From all of which I gathered that there are other wheels in a railroad company besides those that bear the cars.

The Best Japanese Wrestlers.

"Wrestling in Japan is always done in tournaments that last from 6 o'clock in the morning until about 4 o'clock in the evening. As fast as one man is downed another turns up, and the winner of the most bouts is the winner of the first prize."

"How does Matsada Sorakichi stand with the crack wrestlers of Japan?"

"Not very high He is so much smaller and physically weaker than the good ones that he stands no show at all against them The best wrestlers are Adata and Umegatani of Tokio. They're about as big as Evan Lewis, but a great deal stronger Tokio, Osaka and Kioto are the greatest sporting centres in Japan There is good reason for Sorakichi's inferiority to the other wrestlers of his race. For nearly three centuries wrestling has been the prevailing sport of that country. Professional wrestlers bred their sons to be wrestlers, and in the course of half a dozen generations there was developed a class of brawny athletes, big of bone and large of stature, giants in every respect physically. Against such fellows Sorakichi stands a small show. One feature of the Japanese wrestler that strikes an American at first glance is the Aldermanic paunch the athletes boast. In this country where athletes train off every ounce of superfluous flesh, a man who would step into a ring with such a waist girth as Japanese wrestlers carry around would be laughed off the stage. The average Jap will weigh form 120 to 130 pounds. None of the best wrestlers scale under 200 pounds, and all stand head and shoulders above non-athletic citizens."

Boston has a gymnasium exclusively for the use of women. It has six bowling alleys, a tennis court, a gymnasium hall, a running track of twenty laps to the mile, hot and cold water baths, etc. It was projected by Miss Mary Allen, who has for years been a devotee of physical culture.

The Beginning of the End.

The beginning of disease is a slight debility or disorder of some of the vital organs, the stomach, the liver or the bowels usually. There are dyspeptic symptoms, the liver is troublesome, the skin grows tawny and unhealthy looking, there are pains in the right side or through the right shoulder blade. The climax is often an utter prostration of the physical energies, perhaps a fatal issue. But if the difficulty is met in time with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is always effective as a remedy, and it should be resorted to at an early stage, there will be no reason to apprehend those injurious subsequent effects upon the system often entailed by entirely cured diseases. Far better is it, also, to employ this safe remedial agent in fever and ague, and other malarial complaints, than quinine and other potent drugs, which, even when they do prove effectual for a time, ruin the stomach and impair the general health.

The Best Foot in Front.

"See here, now, I've heard a good deal about the honest farmers, but what makes you put all the best peaches on the top of the basket?" asked a city man of the fruitseller.

He stretched his head, thought a moment, and replied: "I 'spect it's for the same reason you have the front of your house of brown stone, and the back mostly swill-barrel."

It is a terribly suggestive incident which Mr. G. R. Sims mentions as having occurred in a South London Infant school. The teacher was explaining the parable of the Prodigal Son. "All his clothes are gone," said she; "what must he do for food?" The question was promptly answered by a little girl of three and-a-half, drawing, too evidently, on her sad experience—"Why, pawn his little gal's boots and fings."

Commissioner of Deeds for all the States. Mr. G. F. Reardon, Baltimore, Md., writes that he suffered for a long time with rheumatism, which yielded to no treatment until he applied St. Jacobs Oil.

Two smart citizens of Evesboro, N. J. undertook to play a practical joke on a colored man, by concealing themselves on the roadside and rushing out at him. Instead of running, their intended victim seized one of the men and beat him almost to death.

Ex-Congressman Weaver, Postoffice Department, Washington, D. C., considers Red Star Cough Cure a remarkable remedial agent. It contains no dangerous narcotics, and costs but twenty-five cents.

"Your presents is desired at our Christmas celebration," was a boy's letter to his uncle.

Chicago clergymen sincerely hope that the beat is on its last legs.

A dime museum man eats live frogs, puts them in his hopper as it were.

Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets." They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet or occupation. For sick headache, constipation, impure blood, dizziness, sour eructations from the stomach, bad taste in mouth, bilious attacks, pain in region of kidneys, internal fever, bloated feeling about stomach, rush of blood to head, take Dr. Pierce's "Pellets." By druggists.

Sangman County, (Ill.,) has just paid a wolf bounty, the first in twenty years.

Increase of Heart Disease.

No other disease is attracting so much attention and apprehension at the present time as Heart Disease. This is caused by the fact that physicians, as a rule, do not treat the disease successfully. "Dead without a moment's warning." This is an untruth. Warnings are given by thousands. Every unnatural heart symptom indicates the need of that renowned specific, Dr. Kilmer's Ocean-Weed Heart Remedy, the one remedial agency of the age.

A lady writes: "Nearly two years ago I was badly afflicted with Heart Disease and Dropsy, with prostation of the nervous system, my heart would give two regular beats, then would tumble off and seem to stop. I would be dizzy, and faint, and cold, such death coldness it would seem to freeze my very vitals. I was so weak that I had to be helped in and out of bed; my limbs swelled so badly that they would leave the impression of my fingers for a long time, my face and eyes were so bloated that there would be sacs over my eyes; physicians gave me up to die; they said I could live but a few weeks.

"Through the kindness of our Druggist, M. M. Kenyon, Newark, Wayne Co., N. Y., I was induced to try Dr. Kilmer's Ocean-Weed Heart Remedy. So rapid and complete did the medicines effect a cure that it seemed like magic.

"It almost brought me out of the grave. I am nearly 64 years of age and now enjoy a good degree of health. I will cheerfully answer all letters sent in regard to what your most excellent Remedy has done for me and others of my acquaintance."

Mrs. L. D. Coleman, Fairville, Wayne Co., N. Y., Dec. 2d, 1886.

A Druggist writes: "Express one-half dozen Ocean-Weed Heart Remedy (quick). Mr. T. Turner says Ocean-Weed is helping his mother after three of our best Physicians had failed. The above is for her."

E. T. Webb, Jackson, Mich., Dec. 18, 1883.

A druggist writes: "I have sold your medicines for several years and used them in my family with the best of satisfaction. I always recommend them with perfect confidence—their sales exceed that of any other kind I handle."

D. J. Palmer, Union, N. Y., Nov. 10, 1886.

W. W. Wescott writes: "I was troubled for several years with a nervous difficulty of the heart. I suffered intensely from palpitation, and had very irregular pulsations, varying from 40 to 150 per minute, and a general sluggishness of circulation. Doctored with the best country physicians, but grew worse. I used your Ocean-Weed Heart Remedy. It cured me, and I can cheerfully and conscientiously recommend it to anyone suffering with heart difficulty."

Editor "Dundee Record," Dundee, N. Y., Dec. 7, 1886.

The above testimonies were sent to Dr. Kilmer & Co. unsolicited, and are a fair illustration of many received daily, showing the efficacy of their remedies and the gratitude such persons feel for their recovery. Every testimony published by us is true, the most searching inquiry is invited—Any one in doubt as to their truthfulness should write to the persons whose correct name and address is always given, (inclose 2ct stamp for return answer.) If you will find a false testimony published by us we will pay you $5,000—D. Kilmer & Co.

If your druggist does not sell it, send direct to Dr. Kilmer. He will send 6 Bottles for $5.00 and prepay all express charges to your nearest express office. Give full name, Post office, County and State, also Express office.

A New York politician's definition of an honest man: "One who will stay bought."

How to Gain Flesh and Strength.

Use after each meal SCOTT'S EMULSION with Hypophosphites. It is as palatable as milk, and easily digested. The rapidity with which delicate people improve with its use is wonderful. Use it and try your weight. As a remedy for Consumption, Throat affections and Bronchitis, it is unequaled. Please read: "I used Scott's Emulsion in a child eight months old with good results. He gained four pounds in a very short time."—THO. PRIM, M. D., Alabama.

"Money is tight," No wonder. So much of it goes to the saloon.

"A Perfect Flood of Sunshine" will fill the heart of every suffering woman if she will only persist in the use of Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription." It will cure the most excruciating periodical pains, and relieve you of all irregularities and give healthy action. It will positively cure internal inflammation and ulceration, misplacement and all kindred disorders. Price reduced to one dollar. By druggists.

The woman who neglects her husband's shirt front is no longer the wife of his bosom

WHATEVER name or designation is given to Fever and Ague or other intermittent diseases, it is safe to say that Malaria or a disordered state of the liver is at fault. Eliminate the impurities from the system and a sure and prompt cure is the result. Prickly Ash Bitters is the safest and most effective remedy for all biliary troubles, kidney diseases, and like complaints that has ever been brought before the public. A trial is its best recommendation.

A Tribute to American Genius

Were the recent awards at Liverpool and Edinburgh of silver medals to Seabury & Johnson, Pharmaceutical Chemists, and proprietors of Benson's Capcine Plasters. These plasters are endorsed by 5,000 physicians and pharmacists as the only reliable external remedy for coughs, colds, rheumatism, &c. Beware of nostrums advertised by quacks.

The Duty of State Legislatures.

Legislation should be effected in every State regulating the sale and use of the many poisons resorted to by women in their desperation to obtain beautiful complexions, while there exists in Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic every requisite necessary to accomplish the object without injuring health or endangering life.

Soldiers and widows Mexican War can get pensions now. New law. Write at once. Flenner & Co., Attorneys, Washington, D. C.

If afflicted with sore eyes use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye-water. Druggists sell at 25c per bottle.

Von Moltke in Battle.

The London Daily News says: Since Moltke's important speech at the Reichstag the papers are full of anecdotes relating to the General, and the following is one of them, related by Bismarck: "When on the eve of war even Moltke became talkative, and when we marched in 1870 he at once grew ten years younger, spoke with vivacity, took pleasure in champagne and choice cigars, and lost all his pedantry acquired while resting on the laurels he had gained in 1866. During the battle of Konigegratz, when victory was doubtful for hours, Bismarck approached Moltke, tormented by doubts and fears as to the result of the terrible struggle. Moltke sat silent on his black steed. He was observing the course of the battle, and it was impossible to attract his attention. But Bismarck had a little case in his pocket containing two cigars, one of excellent, the other of inferior quality. He offered the case to Moltke, and without speaking the General took it, examined the two cigars, and chose the good one without thanks. But Bismarck understood him. He put spurs to his horse and cheerfully returned to his post, for, thought he, if Moltke is still able to make choice of a cigar with such calmness of mind it means that all is going on well."

Consumption.

Notwithstanding the great number who yearly succumb to its terrible and fatal disease, which is daily winding its fatal coils around thousands who are unconscious of its deadly presence, Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" will cleanse and purify the blood of scrofulous impurities, and cure tubercular consumption (which is only scrofulous disease of the lungs). Send 10 cents in stamps and get Dr. Pierce's complete treatise on consumption and kindred affections, with numerous testimonials of cures. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

There are 18,000 operatives in the shirt, cuff and collar trade of Troy.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.

Send for Pamphlet on Female Diseases, free, securely sealed. Dr. J. B. Marchisi, Utica, N. Y

Soldiers and widows Mexican War can get pensions now. New law. Write at once. Flenner & Co., Attorneys, Washington, D. C.

Imprudence is the messenger sent to invite disease, poverty and other evils.

Peculiar
To itself in many important particulars, Hood's Sarsaparilla is different from and superior to any other medicine.

Peculiar in combination, proportion and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom.

Peculiar in its medicinal merit, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

Peculiar in strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 doses one dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Peculiar in its "good name at home"—there is more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers.

Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time. Be sure to get

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.
100 Doses One Dollar

OPIUM HABIT absolutely cured NOT A PARTICLE PAIN or self-denial. Pay when cured. Handsome book free. DR. C. J. WEATHERBY, Kansas City, Mo.

Blair's Pills. Great English Gout and Rheumatic Remedy. Oval Box $1.00; round, 50 cts.

Pensions to Soldiers & Heirs. Send stamp for circulars. COL. L. BINGHAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

MEXICAN WAR. Soldiers and Widows can now draw pensions. New Law. FLENNER & Co., Pension Attorneys, all wars, Washington, D. C.

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficent influence of
PRICKLY ASH BITTERS
It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health.
It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young.
As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

BENSON'S
BENSON'S CAPCINE PLASTER
POROUS PLASTER
Highest Awards of Medals in Europe and America.
The neatest, quickest, safest and most powerful remedy known for Rheumatism, Pleurisy, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Backache. Weakness, cold in the chest and all aches and pains. Endorsed by 5,000 Physicians and Druggists of the highest repute. Benson's Plasters promptly relieve and cure where other plasters and greasy salves, liniments and lotions, are absolutely useless. Beware of imitations under similar sounding names, such as "Capsicum," "Capucin," "Capsicine," as they are utterly worthless and intended to deceive. ASK FOR BENSON'S AND TAKE NO OTHERS. All druggists.
SEABURY & JOHNSON, Proprietors, New York.

J. P. STEVENS & BRO.
JEWELERS.
Atlanta, Ga.
Send for Catalogue.

ATLANTA
SAW WORKS.
Manufacturers of and Dealers in
Saws and Saw-Mill Supplies.
Repairing a Specialty.
Agent for L. POWER & COMPANY'S Wood Working Machinery. Large and complete stock. Write for catalogue. ATLANTA, GA.

WHETHER YOU WANT A
PIANO OR ORGAN
It will pay you to write to
PHILLIPS & CREW,
ATLANTA, GA.,
For Catalogue (free) and Prices. Mention this paper.

OPIUM and WHISKEY HABITS cured at home without pain. Book of particulars sent FREE. B. M. Woolley, M. D., Atlanta, Ga. OFFICE 65½ Whitehall Street. Mention this paper.

TAPEWORM CURE Illustrated Book sent FREE. Address A. M. BOCK, P. O. Box 466, Atlanta, Ga.

Young Man Can get the most Practical Business Education at Goldsmith's School of Business, 33½ S Broad St. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Circulars & Specimen of Penmanship.

$15.00 Flat top No. 7 Cook Stove for $10.00 with fixtures. Send for catalogue. A. P. Stewart & Co., 69 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.

OPIUM Habit Cured. Treatment sent on trial. HUMANE REMEDY CO., LaFayette, Ind.

HARTER'S
THE ONLY TRUE
IRON TONIC
Will purify the BLOOD, regulate the LIVER and KIDNEYS, and Restore the HEALTH and VIGOR of YOUTH. Dyspepsia, Want of Appetite, Indigestion, Lack of Strength and Tired Feeling absolutely cured: Bones, muscles and nerves receive new force. Enlivens the mind and supplies Brain Power.
LADIES Suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex will find in DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC a safe and speedy cure. Gives a clear, healthy complexion. Frequent attempts at counterfeiting only add to the popularity of the original. Do not experiment—get the ORIGINAL AND BEST.
(Dr. HARTER'S LIVER PILLS Cure Constipation, Liver Complaint and Sick Headache. Sample Dose and Dream Book mailed on receipt of two cents in postage.)
THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE COMPANY.
St. Louis, Mo.

SOUTHERN SEED for SOUTHERN SOIL
Being desirous of having some of our seed planted in every garden in the South, and knowing, as we do, there are no purer or better stocks offered in the United States than ours, if you will send us $1.00 we will send to any address thirty papers of our regular size packets of Garden Seed (your own selection) and a quarter pound of Pride of Georgia Melon Seed. Southern Seed Company, Seed Growers, Macon, Ga. Send for our price list of all varieties of field and garden seed.

SHOW CASES. WALL CASES.
DESKS, OFFICE FURNITURE AND FIXTURES.
Ask for Illustrated Pamphlet.
TERRY SHOW CASE CO., Nashville, Tenn.

ACME PULVERIZING HARROW, Clod Crusher and Leveler. The Best Tool in the world for preparing corn, cotton and other ground. D. H. NASH, Sole Manuf'r, 32 West Main St., Louisville, Ky.

PILES! DR. WILLIAMS' Indian Pile Ointment will cure any case of Itching, Bleeding, Ulcerated or Protruding Piles. CURE GUARANTEED. Prepared for Piles only. (Physicians' jars by express, prepaid, $2.50.) Price per box, 50c. and $1. Sold by druggists or mailed on receipt of price by LAMAR, RANKIN & LAMAR, Agents, Atlanta, Ga.

$100 TO $300 A MONTH can be made working for us. Agents preferred who can furnish their own horses and give their whole time to the business. Spare moments may be profitably employed also. A few vacancies in towns and cities. B. F. JOHNSON & CO., 1013 Main St., Richmond, Va.

WE WANT YOU! alive energetic man or woman needing profitable employment to represent us in every county. Salary $75 per month and expenses, or a large commission on sales if preferred. Goods staple. Every one buys. Outfit and particulars Free. STANDARD SILVERWARE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

BUSINESS Education a specialty at MOORE'S BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, Ga. One of the best schools in the Country. Send for Circulars.

PENSIONS, officers' pay, bounty procured; deserters relieved. 21 years' practice. Success or no fee. Write for circulars and new laws. A. W. McCormick & Son, Washington, D. C.

SEND 4 cents to BASS & CO., PHILLIPSBURG, KY. and learn to make an article used by every family at one-twentieth the usual cost.

SHORTHAND Writing thoroughly taught BY MAIL or personally. Situations procured all pupils when competent. Send for circular. W. G. Chaffee, Oswego, N. Y.

THURSTON'S IVORY PEARL TOOTH POWDER Keeping Teeth Perfect and Gums Healthy.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE Lines not under the horse's feet. Address BREWSTER'S SAFETY REIN HOLDER, Holly, Mich.

PATENTS Obtained. Send stamp for inventors' Guide. L. Bingham, Patent Lawyer Washington, D. C.

A. N. U. ....Seven '87.

LET THIS ADVERTISEMENT BE YOUR
GOLDEN ARGOSY
SAILING FROM THE FRAGRANT FLOWER LAND OF BALMY FLORIDA FREIGHTED WITH COMFORT HEALTH & PROSPERITY.
FREE HOMES FOR ALL
THE POOR MAN'S CHANCE & THE RICH MAN'S OPPORTUNITY
20,000 ACRES FREE
LOVELY-ST-ANDREWS-BY-THE-SEA.
WEISBRODT. CIN.

FLORIDA FREE
HOMES AND ORANGE GROVES
WITHOUT MONEY AND WITHOUT PRICE.

100	Orange Grove Tracts of	40 acres each.
200	" " "	20 " "
400	" " "	10 " "
800	" " "	5 " "
1600	" " "	2½ " "

500 City Building Lots.

20,000 ACRES } IN 2½ to 40-ACRE TRACTS ALL FREE.

Every Word of this Advertisement is important. Don't miss it. PROFIT BY IT. It is for YOU

In this day of deceptive advertising we desire to impress that this announcement means exactly what it says: that every applicant can secure, absolutely free of any charge for the land, one of the above divisions of valuable Florida property. No trick! No juggling of words! It means exactly that—nothing less, nothing more.

OUR METHOD! NOTE ITS FAIRNESS!

We have just issued a large sheet of detailed House Plans, illustrating nine different styles of houses, costing from $300 to $1,500 each, which this Company is prepared to build for its patrons at St. Andrew's Bay. In order to defray at least a portion of the very large cost of advertising, getting up these designs, and executing a legal Warranty Deed for each applicant, we will charge 25c. for mailing this sheet of House Plans to applicants. The plans are worth $5 to any one who will ever desire to build a house. They are all new and gotten up expressly for us. If you select from the House Plans any one that suits you, we will build the house on your property, and give you five years' time to pay for the house, charging you 5 per cent. interest on the cost of the house. If you do not care to have a house built you are not obliged to do so, you being left entirely free to decide for yourself without in any way affecting the gift of the property—the property will be given to you FREE, whether you have a house built or not. With the sheet of House Plans will be sent a numbered in a sealed envelope. Upon its receipt you will open the envelope, sign your name in full on the proper blanks, so that a Warranty Deed can be made in your name, and return the same to us. A deed for the piece of land called for by the Free Land Warrant will be immediately executed in your name. No charge of any kind will be made for the Free Land Warrant—the property will be absolutely free.

FREE LAND WARRANT

If your application is received after all the lands are disposed of, you will be so notified, and the 25c. you send for the House Plans be returned to you.

LOCAL COLONY CLUBS Five sheets of House Plans and five Free Land Warrants will be sent to any address, to be distributed among friends, on receipt of $1 for the House Plans; ten for $2; fifteen for $3; twenty for $4; and twenty-five for $5. No more than twenty-five are desired from any one person acting as agent for others. Deeds will be made as the Club Agent directs when he returns the Free Land Warrants.

YOU WILL BE A TRAITOR to your own interests and to those dependent on you if you fail to avail yourself of this Great Free Land Offer. Secure it for your children.

The St. Andrew's Bay Railroad and Land Company numbers among its officers and stockholders some of the most responsible and energetic men of Florida, Ohio, and New York, who are enlisted heart, hand, and pocket book in this great enterprise. We do business through the Second National of Cincinnati, and refer to two thousand prosperous settlers at St. Andrew's. And now we await your pleasure.

Address either our Northern Office at Cincinnati or our Eastern Office at New York, where all deeds are issued, as follows:

The St. Andrew's Bay R. R. and Land Co.,
No. 227 Main St., CINCINNATI, O. } { No. 29 Park Row, NEW YORK, N. Y.

Remit by postal-note, registered letter, or bank draft. Do not send stamps when it can be avoided.

TO BE READ IN CONNECTION WITH ABOVE.

With a broader business policy than has characterized any other southern corporation, we have steadily appreciated the relative value of land and people. We are holding for our own profit certain lands to be sold in the future; the balance is offered free as air to all who apply in time.

A little more than one year ago the St. Andrew's Bay Railroad and Land Co. acquired control of upward of 300,000 acres of the most desirable lands in the State of Florida, situated around about the beautiful bay of St. Andrew's, on the southwest Gulf coast. Before the war the town known as St. Andrew's Bay was the home of many wealthy people, who had sought the shores of the beautiful bay as a location where could be found in their highest perfection the peculiar delights of a Florida home. During the war the town was bombarded by a Federal fleet and nearly swept out of existence. The inhabitants fled abandoning their shattered homes to the torch and pillage of the enemy, and not until about ten years ago was there any attempt made to reoccupy the town. This Company began active operations a little more than a year ago. Since that time there has been the most remarkable "boom" created for St. Andrew's Bay that has ever been known in the Flower State. Last winter more than 5,000 visitors from all parts of the country reached that point in quest of Florida homes. Business and dwelling houses have been erected by the hundred. Property secured at the beginning of the "boom" has been sold for from $25 to $500 for ordinary Building Lots. Every "old settler" has realized a handsome competency in disposing of a portion of his lands at fancy prices. Docks have been erected; hotels built and added to from time to time; a line of seven boats ply regularly between St. Andrew's Bay and other ports; and, altogether, the outlook promises that St. Andrew's Bay will in a few years become the most important city of the gulf coast. It possesses every natural advantage; a deep bay—more than sixty five miles long with its various branches—with deep channels to the outer gulf, at once the most charming and most useful body of water on the coast; a safe harbor for the fleets of a world. Every species of vegetable, fruit, and cereal will grow to perfection in its soft, Italian climate; oysters in countless millions—the best in the world—rest in thousands of exhaustless oyster beds; timber easily accessible and sufficient in quantity to furnish cargoes for years to the entire carrying capacity of a nation's fleet; a climate that, both winter and summer, is the absolute perfection of earthly delight; free from malaria, high, dry land, and beautifully located. These are among other good reasons why St. Andrew's Bay is the most desirable location for a Florida home than the State can offer, and why this company has confidence in the wisdom of its present business policy.

TAXES All taxes have been paid on these lands up to March, 1887, and this Company will pay them again at the date to December, 1887, both on its own lands and those disposed of under this Great Free Offer.

SHUT OUT This Great Free Land Offer is open to any body except those who are already located and are now living at St. Andrew's Bay, also residents of [illegible] and Washington and Jackson Counties, Fla.

GUARANTY We will buy any property disposed of under this Great Free Land Offer that is substantially improved during the next two years, and pay at the rate of $10 per acre with the cost of the building improvements added. By that time property will be worth $100 per acre.

NO CONDITIONS There are no conditions associated with this Great Free Land Offer which can not be complied with. You are not required to move there, or improve it any way, unless you do so freely and at your own pleasure.

OUR REFERENCES.

Those who have done business with us. In one day the following list of applicants, secured Orange Grove tracts, ranging in size from 2½ to 40 acres each. Space in good newspapers costs too much to give a list of all who have received free property at our hands. Each one of the following list can testify, if he is so disposed, to the absolute fidelity of our methods of business. No correspondence has passed between any of them and this office, except the necessary forms of business in applying for and receiving free property, and the names are published without consultation and merely to represent the number who received Orange Grove tracts free, at our hands, in one day's business.

M. McCann, Tyrone, Pa
W. A. Kinsloe, Lockhaven, Pa
Salem Hill, Schenley, Pa
E. B. Knowles, Branford, Pa
T. Murphy, Huntington, W. Va
J. H. Baxtresser, Middlet'n, Pa
W. L. Colvin, Beatrice, Neb
Frank A. Snell, Anaconia, Ct
A. Jacobs, [illegible]
Lewis Brindle, Latrobe, Pa
Elmira Kepple, Latrobe, Pa
J. W. McCoach, Santa Fe, N. M
J. A. Davis, Pierce City, Mo
Jas. B. Rowley, Olathe, Kan
M. Minehan, Gurdon, Ark
Geo. A. Copp, Fisher's Hill, Va
W. F. Brewton, Cedar Plain, O
Wm. C. Sampson, Golden, Col
F. B. Riblet, Shinnston, W. Va
M. J. Lunquest, Birm'gham, Ala
Joel P. Keys, Colwich, Kan
Jno. A. Kramer, Bloomsb'g, Pa
And. Knudsen, Garfield, Kan
Wm. F. Birkelbach, Shaft, Pa
Moses B. Knapp, Gwynedd, Pa
M. E. Lewark, Wabasha, Minn
Mrs. J. A. Davis, Hillsboro, Ill
[illegible] Cord, Hanna, Ind
O. P. Fox, Mt. Carmel, Pa
C. F. Strong, Gloucester, Mass
Andrew Sullivan, "
Geo. W. Davis, "
Jas. H. McMillan, Trans. Sta.
25th Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa
W. S. Davis, Highland Park, Ill
Robt. C. Morrison, Anch'ge, Ky
M. Kennedy, Wabasha, Minn
A. B. Davis, Eureka Sp'gs, Ark
Jas. Kavan, Schuyler, Neb.

St. Paul, Minn.

Moses Bixler, cor. Isabel and Starkey Streets
Geo. Stevens, 39 Isabel Street

Kansas City, Mo.

J. A. Sullivan, Met. Hotel
L. E. MacKusick, 744 Oak St
Jos. Field, Gen'l Delivery
Abram Mann, 716 Lean St
Wm. N. Allen, 744 Oak Street

Philadelphia, Pa.

T. McGrory, Sr., 2418 N. 2d St
Wm. H. Bower, 2d & Erie Av
Jas. Brown, 717 Sansom St
J. P. Haines, 1323 Marshall St
A. B. Shipley, [illegible]

Troy, N. Y.

Geo. B. Collins, 15 Fifth St
F. E. Hendricks, 137 [illegible]
W. S. Chatterton, [illegible]

Rates of Advertising.

One Dollar per Square, of one inch space or less, for the first, and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion.

Inches.	3 m.	6 m.	12 m.
1 Inch	$ 5 00	$ 7 00	$ 12 [illegible]
2 Inches	7 00	11 15	16 00
3 Inches	10 00	[illegible]	22 50
4 Inches	[illegible]	[illegible]	27 00
5 Inches	15 00	[illegible]	[illegible]
¼ Column	[illegible]	[illegible]	40 00
½ Column	27 00	[illegible]	60 00
1 Column	[illegible]	[illegible]	100 00

The Chilton View.

W. H. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors. "WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION." TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, MARCH 3, 1887. NUMBER 17.

Special Advertising.

Business Notices Ten Cents per line each insertion.

Obituaries and Tributes of Respect, half rates.

Announcing candidates for office, Five Dollars, strictly in advance.

Communications recommending candidates for office will be headed as advertisements and charged for accordingly.

Liberal contracts made with those advertising by the year.

☞ The money is due on all advertising after the first publication.

The swine census as compared to the human is as eighty to one hundred. That is, according to Statistician Dodge, of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, there are eighty hogs to every 100 of population of the United States.

That "knowledge is power" has recently been shown in Upper Michigan, where a poorly-dressed day-laborer a few months ago offered 25 cents a ton for the refuse and worthless rock heaps around the iron mines. It has panned out one-half good ore, and he has already realized about $5,000,000 from his purchase.

Some months ago the natives of a certain district in Australia predicted the approach of floods, and left their low-lying villages for the higher country. The floods came several weeks later, and the natives said that their information had been gathered from the ants, which had built their nests in the trees, instead of, as usual, on the ground.

If any one wishes to prove to what a great degree his own perceptions depend upon his surroundings, let him hold the fingers of one hand in a barrel of ice water, and those of the other in a bowl of water as hot as he can bear it, for say one minute, and then plunge both hands into a third bowl of water at the temperature of an ordinary living room. This water will be cold to one hand and hot to the other. It is an amusing and instructive experiment.

Dr. Brown-Sequard is quoted as saying that one has only to harden the neck and feet and destroy their sensitiveness to prevent taking cold. This is done by daily blowing a stream of cold air, by means of an elastic bag, upon the neck, and by immersing the feet in cold water. The air is at first only slightly cool, but is each day made colder, until the neck can stand an arctic blast with impunity. The feet are immersed in water at first at a temperature of ninety degrees, and this is gradually reduced to thirty-eight degrees.

According to the calculations made by a scientific writer, it requires a prodigious amount of vegetable matter to form a layer of coal, the estimate being that it would really take 1,000,000 years to form a coal bed 100 feet thick. The United States has an area of between 300,000, and 400,000 square miles of coal fields, 100,000,000 tons of coal being mined from these fields in one year, or enough to run a ring around the earth at the equator five and one-half feet wide and five and one-half thick, the quantity being sufficient to supply the whole world for a period of 1,500 to 2,000 years.

A novel ice-boat has been invented which ought to be of service in Polar expeditions. The object of its construction, however, is far more practical and useful. It is for the Michigan Central Railroad, and is to have a capacity of thirty cars, to run across the Straits of Mackinaw. It will be of peculiar construction, designed especially to overcome the hitherto quite insurmountable obstacles that have been encountered in the Straits of Mackinaw in midwinter. By an ingenious expedient the new boat breaks its own way through an ice floe by immense screws at either end. It is estimated that under the most adverse circumstances the boat will be able to make the passage in one day, where a trip of nine days has been not uncommon in bad times heretofore.

The nature of the potato has been thoroughly exposed in an exhibition celebrating the tercentenary of the introduction of the potato into England. Methods of storing, preserving and using potato products were shown, and the history was exhibited in an historic and scientific collection, including maps showing the European knowledge of the New World 300 years ago, and the proximity of potato growing districts to the ports most frequented, and illustrations of potato disease and works on the subject. The potato was found to be more than a prosaic tuber; it was a subject of history, botany and travel.

In 1799 the population of Spain scarcely reached 10,000,000, but at the end of 1882 it exceeded 18,000,000, this being tantamount to an increase of 8.40 per 1,000 inhabitants every year. The agricultural population, which was only 8,615,000 eighty-five years ago, is now 9,328,000, and the area under under cultivation has increased from 58,000,000 to 193,750,000 acres, while there are now 88,000,000 head of cattle as against just half that number at the beginning of the century. The industrial population of Spain has risen from 2,085,000 to 3,088,000, and the number of manufactories, etc., from 883 to 13,911. The trade of the country has increased in proportion, the progress during the last twenty-five years being particularly remarkable, as, while the imports and exports together amounted to only £35,800,000 in 1860, they have been gradually increasing and now reach £56,000,000. The increase extends to all branches of trade, for while Spain now produces 461,350,000 gallons of wine, of which about two-thirds are consumed in the country and the remainder is exported. Her railway system, which but five years ago did not reach 4,200 miles, is now not far short of 6,000 miles.

SNOW FLOWERS.

I awoke one winter morning,
And I found my garden white
With a host of shining blossoms
That had not been there at night.
All the barren ground was covered
And the naked branches quite.

For the angels in the night time,
Flying softly to and fro,
Bearing to the gates of heaven
Spirits from the earth below,
Had let fall upon my garden
Lovely garlands—flowers of snow.

—Minnie Irving, in New York News.

A DETECTIVE'S STORY.

I was in the active employ of Pinkerton for many years, and I took my full share of risks incident to detective work, but the very first case assigned me had more peril in it than any four others combined. I had done some "spotting" and "shadowing," and had helped on two or three cases, when I was sent to Milwaukee to look after an embezzler. The case was stated in a nutshell. A Mrs. Pierce, a widow of wealth, and a woman who trusted her servants altogether too much, received one day from the East by express a package of money amounting to $14,000. She had been in the habit of sending her butler to the bank to make deposits for her, and now and then to draw money on her written order. He had been with her for several years as a sort of man of all work in the house, and she had found him strictly honest. She gave him the money to deposit without a fear of his being tempted. He was not seen after he left the house. He did not go to the bank, and for three or four days Mrs. Pierce and others labored under the belief that he had been robbed and murdered. The hunt for his dead body was going on when I reached Milwaukee.

The name of the butler was John Lane, and he was described to me as a sandy-haired, red-faced man, weighing one hundred and sixty pounds, and wearing a sandy moustache. His habits were declared to be above reproach, and Mrs. Pierce indignantly resented my suggestion that he might have run away. So did the local detective who had the case in hand. I held from the first to the theory that he had run away. He had been told to hurry back. He could reach the bank in a walk of fifteen minutes, having only two or three turns to make. It was at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and he could be in no personal danger. No one could be found who had seen him between the house and the bank, although he was well known. But the best clue was found in Lane's room. There was a handful of sandy hair in a paper under the lavatory. There was another paper spotted with lather, in which were enough bristles to make a moustache. Behind an old trunk was a bottle which had contained hair dye.

Mrs. Pierce received the money about 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and she remarked to Lane that she would have him deposit it after dinner. He waited on the table at noon, and there was no change in his appearance, but between that time and two he shaved off his moustache, cut off a lot of his hair, applied the dye, and Mrs. Pierce remembered that he was muffled up as he went out, leaving by the side door.

Now came the hardest part of the work. When you know which way a criminal is heading it is quite easy to keep his trail, but when you can't say whether he is in New York or Omaha, or that he may not be hiding within two blocks of you, it is quite a different matter. From the servants in the house I learned that Lane had always declared he hated the very sight of cities and towns, and he had no care for fine clothes and society. He also had a great horror of the water. This seemed to argue that he would not head for Europe, as I at first feared. It was well known that he had a holy horror of the West, having read of savage Indians, prairie fires, grizzly bears, rattlesnakes, &c. That seemed to argue that he would not go West. Would he go North or South? I was helped out of my dilemma in a curious way. I had been at every steamboat office and railroad depot, meeting with no success, and was standing in front of the Second National Bank when a farmer-looking man accosted me with:

"What do you say about this bill? I say it's good and the old woman says it's bad?"

It was a five he had, and the "old woman" sat in a wagon on the opposite side of the street.

"Why does she suspect it to be bad?" I asked, as I surveyed the bill.

"Well, it was give to me four or five days ago by a chap who rode out home with us, had supper, and then cut across to the railroad station. I shouldn't have charged him over seventy-five cents at the most, and his liberality seems queer."

I was dead certain from his first words that I had got track of my man. We went into the bank to satisfy him that the bill was all right, and then crossed to the wagon. I want to tell you that country people are head and shoulders above the average city residents in the matter of observation and in remembering what they see.

"Well, one reason why I suspected this man," said the wife, "was because his hair was dreadfully haggled and then dyed. Such botch work you never saw. His hair was all in streaks of black and red, and he'd got the dye on his ears and neck."

The fellow had tried to play smart in leaving the city by one of the highways, but accident had revealed his trail. He had taken the train at a station about fifteen miles away, and he had four days the start of me. The first move was to run out to the country station at which he had taken the train. I there found that he had made many inquiries about the northern and western part of the State, and had finally purchased a ticket for Fond du Lac. The description of him was good, and I was about to buy a ticket for the same place and take a train due in half an hour, when in came a boy who had been there on the evening when Lane bought his ticket. He was a lad who helped around the station, and it was plain that he had a good deal of native wit.

"Yes, that chap bought a ticket for Fond du Lac, but I don't think he went there," replied the lad when I began to question him.

"What makes you think he did not?"

"Because," he answered, as he handed down a folder from the rack, "he was studying this route, which goes to Portage city. I think he meant to take this folder along, but dropped it. See how he has marked it with pencil."

So he had. He could run up to Watertown and go through by way of Beaver Dam. He had marked the time of arrival at the junction and of the arrival at Portage, and it could not be that he would take all that trouble to throw any one off his trail. There was no one after him, and he could not argue that the boy would hold the marked folder against him. I therefore changed my route to Portage city, and at the junction I got track of my man. He had no ticket, but had paid his fare in cash. It was night, and the state of his hair had not been noticed, but the conductor described Lane's general appearance, and said that he had changed a $20 bill for him. He might go no further than Beaver Dam, and I got off there and looked around for a few hours. No trace of him had been had, and I was at the depot to take the train, when a conversation between two young men became interesting.

"You ought to have told somebody," protested one.

"Yes, and been laughted at," replied the other.

"And he had ten thousand dollars?"

"Yes, double that."

"And he was counting it on the bed?"

"Yes."

"I'll bet he was a robber."

"May be, but he was off early in the morning. Well, so long, Tom—here's the train."

The one who had seen some one counting money was going west by my train, and I schemed to get a seat with him and draw him out. He was a porter at one of the hotels in Portage, and he had seen a guest answering Lane's description counting such a lot of money that it covered half the bed. The porter had made his observations through the keyhole of the door, and, being ashamed of himself, had hesitated to go to the landlord. The man had arrived without baggage, but had there purchased a valise, and his nervous manner and the sight of so much money in his possession had led the porter to finally conclude that there was a mystery there somewhere, although he had not spoken of it to any one around the house. The man had purchased a suit of coarse clothes, with hat and shoes to match, and in leaving had taken the highway leading toward Oshkosh. He had purchased another bottle of hair dye in Portage, but had apparently given his red hair up as a bad job. He not only left the bottle in his room, but by means of soap and water washed off what dye he had put on at Milwaukee.

Lane had given the landlord to understand that he was a hard-working young man who had started out to look for a job, but he had departed without fixing on anything definite. I did not believe he would go to Oshkosh. He was acting like a man who reasoned that if he could hide himself away in the country for a few weeks his crime and his identity would both be forgotten. To catch the embezzler without capturing his swag would have been no credit to me. He had several days the start of me, and had by this time got a job of some sort. I procured a rough suit of clothes, hired a horse, and set off on his trail. As he had gone on foot with a large valise in his hand it was easy to hear of him along the road. He headed toward Oshkosh for five or six miles, and then turned directly north. It was in the fall of the year, and the roads were in bad condition, but he made twenty-four miles that first day, not stopping at all for dinner. He went to the northeast for six miles, to the north for ten miles, and then he turned due west, almost on a line with La Crosse, and went eight miles before stopping at an inn. I had only made the same number of miles on horseback, but as he had to lie by the next forenoon on account of the rain, while I had good weather, I gained half a day on him. He proceeded toward La Crosse for ten miles more, and then went north two miles, and stayed over night with a farmer and talked about going to work in a saw mill. Next day he headed due west, and reached the Wisconsin River at a hamlet called Little Bend. It was on the sixth day after he left Milwaukee that I located him, and he had then been at work in a saw mill for a day and a half. I entered the hamlet on foot, as he had done, having a few extra clothes in a bundle, and it was soon known to the seventy-five or eighty population that I was in search of work. The owner of the only store in the place also kept a saloon and tavern, and, under pretense of being footsore and used up, I remained idle for two or three days, although the mill owner was short of hands and desired me to go to work at once.

It may be thought strange that I did not at once arrest Lane and have done with it. Had I overhauled him en route that would have been the plan, for the money would have been in his valise. He had taken board at the tavern, and during my first half day there I had found his room open and his valise unlocked. There was nothing in it which any one would want to take away. He had, like a sharp man, taken his money out and planted it. He could not justly suspect that I was after him, for after three or four days I went to work alongside of him and held him at a distance. He tried hard to get acquainted with me, but I was taciturn and unsocial. He gave me an opportunity to ask him questions, but I refused to profit by it. I admitted, for a purpose, that I left Milwaukee four or five days behind him, and after seeming to reflect for a while, he asked:

"Was there any special news when you left?"

"I don't remember."

"No murders or robberies?"

"There was a mystery of some sort, I believe. Somebody drew a lot of money out of the bank, fell into the hands of sharpers, and they were looking in the river and lake for his dead body."

"H'm!" he coughed, and that ended our conversation, though I did not fail to notice the look of gratification which crept over his face. That he had hidden the treasure was certain. That he would visit it sooner or later was dead sure. I watched him closely during the day, and I saw that he was nervous and preoccupied. I expected he would go out to inspect his treasure at night, and I took my precautions that he should not escape me, but he made no move. He went to work on Friday noon of one week and I on Thursday of the next. When Sunday week came it was a bright, warm day, and I made up my mind not to loose sight of him for an hour. There were several acres of logs in the yard, and after breakfast I went to the mill, climbed up in the attic, and had the yard and the hamlet under my eye. At about 10 o'clock Lane came down into the yard, wandered about in an aimless sort of way, though all the time keeping his eyes open, and by and by I saw him inspecting a huge log lying near a thorn-apple tree, which was the only tree or bush in the yard. I had been hauling logs with the cattle to the bank and dumping them off for the elevator or car to carry them up the incline into the mill, and had noticed the big log. It had been there for years, and was worthless. Now that I saw Lane in the vicinity I made up my mind that he had hidden his money close by, and I slipped out and went for a ramble in the woods.

That night at midnight, without anything having happened to create suspicion on Lane's part, I dressed myself and crept out of the tavern to make a hunt for the money. On my way out I paused at his door, and he was breathing like a man fast asleep. I had my revolver and a pair of handcuffs ready to take with me, but missed them after I got outside. Everything about was so quiet that I set off, thinking to be back with the money in a few minutes. The big log lay within twenty feet of the bank. There was a hollow in one end, but no money. The other end was solid. I climed over it and passed around it, and had just discovered a hollow which had been the base of a big limb, when I got a blow on the neck which rolled me over and over for ten feet. Before I could get up Lane was upon me. He was a good deal the larger and stouter man, but he could not hold me still. I could roll under him, and, while his object seemed to be to clutch my throat, I gave him two good blows in the face and got to my feet. Not a word was spoken by either of us. We stood for a moment gasping for breath, and then he rushed at me like an enraged bull, and we both clinched. He handled me almost as if I had been a boy, and it wasn't over a minute before we were on the bank above water twelve feet deep. There was a thin skim of ice over it, and the man who went in there could not live long.

In a boxing match match I could have got the better of Lane. In such a clinch his brute strength was a terrible advantage. His object was, of course, to pitch me into the river, but I hung to him so well that he was baffled. We were still struggling on the brink, when a great slice of the bank gave way and we went into the ice cold water, both having a firm hold, but I on top. Lane must have had his mouth open, for he began to strangle at once, and if I ever worked hard for three minutes it was to save him. He was unconscious when I got him to the bank and pulled him up, while I was as good as frozen. By a liberal use of my voice I aroused three or four men, and we got Lane to a hotel, and worked over him for half an hour before he opened his eyes. Then I tucked him up, gave him a big drink of hot whiskey, and went out and got the money. He had spent about $40 of it. Not a word did he reply as I told him who I was, who he was, and showed him the money. Not a word did he utter all the way back to Milwaukee, and it was only after Mrs. Pierce had refused to prosecute him and he was turned loose that he sullenly muttered:

"I was just fool enough to argue that no detective living could overhaul me."
—New York Sun.

How to Live a Century.

Professor Humphry, of Cambridge, has prepared a series of tables which contain some interesting information about centenarians. Of 52 persons whom he mentions, at least 11—2 males and 9 females—actually attained the age of 100. Others attained very nearly to the hundred years. Only one of the persons reached 108 years, while one died at the alleged age of 106. Of the 52 persons, 36 were women and 16 men. Prof. Humphry tells us that the comparative immunity of women from the exposures and risks to which men are subjected, and the greater temperance in eating and drinking exhibited by women are the chief points in determining their higher chances of longevity. Out of the 36 women 26 had been married, and 11 had borne large families. Of the 26 women who had been wives 8 had married before they were 20, 1 at 16, and 2 at 17. Twelve of the 52 centenarians were discovered to have been the eldest children of their parents. This fact, adds Mr. Humphry, does not agree with popular notions that the first children inherit a feebleness of constitution, nor with the opinion of racing stables, which is decidedly against the idea that "firstlings" are to be depended on for good performance on the course. The centenarians generally regarded were of spare build. Gout and rheumatism were, as a rule, absent. "It seems," says Prof. Humphry, "that the frame which is destined to great age needs no such prophylactics, and engenders none of the peccant humors for which the finger-joints (as in gout) may find a vent."

Of the 52 aged people, 24 only had no teeth, the average number of teeth remaining being 4 or 5. Long hours of sleep were notable among these old people, the period of repose averaging nine hours; while out-of-door exercise in plenty and early rising are to be noted among the factors of a prolonged life. One of the centenarians "drank to excess on festive occasions;" another was a "free beer drinker," and "drank like a fish during his whole life." Twelve had been total abstainers for life or nearly so, and mostly all were "small meat eaters."—St. James's Gazette.

Novel Preparations For War.

Battalions of schoolboys are forming in France. A number of mayors of arondissements are enlisting youths of from sixteen to twenty years of age, forming companies equivalent to the regular militia. They are armed with chassepots. One corps already has 500 members. They take their rifles home with them, instead of depositing them in the arsenal after drilling.

The Watch-dog Battalion of the Prussian Army is being very carefully trained for service. The dogs are intended primarily to convey intelligence from the advance posts to the main body of the regiment, and are taught to trot to and fro, carrying a tiny portfolio of dispatches round their necks. They are also to warn the outposts of an advance of an enemy during the night, and are trained to hunt up the wounded, or those who have lost their way. Two dogs are attached to each company of Chasseurs.
—Frank Leslie's.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Subject of Discourse: "The Ransomed."

TEXT: "Ye are bought with a price."—I Corinthians, vi., 20.

Your friend takes you through his valuable house. You examine the arches, the fresco, the grass-plots, the fish-ponds, the conservatories, the parks of deer, and you say within yourself, or you say aloud: "What did all this cost?" You see costly apparel, or you see a high-mettled span of horses harnessed with silver and gold, and you begin to make an estimate of the value. The man who owns a large estate cannot instantly tell you what it is all worth. He says: "I will estimate so much for the house, so much for the furniture, so much for laying out the grounds, so much for the stock, so much for the barn, so much for the equipage—adding up, in all making this aggregate."

Well, my friends, I hear so much about our mansion in heaven, about its furniture and the grand surroundings, that I want to know how much it is all worth, and what has actually been paid for it. I cannot complete in a month or a year the magnificent calculation; but before I get through to-day I hope to give you the figures. "Ye are bought with a price."

With some friends I went to London Tower to look at the crown jewels of England. We walked around, caught one glimpse of them, and being in the procession were compelled to pass out. I wish that to-day I could take this audience into the tower of God's mercy and strength, that you might walk around just once at least and see the crown jewels of eternity, behold their brilliance and estimate their value. "Ye are bought with a price." Now, if you have a large amount of money to pay, you do not pay it all at once, but you pay it by installments—so much the first of January, so much the first of April, so much the first of July, so much the first of October, until the entire amount is paid. And I have to tell this audience that "You have been bought with a price," and that that price was paid in different installments.

The first installment paid for the clearance of our souls was the ignominious birth of Christ in Bethlehem. Though we may never be carefully looked after afterward, our advent into the world is carefully guarded. We come into the world amid kindly attentions. Privacy and silence are afforded when God launches an immortal soul into the world. Even the roughest of men know enough to stand back. But I have to tell you that in the village on the side of the hill there was a very bedlam of uproar when Jesus was born. In a village capable of accommodating only a few hundred people, many thousand people were crowded: and amid hostlers and muleteers and camel drivers yelling at stupid beasts of burden, the Messiah appeared. No silence. No privacy. A better adapted place hath the eaglet in the eyrie—hath the whelp in the lion's lair. The exile of heaven lieth down upon the straw. The first night out from the palace of heaven spent in an outhouse. One hour after laying aside the robes of heaven, dressed in a wrapper of coarse linen. One would have supposed that Christ would have made a more gradual descent, coming from heaven first to a half-way world of great magnitude, then to Cæsar's palace, then to a merchant's castle in Galilee, then to a private home in Bethany, then to a fisherman's hut, and last of all to the stable. No! it was one leap from the top to the bottom.

Let us open the door of the caravansary in Bethlehem, and drive away the camels. Press on through the group of idlers and loungers. What, O Mary, no light! "No light," she says, save that which comes through the door." What, Mary, no food! "None," she says, "only that which is brought in the sack on the journey." Let the Bethlehem woman who has come in here with kindly attentions put back the covering from the babe that we may look upon it. Look! Look! Uncover your head. Let us kneel. Let all voices be hushed. Son of Mary! Son of God! Child of a day—monarch of eternity! In that eye the glance of a God. Omnipotence sheathed in that babe's arm. That voice to be changed from the feeble plaint to the tone that shall wake the dead. Hosanna! Hosanna! Glory be to God that Jesus came from throne to manger that we might rise from manger to throne, and that all the gates are open, and that the door of heaven that once swung this way to let Jesus out, now swings the other way to let us in. Let all the bellmen of heaven lay hold the rope, and ring out the news: "Behold, I bring you glad tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people; for to-day is born in the city of David a Saviour which is Christ the Lord!"

The second installment paid for our soul's clearance was the scene in Quarantania, a mountainous region full of caverns, where there are to this day panthers and wild beasts of all sorts; so that you must now, the traveler says, go there armed with knife or gun or pistol. It was there that Jesus went to think and pray, and it was there that this monster of hell, more sly, more terrific than anything that prowled in that country—Satan himself, met Christ. The rose in the cheek of Christ—that Publius Lentulus, in his letter to the Roman Senate, ascribed to Jesus—that rose had scattered its petals. Abstinence from food had thrown him into emaciation. The longest abstinence from food recorded in profane history is that of the crew of the ship Juno; for twenty-three days they had nothing to eat. But this sufferer had fasted a month and ten days before He broke fast.

Hunger must have agonized every fibre of the body and gnawed on the stomach with teeth of death. The thought of a morsel of bread or meat must have thrilled the body with something like ferocity. Turn out a pack of men hungry as Christ was a-hungered, and if they had strength, with one yell they would devour you as a lion would a kid. It was in that pang of hunger that Jesus was accosted, and Satan said: "Now change these stones, which look like bread, into an actual supply of bread." Had the temptation come to you or me under those circumstances, we would have cried: "Bread it shall be!" and had been almost impatient at the time taken for mastication; but Christ with one hand beat back the hunger, and with the other hand beat back the monarch of darkness. O, ye tempted ones! Christ was tempted. We are told that Napoleon ordered a coat of mail made; but he was not quite certain that it was impenetrable, so he said to the manufacturer of that coat of mail: "Put it on now yourself and let us try it;" and with shot after shot from his own pistol the Emperor found out that it was just what it pretended to be—a good coat of mail. Then the man received a large reward. I bless God that the same coat of mail that struck back the weapons of temptation from the heart of Christ we may all now wear; for Jesus comes and says: "I have been tempted, and I know what it is to be tempted. Take this robe that defended Me and wear it for yourselves. I will see you through all trials, and I will see you through all temptation."

"But," says Satan still further to Jesus, "come and I will show you something worth looking at," and after a half-day's journey they came to Jerusalem and to the top of the Temple. Just as one might go up in the tower of Antwerp and look off upon Belgium, so Satan brought Christ to the top of the Temple. Some people at a great height feel dizzy, and have a strange disposition to jump; so Satan comes to Christ with a powerful temptation in that very crisis. Standing there at the top of the Temple they look off. A magnificent reach of country. Grain fields, vineyards, olive groves, forests and streams, cattle in the valley, flocks on the hills, and villages, and cities, and realms. "Now," says Satan, "I'll make a bargain. Just jump off. I know it is a great way from the top of the Temple to the valley, but if you are divine you can fly. Jump off. It won't hurt you. Angels will catch you. Your Father will hold you. Besides, I'll make you a large present, if you will. I'll give you Asia Minor, I'll give you India, I'll give you China, I'll give you Ethiopia, I'll give you Italy, I'll give you Spain, I'll give you Germany, I'll give you Britain, I'll give you all the world." What a humiliation it must have been.

Go to-morrow morning and get into an altercation with some wretch crawling up from a gin-cellar in the Fourth Ward, New York. "No," you say, "I would not bemean myself by getting in such a contest." Then think of what the King of Heaven and Earth endured when He came down and fought that great wretch of hell, and fought him in the wilderness and on the top of the Temple. But I bless God in that triumph over temptation Christ gives us the assurance that we shall also triumph. Having Himself been tempted He is able to succor all those who are tempted.

In a violent storm at sea the mate told a boy—for the rigging had become entangled in the mast—to go up and right it. A gentleman standing on the deck said: "Don't send that boy up, he will be dashed to death." The mate said: "I know what I am about." The boy raised his hat in recognition of the order, and then rose, hand over hand, and went to work; and as he swung in the storm the passengers wrung their hands and expected to see him fall. The work done, he came down in safety, and a Christian man said to him: "Why did you go down in the forecastle before you went up?" "Ah," said the boy, "I went down to pray. My mother always taught me before I undertook anything great to pray." "What is that you have in your vest?" said the man. "O, that is the New Testament," he said. "I thought I would carry it with me if I really did go overboard." How well that boy was protected! I care not how great the height or how vast the depth, with Christ within us, and Christ beneath us, and Christ above us, and Christ all around us, nothing shall befall us in the way of harm. Christ himself, having been in the tempest, will deliver all those who put their trust in him. Blessed be his glorious name forever.

The third installment paid for our redemption was the Saviour's sham trial. I call it a sham trial—there has never been anything so indecent or unfair in the Tombs Court of New York, as was witnessed at the trial of Christ. Why, they hustled Him into the court-room at two o'clock in the morning. They gave Him no time for counsel. They gave Him no opportunity for subpoenaing witnesses. The ruffians who were wandering around through the midnight, of course they saw the arrest and went into the court-room. But Jesus's friends were sober men, were respectable men, and at that hour—two o'clock in the morning—of course they were at home asleep. Consequently Christ entered the court-room with the ruffians.

Oh, look at Him! No one to speak a word for Him. I lift the lantern until I can look into His face, and as my heart beats in sympathy for this, the best friend the world ever had, Himself now utterly friendless, an officer of the court-room comes up and smites Him in the mouth, and I see the blood stealing from gum and lip. Oh, it was a farce of a trial, lasting only perhaps an hour, and then the judge rises for the sentence! It is against the law to give sentence unless there has been an adjournment of the court between condemnation and sentence; but what cares this judge for the law? "The man has no friends—let him die," says the judge, and the ruffians outside the rail cry: "Aha! aha! that's what we want—His blood. Hand him out here to us. Away with Him! Away with Him!" Oh I bless God, that amid all the injustice that may be inflicted upon us in this world we have a divine sympathizer. The world cannot lie about you, nor abuse you as much as they did Christ, and Jesus stands to-day in every court room, in every home, in every store, and says: "Courage! By all my hours of maltreatment and abuse, I will protect those who are trampled on." And when Christ forgets that two o'clock morning scene, and the stroke of the ruffian on the mouth, and the howling of the unwashed crowd, then He will forget you and me in the injustices of life that may be inflicted upon us.

Some of you want deliverance from your troubles. God knows you have enough of them. Physical troubles; domestic troubles; spiritual troubles; financial troubles. You have been gathering them up, some perhaps for five, or six, or seven years, and you have divided them into two classes: Those you can talk about and those you cannot talk about; and as those griefs are the most grinding and depressing which you cannot mention you get condolence for the things you can speak of, while you get no condolence for the things that you cannot. In your school days you learned how to bound the States, and could tell what rivers and lakes and mountains ran through them. If you were asked to-day to bound your worldly estate you would say it is bounded on the north by trouble, and on the south by trouble, and on the east by trouble, and on the west by trouble, while rivers of tears and lakes of woe, and mountains of disaster run through it. What are you going to do with your troubles? Why do you not go the theater and have your mind absorbed in some tragedy? "Oh," you say, "everything I have seen on the boards of the stage is tame compared with the tragedy of my own life!" Well, then, why do you not go to your trunks and closets and gather up all the mementoes of your departed friends and put them out of sight, and take down their pictures from the wall and put in the frame a harvest scene or some bright and gay spectacle! "Ah," you say, "if I should remove all these mementoes of my departed friends, that would not take away the killing pictures that are hanging in the gallery of my own heart." Well, if that does not help you, why not plunge into society and try to wash off in worldly gayeties all these assoilments of the soul? "Oh," you say, "I have tried that! but how can I hear other children laugh when my children are silent? How can I see other happy families when my own happy family is broken up? Trouble, trouble!" But do you gain anything by brooding over your misfortunes, by sitting down in a dark room, by a comparison of the sweet past with the bitter present? "No; that makes things worse." But I have to tell you to-day that the Christ of all sympathy presents Himself.

Is there anybody in this house that can get along without sympathy? I do not think I would live a day without it. And yet there are a great many who seem to get along without divine sympathy. Their fortune in the counting-room, or in the store, or in the insurance company, takes wings and flies away. They button up a penniless pocket. They sit down in penury where once they had affluence, and yet there is no Jesus to stand by them and say: "Oh, man, there are treasures that never fail, in banks that never break! I will take care of you. I own the cattle on a thousand hills, and you shall never want." They have no such divine Saviour to say that to them. I do not know how they get along. Death comes to the nursery. One voice less in the household. One less fountain of joy and laughter. Two hands less to be busy all day. Two feet less to bound through the hall. Shadow after shadow following through that household, yet no Jesus to stand there and say: "I am the shepherd. That lamb is not lost. I took it off the cold mountains. All's well." Oh, can you tell me the mystery? Can you solve it? Tell me how it is that men and women with aches, and pains, and sorrows, and losses, and exasperations, and bereavements, can get along without a sympathizing Christ! I cannot understand it.

But I come here to say this morning that if you really want divine sympathy you can have it. There are two or three passages of Scripture that throb with pity and kindness and love: "Cast thy burden on the Lord and He will sustain thee." "Come unto Me all ye who are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest." Oh, there are green pastures where the Heavenly Shepherd leads the sick and wounded of the flock! When all the other trees of the orchard fail, God has one tree of fruit for His dear children. Though the organ wails out requiem, there comes afterward a song, a chant, an anthem, a battle-march, a coronation, a victory. Do you not want the sympathy of Jesus? I offer it this morning to every man and woman in this house; you need Him. Oh, how much you need Him.

There was a chaplain in the army wounded unto death. While lying there on the field he heard at a great distance off some one crying out in great pain; "Oh, my God!" And he said to himself: "I am dying, but I think, perhaps, I could help that man. Although I can't walk I'll just roll over to where he is." So he rolled over in his own blood, and over the bodies of the slain, and rolled on until he came to where the other man was dying, and put, as it were, his wound against that wound, and his sorrow against that sorrow, and helped to alleviate it. And so it seems to me that Jesus Christ hears the groan of our sorrow, the groan of our poverty, the groan of our wretchedness, and comes to the relief. He comes rolling over sin and sorrow to the place where we lie on the battlefield, and He puts over us the arm of His everlasting love; and I see that arm and hand are wounded: and as He puts that arm over us I can hear him say: "I have loved thee with an everlasting love." Oh that you might feel this morning the power and condolence of a sympathizing Jesus!

Further, I remark: The last great installment paid for our redemption was the demise of Christ. The world has seen many dark days. About fifteen summers ago there was a very dark day when the sun was eclipsed. The fowl at noonday went to their perch, and we felt a gloom as we looked at the astronomical wonder. It was a dark day in London when the plague was at its height, and the dead with uncovered faces were taken in open carts, and dumped in the trenches. It was a dark day when the earth opened, and Lisbon sank: but the darkest day since the creation of the world was the day when the carnage of Calvary was enacted. It was about noon when the curtain began to be drawn. It was not the coming on of a night that soothes and refreshes: it was the swinging of a great gloom all around the heavens. God hung it. As when there is a dead one in the house you bow the shutters or turn the lattice, so God in the afternoon shut the windows of the world. As it is appropriate to throw a black pall upon the coffin as it passes along, so it was appropriate that everything should be sombre that day as the great hearse of the earth rolled on, bearing the corpse of the King.

A man's last hours are ordinarily kept sacred. However you may have hated or caricatured a man, when you hear he is dying silence puts its hand on your lips, and you would have a loathing for the man who could stand by a death-bed making faces and scoffing. But Christ in His last hour cannot be left alone. What! pursuing Him yet after so long a pursuit! You have been drinking His tears, do you want to drink his blood? They came up closely, so that, notwithstanding the darkness, they can glut their revenge with the contortions of his countenance. They examine his feet. They want to feel for themselves whether those feet are really spiked. They put out their hands and touch the spikes, and bring them back wet with blood, and wipe them on their garments.

Women stand there and weep, but can do no good. It is no place for tender-hearted women. It wants a heart that crime has turned into granite. The waves of man's hatred and of hell's vengeance dash up against the mangled feet, and the hands of sin and pain and torture clutch for His holy heart. Had He not been thoroughly fastened to the cross they would have torn Him down and trampled Him with both feet. How the cavalry horses arched their necks, and champed their bits, and reared and snuffed at the blood. Had a Roman officer called out for a light his voice would not have been heard in the tumult; but louder than the clash of the spears, and the wailing of womanhood, and the neighing of the chargers, and the bellowing of the crowd, there comes a voice crashing through, loud, clear, overwhelming, terrific. It is the groan of the dying Son of God. Look! What a scene! Look, oh world, at what you have done! I lift the covering from that maltreated Christ to let you count the wounds and estimate the cost. Oh, when the nails went through Christ's right hand and Christ's left hand—that bought both your hands with all their power to work, and lift, and write. When the nail went through Christ's right foot and Christ's left foot—that bought your feet, with all their power to walk, or run, or climb. When the thorn went into Christ's temple—that bought your brain with all its power to think and plan. When the spear cleft Christ's side—that bought your heart with all its power to love and repent, and pray. Oh, sinner, come back!

If a man is in no pain, if he is prospered, if he is well, and he asks you to come, you take your time and you say: "I won't come now. I'll come after awhile. There is no haste." But if he is in want and trouble you say: "I must go right away. I must go now." To-day Jesus stretches out before you two wounded hands, and He begs you to come. Come and you live. Stay away and you die. Oh, that to Him who bought us, we might give all our time, and all our prayers, and all our successes! I would we could think of nothing else, that we could do nothing else but come to Christ. He is so kind, He is so loving, He is so sympathizing, He is so good, I wish we could put our arms around His neck and say: "Thine, Lord, will I be forever." Oh, that to-day you would begin to love Him! Would that I could take this audience and wreathe it around the heart of my Lord Jesus Christ.

When, in 1865, the Atlantic cable was lost, do you remember that the Great Eastern and the Medway and the Albany went out to find it? Thirty times they sank the grapple two and a half miles deep in the water. After awhile they found the cable and brought it to the surface. No sooner had it been brought to the surface than they lifted a shout of exultation, but then it slipped back again into the water and was lost. Then for two weeks more they swept the sea with the grappling hooks, and at last they found the cable and they brought it up in safety. They fastened it this time. Then with great excitement they took one end of the cable to the electricians' room to see if there were really any life in it, and when they saw a spark and knew that a message could be sent, then every hat was lifted and the rockets flew, and the guns sounded until all the vessels on the expedition knew the work was done, and the continents were lashed together. Well, my friends, Sabbath after Sabbath, we have come searching down for your soul. We have swept the sea with the grappling hook of Christ's gospel. Again and again we have thought you were at the surface, and began to rejoice over your redemption; but at the moment of our gladness you sank back again into the world and back again into sin. To-day we come with this Gospel searching for your soul. We apply the cross of Christ first to see whether there is any life left in you, while all around the people stand, looking to see whether the work will be done, and the angels of God bend down and witness, and oh, if now we could see only one spark of love, and hope, and faith, we would send up a shout that would be heard on the battlements of heaven, and two worlds would keep jubilee because communication is open between Christ and the soul, and your nature that has been sunken in the deep sea of sin has been lifted into the light and the joy of the Gospel!

WILL MOORE of Chadd's Falls drove to Centreville the other evening, and when about to go home saw a nice black dog that looked so much like his Rover that he decided to steal it and have a pair. So he called the dog to him, carried it to his wagon, and tucked it in under the buffalo robes. When he reached home he took the dog to his room, where he made a nice bed for it on the floor. The next morning he saw the dog standing at the side of his bed wagging his tail. His own Rover had followed him to Centreville, and had been stolen by its own master.

A DEBATE—A Down East lyceum recently debated the question, "Resolved, That a scolding wife is worse than a drunken husband." The question was probably complicated by the fact that one is always the result of the other. The audience, however, decided in favor of the woman.

CHILTON VIEW.

Published Every Thursday Morning.

CLANTON, ALA., MAR. 3, 1887.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One copy one year	$1.50
One copy six months	75
One copy four months	50

We give most of our editorial space to interesting communications this week.

The bill prohibiting the sale of whiskey within five miles of Mt. Zion church and Collin's Chapel, in this county, passed the Senate but was defeated in the house; our representative presenting a stronger petition from the whiskey men of that section, opposing the bill, than the one asking for its passage.

We understand that the authority of Judge Callen, to appoint the delegates to the Coosa River Convention, to meet in Montgomery on the 15th inst., has been questioned by some and will say in this connection that he, like all other probate judges of counties along the Coosa, was authorized to appoint delegates to said convention, and we trust that out of the delegation appointed by him from Chilton that our county will be well represented.

Editorial Correspondence.

GREENSBORO, ALA.,
March 1st, 1887.

Experiences even of an insignificant character are sometimes interesting, and to make their relation interesting there need be no labored effort to make "a mountain out of a mole hill" as the quaint phrase goes. The recent every day experiences of your scribe have been surrounded with quite a degree of interest to himself but he has not been disposed to muster courage sufficient to attempt the task of so relating them as to engage the interest of the VIEW's numerous readers, who are many men with many minds and ergo not easy to please as an aggregate. In "this deestrict" Sambo has just about completed the work of covering up last year's crop of hay preparatory to getting out his bale and a half of cotton with which to satisfy or stave off the foreclosure of the mortgage held by the merchant who has been feeding him and his family of thirteen for lo, these many months. It is a common sight now to see him sweating and swearing upon a poor hill side as he plods behind his plow. He and his colored bretheren are quite as numerous here as in any other part of the famous fourth Alabama district. The vote of Hollow Square beat, Hale county, in which this communication is being written, showed up well at the State election last year with 600 negroes and between 50 and 60 whites. The negroes, however, voted the Democratic ticket solidly, a Hale county man being at the head of that ticket. This black belt extends from Eufaula on the east to and through Monroe county, Miss., on the north west, and is certainly the garden spot of the South, and unexcelled as a cotton raising section even by the fertile bottom lands of the Yazoo country. Though the negro does not thrive here, it would take generations to get him out of the country, for if he can't make a living by leading a lazy life he can steal enough to get along on and that is all he wants. And the farmer here who doesn't take into his calculations what he may lose in this way will feel sadly "left" when he makes his reckoning at the close of the year. The darkey will steal for himself, but rarely for anybody or anything else, and how the little live stock which he owns manages to exist is a miracle. In his farming operations he never seems to thinks of the mouths of the beasts he works, and the poor brutes must suffer the consequence. A neighbor tells of a sable son of Ham who owns a patch adjoining his farm. He also owns a cow, and his manner of attending to the wants of the bovine during the winter months, is probably unsurpassed in quaintness and originality by anything ever attempted by the immortal Sancho Panza himself. It is thusly: When the old cow comes up at night for food and shelter, the darkey, whom I forgot to mention also owns a flute, gets this instrument and serenades her with some soul-harrowing ditty that ought to do the heart if not the stomach of a hungry cow a great deal of good. Should he become tired of playing his flute before the poor animal ceases her piteous lowing, he will discontinue playing and straightening himself for an extra effort will remark with all the philosophy of the seven wise men of Greece, "Consider cow, consider," and then placing his flute under his arm he walks into his cabin to repeat the same performance on the succeeding evening.

A SENSIBLE SERMON.

The other day it was decided to attend services at a country church where a good sermon could every month be heard from a good preacher. The minister was evidently a believer in the effects of of preaching in a way that did not sacrifice force to style. He might be termed a disciple of Luther in this particular, though there are many whose minds would not evolve a weightier thought than to class him as an imitator of the Rev. Samuel Jones being unaware perhaps that Mr. Jones is only following an example set by Martin Luther which many have followed even before the day of Bro. Jones. This country clergyman remarked that he would like to be a Sam Jones if he only could, but added that he had received his ministerial education in a different school of theology, and had always noticed that it was not easy to learn "an old dog new tricks." One of his forcible thoughts was the following, which is worth a place in every newspaper published: "The minister or evangelist whose soul is on fire with love for dying sinners will not consume the hour which God has given him by bringing Him face to face with the lost in a rehash of the old historical, prophetical and internal evidences of the inspiration of the scriptures which they never doubted for a moment in their lives, unless he intends to minister to his own little pride of learning or reflect upon the Christian intelligence of his hearers. Babylon, Nineveh, Tyre and Egypt are in ruins. They may have existed in prophecy, but they have long since passed away. In God's name let us try to save the souls of living men of to-day from going down like them quick into hell."

That sort of talk one would imagine would strike Revs. Jones or Porter quite favorably.

PROHIBITION IN HALE.

No intoxicating liquors are sold in Hale county. Greensboro the county town has been free from the traffic for about twelve years, and will undoubtedly remain so as long as the present generation resides there. It is not well to close without alluding to the success of prohibition here. In six days spent in Greensboro not a single intoxicated man was seen. Had there been two or three saloons open such would not have been the case. In all the county the temperance people are too watchful to allow the running of even a single "blind pig," which Sam Small says is a pretty good name for mean rum as well as the absorber of the article, and he ought to know something about it. Everybody is satisfied with the result here, and the farmers especially so. One gentleman remarked that "though he didn't think prohibition was right (and he gave no reason for so thinking) yet it was a good thing for him and he would hereafter vote for it, as it enabled him to keep a sober sets of hands." Riding to Greensboro recently the driver of the vehicle, an old darkey who is a sort of overseer for the other hands on the farm, remarked that he would like to get a dram when he got to town, but there was no use wishing it. Being asked how he liked that, he replied:

"Aw boss, I wouldn't mind drivin' you ter town ev I cud just get a drop of licker when we get dar. It's hard, but may be better fur me."

"Do you think is it better for the hands under you?"

"Bet yer life on dat. I wouldn't hab dem niggers swallerin tangle foot fur a big pile."

"What does your boss think about it?"

"He was agin it at fust, but he's fur it now. Yer see dey don't bodder him ov er Saturday for small change to buy licker wid, and den dey don't cum hum at night drunk as biled owls."

"It's better all around then?"

"Believe it is boss."

And it will surely prove so to be wherever tried.

W. H. L.

Jumbo.

EDITORS VIEW:—I beg your pardon about our post-office having a whiskey shop. The whiskey shop is about 2½ miles from Jumbo. There is nothing any stronger than creek water kept about Jumbo. The good citizens around here would not have anything to do with the infernal thing. Jumbo is in beat 4 itself. It is a great pity that beat one is the bung-hole of Chilton county.

W. E. M.

Why the South needs National Aid for Common Schools.

Col. A. S. Coylar, of Nashville, Tenn., in a late address, in speaking of the situation, said of the South:

"Look at our condition. The property of Southern people, to the extent of $1,200,000,000, has been converted into citizens. In addition, we are taxed to pay the cost of our subjugation, a debt originally of $3,000,000,000. We are taxed to pay millions and millions in the way of pensions to Union soldiers. Besides our country was laid waste, and our lands reduced to half their former value. In our poverty we are feebly trying to establish a system of public shools, and the fund we raise has to be applied to both races. I say feebly. In Tennessee we have about 500,000 children that ought to be at school; 221,000 of them never see a school-house.

We are nearly at the foot in illiteracy. We have 90,000 women raising families, who can neither read nor write. Now we need this money, don't we? Who among those who fight this measure will favor doubling our State and county taxes? Can any man be found? Will a single man be elected to the legislature who favors it? And yet all say something must be done. The system must be improved. How can it be done without money?

To talk of improving our schools without Federal aid; to declare for public schools, and oppose all known means to help them along, is mokery."

"Stick to the Farm, Fertilize, Work Hard and Raise Hogs."

While we have the best climate on this continent, with a soil of over an average, for the price, that will compare favorably with any land in the cotton belt, by fertilizing, in the production of cotton, ribbon cane, sugar millet, ground peas, sweat potatoes and all the minor side crops that come to the relief of cotton, there is one suggestion that all the newspapers in the state should make, to the farmers, and that is for no farmer to plant for more that 5 bales of cotton to the plow, that will bring the coming crop down to five million bales. The amount of money for the last twenty years that has handled the cotton is from two hundred and fifty to three hundred millions a year. Now five million bales at 12½ cents is $60 per bale and sixty times five millions is three hundred million—dollars. Then the farmers will have time to plant all these side crops and grow rich. Try it somebody and show to the world that outside our mineral wealth and located on the L. & N. railroad on the half way ground from Montgomery to Birmingham, and in one of the most healthy sections in the State we have the best county on the continent. And here we have the great hot well, about which there are so many different opinions. Any one to visit the well and see the hot smoke pouring up through the cracks before sunrise, and before the fires are kindled, he will ask himself the question, how any one can think it is artificially heated.

We saw in the VIEW that Mr. Furman, of Georgia made last year on 65 acres of land 150 bales of cotton, at $40 per bale $6,000. Who can beat that? We can. Any land that will make one bale of cotton per acre will make 100 bushels rough rice per acre, the average price the world over is about $1 per bushel. Now compare this with Mr. Furman's cotton crop and be astonished, but so it is. Sixty-five acres, 100 bushels per acre at $1 per bushel and you have the comfortable sum of $6,500 with less than one half the work to cultivate, $500 in our favor for rice.

We have the finest average soil for upland rice that I have ever seen in the state, price of land considered. I will cheerfully answer any questions on the upland rice culture, through these columns—am glad to know that the farmers of this section are fixing to plant trial crops of upland rice, this spring. Rice is a money crop.

I will have a new process rice mill at this place in time for the coming crop. J. W. PRITCHETT.

CAPTIONS OF ACTS

Relative to Chilton County and Approved by the Governor.

To establish a court of county revenues for Chilton county.

To incorporate the Welch Mill & Centerville Railroad.

For the preservation of game, animals and birds in Chilton and Sumter counties.

To change the line between school districts townships 20, range 14 east and townships 20, range 13 east in Chilton county.

To secure competent jurors in this State, the counties of Henry, Mobile, Dallas, Talladega, Clay, Marengo, Cherokee, Etowah, Coffee, St. Clair, Dale, Geneva, Marshall and Montgomery excepted.

Conference committee on bill requiring railroads to stop their trains at stations nearest and most accessible to the court house of the several counties reported an agreement on House amendment giving railroad commissioners authority to decide what stations these were. Report was excepted.

The Juries.

The following is a list of the Grand and Petit Jurors drawn to serve at the Spring Term of our circuit court, 1887.

GRAND JURY.

J L Rasbery, W. B Stong, E J Rowlinson, B H McCary, P C Nix, J C Walker, Alford Popwell, William L Parnell, John W Culp, W W Crumpton, B H Chestnut, W T Kemp, A C Poole, J W E Gulledge, John Cook, J J Green, Riley Roberson, W A Goodson, J H Shoutts, B F Robinson and H C Young.

PETIT JURY.

W D Foshee, A J Garner, J B Boykin, James T Littleton, J J Honeycutt, J Ruffin Ward, C C Gentry, James L Dupree, Isaac Littleton, F H McCary, J M Standfield, J M Ponder, C H Smith, Elijah Jones, B F Rasberry, T M Cook, Jack Harris, L C Collins, W H Foshee, G W Jones, James Shaw, C R Bivings, M J Parish, Joseph Elam, F C Crumpton, W D Scarbrough, T G Letcher, George Rucker, W R Boilien, J H Ganda, James R Braudhead, G W Kemp, J M Davis, J F Johnson, J W G Kicker and J A Culp.

The above names and initials are set-up as per copy furnished us.

A $20 Bible Reward.

The publishers of Rutledge's Monthly offer twelve valuable rewards in their Monthly for Feb., among which is the following:

We will give $20 to the person telling us which is the middle verse in the New Testament Scripture, (not the revised edition), by March 10th, 1887. Should two or more correct answers be received, the reward will be devided. The money will be forwarded to the winner March 15th, 1887. Persons trying for the reward must send 20 cents in silver or postal notes, (no postage stamps taken) with their answer, for which they will receive the Monthly for April in which the name and address of the winner of the reward and the correct answer will be published, and in which several more valuable rewards will be offered. Address, Rutledge Publishing Company, Easton, Pa.

Newman's Southern Flower Cologne is the best. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Croup, Whooping cough and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. jun16 y

No family should be without Ellis' Magic Oil Liniment, the greatest external remedy known. It cures all aches and pains. Price 25 cents per bottle, at W. H. Phillips.

Sleepless nights made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by M. J. Greene Clanton. jun16y

Take one of Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pillets at night before you go to bed and you will be surprised how buoyant and vigorous you will feel the next day. Only 25 cents a vial.

Croup is a treacherous disease, and generally the most severe at night when unable to properly watch it. The best known remedy is Ellis' C. S. A. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

If you are suffering with weak or inflamed eyes, or granulated eyelids, you can be quickly cured by using Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve. 25 cents a box. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures consumption. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton Ala.

Life will acquire new zest, and cheerfulness will return, if you will impel your liver and kidneys to the performance of their functions Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm will stimulate them to healthful action. $1.00 per bottle. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Ellis' Magic Liver Pills are safe for children, and are more effective than any other cathartic pill on the market. If not found satisfactory return and get your money. For sale by W. H. Phillips. aug26-y

Will you suffer with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

That hacking cough can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's cure. We guarantee it. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Sick Headache and a sensation of oppression and dullness in the head are very commonly produced by indigestion; morbid despondency, irritability and over-sensitiveness of the nerves may, in a majority of cases, be traced to the same cause. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm and Pillets will positively cure. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton. sep11 3

MORTGAGE SALE.

Under the power of sale contained in three several mortgages executed to me by W. L. Campbell and M. A. Campbell, dated respectively April 7th, 1885, April 11th, 1885, and January 23rd, 1886, I will sell at public auction, for cash, at Maplesville, Alabama, on the 4th day of April, 1887, the following described lands, situated in Chilton county, Alabama, to-wit: The SE ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 27; N ½ of NE ¼ and SW ¼ of NE¼ of Sec. 34; NW ¼ of NW ¼ and S ½ of N ½ and N ½ of S ½ and SW ¼ of SW ¼ and SE ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 35; NE ¼ of NE¼ of Sec. 34; NE ¼ of NW ¼ and NW qr of SE qr of Sec. 35; NW qr of NW qr of NW qr of Sec. 36; and NW qr of Sec. 34; all in Township 22, Range 12.

I. B. HOWARD,
Mortgagee.

Satterfield & Young, Attys.

NOTICE NO. 5962.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 19, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court, or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., March 8th, 1887, viz: Isaac M. Deason, Homestead, 11877, for the e ½ of the se¼ and se ¼ of sw ¼, and sw ¼ of se ¼, sec 2, township 20 N, range 13 E. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said lands, viz: John H. Gray, Mac D. Gray, William I. Mullins and Joseph Popwell, all of Kincheon, Ala.

jan20* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

The good effects of Ellis' P. P. P. on a debilitated person are felt at once, and a cure follows its use. If suffering from blood poison try a bottle. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Shiloh's Vitalizer is what you need for Constipation, loss of appetite, dizziness, and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle.

Saw Mill Men.

I am now prepared to hammer your buckled saws. Just received a new outfit of tools for hammering. Can return a saw in 4 days after it arrives. Satisfaction guaranteed. Remittance after trying the saw. Ship to Pratt Saw Mill Co. WM. R. HOLDER.

[feb24 3m]

NOTICE NO. 6220.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
March 1st, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Alabama, on April 9th, 1887, viz: John E. Smith, Homestead 12086 for the s ½ of sw ¼, sec. 14, township 21, range 11 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivaof, said land, viz: Daniel Scroggins, James R. Whatley, John D. Selman and John Bearden, all of Maplesville, Ala.

J. G. HARRIS,
mar4 Register.

NOTICE NO. 6088.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
February 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 5th, 1887, viz: Marion A. Barbour, Homestead 12195, for the sw ¼ of ne ¼, se ¼ of nw ¼, sec. 22 township 21 north, range 16 east. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: Wm. D. Goss, Wm. B. Jones, Wm. Taylor and Pinckney Jones, all of Verbena, Ala.

feb24* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6079.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge of the circuit court or in his absence, the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Ala., on April 5th, 1887, viz: Betsy Robuck, guardian Della Robuck, homestead 9293, for the ne ¼ of ne ¼, section 2, township 20 north, range 12 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: James Green Wm. Sansom, Thos. Klinner and H. Hayes, all of Maplesville, Ala.

feb24 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6043.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 8, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March 19th, 1887, viz: Benjamine F. Abbott, Homestead 12414, for the n ½ of ne ¼ and n ½ of nw ¼, sec. 28, township 20, range 13. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: John J. Roberts, J. Thomas Anderson John M. Chandler and Richard P. Kendrick, all of Dixie, Ala.

feb10 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 5991.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery Ala., Jan. 26, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the Clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March 5th, 1887, viz: Asa J. Rolinson, Homestead 18106, for the se¼ of the ne ¼ and the ne ¼ of se ¼, sec. 24, township 20 n, range 12 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William Roberts, Wm. Robuck, Wm. Klinner and Wm. H. Foshee, Jr., all of Dixie, Ala.

jan27 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6037.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 7, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Ala., on March 19th, 1887, viz: Andy Foshee Homestead 16955, for the sw ¼ of sw ¼, sec. 10, township 21 n, range 14 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Prince Wilson, Hunter Zimmerman, Lewis Williams and Arch Oden, all of Clanton, Ala.

feb10* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

DON'T

Buy anything in the Grocery line until you have called on

T. M. Edwards,

Who keeps constantly on hand Fancy and Family Groceries and confectioneries.

Clanton, Ala., Feb. 24th, '87.

I. B. BOWDOIN

DEALER IN

Family Groceries,

CLANTON, ALA.

I will keep on hand for sale, a nice line of Family Groceries, such as may be desired by the Clanton trade, and will sell as cheap as they can be purchased elsewhere. f 24 6

BAINS & PEEBLES.

(SUCCESSORS TO BAINS & HERRING.)

WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.

Mail and Express Orders Will Receive Prompt Attention.

FINE WINES AND LIQUORS A SPECIALTY.

1926 FIRST AVENUE, BETWEEN 19th and 20th STREETS,

Birmingham, Ala.

☞ Fine Stock of Chess Carley's Oils at Company's Prices. ☜

P. O. BOX 570. June 10 y

BEST GRADES OF

MERCHANDISE

At JOHN GARNER'S, Clanton.

sep3-tf

T. T ASHFORD, Pres. J. E. MALAHY, Vice Pres. T. L. McGOWAN, Sec. & Treas

Birmingham Paint, Glass and Wall Paper Co.

Successors to

MAYBERRY & ASHFORD.

Jobbers and Retailers of

Paints, Oils, Window Glass, Plate, Sky-Light and Colored Glass, Sash, Doors, Blinds and Moulding,

Painters' and Artists' Supplies.

WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES, and CURTAIN FIXTURES.

1912 Second Avenue, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

☞ Write for Samples of Wall Paper and Estimates on Glass. jun10

MINERAL CITY TIN AND STOVE HOUSE

SECOND AVENUE BETWEEN 18TH AND 19TH STREETS,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Pat Walsh, Manager.

A Large Line of HEATING and COOKING STOVES always on hand. All Kinds of

Tin, Sheet Iron Roofing and Job Work

DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.

☞ Orders by mail will receive prompt attention. nov 11

E. WALL. P. GIACOPAZZI.

WALL & GIACOPAZZI,

Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Commission Merchants,

Second Ave. and Twentieth St.

Birmingham, - - - Ala.

References: S. Oteri, New Orleans; Jos. Denunzio, Louisville; Buhr, Wendte & Co., Cincinnati; Underhill, Stewart & Shotta, N. Y.; Wm. D. Clarke & Co., New Orleans; Cowing & Clark, Cincinnati; A. G. Conant & Co., N. Y.; First National Bank, Birmingham, Ala.

J. M. WILKERSON, JOHN A. CALDWELL.

WIKKERSON CALDWELL & CO.

REAL ESTATE RENTING & COLLECTING AGENTS, AND STOCK BROKERS.

Tuscaloosa, - - Alabama.

Buy and sell for principals. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to us. Collecting rents a specialty.

Office over store of Fitts Bros., next to Telegraph Office. Correspondence solicited. feb24

References: J. H. Fitts & Co., Bankers and First Nat. Bank. of Tuscaloosa.

Money to Loan!

I am prepared to negotiate mortgage loans on farming lands in Chilton county in sums of three hundred dollars and upwards. Rates cheap and negotiations speedily concluded. Apply to or correspond with

H. L. WILLIAMS,
oct7 Att'y at Law, Wetumpka.

NOTICE NO. 5969.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 20, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March, 5th, 1887, viz: Elijah B. Wyatt, Homestead application, No. 16689, for the e ½ of se ¼, sec. 24, township 22, range 15 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: Redding E. Jones, Andrew J. Peters, Monroe J. Parish and Moses Bater, all of Clanton, Ala.

jan27* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

WINTER! SPRING!

During the Season of Winter MALARIA Lurks in the System!

COLLINS

AGUE CURE

One Dose a day, taken three days in succession, each month, or when you feel badly in any way, will fully Cleanse your Blood, Remove all Bilious Secretions & Malarial Poison from your System, and Insure GOOD HEALTH IN THE SPRING.

PRICE, FIFTY CENTS PER BOTTLE.

If you are troubled with a COUGH, COLD, SORENESS in CHEST, or any Affection of Throat or Lungs, use DR. JACKSON'S

Syrup LUNGWORT & WILD CHERRY

Sold at 25 cts, 50 cts., and $1.00 a Bottle.

If your EYES are affected in any way, use DR. JACKSON'S CELEBRATED INDIAN EYE SALVE.

Sold Everywhere at 25 cents per Box.

Send for Collins Bros. "Present Century Almanac" for 1887. Mailed to any address or at any Drug Store.

COLLINS BROS. DRUG CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

jun24-y

THE

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.

It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.

OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.

EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

These excellent Organs are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty in finish, perfect construction, making them the most attractive, ornamental and desirable organs for homes, schools, churches, lodges, societies, etc.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION, UNEQUALED FACILITIES, SKILLED WORKMEN, BEST MATERIAL, COMBINED, MAKE THIS

THE POPULAR ORGAN

Instruction Books and Piano Stools.

Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, FREE.

The Chicago Cottage Organ Co.

Corner Randolph and Ann Streets,

CHICAGO, ILL.

MARRIAGE GUIDE

260 PAGES. Illustrated, in Cloth and Gilt Binding, 50c. money or stamps. Same, paper cover, 25c. This Book contains ALL the curious, doubtful or inquisitive want to know. Full of very interesting and valuable information. HEALTH, BEAUTY and HAPPINESS are promoted by its advice—who may Marry, who not, why; Medical Aid, when necessary, brought home to you. 50 Wonderful PEN PICTURES, true to life. Young or old, married or single, sick or well, should read it. Sent sealed by DR. WHITTIER, St. Louis, Mo. [illegible]

CHILTON VIEW.

CLANTON, ALA., MAR. 3, 1887.

THE VIEW is published every Thursday morning, and will endeavor to cover the field of reputable country journalism. It will show no quarter to the deceitful, the immoral or the ungodly. It will always be good natured, although it can bite if necessary.

Those answering advertisements will confer a favor by mentioning this paper.

COURT CALENDAR.

Chancery—Friday after the first Mondays in April and October.

Circuit—Fourth Monday in March, and fifth Monday after the fourth Monday in August.

Commissioners'—Regular term second Monday in February and August, and first Monday in April and November. Special term second Monday in July.

County—First Monday in each month.

SCHEDULE S. & N. ALA. RAILROAD.—Trains pass Clanton daily, as follows:

GOING SOUTH.

No. 1 at	5:45 a. m.
No. 3	5:37 p. m.
No. 7	4:12 p. m.
No. 51	6:00 a. m.

GOING NORTH.

No. 2	9:15 a. m.
No. 12	9:55 a. m.
No. 4	*9:43 p. m.
No. 50	6:55 p. m.

* Don't stop.

LOCAL DOTTINGS.

See mortgage sale.

Subscribe for the VIEW.

Spring goods at W. J. Simpson & Co's.

Mr. R. F. Woolley visited Jemison Sunday.

Miss Mamie Bivings visited Birmingham Tuesday.

Eggs are plentiful in the Clanton market.

Buy your goods at W. J. Simpson & Co's.

See list of grand and petit jurors in an other column.

Some interesting communications crowded out this week.

Mrs. W. T. Callen, who has been quite sick, is now convalescent.

Hats, shoes, springs calicos and lawns at W. J. Simpson & Co's.

Some thief broke into the commissary of Mr. S. A. Blasingame Monday night and stole a few groceries.

The store of T. E. Callier & Son, Dixie, was entered by thieves last week. The safe was broken open and $250 stolen.

Miss Florence Edwards, of Montgomery, is visiting relatives in Clanton.

Everything in the grocery line, cheap for cash, at W. J. Simpson & Co's.

A new lot of fancy stationery just received at the View Stationery Stand.

Mr. Pou DeJarnette, of Birmingham, has returned to his home in this place, we hope to remain.

Mrs. Wm. A. Collier has returned from a visit of several weeks to her daughter in Birmingham.

The VIEW and the Montgomery Advertiser (weekly) for $2.50 a year, in advance.

The mail train going south was on time Monday evening. The first time for over a month.

Rev. Mr. Briggs, our Methodist pastor, will hold services in the Baptist church next Sabbath.

Rev. A. E. Burns filled his regular appointment at the Baptist church, in this place, last Sabbath.

Court week will soon be here and we hope our friends will not forget to come in and pay for their paper while here.

Our circuit court will convene on the 3rd Monday in this month, instead of the 4th as heretofore, which will be on the 21st inst.

Base balls, cigarette papers, albums, fancy stationery and all kinds of things for sale at the View Stationery Stand.

Mr. S. A. Blasingame desires to inform the public that after the 15th day of March the free use of water from his hot well will be discontinued. 2t.

A conductor of a freight train shot at a negro three times at the depot Tuesday evening, but none of the shots took effect. The negro aroused his anger in some way.

In the marriage notice of Miss Armanda Lowe, in our last issue, we were mistaken as to the name of the groom, it should have been Mr. S. E. Bruce instead of Butler as the types had it.

Sampey's Corner.

The spring will soon be here and it would be a good plan for every lady to go to W. L. Sampey's store to get a nice spring dress and a hat. You can get good goods at a reasonable price.

PRISONER'S ESCAPE.

Four White Prisoners Make a Bold Dash for Liberty and Succeed in Getting off.

On last Friday evening just about dark, four prisoners, whose names and offences are as follows: Geo. and Jim DuBose, assault and battery; Jno. Pearson, assault with intent to murder and James P. Nix, wanted in another county as witness in an important case; all white men, made their escape from the new jail at this place and are still at large.

During the day the prisoners have been allowed to stay outside of their cells in the corridor enclosing them and it was by their united efforts that they succeeded in bending one of the iron bars, forming this corridor, sufficient for it to pull up out of its socket at the bottom and then by bending this up to the first cross bar an opening 7½ x 13 inches was formed and through this small opening they managed to force their bodies and then await the opening of the door by some one outside.

They had not long to wait for the jailer had been inside the jail only about an hour before their escape and everything was alright, but on his return at the time stated, as soon as he opened the door they made a break for liberty running over the jailer and knocking him off the stone steps to the ground. The alarm was soon given but they made good their escape.

Geo. and Jim DuBose and James Nix have all been heard from and have sent bonds down to our officers for their appearance at the next term of court. Pearson will probably evade the law as long as possibly, but it is to be hoped that he may soon be recaptured. This is the second time Pearson has escaped; once from the old jail.

We are carrying several hundred dollars in subscription accounts every year, and a great part of this amount is owed by our Clanton subscribers, some of them being several years behind. We want all such to come and settle up their accounts and if they can't do so without getting mad and stopping their paper why alright. We want to send you the paper but cannot afford to send it for nothing, so we will be obliged if you will settle whether you have it discontinued or not. The fact that we have been living on wind so long accounts for this "blow up."

One of our best business firms John Garner & Co., who have been doing an advancing business, were closed up last Thursday by the sheriff. This firm has been doing considerable business, but it is the same old story, selling goods on a credit and poor collections caused them to be unable to meet their obligations and their creditors had them closed. We hope this embarrassment is only temporary and that they may soon be able to satisfy all their creditors and resume business on a more solid basis than ever.

Our Clanton merchants are fast begining to appreciate the value of printer's ink and in the VIEW this week will be seen several new advertisements of Clanton firms. Your paper advertises your town more than any other enterprise in the town, consequently it is nothing more than your duty to support it by a liberal patronage.

A Mr. Devis, from Maull's, mill came down to Clanton Tuesday to have two of his fingers taken off, and while the doctor was amputating them he treated the observers by singing the familiar song "A Flower From My Angle Mother's Grave."

We have three new organs for sale cheap for cash. They are now in the factory and will be shipped to any point desired by the purchaser. One Estey and two of the Chicago Cottage Organs. Come and see or write us before purchasing elsewhere.

The sale of the N. H. Thornton property which took place several weeks ago has been disapproved and will be advertised for sale again soon. This property brought good prices at the first sale and will no doubt do so again.

Our quondam friend C. C. DuBose, editor of the Shelby Chronicle, has taken unto himself a wife. We extend congratulations.

Read the advertisement of W. H. Sartor in another column. He keeps as nice a stock of goods in his line as can be found in town.

A lady temperance lecturer will be here on the night of the 8th, to establish a Woman's Christian Tempernnce Union.

OVER THE COUNTY.

News Gathered up by Our Correspondents.

Jemison News.

I have not seen anything for several months in your interesting paper concerning our little town, so I will endeavor to furnish you with a few dots.

I read and hear of "booms" all over "Dixie land." Our "wee bit" of a village is slighted; no one has brought it in notice; yet it deserves a complimentary word, as it is improving everyday.

Prospect of several more new buildings going up. The colored people's church is near completion. Jemison may at some future day aspire to the name of "town" in reality.

The young people are having a gay time. A "phantom" party was very enjoyable last Friday night. They follow up the old adage: "enjoy yourself while you are young."

The merchants are receiving new goods.

No visitors in town but we are expecting Mr. and Mrs. Measles every day. There having been several cases near by.

A very sad death occurred here not long since. Willie Butler—only son of Mrs. M. Butler.

FEMININE OBSERVER.

Bivings, Duke & Co.

After a delightful trip to New Orleans your "Old Maid" correspondent feels very much cheered up and hopes (that great solace of our Order) to let you hear from her oftener. The Cresent City was all life and bustle. We visited all the important places about the city. Found vegetables of all kinds in market, also flowers of every description in bloom.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather work has not been stopped at the mills and things are as busy as ever.

Am sorry to chronicle the death of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Baker. The remains were interred at Mt. Pizgah cemetery.

The near approach of court has called out the mill hands to put the roads in order, much to the inconvenience of saw mill men who cannot afford to lose a day at this season of the year. We hope the road commissioners will not forget to inspect the two mud holes near Mr. Dawson's house and also the road from the "Hot Well" to the city of Clanton.

The subscribers for the VIEW are much pleased with it this year.

Give us a call soon and take a ride on the new engine which runs on the road from the mills to Swift Creek switch.

Truly, OLD MAID.

Stanton Puffs.

Measles still raging.

Rev. Mr. Nobles, of the Methodist church, preached in Stanton last Sunday night.

Mrs. Leckie is teaching school in Lodge & Bro's. coalings.

An interesting prayer meeting is held every Sunday night in the coaling. We hope much good may result.

Rev. Mr. Hill, a traveling Baptist preacher, preached at Ebenezer church last Friday night. He has been traveling seventeen years in twenty-two States. He is accompanied by his wife.

Painting has been commenced on the Ebenezer Baptist church.

The G. & C. L. Co., have decided to lower their heavy grade to 5 ft. in the 100.

Mr. Oscar Butler's house is about ready for occupation. However he will not move soon as he is afraid of the measles.

We hear it hinted that persons so disposed can still buy whiskey at Maplesville. We hope this report is not so. If it is our prohibition friends in beat 7 ought to see that the law is enforced. 89.

Verbena Views.

Miss Mamie Green has returned from a visit to relatives in Fort Deposit.

We are sorry to hear of our young friend C. R. H's. departure from our county, We wish him much success.

Mrs. Tarrant spent Saturday and Sunday in the Magic City.

Mrs. Scheratt, nee Miss A. McKinzie, has recently visited friends here.

Messrs. S. K. Williamson and Barnett Merriwether left for Dallas, Texas, last week. We wish our young townsmen grand success.

The Baptist church is being added to both in structure and membership. Our Methodist brethren have proffered the use of theirs during that time.

The Pratt mills had to suspend work last week, owing to the small supply of stocks and bad weather.

We notice that the colored population of our community have a commodious structure in course of erection, said to be a Methodist church.

Mr. Henry Bostwick, of Lowndes has purchased the John Cook farm one mile west of here. We hope to get several more of that counties best citizens.

Mrs. DeBardelaben also Mrs. Williams visited Mrs. Wingate this week, both of Birmingham.

TWITTERS.

Pratt Saw Mill.

February 23d, 1887.

It is very interest to see the neatly managed and systematized business of the Company. The store is managed by B. S. Williams from Oxmoor, Ala., who is a thorough business man. He is assisted by the two clever clerks Oscar Boykin and Phil McDonald, who are always polite and ready to serve all who come. They do a business of $4,500 to $6,000 per month, which is good for a saw mill store. Just pass on to the office and you will find it kept as neat as a pin by the book-keeper E. H. Wingate and his assistant J. B. Boykin, formerly from Clanton, who are polite and entertaining. Pass on to the saw mills and you will find them moving nicely under the management of O. T. Grimes, from Kentucky, and he is hard to surpass in the saw mill business. The machinery department is managed by W. R. Holder who has had 15 years experience, and for a by-stander everything looks very nice. Pass on to the plainers turning out 15,000 feet of dress lumber each, managed by M. J. Taylor, mechanic, John A. Davis, supt. Wallace Glover, the clever lumber agent, and his wife are going North to visit relatives the first of March.

We are sorry to note the illness of E. H. Wingate and a little year old babe of Mr. McDonald for 4 days past, but glad to say they are convalescent and we find Mr. Wingate at his post again.

We will say a word in reference to prohibition. We thought when prohibition went into effect that whiskey would be routed out of our beat, but it seems that there still remains a spring of the pernicious stuff at Cooper's Station and so near Verbena. We see the signs every day, almost as before the sale was stopped by law. How shall this be counteracted? Can the law of our country do it, or shall it go on dragging souls down to dispair and eternal misery? It is demoralizing to our society and is an abomination in the sight of God.

ON HAND.

Correspondents should write on only one side of the paper and should make paragraphs between the different items. They will greatly oblige the printer by so doing.

See the advertisement of Wilkerson, Caldwell & Co., real estate agents Tuskaloosa, Ala. Parties having business in their line could not do better than to place it in their hands.

Our young friend, "Rube" Duke, left last Friday morning for Louisvill, Ky., to attend the Southern Business College. He stopped off at Nashville for a day or two to visit friends and relatives.

Parties indebted to this office for either subscription, job work or advertising, whose accounts are now past due will please come forward and settle as we are needing the money.

Noteheads, billheads, letterheads, envelopes, statements, programmes, posters, dodgers, circular letters, visiting and business cards, commissary checks, &c. &c., printed at the VIEW Job Office, at reasonable prices and on short notice.

FARMER'S TAKE NOTICE!
When You Come to Town to buy Goods, Call at
R. P. Wooley & Co.'s Cheap Cash Store!
Next to the Railroad on North side of Main Street, Clanton.
—DEALER IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE.
[sept-6]

MONTGOMERY FURNITURE COMPANY.
—DEALERS IN—
Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Looking Glasses, Lounges, Hall Racks, Wardrobes, Chairs, Safes, Side Boards, Cradles, Cribs, Baby Carriages, Spring Beds, Mattresses, Refrigerators, Pianos, Organs, Carpets,
And All Kinds of Furniture!
A. C. ROGERS, Manager,
210 Bibb Street, Wharton's Old Stand Next to McDonald's Opera House.
aug1 y

FURNITURE AND WALL PAPER FOR EVERYBODY!
OUR STOCK OF FURNITURE, WINDOW SHADES, LACE CURTAINS, WALL PAPER, SPRING BEDS, AND MATTRESSES IS NOW COMPLETE.
Anybody in need of the above articles will find it to their interest to look at our immense stock. We guarantee everything we sell, and sell it cheaper than anybody in this State.
SQUARE DEALING IS OUR MOTTO!
B. WOLFF & BRO., Montgomery.
29 Commerce and Corner Court and Coosa Streets.
sept 15-6

This space is reserved by
A. J. BROOKS
AT VERBENA, ALA.,
FOR FUTURE ADVERTISING
☞WATCH IT.☜

IF YOU WANT NICE FRESH GROCERIES CALL ON
W. H. SARTOR,
FIRST DOOR EAST OF THE DRUG STORE, MAIN STREET,
Clanton, Ala.
☞In addition to evertything in the Grocery line I also carry a nice stock of fresh Stick and Fancy Candies, Fruits and other Confectioneries.
mar4

SHAW & DAVIN,
Machinery & Mill Supplies,
—MORRIS AVENUE AND 22D STREET.—
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
ENGINES, BOILERS, SAW MILLS, CORN MILLS, SHINGLE MACHINES, CORN MILLS, SUGAR MILLS,
COTTON GINS, COTTON PRESSES, PULLEYS, SHAFTING, BELTING, and MACHINISTS' SUPPLIES.
Largest Stock in the State.
Write for Circulars and Prices. P. O. Box 806.
[July8]

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT
THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.
FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE.
[illegible]
PARSONS' PILLS
MAKE NEW, RICH BLOOD.
[illegible]
MAKE HENS LAY

TROY STEAM LAUNDRY,
Nos. 17 & 19 N. Lawrence Street,
MONTGOMERY, ALA.
P. O. BOX 282.
☞Orders by mail are solicited and will receive prompt attention.
J. W. GUE, Proprietor.

BRICK WORK
J. M. DAWSON,
CLANTON, ALA.
Is prepared to do all kinds of brick work in the best style. The patronage of the public solicited.
feb15-tf]

STOP AT
Morris Avenue Hotel,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
Corner Morris Avenue and 20th Street
ELYTON LAND CO. BUILDING.
HUGH KIRKMAN, PROPRIETOR.
Splendid rooms, well ventilated and elegantly furnished. Rates reasonable.

Clanton Barber Shop
—BY—
MEREDITH CANN,
Who is prepared to do all work in the tonsorial line. Hair dressing and shaving in the best style.
Prices low.

BANDMAN & CO.,
Wholesale Grocers,
P. O BOX 251,
1st Avenue, bet. 18th and 19th Streets,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
jan 13 6m

TRESSLAR,
Artistic Photographer
10 COURT SQUARE,
Montgomery.
Life Size Photographs a Specialty.
Photographs, on Silk, Satin and Linen.
Photographs on watch dials.
Enameled Photographs.
All Sittings made Instantaneously.
Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged.
☞Correspondence solicited.☜
[jan21-tf]

A. W. KEY & CO.,
Manufacturers' State Agents for
Engines, Saw Mills,
BOILERS,
—AND—
General Machinery.
P. O. Box 741,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Nabers & Morrow,
Wholesale Druggists,
FIRST AVENUE,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
MEDICINES,
Fine Wines, Liquors,
Oils, Etc.
☞ Agents for Chess Carley & Co.'s Oils.
[June 10]

J. M. Hutchason's
BOARDING, LIVERY
—AND—
SALE STABLES.
Select Dray and Plantation Mules constantly on hand.
Draying and Hauling Promptly Attended to
Always ready to take Contracts for filling in Dirt
Moving Stone, Engines, Boilers, Machinery and other heavy hauling.
RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS AND DAMAGE.
Satisfaction Guaranteed. Handsome Carriages and Double Teams, with or without Drivers.
☞MONTGOMERY STABLES,☜
Lawrence Street, Opp. P. O.,
Telephone 446.
jan1y

Clanton Academy.

CLANTON, CHILTON CO., ALA.

The course of instruction is divided into three departments, Primary, Junior and High School.

RATES OF TUITION:

Primary Department	$1.50
Junior "	2.50
High School "	3.50

Tuition payable monthly IN ADVANCE.

Public examinations of the pupils of the school will be held at the close of each session, but exhibitions will not be had at any time.

Board can be obtained by pupils of the school in private families in Clanton at very moderate rates.

For further information address
R. E. R. HICKS,
Principal.
feb10]

Catarrh cured, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal Injector free. For sale by M. J. Greer &.

AGRICULTURAL.

TOPICS OF INTEREST RELATIVE TO FARM AND GARDEN.

The Uses of Straw.

The value of straw is too little taken into account either on or off the farm, says the Farm, Field and Stockman. Too many farmers seem to act on the principle that it should be fed to cattle. This is the least important of its uses. Its value as food is so slight that cattle fed exclusively on straw would die about as soon as when fed on any such substance as dead leaves, for instance, the only use of which is to properly distend the stomach. The feeding use of straw, therefore, is only in connection with concentrated food.

But there are other uses of the straw of cereal grains which render it an important integer in farm economy. One of these is the covering of sheds. Another use to which it may be profitably put, when cold and winds are severe, is in forming an impervious barrier by filling a space a foot wide between two rough walls of sheds. These walls may be made of any rough material, as slabs, poles, but near enough together to prevent the pulling out of straw by the animals. Thus sheds and stables may be rendered as warm as much more costly structures.

The use of straw is too much ignored as a means of comfort used as bedding for animals. Under sheds it should be laid a foot thick, and in the yards not less than six inches. In stables that are regularly cleaned it should not be less than six inches in thickness. Thus it will fully soak up and hold the liquids and retain them while spread on the land to be plowed under. It takes no more material as bedding six inches in thickness than less, for only the soiled portions need be removed. The added value to the animals in conserving warmth is not generally estimated.

It not only keeps animals comfortable, but as manure straw is valuable principally in proportion to the liquid manure it has soaked up. It will pay to use liberally in the directions we have mentioned, and less so as a food in winter than is generally practiced.

Farm and Garden Notes.

Lay in your stock of seeds for spring now. Every preparation should be made before the busy season opens in the spring.

Cows that have no bedding are often injured in the knees by getting up or down, especially if the floors be wet and slippery.

Cooking feed for stock is a subject much discussed at present, and as good authority as Professor Stewart is reported as advocating it for all kinds of domestic animals.

This is the season when the horses' legs should be well looked after. On returning from a muddy drive wash them well and at once dry thoroughly by gentle rubbing.

Although a large tree can be transplanted to a new location, yet it will not grow as rapidly nor as large as one that has occupied the same place since it sprung from the tree.

Use the soot from the stovepipes and chimneys. It is excellent for flowers and young plants. Mix it with water, about a peck of soot to a barrel of water, and apply with a watering pot.

Cider vinegar may be quickly made, when the cider is pure, by removing the latter to a high temperature and pouring from one barrel to another, to bring it into more direct contact with the air.

A French horticulturist, M. Nobbe, has found that the seeds of the finest variety of grapes germinate more quickly than those of commoner sorts, and that seeds fresh from the fruit germinate better than those which have been dried.

Of the varieties of ducks the Pekin stand confinement best, but they are not as tame as the common kinds. They grow very large, often reaching eight or nine pounds each, and yield feathers of a white color and equal to those of the goose.

The nearer the freezing point the cellar can be maintained without actually endangering the stored fruit the better for apples. Heat and light do more damage than cold. Alternate freezing and thawing will soon destroy fruit and vegetables.

An exchange advises planting peach trees closely, not over twelve to fourteen feet apart, and cutting back strong and putting only planted crops among them for a year or two, and then giving the ground to the orchard, keeping it well cultivated.

Orchards may be pruned at any time from the present until the buds begin to swell, but the earlier the work is done the better. Grape vines may also be pruned now and should be, lest the work be deferred too late. In the early spring the vines will bleed too much and for this reason it is best not to delay this work.

Flour of sulphur is the great remedy employed in Canada to check mildew on grape vines, but the National Agricultural Society of France, in its session of a few weeks ago, brought into prominence another remedy, which M. Pasteur says is so effectual that the inventor should be discovered if possible, and a suitable reward conferred upon him. The remedy is a mixture of milk and lime and sulphate of copper.

Iron is an important part of the blood, giving its red color, but this does not necessitate taking solutions of iron for health. All well-developed vegetation contains some iron. It is the coloring matter of green leaves. In soils from which every trace of iron has been removed seeds will germinate, but they will be white. Pouring a solution of copperas or sulphate of iron on the soil will change the leaves to a dark green color.

A cross of the Dorking and light Brahma makes excellent capons. They should be hatched as early as possible and kept until full grown. The best time to sell is in February and March, during which periods the prices are often as high as fifty cents per pound, while choice capons will weigh from twelve to fourteen pounds each. The proper crosses should be used in order to produce large capons. Leghorns, Hamburgs, black Spanish and other small breeds are worthless as capons. Only the large breeds should be used.

Without doubt the greatest and most common loss in team management is from keeping poor horses unable at any time to do a full day's work. It is the most difficult thing possible for many farmers to get the idea into their heads that a horse capable of doing but little is valueless. An old, worn out horse will always sell for something, no matter how poor he may be, and always for a greater price in proportion to his value when most worthless. For farm purposes, with the dear wages now paid to farm help, it does not require much reduction from a full day's team work each day to make up the value of a first-class team in every respect.

If possible celery should be stored in the soil where the crop grew, for it is found to do better stored here than in other, and different soil. For family use, it would be an advantage if it could by sufficiently protected just where it grew, over digging and packing away elsewhere. And this can easily be done by setting up boards along and two feet from the row, and filling in the space between with leaves, or other litter, to keep out the frost. Then it can be taken up from one end as wanted, always returning a good coat here, each time some is dug. In storing large quantities, it will be better to bring it within a smaller compass, but the protecting should also be done, with a view to making the celery easy accessible at all times.

Taken In.

"Where did you get that watch?" said her husband, as she very ostentatiously pulled out a watch and looked at it.

"I bought it."

"A present?"

"No; I bought it for myself. I couldn't help it. I couldn't see a poor family starve, and I bought the woman's watch."

"Just like you," he said. "You're always doing something kind—with my money."

"You're not mad, John, are you?"

"No; let me look at it. What did you give for it?"

"Forty dollars."

"Forty dollars!" and the husband began examining it.

"I'll tell you how it happened. I was passing along the street and there was an auction going on in a store."

"An auction! Oh!"

"Yes, I was listening and looking, and as I stood there a poor, distressed man came up. He pulled out this watch, and he asked the auctioneer if he'd auction it for him. He said his wife and family were starving, and this was an old family heirloom and he wanted to sell it. Well, the auctioneer he said he'd sell it, and he put it up, and all they'd bid for it was $7. The poor fellow began to cry. 'It's worth a $100,' he said. 'Won't somebody give more than $7? I can't sell it for that. I've had an offer of $45.' And I got mad and sorry for the poor man, and I bid $8, and somebody bid $9, and I bid $10, and finally they got it up to $40, and I bought it. Poor fellow! The man went off quite relieved and happy, and I felt so happy that I'd done a good deed at a bargain."

"Yes, the poor chap was relieved; I don't doubt it. This watch is worth $1.75, and that was a mock auction, and that distressed-looking man was a capper for the establishment. He does that twenty times a day."

"Oh, John!"

"Just like you, my dear. Always doing something stupid—with my money." —San Francisco Chronicle.

Men Who Get Along Best.

It seems a pity to say it, but observation sustains the statement that men of coarse fibre, obtuseness of feeling and cold-headed circumspection in dealing with their fellows get along better than men of chivalrous instincts, delicate sensibilities and that generous credulity which those practice who, never meditating wrong themselves, never suspect it in others. The gentleman in the best acceptance of that term finds Jordan an embarrassing road to travel, and often sighs to be at the end of the journey. He is annoyed by impertinent inquisitiveness, saddened by meanness and often robbed by rascals who have taken his measure as the hawk does of some gentler bird it selects for prey. The public men in the country who have had a high code of ethics have been constantly misunderstood. The rough and ready class will not understand reserve, and the schemers and scamps laugh at honesty. Even in the very domestic circle too fine a sense of the proprieties misses its mark, and society only recognizes surface manners. It does not care to go deeper. In fact, it dare not do so. It is a melancholy thing that the man who educates his children as nearly as possible to an ideal plane of thought and conduct simply prepares them for sorrow and mishaps. What a transition from the ingenious, confiding and noble-spirited young man of twenty-one and the sobered and hardened man of fifty, who has seen all illusions tramped in the mire. Still, for all this, it is better to aim high, live purely and sincerely, and, even at the cost of isolation, preserve your own soul from stigma or stain. Even the world does late justice over the graves of those who had the courage to speak and act the truth.—Pittsburg Chronicle.

Fasting Liquids.

Savage tribes are known to use "fasting" liquids. There is a fluid extract of cocoa, a little of which will enable a man, not merely to exist, but to endure the fatigues of days, and it is even said, of weeks. The Indians of Brazil can perform long journeys, with nothing to live upon but a small quantity of a prepared tobacco juice. But even plain water, as it is called, may have its solid nutritive ingredients. This is the explanation of the instances, but far too numerous for detailed mention, in which "snowed up" people have lived for astonishingly long periods upon nothing but snow water, and in which miners, imprisoned down below, have survived, not only for days, but even for weeks, until the hour of their deliverance. The lime in the water which oozed through the rock, and upon which alone the workers of a well-known mine in Northeastern France lived for three weeks or more, accounted for the escape of the unfortunates. By simply lying still, and not moving a muscle, by keeping oneself as warm as possible, and sleeping as nearly as possible twenty-four hours in a day, one may live a long time on plain water, the very plainest of which contains one or more of the solid ingredients necessary to the building up of the human frame. London Echo.

On the Wing.

Supposing the rate of a bird's flight to be taken at forty, fifty or sixty miles an hour, the sportsman has only to remember that a mile an hour is almost exactly equivalent to one and a half feet per second, and he thus has a ready means of comparison with the tables of velocity. These show, for example, that with an ordinary sporting charge (thirds and one and one-eighth ounces) the mean velocity of No. 5 or No. 6 shot, in a range of thirty-five yards, about 900 feet a second, or at the rate of 600 miles an hour; and so, on comparing this 600 miles with the speed of the bird's flight, it will be found that the shot moves ten times as fast as a bird going sixty miles an hour; twelve times as fast as one that flies fifty miles an hour, and fifteen times as fast as one which goes forty miles an hour. Consequently they would fly about two and a quarter yards, three yards and three and a half yards respectively, while the shot is traveling thirty-five yards at the rate given above.—New York Herald.

Norfolk, Va., is the greatest strawberry shipping place in the world. Among the many strawberry farms in its neighborhood is one of 440 acres, the largest strawberry farm in the world.

NOTES OF CURRENT EVENTS.

A CHICAGO butcher admits that two-thirds of the canned meat sold in the markets there as chicken is in reality the meat of rabbits that have been long frozen.

THE jury that recently tried two saloon keepers of Woodland, Cal., for grand larceny returned this verdict: "We, the jury, find the defendants not guilty, with the recommendation that they leave the town within forty-eight hours."

NICHOLAS SPEAR, of Hartland, Mich., went home for a week's spree one day last week, and the next morning put Paris green in the waterpail used by the family. Then he forgot all about it and drank of the water himself and died. His wife discovered the poison in the dipper before any other person drank of it.

A COMMERCIAL traveller says that in Pittsburgh barrooms one can buy two drinks for a quarter, and if he buys one drink he pays fifteen cents and receives a check which represents two and one-half cents. The next time he wants a drink he pays ten cents and the check. It seems a good scheme to encourage trade.

A TRAVELLER in one of the hotels of Bangor, Me., put his false teeth in a glass of water when he went to bed the other night. In the morning the water was frozen solid, and as the water pipes in the house were also frozen, he had to take the glass to bed with him, and thus thaw the ice before he could go to breakfast.

SOME months ago Daniel Kelly, of Port Clinton, Pa., saw that a heavy boulder had fallen on the track of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and he managed to run ahead and stop an approaching passenger train in time to avert a wreck. The other day he received a costly watch and chain with the compliments of the railroad company.

A CHICAGO drummer tells of a merchant in Walnut, Ill., who, being prosperous and a heavy buyer, is well treated by the commercial travellers, and has many a cigar offered to him. He always takes the cigar, says "Its against my principles to smoke in business hours; I'll light this after supper," and when he gets a hundred puts them in a box and sells them to a train boy on the Burlington road for half price.

A YOUNG woman of Louisville was carefully picking her way along a slippery sidewalk the other day just behind an elderly and portly man. Suddenly he slipped, and in his efforts to keep from falling down he threw one hand backward and struck the young lady squarely and violently on the nose. The blow stunned her so that she had to be assisted into an adjacent store, and an examination by a physician developed the fact that her nose had been broken. Both eyes had became blackened from the injury.

DR. BROWN-SEQUARD is quoted as saying that one has only to harden the neck and feet and destroy their sensitiveness to prevent taking cold. This is done by daily blowing a stream of cold air, by means of an elastic bag, upon the neck, and by immersing the feet in cold water. The air is at first only slightly cool, but is each day made colder, until the neck can stand an arctic blast with impunity. The feet are immersed in water at first at a temperature of about ninety degrees, and this is gradually reduced to thirty-eight degrees.

He Pays License on a Dog.

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

"I like to ask you if dere vhas some license to keep a dog?" inquired Mr. Donder, as he carefully tip-toed into the presence of Sergeant Bendall yesterday.

"Yes, sir, there is."

"Who gets him?"

"You have to go up stairs to the City Clerk."

"Doan' somepody come to me after him?"

"No, sir."

"Vhell, dot vhas curious. Last week Shake goes oudt mit Mount Glemens to see his aunt, and he prings home a dog. Me keep him tied obb mit der back yard, und he vhas home only one day when a man walks into my blace und say vhas I Carl Dunder? I vhas. All right. He like to get dot license money on Shake's dog. Der regular brice vhas one dollar, but he make it seex shillings pecause it vhas hardt times."

"And you paid?"

"Vhell, I doan' like to haf dot dog kildt, you see! Eaferypody says he vhas sooch a dog ash shmells some tiger or lion two miles avhay. Next day a stranger comes in mit a shmall pook in his hand und a pencil oafer his ear. Vhas I Carl Dunder? I vhas. All right. He like to get dot license on Shake's dog. If I paid him to somepody else dot vhas nothings mit him. He vhas a frendt to Shake, howefer, und he make it feefty cents."

"And you paid that?"

"Vhell, Sergeant, dot vhas a good dog. If some burglars vhas a mile avhay he howls und wakes us obb und saves us two thousand dollar. Dis morning a stranger comes in. He haf some badge on. Vhas I Carl Dunder? I vhas. All right. He like to get dot license for Shake's dog. If I pay somepody else I vhas a fool. Nobody can collect dot license onless he haf dot badge on. Being ash I vhas swindled he make it twenty-five cents."

"And you were fool enough to pay?"

"Vhell, Sergeant, I bays taxes in two wards und I vhas headquarters for campaign clubs. Dot dog vhas great on coons und elephants. Vhas it some shwindle on me?"

"Certainly! You ought to be sent to an asylum!"

"Sergeant, look at my eye, und doan' you forget him! I vhas going home. Somepody vhill come in. Vhas I Carl Dunder? I vhas. All right. Sergeant, I shall shump on dot berson like a sparrow on an elephant. I vhill break him in two und drag him aroundt und bang his head mit dem floor until der coroner finds only one ear und a shirt button to hold an inquest on! Good-bye. After I vhas in you shall come und see me sometimes for I vhas an honest man who haf to defend my family."

Physicians Have Found Out

That a contaminating and foreign element in the blood, developed by indigestion, is the cause of rheumatism. This settles upon the sensitive sub-cutaneous covering of the muscles and ligaments of the joints, causing constant and shifting pain, and aggregating as a calcareous, chalky deposit which produces stiffness and distortion of the joints. No fact which experience has demonstrated in regard to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has stronger evidence to support than this, namely, that this medicine of comprehensive uses checks the formidable and atrocious disease, nor is it less positively established that it is preferable to the poisons often used to arrest it, since the medicine contains only salutary ingredients. It is also a signal remedy for malarial fevers, constipation, dyspepsia, kidney and bladder ailments, debility and other disorders. See that you get the genuine.

Talking of Warts.

E. L. Akehurst stepped into John H. Sheehan & Co.'s store the other day and was waited upon by H. C. Hart, one of the clerks. While Mr. Akehurst was picking out change to pay his bill from a quantity of money that he had scattered on the top of a show case, Mr. Hart remarked:

"I see that you have one or two large warts, Brother Akehurst."

"Yes, I have had them since childhood."

"Why don't you get rid of them?" was the next remark.

"How can that be done?" asked Mr. Akehurst.

"Easily enough," said Mr. Hart. "Run up the stairs to Joe Monroe, the order clerk, in the third story, and he will take them off."

"Take them off!" said Mr. Akehurst, in astonishment.

"Certainly; you go up and I'll tell him through the speaking tube that you are coming," said Mr. Hart.

Mr. Akehurst went up into the third story. "Good morning, Dr. Monroe," said he to the druggist. "Mr. Hart sent me up to have my warts taken off."

"All right," said Dr. Joe. "I'll do it."

He took hold of Mr. Akehurst's hand, looked at a large seed wart, put his fingers on it, looked Mr. Akehurst in the face, and, as the latter remarked afterward, "we talked and laughed and laughed and talked like a couple of youngsters for a few minutes." Then Dr. Monroe dropped Mr. Akehurst's hand and said:

"That wart won't bother you much longer."

No fee was charged, and, after thanking Mr. Monroe, Mr. Akehurst left the store, and in the rush of the holiday trade he forgot the incident that had amused him for a day. One evening, within a week, he looked at the hand where the wart had been located and found that it had wholly disappeared and the second one had decreased in size materially. A representative of the Observer saw the mark on the spot where the wart was located. It looked like a scar resulting from a light burn.

Mr. Monroe was interviewed, and on being asked how he operated, he smiled and said: "There is no operation about it; I felt of the wart and talked it off, as I have done probably 500 times a year for several years. I claim no peculiar gift in this matter, and suppose that you have the same power that I have, if you would only develop it. I have a great deal of amusement in studying the faces of my patients, who express alternate feelings of doubt, hope, and surprise; but the warts go away, all the same. If you have any on your hands show them to me and I'll take them off."—Utica Observer.

Principal Cities' Pseudonyms.

Alexander—Delta City.
Atlanta—Gate City.
Baltimore—Monumental City.
Boston—Modern Athens.
Brooklyn—City of Churches.
Buffalo—Queen City of the Lakes.
Chicago—Garden City.
Cincinnati—Queen City of the West.
Cleveland—Forest City.
Detroit—City of the Straits.
Hannibal—Bluff City.
Indianapolis—Railroad City.
Keokuk, Iowa—Gate City.
Louisville—Falls City.
Lowell—City of Spindles.
Maysville, Ky.—Seven-Acre City.
Milwaukee—Cream City.
Nashville—City of Rocks.
New Haven—City of Elms.
New Orleans—Crescent City.
New York—Gotham.
Philadelphia—Quaker City.
Pittsburgh—Iron City.
Quincy—Model City.
Savannah—Forest City.
Springfield, Ill.—Flower City.
St. Louis—Mound City.
Rochester—Flour City.
Toledo—Corn City.
Washington—City of Magnificent Distances.

SMALL GOURDS, with a triangular, opening cut in one side, look quite pretty when gilded—the gilding can be procured at art stores—and suspended by a colored ribbon which is tied tastefully about the neck; they are useful as lamp lighter holders; and also look well filled with grasses.

If you have a cough or cold, do not dose yourself with poisonous narcotics, but take Red Star Cough Cure, which contains no opiates, and is prompt, safe and sure. Price, twenty-five cents a bottle.

In China a man never sees his wife until he is wedded to her for life. According to this, Chinese courtships must be very inexpensive affairs, but contain no more fun than walking two miles home from church alone on a dark and rainy night.—Norristown Herald.

You will never succeed in finding permanent relief from rheumatism until you have used St. Jacobs Oil, the great pain cure. Price, fifty cents.

These polite and sanctimonious members of the house of representatives: First member—Come, why dont you take part in the debate? You havn't opened your mouth yet. Second member—Pardon! I was yawning the whole time you were speaking.—Tid Bits.

A New Way to Pay Old Debts.

Shakespeare tells how this can be accomplished in one of his immortal plays; but debts to nature must be paid on demand unless days of grace be obtained through the use of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." It is not a "cure-all," but invaluable for sore throat, bronchitis, asthma, catarrh, consumption, and all diseases of the pulmonary and other organs, caused by scrofula or "bad blood." Scrofulous ulcers, swellings and tumors are cured by its wonderful alterative action. By druggists.

The railroad stove, dangerous as it is, has no terror for the legislator who rides on a pass.

A Terrible Fire.

What a thrill of terror passes over us when we read the record of some fearful devastation by fire, and yet it is a fact that thousands are daily being consumed by the inward fire of fever, caused by consumption of the lungs, which could be subdued by Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery."

"Your presents is desired at our Christmas celebration," was a boy's letter to his uncle.

A Ghost

is a myth, but solid reality will be known by those who write to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, thereby learning, free, about work that they can do and live at home, wherever they reside, at a profit of from $5 to $25 and upwards daily. Some have earned over $50 in a day. Capital not needed. Hallett & Co will start you. All is new. Delay not. Pay absolutely sure from start. Wealth awaits every worker. Both sexes. All ages.

A Lady's Unfortunate Experience,

Was that of one of our acquaintances who suffered from scrofula, a yellow complexion and distress of the stomach, for years before using Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic, which finally cured her.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS warms up and invigorates the stomach, improves and strengthens the digestive organs, opens the pores, promotes perspiration, and equalizes the circulation. As a corrector of a disordered system there is nothing to equal it.

If you have a Cold, Cough, (dry-hacking) Croup, Cankered-throat, Catarrh Droppings causing cough—Dr. Kilmer's Indian Cough Cure (Consumption Oil) will relieve instantly—heals and cures. Price 25c., 50c. and $1.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.

Send for Pamphlet on Female Diseases, free, securely sealed. Dr. J. B. Marchisi, Utica, N. Y.

3 month's treatment for 50c. Piso's Remedy for Catarrh. Sold by druggists.

"DON'T YOU WORRY."

How Shrewd Business Men Have Solved a Great Problem.

"Is there a fatality among our prominent men?" is a question that we often ask. It is a question that perplexes our leading medical men, and they are at a loss to know how to answer it.

We sometimes think that if the physicians would give part of the energy to the consideration of this question that they give to combatting other schools of practice, it might be satisfactorily answered.

The fights of "isms" remind us often of the quarrels of old Indian tribes, that were only happy when they were annihilating each other.

If Allopathy makes a discovery that promises good to the race, Homoeopathy derides it and breaks down its influence. If Homoeopathy makes a discovery that promises to be a boon to the race, Allopathy attacks it.

It is absurd that these schools should fancy that all of good is in their methods and none in any other.

Fortunately for the people, the merit which these "isms" will not recognize, is recognized by the public, and this public recognition, taking the form of a demand upon the medical profession, eventually compels it to recognize it.

Is it possible that the question has been answered by shrewd business men? A prominent man once said to an inquirer, who asked him how he got rich: "I got rich because I did things while other people were thinking about doing them." It seems to us that the public have recognized what this fatality is, and how it can be met, while the medical profession has been wrangling about it.

By a careful examination of insurance reports we find that there has been a sharp reform with reference to examinations, (and that no man can now get any amount of insurance who has the least development of kidney disorder,) because they find that sixty out of every hundred in this country die, either directly or indirectly, suffer from kidney disease. Hence, no reliable company will insure a man except after a rigid urinary examination.

This reminds us of a little instance which occurred a short time ago. A fellow editor was an applicant for a respectable amount of insurance. He was rejected on examination, because, unknown to himself, his kidneys were diseased. The shrewd agent, however, did not give up the case. He had an eye to business and to his commission, and said: "Don't you worry; you get a half dozen bottles of Warner's safe cure, take it according to directions and in about a month come around, and we will have another examination. I know you will find yourself all right and will get your policy."

The editor expressed surprise at the agent's faith, but the latter replied: "This point is a valuable one. Very many insurance agents all over the country, when they find a customer rejected for this cause, give similar advice, and eventually he gets the insurance."

What are we to infer from such circumstances? Have shrewd insurance men, as well as other shrewd business men, found the secret answer to the inquiry? Is it possible that our columns have been proclaiming, in the form of advertisements, what has proved a blessing in disguise to millions, and yet by many ignored as an advertisement?

In our files we find thousands of strong testimonials for Warner's safe cure, no two alike, which could not exist except upon a basis of truth; indeed, they are published under a guarantee of $5,000 to any one who will disprove their correctness, and this offer has been standing, we are told, for more than four years.

Undoubtedly this article, which is simply dealing out justice, will be considered as an advertisement and be rejected by many as such.

We have not space nor time to discuss the proposition that a poor thing could not succeed to the extent that this great remedy has succeeded, could not become so popular without merit even if pushed by a Vanderbilt or an Astor.

Hence we take the liberty of telling our friends that it is a duty that they owe to themselves to investigate the matter and reflect carefully, for the statements published are subject to the refutation of the entire world. None have refuted them; on the contrary hundreds of thousands have believed them and proved them true, and in believing have found the highest measure of satisfaction, that which money cannot buy, and money cannot take away.

Bill Nye advises the Southern farmer to work his butter more and his cows less.

How to Gain Flesh and Strength.

Use after each meal SCOTT'S EMULSION with Hypophosphites. It is as palatable as milk, and easily digested. The rapidity with which delicate people improve with its use is wonderful. Use it and try your weight. As a remedy for Consumption, Throat affections and Bronchitis, it is unequaled. Please read: "I used Scott's Emulsion in a child eight months old with good results. He gained four pounds in a very short time."—THO. PRIM, M. D., Alabama.

Seven women hold the position of county Superintendent of Schools in Illinois.

Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is a most powerful restorative tonic, and combines the most valuable nervine properties; especially adapted to the wants of debilitated ladies suffering from weak back, inward fever, congestion, inflammation, or ulceration, or from nervousness or neuralgic pains. By druggists.

It is the empty heart that aches. The head is different.—New Orleans Picayune.

Prepare for Spring

It is none to early to be getting ready for spring, and the first thing which should receive attention is your own system. If you have not been well during the winter, have been troubled with scrofula, salt rheum, or other humors of the blood, you should purify the blood by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. You will then escape that indescribable tired feeling which is so prostrating and often so unaccountable in the spring months. Do not put off taking a reliable medicine, but take Hood's Sarsaparilla before it is too late.

"I take Hood's Sarsaparilla for a spring medicine, and I find it just the thing. It tones up my system and makes me feel like a different man. My wife takes it for dyspepsia and she derives great benefit from it. She says it is the best medicine she ever took."—FRANK C. TURNER, Hook & Ladder No. 1, Friend Street, Boston, Mass.

Mrs. C. W. Marriott, Lowell, Mass., was completely cured of sick headache, which she had had 18 years, by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

BENSON'S BENSON'S CAPCINE PLASTER POROUS PLASTER

Highest Awards of Medals in Europe and America.

The neatest, quickest, safest and most powerful remedy known for Rheumatism, Pleurisy, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Backache, Weakness, cold in the chest and all aches and pains. Endorsed by 5,000 Physicians and Druggists of the highest repute. Benson's Plasters promptly relieve and cure where other plasters and greasy salves, liniments and lotions, are absolutely useless. Beware of imitations under similar sounding names, such as "Capsicum," "Capucin," "Capsicine," as they are utterly worthless and intended to deceive. ASK FOR BENSON'S AND TAKE NO OTHERS. All druggists. SEABURY & JOHNSON, Proprietors, New York.

DR. KILMER'S INDIAN COUGH-CURE CONSUMPTION OIL .25¢ SAVES YOUR LIFE. Stop that Cold, Cough, and Tickling in the Throat. Arrest that Catarrh, Bronchitis or Asthma. This Remedy relieves quickly. Cures permanently. It prevents Decline, Night-Sweats and death from Consumption. Prepared at DR. KILMER'S DISPENSARY, Binghamton, N. Y. Letters of inquiry answered. Guide to Health (Sent Free). Sold by Druggists.

SOLID FACTS!

"Seven Springs" Iron-Alum Mass, will give you an appetite, strengthen you up, cure Dyspepsia, Diarrhoea and all Headaches, purify the blood, act on the Kidneys, relieve Catarrh and ward off malaria. Price, 50c, and $1.00 per bottle.

Dickey's Painless Eyewater cures inflamed eyes at once. No cure, no pay. Ask for it. Sold by Druggists or sent by mail postpaid. Price 25c. DICKEY & ANDERSON, Manufacturers, BRISTOL, TENN.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for TANSILL'S PUNCH 5¢

Although I was paying $40.00 per 1,000 for my leading 5c brand my sales are more than twenty-five times as large since I put in your "Tansill's Punch" 5c. cigar. I could not have believed it. Yours respectfully, WM. H. DALE, Druggist, Chicago. Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

PATENTS Obtained. Send stamp for Inventors' Guide. L. Bingham, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

A Lost Industry.

Jay Gould, the railroad magnate, takes pleasure in letting the world know that twenty-five years ago he earned money by honest industry, making noon marks for farmers. Work of that kind done only a quarter of a century ago indicates what a short way in time we are removed from the use of crude, ancient devices. It is only within half a century that the admirable mechanical methods of American clock-makers have brought the price of time pieces so low that it would not pay to go round offering to make noon marks. The noon mark was an humble brother of the sun dial, which was a crude method of indicating time compared to the cheapest modern time piece; yet the dial was considered a great invention in its day, and the Babylonians were honored for originating such a boon to mankind. The sun dial might have still remained the leading rural time indicator but for the persistence of Connecticut clock-makers in underselling the world. When they succeeded, by the interchangeable stamping process of manufacture, in finishing serviceable clock works for twenty-five cents each, the occupation that gave Jay Gould his financial start was gone forever.

LIKE A RIVER

THE PRAISES OF B. B. B. POURS IN UPON US.

Would That We Had Space to Publish a Hundredth Part.

ROCKMART, Ga., December 24th, 1886.—G. M. Morgan came to my office in October with an old scrofulous ulcer of many years' standing. On examination I informed him, in addition to my local treatment, he must have a blood purifier. He preferred your B. B. B., which acted like a charm, and with my treatment and B. B. B. he is now a sound man.

I am a regular practicing physician, and this is the first time I ever addressed a patent medicine company. I regard B. B. B. as one of the best patent blood medicines.

W. J. ADAIR, M. D.

P. S.—G. M. Morgan is now on E. T., Va. and Ga. R. R., but was formerly supervisor of bridges and trestles on the Richmond and Danville R. R., and is a gentleman of considerable influence, being identified with the railroads generally. W. J. ADAIR.

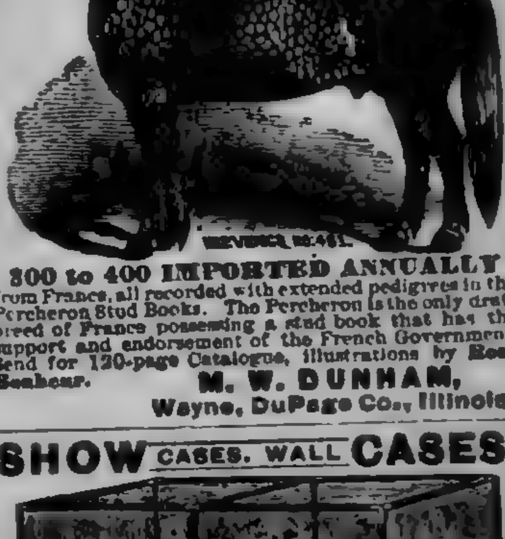
NEWTON, N. C., June 29, 1886.—Blood Balm Company, Atlanta: Your medicine was used in the case of my mother, now about 45 years of age, who has been afflicted with rheumatism for the past ten years. After using three bottles, we consider that an entire cure has been effected. I used one bottle myself for a humor of the blood, which caused a disfiguring breaking out on my face and all parts of my body. The result is that my skin is smooth and perfectly free from pimple or blotch. A perfect cure has been effected.

W. T. MOREHEAD, Newtown, N. C.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 5, 1887.—Botanic Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga. Dear Sirs: I had suffered with bleeding piles for two years, and take pleasure in stating that I have been entirely cured by the use of one bottle of "Botanic Blood Balm" (B. B. B.) I cheerfully make this statement for the benefit of the public.

CHAS. REINHARDT,
No. 2026 Fountain St.,
Baltimore, Md.

OAKLAWN
The Great Nursery of
PERCHERON HORSES.
200 Imported Brood Mares
Of Choicest Families.
LARGE NUMBERS,
All Ages, both Sexes,
IN STOCK.



300 to 400 IMPORTED ANNUALLY from France, all recorded with extended pedigrees in the Percheron Stud Books. The Percheron is the only draft breed of France possessing a stud book that has the support and endorsement of the French Government. Send for 120-page Catalogue, illustrations by Rosa Bonheur. M. W. DUNHAM, Wayne, DuPage Co., Illinois.

SHOW CASES. WALL CASES.
DESKS, OFFICE FURNITURE AND FIXTURES.
Ask for Illustrated Pamphlet.
TERRY SHOW CASE CO., Nashville, Tenn

BUSINESS
Education a specialty at MOORE'S BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, Ga. One of the best schools in the Country. Send for Circulars.

ATLANTA SAW WORKS.
Manufacturers of and Dealers in
Saws and Saw-Mill Supplies.
Repairing a Specialty.
Agents for L. Power & Company's Wood Working Machinery. Large and complete stock. Write for catalogue. ATLANTA, GA.

J. P. STEVENS & BRO. JEWELERS.
Atlanta, Ga.
Send for Catalogue.

Young Men Can get the most Practical Business Education at Goldsmith's School of Business, 35½ S Broad St. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Circulars & Specimen of Penmanship.

TAPEWORM CURE Illustrated Book sent FREE. Address A. M. BOCK, P. O. Box 466, Atlanta, Ga.

$15.00 Flat top No. 7 Cook Stove for $10.00 with fixtures. Send for catalogue. A. P. Stewart & Co., 69 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.

DOG BUYERS' GUIDE. Colored plates, 100 engravings of different breeds, prices they are worth, and where to buy them. Mailed for 15 Cents. ASSOCIATED FANCIERS, 237 S. Eighth St. Philadelphia, Pa.

GRAPES 100 Best Kinds! 30th year. Catalogue free. Concords, $3 per 100; $12 per 1,000. 1 Empire State and 1 Niagara for $1 post paid. Brighton, Delaware, Ives, Elvira, Lady, Catawba, Martha, Moore's Early, Worden, Pocklington, Diamond, Vergennes, &c., at lowest rates. Raspberries, Gooseberries, Jessie Strawberry, Lucretia Dewberry, &c. GEO. W. CAMPBELL, Delaware, Ohio.

ASTHMA CURED! German Asthma Cure never fails to give immediate relief in the worst cases; insures comfortable sleep; effects cures where all others fail. A trial convinces the most skeptical. Price 50 cts. and $1.00, of Druggists or by mail. Sample FREE for stamp. DR. R. SCHIFFMANN, St. Paul, Minn.

THURSTON'S IVORY PEARL TOOTH POWDER Keeping Teeth Perfect and Gums Healthy.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. Refer to 1000 patients cured in all parts. Dr. Marsh, Quincy, Mich.

The best and surest Remedy for Cure of all diseases caused by any derangement of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels. Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Constipation, Bilious Complaints and Malaria of all kinds yield readily to the beneficent influence of

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

It is pleasant to the taste, tones up the system, restores and preserves health. It is purely Vegetable, and cannot fail to prove beneficial, both to old and young. As a Blood Purifier it is superior to all others. Sold everywhere at $1.00 a bottle.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

HAINESVILLE, N. J.,
October 15, 1886.

E. T. HAZELTINE,
Warren, Pa.

Dear Sir:

I was taken with a very severe cold last Spring, and tried every cure we had in the store, and could get no help.

I had our village doctor prescribe for me, but kept getting worse. I saw another physician from Port Jervis, N. Y., and he told me he used Piso's Cure for Consumption in his practice.

I bought a bottle, and before I had taken all of it there was a change for the better. Then I got my employer to order a quantity of the medicine and keep it in stock. I took one more bottle, and my Cough was cured.

Respectfully,
FRANK McKELVY.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

HARTER'S THE ONLY TRUE IRON TONIC

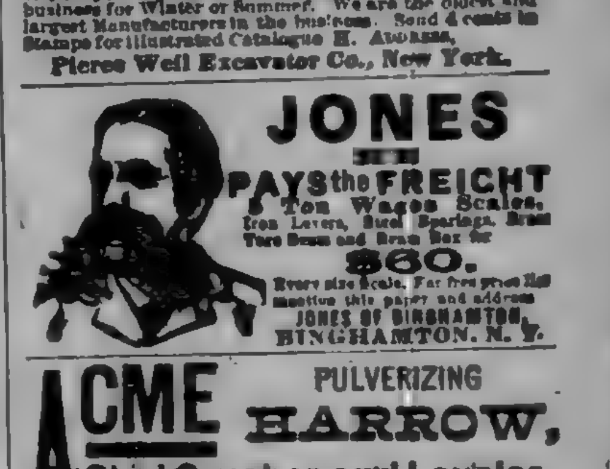
Will purify the BLOOD, regulate the LIVER and KIDNEYS and RESTORE the HEALTH and VIGOR of YOUTH. Dyspepsia, Want of Appetite, Indigestion, Lack of Strength and Tired Feeling absolutely cured: Bones, muscles and nerves receive new force. Enlivens the mind and supplies Brain Power.

LADIES Suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex will find in DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC a safe and speedy cure. Gives a clear, healthy complexion. Frequent attempts at counterfeiting only add to the popularity of the original. Do not experiment—get the ORIGINAL AND BEST.

Dr. HARTER'S LIVER PILLS Cure Constipation, Liver Complaint and Sick Headache. Sample Dose and Dream Book mailed on receipt of two cents in postage.
THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE COMPANY.
St. Louis, Mo.

Ask your retailer for the James Means' $3 Shoe. Caution! Some dealers recommend inferior goods in order to make a larger profit. This is the original $3 Shoe. Beware of imitations which acknowledge their own inferiority by attempting to build upon the reputation of the original. None Genuine unless bearing this Stamp,

JAMES MEANS' $3 SHOE. For Gentlemen.



Made in Button, Congress and Lace. Best Calf Skin. Unexcelled in Durability, Comfort & Appearance. A postal card sent to us will bring you information how to get this Shoe in any State or Territory. J. Means & Co., 41 Lincoln St., Boston, Mass.

Our celebrated factory produces a larger quantity of Shoes of this grade than any other factory in the world. Thousands who wear them will tell you the reason if you ask them. JAMES MEANS' $2 SHOE for Boys is unapproached in Durability.

WELL DRILLING

Machinery for Wells of any depth, from 20 to 3,000 feet, for Water, Oil or Gas. Our Mounted Steam Drilling and Portable Horse Power Machines set to work in 20 minutes. Guaranteed to drill faster and with less power than any other. Specially adapted to drilling Wells in earth or rock 20 to 1,000 feet. Farmers and others are making $25 to $40 per day with our machinery and tools. Splendid business for Winter or Summer. We are the oldest and largest Manufacturers in the business. Send 4 cents in Stamps for Illustrated Catalogue H. Address, Pierce Well Excavator Co., New York.

JONES PAYS the FREIGHT 5 Ton Wagon Scales, Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box for $60. Every size Scale. For free price list mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

ACME PULVERIZING HARROW, Clod Crusher and Leveler. The Best Tool in the world for preparing corn, cotton and other ground. D. H. NASH, Sole Manuf'r, 302 West Main St., Louisville, Ky.

HARTSHORN'S Shade Rollers AND THE BEST NOTICE NAME ON LABEL

MEXICAN WAR SURVIVORS or their Widows. New Pension Law. Apply at once for blanks and full information. Twenty years' experience. Best references. Success or no fee. R. McAllister, Jr., Attorney-at-Law. P. O. Box 65, Washington, D. C.

WE WANT YOU! a live energetic man or woman needing profitable employment to represent us in every county. Salary $75 per month and expenses, or a large commission on sales if preferred. Goods staple. Every one buys. Outfit and particulars Free. STANDARD SILVERWARE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

Blair's Pills. Great English Gout and Rheumatic Remedy. Oval Box $1.00; round, 50 cts.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE Lines not under the horse's feet. Address Brewster's Safety Rein Holder, Holly, Mich.

Pensions to Soldiers & Heirs. Send stamp for circulars. COL. L. BING-HAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

OPIUM Habit Cured. Treatment sent on trial. HUMANE REMEDY CO., LaFayette, Ind.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Also good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Hay Fever, &c. 50 cents.

Rates of Advertising.

One Dollar per Square, of one inch space or less, for the first, and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion.

Space.	3 m.	6 m.	12 m.
1 Inch	[illegible]	7 00	11 25
2 Inches	7 00	[illegible]	16 00
3 Inches	[illegible]	[illegible]	22 00
4 Inches	[illegible]	[illegible]	27 00
5 Inches	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
¼ Column	[illegible]	27 00	40 00
½ Column	27 00	40 00	60 00
1 Column	40 00	60 00	100 00

The Chilton View.

W. H. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors. "WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION." TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, MARCH 10, 1887. NUMBER 18.

Special Advertising.

Business Notices Ten Cents per line each insertion.

Obituaries and Tributes of Respect, half rates.

Announcing candidates for office, Five Dollars, strictly in advance.

Communications recommending candidates for office will be handed as advertisements and charged for accordingly.

Liberal contracts made with those advertising by the year.

☞ The money is due on all advertising after the first publication.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Subject: "David Acting the Fool."

[NOTE: There was another large addition to the church yesterday, making 647 new members received during the present revival, so that the communicant membership of the Brooklyn Tabernacle is now 4,007.]

TEXT: "And he changed his behavior before them, and feigned himself mad in their hands, and scrabbled on the doors of the gate, and let his spittle fall down upon his beard." 1 Sam. xxi., 13.

There is one scene in the life of David that you may not have pondered. You have seen him with a harp playing the devil out of Saul; with a sling, smashing the skull of Goliah; with a sword, hacking to pieces the Philistines; with a sceptre, ruling a vast realm; with a psalm, gathering all nations into doxology; but in my text, you have David playing the fool. He has been anointed King, yet he is in exile and passing incognito among the Gathites. They begin to suspect who he is, and say: "I wonder if this is not the warrior, King David? It looks like him. Is not this the man about whom they used to make poetry, and about whom they composed a dance, so that the maidens of the city, reeling now on one foot and now on the other, used to sing: 'Saul has slain his thousands, but David has slain his tens of thousands?' Yes, it is very much like David. It must be David. It is David." David, to escape their hands, pretends to be demented. He said within himself: "If I act crazily then of course these people will not injure me. No one would be so much of a coward as to assault a madman." So, one day while these Gathites are watching David with increased suspicion, they see him standing by the door running his hands meaninglessly up and down the panels—scrabbling on the door as though he would climb up, his mouth wide open, drooling like an infant. I suppose the boys of the streets threw missiles at him; but the sober people of the town said: "This is not fair. Do you not see that he has lost his reason? Do not touch this madman. Hands off! hands off!" So David escaped; but what an exhibition he made of himself before all the ages! There was a majesty in King Lear's madness after Regan and Goneril, his daughters, had persuaded him to banish their sister Cordelia, and all the friends of the drama have been thrilled with that spectacular. The craziness of Meg Merrilies was weird and imposing, and the most telling passage in Walter Scott's "Guy Mannering." There was a fascination about the insanity of Alexander Cruden, who made the best concordance of the Bible that the world ever saw—made it between the madhouses. Some time ago, while I was visiting the insane asylum on Blackwell's Island, a demented woman came up to me and said, in most tragic style:

> "God moves in a mysterious way,
> His wonders to perform;
> He plants His footsteps in the sea
> And rides upon the storm."

But there was nothing grand, nothing weird, nothing majestic, nothing sublime about this simulation on the part of David. Instead of trusting in the Lord, as he had on other occasions, he gathers before him a vast audience of all generations that were to come, and standing on that conspicuous stage of history, in the presence of all the ages, he impersonates the slavering idiot! "And he changed his behavior before them, and feigned himself mad in their hands, and scrabbled at the door of the gate, and let his spittle fall upon his beard."

Taking the behavior of David as a suggestion, I wish to tell you how many of the wise, and the brave, and the regal sometimes play the fool. And in the first place, I remark, that those men as badly play the fool as this man of the text, who in any crisis of life take their case out of the hand of God. David, in this case, acted as though there were no God to lift him out of the predicament. What a contrast between his behavior, when this brave little man stood up in front of the giant ten feet in height, and looking into his face, said: "Thou comest to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a shield; but I come to thee in the name of the Lord of Hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast defied. This day will the Lord deliver thee into mine hand, and I will smite thee, and take thine head from thee, and I will give the carcasses of the hosts of the Philistines this day unto the fowls of the air, and to the wild beasts of the earth, that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel"—between that time and this time, when he debased himself, and bedraggled his manhood, and affected insanity in order that he might escape from the grip of the Gathites. In the one case he played the hero. In the other case he played the fool. So does every man who, in the great crises of life, takes his case out of the hand of God. The life of the most insignificant man in this house is too vast for any human management. One time, returning from the West, I very easily got on the locomotive while passing over the plains and talked with the engineer; but coming on toward the Alleghany Mountains, I thought I would like to sit on the locomotive as it came down from the mountains amidst that most wonderful scenery on this continent. I asked the engineer if I might ride, but he courteously denied me, for there the grade is so steep, and so winding, and so perilous that he must not have any one on the locomotive who may divert his attention when eye, and hand, and foot, and brain must be concentrated, ready for the most sudden emergency. Well, my friends, life is so steep, and so perilous, and so exposed to sudden surprises, that none but the Lord Almighty can guide and engineer it, and our disasters come from the fact that we want to get up and help the Lord to manage the train. Keep off the engine! Be willing to let God pull you where He wants to pull you. You have no right for an instant to surrender your sanity and manhood as David surrendered his. Put your trust in God, and He will take you through and over the mountains. I very much suspect that all the successful enterprises that were ever carried on, and all the successful lives that have ever been lived, have been fully surrendered to God. When the girl Victoria was awakened in the night, and told that the throne of Great Britain was hers, she said to the Prelate informing her: "I ask your prayers," and then and there they knelt down and prayed. Do you wonder that though since that time all the thrones of Europe have fallen or been fearfully shaken, hers stands as firm as the day she ascended it; and in every country under the sun, wherever an Englishman hears that name pronounced, he feels like waving his hat and crying: "God save the Queen!" That man and that woman, who put their trust in God, will go through in triumph; while those who attempt to gather under their own supervision the intricate and elaborate affairs of their life, are miserably playing the fool. I stood on the beach, looking off upon the sea; and there was a strong wind blowing, and I noticed that some of the vessels were going that way, and other vessels were going another. I said to myself: "How is it that the wind sends one vessel in one direction and another vessel in another direction?" I found out, by looking, that it was the different way they had the sails set. And so does trouble come on this world. Some men it drives into the harbor of heaven, and other men it drives on the rocks. It depends upon the way you have your sails set. All the Atlantic and Pacific oceans of surging sorrow cannot sink a soul that has asked for God's pilotage. The difficulty is, that when we have misfortunes of any kind, we put them in God's hand, and they stay there a little while; and then we go and get them again, and bring them back. A vessel comes in from a foreign port. As it comes near the harbor it sees a pilot floating about. It hails the pilot. The pilot comes on board, and he says: "Now, Captain, you have had a stormy passage. Go down and sleep, and I will take the vessel into New York harbor." After awhile the Captain begins think: "Am I right in trusting this vessel to that pilot? I guess I'll go up and see." So he comes to the pilot and says: "Don't you see that rock? Don't you see those headlands? You will wreck the ship. Let me lay hold the helm for awhile for myself, and then I'll trust to you." The pilot becomes angry, and says: "I will either take care of this ship or not. If you want to, I will get into my yawl and go ashore, or back to my boat." Now we say to the Lord: "O God, take my life, take my all, in Thy keeping! Be Thou my guide; be Thou my pilot." We go along for a little while, and suddenly wake up, and say: "Things are going all wrong. O, Lord, we are driving on these rocks, and Thou art going to let us be shipwrecked." God says: "You go and rest; I will take charge of this vessel, and take it into the harbor." It is God's business to comfort, and it is our business to be comforted. Herbert, the great thinker, philosophized about himself, philosophized about this world, philosophized about everything, then in his dying moments asked that only one word might be cut upon his tombstone, and that word "Infelicissimus"—most unhappy—descriptive of the state of the lives and of the deaths of those who take their case out of the hand of God. The only appropriate inscription for their banqueting hall, and their equipage, and their grave, and the wall of their eternal prison-house—"Infelicissimus." In drooling, moral idiocy, they are scrabbling at the door of their happiness, which never opens; miserably playing the fool.

Again, I remark that all those persons play the fool, as certainly as did this man of the text, who allow the technicalities of religion to stop their salvation. David was wise about a great many things, but his cuttings-up in the text for a little while eclipsed his character. And I know wise men and great men, competent for all other stations, who are acting a silly and foolish part in regard to the technicalities of religion. They ask us some questions which we cannot answer categorically, and so they burst into a broad guffaw, as though it is of any more interest to us than it ought to be to them. About the Atonement, about God's decrees, about man's destiny, they ask a great many questions which we cannot answer, and so they deride us, as though we could not ask them a thousand questions that they cannot answer, about their eyes, about their ears, about their finger nails, about everything. A fool can ask a question that a wise man cannot answer. O, you cavilling men! O, you profound men! O, you learned men, do please admit something. You have a soul? Yes. Will it live for ever? Yes. Where? You say that Jesus Christ is not a Divine Saviour. Who is He? Where will you go after you leave your law books, and your medical prescriptions, and your club room, and your newspaper office—where will you go to? Your body will be six feet under ground. Where will your soul be? The black coat will be off, the shroud on. Those spectacles will be removed from your vision, for the sod will press your eyelids. Have you any idea that an earthly almanac describes the years of your lifetime? Of what stuff shall I gather the material for the letters of that which describes your eternal home? Shall it be iron chain or amaranthine garland? The air that stirs the besweated locks of your dying pillow, will it come off a garden or a desert? O, quit the puzzling questions and try these momentous questions. Quit the small questions and try these great questions. Instead of discussing whether the serpent in Eden was figurative or literal, whether the Mediterranean fish did or did not swallow the recreant prophet, whether this and that, and the other thing is right or wrong, come and discuss one question: "How shall I get rid of my sins and win heaven?" That is the question for you. Yes, there have been men who have actually lost their souls because they thought there was a discrepancy between Moses and Professor Silliman—because they could not understand how there could be light before the sun rose—the light appearing in verse three of Genesis, and the sun appearing not until verse sixteen—and because they do not know how the moon could stand still without upsetting the universe, and because they had decided upon the theory of natural selection. A German philosopher in dying had for his chief sorrow that he had not devoted his whole life to the study of the dative case. O, when your immortality is in peril, why quibble? Quit these non-essentials, my dear brother. In the name of God, I ask you in regard to these matters of the immortal soul, that you do not play the fool.

What is that man doing over in Bowling Green, New York? Well, he is going in for a ticket for a transatlantic voyage. He is quarrelling with the clerk about the spots—the red spots on the ticket—and he is quarrelling about the peculiar signature of the President of the steamship company, and he is quarrelling about the manner of the clerk who hands him the ticket How long has he been standing there? Three weeks. Meanwhile, perhaps, twenty steamers have gone out of port, and I hear the shriek of the steam tug that could take him to the last vessel that could bear him to his engagement in London. Still he stands in Bowling Green discussing the ticket. What do you say in regard to that man? You say he is a fool. Well, in that very way are many men acting in regard to the matters of the soul. They are caviling about the Atonement, the red spots on the ticket—about the character of the minister who hands them the ticket—about whether it has a Divine or human signature, and meanwhile, all their opportunities for heaven are sailing out of the harbor, and I hear the last tap of the bell announcing their last chance for heaven. Go aboard! Do not waste any more time in higgling and carping, and criticising, and wondering, and, in the presence of an astounded heaven, playing the fool.

I go still further, and say to you that those men play the fool who undertake to pay out eternity for time. How little care do we bestow upon the railroad depot where we stop twenty minutes to dine. We dash in and we dash out again. We do not examine the architecture of the building, nor the face of the caterer. We supply our hunger, we pay our money, and we put on our hat and take our place in the train. What is that depot as compared with the place for which we are bound? Now, my friends, this world is only a stopping place on the way to a momentous destination, and yet how many of us sit down as though we had consummated our journey, as though we had come to a final depot, when our stopping here is as compared with our stopping there as is twenty minutes to twelve hours—yea, as the one hundreth part of a second compared with ten thousand million years! Would Spain sell us Cuba for a bushel of wheat? Would England sell us India for a ton of coal? Would Venice sell us all her pictures for an American schoolboy's sketch? Ah! that would be a better bargain for England, Spain and Venice than that man makes who gives his eternity for time. Yet how many there are who are saying to-day: "Give me the world's dollars and you may have the eternal rewards. Give me the world's applause and you may have the garlands of God. Give me twenty, or forty, or sixty years of worldly successes and I don't care what becomes of the future. I am going into that world uninsured. I take the responsibility. Don't bother me about your religion. Here I have the two worlds before me—this one and the next. I have chosen this. Go away from me, God and angels, and all thoughts of the future!" But where is Croesus and Cleopatra; and Æsopus, who had one dish of food that cost one million four hundred thousand dollars; and Lentulus, who had a pound of fish worth a hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars; and Scaurus, who bought a country seat for twenty-nine million dollars; and Tiberius, who left at death a fortune of one hundred and eighteen million, one hundred and twenty thousand dollars? Where are they? If a windy day should blow all the dust that is left of them into your eyes, it would not make you wink twice! Ah, my friends, then very certainly your comforts of surrounding cannot keep back the old archer. You cannot charm him with music, or dazzle him with plate, or decoy him with pictures, or bribe him with your money.

What is the use of your struggling for that which you cannot keep? As long as you have clothes and food and shelter and education for yourselves and your children and the means for Christian generosity, be satisfied. You worry, and tug, and sweat, and wear yourself out for that which cannot satisfy. Whole flocks of crows' feet on your temples and cheeks before they ought to have come there. You are ten years older than you ought to be, and yet you cannot take along with you into the future world even the two pennies on your eyelids to keep them shut after you are dead. And yet you hold on to this world with the avidity of the miser who persisted in having his bonds and mortgages and notes of hand in the bosom of his dressing-gown while he was dying, and in the last moment held his parchment in such a tight grip that the undertaker after death must almost break the man's fingers in order to get the bond away. Men are actually making that choice, while there are others who have done far differently. When they tried to bribe with money Martin Luther, some one said: "There's no use trying to do that—that Dutch beast cares nothing for gold." When they tried, by giving him a cardinal's hat, to bribe Savonarola, he stood up in his pulpit and cried out: "I will have no red hat, save that of martyrdom, colored with my own blood." These men chose Christ amid great persecutions; but how many there are in this day, when Christianity seems to be popular, who are ashamed of Christ, and not willing to take hardships—the seeming hardships—of His religion. And, alas for them! for long after the crash of the world's demolition, they shall find that in all these years they were turning their backs upon the palaces of heaven, scrabbling on the door of this world's treasure house, the saliva of a terrific lunacy on their lips—horribly and overwhelmingly playing the fool.

Once more I say to you that those men play the fool who, while they admit the righteousness of religion, set it down for future attendance. Do you know how many times the word "now" occurs in the Bible? Over two hundred times. One of the shortest words in the Bible, and yet one of the grandest in meaning and ramifications. When does the Bible say is the best time to repent? Now. When does the Bible say that God will forgive? Now. When does God say is the only safe time to attend to the matters of the soul? Now. But that word "Now" melts away as easily as a snowflake in the evening rain. Where is the "now" of the dead of last year? the "now" of the dead of last month? the "now" of the dead of last week? the "now" of the dead of yesterday? Time picked it up in its beak and flew away with it. Swammerdam and other naturalists tell us there are insects which within the space of one minute are born, fulfill their mission, celebrate their nuptials, and die; but this wonderful "now," is more short-lived than they. It is a flash, a stroke, a glance. Its cradle is its grave. If men catch it at all, it is with a quick clutch. Millions of men have lost their soul immortal because they did not understand the momentum and the ponderosity of that one word. All the strategic powers of hell are exerted in trying to subtract from the energy and emphasis of that word. They say it is only a word of three letters while there is a better word of eight letters—"to-morrow." They say: "Throw away that small word and take this other grand one;" and so men say: "Give us 'to-morrow' and take away from us 'now;'" and between those two words is the Appian Way of death, and a great multitude throng that road, jostling and elbowing each other, hastening on swifter and swifter to die. For how much would you walk the edge of the roof of your house? For how much would you come out on the most dangerous peak of the Matterhorn and wave your cap? You say: "No money could induce me to do it. And yet you stand to-day with one foot on a crumbling moment and the other foot lifted, not knowing where you will put it down, while the distance between you and the bottom of the depth beneath you no plummet can measure, no arithmetic calculate, no wing of lightning cleave. And yet the Bible tells us that unless a man has a new heart he cannot get into heaven; and some of you are not seeking for that new heart. In Mexico, sometimes the ground suddenly opens, and a man standing near the gap can see down an appalling distance. But O! if to-day, at your feet, there should open the chasms of the lost world, how you would fling yourself back and hold the pew, and cry: "God save me—now! now! now!"

I greet you to-day, my brother, in the very gate of eternity. Some of us may live a longer and some of us may live a shorter time; but, at the longest, life is so short that I feel we all stand on the door-sill of the great future. The next step—all the angels of God cannot undo the consequences. Will your exit from this life be a rising or a falling? The righteous go up. The Saviour helps them. Ministering spirits meet them. The doors of Paradise open to receive them. Up! up! up! Oh, what a grand thing it is to die with a strong faith in God, like that which Stonewall Jackson had, when, in his expiring moments, he said: "Let us cross over the river, and lie down under the shade." But to leave this world unpreparedly is falling—falling from God, falling from hope, falling from peace, falling from heaven—swiftly falling, wildly falling, for ever falling. So it was with one who had been eminent for his intelligence, but who had omitted all preparation for the future world, and had come down to his last hour. He said to his wife, seated by the bedside: "O, don't talk to me about pain; it is the mind, woman, it is the mind! Of all the years of my life, I never lived one minute for heaven. It is awfully dark here," he whispered. "It is awfully dark. I seem to stand on the slippery edge of a great gulf. I shall fall! I am falling!" And with a shriek, as when a man tumbles over a precipice, he expired. Wise for this world, about all the matters of his immortal soul he was, his life long, playing the fool.

I will take the case of some one in the building to-day and ask you what you think about that case. He has been all his life amid Bibles and churches, so that he knows his duty. Christ has offered to do all for that man that a Divine Savior can offer to do for a dying soul. Heaven has been offered him, yea, been pushed upon him, and yet he has not accepted it, and to-day he sits deliberately allowing his chances for life to go away from him. What do you say of that one? "Hallucinated," says one; "Monomaniacal," says another; "Playing the fool," says another. Oh, how many there are taking just that position! There is such a thing as pyromania, an insanity which disposes one to destroy buildings by fire; but who would have thought that there was a pyromania of the immortal nature, and that any one could be so struck through with that insanity as to have a desire and disposition to consume the soul!

Awake, man! awake, woman! from the phantasia, real or affected. Take Christ. Escape for eternity. Just see what has been done for you. Lift the thorny cap from the brow of Jesus, and see the price that was paid for your liberation. Look at the side, and see where the spear went in and moved round and round, amid broken arteries, the blood rushing forth in awful sacrifice for your sins. O, wrap those bare and mutilated feet of the dying Lord in your womanly lap, for they were torn in a hard tramp for your soul! O, for tears to weep over this laceration of Christ! O, for a broken heart to worship Him! O, for an omnipotent impulse strong enough to throw this whole audience down at the feet of a crucified and risen Jesus! We must repent. We must believe. We must be saved. I cannot consent to have you lose your souls. Come with me, and as in the summer time we go down to the beach and bathe in the waters, so today let us join hands and wade down into the summery sea of God's forgiveness. Roll over us, tides of everlasting love, roll over us! Dear Lord, we knock at the door of mercy, not as the demented knock, not knowing what they want; but knocking at the door of mercy, because we want to come in, while others run their meaningless hands up and down the panels, and scrabble at the gate, in the presence of God, and men, and angels, and devils, playing the fool.

ACCORDING to the census taken last May the population of France is 38,218,000. This gives an increase of 546,000, while in 1881 the increase in the five previous years was 766,000. The increase in Paris is only 75,000.

THE tiny fly-catcher is said to often drive away the English sparrow, which is generally feared by birds of much larger size than itself.

THREE VALENTINES.

When she was five, this love of mine,
I sent to her a valentine—
A frail and fair lace-paper sheet,
Which bore the legend short and swee
"With golden hair and eyes of blue;
The prettiest girl I know is you!"
She liked the poem, and, to show it,
She kissed the blushing little poet.

At fifteen, this dear love of mine,
I sent another valentine—
A casket, whose silk-covered lid
A nest of dainty bon-bons hid.
Where lay a card this to repeat,
The hard-worked line: "Sweets to the Sweet;"
And I her gratitude could see
When she gave equal shares to me.

To twenty grown, this love of mine,
I sent her one more valentine—
A box whose cushioned surface mig
Throw out a jewel's starry light.
"This, dear, to you, and you to me."
A scrap of paper read; and she,
To thank me for the sparkling thing,
Gave me the hand that wore the ring.

—Toronto Globe.

"TOO LATE."

BY ANNABEL E. WHITE.

The light in the parlor was dim, but not so dim that Rolph Essen could not see the look of fixed agony that Francia Randolph cast upon him. Her face was white and drawn, her blue eyes were distended with a kind of horror, her tensely clasped hands were held out to him in mute appeal. But he went on, in his cold, unsympathetic voice:

"I have borne with your jealous outbursts as long and as patiently as I can. By your insane attack upon me to-day you have broken the last link that binds us together. I take my freedom, and I give you yours."

"Rolph, you do not mean it! Take back your cruel words! I do not want my freedom, and I shall not give you yours. Only promise to forgive me, and I will never so offend you again!"

She fell at his feet abjectly, she clung to his knees with trembling hands, she lifted her streaming eyes to the cold face above her. He was not a brutal man, but there seemed something brutal in the way he took her hands from his knees and firmly laid them by her side.

"It is useless to appeal to me, for your treatment of me has wearied patience and worn out love. We had better part to-day than link our lives together and separate afterwards, creating a scandal. Now it will simply be a broken engagement, from which we will both quickly recover without scars."

Francia rose to her feet.

"You think that—and of me?"

He leaned back in his chair and gazed at her almost insolently.

"I think that of you—and of all women. There was never one yet who remained faithful to one love. In a year from now we will both laugh at our present position."

"You may, but I—never! Rolph, I cannot—cannot you give up! Say that you can forgive me! Say that I shall be your wife! Oh, don't you know, dear, if I were your wife I should never feel jealous again? Don't you know I would serve you on my knees—that I would be your slave?"

She approached him once more, leaning upon his shoulder with one hand, and peering into his impassive face with eyes whose expression he dared not read. He shook off her touch impatiently and rose.

"I might as well go now and end it. I shall leave the city to-night, so it will not be worth while for you to try to persecute me with insane letters. I shall not get them."

He picked up his hat and began fingering it uneasily, as if to avoid her passionate eyes. But she had grown suddenly calm. She said no word as he moved toward the door. When he arrived there he stopped.

"Will you not say good-by?"

She crossed the room swiftly, and struck fiercely at his outstretched palm.

"No; I will not say good-by! Hear me for the last time! I have loved you long and well. It may be that this parting will kill me, and so I wish to tell you that you have done ill to withdraw your heart from me, supposing you ever gave it to me. You have done ill to permit my worship—such worship as few women can give to fewer men. Never again will you be loved as I have loved you; never again will you have such faith given you as I have bestowed upon you. Never, never again!"

He opened and closed the door rapidly after his retreating form. She moved sluggishly across the room, and fell like a clod upon a sofa.

"Never, never again!"

She repeated the words despairingly, with her lids closed tightly over her hot eyes, and her hands thrown rigidly above her head.

"It cannot be that he is gone forever! It cannot be that he means what he says! It cannot be that I am never to be his wife! Love, come back to me! Love, forgive me!"

But vain were her imploring words; vain were her beseechings.

If only love and friendship were not one-sided things!

She rose and paced the room feverishly.

"My God, be merciful! Turn his heart back to me! I cannot bear it! I will be so good and patient with him! I will do anything that he wishes, only bring him back to me!"

So she prayed, this girl who believed in God and man, who had faith in love and friendship

The days passed and lengthened into weeks. There came no word nor sign from Francia's recreant lover. She had to tell her father and mother that the engagement which had existed between her and Rolph Essen was at an end. She gave no explanation, and they asked for none. Suddenly brain fever fell upon her, and her life hung in the balance for weeks.

When health and consciousness returned to her, girlhood lay behind her. She was trying to gather up her broken hopes, her dead youth and slain faith, and weave them into a comely garment which she might wear decorously before a critical world. All her friends now knew that her engagement was "off," and she seemed to feel the pity, the sympathy and the mockery which were showered upon her—behind her back.

Two years went by, and Francia Randolph was twenty-three. Her mother had the bad taste to give her a birthnight fete. The bad taste—we write advisedly—for where is the woman who likes to be reminded of her age, even if she still be young? But to Francia it mattered little, for youth seemed to lie far behind her, and the snows of sixty years seemed to freeze her heart.

"Francia, pray allow me to control your taste in selecting your dress to-night. You will never marry if you do not try to throw more ambition into your manner and more girlish gayety into your dress. You dress like a nun, except at such times as I insist upon the contrary."

"You may order any style of dress you choose, mother, and I will wear it; but if you think I shall strive for the admiration of men, you forget. You must know that I shall never marry."

Mrs. Randolph sighed:

"I think you are foolish to let your broken engagement with Rolph Essen influence your future."

"It does not. Such natures as mine live but once, and ——" then she bit her lip to control further speech.

"By-the-way, I hear, he has returned. I hope you can meet him without making a scene. You know your weakness."

Francia's lip curled scornfully, then she looked steadily at her mother, who shifted her eyes uneasily.

"My weakness, then, is that I love him. Is that what you mean, mother?"

Mrs. Randolph responded faintly:

"Yes."

"Then console yourself, for I neither love nor hate him."

Mrs. Randolph said no more, but left the room with a feeling of vague uneasiness.

"If she would only forget the man! How can I tell whether she loves him or not? How can I tell how she will meet him? But meet him she must, poor, passionate-hearted girl! and no one can sustain her."

The birthnight fete passed off successfully. Francia was lovely in garnet velvet and cream satin, and her arms and neck gleamed like pink-tinted marble; but her face wore its usual statuesque coldness—the coldness that had only become habitual since her recovery from her illness.

An Englishman was much attracted by her great beauty, but her frigidity repelled him.

"She has no soul. She freezes me."

"She is all soul. You do not possess the magic key to open the casket," said a friend.

The Englishman assented indifferently, and went his way; but fate had marked him.

It was during the summer, while the Randolph family were residing at their country home, that Francia met the man whom she had once so madly worshiped. He came purposely to see her

"I supposed, Francia, you had heard of my arrival, and I thought I owed it to you to see you once more," he said, as she entered the room and he rose to greet her.

"Why?" she asked, looking not at him, but at his card which she had brought with her. She did not take the hand he held out to her. Man of the world that he was, he seemed to become confused at her simple query.

"My reason should be plain to you."

"Why?" she asked again, slowly tearing into bits the card in her hand.

He shifted his position, then came up to her and laid his fingers on her destructive ones.

"Sit down. It is ridiculous for us to go on this way, and I have much to say to you."

She freed her hand from his trembling fingers, and for the first time lifted her eyes to his.

"I cannot understand what you could possibly have to say to me that would sufficiently interest me to such an extent that I should be kept standing long. Do you sit down, but I prefer to stand."

He wet his dry lips, and at first his voice was husky, but as he proceeded it became clearer and stronger.

"Francia, I have come to beg your pardon. You would not give me my freedom when I asked, or, rather, took it, and now I am glad that you did not. I thought I was tired of your love—I thought I could easily forget you. I went as far as to make love to Genie Renard, the woman for whom you so bitterly upbraided me the day we parted; but she laughed at me, and then I knew how I had wronged you. I would have gone back to you then, but pride was stronger than love. I went abroad, meaning to return in a year, but two years went by before I could decide what was best for me to do. Now I have come back—I ask you to be my wife—I ask you to love me and forgive any suffering I may have caused you.

He went closer to her, but she put out one hand imperatively. In the other hand the tiny bits of his visiting card lay in a confused mass.

"Do you think you could piece together this card and make it as spotless, as brilliant, as perfect, as it was one hour ago?" she asked.

His hand closed spasmodically over hers.

"Francia, do not torture me—do not be cruel! I know that you love me——"

"Stop!" she cried, imperiously, flinging out her hand and scattering the torn card in a white shower over the floor. "Now I must speak plainly. Just as impossible as it is for you to restore the bloom to the grape which you have handled too roughly, just as impossible is it for me to love you. Once I would have given my life for you—once I would have been your slave for sweet love's sake. But you outraged my love, and turned my worship to indifference, which is more to be feared than hate. I gave you all—and lost it!. And now I have nothing to give you, or any man. Despair has darkened my soul, slain my youth, killed joy, and hope, and faith. Never again will I love! Never again will woman love you as I did; but you threw it away—you trampled it under your feet as if it were something too base for use! And now you stoop to regain it, and I tell you it is too late, too late!"

Slowing turning, she left him. He stood with his head bent upon his hand for a moment, then he, too, left the room.

Too late, for ever too late to win the priceless boon of this "one that was a woman, sir."

* * * * *

Five years afterward Francia Randolph married the Englishman, Frederick Leigh—he who had said she had no soul. She told him she had no love to give him or any other man.

"I would rather have your toleration than any other woman's love," he protested.

But she was not glad at his answer, for it seemed indeed as if she had lost the power to feel.

But as the years passed her tender affection for her husband became a wonderful thing. If she had lost love, she had gained broader virtue.

Who is it that has said: "Love is best of all?" How little he knew!—Frank Leslie's.

HOUSEHOLD MATTERS.

Good Coffee and Appetizing Biscuit.

Coffee made by filtration and infusion gives very little of the extract. The general cook of the period who advertises "good plain cooking" generally makes the coffee when she makes the fire, letting it boil and steam as she does her tea. An excellent rule is: Allow an ounce of finely ground coffee to each breakfast cupful; put it in a wide-bottomed block tin or iron coffee pot; pour upon it as many cupfuls of boiling water as is needed of strong coffee, with the addition of a cup of water, more or less for wasting; stir it well with a wooden spoon, then put the pot over the fire, boil quickly, stirring all the time. As the bubbles rise take it from the fire, pour out a cupful, hold it high above the pot, pour it back again; repeat this four or five times, then strain the coffee through a piece of muslin, put it in a hot metal pot and serve immediately. Such a cup of coffee, of sparkling amber, is a delicate stimulant for a light breakfast, accompanied by some delicate biscuit, light and appetizing: Mix two ounces of butter, two of flour, two of cheese, grated, a dash of cayenne and salt; make it into a thin paste, roll out very thin, then cut in pieces four inches long and one inch wide; bake a very light brown and serve as hot as possible. —New York Post.

Recipes.

FRIED SAMP.—Soak samp (or large hominy) four or five hours in tepid water; boil it with a little salt until tender and let it get cold in a deep pie dish. In the morning put a good spoonful of dripping in a frying pan, and when it is hot slip a knife around the inside of the pie plate to dislodge the samp; turn it out a solid cake on a plate, sprinkle well with flour and reverse it, the molded side down, in hot fat. When brown reverse it again on a hot dish.

FLANNEL CAKES.—One quart of milk, one cup of corn meal and nearly three of flour, half cake of yeast, stirred in a half-cup of warm water, one large cup of boiling water, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of molasses, bit of soda the size of a pea in the milk. Scald the meal with the boiling water, stir in the milk and strain through a colander, add flour and yeast and let it rise until morning, beat in salt and molasses, and when the batter is smooth and light bake on a griddle. They are very nice.

TAPIOCA PUDDING.—Four tablespoonfuls of tapioca soaked for two hours in tepid water. When the tapioca has softened add a quart of cold water, pinch of salt, tablespoonful of molasses and two large apples, peeled, cored and sliced. Place in a covered dish and bake in the oven for two hours, stirring occasionally; then remove the cover, still stirring. In half an hour the pudding should be a deep brown. Pour into another dish and serve hot with hard sauce. The hard sauce is made by beating to a cream one cup of sugar, one heaping teaspoonful of butter and one teaspoonful of boiling water. Flavor with lemon or vanilla.

POTATO ROLLS.—A quart of flour, four eggs, a tablespoonful of lard, half a yeast cake dissolved in warm water, a heaping cupful of potatoes mashed soft and beaten light with half a cupful of warm milk; a cupful of luke warm milk, a teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of sugar. Beat the eggs light, sift the salt with the flour; melt the lard and mix with the sugar in the potato. Make a hole in the middle of the flour, pour in the milk, the mashed potato, the yeast, the eggs; knead well and set to rise over night. Early in the morning knead again, make into rolls and set close together in a pan for an hour's rising. Bake in steady oven. Send to table hot and break, not cut apart.

STUFFED EGGS.—Boil eight eggs hard and throw into ice cold water, until perfectly cold; peel them carefully and cut in two lengthwise; extract the yolks, rub them to a paste with butter, season with pepper and salt, and work in some very finely minced chicken or other poultry livers. If you have none, substitute such cold meat as you have. Bind the mixture with a beaten egg, mold into balls, the same shape and size as the ejected yolks, and fill the whites with them. Fasten the latter in place with stout straws, cut of equal lengths; roll in beaten egg, then in cracker crumbs, and fry quickly in good dripping. Do not withdraw the straws when you serve them, letting each eater do it for himself.

"Observations."

Man wants but little ear below, if he has a jawing wife.

This is a changeable country. One day gives the horse and cutter a show, and the next day the coal bin.

In this country there are two hundred thousand men blowing in brass bands, and twenty million blowing at them.

The photographer is about the only man who can take every woman that comes along without being called a Mormon.

A paradox—a non-advertising "business" man. If he is a business man he advertises. If he does not advertise, he is no business man.

A fashion item says that no feathers are used on the newest hats and bonnets. If our memory serves us, none are used on the newest birds either.

It is not very unlucky to be the thirteenth one to sit down at the dinner table if you only sit where you can get the first crack at the roast goose.

"Old age is creeping on, Nancy. Ten years ago that hair would have been black," remarked a farmer as he pulled one of his wife's gray hairs out of the butter.

A man hunted high and low for his rubber boots one morning, after a snow storm, and at last found them on the centre table in the parlor, covered with gilt, and a picture of Lake Komo painted on the side of the leg.—Dansville Breeze.

SNOWED UNDER.

Of a thousand things that the Year snowed under,
The busy Old Year that has gone away,
How many will rise in the spring, I wonder,
Brought to life by the sun of May?
Will the rose-tree branches, so wholly hidden
That never a rose-tree seems to be,
At the sweet spring's call come forth unbidden,
And bud in beauty, and bloom for me?

Will the fair, green earth, whose throbbing bosom
Is hid, like a maid's in her gown at night,
Wake out of her sleep, and with blade and blossom
Gem her garments to please my sight?
Over the knoll in the valley yonder
The loveliest buttercups bloomed and grew;
When the snow is gone that drifted them under,
Will they shoot up sunward and bloom anew?

When wild winds blew and a sleet storm pelted,
I lost a jewel of priceless worth;
If I walk that way when snows have melted,
Will the gem gleam up from the bare, brown earth?
I laid a love that was dead or dying,
For the year to bury and hide from sight;
But out of a trance will it waken crying,
And push to my heart like a leaf to the light?

Under the snow lie things so cherished—
Hopes, ambitions, and dreams of men,
Faces that vanished and trusts that perished
Never to sparkle or glow again.
The Old Year greedily grasped his plunder,
And covered it over and hurried away;
Of the thousand things he hid, I wonder
How many will rise at the call of May?
O wise Young Year, with your hands held under Your mantle of ermine, tell me, pray!

—Ella W. Wilcox, in Boston Globe.

PITH AND POINT.

A game leg—Hindquarter of venison.

It is rain or shine with a boothblack.

The German Army Bill—Emperor William.

Taken aback—A boy playing leapfrog.

Europe is so peaceful now that it is impossible to supply the universal demand for arms.—Post-Dispatch.

A New York man advertises to restore old paintings. Wonder how many he has stolen.—Burlington Free Press.

To admit that our city is well laid out doesn't necessarily suggest the inference that it's dead.—Philadelphia Call.

Scientists believe it impossible for a man to have a double. If this is so, how can a man be beside himself?—Life.

As you can now get two hundred quinine pills for a dollar, we should say that quinine is getting to be a drug in the market.—Puck.

The World says that the woman's bustle must go. The World is mistaken. It is the woman that must go. The bustle must follow.—Bazaar.

When we see a goose with a lame leg trying in vain to keep up with the rest of the flock, it always reminds us of a non-advertising so-called business man, endeavoring to hold his own against his neighbors who advertise.—Dansville Breeze.

"Papa," said little Jimmie Briefless, "what do you wear when you go to the court house—your law suit?" "Oh, no, my son," replied the good barrister, kindly. "That is the suit a man puts on when he goes naked. Only the clients wear that."—Burdette.

The gray-bearded man who carefully husks a peanut, throws away the meat and tries to eat the shell probably will not be accused of being in love, as he would have been thirty years ago, but he risks winning a reputation for absentmindedness.—Somerville Journal.

"The great trouble with you, John, is," said a lady to her husband, who was suffering from the effects of the night before, "you cannot say 'No.' Learn to say 'No,' John, and you will have fewer headaches. Can you let me have a little money this morning?" "No," said John with apparent ease.—Puck.

The Baby King of Spain.

The baby King of Spain is a fine, handsome child who enjoys robust health, and does credit to the immense amount of care with which he is surrounded. Though court etiquette requires that the six-months-old Alphonso XIII. should be treated with the most rigid ceremony, his mother will never call him 'the King" unless on very strict occasions, but uses the simple term of "my child." His Majesty has his own vast suite of apartments next to those of the Queen Regent; and a special guard keeps his bedroom door at night. His foster monther, the sturdy peasant Raymunda, feeds and amuses the baby; but he is washed and dressed according to traditional ceremony by a bevy of ladies of honor under the direction of his "governess," who held the same office toward his father. Doctors visit the baby twice daily, and every day he drives out with his governess and Raymunda, sometimes with the Queen. In court ceremonies Raymunda must not carry the King; that is the duty of the mistress of the robes or of his aunt, the Infanta Isabella. Queen Christina is a most devoted mother, spending all her spare time with her boy, and the Infanta Isabella is equally attached to her nephew.—London Graphic.

Her Heavy Conundrum.

"Billy," quoth Sophronia, as she listened to the thundering tread of pater familias come thumping down the stairs at 11 P. M., "when you leave here each evening, 'by request,' why is papa, when he parts with you at the front door, like your own dear self when you make me a nice present or take me to the rink?"

"I couldn't say, I'm sure, love," tremblingly replied her best fellow William, while preparing to "dust" at her parent's bidding.

"Because he always foots the Bill!"—Siftings.

Bagdad contains the largest Hebrew colony in Europe. There are twenty synagogues and about 40,000 Hebrews in the city.

CHILTON VIEW.

Published Every Thursday Morning.

CLANTON, ALA., MAR. 10, 1887.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One copy one year	$1.50
One copy six months	75
One copy four "	50

Chancellor Foster is quite sick, at Evergreen, Ala.

Henry Ward Beecher died at his home in Brooklyn on the 8th.

Tuskaloosa is to have a one hundred ton iron furnace right away.

A. T. Henley has been appointed convict inspector for 6 years to succeed himself.

We hear complaints from all sections of the non-enforcement of prohibition laws.

The Tuskaloosa boom seems to stick better than any of the others of recent birth.

The last legislature is receiving many words of commendation by the state press, for the work done at the recent session.

If you are a delegate to the Coosa River Convention which meets in Montgomery next Tuesday, do not fail to attend.

Col. Turner Clanton, a brother of Gen. James H. Clanton, for whom our town is named, died at the Windsor hotel in Montgomery Friday morning.

Another terrible river horror was that of the burning of the steamer Gardner near Gainsville, on the Tombigbee river last Tuesday. Loss of life was great. Several of Demopolis' best citizens lost their lives.

A law was past at the recent session of the legislature changing the time for the holding of the circuit courts in the fifth judicial district. It also gives Chilton county a two weeks term to commence with our next fall court.

We see quite a number of the state papers now publishing the reports of the treasurers of their counties. We have had none since February 1886, and the law requires a semi-annual report to be published. What's the matter?

The last General Assembly appropriated $30,000 for the relief of soldiers maimed or disabled during the late war and widows of the Confederate soldiers whose husbands were killed or died in said war and have not yet re-married.

Two years from the 4th of March, the successor of President Cleveland will be inaugurated. Will Mr. Cleveland succeed himself, will Mr. Blaine succeed in capturing the Presidential chair, or will some at present dark horse carry off the prize?

President Cleveland's 50th birthday will be on the 18th inst. The birthday of the senior editor of this paper also falls on that day, though he is not quite fifty yet. Will any one suggest that on the morning of his 50th birthday he may wake up and find him president.

The Legislature passed a law providing for an election of municipal officers for our town, said election to be ordered by the probate judge. The VIEW is now ready to publish the order and announce candidates for the different offices. Announcements $5 each, strictly in advance.

The bill prohibiting the use of store and commissary checks did not become a law. Parties in the lumber business through this section of the state were very much interested in this bill and will no doubt be glad to hear of its failure to become a law.

A New Chancery Division.

The counties in the new division will be Mobile, Baldwin, Washington, Choctaw, Clarke, Monroe, Marengo, Wilcox, Dallas, Perry, Hale, Greene, Sumter, Pickens, Bibb and Autauga in all sixteen counties. There will be a new chancellor for this division to be appointed by the Governor, and several applications are already on file for the position. A number of the counties in the division are taken from Chancellor Foster's, making a reduction in work that was absolutely necessary. There will a corresponding reduction in the other two divisions, making each of the four divisions about sixteen counties. There will be no change of chancellors, Chancellors Foster, McSpadden and Cobbs holding courts in the counties still remaining in their divisions.

Chilton County, Alabama, and Her Lumber Exports.

CLANTON, ALA., Feb. 20, 1887.

Cor. to Southern Lumberman:

When the first lomotive whistle resounded in the Chilton Hills, the pine forests, in their virgin beauty, were without rival. No country furnished a home for a better grade of pine, or a better yield per acre than did Chilton county, Alabama. To-day she still furnishes her pro rata of the best grade of yellow pine lumber, and her supply is only to be increased by the future. Unfortunately for this magnificent lot of pine, a great proportion of what has already been converted into lumber has only been butchered, so to speak. Thousands of car loads of the best of timber has left the Chilton fields cut into almost an unmerchantable mess of 2x4, 2x6, and 4x6, and sold at from $5.50 to $7 per thousand. While, perhaps, in the past there has been a larger shipment of so-called lumber from this point than at present, never in the history of Chilton have her exports amounted to more in dollars and cents than at present. The solution of this question is this: In the primitive days of saw-milling in Chilton, there were a great many inexperienced men with inferior saw-mills "trying their hands" in the saw-mill business. The consequence was naturally that a great deal of fine timber was not enhanced in value by being carried through the mill, but in many instances rendered worthless. In many cases these small mills were not able to own a planing mill in connection with the saw-mill and no dry kilns, and consequently were forced to put good, bad and indifferent all into bill stuff and sell it at any price they could get for it.

I am now facing the wall of a room made of boards that would class as firsts and seconds in the strictest market in the East, 1¼x20 inches, not a wind shake, and the least bit of sap on one edge, that were bought for $7 per thousand. This, of course, is only one of many such cases. This criminal waste of timber has been corrected to a very great degree, and its solution is the simple fact that the timber in close proximity to the railroad has been nearly all consumed, thereby shutting out the small and inferior mills, and allowing the business of saw-milling to be controled by the larger and better class of mill men and who are able to build their own railroads to connect with the main lines. There is plenty of timber here yet, but, as I have said, only for men of sufficient capital to go into the business on a large scale.

I am not posted as to what our exports are at present, but in my next I will endeavor to give a list of all the mills in the county and their daily capacity each.

One of the most wonderful things that we have in our country is the "hot well," at Clanton. It being so intimately connected with the saw-mill I hope you will pardon my mention of it. It furnishes water for Messrs. Blasingame & Stanfield's saw-mill. This well was dug by Mr. S. A. Blasingame in 1885, in the month of March, I think. The first time Mr. Blasingame had occasion to use any water from the well was on Monday, after the completion of the well on Saturday. He connected his jet pipe and put it down the well, turned on his steam, and, of course, the jet went to work, and for some reason Mr. Blasingame stuck his hand under the discharge and found the water scalding hot. Being a man of great experience with jets, he knew this was unusual, so upon the advice of friends he had the water analyzed, and found that it ranges from 150 to 190 deg. F. All I can say of my own knowledge is that the well is hot. Mr. Blasingame's own conduct has caused a great deal of comment about the well, and furnishes a wonderful amount of food for skepticism.

Bro. Ike Gets Into Trouble.

Bro. Ike is a very peculiar man. His dress, his deportment, his walk and in fact his whole character is somewhat different to any one else. He is a very tall and spare man, his hair is very thin, and he wears it very long; very seldom it ever gives him much trouble in combing. His face is long and bony, his eyes very large and gray, his nose long and keen. He has thin lips and a large mouth, displaying a set of uneven teeth, every other one seems to be a little shorter, and about one fourth of them gone, so you might readily conclude he is snaggled tooth.

Last week he anticipated a trip in the western part of the county, but let me tell you how he was dressed. In winter he wears what he calls home-sum jeans and in summer his dress is coperas breechs and a blue coat. Last week being a little warm he put on his coperas breeches, which fit him to the skin, and reached a little below his knee, especially when riding on horseback. Then his old white vest, made straight in front, lacked about two inches reaching the waistband of his pants. Then he put on his little clawhammer blue coat, the tails of which were about three inches wide at the lower extremities, made after the style of forty years ago. He had on an old fashion shirt, pleated bosom and a collar which reached half way up his head and projected beyond his chin, starched as stiff as flour could make it. He had on an old time bee gum hat. In this garb he mounted his old long sided, long neck and flop eared mule and started. He travelled one day, and the next day being in a strange settlement, he rode up to a country store to get some directions, the clerk came out and politely told him how to go. Bro. Ike thanked him and started. The clerk spoke to him and said that there was one thing he had not told him, and that was, the road was very crooked, and if he did not turn down his shirt collar he never could make it. Bro. Ike being very quick jumped down and told him to come out, and he would turn his collar down. The clerk brought a keen whistle, and here came a heavy set bull dog. Bro. Ike is naturally afraid of dogs, so by the time he saw the dog he began making preparations to mount but just as he made his spring the dog had him by the tails of his blue coat, but he succeeded in getting into the saddle, but the dog succeeded in tearing off both coat tails; one up to his arm and the other just at the body of the coat. The clerk begged his pardon, and Bro. Ike after considering told the clerk he had better to have turned down his shirt collar than to have lost his coat tails. Bro. Ike then, in this predicament returned home, swearing he would write to the Legislature and get them to pass the dog law. I am afraid to tackle Bro. Ike on this subject. He gets mad every time you mention bull dog in his presence.

SAM MIMG.

The Juries.

The following is a list of the Grand and Petit jurors drawn to serve at the Spring Term of our circuit court, 1887.

GRAND JURY.

J L Rasbery, W. B Stong, E J Rowlinson, B H McCary, P C Nix, J C Walker, Alford Popwell, William L Parnell, John W Culp, W W Crumpton, B H Chestnut, W T Kemp, A C Poole, J W E Gulledge, John Cook, J J Green, Riley Roberson, W A Goodson, J H Shoutts, B F Robinson and H C Young.

PETIT JURY.

W D Foshee, A J Garner, J B Boykin, James T Littleton, J J Honeycutt, J Ruffin Ward, C C Gentry, James L Dupree, Isaac Littleton, F R McCary, J M Standfield, J M Ponder, C H Smith Elijah Jones, B F Rasberry, T M Cook, Jack Harris, L C Collins, W H Foshee, G W Jones, James Shaw, C R Bivings, M J Parish, Joseph Elam, F C Crumpton, W D Scarbrough, T G Letcher, George Rucker, W R Bollien, J H Ganda, James R Braudhead, G W Kemp, J M Davis, J F Johnson, J W G Kicker and J A Culp.

The above names and initials are set-up as per copy furnished us.

Hon. Thos. W. Coleman, at present solicitor of the sixth circuit, has been appointed Chancellor of the southwestern division created by the last Legislature.

The Florence, Tuscaloosa and Montgomery Railroad Company.

Notice is hereby given that, under and by virtue of the power and authority conferred upon the undersigned, as Board of Corporators of the Florence, Tuscaloosa and Montgomery Railroad Company, by Hon. C. C. Langdon, Secretary of State of the State of Alabama, we shall, in pursuance of such power and authority, open books of subscription to the capital stock of said railroad company at the court house of Chilton County, at the office of the Probate Judge, on the 18th day of April, A. D. 1887.

WILLIAM B. WOOD,
A. W. WILLS,
WILLIAM C. JEMISON,
GEORGE A. SEARCY,
STERLING A. M. WOOD,
Board of Corporators.

Florence, Ala., March 1st, 1887. 10-4

MORTGAGE SALE.

Under the power of sale contained in three several mortgages executed to me by W. L. Campbell and M. A. Campbell, dated respectively April 7th, 1885, April 11th, 1885, and January 23rd, 1886, I will sell at public auction, for cash, at Maplesville, Alabama, on the 4th day of April, 1887, the following described lands, situated in Chilton county, Alabama, to-wit: The SE ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 27; N ½ of NE ¼ and SW ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 34; NW ¼ of NW ¼ and S ½ of N ½ and N ½ of S ½ and SW ¼ of SW ¼ and SE ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 35; NE ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 34; NE ¼ of NW ¼ and NW qr of SE qr of Sec. 35; NW qr of NW qr of NW qr of Sec. 36; and NW qr of Sec. 34; all in Township 22, Range 12.

I. B. HOWARD,
Mortgagee.

Satterfield & Young, Attys.

NOTICE NO. 6237.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Mar. 8, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court, or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 18th, 1887, viz: Burrel Bailey, Homestead 12818, for the ne ¼ of nw ¼, sec. 22, township 20 n, range 11 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: John W. Mitchell, Mike H. Barnes, Daniel C. Gandy and David A. Friday, all of Plantersville, Ala.

mar10* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

Newman's Southern Flower Cologne is the best. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Croup, Whooping cough and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. jun16 y

No family should be without Ellis' Magic Oil Liniment, the greatest external remedy known. It cures all aches and pains. Price 25 cents per bottle, at W. H. Phillips.

Sleepless nights made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by M. J. Greene Clanton. jun16y

Take one of Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pillets at night before you go to bed and you will be surprised how buoyant and vigorous you will feel the next day. Only 25 cents a vial.

Croup is a treacherous disease, and generally the most severe at night when unable to properly watch it. The best known remedy is Ellis' C. S. A. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

If you are suffering with weak or inflamed eyes, or granulated eyelids, you can be quickly cured by using Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve. 25 cents a box. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures consumption. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton Ala.

Life will acquire new zest, and cheerfulness will return, if you will impel your liver and kidneys to the performance of their functions Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm will stimulate them to healthful action. $1.00 per bottle. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Ellis' Magic Liver Pills are safe for children, and are more effective than any other cathartic pill on the market. If not found satisfactory return and get your money. For sale by W. H. Phillips. aug26-y

Will you suffer with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

That hacking cough can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's cure. We guarantee it. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Sick Headache and a sensation of oppression and dullness in the head are very commonly produced by indigestion; morbid despondency, irritability and over-sensitiveness of the nerves may, in a majority of cases, be traced to the same cause. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm and Pillets will positively cure. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton. sep11 3

Money to Loan!

I am prepared to negotiate mortgage loans on farming lands in Chilton county in sums of three hundred dollars and upwards. Rates cheap and negotiations speedily concluded. Apply to or correspond with

H. L. WILLIAMS,
oct7 Att'y at Law, Wetumpka.

NOTICE NO. 6043.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 8, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March 19th, 1887, viz: Benjamine F. Abbott, Homestead 12414, for the n ½ of ne ¼ and n ½ of nw ¼, sec. 28, township 20, range 13. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: John J. Roberts, J. Thomas Anderson John M. Chandler and Richard P. Kendrick, all of Dixie, Ala.

feb10 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6088.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
February 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 5th, 1887, viz: Marion A. Barbour, Homestead 12195, for the sw ¼ of ne ¼, se ¼ of nw ¼, sec. 22 township 21 north, range 16 east. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: Wm. D. Goss, Wm. B. Jones, Wm. Taylor and Pinckney Jones, all of Verbena, Ala.

feb24* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6079.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge of the circuit court or in his absence, the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Ala., on April 5th, 1887, viz: Betsy Robuck, guardian Della Robuck, homestead 9293, for the ne ¼ of ne ¼, section 2, township 20 north, range 12 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: James Green Wm. Sansom, Thos. Klinner and H. Hayes, all of Maplesville, Ala.

feb24 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6220.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
March 1st, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Alabama, on April 9th, 1887, viz: John E. Smith, Homestead 12086 for the s ½ of sw ¼, sec. 14, township 21, range 11 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Daniel Scroggins, James R. Whatley, John D. Selman and John Bearden, all of Maplesville, Ala.

J. G. HARRIS,
mar4 Register.

NOTICE NO. 6037.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 7, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Ala., on March 19th, 1887, viz: Andy Foshee Homestead 16955, for the sw ¼ of sw ¼, sec. 10, township 21 n, range 14 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Prince Wilson, Hunter Zimmerman, Lewis Williams and Arch Oden, all of Clanton, Ala.

feb10* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

The good effects of Ellis' P. P. P. on a debilitated person are felt at once, and a cure follows its use. If suffering from bloop poison try a bottle. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Saw Mill Men.

I am now prepared to hammer your buckled saws. Just received a new outfit of tools for hammering. Can return a saw in 4 days after it arrives. Satisfaction guaranteed. Remittance after trying the saw. Ship to Pratt Saw Mill Co. WM. R. HOLDER.
[feb24 3m]

I. B. BOWDOIN

DEALER IN

Family Groceries,

CLANTON, ALA.

I will keep on hand for sale, a nice line of Family Groceries, such as may be desired by the Clanton trade, and will sell as cheap as they can be purchased elsewhere. f 24 6

DON'T

Buy anything in the Grocery line until you have called on

T. M. Edwards,

Who keeps constantly on hand Fancy and Family Groceries and confectioneries.

Clanton, Ala., Feb. 24th, '87.

MARRIAGE GUIDE

210 PAGES. Illustrated, in Cloth and Gilt Binding, 50c. money or stamps. Same, paper cover, 25c. This Book contains ALL the curious, doubtful or inquisitive want to know. Full of very interesting and valuable information. HEALTH, BEAUTY and HAPPINESS are promoted by its advice—who may Marry, who not, why; Medical Aid, when necessary, brought home to you. 50 Wonderful PEN PICTURES, true to life. Young or old, married or single, sick or well, should read it. Sent sealed by DR. WHITTIER, St. Louis, Mo. CUT THIS OUT AND SEND WITH ORDER.

WINTER! SPRING!

During the Season of Winter MALARIA Lurks in the System!

COLLINS AGUE CURE

One Dose a day, taken three days in succession, each month, or when you feel badly in any way, will fully Cleanse your Blood, Remove all Bilious Secretions & Malarial Poison from your System, and insure GOOD HEALTH IN THE SPRING. PRICE, FIFTY CENTS PER BOTTLE.

If you are troubled with a COUGH, COLD, SORENESS in CHEST, or any Affection of Throat or Lungs, use DR. JACKSON'S Syrup LUNGWORT & WILD CHERRY Sold at 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 a Bottle.

If your EYES are affected in any way, use DR. JACKSON'S CELEBRATED INDIAN EYE SALVE. Sold Everywhere at 25 cents per Box.

SEND FOR COLLINS BROS. 'PRESENT CENTURY ALMANAC' for 1887. Mailed to any address or at any Drug Store. COLLINS BROS. DRUG CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

jun24-y

L & N

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.

THE GREAT Through Trunk Line

Between the Cities of CINCINNATI, LEXINGTON, LOUISVILLE, EVANSVILLE, ST. LOUIS, And the Cities of N. ORLEANS, MOBILE, and MONTGOM'Y, MEMPHIS, NASHVILLE,

Without Change and with Speed Unrivaled

SHORTEST AND QUICKEST ROUTE

From New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery, to

NORTH, EAST & WEST

PULLMAN CARS Without change to Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, with but one change to all NORTHERN AND EASTERN CITIES.

THROUGH COACHES From Chattanooga and Nashville to St. Louis, connecting direct for Cities in the Northwest.

EMIGRANTS Seeking homes on the line of this road will receive special low rates.

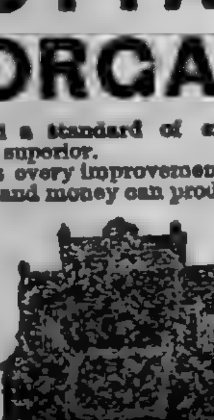
See Agents of this Company for rates, routes &c., or write C. P. ATMORE, G. P. & T. A. Louisville, Ky.

THE

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.

It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.



OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.

EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

These excellent Organs are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty in finish, perfect construction, making them the most attractive, ornamental and desirable organs for homes, schools, churches, lodges, societies, etc.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,
UNEQUALED FACILITIES,
SKILLED WORKMEN,
BEST MATERIAL,
COMBINED, MAKE THIS

THE POPULAR ORGAN

Instruction Books and Piano Stools.

Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, FREE.

The Chicago Cottage Organ Co.
Corner Randolph and Ann Streets,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Southern Business College.

NO. 407½ WEST JEFFERSON STREET, NEXT DOOR BELOW MASONIC TEMPLE.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

NO TEXT BOOKS USED.

BOOK-KEEPING, PENMANSHIP, COMMERCIAL ARITHMETIC, SHORT-HAND, TYPE-WRITING, &c., &c.

We guarantee to teach more real, practical Book-keeping, Commercial or Business Calculations, more practical ideas about business in general, in 2 to 4 months, than any other Business College in this section can in twelve months.

We teach forms of Book-keeping (actual forms used in business) not taught in any other Business College in this section.

No Scholar Has Ever Completed Our Entire Course and left us Dissatisfied.

For circulars call at college or address

Ben. C. Weaver, Principal.

BAINS & PEEBLES.

(SUCCESSORS TO BAINS & HERRING.)

WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.

Mail and Express Orders Will Receive Prompt Attention.

FINE WINES AND LIQUORS A SPECIALTY.

1926 FIRST AVENUE, BETWEEN 19th and 20th STREETS,

Birmingham, Ala.

Fine Stock of Chess Carley's Oils at Company's Prices.

P. O. BOX 570. June 19 y

T. T. ASHFORD, Pres. J. E. MALAHY, Vice Pres. T. L. McGOWAN, Sec. & Treas.

Birmingham Paint, Glass and Wall Paper Co.

Successors to

MAYBERRY & ASHFORD.

Jobbers and Retailers of

Paints, Oils, Window Glass, Plate, Sky-Light and Colored Glass, Sash, Doors, Blinds and Moulding,

Painters' and Artists' Supplies.

WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES, and CURTAIN FIXTURES.

1912 Second Avenue, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Write for Samples of Wall Paper and Estimates on Glass.

MINERAL CITY TIN AND STOVE HOUSE

SECOND AVENUE BETWEEN 18TH AND 19TH STREETS,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Pat Walsh, Manager.

A Large Line of HEATING and COOKING STOVES always on hand. All Kinds of

Tin, Sheet Iron Roofing and Job Work

DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.

Orders by mail will receive prompt attention. nov 11

E. WALL. P. GIACOPAZZI.

WALL & GIACOPAZZI,

Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Commission Merchants,

Second Ave. and Twentieth St.

Birmingham, - - - Ala.

References: S. Oteri, New Orleans; Jos. Denunzio, Louisville; Buhr, Wendte & Co., Cincinnati; Underhill, Stewart & Shotta, N. Y.; Wm. D. Clarke & Co., New Orleans; Cowing & Clark, Cincinnati; A. G. Conant & Co., N. Y.; First National Bank, Birmingham, Ala.

BLOOM,

The Tailor, of Montgomery, Ala.,

—DOES—

Dyeing, Scouring, Cleaning, and Repairing

Of Gents' and Ladies' garments of all colors.
Orders by Mail or Express will receive prompt attention.
Prices to suit the times. Work Guaranteed.

NO. 5 Court Street, Upstairs, - - Opposite Dollar Store.

Thompson, Francis & Chenoweth,

Birmingham, Ala.

—DEALERS IN—

HARDWARE,

Sash, Doors and Blinds, Paints, oil and glass, Cement and Plaster, Mantles and Grates.

THOROUGH BUSINESS EDUCATION.

Bryant and Stratton. THE LOUISVILLE Business College,

Corner Third and Jefferson Streets. Entrance, No. 406 Third Street,

Louisville, Ky.

BOOK-KEEPING, BANKING, PENMANSHIP, TELEGRAPHY, SHORT-HAND AND ENGLISH TRAINING.

For Catalogue Address College as Above.

J. M. WILKERSON, JOHN A. CALDWELL.

WIKKERSON CALDWELL & CO.

REAL ESTATE RENTING & COLLECTING AGENTS, AND STOCK BROKERS.

Tuscaloosa, - - - Alabama.

Buy and sell for principals. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to us. Collecting rents a specialty

Office over store of Fitts Bros., next to Telegraph Office. Correspondence solicited. feb24

References: J. H. Fitts & Co., Bankers and First Nat. Bank, of Tuscaloosa.

CHILTON VIEW.

Published Every Thursday Morning.

CLANTON, ALA., MAR. 10, 1887.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One copy one year	$1.50
One copy six months	75
One copy four "	50

Chancellor Foster is quite sick, at Evergreen, Ala.

Henry Ward Beecher died at his home in Brooklyn on the 8th.

Tuskaloosa is to have a one hundred ton iron furnace right away.

A. T. Henley has been appointed convict inspector for 6 years to succeed himself.

We hear complaints from all sections of the non-enforcement of prohibition laws.

The Tuskaloosa boom seems to stick better than any of the others of recent birth.

The last legislature is receiving many words of commendation by the state press, for the work done at the recent session.

If you are a delegate to the Coosa River Convention which meets in Montgomery next Tuesday, do not fail to attend.

Col. Turner Clanton, a brother of Gen. James H. Clanton, for whom our town is named, died at the Windsor hotel in Montgomery Friday morning.

Another terrible river horror was that of the burning of the steamer Gardner near Gainsville, on the Tombigbee river last Tuesday. Loss of life was great. Several of Demopolis' best citizens lost their lives.

A law was past at the recent session of the legislature changing the time for the holding of the circuit courts in the fifth judicial district. It also gives Chilton county a two weeks term to commence with our next fall court.

We see quite a number of the state papers now publishing the reports of the treasurers of their counties. We have had none since February 1886, and the law requires a semi-annual report to be published. What's the matter?

The last General Assembly appropriated $30,000 for the relief of soldiers maimed or disabled during the late war and widows of the Confederate soldiers whose husbands were killed or died in said war and have not yet re-married.

Two years from the 4th of March, the successor of President Cleveland will be inaugurated. Will Mr. Cleveland succeed himself, will Mr. Blaine succeed in capturing the Presidential chair, or will some at present dark horse carry off the prize?

President Cleveland's 50th birthday will be on the 18th inst. The birthday of the senior editor of this paper also falls on that day, though he is not quite fifty yet. Will any one suggest that on the morning of his 50th birthday he may wake up and find him president.

The Legislature passed a law providing for an election of municipial officers for our town, said election to be ordered by the probate judge. The VIEW is now ready to publish the order and announce candidates for the different offices. Announcements $5 each, strictly in advance.

The bill prohibiting the use of store and commissary checks did not become a law. Parties in the lumber business through this section of the state were very much interested in this bill and will no doubt be glad to hear of its failure to become a law.

A New Chancery Division.

The counties in the new division will be Mobile, Baldwin, Washington, Choctaw, Clarke, Monroe, Marengo, Wilcox, Dallas, Perry, Hale, Greene, Sumter, Pickens, Bibb and Autauga in all sixteen counties. There will be a new chancellor for this division to be appointed by the Governor, and several applications are already on file for the position. A number of the counties in the division are taken from Chancellor Foster's, making a reduction in work that was absolutely necessary. There will a corresponding reduction in the other two divisions, making each of the four divisions about sixteen counties. There will be no change of chancellors, Chancellors Foster, McSpadden and Cobbs holding courts in the counties still remaining in their divisions.

Chilton County, Alabama, and Her Lumber Exports.

CLANTON, ALA., Feb. 20, 1887.

Cor. to Southern Lumberman:

When the first lomotive whistle resounded in the Chilton Hills, the pine forests, in their virgin beauty, were without rival. No country furnished a home for a better grade of pine, or a better yield per acre than did Chilton county, Alabama. To-day she still furnishes her pro rata of the best grade of yellow pine lumber, and her supply is only to be increased by the future. Unfortunately for this magnificent lot of pine, a great proportion of what has already been converted into lumber has only been butchered, so to speak. Thousands of car loads of the best of timber has left the Chilton fields cut into almost an unmerchantable mess of 2x4, 2x6, and 4x6, and sold at from $5.50 to $7 per thousand. While, perhaps, in the past there has been a larger shipment of so-called lumber from this point than at present, never in the history of Chilton have her exports amounted to more in dollars and cents than at present. The solution of this question is this: In the primitive days of saw-milling in Chilton, there were a great many inexperienced men with inferior saw-mills "trying their hands" in the saw-mill business. The consequence was naturally that a great deal of fine timber was not enhanced in value by being carried through the mill, but in many instances rendered worthless. In many cases these small mills were not able to own a planing mill in connection with the saw-mill and no dry kilns, and conseqently were forced to put good, bad and indifferent all into bill stuff and sell it at any price they could get for it.

I am now facing the wall of a room made of boards that would class as firsts and seconds in the strictest market in the East, 1¼x20 inches, not a wind shake, and the least bit of sap on one edge, that were bought for $7 per thousand. This, of course, is only one of many such cases. This criminal waste of timber has been corrected to a very great degree, and its solution is the simple fact that the timber in close proximity to the railroad has been nearly all consumed, thereby shutting out the small and inferior mills, and allowing the business of saw-milling to be controled by the larger and better class of mill men and who are able to build their own railroads to connect with the main lines. There is plenty of timber here yet, but, as I have said, only for men of sufficient capital to go into the business on a large scale.

I am not posted as to what our exports are at present, but in my next I will endeavor to give a list of all the mills in the county and their daily capacity each.

One of the most wonderful things that we have in our country is the "hot well," at Clanton. It being so intimately connected with the saw-mill I hope you will pardon my mention of it. It furnishes water for Messrs. Blasingame & Stanfield's saw-mill. This well was dug by Mr. S. A. Blasingame in 1885, in the month of March, I think. The first time Mr. Blasingame had occasion to use any water from the well was on Monday, after the completion of the well on Saturday. He connected his jet pipe and put it down the well, turned on his steam, and, of course, the jet went to work, and for some reason Mr. Blasingame stuck his hand under the discharge and found the water scalding hot. Being a man of great experience with jets, he knew this was unusual, so upon the advice of friends he had the water analyzed, and found that it ranges from 150 to 190 deg. F. All I can say of my own knowledge is that the well is hot. Mr. Blasingame's own conduct has caused a great deal of comment about the well, and furnishes a wonderful amount of food for skepticism.

Bro. Ike Gets Into Trouble.

Bro. Ike is a very peculiar man. His dress, his deportment, his walk and in fact his whole character is somewhat different to any one else. He is a very tall and spare man, his hair is very thin, and he wears it very long; very seldom it ever gives him much trouble in combing. His face is long and bony, his eyes very large and gray, his nose long and keen. He has thin lips and a large mouth, displaying a set of uneven teeth, every other one seems to be a little shorter, and about one fourth of them gone, so you might readily conclude he is snaggled tooth.

Last week he anticipated a trip in the western part of the county, but let me tell you how he was dressed. In winter he wears what he calls home-sum jeans and in summer his dress is coperas breechs and a blue coat. Last week being a little warm he put on his coperas breeches, which fit him to the skin, and reached a little below his knee, especially when riding on horseback. Then his old white vest, made straight in front, lacked about two inches reaching the waistband of his pants. Then he put on his little claw-hammer blue coat, the tails of which were about three inches wide at the lower extremities, made after the style of forty years ago. He had on an old fashion shirt, pleated bosom and a collar which reached half way up his head and projected beyond his chin, starched as stiff as flour could make it. He had on an old time bee gum hat. In this garb he mounted his old long sided, long neck and flop eared mule and started. He travelled one day, and the next day being in a strange settlement, he rode up to a country store to get some directions, the clerk came out and politely told him how to go. Bro. Ike thanked him and started. The clerk spoke to him and said that there was one thing he had not told him, and that was, the road was very crooked, and if he did not turn down his shirt collar he never could make it. Bro. Ike being very quick jumped down and told him to come out, and he would turn his collar down. The clerk brought a keen whistle, and here came a heavy set bull dog. Bro. Ike is naturally afraid of dogs, so by the time he saw the dog he began making preparations to mount but just as he made his spring the dog had him by the tails of his blue coat, but he succeeded in getting into the saddle, but the dog succeeded in tearing off both coat tails; one up to his arm and the other just at the body of the coat. The clerk begged his pardon, and Bro. Ike after considering told the clerk he had better to have turned down his shirt collar than to have lost his coat tails. Bro. Ike then, in this predicament returned home, swearing he would write to the Legislature and get them to pass the dog law. I am afraid to tackle Bro. Ike on this subject. He gets mad every time you mention bull dog in his presence.

SAM MING.

The Juries.

The following is a list of the Grand and Petit jurors drawn to serve at the Spring Term of our circuit court, 1887.

GRAND JURY.

J L Rasbery, W. B Stong, E J Rowlinson, B H McCary, P C Nix, J C Walker, Alford Popwell, William L Parnell, John W Culp, W W Crumpton, B H Chestnut, W T Kemp, A C Poole, J W E Gulledge, John Cook, J J Green, Riley Roberson, W A Goodson, J H Shoutts, B F Robinson and H C Young.

PETIT JURY.

W D Foshee, A J Garner, J B Boykin, James T Littleton, J J Honeycutt; J Ruffin Ward, C C Gentry, James L Dupree, Isaac Littleton, F R McCary, J M Standfield, J M Ponder, C H Smith Elijah Jones, B F Rasberry, T M Cook, Jack Harris, L C Collins, W H Foshee, G W Jones, James Shaw, C R Bivings, M J Parish, Joseph Elam, F C Crumpton, W D Searbrough, T G Letcher, George Rucker, W R Bollien, J H Gauda, James R Braudhead, G W Kemp, J M Davis, J F Johnson, J W G Kicker and J A Culp.

The above names and initials are setup as per copy furnished us.

Hon. Thos. W. Coleman, at present solicitor of the sixth circuit, has been appointed Chancellor of the southwestern division created by the last Legislature.

The Florence, Tuscaloosa and Montgomery Railroad Company.

Notice is hereby given that, under and by virtue of the power and authority conferred upon the undersigned, as Board of Corporators of the Florence, Tuscaloosa and Montgomery Railroad Company, by Hon. C. C. Langdon, Secretary of State of the State of Alabama, we shall, in pursuance of such power and authority, open books of subscription to the capital stock of said railroad company at the court house of Chilton County, at the office of the Probate Judge, on the 18th day of April, A. D. 1887.

WILLIAM B. WOOD,
A. W. WILLS,
WILLIAM C. JEMISON,
GEORGE A. SEARCY,
STERLING A. M. WOOD,
Board of Corporators.

Florence, Ala., March 1st, 1887. 10-4

MORTGAGE SALE.

Under the power of sale contained in three several mortgages executed to me by W. L. Campbell and M. A. Campbell, dated respectively April 7th, 1885, April 11th, 1885, and January 23rd, 1886, I will sell at public auction, for cash, at Maplesville, Alabama, on the 4th day of April, 1887, the following described lands, situated in Chilton county, Alabama, to-wit: The SE ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 27; N ½ of NE ¼ and SW ¼ of NE¼ of Sec. 34; NW ¼ of NW ¼ and S ½ of N ½ and N ½ of S ½ and SW ¼ of SW ¼ and SE ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 35; NE ¼ of NE¼ of Sec. 34; NE ¼ of NW ¼ and NW qr of SE qr of Sec. 35; NW qr of NW qr of NW qr of Sec. 36; and NW qr of Sec. 34; all in Township 22, Range 12.

I. B. HOWARD,
Mortgagee.

Satterfield & Young, Attys.

NOTICE NO. 6237.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Mar. 8, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court, or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 19th, 1887, viz: Burrel Bailey, Homestead 12818, for the ne ¼ of nw ¼, sec. 22, township 20 n, range 11 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: John W. Mitchell, Mike H. Barnes, Daniel C. Gandy and David A. Friday, all of Plantersville, Ala.

mar10* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

Newman's Southern Flower Cologne is the best. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Croup, Whooping cough and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. jun16 y

No family should be without Ellis' Magic Oil Liniment, the greatest external remedy known. It cures all aches and pains. Price 25 cents per bottle, at W. H. Phillips.

Sleepless nights made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by M. J. Greene Clanton. jun16y

Take one of Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pillets at night before you go to bed and you will be surprised how buoyant and vigorous you will feel the next day. Only 25 cents a vial.

Croup is a treacherous disease, and generally the most severe at night when unable to properly watch it. The best known remedy is Ellis' C. S. A. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

If you are suffering with weak or inflamed eyes, or granulated eyelids, you can be quickly cured by using Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve. 25 cents a box. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures consumption. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton Ala.

Life will acquire new zest, and cheerfulness will return, if you will impel your liver and kidneys to the performance of their functions Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm will stimulate them to healthful action. $1.00 per bottle. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Ellis' Magic Liver Pills are safe for children, and are more effective than any other cathartic pill on the market. If not found satisfactory return and get your money. For sale by W. H. Phillips. aug26-y

Will you suffer with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

That hacking cough can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's cure. We guarantee it. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Sick Headache and a sensation of oppression and dullness in the head are very commonly produced by indigestion; morbid despondency, irritability and over-sensitiveness of the nerves may, in a majority of cases, be traced to the same cause. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm and Pillets will positively cure. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton. sep11 3

Money to Loan!

I am prepared to negotiate mortgage loans on farming lands in Chilton county in sums of three hundred dollars and upwards. Rates cheap and negotiations speedily concluded. Apply to or correspond with

H. L. WILLIAMS,
oct7 Att'y at Law, Wetumpka.

NOTICE NO. 6043.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 8, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March 19th, 1887, viz: Benjamine F. Abbott, Homestead 12414, for the n ½ of ne ¼ and n ½ of nw ¼, sec. 28, township 20, range 13. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivaof said land, viz: John J. Roberts, J. Thomas Anderson John M. Chandler and Richard P. Kendrick, all of Dixie, Ala.

feb10 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6088.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
February 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 5th, 1887, viz: Marion A. Barbour, Homestead 12195, for the sw ¼ of ne ¼, se ¼ of nw ¼, sec. 22 township 21 north, range 16 east. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: Wm. D. Goss, Wm. B. Jones, Wm. Taylor and Pinckney Jones, all of Verbena, Ala.

feb24* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6079.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge of the circuit court or in his absence, the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Ala., on April 5th, 1887, viz: Betsy Robuck, guardian Della Robuck, homestead 9293, for the ne ¼ of ne ¼, section 2, township 20 north, range 12 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: James Green Wm. Sansom, Thos. Klinner and H. Hayes, all of Maplesville, Ala.

feb24 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6220.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
March 1st, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Alabama, on April 9th, 1887, viz: John E. Smith, Homestead 12086 for the s ½ of sw ¼, sec. 14, township 21, range 11 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivaof, said land, viz: Daniel Scroggins, James R. Whatley, John D. Selman and John Bearden, all of Maplesville, Ala.

mar4 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6037.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 7, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Ala., on March 19th, 1887, viz: Andy Foshee Homestead 16955, for the sw ¼ of sw ¼, sec. 10, township 21 n, range 14 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Prince Wilson, Hunter Zimmerman, Lewis Williams and Arch Oden, all of Clanton, Ala.

feb10* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

The good effects of Ellis' P. P. P. on a debilitated person are felt at once, and a cure follows its use. If suffering from bloop poison try a bottle. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Saw Mill Men.

I am now prepared to hammer your buckled saws. Just received a new outfit of tools for hammering. Can return a saw in 4 days after it arrives. Satisfaction guaranteed. Remittance after trying the saw. Ship to Pratt Saw Mill Co. WM. R. HOLDER.
[feb24 3m]

I. B. BOWDOIN

DEALER IN

Family Groceries,

CLANTON, ALA.

I will keep on hand for sale, a nice line of Family Groceries, such as may be desired by the Clanton trade, and will sell as cheap as they can be purchased elsewhere. f 24 6

DON'T

Buy anything in the Grocery line until you have called on

T. M. Edwards,

Who keeps constantly on hand Fancy and Family Groceries and confectioneries.

Clanton, Ala., Feb. 24th, '87.

MARRIAGE GUIDE

250 PAGES. Illustrated, in Cloth and Gilt Binding, 50c. money or stamps. Same, paper cover, 25c. This Book contains ALL the curious, doubtful or inquisitive want to know. Full of very interesting and valuable information. HEALTH, BEAUTY and HAPPINESS are promoted by its advice—who may Marry, who not, why; Medical Aid, when necessary, brought home to you. 50 Wonderful PEN PICTURES, true to life. Young or old, married or single, sick or well, should read it. Sent sealed by DR. WHITTIER, St. Louis, Mo. CUT THIS OUT AND SEND WITH ORDER.

WINTER! SPRING!

During the Season of Winter MALARIA Lurks in the System!

COLLINS

AGUE CURE

One Dose a day, taken three days in succession, each month, or when you feel badly in any way, will fully Cleanse your Blood, Remove all Bilious Secretions & Malarial Poison from your System, and Insure GOOD HEALTH IN THE SPRING. PRICE, FIFTY CENTS PER BOTTLE.

If you are troubled with a COUGH, COLD, SORENESS in CHEST, or any Affection of Throat or Lungs, use DR. JACKSON'S Syrup LUNGWORT & WILD CHERRY Sold at 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 a Bottle.

If your EYES are affected in any way, use DR. JACKSON'S CELEBRATED INDIAN EYE SALVE. Sold Everywhere at 25 cents per Box.

SEND FOR COLLINS BROS. 'PRESENT CENTURY ALMANAC' for 1887. Mailed to any address or at any Drug Store. COLLINS BROS. DRUG CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

jun24-y

L & N

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.

THE GREAT

Through Trunk Line

Between the Cities of CINCINNATI, LEXINGTON, LOUISVILLE, EVANSVILLE, ST. LOUIS, And the Cities of N. ORLEANS, MOBILE, and MONTGOM'Y, MEMPHIS, NASHVILLE.

Without Change and with Speed Unrivaled

SHORTEST AND QUICKEST ROUTE From New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery, to

NORTH, EAST & WEST

PULLMAN CARS Without change to Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, with but one change to all NORTHERN AND EASTERN CITIES.

THROUGH COACHES From Chattanooga and Nashville to St. Louis, connecting direct for Cities in the Northwest.

EMIGRANTS Seeking homes on the line of this road will receive special low rates.

See Agents of this Company for rates, routes &c., or write C. P. ATMORE, G. P. & T. A. Louisville, Ky.

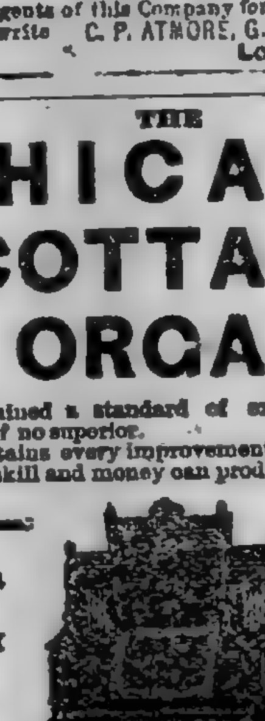
THE

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.

It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.

OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.



EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

These excellent Organs are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty in finish, perfect construction, making them the most attractive, ornamental and desirable organs for homes, schools, churches, lodges, societies, etc.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,
UNEQUALED FACILITIES,
SKILLED WORKMEN,
BEST MATERIAL,
COMBINED, MAKE THIS

THE POPULAR ORGAN

Instruction Books and Piano Stools.

Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, FREE.

The Chicago Cottage Organ Co.

Corner Randolph and Ann Streets,

CHICAGO, ILL.

Southern Business College.

NO. 407½ WEST JEFFERSON STREET, NEXT DOOR BELOW MASONIC TEMPLE.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

NO TEXT BOOKS USED.

BOOK-KEEPING, PENMANSHIP, COMMERCIAL ARITHMETIC, SHORT-HAND, TYPE-WRITING, &c., &c.

We guarantee to teach more real, practical Book-keeping, Commercial or Business Calculations, more practical ideas about business in general, in 2 to 4 months, than any other Business College in this section can in twelve months.

We teach forms of Book-keeping (actual forms used in business) not taught in any other Business College in this section.

No Scholar Has Ever Completed Our Entire Course and left us Dissatisfied.

For circulars call at college or address

Ben. C. Weaver, Principal.

BAINS & PEEBLES.

(SUCCESSORS TO BAINS & HERRING.)

WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.

Mail and Express Orders Will Receive Prompt Attention.

FINE WINES AND LIQUORS A SPECIALTY.

1926 FIRST AVENUE, BETWEEN 19th and 20th STREETS,

Birmingham, Ala.

Fine Stock of Chess Carley's Oils at Company's Prices.

P. O. BOX 570. June 19 y

T. T. ASHFORD, Pres. J. E. MALAHY, Vice Pres. T. L. McGOWAN, Sec. & Treas.

Birmingham Paint, Glass and Wall Paper Co.

Successors to

MAYBERRY & ASHFORD.

Jobbers and Retailers of

Paints, Oils, Window Glass, Plate, Sky-Light and Colored Glass, Sash, Doors, Blinds and Moulding,

Painters' and Artists' Supplies.

WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES, and CURTAIN FIXTURES.

1912 Second Avenue, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Write for Samples of Wall Paper and Estimates on Glass. jun10

MINERAL CITY TIN AND STOVE HOUSE

SECOND AVENUE BETWEEN 18TH AND 19TH STREETS,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Pat Walsh, Manager.

A Large Line of HEATING and COOKING STOVES always on hand. All Kinds of

Tin, Sheet Iron Roofing and Job Work

DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.

Orders by mail will receive prompt attention. nov 11

E. WALL. P. GIACOPAZZI.

WALL & GIACOPAZZI,

Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Commission Merchants,

Second Ave. and Twentieth St.

Birmingham, - - - Ala.

References: S. Oteri, New Orleans; Jos. Denunzio, Louisville; Buhr, Wendte & Co., Cincinnati; Underhill, Stewart & Shotta, N. Y.; Wm. D. Clarke & Co., New Orleans; Cowing & Clark, Cincinnati; A. G. Conant & Co., N. Y.; First National Bank, Birmingham, Ala.

BLOOM,

The Tailor, of Montgomery, Ala.,

—DOES—

Dyeing, Scouring, Cleaning, and Repairing

Of Gents' and Ladies' garments of all colors.
Orders by Mail or Express will receive prompt attention.
Prices to suit the times. Work Guaranteed.

NO. 5 Court Street, Upstairs, - - Opposite Dollar Store.

Thompson, Francis & Chenoweth,

Birmingham, Ala.

—DEALERS IN—

HARDWARE,

Sash, Doors and Blinds, Paints, oil and glass, Cement and Plaster, Mantles and Grates.

THOROUGH BUSINESS EDUCATION.

Bryant and Stratton. } THE LOUISVILLE Business College,

Corner Third and Jefferson Streets. Entrance, No. 406 Third Street,

Louisville, Ky.

BOOK-KEEPING, BANKING, PENMANSHIP, TELEGRAPHY, SHORT-HAND AND ENGLISH TRAINING.

For Catalogue Address College as Above.

J. M. WILKERSON. JOHN A. CALDWELL.

WIKKERSON CALDWELL & CO.

REAL ESTATE RENTING & COLLECTING AGENTS, AND STOCK BROKERS.

Tuscaloosa, - - Alabama.

Buy and sell for principals. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to us. Collecting rents a specialty

Office over store of Fitts Bros., next to Telegraph Office. Correspondence solicited. feb24

References: J. H. Fitts & Co., Bankers and First Nat. Bank, of Tuscaloosa.

CHILTON VIEW.

CLANTON, ALA., MAR. 10, 1887.

THE VIEW is published every Thursday morning, and will endeavor to cover the field of reputable country journalism. It will show no quarter to the deceitful, the immoral or the ungodly. It will always be good natured, although it can bite if necessary.

Those answering advertisements will confer a favor by mentioning this paper.

COURT CALENDAR.

Chancery—First Thursday after the third Monday in March and September and continue three days.

Circuit—Third Monday after the first Monday in February and on the fifth Monday after the fourth Monday in July, and continue two weeks each time.

Commissioners'—Regular term second Monday in February and August, and first Monday in April and November. Special term second Monday in July.

County—First Monday in each month.

SCHEDULE S. & N. ALA. RAILROAD. —Trains pass Clanton daily, as follows:

GOING SOUTH.

No. 1 at	5:45 a. m.
No. 3	5:37 p. m.
No. 7	4:12 p. m.
No. 51	6:00 a. m.

GOING NORTH.

No. 2	9:15 a. m.
No. 12	8:55 a. m.
No. 4	*9:43 p. m.
No. 50	6:55 p. m.

* Don't stop.

LOCAL DOTTINGS.

Subscribe for the VIEW.

Spring goods at W. J. Simpson & Co's.

If you are seeking contentment first find employment.

Buy your goods at W. J. Simpson & Co's.

Mr. "Tip" Mullins, of Jumbo, has come in to Clanton to attend Clanton Academy.

A new supply of warrantee deeds just received and for sale at this office.

Hats, shoes, springs calicos and lawns at W. J. Simpson & Co's.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Beasley, are stopping with their relatives in Clanton for a while.

A new lot of fancy stationery just received at the View Stationery Stand.

See notice of Florence, Tuskaloosa and Montgomery Railroad Company in another column.

Always turn to the right when you meet anybody in the road whether riding or walking.

Mrs. L. Holt and her sister Miss Burwell spent last week in Birmingham visiting friends.

The VIEW and the Montgomery Advertiser (weekly) for $2.50 a year, in advance.

Everything in the grocery line, cheap for cash, at W. J. Simpson & Co's.

Mr. G. W. Farr, formerly of this county, but now of Dodd City, Texas, writes us to send him the WIEW.

Base balls, cigarette papers, albums, fancy stationery and all kinds of things for sale at the View Stationery Stand.

Mr. C. M. Williamson, of Verbena, was in Clanton yesterday filling the place of telegraph operator. Mr. Holt visited Siluria.

If you want to know where to go to buy your goods subscribe for the VIEW and read the advertisements of our merchants.

"The devil has some mischief still for idle hands to do." Don't be idle. If you can't find anything else to do pay your subscription.

Mrs. E. C. Lawrence has returned to her home in Clanton after an extended visit to relatives and friends in Tuscaloosa and Greensboro.

Our Stanton correspondent need not be uneasy, as long as he continues to send us such interesting communications we'll not blow for brakes.

Refer to the court calendar published at the top of local column and notice change in the time for holding our circuit and chancery courts.

The VIEW has friends in South Carolina who write that they are ready to contribute to a fund for buying buckets for our court house well. Thanks.

Sampey's Corner.

The ladies can get a pair of pebble goatskin shoes or a nice kid shoe at Sampey's for $2.00. He has a nice lot of dress goods from 4 cts. a yard up to 20cts. Dude satin bows for the young men. Black silk ties for all men who like to look neat. Watch this corner and you will learn that Sampey keeps the goods you want, and you can buy them cheap if you have the money.

Has Been Referred to Clanton.

WHITEVILLE, N. C.
March 1st, 1887.

MR. EDITOR:

I enclose you stamps to pay for sample copy of your newspaper, of the latest issue. I also enclose stamp for forwarding same. I have written to the Clerk of your superior court and given him references. I desire to move to Alabama to practice law and your town has been recommended to me as a desirable place. In addition to your newspaper please write me all the facts concerning prospects.

Yours Truly,
PEARSON ELLIS,
Att'y at Law.

Now the above goes to prove that the newspaper is considered an index to the town in which it is published, which fact has never been disputed to our knowledge, in words, but from the little importance our citizens place upon advertising in their home paper it is evident that they do not fully appreciate the fact.

We sent the above named gentleman a copy of the VIEW which contains very few home advertisements, showing a lack of life and enterprise in our place which is altogether discouraging to a stranger. One encouraging feature presented by the paper sent is that there is not a single card of an attorney in its columns and he will probably think it a good location for him to follow his profession. However we shall see.

More Chilton County Slate.

Mr. A. J. Marlar has brought us some very fine specimens of slate from an immense bed of it found on the land of Messrs. Jerie Gibson and J. W. Brantley, about 7 miles southwest of Jemison, The gentlemen say that they have noticed this slate bed for years but the matter of utilizing it never occurred to them until the recent developement of the Clear Creek Slate Works, in this county.

Military Company.

The goverment has appropriated $400,000 for keeping up and maintaining the militia of the country. Why can't Clanton re-organize the "Cobb Guards" and come in for a share of money thus appropriated. The state of Alabama has also appropriated a sum for aiding the military companies of our state. It only requires a company of twenty-five men rank and file to insure aid from these sources.

The many friends of Mr. F. J. Davis and S. J. Brock, will be glad to hear of their success in the lumber business in Birmingham. Mr. Davis spent Saturday and Sunday at his home in this place and reports that they cannot get lumber enough to fill orders and have about as much business as they can attend to. While we hate to have any one leave Clanton we rejoice in their success wherever they may be.

Mr. J. M. Ponder informs us that the notice we gave the specimens of iron ore which he brought us a few weeks ago has been the cause of his receiving letters from parties in Baltimore in regard to same. Mr. Ponder says he would almost give his ore beds to some body who would develope them and start a boom for our town. That is the spirit it takes to boom a town.

When visiting a printing office keep these rules in view: Enter softly, sit down quietly, subscribe for the paper and pay cash in advance, if you have not previously done so, keep six feet away from the devil, hands off the manuscript, don't talk to the compositors, unless business demands it, don't carry off the exchanges and don't read the type on the galleys.

Mr. G. J. Webb, of Kemper county, Miss., has purchased the Anderson saw-mill at Jemison and is now running the same on full time. Mr. Webb is now a candidate for the office of tax assessor in his county and if elected will probably return to Miss., and employ some one to attend to his saw-mill business at Jemison.

The services of Miss Flossie Logan, of Montgomery, have been secured by Prof. Hicks as assistant of Clanton Academy and teacher of music. She is a young lady of striking appearance and is no doubt thoroughly competent to discharge the duties of her position.

We have three new organs for sale cheap for cash. They are now in the factory and will be shipped to any point desired by the purchaser. One Estey and two of the Chicago Cottage Organs. Come and see or write us before purchasing elsewhere.

OVER THE COUNTY.

News Gathered up by Our Correspondents.

Maplesville Dots.

Feb. 28th, 1887.

Dr. I. Q. Dansby, of Rehobath, Ala., spent a few pleasant days with friends and relatives, at this place, last week.

Mrs. N. E. Goodwin is visiting her daughter Mrs. Dr. DuBose, of Orrville, Ala.

Mr. Oliver Brown, our old tax assessor stopped over with us awhile on his way to Meridian, Miss.

We are glad to see Mr. N. W. Foshee moving about the depot once more. Mr. Foshee is looking a little bad from the effects of a long spell of fever, but we had rather have him looking bad than not to have him with us at all.

Mr. J. D. Nobles filled his appointment at Maplesville church last Sunday, notwithstanding the bad weather.

Maplesville was quite dull on account of the absence of Mr. Frank Kelley and Frank Glover, on Friday night.

D.

Dots from Concord.

Feb. 28, 1887.

Plenty of rain this week.

Mr. E. J. Reynolds, of Mulberry, visited friends in this community, this week.

Mr. John Garner was in our neighborhood, last week, on business.

The little son of Mr. J. W. Reynolds was thrown by a mule last week, which came near breaking his arm.

Mr. G. G. West has his saw mill all ready for work again.

Miss Lucy Meredith returned to her school, after spending last week in her bed at her home in Montevallo, we were as glad to see her as she was to get back.

We hear that Mr. J. C. Wooley, of Clanton, has bought a "corner lot" and has a neat cottage nearly completed. By the way he visited our neighborhood we think he will soon have some one to take charge of his home. We presume he has his arrangaments all "O. K," as he has visited our community twice this week. PEACEFUL BOY.

Six Mile Creek.

Everything quiet on Six Mile.

Everybody at work and cheerful, as if they had plenty of money.

Married recently at the residence of the bride's mother, by Esq. W. H. Shelby, Mr. Marion Honeycutt, of Jemison, and Miss Ann Waldrup. May their voyage over the sea of life be smooth, and when old age comes on, may they look back on their marriage as a green spot, with gratitude.

Our young people are enjoying themselves, meeting on Sunday evenings engaging in singing.

If Sam Ming's Brother would visit our community he would be pleased, especially when he saw the new buidings, and the new grounds, and gardens all planted, and when he would take a hasty look at the smoke houses he would be pleased as well as when he was in Stump Hills, if he would judge by the smoke.

Died, a few weeks ago, Mr. W. E. Posey, son of Rev. S. D. Posey.

Being news is scarce, and no prospect of any marriages soon. I will close.

JULIUS.

Pratt Saw Mill.

March 1st, 1887.

Mr. Wallace Glover and wife will leave for Evansville, Ind., Tuesday morning to visit his relatives.

Mrs. Emma Myres is visiting relatives in Montgomery.

Mrs. W. R. Holder has gone to Atlanta, Ga., this week to consult a physician in reference to her delicate health.

A surprise party at Mr. K. Wells' was much enjoyed by the young people of Verbena and Pratt Mines.

The mud drum on No. 1 mill gave way Monday, Feb. 28th. No one hurt. The mill was stopped 5 days; but the drum being replaced by a new one it is now going ahead again.

Mr. James Hathcock, living on the end of the P. S. M. R. R., while riding along one day last week was thrown from his horse. His head and side were bruised considerably. Whiskey at the bottom we heard.

Three of Verbena's belles spent Sunday with Mrs. Holder, viz: Misses Clara and Bettie Mullins and Miss Mamie Read.

Success to the VIEW. Goodnight.
ON HAND.

Stanton Puffs.

The Baptist Sabbath school has received the new organ and are well pleased.

The painting that is being done on the Baptist church is not satisfactory.

Pro. J. R. MacArthur returned to his school at Wilsonville this week.

Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Selma, spent several days with Mr. Coe's family last week.

The ladies prayer-meeting at Stanton has been re-organized, and should be attended by all the ladies in the community.

Next Sabbath is the regular appointment for the Presbyterian pastor.

Messrs. Coe & Plank had some fun last Saturday trying to blow up pine stumps with dynamite. They were not successful in raising any.

We saw in your last week's issue, notice of the Pratt Saw Mills and foremen. It reminded us that the G. & C. L. Co. have a splendid set of men over the several departments of their business. We would like to speak of them separately but my time and your space will not permit. Suffice to say that for morality and fitness for their several positions they cannot be surpassed, and then they have the best employers to be found in the county.

When you get tired of our puffs blow the whistle for brakes and shut off the throttle and we shall stop. 89.

See the advertisement of the Bryant and Stratton business college in another column. We have a scholarship for a thorough course in this institution which we will sell at a reasonable discount off its face value.

Noteheads, billheads, letterheads, envelopes, statements, programmes, posters, dodgers, circular letters, visiting and business cards, commissary checks, &c. &c., printed at the VIEW Job Office, at reasonable prices and on short notice.

Parties indebted to this office for either subscription, job work or advertising, whose accounts are now past due will please come forward and settle as we are needing the money.

We have on hand at this office quite a quantity of very thick heavy paper suitable for wrapping up meats &c., which we will give to any of our merchants who will send around for it.

Mr. W. I. Mullins, of Kincheon, was in to see us Tuesday and brought good reports as to crop prospects for the coming year. Young oats he says are looking fine.

Our circuit court will convene at 12 o'clock on Monday the 21st. Parties who have to attend can therefore leave home on the morning of the 21st and reach Clanton in ample time.

A friend desires us to ask the men and boys of Clanton not to spit on the floor while in church. They ought not to have to be asked to abandon such a filthy habit.

Mr. S. A. Blasingame desires to inform the public that after the 15th day of March the free use of water from his hot well will be discontinued. 2t.

FARMER'S TAKE NOTICE!
When You Come to Town to buy Goods, Call at
R. P. Wooley & Co.'s Cheap Cash Store!
Next to the Railroad on North side of Main Street, Clanton.
—DEALER IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
[sep8-6]

MONTGOMERY FURNITURE COMPANY.
—DEALERS IN—
Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Looking Glasses, Lounges, Hall Racks, Wardrobes, Chairs, Safes, Side Boards, Cradles, Cribs, Baby Carriages, Spring Beds. Mattresses, Refrigerators, Pianos. Organs, Carpets,
And All Kinds of Furniture!
A. C. ROGERS, Manager,
sep2 y 210 Bibb Street, Wharton's Old Stand Next to McDonald's Opera House.

FURNITURE AND WALL PAPER FOR EVERYBODY!
OUR STOCK OF FURNITURE, WINDOW SHADES, LACE CURTAINS, WALL PAPER, SPRING BEDS, AND MATTRESSES IS NOW COMPLETE.
Anybody in need of the above articles will find it to their interest to look at our immense stock. We guarantee everything we sell, and sell it cheaper than anybody in this State.
SQUARE DEALING IS OUR MOTTO!
B. WOLFF & BRO., Montgomery.
sept 15-6 20 Commerce and Corner Court and Coosa Streets.

This space is reserved by
A. J. BROOKS
AT VERBENA, ALA.,
FOR FUTURE ADVERTISING
☞WATCH IT.☜

IF YOU WANT NICE FRESH GROCERIES CALL ON
W. H. SARTOR,
FIRST DOOR WEST OF THE DRUG STORE, MAIN STREET,
Clanton, Ala.
☞ In addition to everything in the Grocery line I also carry a nice stock of fresh Stick and Fancy Candies, Fruits and other Confectioneries. mar4

SHAW & DAVIN,
Machinery & Mill Supplies,
—MORRIS AVENUE AND 22D STREET.—
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
ENGINES, BOILERS, SAW MILLS, CORN MILLS, SHINGLE MACHINES, CORN MILLS, SUGAR MILLS,
COTTON GINS, COTTON PRESSES. PULLEYS, SHAFTING, BELTING, and MACHINISTS' SUPPLIES.

Largest Stock in the State.
Write for Circulars and Prices. P. O. Box 806. [july8]

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT
THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.
FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE.
CURES—Diphtheria, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Bleeding at the Lungs, Hoarseness, Influenza, Hacking Cough, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Chronic Diarrhoea, Kidney Troubles, and Spinal Diseases. Pamphlet free. Dr. I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass.
PARSONS' PILLS MAKE NEW, RICH BLOOD.
These pills were a wonderful discovery. No others like them in the world. Will positively cure or relieve all manner of disease. The information around each box is worth ten times the cost of a box of pills. Find out about them and you will always be thankful. One pill a dose. Illustrated pamphlet free. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25c. in stamps. Dr. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., 22 C.H. St., Boston.
MAKE HENS LAY
Sheridan's Condition Powder is absolutely pure and highly concentrated. One ounce is worth a pound of any other kind. It is strictly a medicine to be given with food. Nothing on earth will make hens lay like it. It cures chicken cholera and all diseases of hens. Is worth its weight in gold. Illustrated book by mail free. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for [illegible] in stamps. [illegible] I. S. JOHNSON & Co., Boston.

TROY STEAM LAUNDRY,
Nos. 17 & 19 N. Lawrence Street,
MONTGOMERY, ALA.
P. O. BOX 282.
☞Orders by mail are solicited and will receive prompt attention.
J. W. GUE, Proprietor.

BRICK WORK
J. M. DAWSON,
CLANTON, ALA.
Is prepared to do all kinds of brick work in the best style. The patronage of the public solicited.
feb15-tf]

STOP AT
Morris Avenue Hotel,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
Corner Morris Avenue and 20th Street
ELYTON LAND CO. BUILDING,
HUGH KIRKMAN, PROPRIETOR.
Splendid rooms, well ventilated and elegantly furnished. Rates reasonable.

Clanton Barber Shop
—BY—
MEREDITH CANN,
Who is prepared to do all work in the tonsorial line. Hair dressing and shaving in the best style. Prices low.

BANDMAN & CO.,
Wholesale Grocers,
P. O BOX 251,
1st Avenue, bet. 18th and 19th Streets,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
jan 13 6m

TRESSLAR,
Artistic Photographer
10 COURT SQUARE,
Montgomery.
Life Size Photographs a Specialty.
Photographs on Silk, Satin and Linen. Photographs on watch dials. Enameled Photographs.
All Sittings made Instantaneously. Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged.
☞Correspondence solicited.☜
[jan21-tf]

A. W. KEY & CO.,
Manufacturers' State Agents for
Engines, Saw Mills,
BOILERS,
—AND—
General Machinery.
P. O. Box 741,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Nabers & Morrow,
Wholesale Druggists,
FIRST AVENUE,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
MEDICINES,
Fine Wines, Liquors,
Oils, Etc.
☞ Agents for Chess Carley & Co.'s Oils. [june 10]

J. M. Hutchason's
BOARDING, LIVERY
—AND—
SALE STABLES.
Select Dray and Plantation Mules constantly on hand.
Draying and Hauling Promptly Attended to
Always ready to take Contracts for filling in Dirt
Moving Stone, Engines, Boilers, Machinery and other heavy hauling.
RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS AND DAMAGE.
Satisfaction Guaranteed. Handsome Carriages and Double Teams, with or without Drivers.
☞MONTGOMERY STABLES,☜
Lawrence Street, Opp. P. O.,
Telephone 446. janly

Clanton Academy.
CLANTON, CHILTON CO., ALA.
The course of instruction is divided into three departments, Primary, Junior and High School.
RATES OF TUITION:
Primary Department.............$1.50
Junior " 2.50
High School " 3.50
Tuition payable monthly IN ADVANCE.
Public examinations of the pupils of the school will be held at the close of each session, but exhibitions will not be had at any time.
Board can be obtained by pupils of the school in private families in Clanton at very moderate rates.
For further information address
R. E. R. HICKS,
feb10] Principal.

Catarrh cured, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal Injector free. For sale by M. J. Greene.

AGRICULTURAL.

TOPICS OF INTEREST RELATIVE TO FARM AND GARDEN.

Loss of Appetite in Pigs.

Fattening pigs easily lose their appetite by reason of overfeeding, and this checks their growth and is a waste of feed. To avoid this result it is well to change the feed occasionally for a day or two now and then. When corn is the regular food bran makes a wholesome and nutricious change, and it may be given with boiled potatoes without any cessation of the fattening. Pigs will fatten more quickly the more food they can be induced to eat and digest, and a variety of food tends to this result, both encouraging the appetite and helping digestion. To restore the appetite cloyed with corn, we would suggest, a few days' feeding with potatoes and corn boiled together until the potatoes are mushed, and then some bran or middlings stirred in. If when cold it is too thick warm water should be added until it can be eaten easily. Add a little salt, not more than a teaspoonful to a feed for each pig.—New York Times.

Why the Butter Doesn't Come.

1st. Because of some disorganized or unhealthy condition of the cow.

2d. On account of the unwholesome food and water supplied.

3d. Want of proper cleanliness in milking and setting the milk.

4th. Lack of right conditions in the raising of the cream—pure air and proper temperature.

5th. The cream not raised and skimmed in due time.

6th. Cream not churned at the proper time—kept too long.

7th. Cream not allowed to freeze—injured still more in thawing.

8th. Cream too warm when churned.

9th. Cream too cold.

10th. Churn not a good one.

11th. Lazy hand at the churn. Some persons have the churn around nearly all day, summer or winter; take a few turns and then stop; fool around and begin again. Cannot make good butter so. Use a box or barrel churn; begin moderately and continue so till no more vent is needed, and then go on at a good pace, without stopping till the butter comes. When the cream is perfect and the temperature is right, about sixty-five degrees in winter, for a batch of butter weighing twenty to thirty-five pounds, twenty or twenty-five minutes should be ample time for churning, in the manner described. Since this complaint in butter making is more common in the winter season, I should expect to find the cause in the reasons given above in No. 4 to No. 9.—Practical Farmer.

Farm and Garden Notes.

Feeding charcoal to pigs is healthful, and should be practiced by all pork raisers. Charred corn cobs are good for them.

A New England experimenter finds that feeding apples to milch cows has the invariable effect of lessening the flow of milk.

The Farm Journal says careless driving never is a safe way, for the oldest and safest horse will sometimes get scared.

Keep your milch cows in well-bedded and well-sheltered stables. These should be thoroughly cleaned and the bedding daily renewed.

Early-blooming fruit buds are kept back by scattering manure or straw under the trees to prevent the snow from blowing away.

Roots are not so suitable for stock food in this country as in England, on account of our cold winters. There are many good substitutes.

Whether prices be up or down, prime mutton sheep are always salable, and at good prices. The markets are never supplied with choice mutton.

We are opposed to salting butter by the use of brine in washing, as fine, good salt is better and more convenient, says the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette.

Farmers are getting out of the notion of fattening on nothing but corn. Corn is good, but when intermixed with some other grain, bran, etc., the ration is better.

Farm profits vested in permanent improvements return larger dividends than when deposited in banks or invested in other directions. A farm cannot be too highly improved.

With fattening cattle a very small ration of water once a day will be sufficient; milch cows should be induced to drink twice a day. The water should be warmed in chilly weather.

Fresh-ground oyster shells and fresh-ground bone about the poultry house, and a warm breakfast of ground corn meal will greatly help the hens to increase their power to lay in winter.

The consumption of food by dairy stock is paid back in a three-fold way—milk, growth of stock, and the value of the manure, which last often balances the first cost of the food. It is in that respect that stock-raising is superior to exclusive grain growing.

The milk supply of breeding sows kept in pens during hot weather is very apt to be curtailed by lack of drink. It is surprising to most observers for the first time to note how much more water sows will drink which have suckling pigs than is needed by others fattening on the same field.

One of the most convenient properties to be looked to in purchasing or leasing a farm is good stock water. But waterless farms can sometimes be supplied by artesian wells. The water ram, too, so seldom used, is inexpensive, and is not liable to get out of order, while it will force water a considerable distance.

Meats for the consumption of a small family can be smoked by suspending the hams from bars laid across a large barrel, open at both ends, set over a smouldering fire. Corncobs make a good smoke, and bay leaves and juniper berries burned with them give the meat a slightly aromatic flavor. Cover the barrel while the smoking is going on. So says the Iowa Register.

The use of brine among the buttermakers is becoming more popular than it used to be, and is now used by some in washing the butter, and in some cases the salting of the butter is confined to the use of brine in washing. It is found that if butter is washed with brine, and no fresh water is subsequently employed, the butter will be made as salt as many people like it, and as salt as it ought to be.

There is no such thing as luck in the poultry business. The person who waits for Mr. Luck to raise his chicks will be badly left at the end of the season. The luck that awaits anyone depends entirely on his judgment, experience, the time and labor spent, as well as the money invested. Success can be achieved by the industrious, but don't trust to luck, or you will get fooled every time. He is a mighty treacherous old man.

Many fail with camellias in the house only because of not understanding their needs. They grow naturally in damp, shady places, and the conditions found here should be approximated in the window. Give plenty of water at all times, but should the drainage in the pots be defective it must be remedied by using plenty of drainage material in the bottom of each. An excellent way to grow the camellia is to set the pot inside of a second one, that is enough larger than the one the plant is in, to allow of an inch of sand between the two. This secures agreeable moisture. The leaves also should be moistened on alternate days with a light spray of water or by sponging the surface. Fifty to fifty-five degrees of heat suits the plants at this season.

Making Great Guns.

England's big guns are made of bars coiled spirally and welded into a solid mass by the hammer, says a correspondent of the Boston Herald. These red-hot furnaces contain a straight bar; at a word the door is slightly raised, and with huge nippers its head is seized by loops made for the purpose. A steam winch draws out the glowing mass and brings it to a horizontal capstan fixed before the door. A water hose is turned upon the loop, and while it blackens under the chill, a stalwart fellow, wielding a heavy sledge, fixes the loop on a nut projecting from the capstan wheel. Then the machine revolves with resistless force, curling the hot metal round and round on its drum neatly and smoothly, and as easily as girls would wind ribbon. So the coil is formed, whether for the breech piece or the body of the gun or for its jacket. This again is cooled, and after a while is refined for welding under the hammer.

You ought to see this Woolwich hammer. It weighs forty tons sheer weigh, and when it drops it falls forty feet on to a block that rests on spiles, massive masonry, and enormous quantities of iron. Between two great shafts this hammer is suspended, a solid block, which, driven from above by steam and gathering impetus as it falls, strikes with a force of many hundred tons. A veteran workmen has charge of this massive hammer. He starts and drops it by a touch of his thumb and finger. I saw an open-face watch laid on the block; then he dropped the hammer, and he stopped it just in time to break the crystal—and nothing more. They call this last operation of the furnace the "great heat," and about every monarch there is in Europe has seen it, just as I did yesterday. While I am wondering what they thought about, the furnace to be emptied is flaring with impatience. Through the interstices of its great door blue, red and purple flames are leaping out. A huge crane swings round a pair of pincers, at the end of which a dozen Britons cluster. The door rises a little, the white light blinds us, and, although I am at least twenty yards away, the heat burns my face uncomfortably. Water is thrown into the awful gap, and then the men perceive their prey. The huge arms part and firmly close, the door rises to its fullest extent, a clash of the crane gear, a shout from the men, and out it comes, easily and softly, a monstrous coil. The crane swings about and places it upon end upon the anvil. Then the hammer falls, shaking the solid floor beneath us, crushing the red-hot mass inches down at a blow, welding its coils together so that they can never part. But the inside hollow has been knocked out of shape by this process; so, when the tube has been reduced to its proper length, a solid mandril is deftly slipped between the hammer and the iron. For two or three blows the contracted coil attempts resistance, but it gives way, and the mandril slips to its base, as into butter. Then the great pincers are used again, and it drops the mass on its side, where again it is battered and struck all round. The irregularities caused by all this hammering are afterward removed by the plane, and then the gun is made by other machinery.

Big Icebergs,

Admiral Inglesdde, a well-known English explorer in the Arctic seas, has been interviewed by a New York Mail and Express reporter, who put the following question among others:

"You must have seen some big icebergs?"

"I have," was the response, "but the ice I speak of is not such as makes icebergs, though it appears to be a common idea that it is. It is floe ice, made by the sea freezing over, while icebergs are formed by fresh water. In one season the sea will freeze over to a depth of eight to ten feet, and each year it will increase more or less in thickness. I have seen this ice thirty to forty feet thick. I have often seen 100 icebergs floating away at the same time. The glaciers push themselves say two miles out into the sea, get over weighted and break off, having no longer the support of the bottom. I have seen them three miles long and 120 feet out of water, and that would be only one-tenth of them. One of my narrow escapes was on my third expedition, when the false keel of my vessel was cut off from stem to stern. Luckily we were pushed up on the land and so were saved Just before that I had relieved De Belcher and his crews, who had deserted their four ships in the ice and were coming home all crowded into one vessel. That was in 1854."

Producing a Beautiful Flame.

A vessel's old sheathing, which has been covered with yellow metal or copper, makes a most beautiful flame of different colors when burned in an open grate. Years ago this wood was considered worthless, and was usually given away to poor people for fuel. But of late years it has been used quite extensively in New Bedford and vicinity, being placed upon other wood or coal, when the flames present a beautiful sight, producing different colors, which shoot forth from the copper nail holes. Persons who visited New Bedford and saw the beautiful effects produced by burning this wood carried some to their homes, and now the demand for old sheathing is greater than the supply.—New Bedford (Mass.) Standard.

The Height of Fashion.

Lo! the poor woman whose unbalanced mind makes her wear hats like this to tease mankind who tries to view the play, but gazes at this pyramid, which fashion calls a hat. A woman's "headstrong," yet this hat's great weight must surely crush her soft and yielding pate. She is "light" headed, too, and maybe that is why she gets extinguished by this hat. Perhaps she wears this funnel we abhor to make the men look up to her the more; but, if her head was "level" she would know that hats as high as this are very "low." We pity her who needs a lofty hat to lift her head which otherwise is "flat." Without this hat we can't see through her quite, but with it she's more puzzling—and a "fright." Alas! alas! we men who foot the bills, know women's hats come "high" like other ills, but when they're high as this we've got to strike, until they "shoot the hat" we so dislike.

—H. C. Dodge, in Detroit Free Press.

A Slight Mistake.

"Hark! Listen to that, will you! That's a panther and no mistake!"

The man at the oars stopped rowing and all bent forward, eagerly listening for a repetition of the cry they had heard.

Presently it came again, a yell half human, half demoniacal, that made the forest ring with wild echoes.

"Correct!" cried Buck Lindsley, an old guide and hunter who accompanied the party of sportsmen. "Nothing but a painter could make that noise. I've hunted 'em off an' on for thirty years, an' I know their voice as well as I do my own!"

"Shall we land and give chase?" asked Ellsmore, the youngest man and best shot in the party.

"Yes, yes!" cried his companion in chorus.

"What would you advise?" asked Ellsmore, turning to the guide.

"Why gentlemen, you know the painter is a mighty tough animal to tackle but——"

"There it is again!" cried one of the men, as the hideous yell pealed over woods and water. "Come on, Mr. Lindsley, and show us the sport. We're not afraid of the danger!"

Accordingly the boat was headed toward shore. The moment it grated on the sand the men sprang out.

"This way!" exclaimed Buck Lindsley. And, guided by the cries that floated at intervals through the forest, the men darted forward.

"The animal, be it panther or otherwise, seems to stay in nearly one spot," said "Ellsmore, as they drew nearer to the source of the outcries.

Cautiously they advanced until only a thicket of oaks separated them from their prey. Piercing through this they stepped into the opening beyond, their rifles ready for instant use.

Before them was a small log shanty, and on a stump beside the door sat a young man, holding in his hands a French horn.

Placing it to his lips he blew a bloodcurdling blast, the fiendish cry they had attributed to the panther!

"Great Scott!" gasped Ellsmore.

"Gewhillikens!" cried Smith.

"Bless my soul!" exclaimed Brown.

"Well, I'll be darned!" growled Lindsley.

"Is there anything I can do for you, gentlemen?" asked the stranger, as he advanced toward the formidable array of hunters.

"What are you doing here?" blurted Lindsley.

"Camping out for a few weeks while I learn to play the horn!" cheerfully answered the young man, pulling his moustache over a capital imitation of a smile.

Four shame faced hunters filed away toward the boat. Three sportsmen, sadder but wiser, took the next train for town. And while relating their hunting experiences to circles of admiring friends they somehow forgot to tell their exciting chase after a panther.

On the Far Pacific.

The development of the resources of our Pacific coast is quite as remarkable in its way; but the actual figures of the census will not be so sensational. California was a mining region originally. Its first contribution to the wealth of the world was in the millions of gold it poured into all the channels of trade throughout the world. But mining is now one of the least of the industries of the region beyond the Sierra Nevada Mountains. Grain growing, fruit raising, stock breeding are now the main sources of its wealth. The mining boom produced unwholesome social disturbances. But the industries on which the people of the Pacific coast now depend are more normal in their character. It is a marvelously beautiful country, and in the fullness of time will develop a race equal to the very choicest people of the East. It is probably the most wholesome country in the world. As a sanitarium, there is nothing equal to Southern California to be found anywhere. It is destined to support a dense agricultural population, for small farms of fifteen and twenty acres will produce as much wealth in the way of fruits, nuts, grapes, olives, and other valuable articles, as will hundreds of acres devoted to grain in other parts of the country. Then, some time or other, a mighty commerce will be developed on the Pacific Ocean. China, Japan and Hindostan fairly swarm with human beings whose commercial wants have not yet been developed. Then there is growing up in the British colonies on the Pacific tens of millions of Anglo-Saxons whose instinct it is to "go down to the sea in ships." The vast trade of the Atlantic Ocean will in the next century be far outstripped by the mightier commerce of the Pacific, which of course will enrich our descendants on the American Pacific coast.—Demorest's Monthly.

Stitches In An Overcoat.

A Vienna tailor wagered recently that it took more than 40,000 stitches to make a winter overcoat. To decide the question, a coat was ordered, and a committee of experts sat to superintend the work, as well as to see that no unnecessary stitches were made. The result was announced as follows. Body of the coat, 4,780 stitches; collar, 8,033; sewing collar on, 1,763; buttonholes, 2,520; sleeves, with lining, 980; pockets, 924; silk lining of body, with wadded interior, 17,898; braiding, 2,626; total, 39,619 stitches.

Everybody's companion is nobody's friend, but Red Star Cough Cure is everybody's friend. Prof. Giothe, of the Brooklyn Board of Health, endorses it as prompt, safe and sure. Price, twenty-five cents a bottle.

An aged woman, with a family of forty-seven cats, has been discovered in New York. When asked as to the origin of her fondness for the feline race, she honored her sex by the characteristically feminine reply: "They amuse me, and fight so much that they remind me of when my old man was alive."

Men, such as U. S. Senator Voorhees, of Indiana, are loud in their praise of St. Jacobs Oil as an instantaneous cure for rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and other bodily pains.

An ingenious rogue has put himself in the clutches of the police by advertising a sure preventive of seasickness at a dollar. To those who forwarded the fee he replied, "Stay ashore." He is not likely to suffer from seasickness for some years to come.

There Shall be no Alps.

When Napoleon talked of invading Italy one of his officers said: "But, sire, remember the Alps." To an ordinary man these would have seemed simply insurmountable, but Napoleon responded eagerly: "There shall be no Alps." So the famous Simplon pass was made. Disease, like a mountain, stands in the way of fame, fortune and honor to many who by Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" might be healed and so the mountain would disappear. It is specific for all blood, chronic lung and liver diseases, such as consumption (which is scrofula of the lungs), pimples, blotches, eruptions, tumors, swellings, fever-sores and kindred complaints.

They who have the least to risk are the most clamorous for novelties.

Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is everywhere acknowledged to be the standard remedy for female complaints and weaknesses. It is sold by druggists.

The passion of vanity rules in forests as well as in cities.

WORSE THAN SMALLPOX.

A Great Danger which Menaces an Unsuspicious Public.

The Brompton Hospital for Consumptives, in London, reports that over fifty people out every hundred consumptives, are victims of constipated or inactive kidneys.

Consumption is one of our national diseases, and the above report goes to prove what has often been said in our columns during the last eight years, that kidney troubles are not only the cause of more than half the cases of consumption, but of ninety out of every hundred other common diseases. They who have taken this position, made their claims after an elaborate investigation, and their proof that they have discovered a specific for the terrible and stealthy kidney diseases, which have become so prevalent among us, is wise and convincing.

We have recently received from them a fresh supply of their wonderful advertising. They have challenged the medical profession and science to investigate. They have investigated, and those who are frank have admitted the truth of their statements. They claim that ninety per cent. of diseases come originally from inactive kidneys; that these inactive kidneys allow the blood to become filled with uric acid poison; that this uric acid poison in the blood carries disease through every organ.

There is enough uric acid developed in the system within twenty-four hours to kill half a dozen men.

This being a scientific fact, it requires only ordinary wisdom to see the effect inactive kidneys must have upon the system.

If this poison is not removed, it ruins every organ. If the bowels, stomach or liver become inactive, we know it at once, but other organs help them out. If the kidneys become constipated and dormant, the warning comes later on, and often when it is too late, because the effects are remote from the kidneys and those organs are not suspected to be out of order.

Organs that are weak and diseased are unable to resist the attacks of this poison, and the disease often takes the form of and is treated as a local affliction, when in reality the real cause of the trouble was inactive kidneys.

Too many medical men of the present day hold what was a fact twenty years ago, that kidney disease is incurable, according to the medicines authorized by their code. Hence, they ignore the original cause of disease itself, and give their attention to useless treating of local effects.

They dose the patient with quinine, morphine, or with salts and other physics, hoping that thus nature may cure the disease, while the kidneys continue to waste away with inflammation, ulceration and decay, and the victim eventually perishes.

The same quantity of blood that passes through the heart, passes through the kidneys. If the kidneys are diseased, the blood soaks up this disease and takes it all through the system. Hence it is, that the claim is made that Warner's safe cure, the only known specific for kidney diseases, cures 90 per cent. of human ailments, because it, and it alone, is able to maintain the natural activity of the kidneys, and to neutralize and remove the uric acid, or kidney poison, as fast as it is formed.

If this acid is not removed, there is inactivity of the kidneys, and there will be produced in the system paralysis, apoplexy, dyspepsia, consumption, heart disease, headaches, rheumatism, pneumonia, impotency and all the nameless diseases of delicate women. If the poisonous matter is separated from the blood, as fast as it is formed, these diseases, in a majority of cases, would not exist.

It only requires a particle of small-pox virus to produce that vile disease, and the poisonous matter from the kidneys, passing all through the system and becoming lodged at different weak points, is equally destructive, although more disguised.

If it were possible for us to see into the kidneys, and how quickly the blood passing through them goes to the heart and lungs and other parts of the system, carrying this deadly virus with it, all would believe without hesitation what has so often been stated in advertisements in these columns, that the kidneys are the most important organs in the body.

They may regard this article as an advertisement and refuse to believe it, but that is a matter over which we have no control. Careful investigation and science itself are proving beyond a doubt that this organ is, in fact, more important than any other in the system as a health regulator, and as such should be closely watched for the least sign of disordered action.

Tall Bonnets.

"Arthur is handsome, I'll admit, but then he's so small. When I wear my new bonnet, I look taller than he," said Miss Mattie to her own particular girl friend Grace, after the latter had given her "a good talking to" for giving the cold shoulder to a former lover.

"It's just too bad those high hats have come in now," returned Miss Grace, "for Arty is just gone on you. He's not to blame for being short."

"That's so, Gracie, and he isn't short in pocket, you know, but——"

"It seems to me one oughtn't to judge a lover by his stature, but by how much he thinks of one. You ought to pity poor Arty, for he is as solemn as an owl since you sacked him, and does nothing but sigh."

"I agree with you there, and that is how I do judge him—by his size."

The Ruling Passion.

"Well, old boy, you seem in good spirits," said Jones to his friend Jollyboy, who was in the last stages of consumption. "You are determined to keep up your heart, live or die, I take it."

"You bet! I'm bound to prove one of those confounded old sayings false, anyhow."

"Which one?"

"Laugh and grow fat. I laugh enough to weigh a ton."

"How's your appetite? Here's some California grapes. Can you digest them?"

"I'll try it once for luck. Just hand over that pepsin bottle."

"What's that for?"

"Like all that blasted bad tasting 'pothecary stuff there, merely to help a poor chap to die-jest."

Despise Not the Day of Small Things.

Little things may help a man to rise—a bent pin in an easy chair, for instance. Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" are small things, pleasant to take, and they cure sick headaches, relieve torpid livers and do wonders. Being purely vegetable they cannot harm any one. All druggists.

Where the mind is left free religion can never have dangerous enemies.

War Ahead.

There is great danger of war with Mexico in the near future, but at present we can pursue the arts of happiness, prosperity and wealth. Wherever you live, you should write to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine; and receive free, full information about work that you can do and live at home, earning thereby from $5 to $25 and upwards daily. Some have earned over $50 in a day. Capital not required; you are started free. All is new. Both sexes. All ages. Pay, as above guaranteed, from first start.

A Deceived Woman

Is the lady who uses cosmetics, face lotions, white lead, bismuth powders, arsenic, etc., in the belief of enriching and beautifying the complexion. It is but temporary, and ultimately destroys the skin beyond the power of nature to restore. Stop it! Stop it now, and use only Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic, which imparts the vigor and loveliness of youth.

Treachery and falsehood are the vices of cowardice.

OLD pill boxes are spread over the land by the thousand after having been emptied by suffering humanity. What a mass of sickening, disgusting medicine the poor stomach has to contend with. Too much strong medicine. Prickly Ash Bitters is rapidly and surely taking the place of all this class of drugs, and is curing all the ills arising from a disordered condition of the liver, kidneys, stomach and bowels.

If you feel as though water was gathering around the heart (heart-dropsy) or have heart-rheumatism, palpitation of the heart with suffocation, sympathetic heart trouble—Dr. Kilmer's OCEAN-WEED regulates, corrects and cures.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.

Send for Pamphlet on Female Diseases, free, securely sealed. Dr. J. B. Marchisi, Utica, N. Y.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is agreeable to use. It is not a liquid or a snuff. 50c.

A CO-OPERATIVE COLONY.

The Knights of Labor Start a New Enterprise.

Within the last few weeks over 80 families whose heads are Knights of Labor have left Chicago for a new co-operative town established fifty miles from Memphis, Tenn., and called Tennessee City. The city, of which glowing stories are told, was founded by a business house of this city which deals largely in Tennessee lands. Some local Knights of Labor thought it would be a good idea to move down there and run stores and factories on a co operative plan. A committee was sent a month ago to examine the soil, water, iron and timber resources and upon its return reported everything exceedingly favorable. The climate was good, and the natural attractions of the place excellent, and the committee bought some ground and took immediate steps looking toward the establishment of a colony. Those interested in the new city are very enthusiastic in their statements concerning it. They say that the Warner furnace near by, which is now out of repair will be put in order at once and in about 30 days will be in operation. The Knights will manufacture nails and employ 300 men in the nail factory. Brick machines having a capacity of 30,000 per day have been bought and shipped, and as soon as the colony is in running order the capacity will be increased to 60,000. Charles Lange, of Chicago, has been in Tennessee City and bought up ground for a sash, door and blind factory. Other factories and stores will be started as soon as practicable.

The ground that is to be occupied by the colony consists, it is said, of 120,000 acres, divided into 40-acre tracts. The town itself coovers 2,300 acres, and is situated on a tableland 2,000 feet above the level of the sea. Timber, iron ore and limestone abound. The city will be incorporated inside of two weeks, and a City Hall, public school and engine house will be built at once, and in 20 days 200 houses will be built. The Englewood College is four or five miles from the city. Property is selling at $7 to $10 an acre, and a stock company is formed, the first Board of Directors of which will consist of seven men, six of them Knights of Labor. Last week about 20 Knights of Labor left for the new city, and to night about 20 families departed. The projectors of the scheme expect to get 1,000 families settled down there inside of the next 12 months. Eight hours with fair wages will be the rule.

Useful and Hurtful Medicines.

There is a certain class of remedies for constipation absolutely useless. These are boluses and pot ons made in great part of podophyllin, aloes, rhubarb, gamboge and other worthless ingredients. The damage they do to the stomachs of those who use them is incalculable. They evacuate the bowels, it is true, but always do so violently and profusely, and beside, gripe the bowels. Their effect is to weaken both them and the stomach. Better far to use the agreeable and salutary aperient Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the laxative effect of which is never preceded by pain, or accompanied by a convulsive, violent action of the bowels. On the contrary, it invigorates those organs, the stomach and the entire system. As a means of curing and preventing malaria fevers, no medicine can compare with it, and it remedies nervous debility, rheumatism, kidney and bladder inactivity, and other inorganic ailments.

The fears of one class of men are not the measure of the rights of another.

How to Gain Flesh and Strength.

Use after each meal SCOTT'S EMULSION with Hypophosphites. It is as palatable as milk, and easily digested. The rapidity with which delicate people improve with its use is wonderful. Use it and try your weight. As a remedy for Consumption, Throat affections and Bronchitis, it is unequaled. Please read: "I used Scott's Emulsion in a child eight months old with good results. He gained four pounds in a very short time."—THO. PRIM, M. D., Alabama.

Habits of thought and action fix their stamp on the public code.

If afflicted with sore eyes use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye-water. Druggists sell at 25c per bottle.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

IT IS A PURELY VEGETABLE PREPARATION CONTAINING PRICKLY ASH BARK AND PRICKLY ASH BERRIES SENNA-MANDRAKE-BUCHU AND OTHER EQUALLY EFFICIENT REMEDIES. It has stood the Test of Years, in Curing all Diseases of the BLOOD, LIVER, STOMACH, KIDNEYS, BOWELS, &c. It Purifies the Blood, Invigorates and Cleanses the System.

DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, JAUNDICE, SICKHEADACHE, BILIOUS COMPLAINTS, &c disappear at once under its beneficial influence.

It is purely a Medicine as its cathartic properties forbids its use as a beverage. It is pleasant to the taste, and as easily taken by children as adults.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CO
Sole Proprietors,
ST. LOUIS and KANSAS CITY

ELY'S CREAM BALM

I was so troubled with catarrh it seriously affected my voice. One bottle of Cream Balm did the work. My voice is fully restored. B. F. Liepsner, A. M., Pastor Olivet Baptist Church, Philadelphia, Pa.

CATARRH

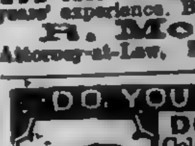
HAY-FEVER

A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable. Price 50 cents at Druggists; by mail, registered, 60 cts. Circulars free. ELY BROS., Druggists, Owego, N.Y.

OPIUM AND MORPHINE HABIT Quickly and Permanently cured by DR. TANNER'S OPIUM AND MORPHINE CURE. For sale by all Druggists. $1.00 Per Bottle. For Circulars and information address TANNER OPIUM CURE CO., 102 Whitehall Street, or P. O. Box 266, ATLANTA, GA.

MEXICAN WAR SURVIVORS or their Widows. New Pension Law. Apply at once for blanks and full information. Twenty years' experience. Best references. Success or no fee. R. McAllister, Jr., Attorney-at-Law, P. O. Box 483, Washington, D. C.

DO YOU WANT A DOG



DOG BUYERS' GUIDE. Colored plates, 100 engravings of different breeds, prices they are worth, and where to buy them. Mailed for 15 Cents. ASSOCIATED FANCIERS, 237 S. Eighth St. Philadelphia, Pa.

PENSIONS, Officers' pay, bounty procured; deserters relieved. 21 years' practice. Success or no fee. Write for circulars and new laws. A. W. McCormick & Son, Washington, D.C.

Blair's Pills. Great English Gout and Rheumatic Remedy. Oval Box $1.00; round, 50 cts.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
HOODS SARSAPARILLA
A WORD TO THE WISE TAKE HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

March April May

Are the months in which to purify your blood, and for this purpose there is no medicine equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies, vitalizes, and enriches the blood, removing all traces of scrofula or other disease. It creates an appetite and imparts new strength and vigor to the whole body. It is the ideal spring medicine. Try it.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"Last spring my whole family took Hood's Sarsaparilla. The result is that all have been cured of scrofula; my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy as possibly can be. I have found Hood's Sarsaparilla also good for catarrh, with which I have been troubled since the war. Nothing did me so much good as Hood's Sarsaparilla."—WM. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

N. B.—Be sure to get the Peculiar Medicine,

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared from Sarsaparilla, Dandelion, Mandrake, Dock, Pipsissewa, and other well known and valuable vegetable remedies. The combination, proportion and preparation are peculiar to Hood's Sarsaparilla, giving it curative power not possessed by other medicines. It effects remarkable cures where others fail.

Best Spring Medicine.

"I was troubled with boils, having several of them at a time. After suffering about all I could bear, I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which entirely cured me. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all like afflicted; being sure they will find relief."—E. N. NIGHTINGALE, Quincy, Mass.

"My wife thinks there is nothing like Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we are never without it in the house."—F. H. LATIMER, Syracuse, N. Y.

Do not be induced to take any other. Get

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

BENSON'S
BENSON'S CAPCINE PLASTER
POROUS PLASTER

Highest Awards of Medals in Europe and America.

The neatest, quickest, safest and most powerful remedy known for Rheumatism, Pleurisy, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Backache, Weakness, cold in the chest and all aches and pains. Endorsed by 5,000 Physicians and Druggists of the highest repute. Benson's Plasters promptly relieve and cure where other plasters and greasy salves, liniments and lotions, are absolutely useless. Beware of imitations under similar sounding names, such as "Capsicum," "Capucin," "Capsicine," as they are utterly worthless and intended to deceive. ASK FOR BENSON'S AND TAKE NO OTHERS. All druggists.

SEABURY & JOHNSON, Proprietors, New York.

DR. KILMER'S OCEAN-WEED HEART REMEDY

Price $1.00 6 for $5.00

One of every five we meet has some form of Heart Disease, and is in constant danger of Apoplexy, Shock or Sudden Death! This Remedy regulates, relieves, corrects and cures. Prepared at Dr. Kilmer's DISPENSARY, Binghamton, N. Y. Letters of inquiry answered. Guide to Health (Sent Free). Sold by Druggists.

SOLID FACTS!

"Seven Springs" Iron-Alum Mass, will give you an appetite, strengthen you up, cure Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa and all Headaches, purify the blood, act on the Kidneys, relieve Catarrh and ward off malaria. Price, 50c. and $1.00 per bottle.

Dickey's Painless Eyewater cures inflamed eyes at once. No cure, no pay. Ask for it. Sold by Druggists or sent by mail postpaid. Price 25c DICKEY & ANDERSON, Manufacturers, BRISTOL, TENN.

Marvellous Memory DISCOVERY.

Wholly unlike Artificial Systems—Cure of Mind Wandering—Any book learned in one reading. Heavy reductions for postal classes. Prospectus, with opinions of Mr. PROCTOR, the Astronomer, Hons. W. W. ASTOR, JUDAH P. BENJAMIN, Drs. MINOR, WOOD and others, sent post FREE, by

PROF. LOISETTE,
237 Fifth Avenue, New York.

GRAPES 100 Best Kinds. 30th year. Catalogues free. Concords, $3 per 100; $12 per 1,000. 1 Empire State and 1 Niagara for $1 post paid. Brighton, Delaware, Ives, Elvira, Lady, Catawba, Martha, Moore's Early, Worden, Pocklington, Diamond, Vergennes, &c., at lowest rates. Raspberries, Gooseberries, Jessie Strawberry, Lucretia Dewberry, &c. GEO. W. CAMPBELL, Delaware, Ohio.

ATLANTA SAW WORKS.

Manufacturers of and Dealers in Saws and Saw-Mill Supplies. Repairing a Specialty. Agents for L. POWER & COMPANY'S Wood Working Machinery. Large and complete stock. Write for catalogue. ATLANTA, GA.

BUSINESS Education a specialty at MOORE'S BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, Ga. One of the best schools in the Country. Send for Circulars.

J. P. STEVENS & BRO. JEWELERS. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Catalogue.

WHETHER YOU WANT A PIANO OR ORGAN It will pay you to write to PHILLIPS & CREW, ATLANTA, GA., For Catalogue (free) and Prices. Mention this paper.

PILES! DR. WILLIAMS' Indian Pile Ointment will cure any case of Itching, Bleeding, Ulcerated or Protruding Piles. CURE GUARANTEED. Prepared for Piles only. (Physicians' jars by express, prepaid, $2.50.) Price per box, 50c. and $1. Sold by druggists or mailed on receipt of price by LAMAR, RANKIN & LAMAR, Agents, Atlanta, Ga.

OPIUM and WHISKEY HABITS cured at home without pain. Book of particulars sent FREE. B. M. Woolley, M. D., Atlanta, Ga. Office 65½ Whitehall Street. Mention this paper.

TAPEWORM CURE Illustrated Book sent FREE. Address A. M. BOCK, P. O. Box 466, Atlanta, Ga.

Young Men Can get the most Practical Business Education at Goldsmith's School of Business, 33½ Broad St. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Circulars & Specimen of Penmanship.

$15.00 Flat top No. 7 Cook Stove for $10.00 with fixtures. Send for catalogue. A. P. Stewart & Co., 69 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.

PATENTS Obtained. Send stamp for Inventors' Guide. L. Bingham, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

SEWING MACHINE FREE! To introduce. Send full address immediately. [illegible] Co., Jersey City, N. J.

HARTER'S THE ONLY TRUE IRON TONIC

Will purify the BLOOD regulate the LIVER and KIDNEYS and RESTORE the HEALTH and VIGOR of YOUTH. Dyspepsia, Want of Appetite, Indigestion, Lack of Strength and Tired Feeling absolutely cured: Bones, muscles and nerves receive new force. Enlivens the mind and supplies Brain Power.

LADIES Suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex will find in DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC a safe and speedy cure. Gives a clear, healthy complexion. Frequent attempts at counterfeiting only add to the popularity of the original. Do not experiment—get the ORIGINAL AND BEST.

Dr. HARTER'S LIVER PILLS Cure Constipation Liver Complaint and Sick Headache. Sample Dose and Dream Book mailed on receipt of two cents in postage.

THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE COMPANY.
St. Louis, Mo.

Ask your retailer for the James Means' $3 Shoe. Caution! Some dealers recommend inferior goods in order to make a larger profit. This is the original $3 Shoe. Beware of imitations which acknowledge their own inferiority by attempting to build upon the reputation of the original. None Genuine unless bearing this Stamp,

JAMES MEANS' For Gentlemen, $3 SHOE.

Made in Button, Congress and Lace. Best Calf Skin. Unexcelled in Durability, Comfort and Appearance. A postal card sent to us will bring you information how to get this Shoe in any State or Territory.

J. Means & Co
41 Lincoln St., Boston, Mass.

Our celebrated factory produces a larger quantity of Shoes of this grade than any other factory in the world. Thousands who wear them will tell you the reason if you ask them. JAMES MEANS' $2 SHOE for Boys is unapproached in Durability.

MONEY FOR THE HONEST! In amounts of $50 to $500, on One to Ten years time. Our new plan—available to all, burdensome to none. State amount you can safely use, also age and occupation. The System is Full, with Forms, etc., Free, on receipt of stamp. No postals answered.

I. BUTLER, Sec'y,
Bradford Block, Cor. Sixth & Vine,
CINCINNATI, OHIO.

SHOW CASES. WALL CASES.

DESKS, OFFICE FURNITURE AND FIXTURES. Ask for Illustrated Pamphlet. TERRY SHOW CASE CO., Nashville, Tenn.

ACME PULVERIZING HARROW, Clod Crusher and Leveler. The Best Tool in the world for preparing corn, cotton and other ground. D. H. NASH, Sole Manuf'r, 311 West Main St., Louisville, Ky.

$100 to $300 A MONTH can be made working for us. Agents preferred who can furnish their own horses and give their whole time to the business. Spare moments may be profitably employed also. A few vacancies in towns and cities. B. F. JOHNSON & CO., 1013 Main St., Richmond, Va.

WE WANT YOU! a live energetic man or woman needing profitable employment to represent us in every county. Salary $75 per month and expenses, or a large commission on sales if preferred. Goods staple. Every one buys. Outfit and particulars Free. STANDARD SILVERWARE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

THURSTON'S IVORY PEARL TOOTH POWDER Keeping Teeth Perfect and Gums Healthy.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE Lines not under the horse's feet. Address BREWSTER'S SAFETY REIN HOLDER, Holly, Mich.

Pensions to Soldiers & Heirs. Send stamp for circulars. COL. L. BINGHAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

OPIUM Habit Cured. Treatment sent on trial. HUMANE REMEDY CO., LaFayette, Ind.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

A. N. K. .... Nine, '87

Rates of Advertising.

One Dollar per Square, of one inch space or less, for the first, and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion.

Inches.	3 m.	6 m.	12 m.
1 Inch	$ 5 00	$ 7 00	$ 11 25
2 Inches	7 00	11 50	16 00
3 Inches	10 00	15 00	22 50
4 Inches	12 50	20 00	27 00
5 Inches	15 00	22 50	33 00
¼ Column	18 00	27 00	40 00
½ Column	27 00	40 00	60 00
1 Column	40 00	60 00	100 00

The Chilton View.

W. H. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors.

"WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION."

TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, MARCH 17, 1887. NUMBER 19.

Special Advertising.

Business Notices Ten Cents per line each insertion.

Obituaries and Tributes of Respect, half rates.

Announcing candidates for office, Five Dollars, strictly in advance.

Communications recommending candidates for office will be headed as advertisements and charged for accordingly.

Liberal contracts made with those advertising by the year.

☞ The money is due on all advertising after the first publication.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Subject: "The Swelling of Jordan."

TEXT: "If thou hast run with the footmen, and they have wearied thee, then how canst thou contend with horses? and if in the land of peace, wherein thou trustedst, they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in the swelling of Jordan?"—Jeremiah xii., 5.

Not in a petulant, but in kindly terms I must complain that a wrong has been done me and the cause of honest journalism by a pretended sermon that is going the rounds of hundreds of papers with my name appended; a sermon entitled: "Frauds Detected;" text, Numbers, Ch. 32, v. 23: "But if ye will not do so, behold, ye have sinned against the Lord; and be sure your sin will find you out." Not one sentence of that pretended sermon did I preach. If this were the only offense of the kind I would not speak of it. Such a fraud is not only a wrong to me but to the gentlemen who, at these tables, Sabbath by Sabbath, take accurate report of what is said and done; and is a gross wrong to the two thousand newspapers which give my sermon in full to their readers, and often at great expense to themselves. The only fault I have to find with the newspaper press of this country is that they treat me too well. But I cannot be made responsible for entire sermons, not one word of which did I preach! But now I turn from personal explanation to the more important subject of the text.

Jeremiah had become impatient with his troubles. God says to him: "If you cannot stand these small trials and persecutions, what are you going to do when the greater trials and persecutions come? If you have been running a race with footmen and they have beaten you, what chance is there that you will outrun horses?" And then the figure is changed. You know, in April and May, the Jordan overflows its banks, and the waters rush violently on, sweeping everything before them. And God says to the prophet: "If you are overcome with smaller trials and vexations which have assaulted you, what will you do when the trials and annoyance and persecutions of life come in a freshet?" "If in the land of peace wherein thou trustedst, they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in the swelling of Jordan?"

I propose, if God will help me, in a very practical way to ask, if it is such a difficult thing to get along without the religion of Jesus Christ, when things are comparatively smooth, what will we do without Christ amid the overpouring misfortunes and disasters of life that may come upon us? If troubles, slow as footmen, surpass us, what will we do when they take the feet of horses? And if now in our lifetime we are beaten back and submerged of sorrows because we have not the religion of Jesus to comfort us, what will we do when we stand in death, and we feel all around about us "the swelling of Jordan?" The fact that you have come here, my brother, my sister, shows that you have some things you believe in common with myself. You believe that there is a God. There is not an Atheist in all this house. I do not believe there ever was a real Atheist in all the world. Napoleon was on a ship's deck bound for Egypt. It was a bright starry night, and as he paced the deck, thinking of the great affairs of the State and of the battle, he heard two men on the deck in conversation about God; one saying there was a God and the other saying there was none. Napoleon stopped and looked up at the starry heavens, and then he turned to these men in conversation, and said: "Gentlemen, I heard one of you say there was no God; if there is no God, will you please to tell me who made all that?" Ay, if you had not been persuaded of it before, you are persuaded of it now; for the shining heavens declare the glory of God and the earth shows His handiwork. But you believe more than that; you believe that there was a Jesus; you believe that there was a Cross; you believe that you have an immortal soul; you believe that it must be regenerated by the spirit of God, or you can never dwell in bliss eternal. I think a great many of you will say that you believe it is important to have the religion of Jesus Christ every day of our life, to smooth our tempers and purify our minds, and hold us imperturbable amid all the annoyance and vexations of life. You and I have seen so many men trampled down by misfortunes because they had no faith in Jesus, and you say to yourself: "If they were so easily overcome by the trials of life, what will it be when greater misfortunes come upon them—heart-breaking calamities, tremendous griefs?" Oh, if we have no God to comfort us when our fortune goes, and we look upon the graves of our children, and our houses are desolate, what will become of us? What a sad thing it is to see men, all unhelped of God, going out to fight giants of trouble; no closet of prayer in which to retreat, no promise of mercy to soothe the soul, no rock of refuge in which to hide from the blast. Oh, when the swift coursers of trouble are brought up, champing and panting for the race, and the reins are thrown upon their necks, and the lathered flanks at every spring feel the stroke of the lash, what can we do on foot with them? How can we compete with them? If, having run with the footmen, they wearied us, how can we contend with horses?

We have all yielded to temptation. We have been surprised afterward that so small an inducement could have decoyed us from the right. How insignificant a temptation has sometimes captured our soul! And if that is so, my dear brother, what will it be when we come to stand in the presence of temptation that prostrated a David, and a Moses, and a Peter, and some of the mightiest men in all God's kingdom? Now we are honest; but suppose we were placed in some path of life, as many of God's children have been, where all the forces of earth and hell combine to capture the soul? Without Jesus we would go down under it. If already we have been beaten by insignificant footmen, we would be distanced ten thousand leagues by the horses. Ah, I don't like to hear a man say: "I could not commit such a sin as that. I can't understand how a man could be carried away like that." You don't know what you could do if the grace of God left you. You know what John Bunyan said when he saw a man staggering along the street, thoroughly embruted in his habits. He said: "There goes John Bunyan, but for the grace of God." I can say when I see one utterly fallen: "There goes DeWitt Talmage, but for the grace of God!" If we have been delivered from temptation it is because the strong arm of the Lord Almighty has been about us, and not because we were any better than they. It is a great folly to borrow trouble. If we can meet the misfortunes of to-day, we will be able to meet the troubles of to-morrow; but suppose now if through a lack of the religion of Jesus, we are overthrown by small sorrows, does not our common sense teach us that we cannot stand up against great ones? If we cannot carry a pound, can we carry a thousand pounds? If we are discomfited coming into battle with one regiment, a brigade will cut us to pieces. If we are unfit to cope with one small trial, won't we be overcome by greater ones? If the footmen are too much for us, won't the odds be more fearful against us when we contend with horses? I thank God that some of His dear children have been delivered. How was it that Paul could say: "Sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; poor, yet making many rich; having nothing, yet possessing all things?" And David, the psalmist, soars up into the rock of God's strength and becomes thoroughly composed amid all his sorrows, saying: "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in the time of trouble; therefore will not we fear though the earth be removed, though the mountains be cast into the midst of the sea, though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountain shake with the swelling thereof. Selah."

But my text suggests something in advance of anything I have said. We must all quit this life. However sound our health may be, it must break down; however good our title may be to houses, land, and estates, we must surrender them. We will hear a voice bidding us away from all these places. We will have to start on a pilgrimage from which we can never come back. We will have seen for the last time the evening star, and watched the last summer cloud, and felt the breath of the spring wind for the last time. Hands of loved ones may be stretched out to hold us back, but they cannot—go we must. About all other exits and chances we may trifle, but not about this. Stupendous moment of life-quitting. Oh, when the great tides of eternity arise about us, and fill the soul and surround it, and sweep it out toward rapture or woe, ah, that will be the swelling of Jordan!" I know people sometimes talk very merrily about the departure from this life. I am sorry to hear it. But men do make fun of the passage from one world to another. Byron joked a great deal about it, but when it came he shivered with horror. Many an infidel has scoffed at the idea of fearing a future world, but lying upon his pillow in the last hour his teeth have chattered with terror. I saw, in Westminster Abbey, an epitaph which a poet ordered to be put upon his tomb:

"Life is a jest,
And all things show it.
I thought so once,
But now I know it."

I thought how inapt that, in a place of sepulchre, men should try their witticisms. A great German having rejected Christ, in his last moment said: "Give me light, give me light!" Oh, we may be smart with our witticism about the last hour; but when it comes, and the tides are rising, and the surf is beating, and the winds are howling, we will each one, my brethren, find for himself that it is "the swelling of Jordan!" Our natural courage won't hold out then. However familiar we may have been with scenes of mortality, however much we may have screwed our courage up, we want something more than natural resources. When the northeast wind blows off from the sea of death, it will put out all earthly lights. The lamp of the Gospel, God-lighted, is the only lamp that can stand in that blast. The weakest arm holding that shall not be confounded; the strongest one rejecting that shall stumble and die. When the Jordan rises in its wrath, the first dash of its wave will swamp them for ever. We feel how sad it is for a man to attempt this life without religion. We see what a doleful thing it is for a man to go down into the misfortunes of life without Christian solace; but if that be so, how much more terrible when that man comes face to face with the solemnities of the last hour! Oh, if in the bright sunshine of health and prosperity a man felt the need of something better, how will he feel when the shadows of the last hour gather above his pillow! If, in the warmth of worldly prosperity, he was sometimes dismayed, how will he feel when the last chill creeps over him? If, while things were comparatively smooth he was disquieted, what will he do in the agonies of dissolution? "If, in the land of peace in which he trusted, they wearied him, what will he do amid the swelling of Jordan?"

Oh, I rejoice to know that so many of God's children have gone through that pass without a shudder! Some one said to a dying Christian: "Isn't it hard for you to get out of this world?" "Oh, no," he says, "it is easy dying, it is blessed dying, it is glorious dying;" and then he pointed to a clock on the wall, and he said: "The last two hours in which I have been dying, I have had more joy than all the years of my life." A general came into the hospital after the battle, and there were many seriously wounded, and there was one man dying, and the general said: "Ah, my dear fellow, you seem very much wounded. I am afraid you are not going to get well." "No," said the soldier: "I am not going to get well, but I feel very happy!" Oh, I have seen them, and so have you, go out of this life without a tear on their cheek! There was weeping all round the room, but no weeping in the bed; the cheeks were dry. They were not thrown down into darkness, they were lifted up. We saw the tides rising around them, and the swelling of the wave. It washed them off from the cares and toils of life; it washed them on toward the beach of heaven. They waved to us a farewell kiss as they stood on deck, and floated down further and further, wafted by gales from heaven, until they were lost to our sight—mortality having become immortality:

"Life's duty done, as sinks the clay,
Light from its load the spirit flies;
While heaven and earth combine to say,
How blest the righteous when he dies!"

What high consolation to you that your departed friends were not submerged in the swelling of Jordan! The Israelites were just as thoroughly alive on the western banks of the Jordan; as they had been on the eastern banks of the Jordan; and our departed Christian friends have only crossed over—not sick, not dead, not exhausted, not extinguished, not blotted out, but with healthier respiration and stouter pulses, and keener eyesight, and better prospects, crossed over, their sins, their physical and mental disquiet, all left clear this side, an eternally-flowing, impassable obstacle between them and all human and Satanic pursuit. Crossed over! Oh, I shake hands of congratulation with all the bereaved in the consideration that our departed Christian friends are safe!

Why was there, years ago, so much joy in certain circles in New York when people heard from their friends who were on board the City of Brussels? It was thought that vessel had gone to the bottom of the sea; and when the friends on this side heard that the steamer had arrived safely in Liverpool, had we not the right to congratulate the people in New York that their friends had got safely across? And is it not right this morning that I congratulate you that your departed friends are safe on the shore of heaven? Would you have them back again? Would you have those old parents back again? You know how hard it was sometimes for them to get their breath in the stifled atmosphere of the summer; would you have them back in our earthly summers, or chilled of our winters? Would you have your children back again? Would you have them take the risk of temptations which throng every human pathway? Would you have them cross the Jordan three times. In addition to having crossed it already, cross it again to greet you now, and then cross back afterward? For certainly you would not want to keep them forever out of heaven. If they had lived forty or fifty years longer, would they have been safe? Perhaps so, perhaps not.

"Pause and weep, not for the freed from pain,
But that the sigh of love would pull them back again."

I ask a question, and there seems to come back the answer in heavenly echo: "What! will you never be sick again?" "Never—sick—again." "What! will you never be tired again?" "Never—tired—again." "What! will you never weep again?" "Never—weep—again." "What! will you never die again?" "Never—die—again." Oh, ye army of departed kindred, we hail you from bank to bank! Wait for us when the Jordan of death shall part for us. Come down and meet us halfway between the willowed banks of earth and the palm groves of heaven.

"On Jordan's stormy banks I stand,
And cast a wistful eye
To Canaan's fair and happy land,
Where my possessions lie.
O, the transporting, rapturous scene
That rises on my sight!
Sweet fields arrayed in living green,
And rivers of delight."

But there is one step still in advance suggested by this subject. If this religion of Christ is so important in life, and so important in the last hours of life, how much more important it will be in the great eternity I need not stand here and argue it. There is something within your soul that says now, while I speak: "I am immortal; the stars shall die, but I am immortal." You feel that your existence on earth is only a small piece of your being. It is only a mile up to the grave, but it is ten thousand miles beyond. This slab of the tomb is only the milestone on which we read of infinite distance yet to be traveled. The world itself will grow old and die. The stars of our night will burn down in their sockets and expire. The sun, like a spark struck from an anvil, will flash and go out. The winds will utter their last whisper, and ocean heave its last groan; but you and I will live for ever! Gigantic—immortal. Mighty to suffer or enjoy. Mighty to love or hate. Mighty to soar or to sink. Then, what will be to us the store, the shop, the office, the applause of the world, the scorn of our enemies, the things that lifted us up, and the things that pressed us down? What to John Wesley are all the mobs that howled after him? What to Voltaire are all the nations that applauded him? What to Paul, now, the dungeons that chilled him? What to Latimer, now, the flames that consumed him? All those who through the grace of Christ reach that land, will never be disturbed. None to dispute their throne, they shall reign for ever and ever. But, alas, for those who have made no preparation for the future! When the sharp-shod hoofs of eternal disaster come up panting and swift to go over them, how will they contend with horses? And when the waves of their wretchedness rise up, white and foamy, under the swooping of eternal storms, and the billows become more wrathful and dash more high, oh what will they do "amid the swelling of Jordan?"

If I could come into your heart this morning, I would see that many of you, my dear friends, had vowed to be the Lord's. I know not what sickness it was, or what trial; but I verily believe there is not a man in the house but has sometime vowed he would be the Lord's. It might have at the time when your child lay sick, you said: "Oh Lord, if thou wilt let this child get well, I will be a Christian." Or it might have been in some business trouble, when you have said: "O Lord, if thou wilt let me keep my property, I will be a Christian." You kept your property, your child got well, the peril passed. Are you a Christian? History says that long ago it had been announced that the world was coming to an end, and there was great excitement in London. It was said that the world would perish on a certain Friday. On Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday the people were in the cathedral, praying and weeping. It seemed as if the whole English nation was being converted to God, for it was announced as certain by philosophers that on that coming Friday the world would perish. Friday came, and there were no portents, no fires in the air, no earthquakes. The day passed along just like every other day, and when it was past and the night came, it is said that in London there was a scene of riot, and wassail, and drunkenness, and debauchery such as had never been witnessed. They forgot their vow, they forgot their repentance, they forgot their good resolutions. O, how much human nature in that! While trials and misfortunes come to us, and we are down deep in darkness and trouble we make vows. We say: "O Lord, do so, and I will do so." The darkness passes, the peril goes away. We are as we were before, or worse; for oh, how often I have seen men start for the kingdom of God, come up to within arm's reach of it, and then go back farther from God than they ever were before, dropping from the very mount of their privilege into darkness forever! Oh, how ungrateful we have been! Do you know how much God has done for you and for me? Have you never felt it? How much He did for you to-day! Who spread the table for you? Who watched you last night? Who has been kind and good to you all your life long? Oh how ungrateful we have been! Methinks the goodness of God ought to lead this whole audience to repentance. I know not your individual history. Some of you I never saw before, some of you I will never see again; but I know that God has been good to you. What return have you made? There was a steamer on one of the Western lakes heavily laden with passengers, and there was a little child who stood on the side of the taffrail, leaning over and watching the water, when she lost her balance and dropped into the waves. The lake was very rough. The mother cried: "Save my child! Save my child!" There seemed none disposed to leap into the water. There was a Newfoundland dog on deck. He looked up in his master's face, as if for orders. His master said: "Tray, overboard, catch 'em!" The dog sprang into the water, caught the child by the garments, and swam back to the steamer. The child was picked up by loving hands, the dog was lifted on deck, and the mother, ere she fainted away, in utter thanksgiving to that dog, threw her arms around its neck and kissed it; but the dog shook himself off from her embrace, and went and laid down as though he had accomplished nothing. Shall a mother be grateful to a dog that saves her child, and be ungrateful to the Son of God who, from the heights of heaven, plunged into the depths of darkness, and suffering, and woe that he might lift us up out of our sin and place us on the rock of ages? Oh, the height, the depth, the length, the infinity, the horror of our ingratitude! Don't you treat Jesus like that any more. Don't you thrust Him back from your soul. He has been the best friend you ever had. You will want Him after awhile. When the world is going away from your grasp, and all the lights that shine on your soul are going out, and the friends that stand around you can do you no good, and you feel your feet slipping from beneath you—oh, then you will want Him—the loving Jesus, the sympathetic Jesus, the pardoning Jesus—to stand close by you, and hold you up "amid the swelling of Jordan!"

The New Overcoat.

A passenger from Springfield was telling of the purchase of an overcoat from a Hebrew merchant on South Clark street. The price was $30. "If dot goat doan't suit you, pring it pack right away, an' ve'll gif you your monish pack, subject to all fluctuations in the market. If de goat market goes up, you get more monish as you paid vor him; if de goat market goes down, you lose the difference only, my dear, pesides havin' de use of de goat." The passenger from Springfield paid over his $30 and took the coat. Next day, having examined the garment more thoroughly, he concluded that he didn't want it, and so took it back. "Vot! Dot goat not suit you?" exclaimed the merchant. "Vell, ve take him back. Isaac, put dot goat on de shelluf, an' gif de shendtlemans six tollars." "But I paid you $30 for the coat, and want my money back." "So, my friend, but goats haf gone down last night. I guess it vos de war news from Europe. Goats are gone down, an' ve have marked our whole stock at goat. Isaac, $6 for the shentlemans. You only lose de difference, my dear, an' you had de goat all night."—Chicago Herald.

A Chestnut.

A gentleman returning home one very clear night lately with his little girl was pointed out by her to the Pleides. "Look!" she exclaimed: "see those little stars all cuddled together to keep warm!" A pretty story, isn't it? Naturally, the father told it proudly to the first person he met, who happened to be a young women who writes for the press. The next day but one the gentleman, meeting an acquaintance told him the story of the little girl and the stars. "Chestnut!" said the acquaintance; "I saw that story in the papers." The father was aghast and indignant. To have his own little story, which he knew was as new and original as could be, pronounced an old one, borrowed from the papers! It was a fact, nevertheless, for he discovered presently that the story had appeared in one of the daily papers on the very day after he related it to the young lady. Nobody could blame her. But the father's exclusive property in his daughter's odd saying had "ceased and determined" at a very early stage in its career.—Boston Post.

Mr. Stanley, the explorer, says that the greatest difficulty encountered in building railroads in Africa is that the ostriches eat up the rails as fast as they are laid.—Norristown Herald.

A DAY.

Talk not of sad November, when a day
Of warm, glad sunshine fills the sky of noon,
And a wind, borrowed from some morn of June,
Stirs the brown grasses and the leafless spray.

On the unfrosted pool the pillared pines
Lay their long shafts of shadow; the small rill,
Singing a pleasant song of summer still,
A line of silver, down the hill-slope shines.

Hushed the bird-voices and the hum of bees,
In the thin grass the crickets pipe no more;
But still the squirrel hoards his winter store,
And drops his nut-shells from the shag-bark trees.

Softly the dark green hemlocks whisper high
Above, the spires of yellowing larches show,
Where the woodpecker and home-loving crow
And jay and nut-hatch winter's threat defy.

O gracious beauty, ever new and old!
O sights and sounds of nature, doubly dear
When the low sunshine warns the closing year
Of snow-blown fields and waves of Arctic cold!

Close to my heart I fold each lovely thing
The sweet day yields; and, not disconsolate,
With the calm patience of the woods I wait
For leaf and blossom when God gives us Spring!
—J. G. Whittier, in Atlantic Monthly.

A SWAMP MYSTERY.

BY WILLIAM O. STODDARD.

The summer of the year 1862 was particularly hot on the coast of North Carolina. It even did something to counteract the more destructive heat of the civil war.

General Burnside had captured a long reach of the seaboard, and had established his headquarters at Newberne. No battles followed very soon, nor any storms to speak of, but the army and the weather were fast getting into a high state of preparation for either kind of event.

There were Union troops at Fort Macon and Morehead City, not many miles up the coast from Newberne, and much pay was due them.

The money came down from the North in July, and a couple of paymasters received orders to go at once and deal it out to the men.

Before the war a railway had been constructed from Newberne to Morehead City. Its rails were still there, but all its rolling stock, with the exception of one hand-car had gone into the interior the State. The viaduct was only just wide enough to carry the rails, and much of its course was through a swamp whose dense bushes were now luxuriantly reaching out as if they meant to capture the track before the end of the season.

The Quartermaster placed his one hand-car at the disposal of the paymasters. He did so with the pleasant information that at the previous evening the busy Confederates had made a raid and had swept away all the pickets posted along the line of the railway. New pickets had been posted, he told them, and their proposed trip would be reasonably safe.

"That is," he said, "I guess you're safe from any Confeds; but if you don't get through before dark I'd advise you to be pretty prompt about answering any hail. The boys'll all be wide awake this time. They won't be slow about taking care of themselves in the dark. Not a man of 'em wants to go to Wilmington just now, nor to Andersonville either."

That warning made the Paymaster shake his head and grew in importance before the hand-car set out, for it was plain enough that it would be dark before the trip could be half made. Precisely how dark it would be or why was not as yet imagined by anybody.

There were nine men huddled on that hand-car when it went. A sergeant and four soldiers were its motive power, guard and garrison. The writer of this story was there altogether as an adventurer. Two paymasters, with the rank of major, and one clerk were in charge of a black box containing over $80,000 in greenbacks, to be scattered among the volunteers on the morrow.

The air grew more and more close and sultry, and just before night a sort of haze began to rise over the eastern horizon.

"That's it, Major," said the Sergeant to one of the paymasters. "We're going to hear from Cape Hatteras."

"Storm coming?"

"Right along. 'Twon't take it long o come."

He was correct as to the time required by Cape Hatteras, or whatever was managing that storm. The sky rapidly grew black as ink and darkness came with but moderate reference to the departing sun.

Just before entering the denser thickets of the swamp, a picket was reached and the officer in charge repeated the warning of the Quartermaster:

"Be ready to answer right away. It'll be pitch dark and some of the boys are nervous, after last night's work. They'll shoot quick."

That was to the Sergeant, but it was a Paymaster who replied:

"Well, now, Captain, we didn't say so, but we thought the trip would be safer by night than by day. The men have got to have the money."

"Hope the Confeds won't get it then. Put her through, Sergeant, but look sharp. The storm's most got here." He also was correct about the weather. In ten minutes more such a storm had arrived as was a credit to Cape Hatteras and the whole seacoast of North Carolina. On rolled the handcar, its crouching passengers drenched with rain that fell in streams rather than drops. The lightning flashed almost incessantly, and the thunder seemed to be rolling around all over the swamp. Except where a streak of lightning cleft it, the darkness was like a solid wall, and there was neither headlight nor hand lantern provided for that handcar.

"Worst storm I ever saw," remarked the Sergeant, and one of the brace of men who were acting as motive power grunted back at him. "It's the worst kind of a storm, but you can't see it."

It was a just correction of the statement made by the Sergeant, but at that moment a hoarse, deep, all but sepulchral voice from among the bushes and blackness at the right of the track commanded:

"Halt!"

"Stop her! Quick, boys!" exclaimed the Sergeant, and as the men changed instantly from motive power into brakes, he sprang from the car into water above his knees and waded forward to answer the hail and give the countersign.

It was all in vain. Down came a double deluge of rain and thicker darkness. Then a vividness of blue electricity danced through the dripping bushes and a great roar of thunder followed it as if in search of the hidden "picket." Neither rain, nor lightning, nor thunder, nor the anxious questionings of the Sergeant discovered him.

There he was, or must have been, dead or alive, for he had said "halt," but that was apparently all he had to say.

The Sergeant splashed his way back to the hand-car, using very strong language, and it was decided to go forward.

"We're just as likely to be fired into, first thing," remarked the Paymaster's clerk, "and they'd hit some of us, sure!"

Both of the paymasters agreed with him, and one expressed his satisfaction that the box containing the greenbacks was waterproof.

"That's more than I am," said one of the soldiers. "This 'er rain's got through my roof. I can feel it trickle down inside of me."

The hand-car was not propelled rapidly after that, but the lightning and thunder worked harder than ever. Perhaps half a mile had been gained, when another voice, on the left this time and not so near, but equally hoarse and peremptory, shouted:

"Halt!"

Other words which seemed to follow were swallowed up by a wide-mouthed clap of thunder, and so was the Sergeant's prompt response, but in an instant he was among the bushes.

The first we heard from him was:

"Boys, it's up to my waist and getting deeper!"

"Go on, Sergeant!" shouted one of the paymasters. "They'll be shooting at us if they don't get an answer!"

"Hurrah for General Burnside!" squawked the Paymaster's clerk, in a vague effort to let any supposed picket know which side he was on, but a severe sternness from the further end bade him:

"Shut up! Halt! Come along!"

"I'm coming!" shouted the Sergeant. "Friend! Paymaster!"

"Shut up! Come along!" responded the threatening voice beyond him.

For a full quarter of an hour the Sergeant groped and floundered among those bushes. Again he used strong language; very strong, indeed; but not a soul came to meet him, nor did another word reply to his repeated requests that the picket should advise him as to what course he should take.

The party on the hand-car cowered under sheets and torrents and whole mill-ponds of falling water, and hoped that there might be a cessation of the lightning flashes, so that any hidden riflemen would be less able to shoot straight.

"I give it up," said the voice of the Sergeant at last. He was only three paces from the car, but he was invisible.

"The boys know who we are," said one of the soldiers, "and we can go on; but it's an awful mean joke to play in such a rain as this."

"There's something more than that in it," said one of the paymasters. "There's a trap of some kind. We'll never get to Morehead City."

"We'll go ahead, anyhow," said the Sergeant. "There's as much danger behind as there is before."

"I'm glad I hurrahed for Burnside," remarked the Paymaster's clerk.

On went the hand-car into the water-soaked darkness, and another mile or more was rolled over before the wayside summons was sonorously repeated.

"Quick, now, Sergeant!" said the Senior Paymaster.

"Don't know, Major," he replied. "That fellow's away into the swamp. He's got under cover. I couldn't even find him. Risk it! Boys, risk it! Run ahead. They can't hit us if they do fire."

"Halt!" came warningly out of the blackness as the hand-car dashed forward, and with it came thunder that sounded like a rattle of musketry.

"They didn't work their joke this time, Major," said the Sergeant.

"There's more than that in it," said the Major. "I'm glad we're past that picket, but I'm afraid we're running into trouble. They may have surprised Morehead City and the fort."

"Reckon not, Major. Run her your level best, boys. We won't halt again for anybody."

That was brave talk, but in less than twenty minutes he exclaimed:

"Hold on, boys! That picket is right on the track. Stop her for your lives!"

They did so, as an ominous and menacing throat repeated:

"Halt! Halt!" and from the rear, at the same moment, other voices seemed to say:

"Got 'em! Got 'em now?"

"I'm afraid they have," groaned the Major, "money and all, and we're on our way to Wilmington."

"No use to hurrah for Burnside this time," squeaked the Paymaster's clerk.

The Sergeant ran ahead along the track until he missed his footing in the dark and went off into a grimy depth of water and black mud, just as somebody said:

"Who's there?" and he was trying to respond:

"Friend, with the countersign."

His mouth has too much in it for success, and once more he used strong and very volcanic expressions as soon as his vocal organs were at work again. Then we heard him say:

"Come along, boys. There isn't anybody here, and the water's six inches deep over the track."

It was a doleful mystery, and the chance of being fired into grew grisley enough as the car was dubiously urged forward.

The fierceness of the storm diminished, and thus, with a great gust of wind from Cape Hatteras, it ceased. More wind came and swept away the clouds. The moon came out gloriously, and at that very moment the Paymaster's clerk exclaimed:

"Quick, Sergeant! They could see to shoot now!"

"Halt! Come along! Got 'em! Got 'em! Bully! Better mount! Better mount!"

That was what it sounded like, but the Sergeant exclaimed:

"Abraham Lincoln! If it doesn't make five times that we've been halted by those Confederate frogs!"

In half an hour more we were all safe in Morehead City, leaving the frogs to play jokes on somebody else.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Taking off Warts.

E. L. Akehurst stepped into John H. Sheehan & Co.'s store the other day and was waited upon by H. C. Hart, one of the clerks. While Mr. Akehurst was picking out change to pay his bill from a quantity of money that he had scattered on the top of a show-case, Mr. Hart remarked:

"I see that you have one or two large warts, Brother Akehurst."

"Yes, I have had them since childhood."

"Why don't you get rid of them?" was the next remark.

"How can that be done?" said Mr. Akehurst.

"Easily enough," said Mr. Hart. "Run up the stairs to Joe Monroe the other clerk, in the third story, and he will talk them off."

"Talk them off?" said Mr. Akehurst, in astonishment.

"Certainly; you go up and I'll tell him through the speaking tube that you are coming," said Mr. Hart.

Mr. Akehurst went up into the third story. "Good morning, Dr. Monroe," said he to the druggist. "Mr. Hart sent me up to have my warts talked off."

"All right," said Dr. Joe, "I'll do it."

He took hold of Mr. Akehurst's hand, looked at a large seed wart, put his fingers on it, looked Mr. Akehurst in the face, and as the latter remarked afterward: "We talked and laughed and laughed and talked like a couple of youngsters for a few minutes." Then Dr. Monroe dropped Mr. Akehurst's hand and said:

"That wart won't bother you much longer."

No fee was charged, and, after thanking Mr. Monroe, Mr. Akehurst left the store, and in the rush of the holiday trade he forgot the incident that amused him for a day. One evening, within a week, he looked at the hand where the wart had been located and found that it had wholly disappeared, and the second one had decreased in size materially. A representative of the Observer saw the mark on the spot where the wart was located. It looked like a scar resulting from a light burn.

Mr. Monroe was interviewed, and on being asked how he operated he smiled and said: There is no operation about it; I just felt of the wart and talked it off, as I have done probably 500 times a year for several years. I claim no peculiar gift in this matter, and suppose that you have the same power that I have if you would only develop it. I have a great deal of amusement in studying the faces of my patients, who express alternate feelings of doubt, hope, and surprise; but the warts go away all the same. If you have any on your hands show them to me, and I'll talk them off."—Utica Observer.

The Sea.

The temperature of the sea is the same, varying only a trifle from the ice of the pole to the burning sun of the equator. A mile down the water has a pressure of over a ton to the square inch. If a box six feet deep were filled with sea water, and allowed to evaporate under the sun, there would be two inches of salt left on the bottom. Taking the average depth of the ocean to be three miles, there would be a layer of pure salt 230 feet thick on the bed of the Atlantic. The water is colder at the bottom than at the surface. In the many bays on the coast of Norway the water often freezes at the bottom before it does above. Waves are very deceptive. To look at them in a storm one would think the water traveled. The water stays in the same place, but the motion goes on. Sometimes in storms these waves are forty feet high, and travel fifty miles an hour, more than twice as fast as the swiftest steamer. The distance from valley to valley is generally fifteen times the height, hence a wave five feet high will extend over seventy-five feet of water. Evaporation is a wonderful power in drawing the water from the sea. Every year a layer of the entire sea, fourteen feet thick, is taken up into the clouds. The wind bears their burden into the land, and the water comes down in rain upon the fields to flow back at last through rivers. The depth of the sea presents an interesting problem. If the Atlantic were lowered 6,564 feet, the distance from shore to shore would be half as great, or 1,500 miles. If lowered a little more than three miles, say 19,680 feet, there would be a road of dry land from Newfoundland to Ireland. This is the place on which the Great Atlantic cables were laid. The Mediterranean is comparatively shallow. A drying up of 660 feet would leave three distinct seas, and Africa would be joined with Italy. The British Channel is more like a pond, which accounts for its choppy waves.

The Happy Western Farmer.

The industrious farmer begins work in the morning long before the sun thinks of getting up. With his soul shrouded in gloom he proceeds to build a fire and soften his boots with a hammer. He then takes a lantern and shovels his way to the barn and feeds the hogs. It is then time to feed the newly arrived calf, which seems to delight in bunting a pail of milk all over the tiller of the soil, until he only needs to be stamped to pass for a package of oleomargarine. He crawls through a barbed-wire and digs his hay out of the snow, feeds his stock, milks the cows, cleans out the stables, gathers up the frozen chickens, chases a stray pig worth 25 cents for four miles, doctors a sick horse, freezes his fingers, gets kicked by a one-eyed mule and when the gloaming comes and quietness broods over the earth he has a single half hour to meditate and wonder how he will make the next payment on that machine note.—Pomeroy (W. T.) Washingtonian.

A teacher in a San Francisco public school was informed by a lawyer at 2 P. M. that she was heir to $200,000. He expected to hear her whoop and to see her grab her bonnet and run, but instead of that she calmly replied: "I will hear the class in geography, lick three boys, and be at your office in an hour."

THE TIDE WILL TURN.

The skipper stood on the windy pier,
"O, mate," he said, "set every sail;
For love is sweet if true and dear,
But bitter is love if love must fail."
"No hurry, skipper, to put to sea;
The wind is foul and the water low;
But the tide will turn if you wait a wee,
And you'll get 'Yes' where you got 'No.'"

The skipper turned again with a smile,
And he found his love in a better mood;
For she had had time to think the while:
"I shall find ten worse for one as good."
So the tide has turned and he got "Yes."
The sails were filled and the wind was fair.
Don't limit the pleasant words I pray,
They are for everyone everywhere.

The tide will turn if you wait a wee,
And good's not lost if but deferred;
Supposing your plans have gone a-gley,
Don't flee away like a frightened bird.
Say that you've asked a favor in vain,
To-morrow may be a better day,
The tide of fortune may turn again,
And you'll get "Yes" where you got "Nay."

The tide will turn if the thing you mind
Is worth the waiting and worth the cost;
If you seek and seek until you find,
Then your labor will never be lost.
For waiting is often working, you see,
And though the water may now be low
The tide will turn if you bide a wee,
And you'll get "Yes" where you got "No."
—Harper's Weekly.

PITH AND POINT.

The fishery question—Who'll take the eel off?—Puck.

The world may owe us a living, but the most of us have to scratch around pretty lively to get it.—Siftings.

The chick now through the eggshell breaks,
Which many weeks has hid it;
Cries, as its weak existence wakes,
"My little hatch it did it."
—Siftings.

Tobogganing might be defined as an instantaneous sensation followed by a long walk up hill.—New York World.

An astronomer says that there are canals on the planet Mars. We guess he means Saturn, for it is Saturn that has the rings.—Boston Courier.

"All flesh is grass," an ancient truth,
By which it will be seen
That in the spring-time of our youth
We are so "jolly green."
—Texas Siftings.

A boy can walk four miles to go skating, and drag some other boy's sister on his sled all the way, but when his mother wants him to bring a bag of crackers from the grocery, he tells her that his kidneys are so weak that he don't dare do it.—Inter-Ocean.

"Well, that's just like the cheek of these foreign artists," observed Mrs. Snaggs. "What is?" asked her husband. "Why, that man Munkacsy is coming here next summer to paint Niagara Falls, and I believe he'll just spoil them, so I do."—Pittsburg Chronicle.

The Prescott (Arizona) Miner has the following: "Is this reservoir water healthy?" asked a newcomer of an old Hassayamper. "Do you see that mule, stranger?" "Yes, sir." "Well, ten months ago that mule was a jack rabbit, and drinking this water has made him what he is to-day."

SURE ENOUGH.

I kissed her hand. She slapped my cheek,
The blow came sharp and quick,
Her eyes flashed fire. She did not speak,
My blood boiled hot and thick.

"What do you mean?" I asked, enraged,
"We're all alone here, and
You know quite well that we're engaged,
Then why not kiss your hand?"

"I do detest a man," she snapped,
"Who'll kiss my finger-tips,
In love's ways one should be more apt—
Else what's the use of lips?"
—Somerville Journal.

A Queer Search.

"Where do all the pins go to?" asked a friend of me the other day; and "what becomes of all the dead birds?" I asked in reply. This brief colloquy led me to try an experiment. Having a day at my disposal, in consequence of a slight indisposition, and the weather being fine, I determined to devote a whole day to looking for waste pins and dead birds. I first hunted all over the floor of my room for pins, and as I passed out of the house made a search along all the halls and at the front door; but I could not find a pin. I then walked along the street all the morning, looking for pins and dead birds, but found none. In the afternoon I took in several of the parks. I hunted near the seats for pins, and under all the trees and in the crevices of fences for birds, but all in vain.

Toward evening I realized how beneficial it is to walk "with an object," but I did not have a single pin or bird to show for my hunt. I was compelled to admit that it was something of a puzzle to tell what became of them. Not, however, that I never see a stray pin or a dead sparrow. I have met with a number of people who never saw a dead goat or a dead mule, but everybody has picked up a pin, and at long intervals seen a dead bird. The puzzle is that, while so many millions of pins and birds must be gotten away with every day, we find so few of them. By the way, I think I never saw a dead pigeon in my life.—Chicago Journal.

Amputated Fingers Reunited.

"Numerous instances have been recorded of late in the medical journals," says Science, "of the complete reunion of portions of fingers which had been cut off from the hand, in some cases by the knife and in others by the ax. In one case a man, in cutting his kindling for the morning fire, accidentally cut off the end of his thumb. He had gone from the place some twenty feet when he returned, picked up the end, wiped it and replaced it, binding it in its original place as nearly as possible. The wound united, and the finger is now as good as ever, save that its sensibility is somewhat diminished. In another case a boy chopped off the ends of three fingers. He was seen by a physician three or four hours after the accident. The end of the fingers had been found in the snow, and were brought to him. He attached them, and two of the three united."

Germany has 38,000 miles of underground telegraph wires and France 7,000, all in successful operation.

Rates of Advertising.

One Dollar per Square, of one inch space or less, for the first, and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion.

Inches.	3 m.	6 m.	12 m.
1 Inch	$ 5 00	$ 7 00	$ 11 25
2 Inches	7 00	11 25	16 00
3 Inches	10 00	15 00	22 50
4 Inches	13 50	20 00	27 00
5 Inches	15 00	22 50	30 00
¼ Column	18 00	27 00	40 00
½ Column	27 00	40 00	60 00
1 Column	40 00	60 00	100 00

The Chilton View.

W. H. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors.

"WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION."

TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, MARCH 17, 1887. NUMBER 19.

Special Advertising.

Business Notices Ten Cents per line each insertion.

Obituaries and Tributes of Respect, half rates.

Announcing candidates for office, Five Dollars, strictly in advance.

Communications recommending candidates for office will be headed as advertisements and charged for accordingly.

Liberal contracts made with those advertising by the year.

☞ The money is due on all advertising after the first publication.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Subject: "The Swelling of Jordan."

TEXT: "If thou hast run with the footmen, and they have wearied thee, then how canst thou contend with horses? and if in the land of peace, wherein thou trustedst, they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in the swelling of Jordan?"—Jeremiah xii., 5.

Not in a petulant, but in kindly terms I must complain that a wrong has been done me and the cause of honest journalism by a pretended sermon that is going the rounds of hundreds of papers with my name appended; a sermon entitled: "Frauds Detected;" text, Numbers, Ch. 32, v. 23: "But if ye will not do so, behold, ye have sinned against the Lord; and be sure your sin will find you out." Not one sentence of that pretended sermon did I preach. If this were the only offense of the kind I would not speak of it. Such a fraud is not only a wrong to me but to the gentlemen who, at these tables, Sabbath by Sabbath, take accurate report of what is said and done; and is a gross wrong to the two thousand newspapers which give my sermon in full to their readers, and often at great expense to themselves. The only fault I have to find with the newspaper press of this country is that they treat me too well. But I cannot be made responsible for entire sermons, not one word of which did I preach! But now I turn from personal explanation to the more important subject of the text.

Jeremiah had become impatient with his troubles. God says to him: "If you cannot stand these small trials and persecutions, what are you going to do when the greater trials and persecutions come? If you have been running a race with footmen and they have beaten you, what chance is there that you will outrun horses?" And then the figure is changed. You know, in April and May, the Jordan overflows its banks, and the waters rush violently on, sweeping everything before them. And God says to the prophet: "If you are overcome with smaller trials and vexations which have assaulted you, what will will you do when the trials and annoyance and persecutions of life come in a freshet?" "If in the land of peace wherein thou trustedst, they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in the swelling of Jordan?"

I propose, if God will help me, in a very practical way to ask, if it is such a difficult thing to get along without the religion of Jesus Christ, when things are comparatively smooth, what will we do without Christ amid the overpouring misfortunes and disasters of life that may come upon us? If troubles, slow as footmen, surpass us, what will we do when they take the feet of horses? And if now in our lifetime we are beaten back and submerged of sorrows because we have not the religion of Jesus to comfort us, what will we do when we stand in death, and we feel all around about us "the swelling of Jordan?" The fact that you have come here, my brother, my sister, shows that you have some things you believe in common with myself. You believe that there is a God. There is not an Atheist in all this house. I do not believe there ever was a real Atheist in all the world. Napoleon was on a ship's deck bound for Egypt. It was a bright starry night, and as he paced the deck, thinking of the great affairs of the State and of the battle, he heard two men on the deck in conversation about God; one saying there was a God and the other saying there was none. Napoleon stopped and looked up at the starry heavens, and then he turned to these men in conversation, and said: "Gentlemen, I heard one of you say there was no God; if there is no God, will you please to tell me who made all that?" Ay, if you had not been persuaded of it before, you are persuaded of it now; for the shining heavens declare the glory of God and the earth shows His handiwork. But you believe more than that; you believe that there was a Jesus; you believe that there was a Cross; you believe that you have an immortal soul; you believe that it must be regenerated by the spirit of God, or you can never dwell in bliss eternal. I think a great many of you will say that you believe it is important to have the religion of Jesus Christ every day of our life, to smooth our tempers and purify our minds, and hold us imperturbable amid all the annoyance and vexations of life. You and I have seen so many men trampled down by misfortunes because they had no faith in Jesus, and you say to yourself: "If they were so easily overcome by the trials of life, what will it be when greater misfortunes come upon them—heart-breaking calamities, tremendous griefs?" Oh, if we have no God to comfort us when our fortune goes, and we look upon the graves of our children, and our houses are desolate, what will become of us? What a sad thing it is to see men, all unhelped of God, going out to fight giants of trouble; no closet of prayer in which to retreat, no promise of mercy to soothe the soul, no rock of refuge in which to hide from the blast. Oh, when the swift coursers of trouble are brought up, champing and panting for the race, and the reins are thrown upon their necks, and the lathered flanks at every spring feel the stroke of the lash, what can we do on foot with them? How can we compete with them? If, having run with the footmen, they wearied us, how can we contend with horses?

We have all yielded to temptation. We have been surprised afterward that so small an inducement could have decoyed us from the right. How insignificant a temptation has sometimes captured our soul! And if that is so, my dear brother, what will it be when we come to stand in the presence of temptation that prostrated a David, and a Moses, and a Peter, and some of the mightiest men in all God's kingdom? Now we are honest; but suppose we were placed in some path of life, as many of God's children have been, where all the forces of earth and hell combine to capture the soul? Without Jesus we would go down under it. If already we have been beaten by insignificant footmen, we would be distanced ten thousand leagues by the horses. Ah, I don't like to hear a man say: "I could not commit such a sin as that. I can't understand how a man could be carried away like that." You don't know what you could do if the grace of God left you. You know what John Bunyan said when he saw a man staggering along the street, thoroughly embruted in his habits. He said: "There goes John Bunyan, but for the grace of God." I can say when I see one utterly fallen: "There goes DeWitt Talmage, but for the grace of God!" If we have been delivered from temptation it is because the strong arm of the Lord Almighty has been about us, and not because we were any better than they. It is a great folly to borrow trouble. If we can meet the misfortunes of to-day, we will be able to meet the troubles of to-morrow; but suppose now if through a lack of the religion of Jesus, we are overthrown by small sorrows, does not our common sense teach us that we cannot stand up against great ones? If we cannot carry a pound, can we carry a thousand pounds? If we are discomfited coming into battle with one regiment, a brigade will cut us to pieces. If we are unfit to cope with one small trial, won't we be overcome by greater ones? If the footmen are too much for us, won't the odds be more fearful against us when we contend with horses? I thank God that some of His dear children have been delivered. How was it that Paul could say: "Sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; poor, yet making many rich; having nothing, yet possessing all things?" And David, the psalmist, soars up into the rock of God's strength and becomes thoroughly composed amid all his sorrows, saying: "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in the time of trouble; therefore will not we fear though the earth be removed, though the mountains be cast into the midst of the sea, though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountain shake with the swelling thereof. Selah."

But my text suggests something in advance of anything I have said. We must all quit this life. However sound our health may be, it must break down; however good our title may be to houses, land, and estates, we must surrender them. We will hear a voice bidding us away from all these places. We will have to start on a pilgrimage from which we can never come back. We will have seen for the last time the evening star, and watched the last summer cloud, and felt the breath of the spring wind for the last time. Hands of loved ones may be stretched out to hold us back, but they cannot—go we must. About all other exits and chances we may trifle, but not about this. Stupendous moment of life-quitting. Oh, when the great tides of eternity arise about us, and fill the soul and surround it, and sweep it out toward rapture or woe, ah, that will be the swelling of Jordan!" I know people sometimes talk very merrily about the departure from this life. I am sorry to hear it. But men do make fun of the passage from one world to another. Byron joked a great deal about it, but when it came he shivered with horror. Many an infidel has scoffed at the idea of fearing a future world, but lying upon his pillow in the last hour his teeth have chattered with terror. I saw, in Westminster Abbey, an epitaph which a poet ordered to be put upon his tomb:

> "Life is a jest,
> And all things show it,
> I thought so once,
> But now I know it."

I thought how inapt that, in a place of sepulchre, men should try their witticisms. A great German having rejected Christ, in his last moment said: "Give me light, give me light!" Oh, we may be smart with our witticism about the last hour; but when it comes, and the tides are rising, and the surf is beating, and the winds are howling, we will each one, my brethren, find for himself that it is "the swelling of Jordan!" Our natural courage won't hold out then. However familiar we may have been with scenes of mortality, however much we may have screwed our courage up, we want something more than natural resources. When the northeast wind blows off from the sea of death, it will put out all earthly lights. The lamp of the Gospel, God-lighted, is the only lamp that can stand in that blast. The weakest arm holding that shall not be confounded; the strongest one rejecting that shall stumble and die. When the Jordan rises in its wrath, the first dash of its wave will swamp them for ever. We feel how sad it is for a man to attempt this life without religion. We see what a doleful thing it is for a man to go down into the misfortunes of life without Christian solace; but if that be so, how much more terrible when that man comes face to face with the solemnities of the last hour! Oh, if in the bright sunshine of health and prosperity a man felt the need of something better, how will he feel when the shadows of the last hour gather above his pillow? If, in the warmth of worldly prosperity, he was sometimes dismayed, how will he feel when the last chill creeps over him? If, while things were comparatively smooth he was disquieted, what will he do in the agonies of dissolution? "If, in the land of peace in which he trusted, they wearied him, what will he do amid the swelling of Jordan?"

Oh, I rejoice to know that so many of God's children have gone through that pass without a shudder! Some one said to a dying Christian: "Isn't it hard for you to get out of this world?" "Oh, no," he says, "it is easy dying, it is blessed dying, it is glorious dying;" and then he pointed to a clock on the wall, and he said: "The last two hours in which I have been dying, I have had more joy than all the years of my life." A general came into the hospital after the battle, and there were many seriously wounded, and there was one man dying, and the general said: "Ah, my dear fellow, you seem very much wounded. I am afraid you are not going to get well." "No," said the soldier: "I am not going to get well, but I feel very happy!" Oh, I have seen them, and so have you, go out of this life without a tear on their cheek! There was weeping all round the room, but no weeping in the bed; the cheeks were dry. They were not thrown down into darkness, they were lifted up. We saw the tides rising around them, and the swelling of the wave. It washed them off from the cares and toils of life; it washed them on toward the beach of heaven. They waved to us a farewell kiss as they stood on deck, and floated down further and further, wafted by gales from heaven, until they were lost to our sight—mortality having become immortality:

> "Life's duty done, as sinks the clay,
> Light from its load the spirit flies;
> While heaven and earth combine to say,
> How blest the righteous when he dies!"

What high consolation to you that your departed friends were not submerged in the swelling of Jordan! The Israelites were just as thoroughly alive on the western banks of the Jordan; as they had been on the eastern banks of the Jordan; and our departed Christian friends have only crossed over—not sick, not dead, not exhausted, not extinguished, not blotted out, but with healthier respiration and stouter pulses, and keener eyesight, and better prospects, crossed over, their sins, their physical and mental disquiet, all left clear this side, an eternally-flowing, impassable obstacle between them and all human and Satanic pursuit. Crossed over! Oh, I shake hands of congratulation with all the bereaved in the consideration that our departed Christian friends are safe!

Why was there, years ago, so much joy in certain circles in New York when people heard from their friends who were on board the City of Brussels? It was thought that vessel had gone to the bottom of the sea; and when the friends on this side heard that the steamer had arrived safely in Liverpool, had we not the right to congratulate the people in New York that their friends had got safely across? And is it not right this morning that I congratulate you that your departed friends are safe on the shore of heaven? Would you have them back again? Would you have those old parents back again? You know how hard it was sometimes for them to get their breath in the stifled atmosphere of the summer; would you have them back in our earthly summers, or chilled of our winters? Would you have your children back again? Would you have them take the risk of temptations which throng every human pathway? Would you have them cross the Jordan three times. In addition to having crossed it already, cross it again to greet you now, and then cross back afterward? For certainly you would not want to keep them forever out of heaven. If they had lived forty or fifty years longer, would they have been safe? Perhaps so, perhaps not.

> "Pause and weep, not for the freed from pain,
> But that the sigh of love would pull them back again."

I ask a question, and there seems to come back the answer in heavenly echo: "What! will you never be sick again?" "Never—sick—again." "What! will you never be tired again?" "Never—tired—again." "What! will you never weep again?" "Never—weep—again." "What! will you never die again?" "Never—die—again." Oh, ye army of departed kindred, we hail you from bank to bank! Wait for us when the Jordan of death shall part for us. Come down and meet us halfway between the willowed banks of earth and the palm groves of heaven.

> "On Jordan's stormy banks I stand,
> And cast a wistful eye
> To Canaan's fair and happy land,
> Where my possessions lie.
> O, the transporting, rapturous scene
> That rises on my sight!
> Sweet fields arrayed in living green,
> And rivers of delight."

But there is one step still in advance suggested by this subject. If this religion of Christ is so important in life, and so important in the last hours of life, how much more important it will be in the great eternity I need not stand here and argue it. There is something within your soul that says now, while I speak: "I am immortal; the stars shall die, but I am immortal." You feel that your existence on earth is only a small piece of your being. It is only a mile up to the grave, but it is ten thousand miles beyond. This slab of the tomb is only the milestone on which we read of infinite distance yet to be traveled. The world itself will grow old and die. The stars of our night will burn down in their sockets and expire. The sun, like a spark struck from an anvil, will flash and go out. The winds will utter their last whisper, and ocean heave its last groan; but you and I will live for ever! Gigantic—immortal. Mighty to suffer or enjoy. Mighty to love or hate. Mighty to soar or to sink. Then, what will be to us the store, the shop, the office, the applause of the world, the scorn of our enemies, the things that lifted us up, and the things that pressed us down? What to John Wesley are all the mobs that howled after him? What to Voltaire are all the nations that applauded him? What to Paul, now, the dungeons that chilled him? What to Latimer, now, the flames that consumed him? All those who through the grace of Christ reach that land, will never be disturbed. None to dispute their throne, they shall reign for ever and ever. But, alas, for those who have made no preparation for the future! When the sharp-shod hoofs of eternal disaster come up panting and swift to go over them, how will they contend with horses? And when the waves of their wretchedness rise up, white and foamy, under the swooping of eternal storms, and the billows become more wrathful and dash more high, oh what will they do "amid the swelling of Jordan?"

If I could come into your heart this morning, I would see that many of you, my dear friends, had vowed to be the Lord's. I know not what sickness it was, or what trial; but I verily believe there is not a man in the house but has sometime vowed he would be the Lord's. It might have at the time when your child lay sick, you said: "Oh Lord, if thou wilt let this child get well, I will be a Christian." Or it might have been in some business trouble, when you have said: "O Lord, if thou wilt let me keep my property, I will be a Christian." You kept your property, your child got well, the peril passed. Are you a Christian? History says that long ago it had been announced that the world was coming to an end, and there was great excitement in London. It was said that the world would perish on a certain Friday. On Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday the people were in the cathedral, praying and weeping. It seemed as if the whole English nation was being converted to God, for it was announced as certain by philosophers that on that coming Friday the world would perish. Friday came, and there were no portents, no fires in the air, no earthquakes. The day passed along just like every other day, and when it was past and the night came, it is said that in London there was a scene of riot, and wassail, and drunkenness, and debauchery such as had never been witnessed. They forgot their vow, they forgot their repentance, they forgot their good resolutions. O, how much human nature in that! While trials and misfortunes come to us, and we are down deep in darkness and trouble we make vows. We say: "O Lord, do so, and I will do so." The darkness passes, the peril goes away. We are as we were before, or worse; for oh, how often I have seen men start for the kingdom of God, come up to within arm's reach of it, and then go back farther from God than they ever were before, dropping from the very mount of their privilege into darkness forever! Oh, how ungrateful we have been! Do you know how much God has done for you and for me? Have you never felt it? How much He did for you to-day! Who spread the table for you? Who watched you last night? Who has been kind and good to you all your life long? Oh how ungrateful we have been! Methinks the goodness of God ought to lead this whole audience to repentance. I know not your individual history. Some of you I never saw before, some of you I will never see again; but I know that God has been good to you. What return have you made? There was a steamer on one of the Western lakes heavily laden with passengers, and there was a little child who stood on the side of the taffrail, leaning over and watching the water, when she lost her balance and dropped into the waves. The lake was very rough. The mother cried: "Save my child! Save my child!" There seemed none disposed to leap into the water. There was a Newfoundland dog on deck. He looked up in his master's face, as if for orders. His master said: "Tray, overboard, catch 'em!" The dog sprang into the water, caught the child by the garments, and swam back to the steamer. The child was picked up by loving hands, the dog was lifted on deck, and the mother, ere she fainted away, in utter thanksgiving to that dog, threw her arms around its neck and kissed it; but the dog shook himself off from her embrace, and went and laid down as though he had accomplished nothing. Shall a mother be grateful to a dog that saves her child, and be ungrateful to the Son of God who, from the heights of heaven, plunged into the depths of darkness, and suffering, and woe that he might lift us up out of our sin and place us on the rock of ages? Oh, the height, the depth, the length, the infinity, the horror of our ingratitude! Don't you treat Jesus like that any more. Don't you thrust Him back from your soul. He has been the best friend you ever had. You will want Him after awhile. When the world is going away from your grasp, and all the lights that shine on your soul are going out, and the friends that stand around you can do you no good, and you feel your feet slipping from beneath you—oh, then you will want Him—the loving Jesus, the sympathetic Jesus, the pardoning Jesus—to stand close by you, and hold you up "amid the swelling of Jordan!"

The New Overcoat.

A passenger from Springfield was telling of the purchase of an overcoat from a Hebrew merchant on South Clark street. The price was $30. "If dot goat doan't suit you, pring it pack right avay, an' ve'll gif you your monish pack, subject to all fluctuations in the market. If de goat market goes up, you get more monish as you paid vor him; if de goat market goes down, you lose the differance only, my dear, pesides havin' de use of de goat." The passenger from Springfield paid over his $30 and took the coat. Next day, having examined the garment more thoroughly, he concluded that he didn't want it, and so took it back. "Vot! Dot goat not suit you?" exclaimed the merchant. "Vell, ve take him back. Isaac, put dot goat on de shelluf, an' gif de shendtlemans six tollars." "But I paid you $30 for the coat, and want my money back." "So, my friend, but goats haf gone down last night. I guess it vos de war news from Europe. Goats are gone down, an' ve have marked our whole stock at goat. Isaac, $6 for the shentlemans. You only lose de difference, my dear, an' you had de goat all night."—Chicago Herald.

A Chestnut.

A gentleman returning home one very clear night lately with his little girl was pointed out by her to the Pleides. "Look!" she exclaimed: "see those little stars all cuddled together to keep warm!" A pretty story, isn't it? Naturally, the father told it proudly to the first person he met, who happened to be a young women who writes for the press. The next day but one the gentleman, meeting an acquaintance told him the story of the little girl and the stars. "Chestnut!" said the acquaintance; "I saw that story in the papers." The father was aghast and indignant. To have his own little story, which he knew was as new and original as could be, pronounced an old one, borrowed from the papers! It was a fact, nevertheless, for he discovered presently that the story had appeared in one of the daily papers on the very day after he related it to the young lady. Nobody could blame her. But the father's exclusive property in his daughter's odd saying had "ceased and determined" at a very early stage in its career.—Boston Post.

Mr. Stanley, the explorer, says that the greatest difficulty encountered in building railroads in Africa is that the ostriches eat up the rails as fast as they are laid.—Norristown Herald.

A DAY.

Talk not of sad November, when a day
 Of warm, glad sunshine fills the sky of noon,
 And a wind, borrowed from some morn of June,
Stirs the brown grasses and the leafless spray.

On the unfrosted pool the pillared pines
 Lay their long shafts of shadow; the small rill,
 Singing a pleasant song of summer still,
A line of silver, down the hill-slope shines.

Hushed the bird-voices and the hum of bees,
 In the thin grass the crickets pipe no more;
 But still the squirrel hoards his winter store,
And drops his nut-shells from the shag-bark trees.

Softly the dark green hemlocks whisper: high
 Above, the spires of yellowing larches show,
 Where the woodpecker and home-loving crow
And jay and nut-hatch winter's threat defy.

O gracious beauty, ever new and old!
 O sights and sounds of nature, doubly dear
 When the low sunshine warns the closing year
Of snow-blown fields and waves of Arctic cold!

Close to my heart I fold each lovely thing
 The sweet day yields; and, not disconsolate,
 With the calm patience of the woods I wait
For leaf and blossom when God gives us Spring!

—J. G. Whittier, in Atlantic Monthly.

A SWAMP MYSTERY.

BY WILLIAM O. STODDARD.

The summer of the year 1862 was particularly hot on the coast of North Carolina. It even did something to counteract the more destructive heat of the civil war.

General Burnside had captured a long reach of the seaboard, and had established his headquarters at Newberne. No battles followed very soon, nor any storms to speak of, but the army and the weather were fast getting into a high state of preparation for either kind of event.

There were Union troops at Fort Macon and Morehead City, not many miles up the coast from Newberne, and much pay was due them.

The money came down from the North in July, and a couple of paymasters received orders to go at once and deal it out to the men.

Before the war a railway had been constructed from Newberne to Morehead City. Its rails were still there, but all its rolling stock, with the exception of one hand-car had gone into the interior the State. The viaduct was only just wide enough to carry the rails, and much of its course was through a swamp whose dense bushes were now luxuriatly reaching out as if they meant to capture the track before the end of the season.

The Quartermaster placed his one hand-car at the disposal of the paymasters. He did so with the pleasant information that at the previous evening the busy Confederates had made a raid and had swept away all the pickets posted along the line of the railway. New pickets had been posted, he told them, and their proposed trip would be reasonably safe.

"That is," he said, "I guess you're safe from any Confeds; but if you don't get through before dark I'd advise you to be pretty prompt about answering any hail. The boys'll all be wide awake this time. They won't be slow about taking care of themselves in the dark. Not a man of 'em wants to go to Wilmington just now, nor to Andersonville either."

That warning made the Paymaster shake his head and grew in importance before the hand-car set out, for it was plain enough that it would be dark before the trip could be half made. Precisely how dark it would be or why was not as yet imagined by anybody.

There were nine men huddled on that hand-car when it went. A sergeant and four soldiers were its motive power, guard and garrison. The writer of this story was there altogether as an adventurer. Two paymasters, with the rank of major, and one clerk were in charge of a black box containing over $80,000 in greenbacks, to be scattered among the volunteers on the morrow.

The air grew more and more close and sultry, and just before night a sort of haze began to rise over the eastern horizon.

"That's it, Major," said the Sergeant to one of the paymasters. "We're going to hear from Cape Hatteras."

"Storm coming?"

"Right along. 'Twon't take it long o co me."

He was correct as to the time required by Cape Hatteras, or whatever was managing that storm. The sky rapidly grew black as ink and darkness came with but moderate reference to the departing sun.

Just before entering the denser thickets of the swamp, a picket was reached and the officer in charge repeated the warning of the Quartermaster:

"Be ready to answer right away. It'll be pitch dark and some of the boys are nervous, after last night's work. They'll shoot quick."

That was to the Sergeant, but it was a Paymaster who replied:

"Well, now, Captain, we didn't say so, but we thought the trip would be safer by night than by day. The men have got to have the money."

"Hope the Confeds won't get it then. Put her through, Sergeant, but look sharp. The storm's most got here." He also was correct about the weather. In ten minutes more such a storm had arrived as was a credit to Cape Hatteras and the whole seacoast of North Carolina. On rolled the handcar, its crouching passengers drenched with rain that fell in streams rather than drops. The lightning flashed almost incessantly, and the thunder seemed to be rolling around all over the swamp. Except where a streak of lightning cleft it, the darkness was like a solid wall, and there was neither headlight nor hand lantern provided for that handcar.

"Worst storm I ever saw," remarked the Sergeant, and one of the brace of men who were acting as motive power grunted back at him. "It's the worst kind of a storm, but you can't see it."

It was a just correction of the statement made by the Sergeant, but at that moment a hoarse, deep, all but sepulchral voice from among the bushes and blackness at the right of the track commanded:

"Halt!"

"Stop her! Quick, boys!" exclaimed the Sergeant, and as the men changed instantly from motive power into brakes, he sprang from the car into water above his knees and waded forward to answer the hail and give the countersign.

It was all in vain. Down came a double deluge of rain and thicker darkness. Then a vividness of blue electricity danced through the dripping bushes and a great roar of thunder followed it as if in search of the hidden "picket." Neither rain, nor lightning, nor thunder, nor the anxious questionings of the Sergeant discovered him.

There he was, or must have been, dead or alive, for he had said "halt," but that was apparently all he had to say.

The Sergeant splashed his way back to the hand-car, using very strong language, and it was decided to go forward.

"We're just as likely to be fired into, first thing," remarked the Paymaster's clerk, "and they'd hit some of us, sure!"

Both of the paymasters agreed with him, and one expressed his satisfaction that the box containing the greenbacks was waterproof.

"That's more than I am," said one of the soldiers. "This 'er rain's got through my roof. I can feel it trickle down inside of me."

The hand-car was not propelled rapidly after that, but the lightning and thunder worked harder than ever. Perhaps half a mile had been gained, when another voice, on the left this time and not so near, but equally hoarse and peremptory, shouted:

"Halt!"

Other words which seemed to follow were swallowed up by a wide-mouthed clap of thunder, and so was the Sergeant's prompt response, but in an instant he was among the bushes.

The first we heard from him was:

"Boys, it's up to my waist and getting deeper!"

"Go on, Sergeant!" shouted one of the paymasters. "They'll be shooting at us if they don't get an answer!"

"Hurrah for General Burnside!" squawked the Paymaster's clerk, in a vague effort to let any supposed picket know which side he was on, but a severe sternness from the further end bade him:

"Shut up! Halt! Come along!"

"I'm coming!" shouted the Sergeant. "Friend! Paymaster!"

"Shut up! Come along!" responded the threatening voice beyond him.

For a full quarter of an hour the Sergeant groped and floundered among those bushes. Again he used strong language; very strong, indeed; but not a soul came to meet him, nor did another word reply to his repeated requests that the picket should advise him as to what course he should take.

The party on the hand-car cowered under sheets and torrents and whole mill-ponds of falling water, and hoped that there might be a cessation of the lightning flashes, so that any hidden riflemen would be less able to shoot straight.

"I give it up," said the voice of the Sergeant at last. He was only three paces from the car, but he was invisible.

"The boys know who we are," said one of the soldiers, "and we can go on; but it's an awful mean joke to play in such a rain as this."

"There's something more than that in it," said one of the paymasters. "There's a trap of some kind. We'll never get to Morehead City."

"We'll go ahead, anyhow," said the Sergeant. "There's as much danger behind us there is before."

"I'm glad I hurrahed for Burnside," remarked the Paymaster's clerk.

On went the hand-car into the water-soaked darkness, and another mile or more was rolled over before the wayside summons was sonorously repeated.

"Quick, now, Sergeant!" said the Senior Paymaster.

"Don't know, Major," he replied. "That fellow's away into the swamp. He's got under cover. I couldn't even find him. Risk it! Boys, risk it! Run ahead. They can't hit us if they do fire."

"Halt!" came warningly out of the blackness as the hand-car dashed forward, and with it came thunder that sounded like a rattle of musketry.

"They didn't work their joke this time, Major," said the Sergeant.

"There's more than that in it," said the Major. "I'm glad we're past that picket, but I'm afraid we're running into trouble. They may have surprised Morehead City and the fort."

"Reckon not, Major. Run her your level best, boys. We won't halt again for anybody."

That was brave talk, but in less than twenty minutes he exclaimed:

"Hold on, boys! That picket is right on the track. Stop her for your lives!"

They did so, as an ominous and menacing throat repeated:

"Halt! Halt!" and from the rear, at the same moment, other voices seemed to say:

"Got 'em! Got 'em now?"

"I'm afraid they have," groaned the Major, "money and all, and we're on our way to Wilmington."

"No use to hurrah for Burnside this time," squeaked the Paymaster's clerk.

The Sergeant ran ahead along the track until he missed his footing in the dark and went off into a grimy depth of water and black mud, just as somebody said:

"Who's there?" and he was trying to respond:

"Friend, with the countersign."

His mouth has too much in it for success, and once more he used strong and very volcanic expressions as soon as his vocal organs were at work again. Then we heard him say:

"Come along, boys. There isn't anybody here, and the water's six inches deep over the track."

It was a doleful mystery, and the chance of being fired into grew grisley enough as the car was dubiously urged forward.

The fierceness of the storm diminished, and thus, with a great gust of wind from Cape Hatteras, it ceased. More wind came and swept away the clouds. The moon came out gloriously, and at that very moment the Paymaster's clerk exclaimed:

"Quick, Sergeant! They could see to shoot now!"

"Halt! Come along! Got 'em! Got 'em! Bully! Better mount! Better mount!"

That was what it sounded like, but the Sergeant exclaimed:

"Abraham Lincoln! If it doesn't make five times that we've been halted by those Confederate frogs!"

In half an hour more we were all safe in Morehead City, leaving the frogs to play jokes on somebody else.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Taking off Warts.

E. L. Akehurst stepped into John H. Sheehan & Co.'s store the other day and was waited upon by H. C. Hart, one of the clerks. While Mr. Akehurst was picking out change to pay his bill from a quantity of money that he had scattered on the top of a show-case, Mr. Hart remarked:

"I see that you have one or two large warts, Brother Akehurst."

"Yes, I have had them since childhood."

"Why don't you get rid of them?" was the next remark.

"How can that be done?" said Mr. Akehurst.

"Easily enough," said Mr. Hart. "Run up the stairs to Joe Monroe the other clerk, in the third story, and he will talk them off."

"Talk them off!" said Mr. Akehurst, in astonishment.

"Certainly; you go up and I'll tell him through the speaking tube that you are coming," said Mr. Hart.

Mr. Akehurst went up into the third story. "Good morning, Dr. Monroe," said he to the druggist. "Mr. Hart sent me up to have my warts talked off."

"All right," said Dr. Joe, "I'll do it."

He took hold of Mr. Akehurst's hand, looked at a large seed wart, put his fingers on it, looked Mr. Akehurst in the face, and as the latter remarked afterward: "We talked and laughed and laughed and talked like a couple of youngsters for a few minutes." Then Dr. Monroe dropped Mr. Akehurst's hand and said:

"That wart won't bother you much longer."

No fee was charged, and, after thanking Mr. Monroe, Mr. Akehurst left the store, and in the rush of the holiday trade he forgot the incident that amused him for a day. One evening, within a week, he looked at the hand where the wart had been located and found that it had wholly disappeared, and the second one had decreased in size materially. A representative of the Observer saw the mark on the spot where the wart was located. It looked like a scar resulting from a light burn.

Mr. Monroe was interviewed, and on being asked how he operated he smiled and said: There is no operation about it; I just felt of the wart and talked it off, as I have done probably 500 times a year for several years. I claim no peculiar gift in this matter, and suppose that you have the same power that I have if you would only develop it. I have a great deal of amusement in studying the faces of my patients, who express alternate feelings of doubt, hope, and surprise; but the warts go away all the same. If you have any on your hands show them to me, and I'll talk them off."—Utica Observer.

The Sea.

The temperature of the sea is the same, varying only a trifle from the ice of the pole to the burning sun of the equator. A mile down the water has a pressure of over a ton to the square inch. If a box six feet deep were filled with sea water, and allowed to evaporate under the sun, there would be two inches of salt left on the bottom. Taking the average depth of the ocean to be three miles, there would be a layer of pure salt 230 feet thick on the bed of the Atlantic. The water is colder at the bottom than at the surface. In the many bays on the coast of Norway the water often freezes at the bottom before it does above. Waves are very deceptive. To look at them in a storm one would think the water traveled. The water stays in the same place, but the motion goes on. Sometimes in storms these waves are forty feet high, and travel fifty miles an hour, more than twice as fast as the swiftest steamer. The distance from valley to valley is generally fifteen times the height, hence a wave five feet high will extend over seventy-five feet of water. Evaporation is a wonderful power in drawing the water from the sea. Every year a layer of the entire sea, fourteen feet thick, is taken up into the clouds. The winds bear their burden into the land, and the water comes down in rain upon the fields to flow back at last through rivers. The depth of the sea presents an interesting problem. If the Atlantic were lowered 6,564 feet, the distance from shore to shore would be half as great, or 1,500 miles. If lowered a little more than three miles, say 19,680 feet, there would be a road of dry land from Newfoundland to Ireland. This is the place on which the Great Atlantic cables were laid. The Mediterranean is comparatively shallow. A drying up of 660 feet would leave three distinct seas, and Africa would be joined with Italy. The British Channel is more like a pond, which accounts for its choppy waves.

The Happy Western Farmer.

The industrious farmer begins work in the morning long before the sun thinks of getting up. With his soul shrouded in gloom he proceeds to build a fire and soften his boots with a hammer. He then takes a lantern and shovels his way to the barn and feeds the hogs. It is then time to feed the newly arrived calf, which seems to delight in bunting a pail of milk all over the tiller of the soil, until he only needs to be stamped to pass for a package of oleomargarine. He crawls through a barbed-wire and digs his hay out of the snow, feeds his stock, milks the cows, cleans out the stables, gathers the frozen chickens, chases a stray pig worth 25 cents for four miles, doctors a sick horse, freezes his fingers, gets kicked by a one-eyed mule and when the gloaming comes and quietness broods over the earth he has a single half hour to meditate and wonder how he will make the next payment on that machine note.—Pomeroy (W. T.) Washingtonian.

A teacher in a San Francisco public school was informed by a lawyer at 2 P. M. that she was heir to $200,000. He expected to hear her whoop and to see her grab her bonnet and run, but instead of that she calmly replied: "I will hear the class in geography, lick three boys, and be at your office in an hour."

THE TIDE WILL TURN.

The skipper stood on the windy pier,
 "O, mate," he said, "set every sail;
For love is sweet if true and dear,
 But bitter is love if love must fail."
"No hurry, skipper, to put to sea;
 The wind is foul and the water low;
But the tide will turn if you wait a wee,
 And you'll get 'Yes' where you got 'No.'"

The skipper turned again with a smile,
 And he found his love in a better mood;
For she had had time to think the while:
 "I shall find ten worse for one as good."
So the tide has turned and he got "Yes."
 The sails were filled and the wind was fair.
Don't limit the pleasant words I pray
 They are for everyone everywhere.

The tide will turn if you wait a wee,
 And good's not lost if but deferred;
Supposing your plans have gone a-gley,
 Don't flee away like a frightened bird.
Say that you've asked a favor in vain,
 To-morrow may be a better day,
The tide of fortune may turn again,
 And you'll get "Yes" where you got "Nay."

The tide will turn if the thing you mind
 Is worth the waiting and worth the cost;
If you seek and seek until you find,
 Then your labor will never be lost.
For waiting is often working, you see,
 And though the water may now be low
The tide will turn if you bide a wee,
 And you'll get "Yes" where you got "No."

—Harper's Weekly.

PITH AND POINT.

The fishery question—Who'll take the eel off?—Puck.

The world may owe us a living, but the most of us have to scratch around pretty lively to get it.—Siftings.

The chick now through the eggshell breaks,
 Which many weeks has hid it;
Cries, as its weak existence wakes,
 "My little hatch it did it."

—Siftings.

Tobogganing might be defined as an instantaneous sensation followed by a long walk up hill.—New York World.

An astronomer says that there are canals on the planet Mars. We guess he means Saturn, for it is Saturn that has the rings.—Bostin Courier.

"All flesh is grass," an ancient truth,
 By which it will be seen
That in the spring-time of our youth
 We are so "jolly green."

—Texas Siftings.

A boy can walk four miles to go skating, and drag some other boy's sister on his sled all the way, but when his mother wants him to bring a bag of crackers from the grocery, he tells her that his kidneys are so weak that he don't dare do it.—Inter-Ocean.

"Well, that's just like the cheek of these foreign artists," observed Mrs. Snaggs. "What is?" asked her husband. "Why, that man Munkacsy is coming here next summer to paint Niagara Falls, and I believe he'll just spoil them, so I do."—Pittsburg Chronicle.

The Prescott (Arizona) Miner has the following: "Is this reservoir water healthy?" asked a newcomer of an old Hassayamper. "Do you see that mule, stranger?" "Yes, sir." "Well, ten months ago that mule was a jack rabbit, and drinking this water has made him what he is to-day."

SURE ENOUGH.

I kissed her hand. She slapped my cheek,
 The blow came sharp and quick,
Her eyes flashed fire. She did not speak,
 My blood boiled hot and thick.

"What do you mean?" I asked, enraged,
 "We're all alone here, and
You know quite well that we're engaged,
 Then why not kiss your hand?"

"I do detest a man," she snapped,
 "Who'll kiss my finger-tips,
In love's ways one should be more apt—
 Else what's the use of lips?"

—Somerville Journal.

A Queer Search.

"Where do all the pins go to?" asked a friend of me the other day; and "what becomes of all the dead birds?" I asked in reply. This brief colloquy led me to try an experiment. Having a day at my disposal, in consequence of a slight indisposition, and the weather being fine, I determined to devote a whole day to looking for waste pins and dead birds. I first hunted all over the floor of my room for pins, and as I passed out of the house made a search along all the halls and at the front door; but I could not find a pin. I then walked along the street all the morning, looking for pins and dead birds, but found none. In the afternoon I took in several of the parks. I hunted near the seats for pins, and under all the trees and in the crevices of fences for birds, but all in vain.

Toward evening I realized how beneficial it is to walk "with an object," but I did not have a single pin or bird to show for my hunt. I was compelled to admit that it was something of a puzzle to tell what became of them. Not, however, that I never see a stray pin or a dead sparrow. I have met with a number of people who never saw a dead goat or a dead mule, but everybody has picked up a pin, and at long intervals seen a dead bird. The puzzle is that, while so many millions of pins and birds must be gotten away with every day, we find so few of them. By the way, I think I never saw a dead pigeon in my life.—Chicago Journal.

Amputated Fingers Reunited.

"Numerous instances have been recorded of late in the medical journals," says Science, "of the complete reunion of portions of fingers which had been cut off from the hand, in some cases by the knife and in others by the ax. In one case a man, in cutting his kindling for the morning fire, accidentally cut off the end of his thumb. He had gone from the place some twenty feet when he returned, picked up the end, wiped it and replaced it, binding it in its original place as nearly as possible. The wound united, and the finger is now as good as ever, save that its sensibility is somewhat diminished. In another case a boy chopped off the ends of three fingers. He was seen by a physician three or four hours after the accident. The end of the fingers had been found in the snow, and were brought to him. He attached them, and two of the three united."

Germany has 26,000 miles of underground telegraph wires and France 7,000, all in successful operation.

CHILTON VIEW.

Published Every Thursday Morning.

CLANTON, ALA., MAR. 17, 1887.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One copy one year.	$1.50
One copy six months	75
One copy four "	50

Vincent Captured.

Ike Vincent, Alabama's defaulting Treasurer, was captured last week at Big Sandy, Texas, and brought to Montgomery Tuesday where he is now confined in jail. It seems that he had a ranch in Mexico but made frequent trips into the United States and was captured. The full penalty of the law should be applied in his case.

Bill Arp, writing to the Atlanta Constitution, says: Mississppi is a proud old State. She has no business boom like Alabama, and would not bend her stately head half an inch to have one." That sort of taffy sounds nice and tickles our vanity, but that same pride which despises business, is the cause now of so many of us being out at elbows, and with sky-lights in the roof of our pantaloons.—Kosciusko Star.

A Texas editor who has suffered much, frees his mind as follows: "As a great moral agent a woman is a yard wide and all wool, but as a book agent she cuts a swath a mile wide and never misses a victim. We would much rather have a friend pour a pitcher of common molasses down our back than to be interviewed by a lady book agent whose mouth resembles a crack in a lemon and whose nose looks like an exclamation point in a whirlwind."

The general and special appropriations made by the legislature aggregate $2,160,000 for the next two years. The revenue of the state for the same period amounts to $1,900,000. The taxpayers who will have to find the money to meet these appropriations would be glad to have some of the statesmen to explain how the deficiency of $300,000 is to be met, especially since the tax rate for this year is reduced to five and a half mills on the dollar and for next year five mills. It will not do to say that increased assessments will provide a way, for that is mere supposition, and anticipation of increased values will not meet current expenses or pay debts.—Fort Payne Journal.

A Happy Home.

A happy home is the brighest spot on earth that the eye of God looks down on. Love and peace in his home and sunshine round a man wherever he goes; disorder and trouble there is misery everywhere. There are few worries of life which a man cannot now and then shake off, but who can shake himself free from the skeleton in the closet, from the worry in the household, and the blister on the heart? A day will tell how many a man carried that with him without wincing, down to the grave. When husband and wife are helpmeets to each other in the best sense, when order, love and goodness prevail in the house, then the man who has a hard battle in life to fight can leave the struggles behind him when he enters there. With all our faults, we are the most home-loving of people, and that is the reason why we are the greatest of people. Whatever helps home life, is a national blessing; whatever hurts home life, is a national curse; and the greatest curse that can touch these blessings is what would tamper with the home.

National Aid for Common Schools.

SENATOR PUGH, ALABAMA.

My service on the Committee on Education and Labor, for five months during the last summer and fall enabled me to learn something of the public necessity for the aid proposed by the bill, and the public demand for such an appropriation. Every witness examined by the committee upon the condition and needs of the public schools in the Southern States urged Federal aid to these States to enable them to extend the benefits of a common-school education to their illiterate children. No, Mr. President, there is no usurpation in this bill. There is no danger in it as a precedent. There is a wide difference between aid, and jurisdiction. To tell me that the United States can impose these evils and dangers upon the State by the exercise of undoubted powers, and that there is no authority to aid the States in relieving themselves and the Union of standing menace to both, of negro illiteracy, is to go a little deeper into strict construction than I am willing to follow.

SENATOR LAMAR, MISSISSIPPI.

I have bestowed upon the constitutional question involved in this measure the study which its importance deserves. I have no doubt about the constitutional authority of Congress to pass this measure. In my opinion this is the first step that this Goverment has ever taken in the solution of what is called the race problem, and I believe it will tell more powerfully and decisively upon the future destinies of the colored race in America than any measure or ordinance which has yet been adopted in reference to it. I think that this measure is fraught with almost unspeakable benefit to the entire population of the South, white and black. It will excite a new interest among our people; it will stimulate both State and local communities to more energetic exertions and to greater sacrifices, because it will encourage them in their hopes in grappling and struggling with a task before whose vast proportions they have stood appalled in the consciousness of the inadequacy of their own resources to meet it.

AN ACT. [H. B. 197

For the relief of soldiers maimed or disabled during the late war. and widows of Confederate soldiers, whose husbands were killed or died in said war, and who have not since remarried.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Alabama, That any resident of this State who while in the military services of the State, or of the Confederate States, lost an arm or a leg, or who received such wound in such service as renders him physically incapable of making a livelihood by labor, or who lost the use of an arm or a leg while in such service shall be entitled to the benefit of this act, as hereinafter provided, and any such resident who desires to avail himself of the provisions of this act, must within six months after its passage, present a written application to the Judge of Probate of the county wherein he may reside, that he was a resident of the State at the time of the passage of the act, and is a resident at the time he makes such application; setting forth the company and the regiment or command to which at the time of such service he belonged; the time and place of receiving his wound, and his present business and employment, which statement must be sworn to before such Judge of Probate, the original of which said application shall be kept by the Juge of probate as an office paper, and a copy thereof transmitted without delay to the Auditor, with a certificate by the Judge of Probate that he believes the statement therein made entitled to credit, if such Judge of Probate believes such statement to be true; Provided, that any widow who resides in this State and whose husband was either killed or died of disease or from wounds during said war, or whose husband died within twelve months after the close of the war, either from wounds received in the service of the Confederate States or disease contracted during the war, and provided that such widow has not since remarried, shall be entitled to equal benefit of this act, upon making satisfactory proof to the Judge of Probate of the county in which such surviving widow may reside; and provided, further, that neither the soldier nor the surving widow shall be entitled to the benefit of this act whose taxable property exceeds one thousand dollars.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, That on the receipt of any such copy and certificate as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the Auditor to register immediately a synopsis of the same, with the name of the applicant, in a book to be kept for that purpose, and at the expiration of seven months after the passage of this act the amount hereinafter appropriated must be divided pro rata among the claimants, and the Auditor must draw seperate warrants on the treasury payable to the order of such applicant for a sum not to exceed in amount $50 for each applicant which sum it shall be the duty of the Auditor to transmit the probate judge of the county in which the applicant resides. Provided, That should any surplus remain after carrying out the provisions of this act it shall be returned to the treasurer.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, That any appplicant under this act who shall swear falsely to any material matter set forth in his application, shall be guilty of perjury.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, That to carry out the provisions of this act there is hereby appropriated the sum of $30,000. Provided, That provisions of this act shall not apply to any soldier who owns in his own name $1,000 worth of taxable property.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, That any probate judge who shall knowingly make a false certficate under the provision of this act, shall be guilty of misdemeanor and on conviction be fined not less than $1,000. Provided, That $1,500 of the said appropriation be distributed among the Confederate soldiers who lost their sight in the service of the Confederacy or of this State or who lost their sight since from the effects of wounds received in said service, or from disease contracted in said service.

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, That it is hereby made the duty of the Auditor immediately after the approval of this act to furnish each judge of probate in this State with such rulings and instructions relative to this act as will fairly and justly carry out the purposes and objects of the same. Provided, It shall be unlawful for any person who shall receive any money for the benefit of any claimant under this act to deduct anything from the amount allowed said claimant for fees or other services.

Approved February 25th, 1887.

Official:

C. C. LANGDON, Sec'y of State.

The Juries.

The following is a list of the Grand and Petit jurors drawn to serve at the Spring Term of our circuit court, 1887.

GRAND JURY.

J L Rasbery, W. B Stong, E J Rowlinson, B H McCary, P C Nix, J C Walker, Alford Popwell, William L Parnell, John W Culp, W W Crumpton, B H Chestnut, W T Kemp, A C Poole, J W E Gulledge, John Cook, J J Green, Riley Roberson, W A Goodson, J H Shoutts, B F Robinson and H C Young.

PETIT JURY.

W D Foshee, A J Garner, J B Boykin, James T Littleton, J J Honeycutt, J Ruffin Ward, C C Gentry, James L Dupree, Isaac Littleton, F R McCary, J M Standfield, J M Ponder, C H Smith Elijah Jones, B F Rasberry, T M Cook, Jack Harris, L C Collins, W H Foshee, G W Jones, James Shaw, C R Bivings, M J Parish, Joseph Elam, F C Crumpton, W D Scarbrough, T G Letcher, George Rucker, W R Bollien, J H Ganda, James R Braudhead, G W Kemp, J M Davis, J F Johnson, J W G Kicker and J A Culp.

The above names and initials are set up as per copy furnished us.

Shiloh's Vitalizer is what you need for Constipation, loss of appetite, dizziness, and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle.

Chilton county had one of the fullest delegations at the Coosa River Convention.

Let the work of opening streets be continued. There are several streets in Clanton that need opening. Some of them are obstructed with buildings and others with fences. All should be opened at once.

The Florence, Tuscaloosa and Montgomery Railroad Company.

Notice is hereby given that, under and by virtue of the power and authority conferred upon the undersigned, as Board of Corporators of the Florence, Tuscaloosa and Montgomery Railroad Company, by Hon. C. C. Langdon, Secretary of State of the State of Alabama, we shall, in pursuance of such power and authority, open books of subscription to the capital stock of said railroad company at the court house of Chilton County, at the office of the Probate Judge, on the 18th day of April, A. D. 1887.

WILLIAM B. WOOD,
A. W. WILLS,
WILLIAM C. JEMISON,
GEORGE A. SEARCY,
STERLING A. M. WOOD,
Board of Corporators.

Florence, Ala., March 1st, 1887. 10-4

MORTGAGE SALE.

Under the power of sale contained in three several mortgages executed to me by W. L. Campbell and M. A. Campbell, dated respectively April 7th, 1885, April 11th, 1885, and January 23rd, 1886, I will sell at public auction, for cash, at Maplesville, Alabama, on the 4th day of April, 1887, the following described lands, situated in Chilton county, Alabama, to-wit: The SE ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 27; N ½ of NE ¼ and SW ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 34; NW ¼ of NW ¼ and S ½ of N ½ and N ½ of S ½ and SW ¼ of SW ¼ and SE ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 35; NE ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 34; NE ¼ of NW ¼ and NW qr of SE qr of Sec. 35; NW qr of NW qr of NW qr of Sec. 36; and NW qr of Sec. 34; all in Township 22, Range 12.

I. B. HOWARD,
Mortgagee.

Satterfield & Young, Attys.

NOTICE NO. 6237.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Mar. 8, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court, or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 16th, 1887, viz: Burrel Bailey, Homestead 12318, for the ne ¼ of nw ¼, sec. 22, township 20 n, range 11 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: John W. Mitchell, Mike H. Barnes, Daniel C. Gandy and David A. Friday, all of Plantersville, Ala.

mar10* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

FARMER'S TAKE NOTICE!

When You Come to Town to buy Goods, Call at

R. P. Wooley & Co.'s Cheap Cash Store!

Next to the Railroad on North side of Main Street, Clanton.

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

[sep9-8]

Newman's Southern Flower Cologne is the best. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Croup, Whooping cough and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. jun16 y

No family should be without Ellis' Magic Oil Liniment, the greatest external remedy known. It cures all aches and pains. Price 25 cents per bottle, at W. H. Phillips.

Sleepless nights made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by M. J. Greene Clanton. jun16-7

Take one of Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pillets at night before you go to bed and you will be surprised how buoyant and vigorous you will feel the next day. Only 25 cents a vial.

Croup is a treacherous disease, and generally the most severe at night when unable to properly watch it. The best known remedy is Ellis' C. S. A. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

If you are suffering with weak or inflamed eyes, or granulated eyelids, you can be quickly cured by using Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve. 25 cents a box. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures consumption. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton Ala.

Life will acquire new zest, and cheerfulness will return, if you will impel your liver and kidneys to the performance of their functions Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm will stimulate them to healthful action. $1.00 per bottle. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Ellis' Magic Liver Pills are safe for children, and are more effective than any other cathartic pill on the market. If not found satisfactory return and get your money. For sale by W. H. Phillips. aug26-y

Will you suffer with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

That hacking cough can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's cure. We guarantee it. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Sick Headache and a sensation of oppression and dullness in the head are very commonly produced by indigestion; morbid despondency, irritability and over-sensitiveness of the nerves may, in a majority of cases, be traced to the same cause. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm and Pillets will positively cure. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton. sep11 3

Money to Loan!

I am prepared to negotiate mortgage loans on farming lands in Chilton county in sums of three hundred dollars and upwards. Rates cheap and negotiations speedily concluded. Apply to or correspond with

H. L. WILLIAMS,
oct7 Att'y at Law, Wetumpka.

NOTICE NO. 6043.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 8, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on March 19th, 1887, viz: Benjamine F. Abbott, Homestead 12414, for the n ½ of ne ¼ and n ½ of nw ¼, sec. 28, township 20, range 13. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: John J. Roberts, J. Thomas Anderson John M. Chandler and Richard P. Kendrick, all of Dixie, Ala.

feb10 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6088.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
February 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 5th, 1887, viz: Marion A. Barbour, Homestead 12195, for the sw ¼ of ne ¼, se ¼ of nw ¼, sec. 22 township 21 north, range 16 east. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: Wm. D. Goss, Wm. B. Jones, Wm. Taylor and Pinckney Jones, all of Verbena, Ala.

feb24* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6079.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge of the circuit court or in his absence, the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Ala., on April 5th, 1887, viz: Betsy Robuck, guardian Della Robuck, homestead 9293, for the ne ¼ of ne ¼, section 2, township 20 north, range 12 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: James Green Wm. Sansom, Thos. Klinner and H. Hayes, all of Maplesville, Ala.

feb24 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6220.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
March 1st, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Alabama, on April 9th, 1887, viz: John E. Smith, Homestead 12086 for the s ½ of sw ¼, sec. 14, township 21, range 11 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Daniel Scroggins, James R. Whatley, John D. Selman and John Bearden, all of Maplesville, Ala.

mar4 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6037.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 7, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Ala., on March 19th, 1887, viz: Andy Foshee Homestead 14955, for the sw ¼ of sw ¼, sec. 10, township 21 n, range 14 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Prince Wilson, Hunter Zimmerman, Lewis Williams and Arch Oden, all of Clanton, Ala.

feb10* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

The good effects of Ellis' P. P. P. on a debilitated person are felt at once, and a cure follows its use. If suffering from bloop poison try a bottle. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Saw Mill Men.

I am now prepared to hammer your buckled saws. Just received a new outfit of tools for hammering. Can return a saw in 4 days after it arrives. Satisfaction guaranteed. Remittance after trying the saw. Ship to Pratt Saw Mill Co. WM. R. HOLDER.
[feb24 3m]

I. B. BOWDOIN

DEALER IN

Family Groceries,

CLANTON, ALA.

I will keep on hand for sale, a nice line of Family Groceries, such as may be desired by the Clanton trade, and will sell as cheap as they can be purchased elsewhere. f 24 6

DON'T

Buy anything in the Grocery line until you have called on

T. M. Edwards,

Who keeps constantly on hand Fancy and Family Groceries and confectionerics.

Clanton, Ala., Feb. 24th, '87.

MARRIAGE GUIDE

250 PAGES. Illustrated, in Cloth and Gilt Binding, [illegible] money or stamps. Same, paper cover, 25c. This Book contains ALL the curious, doubtful or inquisitive want to know. Full of very interesting and valuable information. HEALTH, BEAUTY and HAPPINESS are promoted by its advice—who may Marry, who not, why; Medical Aid, when necessary, brought home to you. 60 Wonderful PEN PICTURES, true to life. Young or old, married or single, sick or well, should read it. Sent sealed by DR. WHITTIER, St. Louis, Mo.

CUT THIS OUT AND SEND WITH ORDER.

WINTER! SPRING!

During the Season of Winter MALARIA Lurks in the System!

COLLINS AGUE CURE

One Dose a day, taken three days in succession, each month, or when you feel badly in any way, will fully Cleanse your Blood, Remove all Bilious Secretions & Malarial Poison from your System, and Insure GOOD HEALTH IN THE SPRING.

PRICE, FIFTY CENTS PER BOTTLE.

If you are troubled with a COUGH, COLD, SORENESS in CHEST, or any Affection of Throat or Lungs, use DR. JACKSON'S Syrup LUNGWORT & WILD CHERRY Sold at 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 a Bottle.

If your EYES are affected in any way, use Dr. JACKSON'S CELEBRATED INDIAN EYE SALVE. Sold Everywhere at 25 cents per Box.

SEND FOR COLLINS BROS. "PRESENT CENTURY ALMANAC" for 1887. Mailed to any address or at any Drug Store. COLLINS BROS. DRUG CO., ST. LOUIS, Mo.

jun24-y

L & N

(LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.)

THE GREAT

Through Trunk Line

Between the Cities of CINCINNATI, LEXINGTON, LOUISVILLE, EVANSVILLE, ST. LOUIS, And the Cities of NASHVILLE, MEMPHIS, MONTGOM'Y, MOBILE, and N. ORLEANS

Without Change and with Speed Unrivaled

SHORTEST AND QUICKEST ROUTE From New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery, to

NORTH, EAST & WEST

PULLMAN CARS Without change to Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, with but one change to all NORTHERN AND EASTERN CITIES.

THROUGH COACHES From Chattanooga and Nashville to St. Louis, connecting direct for Cities in the Northwest.

EMIGRANTS Seeking homes on the line of this road will receive special low rates.

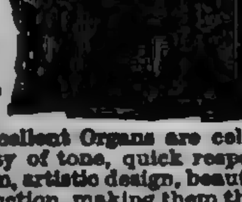
See Agents of this Company for rates, routes &c., or write C. P. ATMORE, G. P. & T. A. Louisville, Ky.

THE

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.

It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.



OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.

EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

These excellent Organs are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty in finish, perfect construction, making them the most attractive, ornamental and desirable organs for homes, schools, churches, lodges, societies, etc.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,
UNEQUALED FACILITIES,
SKILLED WORKMEN,
BEST MATERIAL,
COMBINED, MAKE THIS

THE POPULAR ORGAN

Instruction Books and Piano Stools.

Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, FREE.

The Chicago Cottage Organ Co.

Corner Randolph and Ann Streets,

CHICAGO, ILL.

Southern Business College.

NO. 407½ WEST JEFFERSON STREET, NEXT DOOR BELOW MASONIC TEMPLE.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

NO TEXT BOOKS USED.

BOOK-KEEPING, PENMANSHIP, COMMERCIAL ARITHMETIC, SHORT-HAND, TYPE-WRITING, &c., &c.

We guarantee to teach more real, practical Book-keeping, Commercial or Business Calculations, more practical ideas about business in general, in 2 to 4 months, than any other Business College in this section can in twelve months.

We teach forms of Book-keeping (actual forms used in business) not taught in any other Business College in this section.

No Scholar Has Ever Completed Our Entire Course and left us Dissatisfied.

For circulars call at college or address

Ben. C. Weaver, Principal.

BAINS & PEEBLES.

(SUCCESSORS TO BAINS & HERRING.)

WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.

Mail and Express Orders Will Receive Prompt Attention.

FINE WINES AND LIQUORS A SPECIALTY.

1926 FIRST AVENUE, BETWEEN 19th and 20th STREETS,

Birmingham, Ala.

☞ Fine Stock of Chess Carley's Oils at Company's Prices. ☜

P. O. BOX 570. June 19 y

T. T ASHFORD, Pres. J. E. MALAHY, Vice Pres. T. L. McGOWAN, Sec. & Treas.

Birmingham Paint, Glass and Wall Paper Co.

Successors to

MAYBERRY & ASHFORD.

Jobbers and Retailers of

Paints, Oils, Window Glass, Plate, Sky-Light and Colored Glass, Sash, Doors, Blinds and Moulding,

Painters' and Artists' Supplies.

WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES, and CURTAIN FIXTURES.

1912 Second Avenue, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

☞ Write for Samples of Wall Paper and Estimates on Glass. jun10

MINERAL CITY TIN AND STOVE HOUSE

SECOND AVENUE BETWEEN 18TH AND 19TH STREETS,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Pat Walsh, Manager.

A Large Line of HEATING and COOKING STOVES always on hand. All Kinds of

Tin, Sheet Iron Roofing and Job Work

DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.

☞ Orders by mail will receive prompt attention. nov 11

E. WALL. P. GIACOPAZZI.

WALL & GIACOPAZZI,

Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Commission Merchants,

Second Ave. and Twentieth St.

Birmingham, - - - Ala.

References: S. Oteri, New Orleans; Jos. Denunzio, Louisville; Buhr, Wendte & Co., Cincinnati; Underhill, Stewart & Shotta, N. Y.; Wm. D. Clarke & Co., New Orleans; Cowing & Clark, Cincinnati; A. G. Conant & Co., N. Y.; First National Bank, Birmingham, Ala.

BLOOM,

The Tailor, of Montgomery, Ala.,

—DOES—

Dyeing, Scouring, Cleaning, and Repairing

Of Gents' and Ladies' garments of all colors.
Orders by Mail or Express will receive prompt attention.
Prices to suit the times. Work Guaranteed.

NO. 5 Court Street, Upstairs, - - Opposite Dollar Store

Thompson, Francis & Chenoweth,

Birmingham, Ala.

—DEALERS IN—

HARDWARE,

Sash, Doors and Blinds, Paints, oil and glass, Cement and Plaster, Mantles and Grates.

THOROUGH BUSINESS EDUCATION.

Bryant and Stratton. } THE LOUISVILLE Business College,

Corner Third and Jefferson Streets. Entrance, No. 406 Third Street,

Louisville, Ky.

BOOK-KEEPING, BANKING, PENMANSHIP, TELEGRAPHY, SHORT-HAND AND ENGLISH TRAINING.

☞ For Catalogue Address College as Above.

J. M. WILKERSON. JOHN A. CALDWELL.

WIKKERSON CALDWELL & CO.

REAL ESTATE RENTING & COLLECTING AGENTS AND STOCK BROKERS.

Tuscaloosa, - - Alabama.

Buy and sell for principals. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to us. Collecting rents a specialty

Office over store of Fitts Bros., next to Telegraph Office. Correspondence solicited. feb24

References; J. H. Fitts & Co., Bankers and First Nat. Bank, of Tuscaloosa.

CHILTON VIEW.

CLANTON, ALA., MAR. 17, 1887.

THE VIEW is published every Thursday morning, and will endeavor to cover the field of reputable country journalism. It will show no quarter to the deceitful, the immoral or the ungodly. It will always be good natured, although it can bite if necessary.

Those answering advertisements will confer a favor by mentioning this paper.

COURT CALENDAR.

Chancery—First Thursday after the third Monday in March and September and continue three days.

Circuit—Third Monday after the first Monday in February and on the fifth Monday after the fourth Monday in July, and continue two weeks each time.

Commissioners'—Regular term second Monday in February and August, and first Monday in April and November. Special term second Monday in July.

County—First Monday in each month.

SCHEDULE S. & N. ALA. RAILROAD.—Trains pass Clanton daily, as follows:

GOING SOUTH.

No. 1 at	5:45 a. m.
No. 3	5:37 p. m.
No. 7	4:12 p. m.
No. 51	6:00 a. m.

GOING NORTH.

No. 2	9:15 a. m.
No. 12	9:55 a. m.
No. 4	*9:43 p. m.
No. 50	6:55 p. m.

* Don't stop.

LOCAL DOTTINGS.

Spring.

Weather beautiful.

Subscribe for the VIEW.

Mr. W. M. Wilson has moved into his new residence.

Work on the new Methodist church progresses slowly.

Stanton is not doing what she ought to for the VIEW.

A new supply of warrantee deeds just received and for sale at this office.

The measles are in town. They are at present confined to the family of Mr. L. Holt.

A blind lady gave a concert at the residence of Mrs. Hannon one night last week.

A new lot of fancy stationery just received at the View Stationery Stand.

Mr. H. C. Thornton is the happy father of a 14 pound girl, born Tuesday night, the 8th inst.

The VIEW and the Montgomery Advertiser (weekly) for $2.50 a year, in advance.

Next week is court week, be sure to bring the money with you to pay for your paper while here.

Miss Ines Collier, who is attending school in Montgomery, spent several days last week at her home in this place.

The contest case for the office of probate judge, to come up in our circuit court next week, is looked forward to with much interest.

What about our municipal election? Are we to have one or not? Do our citizens want such an election? That is the question.

Base balls, cigarette papers, albums, fancy stationery and all kinds of things for sale at the View Stationery Stand.

A friend at Verbena writes to us as follows: "Please send me the VIEW. I find that it is a poor get along without my county paper."

Parties coming to court next week had better fill their hats with water before leaving home, for our courthouse well "am played."

We hope to have a long list of names of subscribers who come in and pay up, subscribe and renew their subscription, to publish next week.

"Be honest, be just, be diligent, be intelligent, be economical, be patient. Engage in no business upon which you cannot ask God's blessing."

There is some talk of Sheriff Smitherman resigning his office and there are already several applicants for the position in case of a vacancy.

When a man pegins to pelief dot he owns der earth, it vas time to put him up for candidate for constable und let him see how few admirers he has.

Sampey's Corner.

The ladies can get a pair of pebble goatskin shoes or a nice kid shoe at Sampey's for $2.00. He has a nice lot of dress goods from 4 cts. a yard up to 20cts. Dude satin bows for the young men. Black silk ties for all men who like to look neat. Watch this corner and you will learn that Sampey keeps the goods you want, and you can buy them cheap if you have the money.

Sweep the Church.

Last week a friend asked us to request the people not to spit on the church floor. We were surprised on last Sunday morning to find the church floor in such a condition as to be almost unfit to spit upon.

We do not believe the church has been swept out for a month or two and the filth and dirt and litter which has collected in it is a shame on the good name of our people. "What's everybody's business is nobody's business," but then this should be somebody's and not everybody's business. Collections are continually being taken up for incidental purposes and what becomes of it? It certainly does not take all that is collected to pay for the oil used that is about all the benefit derived from said collections, that we know of. Who keeps the money thus collected? Why not employ some boy or colored man as sexton to keep the church clean, fill the lamps, dust the seats &c.? It would cost but little. Several dollars were taken up at collection Sunday morning; we gave enough to pay for having the church swept out several times, and if we had time to spare from our business would sweep it out ourselves, but would prefer to pay our share towards employing a sexton. What say the members of the church and Sunday school?

She Had Been There.

A spider-legged dude living not a thousand miles from Clanton was endeavoring the other day to get his girl to acknowledge a reciprocation of affection. She was disposed to favor him only with a "silence-gives-consent" reply. But he was persistent to a degree worthy of the noble cause in which he was then engaged; and she finally satisfied him not entirely with saying: "I love you to love me."

She Hadn't Been There.

Another Clanton dude with his mind on the classics and his body on spindles, was the other day reminding his girl of the loves of Pyramus and Thisbe, Ulysses and Penelope, Romeo and Juliet, Paul and Virginia, Fred Gebhardt and Mrs. Langtry, et cetera, and praying that his and her affections might be as enduring. Her reply was: "Where do all these people live?"

We have a scholarship in the Bryant & Stratton Business College, Louisville, Ky., a scholarship in the Louisville Shorthand & Type-writing Institute, Louisville, and a scholarship in the Kentucky University, at Lexington, Ky., which includes both a business and collegiate course. We will sell any and all of them at a considerable discount off the prices to be paid at the colleges.

Why is it that the people at Pratt Saw Mills do not subscribe for the VIEW more liberally. They like it well enough to borrow it when they can, and read it, and if it is worth reading it is worth paying for. Now that we have a regular correspondent at the Mills they should all subscribe at once. It is the only large mill business in the county at which we haven't got a good number of subscribers.

Personal.

Elmore (Wetumpka) Express.]

Rev. A. E. Burns, of Jemison, Ala., preached an interesting sermon in the Courthouse last Sunday evening.

Mr. Lucien Zimmerman, a former resident of this city, but now of Verbena, Ala., was here on a visit to friends and relatives during the early part of the week.

Mr. W. A. Howard, the jeweler of Verbena, will be in Clanton during court week to do all work in his line and will remain in Clanton as long as work is sufficent to warrant him do so. Reparing and adjusting fine watches a specialty.

Selling at Cost.

The entire stock of merchandise of the late firm of John Garner & Co. is being sold at and below costs, and must be sold without delay. Now is your chance for bargains.

On account of court convening a week earlier this spring than is usual our sheriff and his deputy are a little behind with their work, but will probably get through the most important part of it.

Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Greene, of Opelika, are visiting friends and relatives in Clanton. The Dr. is convalescing from a protracted illness.

We publish the act in full relating to the appropriation for the relief of maimed soldiers and widows.

OVER THE COUNTY.

News Gathered up by Our Correspondents.

Lilly Dots.

Spring has opened the days look like May.

The farmers are generally stirring soon and late.

There is a great deal of excitement in this part of the county over a suicide committed by Mrs. Margarett Mims by drowning herself in Little Mulberry creek. The place where she committed the deed was very shallow being little over knee deep. She seemed determined to drown herself, she first jumped in the well but was detected and rescued before she was dead. But on March 12th she succeeded in carrying out her determination.

Let us extend our sympathy to the bereaved family, consisting of 3 girls and 4 boys. TITUS.

Dots from Concord.

Weather fine this week.

The measels are prevailing through this community, and there has been one death from this desease; that of the infant child of Mr. John Kendrick.

Mr. Joseph Green, of Selma, is visiting his parents in this neighborhood.

Died, on Friday the 11th, Aunt Joan Armstrong. She had been afflicted, and crippled, and for the last five years she has not been able to get around without help, and her death is a great blessing to her, for it relieved her from her pain.

Miss Lucy Meredith visited her mother in Montevallo last Saturday.

PEACEFUL BOY.

Pratt Saw Mills.

Miss Minnie Scott from Kentucky is visiting her uncle, O. T. Grimes, at E. H. Wingates.

Mrs. Thomas Haralson is visiting relatives at this place.

An accident occurred last week on the P. S. M. R. R., while coming in with a load of logs. The rear car ran off; three negroes jumped and some of the logs rolled off on them, breaking one's leg and bruising the other two but not seriously.

A word to our Stanton writer. We rejoice to see him coming to the front in such an elevated style.

There is no better way to demonstrate what the county is doing than through our county paper, and I think we all should patronize it sufficient to enable its publishers to enlarge it.

By the way Bro. writers have you a saw hammer at your mills? If not send your saws to P. S. M. Co. and have them hammered and ask yourself if you can compete with us.

Success to the VIEW.

ON HAND.

Stanton Puffs.

Married, near Mt. Carmel church, March 13th, 1887, Mr. Sim Ramsey to Miss Della J. Longerier. W. J. Ruddick officiating. We wish the young couple a long life of joy and happiness.

Work is progressing rapidly on the grades on the G. & C. R. Rd.

Next Sabbath is the regular appointment of the Baptist pastor, Rev. G. W. Mills.

The gentleman in the neighborhoods of Sardis and Mt. Carmel churches have organized debating societies and meet every Saturday night for the discussion of subjects.

The G. & C. L. R. Rd. has been completed to the Clanton road, near what is known as the Clanton Ford.

It is surprising to many to see the number of people who ride over this road every day. Men, women and children, on business, visiting and pleasure, take passage. A good road and steady employees insures almost perfect safety.

We have not forgotten our new public road that we are so anxious for across the Mulberry. It is a necessity for our business men and also our church going people who live on the east side of the creek. We must have it.

Rumors of more marriges fill the air. When they occur you will hear of them.

89.

Fire.

Just as we were going to press we were startled by the alarm of fire and following the rushing crowd we soon discovered that the stable of Mrs. A. M. Adams was in full blaze. A spark from an engine on the L. & N. railroad is supposed to be the cause of the fire, as the building is just on the edge of the railroad's right of way. A high wind was blowing at the time, in the direction of the other buildings on the place and but for the timely action of Clanton's volunteer fire company (citizens) the dwelling and out houses would have burned, and with the wind blowing as it was towards town, the entire business portion of our village and many dwellings would have been consumed. The stable and considerable fencing was destroyed.

The dwelling and outhouses caught several times but were put out by parties who stayed on top of them with buckets of water.

MONTGOMERY FURNITURE COMPANY.

—DEALERS IN—

Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Looking Glasses, Lounges, Hall Racks, Wardrobes, Chairs, Safes, Side Boards, Cradles, Cribs, Baby Carriages, Spring Beds. Mattresses, Refrigerators, Pianos. Organs, Carpets,

And All Kinds of Furniture!

A. C. ROGERS, Manager,

sep2 y

210 Bibb Street, Wharton's Old Stand Next to McDonald's Opera House.

FURNITURE AND WALL PAPER FOR EVERYBODY!

OUR STOCK OF FURNITURE, WINDOW SHADES, LACE CURTAINS, WALL PAPER, SPRING BEDS, AND MATTRESSES IS NOW COMPLETE.

Anybody in need of the above articles will find it to their interest to look at our immense stock. We guarantee everything we sell, and sell it cheaper than anybody in this State.

SQUARE DEALING IS OUR MOTTO!

B. WOLFF & BRO., Montgomery.

sept 15-6

20 Commerce and Corner Court and Coosa Streets.

Died,

At F. M. Hunt & Bro's. mill, near Jemison, Chilton, Co., Ala., at 10 o'clock and 20 minutes, P. M., Saturday Feb'y. 19th, 1887, Willie A. Butler, son of Jas. A. and Mattie A. Butler, in the 16th year of his age.

All who knew Willie will join the writer in saying, he was an exceptionally good boy, the pride and hope of fond parents, the light and joy of an affectionate younger sister, and the pet of the Hunt family, his maternal relations. So strict was his fidelity to truth that he would not prevaricate, on any account, not even when quite young, to escape punishment; and so chaste was he of speech that he could not be tempted to indulge in jests or phrases that he would have blushed to use in the presence of his mother or crony sister.

Willie was a lover of the Sunday school and studied the Scriptures with remarkable interest and application for one of his age. During a series of meetings held in Jemison last fall, conducted by pastor Lee and the writer, Willie became very deeply concerned about his soul and presented himself as a subject for prayer on several occasions. During the further progress of the meeting, he became satisfied, and expressed to his mother a wish to join the church and asked her advice. Although fully satisfied of his conversion, she thought best to let him decide the question of duty for himself, assuring him she would be delighted to have him unite with the church if he was prepared to do so, but would not have him make a public profession and afterwards disgrace it for all the world. "Be sure you know what you are doing 'Will,' and then go right along," was the advice the mother gave. Procrastination is the thief of time. He delayed taking the decisive step from time to time till the meeting closed. Afterward a favorable opportunity failed to present itself and he thus failed to discharge the sacred duty of publicly confessing his Saviuor and being buried with Him in baptism.

In his last hours, he was fully aware of the near approach of death; his mind being clear to the last minute. Calling his loved ones to his bedside one by one he kissed them an affectionate good bye. "All of you meet me in heaven" was his dying request. He died with the word "heaven" on his lips. May we not hope his removal from earth is in compliance with the last will and testament of Jesus, voiced in the following words: "Father I will that they also whom thou hast given me be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me?"

A. E. B—

Men who Harm a Town.

Those who oppose improvements.

Those who don't advertise.

Those who run it down to strangers.

Those who mistrust its public men.

Those who show no hospitality to any one.

Sore-heads who hate to see others make money.

Those who treat every stranger as an interloper.

Those who ask two prices for property.

Those who put on long faces when a stranger talks of locating.

Those who oppose every public enterprise that does not appear to be of personal benefit to themselves. —Ex.

Noteheads, billheads, letterheads, envelopes, statements, programmes, posters, dodgers, circular letters, visiting and business cards, commissary checks, &c. &c., printed at the VIEW Job Office, at reasonable prices and on short notice.

Concert in town last night by the Stewart Family Musical Specialty Company but as we went to press on Wednesday evening cannot give an account of the performance in this issue.

NOTICE NO. 6246.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery Ala., Mar. 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the Clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, on April 23rd, 1887, viz: William H. Wells, Homestead 11507 for the e ½ of sw ¼, section 28, township 22, range 15. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Andrew J. Duncan, Thomas G. Taylor, Henry C. Johnson and Sidney A. Blasingame, all of Clanton, Ala.

mar17

J. G. HARRIS, Register.

This space is reserved by

A. J. BROOKS

AT VERBENA, ALA.,

FOR FUTURE ADVERTISING

☞WATCH IT.☜

IF YOU WANT NICE FRESH GROCERIES CALL ON

W. H. SARTOR,

FIRST DOOR WEST OF THE DRUG STORE, MAIN STREET,

Clanton, Ala.

☞ In addition to everything in the Grocery line I also carry a nice stock of fresh Stick and Fancy Candies, Fruits and other Confectioneries. mar4

SHAW & DAVIN,

Machinery & Mill Supplies,

—MORRIS AVENUE AND 22D STREET.—

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

ENGINES,

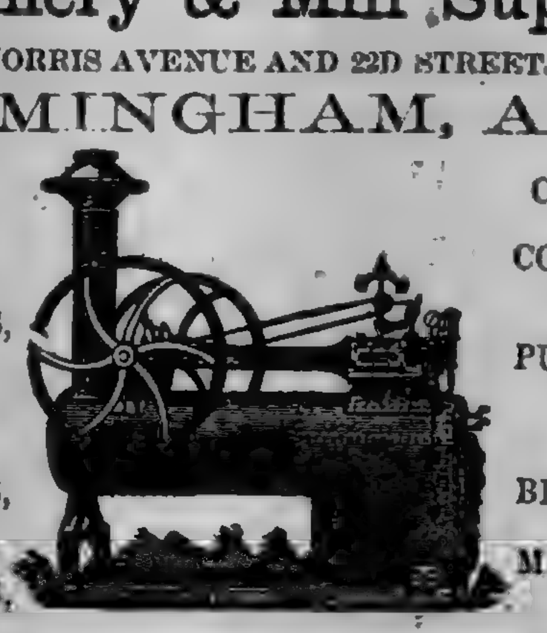
BOILERS,

SAW MILLS,

CORN MILLS,

SHINGLE MACHINES,

CORN MILLS, SUGAR MILLS,



COTTON GINS,

COTTON PRESSES.

PULLEYS,

SHAFTING,

BELTING, and

MACHINISTS' SUPPLIES.

Largest Stock in the State.

Write for Circulars and Prices. P. O. Box 808. [July8]

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE.

☞ CURES—Diphtheria, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Bleeding at the Lungs, Hoarseness, Influenza, Hacking Cough, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Chronic Diarrhoea, Kidney Troubles, and Spinal Diseases. Pamphlet free. Dr. I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass.

PARSONS' MAKE NEW, RICH BLOOD. PILLS

These pills were a wonderful discovery. No others like them in the world. Will positively cure or relieve all manner of disease. The information around each box is worth ten times the cost of a box of pills. Find out about them and you will always be thankful. One pill a dose. Illustrated pamphlet free. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25c. in stamps. Dr. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., 22 C. H. St., Boston.

Sheridan's Condition Powder is absolutely pure and highly concentrated. One ounce is worth a pound of any other kind. It is strictly a medicine to be given with food.

MAKE HENS LAY

Nothing on earth will make hens lay like it. It cures chicken cholera and all diseases of hens. Is worth its weight in gold. Illustrated book by mail free.

Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for [illegible] Dr. I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass.

TROY STEAM LAUNDRY,

Nos. 17 & 19 N. Lawrence Street,

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

P. O. BOX 282.

☞Orders by mail are solicited and will receive prompt attention.

J. W. GUE, Proprietor.

BRICK WORK

J. M. DAWSON,

CLANTON, ALA.

Is prepared to do all kinds of brick work in the best style. The patronage of the public solicited.

feb15-tf]

STOP AT

Morris Avenue Hotel,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Corner Morris Avenue and 20th Street

ELYTON LAND CO. BUILDING.

HUGH KIERMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Splendid rooms, well ventilated and elegantly furnished. Rates reasonable.

Clanton Barber Shop

—BY—

MEREDITH CANN,

Who is prepared to do all work in the tonsorial line. Hair dressing and shaving in the best style. Prices low.

BANDMAN & CO.,

Wholesale Grocers,

P. O BOX 251,

1st Avenue, bet. 18th and 19th Streets,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

jan 13 6m

TRESSLAR,

Artistic Photographer

10 COURT SQUARE,

Montgomery.

Life Size Photographs a Specialty.

Photographs on Silk, Satin and Linen. Photographs on watch dials. Enameled Photographs.

All Sittings made Instantaneously. Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged.

☞Correspondence solicited.☜

[jan21-tf]

A. W. KEY & CO.,

Manufacturers' State Agents for

Engines, Saw Mills,

BOILERS,

—AND—

General Machinery.

P. O. Box 741,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Nabers & Morrow,

Wholesale Druggists,

FIRST AVENUE,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

MEDICINES,

Fine Wines, Liquors,

Oils, Etc.

☞ Agents for Chess Carley & Co.'s Oils. [june 10]

J. M. Hutchason's

BOARDING, LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLES.

Select Dray and Plantation Mules constantly on hand.

Draying and Hauling Promptly Attended to

Always ready to take Contracts for filling in Dirt

Moving Stone, Engines, Boilers, Machinery and other heavy hauling.

RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS AND DAMAGE.

Satisfaction Guaranteed. Handsome Carriages and Double Teams, with or without Drivers.

☞MONTGOMERY STABLES,☜

Lawrence Street, Opp. P. O.,

Telephone 446. jan1y

Clanton Academy.

CLANTON, CHILTON CO., ALA.

The course of instruction is divided into three departments, Primary, Junior and High School.

RATES OF TUITION:

Primary Department	$1.50
Junior "	2.50
High School "	3.50

Tuition payable monthly IN ADVANCE.

Public examinations of the pupils of the school will be held at the close of each session, but exhibitions will not be had at any time.

Board can be obtained by pupils of the school in private families in Clanton at very moderate rates.

For further information address

R. E. R. HICKS, Principal.

feb10]

Catarrh cured, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal Injector free. For sale by M. J. Green.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

PLEASANT LITERATURE FOR FEMININE READERS.

Liverpool's Female Orchestra.

Some two or three years ago an orchestra was organized in Liverpool among the society ladies by a viscountess in order to raise money for a charity; but it has since been continued, and has now become something like a permanent affair. At present the orchestra is limited to a string band. It is possible that the heavier brass instruments are unsuited to ladies' lips, and fair cheeks distended by blowing, for instance, a trumpet, would certainly not look pretty. But apart from this the affair is constituted on the most businesslike principles. There are fourteen first and a similar number of second violins, eight violas, and eight violoncellos. Three ladies have been found willing and competent to play that ponderous instrument the double bass. Girls of almost every type of beauty are there, clad uniformly in white frocks, relieved by shoulder knots, some of pale blue, and others of salmon color. No Adam is allowed to invade this orchestral Eden. —Liverpool Post.

A Missouri Diana.

Mrs. Henry Harmon, who lives five miles south of Houston, Mo., came in yesterday afternoon, bringing a pair of fine wild turkeys, which she killed with her rifle the day before.

"How came you to kill them?" was asked by your correspondent.

"Why, easy enough. There are plenty of wilk turkeys in our locality. One of my little boys was out hunting rabbits about half a mile from the house. He saw a gang of turkeys. He came back, told me about it, and I just shouldered my gun and started. I had not traveled far beyond the place designated when I was made happy by espying a fine gang. I fired and killed this large one, and before they could all escape I detained this one."

"Tell me about some of your feats with the rifle."

"Well, I never did but one piece of shooting that I am particularly proud of; I once killed a bear. It was a long while ago, when father lived near the head of a small stream that empties into Big Creek. One morning, early in the autumn, father left home for Houston. Mother was away spending the day with her sister, I was left alone with a little brother and sister. About 10 o'clock I heard the dogs barking wildly in a cove about 200 yards above the house. I seized the rifle, and hurried to the scene. When I got there I found it was a big bear. The animal was standing on its hind legs and was constantly turning about, and now and then boxing a dog into last month. I was considerably frightened at first, but I took a little time to nerve myself. Then I took good aim, under the left arm, and fired. The bear fell awkwardly, rolled down the hill into the little stream, and when I made my cautious approach he was dead. —Globe-Democrat.

Fashions in Hair.

We have worn French twists very loose in the back, and pointed bangs long enough, and we welcome the hints our New York friends are giving us as to the changes in hair dressing. The simple fashion of a multitude of tiny braids wound round and round the back of the head continues for street wear, the only change being that the coil is a little lower than last spring, and that it is worn with bonnets; formerly it was only admissable with English turbans. For the style itself comes straight from England. Indeed, this is a frequently hard phrase on the continent: "Oh, she's English; I know by the braids."

Curly bangs have a decidedly commonplace air. The extremely fashionable arrangement of the front hair is the Russian bang. It is very short, curved or pointed in the middle, especially short on the sides, and the ends just slightly curled. These ends may be turned in or curled to one side or the other, as is most becoming. It is very good style to allow the parting between the bang and the back hair to show. All women take more care of this gift of nature than formerly, and oils or unguents are a thing of the past. The hair is washed carefully twice a month anyway, and when the tresses are of a very light color more frequent washing is necessary. Tar soap or white castile should be used, no ammonia, no borax, no soda, and this rule is given by one who has tried them all and knows which treatment makes the hair not only nicest but prettiest. It is the frequent washing that gives the soft, fleecy look to women's locks nowadays. This is the only secret. Nothing more is needed. Short hairs in the back must be trained and coaxed up, even though they curl; they are no more seen falling over the collar.

A truly fashionable woman wears a loose, small Grecian coil, just reaching to the top of the head, its only visible fastening being a long pin shot through. A gold one is most stylish, but of course most costly. If it is necessary to use short, ordinary pins, hide them; don't let even an end show. Long pins of imitation tortoise shell or silver are both pretty and cheap. All locks at the sides of the head and about the ears should lie back softly, but smoothly. Simplicity and daintiness seems to be the motto of all women nowadays, and in self and home alike this good taste makes itself apparent. —Chicago Herald.

Fashion Notes.

A pinking of broadcloth of contrasting color is used to edge house jackets.

The trains of wedding gowns are long and square, with triple plisse finish.

White jersey cloth caps edged with astrakhan are very comfortable for little tots.

Green and black is a favorite combination in winter costumes of silk and velvet.

Striped plush is introduced into short mantles as side or back breadths, with good effect.

The very narrow ribbon known as "cornet" is used in profusion upon dresses of tulle and tarlatan.

Sailor collars, made of various kinds of fur and tied with ribbons in front, are a novelty. They may be worn with all sorts of garments.

Habit basques of velvet are much worn with skirts of striped fabrics of silk and velvet. These skirts are very full, and much gored in front.

Round hats of glossy black beaver are taking the place of felt hats with fashionable young ladies, and are even favored for dressy occasions, with elaborate costumes of velvet or plush.

A revival of tinsel is threatened. Recent advices from the French capital are to the effect that the display of gold, silver and bead embroidery upon evening and other dressy toilets is fairly dazzling.

Underskirts of gray and black silk moreen are made with a number of flounces at the back, and set excellently. It is necessary that they be made by a person who understands the requirements of a well-fitting skirt.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

It is stated that a picture of a ball falling before a screen has been taken with one of Mr. Muybridge's fastest shutting cameras in the one-thousandth of a second.

Cocaine has a rival in an alkaloid obtained in Australia from the juice of Euphorbia Drummondu, which Dr. John Reid, its discoverer, calls Drumine. The new local anæsthetic acts almost entirely by paralyzing, and does not excite.

The Chevalier van Elewyck of Louvain has just perfected, after thirty-eight years of labor, a machine for recording all music extemporized upon the piano. His invention is worked by means of electricity, and he has been assisted in the mechanical details by M. Kermis, an engineer of Brussels.

Mr. J. W. Walker has discovered on the south side of pine Mountain, Georgia, nearly two hundred feet above the famous corundum mine, a site where the ancient inhabitants of that region manufactured their talc vessels for cooking. Evidences of the use of stone implements in the work are indubitable.

Mr. Elliott denies the courage and ferocity commonly attributed to the huge, hideous monster known as the walrus, or sea horse. It is, on the contrary, abjectly timid, and so covered with a wrinkled, warty, pimply hide as to recall degraded human "bloats." Its enormous ivory tusks are used only in digging clams, and are very loosely in their osseous sockets.

An observatory is in building at Sonnblick, in the Tyrolese Alps, ten thousand feet above the sea, which will be the highest of the kind in Europe. The mountain is relatively easy of access, with mines half-way up its slopes, and a wire rope-way in operation leading up to them. The observatory will be in telephonic communication with the mines, and thence in telegraphic communication with whatever spot it may be desirable to reach.

For extinguishing fire in closed spaces, where water would do much damage, a German physicist recommends a compound whose burning quickly absorbs the oxygen and renders combustion impossible. His preparation contains fifty-nine parts of powdered saltpetre, thirty-six parts of powdered sulphur, four parts of powdered charcoal and one part of colcothar (brown red oxide of iron). He keeps the mixture in five-pound pasteboard boxes, with a fuse protruding to insure lighting it.

The work of the heart in a healthy man is equivalent to the feat of raising 5 1-5 tons one foot per hour, or 125 tons in twenty-four hours. The use of eight ounces of alcohol causes the heart to show an excess of twenty-four foot tons. This would give the mileage of the blood through the body as 20, yards per minute, seven miles per hour, 168 miles per day, 61,320 miles per year, or 5,150,-880 miles in a life time of eighty-four years. In the same long life the great journey of the blood would be the result of the grand total of 2,869,776,000 heart beats.

From a paper read by Prof. Forel before the Association of Swiss Geographical Societies, it appears that there are two parts in the Lake of Geneva, one small and shallow, the other large, deep, and Alpine in its character. The two are separated by the Yvoise bank or bar, which is really a glacial moraine, as shown by the flints dredged up. Knowledge of the central portion of the lake is still very incomplete. The fragments of rock, sometimes brought up from a depth of sixty-one metres, are covered with moss of a beautiful green—a fact that seems to show that light penetrates to that depth. It has been discovered that the river Rhone flows in a sublacustrine ravine.

"Sandbagging" in Chicago.

Belated pedestrians are nightly waylaid, "slugged," and robbed in all parts of the city. The deftness which characterizes many of these jobs suggests the clean action of that noted exponent of highway robbery, Patrick Kent, and, were it not for the fact that Mr. Kent is spending the second of a series of winters to be passed within the walls of Joliet, the police would say he was the man with the bag. Patrick Kent, the ablest man in the profession, terrorized the residents on the avenues east of State street two years ago. Within a month he sandbagged twenty-two persons and carried off considerable plunder. "Sandy" Kent had a system. He knew many of the high-salaried men in and all about the business houses on the south side; knew their pay days and the amount they received, and when they would start for their homes. In this way he was enabled to pick out the man who had stuff, and he himself said that he never dropped a man without being well paid for his trouble. The persuader he used was a long canvas bag one and half inches in diameter, with about eighteen inches of the length filled with bird shot. Then there was about six inches of slack for a handle. No matter how heavy a blow was struck it would not fracture the skull, but it was sure to knock the victim insensible.

"Winter is the proper time for going bagging," said Kent a few days before he went to State prison. It is the only time in which the work can be done safely, and the night must also be dark. Your man must be picked out early in the day, and you must know the route he takes to his home. Of course he is bundled up. Men going home after dark—business men—are like cows going home to be milked; they take the same path all the time, see? Well, what's the matter with bein' in an alleyway when he is about to pass? If you want to be successful you must wear rubber shoes, then you can sneak up when his back is turned and do him. He's stunned for a couple of minutes and gives you time to go through him. He doesn't know who struck him, an' the chances are two to one that you'll escape. But never soak the stuff; that's how I was caught."

The only way to escape a collision with a sand-bagger is to provide yourself with a 44-calibre revolver and take the middle of the street when going home or to work at a late hour. Mr. Kent has prescribed this rule, and his authority can not be questioned. —Chicago Herald.

Bulgarian Peasants.

To judge from the talk there has been about it during the last ten years, one would think that Bulgaria was one of the great powers of Europe, instead of being a small principality not long since freed from Turkish rule. The people bear, on the whole, a good character for cleanliness and thrift. The peasants are fairly prosperous, their wants being few, and the climate of their country fine, and its soil fertile. The whole family in a peasant's household assist the father in his work, and could the affairs of the province but have an opportunity of settling down, there is little doubt that the future of Bulgaria would be bright and happy. —Little Folks.

There is a "whistling well" on a farm in Clare county, Mich. It is 150 feet deep, and whistles loudest just before a storm.

HOUSEHOLD AFFAIRS.

Decorating with Corn Stalks.

In log cabin farm houses, and even in still humbler homes, it is possible to introduce æsthetic effects by a free use of corn stalks for interior decorations. No one can have failed to notice the rich golden color and satin sheen of corn stalks in the late autumn season. Their lightness of weight fits them admirably for the purpose we have just indicated, while in the mere matter of exterior finish they are scarcely inferior to bamboo cane.

Let us illustrate by taking the simplest log cabin, with unplastered walls and bare rafters, upon which the floor of the second story—perhaps a mere loft—rests, thus answering the double purpose of floor and ceiling. In order to conceal the unsightly chinking of mud or plaster which fills the interstices between the logs, a dado is the first device, or rather wainscoting.

The stalks are selected of uniform thickness, and are then cut into such lengths as may be required for the height of the wainscoting. The cutting must be done with great accuracy; it is best to cut each stalk by laying it against a pine stick selected as a gauge.

Another set of stalks is now to be cut, and these form the ceiling decoration. The width between the rafters furnishes the model for the length of these stalks—for we are now speaking of the most primitive form of log cabin—one which has not even a plastered ceiling.

If paper is not too expensive for the upper wall surface, the cheapest quality of muslin can first be tacked around the four sides of the room above the intended wainscoting, and a low-priced wall paper of desirable tint applied; or coarse muslin of some pretty shade may furnish the covering without the addition of paper. The cheapest quality of crimson cheese cloth makes a handsome background in contrast with the yellow cornstalks.

For the wainscoting these are applied simply by means of long brads driven through the stalks immediately into the logs around the four walls. The upper ledge will of course be perfectly smooth and even if the sticks have been carefully cut. As a finish for the top, corn stalks are to be laid along this ledge transversely, and also secured by long brads. This finishes the wainscoting, unless one wishes to add to the security of the part next to the floor by a thin strip of pine wood.

Since it costs nothing except a few hours labor, one may well try the experiment, if only for the sake of the beautiful æsthetic effect. If preferred, a narrow shelf may run around the room at the head of the wainscoting, particularly if it be sufficiently high not to interfere with the furniture. On such a shelf bits of bric-a-brac may be arranged to great advantage. The polished surface of the stalks easily prevents the accumulation of dust.

The sticks for the ceiling are laid between the rafters and secured to the planks by brads, making a solid surface, and repeating the effect of the wainscoting, except for the division formed by the rafters. —Harper's Bazar.

Recipes and Hints.

the bottom crust of fruit pies, or any other juicy kind, is rubbed over with a beaten egg it will not be soggy.

Take equal parts of flour, grated cheese, and butter; season with pepper and salt, and mix with one or two eggs. Bake in small cake or patty pans. You will call them nice cheese cakes.

A mixture to erase grease spots: Equal parts of strong ammonia water, ether and alcohol form a valuable cleaning compound. Pass a piece of blotting paper under the grease spot, moisten a sponge, first with water, to render it "greedy," then with the mixture, and rub with it the spot. In a moment it will be dissolved, saponified and absorbed by the sponge and blotter.

Parsnips cooked in this way are good: Mash; scrape and cut the parsnips in two or four lengthwise slices, and boil them in salted water until tender. When done serve them with melted butter and minced parsley poured over them. Parsnips after being boiled are nice when mashed smoothly, formed into small cakes, dipped in egg and bread crumbs and fried a light brown. They should be served when hot.

Good gingerbread: One cup molasses, one cup sugar, one cup raisins, one-half cup currants, two eggs, one-half cup butter, filling up the cup with hot water, one and one-half teaspoon cloves, two teaspoonfuls cinnamon, one and one-half teaspoons each of allspice and nutmeg, one teaspoon salt, two teaspoons soda; sift soda and salt into enough flour to make a batter; put buttered paper into pan to keep from burning and bake slowly. Carraway seeds and citron can be added.

Apple pies: When making apple pies of the raw apples they seldom get cooked through, and apple-sauce pies are not very nice, but the happy medium is obtained by slicing tart apples, peeled, of course, and placing them in a baking dish with a little water and sugar enough to sweeten, scattered through, then put into a hot oven closely covered and they will steam, and keep a nice color. Then fill your pies, and the juice will not be boiling out all the time they are baking. This makes nice apple-sauce, too.

Secretary Lamar on War.

"I used to think," Mr. Lamar went on to say, "before I saw much fighting, that the slaughter must be frightful. I could not see how, where so many bullets were flying, there was any chance at all for men to escape being hit. But I soon wondered how anybody was hit at all. My men that day at Williamsburg shot themselves out of ammunition twice. When we went into bivouac at night I went about asking the boys how they felt. I met one big Mississippian from my home town.

"'John, did you fire off all your powder?'

"'No,' he said. 'I tried hard all day, Colonel, to do my b st, and I didn't fire but twice. All day long I didn't draw bead on a Yankee but twice. I've got my ammunition here,' and he tapped his cartridge box.

"'You fired twice?' I said. 'Did you hit 'em those times?'

"'Well, Colonel, to tell the truth, I missed one Yank, and I'm in doubt about the other.'

"That illustrates war," said the Secretary. "A lot of men march out and proceed to create a lot of accidents. The side that can procure the most accidents for the greatest number of consecutive hours wins the day. —New York Sun.

A Change Every Ten Years.

It is well known that the population of London is a migratory one, but probably few persons were prepared for the fact which has been brought to light by the compilers of that really wonderful work, Kelly's Postoffice Directory, that the removals in London amount to one in ten annually. Thus the entire population of London changes houses every ten years. —London Truth.

BOYS AND MOTHERS.

Oh, If Boys would Only Understand Their Mothers.

Sometimes boys think mothers are in the way; that they would have more liberty if it were not for their mothers. Mothers have such searching eyes, eyes that seem to look right into the heart, especially if there is anything hiding there that mothers should know about; and this is troublesome. If the boys would only understand that it is love that makes the mother's eyes so keen, her voice so anxious, her questions so searching; love that knows all the temptations that may come to a boy, and the trouble if there is no wise confident about! It is not the anxiety of a Paul Pry, but the loving guardianship of a mother. A wise man said, "God could not be everywhere, so he made mothers." God may seem far off to us sometimes, but there is mother near, who will lead us back. The wisest and best men have honored their mothers. Few men who have accomplished a special work in the world do not give credit to their mother for the help and inspiration that made their work possible. In giving this credit to their mothers they have honored themselves, for it proves that as boys they honored her instructions, were guided by her advice, and made a confidante of her in their hopes and desires. When the late President Garfield was inaugurated, the first person he saluted was his mother, showing plainly the place she held in his heart, his life.

The world honors and respects the man who honors and respects his mother. The neglect of a mother stamps a man or boy as heartless, ungrateful, if not cruel. The truly great men have never forgotten those to whom they were most deeply indebted. Many letters have been written about mothers, but few that show the sorrow that comes if the full measure of a mother's love has received no return until too late to make it. The poet Gray, in 1765, wrote the following letter to a friend:

"It is long since I heard you were gone in haste into Yorkshire on account of your mother's illness, and the same letter informed me she was recovered. Otherwise I had then wrote to you only to beg you would take care of her, and inform you that I had discovered a thing very little known, which is that in one's whole life one can never have any more than a single mother. You may think this obvious and (what you call) a trite observation. . . You are a green gosling! I was at the same age (very near) as wise as you, and yet I never discovered this (with full evidence and conviction, I mean) till it was too late. It is thirteen years ago, and it seems but as yesterday, and every day I live it sinks deeper into my heart."

Not Too Much to Ask.

Tramp (whose request for food has been denied)—Well, ma'am, would you let me sleep in the ten-acre lot back of the barn if I won't make any noise?

Woman—Ye-es, I don't mind letting you do that.

Tramp (appealingly)—Well, one thing more, ma'am, before I say good night. Would you have me called at seven sharp? I want to catch the limited cattle train West.

MRS. J. W. SMITH of Orange, N. J., during the last year rode 2,643 miles upon a tricycle, 2,228 of which were made upon a tandem tricycle with her husband and 415 miles alone upon a single tricycle.

HON. M. A. FORAN, of Ohio, member of House of Representatives, writes that St. Jacobs Oil relieved him of acute bodily pains.

A precocious child walking with his father one day saw a cast-off hen's feather lying in the street. He stopped abruptly, and stood gazing at it for some minutes, then pointing toward it innocently inquired: "Angel?—or turkey?"

A bottle of Red Star Cough Cure made a thorough and permanent cure of a cold so severe that I could not talk, says Mr. J. P. Roach, assistant superintendent New York Central Sleeping Car Company.

At the University of Texas: Professor Snore, with dignified mein—How are the bivalves divided? Bright student—They ain't divided at all, Professor. You swallows 'em whole after sprinkling them with a little lemon juice and pepper sauce.

"Isn't that Mrs. Holmes? I thought the doctors gave her up. She looks well now."

"She is well. After the doctors gave up her case she tried Dr. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescription' and began to get better right away. I heard her say not long ago that she hadn't felt so well in twenty years. She does her own work and says that life seems worth living at last. 'Why,' said she, 'I feel as if I had been raised from the dead, almost.' Thus do thousands attest the marvelous efficacy of this God-given remedy for female weakness, prolapsus, ulceration, leucorrhœa, morning sickness, weakness of stomach, tendency to cancerous disease, nervous prostration, general debility and kindred affections.

The passion of vanity rules in forests as well as in cities.

How to Gain Flesh and Strength.

Use after each meal SCOTT'S EMULSION with Hypophosphites. It is as palatable as milk, and easily digested. The rapidity with which delicate people improve with its use is wonderful. Use it and try your weight. As a remedy for Consumption, Throat affections and Bronchitis, it is unequaled. Please read: "I used Scott's Emulsion in a child eight months old with good results. He gained four pounds in a very short time."—THO. PRIM, M. D., Alabama.

A man who talks about himself is sometimes a fool, but seldom a slanderer.

If you experience a bad taste in the mouth, sallowness or yellow color of skin, feel stupid and drowsy, appetite unsteady, frequent headache or dizziness, you are "bilious," and nothing will arouse your liver to action and strengthen up your system like Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" By druggists.

If no money was spent foolishly, half the world would be out of work.

Delicate diseases of either sex, however induced, speedily and permanently cured. Book of particulars 10 cents in stamps. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Politicians ought to learn to sing, and see if they cannot keep harmoney in their parties.

THOSE who are trying to break up the baneful habit of intemperance will experience great benefit from the use of Prickly Ash Bitters. Liquors derange the system. Prickly Ash Bitters will remedy the evil results and restore the brain, stomach and liver to healthy action, thereby strengthening the will power, thoroughly cleansing and toning up the system and remove every taint of disease. It is purely a medicine, and while pleasant to the taste, it cannot be used as a beverage by reason of its cathartic properties.

A Fortune for You.

All is new; capital not needed; you are started free. Both sexes; all ages. Wherever you live you should at once write to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine; they will send you free, full information about work that you can do and live at home, earning thereby from $5 to $25 and upwards daily, from the first start. Some have made over $50 in a day. The best chance ever known by working people. Now is the time—delay not.

The Cost of Ignorance.

Absence of the knowledge that physical and mental weakness, indigestion, impure blood, and sick headache can be averted by Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic, costs millions of money annually for uncertain and unreliable decoctions.

If you have tumor, (or tumor symptoms) Cancer (or cancer symptoms), Scrofula, Erysipelas, Salt-Rheum, Chronic weaknesses, Nervousness or other complaints—Dr. Kilmer's FEMALE REMEDY will correct and cure.

If a cough disturbs your sleep, take Piso's Cure for Consumption and rest well.

IS THERE ANY HOPE!

New and Important Opinions of Pulmonary Experts!

CAN THE UNIVERSAL CONSUMPTION BE SUCCESSFULLY TREATED!

Dr. Borgeon, a leading French doctor, has a new treatment for consumption!

He gives an enema of carbonic acid and sulphuretted hydrogen gases, the latter gas carrying the former into every part of the throat and lungs.

This treatment, too, is directed at effects—the cause remains undisturbed.

What this cause is has been stated by perhaps the highest pulmonary authority in the world, i. e., the Brompton Hospital for Consumptives, in London, Eng.

This malady every year carries off from one-seventh to one-fifth of the entire population of England.

Dr. Payne, M. D., M. R. C. P., London, is authority for this statement.

The same or a greater proportion of deaths obtains in America.

Dr. Payne also says that one-half the total number of deaths from all other causes have seeds of this disease in the system which only require some irritant to develop!

Dr. Hermann Brehmer, an eminent German authority, says that consumption is caused by deficient nutrition of the lungs, by poor blood.

These authorities cannot be disputed. The medical world recognizes them. The uric acid is the irritant in the blood that causes the development of the seeds which Dr. Brehmer says lie dormant in the blood.

Every particle of blood which passes through the lungs and heart, also goes through the kidneys, and if they are in the least deranged they cannot rid the blood of its killing poison. The thousand little hair-like sewer tubes of the kidneys very easily get blocked up and diseased; and when they do they corrupt instead of purifying the blood. Kidney disease may exist, and yet no pain occur in that organ, because it is deficient in nerves of sensation.

Dip your finger in acid every day and it soon festers and is destroyed. Send acid-poisoned blood through the lungs every second, and they soon give way.

The Brompton Hospital investigation showed that 52 per cent. of the victims of consumption were afflicted with deranged kidneys, which permitted the uric acid poison to remain in the blood and irritate the lungs. This uric acid is always fighting every vital organ, and if there be any inherent weakness in the lungs it inevitably cause pneumonia, cough and consumption.

The real cause of pulmonary troubles being so authoritatively shown to be faulty even though unsuspected action of the kidneys, explains why, in order to master the dreaded consumption, one must rid the blood of the uric acid irritant which inflames and burns up the lung substance. For this purpose there is nothing equal to that great specific, Warner's safe cure. The remedy has now the favor of medical men all over the world purely on its merits. We have no doubt that if the kidneys are kept in natural action, consumption and a great many other diseases, caused by uric acid, will not only be cured but will be prevented.

When the kidney is healthy, no albumen appears in the water, but albumen is found in the water of more than half of those who die of consumption!

This, then, is the condition of things that always precedes consumption: First, weakened kidneys; second, retained uric acid, poisoning the blood; third, the development of disease in the lungs by the irritant acids passing through them. Then there is a little cough in the morning; soon thick, yellow matter is spit up, followed by loss of flesh and strength, with dreadful night sweats; and when the patient goes to his school physician for help, he is put on cod liver oil, which his stomach, weakened also by uric acid in the blood, cannot digest. Because there is no pain present in the kidneys, the patient does not think they are affected, but the kidney acid is doing its work every minute, every hour, day and night, and by-and-by the disease of the lungs has advanced until pus is developed, then come hemorrhages, and at last the glassy stare which denotes that the end is near!

A post-mortem examination of such cases shows that the terrible uric acid has completely destroyed the substance of the lung.

It is impossible to cure lung diseases when the blood is poisoned with uric acid.

Good fellows are not always the best citizens, especially if they get too numerous.

Spring Medicine

Everybody needs and should take a good spring medicine, for two reasons:

1st. The body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season.

2d. The impurities which have accumulated in the blood should be expelled, and the system given tone and strength, before the prostrating effects of warm weather are felt.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best spring medicine for everybody. It purifies the blood. It sharpens the appetite. It tones the digestion. It overcomes debility. It builds up the whole system. Try it this spring.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla gave me new life and restored me to my wonted health and strength."—WILLIAM J. CLOUGH, Tilton, N. H.

Tones and Strengthens

"When in the spring I felt all run down and debilitated, I found Hood's Sarsaparilla just the medicine to build me up. My wife also, after much physical prostration, found in its use new life and lasting benefit. Upon our little girl, who had been sick with scarlet fever, its effect was marvelous, entirely removing the poison from her blood and restoring her to good health."—E. G. STRATTON, Swampscott, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

DROPSY TREATED FREE.

DR. H. H. GREEN & SONS, Specialists for Thirteen Years Past, Have treated Dropsy and its complications with the most wonderful success; use vegetable remedies, entirely harmless. Remove all symptoms of Dropsy in eight to twenty days.

Cure patients pronounced hopeless by the best of physicians.

From the first dose the symptoms rapidly disappear, and in ten days at least two-thirds of all symptoms are removed.

Some may cry humbug without knowing anything about it. Remember, it does not cost you anything to realize the merits of our treatment for yourself. In ten days the difficulty of breathing is relieved, the pulse regular, the urinary organs made to discharge their full duty, sleep is restored, the swelling all or nearly gone, the strength increased and appetite made good. We are constantly curing cases of long standing, cases that have been tapped a number of times, and the patient declared unable to live a week. Give full history of case. Name sex. How long afflicted, how badly swollen and where, are bowels costive, have legs bursted and dripped water? Send for free pamphlet, containing testimonials, questions, etc.

Ten days' treatment furnished free by mail.

If you order trial send 10cts in stamps to pay postage.

Epilepsy (Fits) Positively Cured.

H. H. GREEN & SONS, M. Ds., 250½ Marietta Street, Atlanta, Ga.

J. P. STEVENS & BRO, JEWELERS. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Catalogue.

ATLANTA SAW WORKS. Manufacturers of and Dealers in Saws and Saw-Mill Supplies. Repairing a Specialty. Agents for L. Power & Company's Wood Working Machinery. Large and complete stock. Write for catalogue. ATLANTA, GA.

OPIUM AND MORPHINE HABIT Quickly and Permanently cured by DR. TANNER'S OPIUM AND MORPHINE CURE. For sale by all Druggists. $1.00 Per Bottle. For Circulars and information address BENJAMIN & CRONHEIM, 101 Whitehall Street, or P. O. Box 105, ATLANTA, GA.

BUSINESS Education a specialty at MOORE'S BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, Ga. One of the best schools in the Country. Send for Circulars.

LADY AGENTS WANTED in every town to sell our Common-sense Bustle and Combination Skirt Bustle and Supporter. Send $1.00 for samples and agency. Address with stamp H. A. French & Co., Atlanta, Ga.

TAPEWORM CURE Illustrated Book sent FREE. Address A. M. BOCK, P. O. Box 466, Atlanta, Ga.

$15.00 Flat top No. 7 Cook Stove for $10.00 with fixtures. Send for catalogue. A. P. Stewart & Co., 60 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.

Too Much for the Judge.

A nice little boy, reared in the intellectual and heterodox atmosphere of Boston, happened to be a witness in a case in Cincinnati, and the question arose as to his being old enough to understand the nature of an oath, so the Judge investigated him:

"Well, Wendall," he said kindly, "do you know where bad little boys will go when they die?"

"No, sir," replied the boy with confidence.

"Goodness gracious!" exclaimed the Judge, in shocked surprise; "don't you know they will go to hell?"

"No, sir; do you?"

"Of course I do."

"How do you know it?"

"The Bible says so."

"Is it true?"

"Certainly it is."

"Can you prove it?"

"No, not positively; but we take it on faith," exclaimed the Judge.

"Do you accept that kind of testimony in this court?" inquired the boy, cooly.

But the Judge didn't answer; he held up his hands and begged the lawyers to take the witness.

YOUNG gent (in furnishing store)—"I want to get a box of paper collars, fifteen an' a half inch, an' a satin neck-tie." Dealer (affably)—"Yes, sir; all right, sir; and how is everything over in Boston?"

Wretched, Indeed,

Are those whom a confirmed tendency to biliousness, subject to the various and changeful symptoms indicative of liver complaint. Nausea, sick headache, constipation, furred tongue, an unpleasant breath, a dull or sharp pain in the neighborhood of the affected organ, impurity of the blood and loss of appetite, signalize it as one of the most distressing, as it is one of the most common, of maladies. There is, however, a benign specific for the disease, and all its unpleasant manifestations. It is the concurrent testimony of the public and the medical profession, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a medicine which achieves results speedily felt, thorough and benign. Besides rectifying liver disorder, it invigorates the feeble, conquers kidney and bladder complaints, and hastens the convalescence of those recovering from enfeebling diseases. Moreover, it is the grand specific for fever and ague.

There are 18,000 operatives in the shirt, cuff and collar trade of Troy.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.

Send for Pamphlet on Female Diseases, free, securely sealed. Dr. J. B. Marchisi, Utica, N.Y.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

Highest Awards of Medals in Europe and America.

The neatest, quickest, safest and most powerful remedy known for Rheumatism, Pleurisy, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Backache, Weakness, cold in the chest and all aches and pains. Endorsed by 5,000 Physicians and Druggists of the highest repute. Benson's Plasters promptly relieve and cure where other plasters and greasy salves, liniments and lotions, are absolutely useless. Beware of imitations under similar sounding names, such as "Capsicum," "Capucin," "Capsicine," as they are utterly worthless and intended to deceive. ASK FOR BENSON'S AND TAKE NO OTHERS. All druggists. SEABURY & JOHNSON, Proprietors, New York.

DR. KILMER'S FEMALE REMEDY Price $1.00 6 For $5.

Ladies! Those dull tired looks and feelings speak volumes! This Remedy corrects all conditions, restores vigor and vitality and brings back youthful bloom and beauty. Druggists. Prepared at Dr. Kilmer's DISPENSARY, Binghamton, N. Y. Letters of inquiry answered. Guide to Health (Sent Free).

OAKLAWN The Great Nursery of PERCHERON HORSES. 200 Imported Brood Mares Of Choicest Families. LARGE NUMBERS, All Ages, both Sexes, IN STOCK.

300 to 400 IMPORTED ANNUALLY from France, all recorded with extended pedigrees in the Percheron Stud Books. The Percheron is the only draft breed of France possessing a stud book that has the support and endorsement of the French Government. Send for 120-page Catalogue, illustrations by Rosa Bonheur. M. W. DUNHAM, Wayne, DuPage Co., Illinois.

JONES HE PAYS the FREIGHT 5 Ton Wagon Scales, Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box for $60. Every size Scale. For free price list mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for

TANSILL'S PUNCH 5¢

Your "Tansill's Punch" 5c. cigars are going off like hot cakes. I intend that they shall be well advertised. WM. F. H. STEPHENSON, Buffalo, N. Y. Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

ASTHMA CURED! German Asthma Cure never fails to give immediate relief in the worst cases, insures comfortable sleep; effects cures where all others fail. A trial convinces the most skeptical. Price 50 cts and $1.00, of Druggists or by mail. Sample FREE for stamp. DR. R. SCHIFFMAN, St. Paul, Minn.

MEXICAN WAR SURVIVORS or their Widows. New Pension Law. Apply at once for blanks and full information. Twenty years' experience. Best references. Success or no fee. R. McAllister, Jr., Attorney-at-Law, P. O. Box 482, Washington, D. C.

HARTSHORN'S Shade Rollers BEST

WE WANT YOU! a live energetic man or woman needing profitable employment to represent us in every county. Salary $75 per month and expenses, or a large commission on sales if preferred. Goods staple. Every one buys. Outfit and particulars Free. STANDARD SILVERWARE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

ARKANSAS MILD CLIMATE! Good Lands! Variety of PRODUCTS! LOW PRICES! EASY TERMS! MAPS AND CIRCULARS FREE. THOS. ESSEX, Land Com'r, Little Rock, Ark.

Young Men Can get the most Practical Business Education at Goldsmith's School of Business, 26½ Broad St. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Circulars & Specimen of Penmanship.

Blair's Pills. Great English Gout and Rheumatic Remedy. Oval Box $1.00; round, 50 cts.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Address Brewster's Safety Rein Holder, Holly, Mich.

PATENTS Obtained. Send stamp for Inventors' Guide. L. Bingham, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. Refer to 1000 patients cured in all parts. Dr. Marsh, Quincy, Mich.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

WITH A CAREFULLY PREPARED COMBINATION CONTAINING PRICKLY ASH BARK AND PRICKLY ASH BERRIES SENNA-MANDRAKE-BUCHU AND OTHER EQUALLY EFFICIENT REMEDIES.

It has stood the Test of Years, in Curing all Diseases of the BLOOD, LIVER, STOMACH, KIDNEYS, BOWELS, &c. It Purifies the Blood, Invigorates and Cleanses the System.

DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, JAUNDICE, SICKHEADACHE, BILIOUS COMPLAINTS, &c disappear at once under its beneficial influence.

It is purely a Medicine as its cathartic properties forbids its use as a beverage. It is pleasant to the taste, and as easily taken by children as adults.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CURES ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER KIDNEYS STOMACH AND BOWELS. FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS. PRICE 1 DOLLAR

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CO Sole Proprietors, ST. LOUIS and KANSAS CITY

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

HAINESVILLE, N. J., October 15, 1886.

E. T. HAZELTINE, Warren, Pa.

Dear Sir:

I was taken with a very severe cold last Spring, and tried every cure we had in the store, and could get no help.

I had our village doctor prescribe for me, but kept getting worse. I saw another physician from Port Jervis, N. Y., and he told me he used Piso's Cure for Consumption in his practice.

I bought a bottle, and before I had taken all of it there was a change for the better. Then I got my employer to order a quantity of the medicine and keep it in stock. I took one more bottle, and my Cough was cured.

Respectfully,
FRANK MCKELVY.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

HARTER'S THE ONLY TRUE IRON TONIC

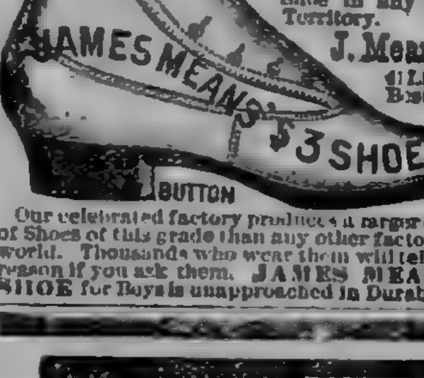
Will purify the BLOOD regulate the LIVER and KIDNEYS and RESTORE the HEALTH and VIGOR of YOUTH. Dyspepsia, Want of Appetite, Indigestion, Lack of Strength and Tired Feeling absolutely cured: Bones, muscles and nerves receive new force. Enlivens the mind and supplies Brain Power.

LADIES Suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex will find in DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC a safe and speedy cure. Gives a clear, healthy complexion. Frequent attempts at counterfeiting only add to the popularity of the original. Do not experiment—get the ORIGINAL AND BEST.

Dr. HARTER'S LIVER PILLS Cure Constipation, Liver Complaint and Sick Headache. Sample Dose and Dream Book mailed on receipt of two cents in postage.

THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE COMPANY, St. Louis, Mo.

Ask your retailer for the James Means' $3 Shoe. Caution! Some dealers recommend inferior goods in order to make a larger profit. This is the original $3 Shoe. Beware of imitations which acknowledge their own inferiority by attempting to build upon the reputation of the original. None Genuine unless bearing this Stamp, JAMES MEANS' For Gentlemen. $3 SHOE.



Made in Button, Congress and Lace. Best Calf Skin. Unexcelled in Durability, Comfort & Appearance. A postal card sent to us will bring you information how to get this Shoe in any State or Territory. J. Means & Co 41 Lincoln St., Boston, Mass.

Our celebrated factory produces a larger quantity of Shoes of this grade than any other factory in the world. Thousands who wear them will tell you the reason if you ask them. JAMES MEANS' $2 SHOE for Boys is unapproached in Durability.

MONEY FOR THE HONEST! In amounts of $50 to $500, on One to Ten years time. Our new plan—available to all, burdensome to none. State amount you can safely use, also age and occupation. The System in Full, with Forms, etc., Free, on receipt of stamp. No postals answered. I. BUTLER, Sec'y, Bradford Block, Cor. Sixth & Vine, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

SHOW CASES. WALL CASES.

DESKS, OFFICE FURNITURE AND FIXTURES. Ask for Illustrated Pamphlet. TERRY SHOW CASE CO., Nashville, Tenn.

DO YOU WANT A DOG? DOG BUYERS' GUIDE, Colored plates, 100 engravings of different breeds, prices they are worth, and where to buy them. Mailed for 15 Cents. ASSOCIATED FANCIERS, 237 S. Eighth St. Philadelphia, Pa.

THURSTON'S IVORY PEARL TOOTH POWDER Keeping Teeth Perfect and Gums Healthy.

Pensions to Soldiers & Heirs. Send stamp for circulars. COL. L. BINGHAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

MEXICAN WAR. Soldiers and Widows can now draw pensions. New Law. FLENNER & Co., Pension Attorneys, all wars, Washington, D. C.

OPIUM Habit Cured. Treatment sent on trial. HUMANE REMEDY CO., LaFayette, Ind.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest. CATARRH Also good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Hay Fever, &c. 50 cents.

TOWER'S FISH BRAND SLICKER The Best Waterproof Coat. The FISH BRAND SLICKER is warranted waterproof, and will keep you dry in the hardest storm. The new POMMEL SLICKER is a perfect riding coat, and covers the entire saddle. Beware of imitations. None genuine without the "Fish Brand" trade-mark. Illustrated Catalogue free. A. J. Tower, Boston, Mass.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

PLEASANT LITERATURE FOR FEMININE READERS.

Liverpool's Female Orchestra.

Some two or three years ago an orchestra was organized in Liverpool among the society ladies by a viscountess in order to raise money for a charity; but it has since been continued, and has now become something like a permanent affair. At present the orchestra is limited to a string band. It is possible that the heavier brass instruments are unsuited to ladies' lips, and fair cheeks distended by blowing, for instance, a trumpet, would certainly not look pretty. But apart from this the affair is constituted on the most businesslike principles. There are fourteen first and a similar number of second violins, eight violas, and eight violoncellos. Three ladies have been found willing and competent to play that ponderous instrument the double bass. Girls of almost every type of beauty are there, clad uniformly in white frocks, relieved by shoulder knots, some of pale blue, and others of salmon color. No Adam is allowed to invade this orchestral Eden.—Liverpool Post.

A Missouri Diana.

Mrs. Henry Harmon, who lives five miles south of Houston, Mo., came in yesterday afternoon, bringing a pair of fine wild turkeys, which she killed with her rifle the day before.

"How came you to kill them?" was asked by your correspondent.

"Why, easy enough. There are plenty of wilk turkeys in our locality. One of my little boys was out hunting rabbits about half a mile from the house. He saw a gang of turkeys. He came back, told me about it, and I just shouldered my gun and started. I had not traveled far beyond the place designated when I was made happy by espying a fine gang. I fired and killed this large one, and before they could all escape I detained this one."

"Tell me about some of your feats with the rifle."

"Well, I never did but one piece of shooting that I am particularly proud of; I once killed a bear. It was a long while ago, when father lived near the head of a small stream that empties into Big Creek. One morning, early in the autumn, father left home for Houston. Mother was away spending the day with her sister, I was left alone with a little brother and sister. About 10 o'clock I heard the dogs barking wildly in a cove about 200 yards above the house. I seized the rifle, and hurried to the scene. When I got there I found it was a big bear. The animal was standing on its hind legs and was constantly turning about, and now and then boxing a dog into last month. I was considerably frightened at first, but I took a little time to nerve myself. Then I took good aim, under the left arm, and fired. The bear fell awkwardly, rolled down the hill into the little stream, and when I made my cautious approach he was dead.—Globe-Democrat.

Fashions in Hair.

We have worn French twists very loose in the back, and pointed bangs long enough, and we welcome the hints our New York friends are giving us as to the changes in hair dressing. The simple fashion of a multitude of tiny braids wound round and round the back of the head continues for street wear, the only change being that the coil is a little lower than last spring, and that it is worn with bonnets; formerly it was only admissable with English turbans. For the style itself comes straight from England. Indeed, this is a frequently hard phrase on the continent: "Oh, she's English; I know by the braids."

Curly bangs have a decidedly commonplace air. The extremely fashionable arrangement of the front hair is the Russian bang. It is very short, curved or pointed in the middle, especially short on the sides, and the ends just slightly curled. These ends may be turned in or curled to one side or the other, as is most becoming. It is very good style to allow the parting between the bang and the back hair to show. All women take more care of this gift of nature than formerly, and oils or unguents are a thing of the past. The hair is washed carefully twice a month anyway, and when the tresses are of a very light color more frequent washing is necessary. Tar soap or white castile should be used, no ammonia, no borax, no soda, and this rule is given by one who has tried them all and knows which treatment makes the hair not only nicest but prettiest. It is the frequent washing that gives the soft, fleecy look to women's locks nowadays. This is the only secret. Nothing more is needed. Short hairs in the back must be trained and coaxed up, even though they curl; they are no more seen falling over the collar.

A truly fashionable woman wears a loose, small Grecian coil, just reaching to the top of the head, its only visible fastening being a long pin shot through. A gold one is most stylish, but of course most costly. If it is necessary to use short, ordinary pins, hide them; don't let even an end show. Long pins of imitation tortoise shell or silver are both pretty and cheap. All locks at the sides of the head and about the ears should lie back softly, but smoothly. Simplicity and daintiness seems to be the motto of all women nowadays, and in self and home alike this good taste makes itself apparent.—Chicago Herald.

Fashion Notes.

A pinking of broadcloth of contrasting color is used to edge house jackets.

The trains of wedding gowns are long and square, with triple plisse finish.

White jersey cloth caps edged with astrakhan are very comfortable for little tots.

Green and black is a favorite combination in winter costumes of silk and velvet.

Striped plush is introduced into short mantles as side or back breadths, with good effect.

The very narrow ribbon known as "cornet" is used in profusion upon dresses of tulle and tarlatan.

Sailor collars, made of various kinds of fur and tied with ribbons in front, are a novelty. They may be worn with all sorts of garments.

Habit basques of velvet are much worn with skirts of striped fabrics of silk and velvet. These skirts are very full, and much gored in front.

Round hats of glossy black beaver are taking the place of felt hats with fashionable young ladies, and are even favored for dressy occasions, with elaborate costumes of velvet or plush.

A revival of tinsel is threatened. Recent advices from the French capital are to the effect that the display of gold, silver and bead embroidery upon evening and other dressy toilets is fairly dazzling.

Underskirts of gray and black silk moreen are made with a number of flounces at the back, and set excellently. It is necessary that they be made by a person who understands the requirements of a well-fitting skirt.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

It is stated that a picture of a ball falling before a screen has been taken with one of Mr. Muybridge's fastest shutting cameras in the one-thousandth of a second.

Cocaine has a rival in an alkaloid obtained in Australia from the juice of Euphorbia Drummondu, which Dr. John Reid, its discoverer, calls Drumine. The new local anæsthetic acts almost entirely by paralyzing, and does not excite.

The Chevalier van Elewyck of Louvain has just perfected, after thirty-eight years of labor, a machine for recording all music extemporized upon the piano. His invention is worked by means of electricity, and he has been assisted in the mechanical details by M. Kermis, an engineer of Brussels.

Mr. J. W. Walker has discovered on the south side of pine Mountain, Georgia, nearly two hundred feet above the famous corundum mine, a site where the ancient inhabitants of that region manufactured their talc vessels for cooking. Evidences of the use of stone implements in the work are indubitable.

Mr. Elliott denies the courage and ferocity commonly attributed to the huge, hideous monster known as the walrus, or sea horse. It is, on the contrary, abjectly timid, and so covered with a wrinkled, warty, pimply hide as to recall degraded human "bloats." Its enormous ivory tusks are used only in digging clams, and are very loosely in their osseous sockets.

An observatory is in building at Sonnblick, in the Tyrolese Alps, ten thousand feet above the sea, which will be the highest of the kind in Europe. The mountain is relatively easy of access, with mines half-way up its slopes, and a wire rope-way in operation leading up to them. The observatory will be in telephonic communication with the mines, and thence in telegraphic communication with whatever spot it may be desirable to reach.

For extinguishing fire in closed spaces, where water would do much damage, a German physicist recommends a compound whose burning quickly absorbs the oxygen and renders combustion impossible. His preparation contains fifty-nine parts of powdered saltpetre, thirty-six parts of powdered sulphur, four parts of powdered charcoal and one part of colcothar (brown red oxide of iron). He keeps the mixture in five-pound pasteboard boxes, with a fuse protruding to insure lighting it.

The work of the heart in a healthy man is equivalent to the feat of raising 5 1-5 tons one foot per hour, or 125 tons in twenty-four hours. The use of eight ounces of alcohol causes the heart to show an excess of twenty-four foot tons. This would give the mileage of the blood through the body as 207 yards per minute, seven miles per hour, 168 miles per day, 61,320 miles per year, or 5,150,880 miles in a life time of eighty-four years. In the same long life the great journey of the blood would be the result of the grand total of 2,869,776,000 heart beats.

From a paper read by Prof. Forel before the Association of Swiss Geographical Societies, it appears that there are two parts in the Lake of Geneva, one small and shallow, the other large, deep, and Alpine in its character. The two are separated by the Yvoise bank or bar, which is really a glacial moraine, as shown by the flints dredged up. Knowledge of the central portion of the lake is still very incomplete. The fragments of rock, sometimes brought up from a depth of sixty-one metres, are covered with moss of a beautiful green—a fact that seems to show that light penetrates to that depth. It has been discovered that the river Rhone flows in a sublacustrine ravine.

"Sandbagging" in Chicago.

Belated pedestrians are nightly waylaid, "slugged," and robbed in all parts of the city. The deftness which characterizes many of these jobs suggests the clean action of that noted exponent of highway robbery, Patrick Kent, and, were it not for the fact that Mr. Kent is spending the second of a series of winters to be passed within the walls of Joliet, the police would say he was the man with the bag. Patrick Kent, the ablest man in the profession, terrorized the residents on the avenues east of State street two years ago. Within a month he sandbagged twenty-two persons and carried off considerable plunder. "Sandy" Kent had a system. He knew many of the high-salaried men in and all about the business houses on the south side; knew their pay days and the amount they received, and when they would start for their homes. In this way he was enabled to pick out the man who had stuff, and he himself said that he never dropped a man without being well paid for his trouble. The persuader he used was a long canvas bag one and half inches in diameter, with about eighteen inches of the length filled with bird shot. Then there was about six inches of slack for a handle. No matter how heavy a blow was struck it would not fracture the skull, but it was sure to knock the victim insensible.

"Winter is the proper time for going bagging," said Kent a few days before he went to State prison. It is the only time in which the work can be done safely, and the night must also be dark. Your man must be picked out early in the day, and you must know the route he takes to his home. Of course he is bundled up. Men going home after dark—business men—are like cows going home to be milked; they take the same path all the time, see? Well, what's the matter with bein' in an alleyway when he is about to pass? If you want to be successful you must wear rubber shoes, then you can sneak up when his back is turned and do him. He's stunned for a couple of minutes and gives you time to go through him. He doesn't know who struck him, an' the chances are two to one that you'll escape. But never soak the stuff: that's how I was caught."

The only way to escape a collision with a sand-bagger is to provide yourself, with a 44-calibre revolver and take the middle of the street when going home or to work at a late hour. Mr. Kent has prescribed this rule, and his authority can not be questioned.—Chicago Herald.

Bulgarian Peasants.

To judge from the talk there has been about it during the last ten years, one would think that Bulgaria was one of the great powers of Europe, instead of being a small principality not long since freed from Turkish rule. The people bear, on the whole, a good character for cleanliness and thrift. The peasants are fairly prosperous, their wants being few, and the climate of their country fine, and its soil fertile. The whole family in a peasant's household assist the father in his work, and could the affairs of the province but have an opportunity of settling down, there is little doubt that the future of Bulgaria would be bright and happy.—Little Folks.

There is a "whistling well" on a farm in Clare county, Mich. It is 150 feet deep, and whistles loudest just before a storm.

HOUSEHOLD AFFAIRS.

Decorating with Corn Stalks.

In log cabin farm houses, and even in still humbler homes, it is possible to introduce æsthetic effects by a free use of corn stalks for interior decorations. No one can have failed to notice the rich golden color and satin sheen of corn stalks in the late autumn season. Their lightness of weight fits them admirably for the purpose we have just indicated, while in the mere matter of exterior finish they are scarcely inferior to bamboo cane.

Let us illustrate by taking the simplest log cabin, with unplastered walls and bare rafters, upon which the floor of the second story—perhaps a mere loft—rests, thus answering the double purpose of floor and ceiling. In order to conceal the unsightly chinking of mud or plaster which fills the interstices between the logs, a dado is the first device, or rather wainscoting.

The stalks are selected of uniform thickness, and are then cut into such lengths as may be required for the height of the wainscoting. The cutting must be done with great accuracy; it is best to cut each stalk by laying it against a pine stick selected as a gauge.

Another set of stalks is now to be cut, and these form the ceiling decoration. The width between the rafters furnishes the model for the length of these stalks—for we are now speaking of the most primitive form of log cabin—one which has not even a plastered ceiling.

If paper is not too expensive for the upper wall surface, the cheapest quality of muslin can first be tacked around the four sides of the room above the intended wainscoting, and a low-priced wall paper of desirable tint applied; or coarse muslin of some pretty shade may furnish the covering without the addition of paper. The cheapest quality of crimson cheese cloth makes a handsome background in contrast with the yellow corn-stalks.

For the wainscoting these are applied simply by means of long brads driven through the stalks immediately into the logs around the four walls. The upper ledge will of course be perfectly smooth and even if the sticks have been carefully cut. As a finish for the top, corn stalks are to be laid along this ledge transversely, and also secured by long brads. This finishes the wainscoting, unless one wishes to add to the security of the part next to the floor by a thin strip of pine wood.

Since it costs nothing except a few hours labor, one may well try the experiment, if only for the sake of the beautiful æsthetic effect. If preferred, a narrow shelf may run around the room at the head of the wainscoting, particularly if it be sufficiently high not to interfere with the furniture. On such a shelf bits of bric-a-brac may be arranged to great advantage. The polished surface of the stalks easily prevents the accumulation of dust.

The sticks for the ceiling are laid between the rafters and secured to the planks by brads, making a solid surface, and repeating the effect of the wainscoting, except for the division formed by the rafters.—Harper's Bazar.

Recipes and Hints.

the bottom crust of fruit pies, or any other juicy kind, is rubbed over with a beaten egg it will not be soggy.

Take equal parts of flour, grated cheese, and butter; season with pepper and salt, and mix with one or two eggs. Bake in small cake or patty pans. You will call them nice cheese cakes.

A mixture to erase grease spots: Equal parts of strong ammonia water, ether and alcohol form a valuable cleaning compound. Pass a piece of blotting paper under the grease spot, moisten a sponge, first with water, to render it "greedy," then with the mixture, and rub with it the spot. In a moment it will be dissolved, saponified and absorbed by the sponge and blotter.

Parsnips cooked in this way are good: Mash; scrape and cut the parsnips in two or four lengthwise slices, and boil them in salted water until tender. When done serve them with melted butter and minced parsley poured over them. Parsnips after being boiled are nice when mashed smoothly, formed into small cakes, dipped in egg and bread crumbs and fried a light brown. They should be served when hot.

Good gingerbread: One cup molasses, one cup sugar, one cup raisins, one-half cup currants, two eggs, one-half cup butter, filling up the cup with hot water, one and one-half teaspoon cloves, two teaspoonfuls cinnamon, one and one-half teaspoons each of allspice and nutmeg, one teaspoon salt, two teaspoons soda; sift soda and salt into enough flour to make a batter; put buttered paper into pan to keep from burning and bake slowly. Carraway seeds and citron can be added.

Apple pies: When making apple pies of the raw apples they seldom get cooked through, and apple-sauce pies are not very nice, but the happy medium is obtained by slicing tart apples, peeled, of course, and placing them in a baking dish with a little water and sugar enough to sweeten, scattered through, then put into a hot oven closely covered and they will steam, and keep a nice color. Then fill your pies, and the juice will not be boiling out all the time they are baking. This makes nice apple-sauce, too.

Secretary Lamar on War.

"I used to think," Mr. Lamar went on to say, "before I saw much fighting, that the slaughter must be frightful. I could not see how, where so many bullets were flying, there was any chance at all for men to escape being hit. But I soon wondered how anybody was hit at all. My men that day at Williamsburg shot themselves out of ammunition twice. When we went into bivouac at night I went about asking the boys how they felt. I met one big Mississippian from my home town.

"'John, did you fire off all your powder?'

"'No,' he said. 'I tried hard all day, Colonel, to do my best, and I didn't fire but twice. All day long I didn't draw bead on a Yankee but twice. I've got my ammunition here,' and he tapped his cartridge box.

"'You fired twice?' I said. 'Did you hit 'em those times?'

"'Well, Colonel, to tell the truth, I missed one Yank, and I'm in doubt about the other.'

"That illustrates war," said the Secretary. "A lot of men march out and proceed to create a lot of accidents. The side that can procure the most accidents for the greatest number of consecutive hours wins the day.—New York Sun.

A Change Every Ten Years.

It is well known that the population of London is a migratory one, but probably few persons were prepared for the fact which has been brought to light by the compilers of that really wonderful work, Kelly's Postoffice Directory, that the removals in London amount to one in ten annually. Thus the entire population of London changes houses every ten years.—London Truth.

BOYS AND MOTHERS.

Oh, If Boys would Only Understand Their Mothers.

Sometimes boys think mothers are in the way; that they would have more liberty if it were not for their mothers. Mothers have such searching eyes, eyes that seem to look right into the heart, especially if there is anything hiding there that mothers should know about; and this is troublesome. If the boys would only understand that it is love that makes the mother's eyes so keen, her voice so anxious, her questions so searching; love that knows all the temptations that may come to a boy, and the trouble if there is no wise confident about! It is not the anxiety of a Paul Pry, but the loving guardianship of a mother. A wise man said, "God could not be everywhere, so he made mothers." God may seem far off to us sometimes, but there is mother near, who will lead us back. The wisest and best men have honored their mothers. Few men who have accomplished a special work in the world do not give credit to their mother for the help and inspiration that made their work possible. In giving this credit to their mothers they have honored themselves, for it proves that as boys they honored her instructions, were guided by her advice, and made a confidante of her in their hopes and desires. When the late President Garfield was inaugurated, the first person he saluted was his mother, showing plainly the place she held in his heart, his life.

The world honors and respects the man who honors and respects his mother. The neglect of a mother stamps a man or boy as heartless, ungrateful, if not cruel. The truly great men have never forgotten those to whom they were most deeply indebted. Many letters have been written about mothers, but few that show the sorrow that comes if the full measure of a mother's love has received no return until too late to make it. The poet Gray, in 1765, wrote the following letter to a friend:

"It is long since I heard you were gone in haste into Yorkshire on account of your mother's illness, and the same letter informed me she was recovered. Otherwise I had then wrote to you only to beg you would take care of her, and inform you that I had discovered a thing very little known, which is that in one's whole life one can never have any more than a single mother. You may think this obvious and (what you call) a trite observation. . . You are a green gosling! I was at the same age (very near) as wise as you, and yet I never discovered this (with full evidence and conviction, I mean) till it was too late. It is thirteen years ago, and it seems but as yesterday, and every day I live it sinks deeper into my heart."

Not Too Much to Ask.

Tramp (whose request for food has been denied)—Well, ma'am, would you let me sleep in the ten-acre lot back of the barn if I won't make any noise?"

Woman—Ye-es, I don't mind letting you do that.

Tramp (appealingly)—Well, one thing more, ma'am, before I say good night. Would you have me called at seven sharp? I want to catch the limited cattle train West.

Mrs. J. W. Smith of Orange, N. J., during the last year rode 2,643 miles upon a tricycle, 2,228 of which were made upon a tandem tricycle with her husband and 415 miles alone upon a single tricycle.

Hon. M. A. Foran, of Ohio, member of House of Representatives, writes that St. Jacobs Oil relieved him of acute bodily pains.

A precocious child walking with his father one day saw a cast-off hen's feather lying in the street. He stopped abruptly, and stood gazing at it for some minutes, then pointing toward it innocently inquired: "Angel?—or turkey?"

A bottle of Red Star Cough Cure made a thorough and permanent cure of a cold so severe that I could not talk, says Mr. J. P. Roach, assistant superintendent New York Central Sleeping Car Company.

At the University of Texas: Professor Snore, with dignified mein—How are the bivalves divided? Bright student—They ain't divided at all, Professor. You swallows 'em whole after sprinkling them with a little lemon juice and pepper sauce.

"Isn't that Mrs. Holmes? I thought the doctors gave her up. She looks well now."

"She is well. After the doctors gave up her case she tried Dr. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescription' and began to get better right away. I heard her say not long ago that she hadn't felt so well in twenty years. She does her own work and says that life seems worth living at last. 'Why,' said she, 'I feel as if I had been raised from the dead, almost.' Thus do thousands attest the marvelous efficacy of this God-given remedy for female weakness, prolapsus, ulceration, leucorrhœa, morning sickness, weakness of stomach, tendency to cancerous disease, nervous prostration, general debility and kindred affections.

The passion of vanity rules in forests as well as in cities.

How to Gain Flesh and Strength.

Use after each meal SCOTT'S EMULSION with Hypophosphites. It is as palatable as milk, and easily digested. The rapidity with which delicate people improve with its use is wonderful. Use it and try your weight. As a remedy for Consumption, Throat affections and Bronchitis, it is unequaled. Please read: "I used Scott's Emulsion in a child eight months old with good results. He gained four pounds in a very short time."—THO. PRIM, M. D., Alabama.

A man who talks about himself is sometimes a fool, but seldom a slanderer.

If you experience a bad taste in the mouth, sallowness or yellow color of skin, feel stupid and drowsy, appetite unsteady, frequent headache or dizziness, you are "bilious," and nothing will arouse your liver to action and strengthen up your system like Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" By druggists.

If no money was spent foolishly, half the world would be out of work.

Delicate diseases of either sex, however induced, speedily and permanently cured. Book of particulars 10 cents in stamps. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Politicians ought to learn to sing, and see if they cannot keep harmoney in their parties.

THOSE who are trying to break up the baneful habit of intemperance will experience great benefit from the use of Prickly Ash Bitters. Liquors derange the system. Prickly Ash Bitters will remedy the evil results and restore the brain, stomach and liver to healthy action, thereby strengthening the will power, thoroughly cleansing and toning up the system and remove every taint of disease. It is purely a medicine, and while pleasant to the taste, it cannot be used as a beverage by reason of its cathartic properties.

A Fortune for You.

All is new; capital not needed; you are started free. Both sexes; all ages. Wherever you live you should at once write to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine; they will send you free, full information about work that you can do and live at home, earning thereby from $5 to $25 and upwards daily, from the first start. Some have made over $50 in a day. The best chance ever known by working people. Now is the time—delay not.

The Cost of Ignorance.

Absence of the knowledge that physical and mental weakness, indigestion, impure blood, and sick headache can be averted by Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic, costs millions of money annually for uncertain and unreliable decoctions.

If you have tumor, (or tumor symptoms) Cancer (or cancer symptoms), Scrofula, Erysipelas, Salt-Rheum, Chronic weaknesses, Nervousness or other complaints—Dr. Kilmer's FEMALE REMEDY will correct and cure.

If a cough disturbs your sleep, take Piso's Cure for Consumption and rest well.

IS THERE ANY HOPE!

New and Important Opinions of Pulmonary Experts!

CAN THE UNIVERSAL CONSUMPTION BE SUCCESSFULLY TREATED!

Dr. Borgeon, a leading French doctor, has a new treatment for consumption!

He gives an enema of carbonic acid and sulphuretted hydrogen gases, the latter gas carrying the former into every part of the throat and lungs.

This treatment, too, is directed at effects—the cause remains undisturbed.

What this cause is has been stated by perhaps the highest pulmonary authority in the world, i. e., the Brompton Hospital for Consumptives, in London, Eng.

This malady every year carries off from one-seventh to one-fifth of the entire population of England.

Dr. Payne, M. D., M. R. C. P., London, is authority for this statement.

The same or a greater proportion of deaths obtains in America.

Dr. Payne also says that one-half the total number of deaths from all other causes have seeds of this disease in the system which only require some irritant to develop!

Dr. Hermann Brehmer, an eminent German authority, says that consumption is caused by deficient nutrition of the lungs, by poor blood.

These authorities cannot be disputed. The medical world recognizes them. The uric acid is the irritant in the blood that causes the development of the seeds which Dr. Brehmer says lie dormant in the blood.

Every particle of blood which passes through the lungs and heart, also goes through the kidneys, and if they are in the least deranged they cannot rid the blood of its killing poison. The thousand little hair-like sewer tubes of the kidneys very easily get blocked up and diseased; and when they do they corrupt instead of purifying the blood. Kidney disease may exist, and yet no pain occur in that organ, because it is deficient in nerves of sensation.

Dip your finger in acid every day and it soon festers and is destroyed. Send acid-poisoned blood through the lungs every second, and they soon give way.

The Brompton Hospital investigation showed that 52 per cent. of the victims of consumption were afflicted with deranged kidneys, which permitted the uric acid poison to remain in the blood and irritate the lungs. This uric acid is always fighting every vital organ, and if there be any inherent weakness in the lungs it inevitably causes pneumonia, cough and consumption.

The real cause of pulmonary troubles being so authoritatively shown to be faulty even though unsuspected action of the kidneys, explains why, in order to master the dreaded consumption, one must rid the blood of the uric acid irritant which inflames and burns up the lung substance. For this purpose there is nothing equal to that great specific, Warner's safe cure. The remedy has now the favor of medical men all over the world purely on its merits. We have no doubt that if the kidneys are kept in natural action, consumption and a great many other diseases, caused by uric acid, will not only be cured but will be prevented.

When the kidney is healthy, no albumen appears in the water, but albumen is found in the water of more than half of those who die of consumption!

This, then, is the condition of things that always precedes consumption: First, weakened kidneys; second, retained uric acid, poisoning the blood; third, the development of disease in the lungs by the irritant acids passing through them. Then there is a little cough in the morning; soon thick, yellow matter is spit up, followed by loss of flesh and strength, with dreadful night sweats; and when the patient goes to his school physician for help, he is put on cod liver oil, which his stomach, weakened also by uric acid in the blood, cannot digest. Because there is no pain present in the kidneys, the patient does not think they are affected, but the kidney acid is doing its work every minute, every hour, day and night, and by-and-by the disease of the lungs has advanced until pus is developed, then come hemorrhages, and at last the glassy stare which denotes that the end is near!

A post-mortem examination of such cases shows that the terrible uric acid has completely destroyed the substance of the lung.

It is impossible to cure lung diseases when the blood is poisoned with uric acid.

Good fellows are not always the best citizens, especially if they get too numerous.

Spring Medicine

Everybody needs and should take a good spring medicine, for two reasons:

1st. The body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season.

2d. The impurities which have accumulated in the blood should be expelled, and the system given tone and strength, before the prostrating effects of warm weather are felt.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best spring medicine for everybody. It purifies the blood. It sharpens the appetite. It tones the digestion. It overcomes debility. It builds up the whole system. Try it this spring.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla gave me new life and restored me to my wonted health and strength."—WILLIAM J. CLOUGH, Tilton, N. H.

Tones and Strengthens

"When in the spring I felt all run down and debilitated, I found Hood's Sarsaparilla just the medicine to build me up. My wife also, after much physical prostration, found in its use new life and lasting benefit. Upon our little girl, who had been sick with scarlet fever, its effect was marvelous, entirely removing the poison from her blood and restoring her to good health."—E. G. STRATTON, Swampscott, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

DROPSY

TREATED FREE.

DR. H. H. GREEN & SONS,

Specialists for Thirteen Years Past,

Have treated Dropsy and its complications with the most wonderful success; use vegetable remedies, entirely harmless. Remove all symptoms of Dropsy in eight to twenty days.

Cure patients pronounced hopeless by the best of physicians.

From the first dose the symptoms rapidly disappear, and in ten days at least two-thirds of all symptoms are removed.

Some may cry humbug without knowing anything about it. Remember, it does not cost you anything to realize the merits of our treatment for yourself. In ten days the difficulty of breathing is relieved, the pulse regular, the urinary organs made to discharge their full duty, sleep is restored, the swelling all or nearly gone, the strength increased and appetite made good. We are constantly curing cases of long standing, cases that have been tapped a number of times, and the patient declared unable to live a week. Give full history of case. Name sex. How long afflicted, how badly swollen and where, are bowels costive, have legs bursted and dripped water? Send for free pamphlet, containing testimonials, questions, etc.

Ten days' treatment furnished free by mail.

If you order trial send 10cts in stamps to pay postage.

Epilepsy (Fits) Positively Cured.

H. H. GREEN & SONS, M. Ds.,

250½ Marietta Street, Atlanta, Ga.

J. P. STEVENS & BRO.

JEWELERS.

Atlanta, Ga.

Send for Catalogue.

ATLANTA SAW WORKS.

Manufacturers of and Dealers in

Saws and Saw-Mill Supplies.

Repairing a Specialty.

Agents for L. Power & Company's Wood Working Machinery. Large and complete stock. Write for catalogue. ATLANTA, GA.

OPIUM AND MORPHINE HABIT Quickly and Permanently cured by DR. TANNER'S OPIUM AND MORPHINE CURE. For sale by all Druggists. $1.00 Per Bottle. For Circulars and information address [illegible] CRONHEIM, 34 Whitehall Street, or P. O. Box 18, ATLANTA, GA.

BUSINESS Education a specialty at MOORE'S BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, Ga. One of the best schools in the Country. Send for Circulars.

LADY AGENTS WANTED in every town to sell our Common-sense Bustle and Combination Skirt Bustle and Supporter. Send $1.00 for samples and agency. Address with stamp H. A. French & Co., Atlanta, Ga.

TAPEWORM CURE Illustrated Book sent FREE. Address A. M. BOOK, P. O. Box 468, Atlanta, Ga.

$15.00 [illegible] No. 7 Cook Stove for $10.00 with fixtures. Send for catalogue. [illegible] Stewart & Co., [illegible] Atlanta, Ga.

Too Much for the Judge.

A nice little boy, reared in the intellectual and heterodox atmosphere of Boston, happened to be a witness in a case in Cincinnati, and the question arose as to his being old enough to understand the nature of an oath, so the Judge investigated him:

"Well, Wendall," he said kindly, "do you know where bad little boys will go when they die?"

"No, sir," replied the boy with confidence.

"Goodness gracious!" exclaimed the Judge, in shocked surprise; "don't you know they will go to hell?"

"No, sir; do you?"

"Of course I do."

"How do you know it?"

"The Bible says so."

"Is it true?"

"Certainly it is."

"Can you prove it?"

"No, not positively; but we take it on faith," exclaimed the Judge.

"Do you accept that kind of testimony in this court?" inquired the boy, cooly.

But the Judge didn't answer; he held up his hands and begged the lawyers to take the witness.

YOUNG gent (in furnishing store)—"I want to get a box of paper collars, fifteen an' a half inch, an' a satin neck-tie." Dealer (affably)—"Yes, sir; all right, sir; and how is everything over in Boston?"

Wretched, Indeed.

Are those whom a confirmed tendency to biliousness, subject to the various and changeful symptoms indicative of liver complaint. Nausea, sick headache, constipation, furred tongue, an unpleasant breath, a dull or sharp pain in the neighborhood of the affected organ, impurity of the blood and loss of appetite, signalize it as one of the most distressing, as it is one of the most common, of maladies. There is, however, a benign specific for the disease, and all its unpleasant manifestations. It is the concurrent testimony of the public and the medical profession, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a medicine which achieves results speedily felt, thorough and benign. Besides rectifying liver disorder, it invigorates the feeble, conquers kidney and bladder complaints, and hastens the convalescence of those recovering from enfeebling disease. Moreover, it is the grand specific for fever and ague.

There are 18,000 operatives in the shirt, cuff and collar trade of Troy.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.

Send for Pamphlet on Female Diseases, free, securely sealed. Dr. J. B. Marchisi, Utica, N.Y.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

Highest Awards of Medals in Europe and America.

The neatest, quickest, safest and most powerful remedy known for Rheumatism, Pleurisy, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Backache, Weakness, cold in the chest and all aches and pains. Endorsed by 5,000 Physicians and Druggists of the highest repute. Benson's Plasters promptly relieve and cure where other plasters and greasy salves, liniments and lotions, are absolutely useless. Beware of imitations under similar sounding names, such as "Capsicum," "Capucin," "Capsicine," as they are utterly worthless and intended to deceive. ASK FOR BENSON'S AND TAKE NO OTHERS. All druggists.

SEABURY & JOHNSON, Proprietors, New York.

DR. KILMER'S FEMALE REMEDY Price $1.00 6 For $5.

Ladies! Those dull tired looks and feelings speak volumes! This Remedy corrects all conditions, restores vigor and vitality and brings back youthful bloom and beauty. Druggists. Prepared at Dr. Kilmer's Dispensary, Binghamton, N. Y. Letters of inquiry answered. Guide to Health (Sent Free).

OAKLAWN

The Great Nursery of

PERCHERON HORSES.

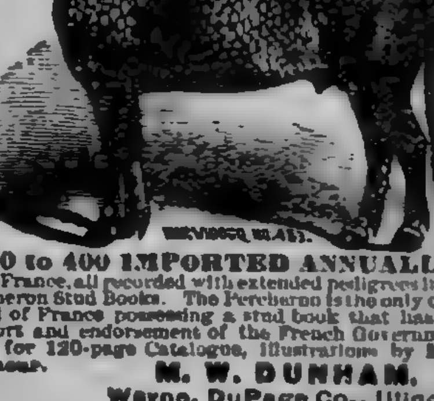
200 Imported Brood Mares

Of Choicest Families.

LARGE NUMBERS,

All Ages, both Sexes,

IN STOCK.



300 to 400 IMPORTED ANNUALLY from France, all recorded with extended pedigrees in the Percheron Stud Books. The Percheron is the only draft breed of France possessing a stud book that has the support and endorsement of the French Government. Send for 120-page Catalogue, illustrations by Rosa Bonheur.

M. W. DUNHAM,

Wayne, DuPage Co., Illinois.

JONES

HE

PAYS the FREIGHT

5 Ton Wagon Scales,

Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box for $60.

Every size Scale. For free price list mention this paper and address

JONES OF BINGHAMTON,

BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for

TANSILL'S PUNCH 5¢

Your "Tansill's Punch" 5c. cigars are going off like hot cakes. I intend that they shall be well advertised. WM. F. H. STEPHENSON, Buffalo, N. Y.

Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

ASTHMA CURED!

German Asthma Cure never fails to give immediate relief in the worst cases, insures comfortable sleep; effects cures where all others fail. A trial convinces the most skeptical. Price 50 cts and $1.00, of Druggists or by mail. Sample FREE for stamp. DR. R. SCHIFFMAN, St. Paul, Minn.

MEXICAN WAR SURVIVORS or their Widows. New Pension Law. Apply at once for blanks and full information. Twenty years' experience. Best references. Success or no fee. R. McAllister, Jr., Attorney-at-Law, P. O. Box 493, Washington, D. C.

HARTSHORN'S Shade Rollers THE BEST

NOTICE [illegible] LABEL [illegible] IMITATION

WE WANT YOU! a live energetic man or woman needing profitable employment to represent us in every county. Salary $75 per month and expenses, or a large commission on sales if preferred. Goods staple. Every one buys. Outfit and particulars Free. STANDARD SILVERWARE CO., BOSTON, MASS.

ARKANSAS MILD CLIMATE! Good Lands! Variety of PRODUCTS! LOW PRICES! EASY TERMS! MAPS AND CIRCULARS FREE. THOS. ESSEX, Land Com'r, Little Rock, Ark.

Young Men Can get the most Practical Business Education at Goldsmith's School of Business, 38½ S Broad St. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Circulars & Specimen of Penmanship.

Blair's Pills. Great English Gout and Rheumatic Remedy. Oval Box $1.00; round, 50 cts.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Address BREWSTER'S SAFETY REIN HOLDER, Holly, Mich.

PATENTS Obtained. Send stamp for Inventors' Guide. L. Bingham, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. Refer to 1000 patients cured in all parts. DR. MARSH, Quincy, Mich.

TOWER'S FISH BRAND SLICKER The Best Waterproof Coat.

[illegible]

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

IT IS A PURELY VEGETABLE PREPARATION CONTAINING PRICKLY ASH BARK AND PRICKLY ASH BERRIES SENNA–MANDRAKE–BUCHU AND OTHER EQUALLY EFFICIENT REMEDIES

It has stood the Test of Years, in Curing all Diseases of the BLOOD, LIVER, STOMACH, KIDNEYS, BOWELS, &c. It Purifies the Blood, Invigorates and Cleanses the System.

DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, JAUNDICE, SICKHEADACHE, BILIOUS COMPLAINTS, &c disappear at once under its beneficial influence.

It is purely a Medicine as its cathartic properties forbids its use as a beverage. It is pleasant to the taste, and as easily taken by children as adults.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CURES ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER KIDNEYS STOMACH AND BOWELS FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS PRICE DOLLAR

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CO

Sole Proprietors,

ST. LOUIS and KANSAS CITY

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

HAINESVILLE, N. J.,
October 15, 1886.

E. T. HAZELTINE,
Warren, Pa.

Dear Sir:

I was taken with a very severe cold last Spring, and tried every cure we had in the store, and could get no help.

I had our village doctor prescribe for me, but kept getting worse. I saw another physician from Port Jervis, N. Y., and he told me he used Piso's Cure for Consumption in his practice.

I bought a bottle, and before I had taken all of it there was a change for the better. Then I got my employer to order a quantity of the medicine and keep it in stock. I took one more bottle, and my Cough was cured.

Respectfully,
FRANK MCKELVY.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

HARTER'S THE ONLY TRUE IRON TONIC

Will purify the BLOOD regulate the LIVER and KIDNEYS and RESTORE the HEALTH and VIGOR of YOUTH. Dyspepsia, Want of Appetite, Indigestion, Lack of Strength and Tired Feeling absolutely cured: Bones, muscles and nerves receive new force. Enlivens the mind and supplies Brain Power.

LADIES Suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex will find in DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC a safe and speedy cure. Gives a clear, healthy complexion. Frequent attempts at counterfeiting only add to the popularity of the original. Do not experiment—get the ORIGINAL AND BEST.

Dr. HARTER'S LIVER PILLS Cure Constipation, Liver Complaint and Sick Headache. Sample Dose and Dream Book mailed on receipt of two cents in postage.

THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE COMPANY.

St. Louis, Mo.

Ask your retailer for the James Means' $3 Shoe. Caution! Some dealers recommend inferior goods in order to make a larger profit. This is the original $3 Shoe. Beware of imitations which acknowledge their own inferiority by attempting to build upon the reputation of the original. None Genuine unless bearing this Stamp.

JAMES MEANS' $3 SHOE.

For Gentlemen.

Made in Button, Congress and Lace. Best Calf Skin. Unexcelled in Durability, Comfort & Appearance. A postal card sent to us will bring you information how to get this Shoe in any State or Territory.

J. Means & Co

41 Lincoln St., Boston, Mass.

Our celebrated factory produces a larger quantity of Shoes of this grade than any other factory in the world. Thousands who wear them will tell you the reason if you ask them. JAMES MEANS' $2 SHOE for Boys is unapproached in Durability.

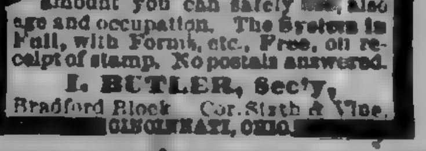
MONEY FOR THE HONEST!

In amounts of $50 to $500, on One to Ten years time. Our new plan—available to all, burdensome to none. State amount you can safely use, also age and occupation. The System in Full, with Forms, etc., Free, on receipt of stamp. No postals answered.

I. BUTLER, Sec'y,

Bradford Block, Cor. Sixth & Vine, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

SHOW CASES. WALL CASES.



DESKS, OFFICE FURNITURE AND FIXTURES.

Ask for Illustrated Pamphlet.

TERRY SHOW CASE CO., Nashville, Tenn.

DO YOU WANT A DOG

DOG BUYERS' GUIDE. Colored plates, 100 engravings of different breeds, prices they are worth, and where to buy them. Mailed for 15 Cents. ASSOCIATED FANCIERS, 237 S. Eighth St. Philadelphia, Pa.

THURSTON'S IVORY PEARL TOOTH POWDER Keeping Teeth Perfect and Gums Healthy.

Pensions to Soldiers & Heirs. Send stamp for circulars. COL. L. BINGHAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

MEXICAN WAR. Soldiers and Widows can now draw pensions. New Law. FLENNER & Co., Pension Attorneys, all wars, Washington, D. C.

OPIUM Habit Cured. Treatment sent on trial. HUMANE REMEDY CO., LaFayette, Ind.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Also good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Hay Fever, &c. 50 cents.

A. N. U...Ten, '87

Rates of Advertising.

One Dollar per Square of one inch space or less, for the first, and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion.

Space.	3 m.	6 m.	12 m.
1 Inch	$ 5 00	$ 7 00	$ 11 00
2 Inches	7 00	11 00	16 00
3 Inches	10 00	[illegible]	22 00
4 Inches	12 00	[illegible]	27 00
5 Inches	15 00	[illegible]	30 00
¼ Column	16 00	27 00	40 00
½ Column	27 00	40 00	60 00
Column	40 00	60 00	100 00

The Chilton View.

W. H. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors.

"WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION."

TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

Special Advertising.

Business Notices Ten Cents per line each insertion.

Obituaries and Tributes of Respect, half rates.

Announcing candidates for office, Five Dollars, strictly in advance.

Communications recommending candidates for office will be headed as advertisements and charged for accordingly.

Liberal contracts made with those advertising by the year.

☞ The money is due on all advertising after the first publication.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA. THURSDAY, MARCH 24, 1887. NUMBER 20.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Subject: "Four Full Regiments."

TEXT: And four thousand praised the Lord.—I. Chronicles, xxiii., 5; This day shall be unto you for a memorial.—Exodus, xii., 14.

When week before last the communicant membership of this church passed into the four thousand, now reaching four thousand and forty-five, the first part of my text came to my mind, and I bethought myself what a grand thing it would be if the four thousand of our communicant membership would, like the four thousand of the ancient Temple, make it their lifetime business, to praise the Lord. Let them all take harp and timbrel and anthem and doxology!

The allusion of my second text is to the Passover, which commemorated the deliverance of the Children of Israel on the night when the destroying angel sped through the land of Egypt, destroying the enemy but saving the Israelites, because on the door-posts of their dwellings was sprinkled the blood of a lamb. To-day we come to celebrate a grander Passover, all peril going away from our soul at the sight of the sprinkled blood of the Lamb of God on the door-posts of our hearts. Christ, our Passover, sacrificed for us. "This day shall be unto you for a memorial."

The Sacramental Sabbath, whether it comes in an American church or an English chapel or a Scotch kirk, is more impressive than any other Sabbath. Its light is holier, calmer, sweeter; its voices more tender; its touch is softer; its memories are more chastened. The fruits of the Christian life suddenly ripen, like orchards on the hill fronting the South. The wine of the Holy Sacrament seems pressed from the grapes of Celestial vineyards, and the bread broken seems to drop from the hand of Him who parted the loaves for the five thousand. We walk to the church of God with more thoughtful face and with quieter step. The jubilant songs of other Sundays are struck through with pensiveness and are all a tremble with tears; and when, at the close of the service, at the door we shake hands, it is with a more cordial grasp, because we feel thrilling through our body, and mind, and soul the great doctrines of Christian brotherhood; and our minds go back to our forefathers celebrating the Sacrament in times of persecution in Scotland among the Highlands; commemorating the dying love of Christ, while they were pursued of their enemies, pouring the wine into rough wooden cups, dipping the waters of baptism from the mountain rock, until one day they heard the voices of their enemies coming up the hill, and the pastor cried out: "Oh Lord, the Shepherd, have mercy on the sheep!" and instantly there was a roaring heard as of great floods and sure enough a cloud had burst and there were great torrents running down the mountain side that whelmed their foes with sudden wrath. What a deliverance it was for them on that Sacramental day! Oh, that on this Sacramental day the cloud of God's mercy might burst and our sins be whelmed and our souls be saved! This is the amethyst of days. This is the pearl of days. This is the diamond of days. This is the day of days. Among the ten thousand million ages of eternity the first Sabbath of March, 1887, will be to you significant and memorable, for "this day shall be unto you" for ever and for ever "a memorial."

There is much in the scene of to-day to impress us because it is a time of reinforcement. I used to remark that if I ever lived to see our membership four thousand I thought I would be willing to say with one of old: "Now, Lord, lettest thou Thy servant depart in peace, for mine eyes have seen Thy salvation." But I have changed my mind, and I never so much wanted to stay as now, so as to see them all enlisted for God and to watch their victories. What might they not accomplish in the way of making the world better if they were all baptized with a double portion of the Holy Ghost! Four thousand! That is four full regiments, as military men count a thousand to a regiment. I think not one hypocrite amongst them. Taken into the church sometimes in large numbers, but each one as carefully examined as to change of heart and evidence of regeneration as though he or she were the only one presenting himself or herself. Many of our former members have passed away into the skies, and have joined the church triumphant, but we have four thousand and more left for the church militant. To arms! Quit you like men! We want no reserve corps among them. Go into action all of you. Some will be officers and command. Some will make cavalry charge. Some will be sharpshooters. Some will stand guard. Some will be on picket duty. Many of you will belong to the rank and file. Let there be no stragglers, none off on furlough, not one deserter. With Christ for Commander-in-chief, and the one-starred, blood-striped banner of manger and cross to lead the way, I give the order that the General in the war gave when, rising in his stirrups, his hair flying in the wind, he cried out till all the host heard him: "Forward! the whole line!"

There is also something in such a scene to deeply impress one, because it rehearses a death scene. Now, you know, there is something very touching in such an incident. Though you are in a hotel and it is a stranger that is dying, how softly you move about the place, and if you come up to his couch it is with uncovered head. Even the voice of the jester is stopped, and when the eyes of that stranger are closed it is with emotion. But I am to tell you this morning of a death such as has never before or since occurred. When we die, we die for ourselves and the crisis is alleviated by all beneficent ministries. Bathings for the hands; bathings for the head; bathings for the feet; the light turned down low or set in just the right place; all the offices of affection about us when we come to die. But not so with Jesus. He died not for Himself, but He died in torment and He died for others. He might have moved around in gardens made by His own hand, an earthly potentate amid vineyards and olive groves sloping to the sea. Instead of being tossed in the fishing boat on Tiberius, He might have chosen a sunshiny day and a pleasant wave for the lake crossing. Instead of being followed by an unwashed rabble He might have charmed sanhedrims and universities with His eloquence. Instead of a cross and a bunch of twisted brambles on His brow he might have died in the castle of a Roman merchant, the air bland with lilies and frankincense. But no; He died in torture; the good for the bad; the kind for the cruel; the wise for the ignorant; the divine for the human. Oh how tenderly we feel toward any one who has done a great kindness and perhaps at the imperiling of his own life! How we ought to feel toward Christ, the Captain of our salvation, on the white horse riding down our foes; but in the moment He made the victorious charge, the lances of death struck Him!

There was a very touching scene among an Indian tribe in the last century. It seemed that one of the chieftains had slain a man belonging to an opposite tribe, and that tribe came forward and said: "We will exterminate you unless you surrender the man who committed that crime." The chieftain who did the crime stepped out from the ranks and said: "I am not afraid to die, but I have a wife and four children, and I have a father aged and a mother aged, whom I support by hunting, and I sorrow to leave them helpless." Just as he said that his old father from behind stepped out and said: "He shall not die. I take his place. I am old and well-stricken in years. I can do no good. I might as well die. My days are almost over. He cannot be spared. Take me." And they accepted the sacrifice. Wonderful sacrifice! you say, but not so wonderful as that found in the Gospel, for we deserved to die, aye, we were sentenced when Christ, not worn out with years but in the flush of His youth, said: "Save that man from going down to the pit; I am the ransom. Put his burdens on my shoulders. Let His stripes fall on my back. Take my heart for His heart. Let me die that He may live." Shall it be told to-day in heaven that notwithstanding all those wounds, and all that blood, and all those tears, and all that agony, you would not accept Him!

"Was it for crimes that I had done,
He groaned upon the tree!
Amazing pity, grace unknown,
And love beyond degree."

There is no woe amid the surroundings of that scene that impresses me more than that of His own mother. You need not point her out to me. I can see by the sorrow, the anguish, the woe, by the upthrown hands. That all means mother. "Oh," you say, "why didn't she go down to the foot of the hill and sit with her back to the scene? It was too horrible for her to look upon." Do you not know when a child is in anguish or trouble it always makes a heroine of a mother? Take her away, you say, from the cross. You cannot drag her away. She will keep on looking; as long as her son breathes she will stand there looking. Oh, what a scene it was for a tender-hearted mother to look upon! How gladly she would have sprung to His relief. It was her son. Her son! How gladly she would have clambered up on the cross and hung there herself if her son could have been relieved. How strengthening she would have been to Christ if she might have come close by Him, and soothed Him! Oh, there was a good deal in what the little sick child said upon whom a surgical operation of a painful nature must be performed! The doctor said: "That child won't live through this operation unless you encourage him. Yo go in and get his consent." The father told him all the doctor said, and added: "Now, John, will you go through with it? Will you consent to it?" He looked very pale, and he thought a minute and said: "Yes, father, if you will hold my hand I will!" So the father held his hand, and led him straight through the peril. Oh, woman, in your hour of anguish whom do you want with you? Mother. Young man, in your hour of trouble, who do you want to console you? Mother. If the mother of Jesus could only have taken those bleeding feet into her lap! If she might have taken the dying head on her bosom! If she might have said to Him: "It will soon be over, Jesus; it will soon be over, and we will meet again and it will all be well." But no, she dared not come up so close. They would have struck her back with their hammers. They would have kicked her down the hill.

There can be no alleviation. Jesus must suffer and Mary must look. I suppose she thought of the birth-hour in Bethlehem. I suppose she thought of the time when, with her boy in her bosom, she hastened on in the darkness in the flight toward Egypt. I suppose she thought of His boyhood, when he was the joy of her heart. I suppose she thought of the thousand kindnesses He had done her, not forsaking her or forgetting her, even in his last moment, but turning to John and saying: "There is mother; take her with you. She is old now. She cannot help herself. Do for her just as I would have done for her if I had lived. Be very tender and gentle with her. Behold thy mother!" She thought it all over, and there is no memory like a mother's memory, and there is no woe like a mother's woe.

I remark again: This is a tender scene because it is a Christian reunion. Why was it that, in the sessional meeting, when I asked a woman if it were her son who sat next to her, making profession of his faith, she made no answer; but after a moment, trying to control her emotion, she burst into tears. I said within myself, she need not tell me the story. It is the old story of a prodigal got back. "The dead is alive again, and the lost is found." Oh, how many families there are that rejoice together to-day!

These Christians during the rest of the year, perhaps, will not know much about each other. You go in one circle of society, and this one travels in that path, and this one the other path; but to-day we all come on one platform, and we make one confession, and we cling to one cross, and we gaze upon one death anguish. It seems to me this morning not like a church but like a great family circle, and we join hands around the cross of Christ, and we say: "One Lord, one faith, one baptism, one cross, one Christ, one doxology, one heaven!" While I stand here it seems to me as if this communion table, which is only seven or eight feet long and three or feet wide, widens until all the Christians of our own denomination can sit at it; and still the table widens until all the Christians in this land of all names and denominations come and sit at it; and still the table widens until it bridges the sea, and Christians on the other side of the Atlantic come and sit at it; and still that table widens, until the redeemed of heaven mingle in the communion: Church militant; church triumphant.

"One army of the living God
To His command we bow;
Part of the host have crossed the flood,
And part are crossing now."

Again, my friends, this is an absorbing scene because it arouses so many precious memories. We look back and remember the days of our childhood when, long before we knew the meaning of the bread and the wine, we sat in the side pews on Sacramental days, or in the galleries, and looked as our fathers, mothers, and older brothers and sisters sat at the communion. Or, if we sat with them, we pulled at mother's dress and said: "What does that mean? What is that in the cup? What is that on the plate?" O, yes; we remember those Sacramental days of our boyhood. We remember how much more tender father was on that day than on any other day. We remember how mother stood, and without saying one word looked at us, and her eyes full of tears. Oh, the dear old souls! They have gone! But until the day of our death we will associate this holy ordinance with their memory. And when our work on earth is done we will just go up and sit down beside them in the heavenly church, as we used to sit beside them in the earthly church, and then we will drink new wine in our Father's kingdom.

"Behold the saints, beloved of God,
Washed are their robes in Jesus' blood;
Brighter than angels, lo, they shine;
Their glories splendid and sublime."

I remark again: This scene is tender to-day because it is a confessional. You and I remember the time when if a man had charged us with anything like imperfection or wrong doing, we would have thrown ourselves back on our honor, and said: "You don't know who you are talking to. I shall resent such an insult to my honor and integrity." We do not feel that way to-day. As we gaze upon the sacrifice of Christ, and think of what we have been and what we have done, our hearts melt within us. We see one dying accursed for our sin, and we hear Him in his dying words, begging for our service, and yet how little service we have rendered. Of this short life we have begrudged God even a fragment. Alas! Alas! Some of us have lived out the most of our days, and yet we have rendered to God no earnest service. Sad, that we could have so maltreated Him on whom all our hopes depend. Oh, my brethren and sisters in Christ, to-day join hands with me in a confession before Christ! If there be any place more humble than another, let us take it. If there be any prayer more importunate than another, let us breath it. If there be any confession more bitter than another, let us now weep it out.

"Well might the sun in darkness hide
And shut his glories in,
When Christ, the mighty Maker, died
For man, the creature's sin."

Once more: This is a tender and absorbing scene because it is anticipative. My brethren, we are not always going to stay here. This is not our home. This is only the vestibule of the church in which, at last, we expect to enter. After awhile our names will be taken off the church books, or there will be a mark in the margin to indicate that we have gone to a better church and to a higher communion. Our Father is not going to let His children remain in the dust. The grave is no place for us to stay in. "The trumpet shall sound and the dead shall rise." The Lord shall descend from heaven with a shout and the voice of the archangel, and we shall rise. The white robe in which they put us to our last slumber here must get whiter. Oh, the reunion of patriarchs, and apostles, and prophets, and of all our glorified kindred, and of that "great multitude that no man can number!" Our sorrows over. Our journey ended. It will be as when kings banquet. And, just as the snow of winter melts, and the fields will brighten in the glorious springtime, so it will be with all these cold sorrows of earth; they shall be melted away at last before the warm sunshine of heaven.

While I present these thoughts this morning does it not seem that heaven comes very near to us, as though our friends, whom we thought a great way off, are not in the distance but close by! You have sometimes come down to a river at nightfall, and you have been surprised how easily you could hear voices across that river. You shouted over to the other side of the river, and they shouted back. It is said that, when George Whitefield preached in Third street, Philadelphia, one evening time, his voice was heard clear across to the New Jersey shore. When I was a little while chaplain in the army, I remember how at eventide we could easily hear the voices of the pickets across the Potomac, just when they were using ordinary tones. And as we come to-day and stand by the river of Jordan that divides us from our friends who are gone, it seems to me we stand on one bank, and they stand on the other; and it is only a narrow stream, and our voices go and their voices come. Hark! Hush! I hear distinctly what they say: "These are they who come out of great tribulation, and had their robes washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb." Still the voice comes across the waters, and I hear: "We hunger no more, we thirst no more, neither shall the sun light on us, nor any heat, for the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne leads us to living fountains of water, and God wipeth away all tears from our eyes."

The brightness of this festal hour is shadowed with the sorrow of a sister church whose pastor is dying, or dead. Though your politics and your religion may have been different, I think you will all agree in saying that when Henry Ward Beecher goes out of this life it will leave a vast vacuum in this city and in the land. For eighteen years we have been friendly neighbors. Six weeks after my arrival in this city as a pastor, in giving out a notice in his own church, he went clear out of his way to give me a most kindly welcome and to prophesy the happiness of my ministry in this city. On the day in which the church was dedicated to the service of Almighty God he hastened from his own church doors to join in the dedicatory service, and you remember what words of hope He uttered on that occasion. Autumn before last, you remember, he presided at the reception given me on my return from Europe, and you remember what generous words he uttered then. Only two or three weeks ago he was present on a festal occasion at my house, and his departure from life is to me a personal bereavement. He was the friend of the slave, the friend of the outcast, the friend of the laboring man, the friend of the capitalist, the friend of the friendless, the friend of all. It would be hardly merciful for us to pray too ardently for his detention here, since physicians say that if he remains on earth it will be with destroyed intellect, and Henry Ward Beecher without genius, without wit, without brilliancy, without geniality, and without eloquence would be a stranger to us all. So I have two wishes: The one that he may have a peaceful departure into the good land which God has provided for all who love Him, where there are no tears, and there shall be no partings, and there can be no death. And my other wish is that upon his family and upon his church there may come the comforting, almighty grace of God. So grand march and dirge mingle to-day, gladness and grief, congratulation and deep sympathy.

"In this dark world of sin and pain,
We only meet to part again;
But when we reach the heavenly shore
We there shall meet to part no more.
The hope that we shall see that day
Should chase our present griefs away."

The Chinese Ball in Washington.

The doors of the supper room had to be closed in an hour because everything eatable was gone. A Chinese servant seated at the door said, with a repressive gesture, to an officer of the Navy who was gracefully entering, "You no can go in. You havee thlee times allyleddy," and the officer retired with less grace than he came.

At the White House reception given to Congress, the Judiciary, the Army and Navy, the Diplomats and their families and to no others, one of the invited guests saw a woman with whom she was acquainted, but who she was certain could not possibly have had an invitation to be present. The lady went up to her and said not serenely, but in a good-natured tone: "How did you get here?" "I just—came," said the woman laughing, evidently thinking it a good joke. "And a carriage load came with me," she added as the lady turned away. If people will go to the White House without an invitation, they will go to that of a foreigner who they feel sure will not know that they have no business there.

Miss West, the daughter of the British Minister, gave a private concert in the ballroom of the Legation building, giving verbal invitations to her visitors, who, of course, were personal friends and acquaintances. Before it began she herself was summoned to the door by the footman. She found a couple of well-dressed people, who by some question or remark had shown the servant that they were not invited. They were total strangers to Miss West.

"Excuse me," said she, "but this is a private concert—only my own friends are invited to this."

"We are from official circles," said one of the women.

"I repeat, it is to my friends and invited guests," and Miss West, whose mother was Spanish, made a little eloquent movement of her head and hands "but if you will"—and she stood aside—no, they did not enter. But fancy the kind of a person who would persist for a moment.

Street Arab's Subtraction.

OLD PARTY—"If I had fifty cents and gave it to you to get changed in order to give you a penny, what would be left?"
STREET ARAB—"An old man!"

The tiny fly-catcher is said to often drive away the English sparrow, which is generally feared by birds of much larger size than itself.

The New York Sun estimates that the beer-drinkers of that city pay annually $70,000,000 for their beer.

THE SHADOW ON OUR LIVES.

In the dense and leafy woodland,
From each lofty tree-top down,
Flecked with dashes of the sunlight,
Falls the shadow cool and brown.
But how different is the shadow
Which our soul of light deprives
Different far the many shadows
Never lifted from our lives.

When our life is young and buoyant,
When our hopes are high and strong,
Then beware the thoughtless errors
That are something less than wrong;
For, though each may be a trifle,
As a shadow it survives;
And we never through endeavor
Lift that shadow from our lives.

Words, in careless moments uttered,
And by us forgotten soon,
Grow with those whose hearts are wounded
As the freshets swell in June;
More than burthens they may crush us,
They may gall us more than gyve
Strive we e'er so much we never
Lift the shadows on our lives.

Some neglect of bounden duty
But a trifle at a time,
Merely discord in the music,
Merely error in the rhyme—
Worse than whips some day may lash us,
Or may wound us worse than knives,
And our deep remorse shall never
Lift that shadow from our lives.

Come there ever so much sunlight
On our latter manhood's days;
Though the glory of our fortunes
In its utmost brilliance blaze;
Though the world around us wonds
As each lofty purpose thrives,
Sadness fills us that we never
Lift the shadow from our lives.

When, our life's day nearly ended,
Comes the setting of its sun,
Though the crimson, gold and purple
Of a sunset sky be won;
Though we close the day in honor,
Heroes even to our wives,
Yet, this glow expiring never
Lifts the shadow from our lives.

When our sunset fades to twilight,
And the final hour is here;
When the world around is passing,
And the world to come is near:
Then our memories throng around us
As the flesh with spirit strives,
And we never, never, never
Lift their shadows from our lives.

—Thomas Dunn English, in Independent.

A FORTUNATE MISTAKE

The train to Gilead Falls was late upon that particular Monday afternoon, and as a natural consequence thereof, the stage-coach to Gilead Gorge was an hour behind time.

"Once you lose five minutes, and there'll be plenty o' set-backs to make it ten," as Reuben Dolly, the stage-driver, ironically remarked, as he piled up the trunks on the baggage wagon that was to go on first. "This ere's for Fullers Farm," said he, "and all the rest for the View Hotel. Now look out, you" to the boy in charge, "and don't go to tippin' the bags and bandboxes down the side of the mountain."

"Guess I've driv' on these 'ere roads afore," said Simon Sackett, the long-legged young Jehu.

"Yes, but there's some people as don't never learn wisdom by experience," said Reuben, as he rolled up the leather curtains of the stage-coach, and fastened them with a rusty buckle.

And when the baggage-wagon reached the Gorge, the trunks and boxes were all shaken into such an undistinguishable confusion that Simon did not know one from another.

"There's two Mrs. John Joneses," said he. "One on 'em's to go to the hotel, and 'tother to Fuller's Farm. Now which is which? That's what I'd like to know."

Harry Fuller, who was waiting at the cross-roads, with his one-horse wagon, speedily settled the question.

"Why, this big trunk goes to the hotel, of course," said he. "Our Mrs. John Jones is a dressmaker, coming here for two weeks' rest. 'Taint likely she'd travel with a trunk as big as Noah's Ark, is it? Keel in the little one, quick!"

So that when Mrs. John Jones herself reached the cross-roads, she very naturally entered the same equipage that contained her trunk.

She was a little woman, with cheeks which still retained a youthful freshness; yellow, rippling hair and timid blue eyes; and she was dressed in inexpensive black, covered all over with a linen duster.

Harry Fuller glanced at her with a sidewise regard as he whipped up his fat and meditative horse.

"I don't quite know how you'll like it," said he, "but our folks have changed your room."

"Changed my room?" said the boarder, glancing inquiringly at him.

"You see, after we settled you were to have the front bed-room," he explained, "my mother got a letter from Mr. Lefton. Mrs. Lefton used to work in the factory here years ago; but she married a city lawyer, and now there isn't anything quite good enough for her. And they wanted my mother to give them three communicating rooms; and so mother thought you wouldn't mind the little room over the kitchen. City boarders mostly spend all their time out doors, you know: and it isn't so very hot after the supper fire has gone out."

Mrs. John Jones was silent.

"I told mother she oughtn't to do it," said the young farmer; "but Mrs. Lefton would have that room. And mother thought she could explain it all to you when you came. And the room will be fifty cents a week less."

"Oh!" said Mrs. John Jones.

Fuller's farm was a long, low, straggling building, shaded by ancient elms, and possessing a peaked roof and chimney-stack which would have delighted the soul of an artist.

Old Mrs. Fuller bustled to receive her guests. The tea hour was already past, but there was a bowl of milk and a heaping saucer of red raspberries on the table, and the little earthen-ware teapot still simmered on the back of the stove in a hospitable way.

"I hav to be dreadful ceremonious with the Leftons," said Mrs. Fuller; "but I can do 'zactly as I please with you, Mrs. Jones!"

And as Mrs. Jones sipped her cup of tea, and crumbled delicious home-made bread into her bowl of milk, she could hear an animated conversation going on in the kitchen beyond, between the old lady and her son.

"It's all nonsense, Henry!" said Mrs. Fuller, who, being a little deaf, did not always consider how loud she spoke. "What! you to give up your room, and go out to the barn-chamber? Hoity-toity! Ain't the kitchen bed-room good enough for a dressmaker?"

"Hush, mother! She is a real lady, I tell you," responded Harry.

"Fiddlesticks!" said Mrs. Fuller.

"And I am sure the kitchen bed-room wouldn't suit her," pursued Harry. "Mother, it is too small and too warm. And if you will fix up mine for her, I would just as soon sleep in the barn these sultry nights."

"Oh, pshaw!" said Mrs. Fuller. "Dressmakers hadn't ought to give themselves airs. And Mrs. Lefton was dreadful annoyed when she heard I was going to take a working-woman in to board. She wouldn't ha' come if she'd ha' knowed it, she said."

"Then I should advise her to stay away," observed Harry Fuller, with some emphasis. "But you will make this arrangement, mother, won't you? To please me!"

And he took up the empty milking-pail and went out.

Mrs. John Jones smiled to herself.

"So I have a champion already!" she thought.

Harry Fuller's vacated room, albeit it was in the high peak of the roof, was a great improvement on the hot little hole over the kitchen which had been intended for "the boarder." It was large and airy, and commanded a fine view of the Sound, and there was a snug little corner closet for her dresses, and a big, old-fashioned, claw-legged bureau for her laces and collars.

"I don't think I could have been more pleasantly accommodated at the View Hotel," thought she.

Mrs. Lefton, a fat, purple-faced woman in a rainbow-tinted grenadine gown, and diamond rings up to the knuckles of her pudgy hands, turned up her nose immensely at the new boarder.

"It's very unfortunate that woman coming here just now," she said. "Lefton is so particular about the folks that I associate with. But perhaps since it can't be helped she can show me how to alter over Marietta's black tissue dress that the French madam spoiled. I'd be willing to pay her half price for helping me."

Mrs. Jones, however, gently declined Mrs. Lefton's patronizing offer.

"I am here for rest and recreation, not for work," she said. "I have a Parisian pattern which I will willingly lend you; but for the rest I must beg to be excused."

"Stuck-up thing!" said Mrs. Lefton. "She can go walking with the children, Mrs. Fuller, and hunt for maiden-hair ferns with your Harry half the day, but she can't go to work to earn a stray penny. I've no patience with such upstarts that are above their business."

"She seems very ladylike," said old Mrs. Fuller.

"It's because she copies the airs and graces of fine folks that come in to be fitted at her Missus' place," said Mrs. Lefton, violently fanning herself.

Even while this vehement colloquy was going on at the house, Olivia Jones was sitting on a fallen log in the blackberry pasture, with Harry Fuller leaning with folded arms against a thorn-apple tree close behind her.

"But I really meant it, Mrs. Jones," said he, earnestly.

"That's all nonsense," said the widow, half-smiling. "How can you mean it, when you have only known me for ten days?"

"A week or a month can make no difference to me," persisted he. "I love you, Mrs. Jones. I can't bear to see you ground down and insulted by women like that Mrs. Lefton. I'm only a farmer, I know, but I've a half-share in this place, with all its surrounding land, and the saw-mill on Gilead River; and if you'll trust yourself to me, you shall never know what want or trouble is. Mrs. Jones—Olivia—won't you give me a word of hope?"

"Would you marry—a mere dressmaker?"

"I would marry you, Olivia, in a second, if you would only say the word."

"But, Harry—"

He took her hand in his.

"It's all right now, Olivia," said he, with sparkling eyes. "If you did not care for me you would not have called me Harry in that tone."

And that was the way in which they became engaged.

Mrs. Fuller was electrified when she heard of it.

"You, Henry," she cried, "that might hev married Amanda Plumb, or even Mrs. Lefton's darter, Marietta, to take up with a dressmakin' women, who—"

Just then their came a tap at the door. A little, wrinkled-faced person stood there, in a crumpled hat and widow's veil, with a capacious trunk, wheeled on a wheelbarrow by a boy behind her.

"Mrs. Fuller?" said this personage, whose general appearance reminded one of a badly-rolled parcel.

"Yes," said the farmer's wife. "But I don't know who you are!"

"Mrs. John Jones," explained the stranger—"the lady as engaged your second floor front. In the dress-making business. There's been some mistake, and my trunk was sent on to the View Hotel, and some other person was sent here. I was unexpectedly detained by old Mrs. Mopson's funeral orders, and I've just discovered the blunder."

Mrs. Fuller stared until her spectacle glasses assumed the proportions of two moons.

"If you're the dressmaker that drove the bargain with me by letter," said she, "then who is this Mrs. Jones."

The yellow-tressed widow smilingly spoke up.

"Only a usurper, Mrs. Fuller," said she. "I had engaged a suit of rooms at the View Hotel, but circumstances drifted me here instead; and I don't regret it, on the whole."

She put her hand inside Harry's arm as she spoke.

"My stars!" cried the astounded Mrs. Lefton, "then you are the rich Mrs. John Jones, who was coming to the hotel—the lady that owns half the West India Islands."

"Not quite so bad as that," said Mrs. Jones, smiling. "But I cannot call myself poor, especially since I have been fortunate enough to win an honest man's love."

And when old Mrs. Fuller related this story, as she often did, she always capped the climax by saying, complacently:

"So our Harry was a fortune hunter after all, only he didn't know it."—Saturday Night.

Jackson and the Old Postmaster.

One of the most delightful of raconteurs tells this interesting story concerning Andrew Jackson: A General in the Revolutionary war, who was well known to Jackson, was Postmaster of a prominent New York town. He had been an Adams man, and Silas Wright, one of the ablest representatives that State ever had, and Martin Van Buren, who was then Jackson's Secretary of State, formed a coalition to have the veteran warrior removed soon after Jackson had taken the oath of office. The scarred hero determined to go to see Jackson and plead his own cause against the powerful politicians who had determined to punish him for his advocacy of Adams. He called upon Jackson at the White House. The President engaged in familiar conversation with him, when, to his amazement, the old soldier said:

"Gen. Jackson, I have come here to talk to you about my office: the politicians want to take it away from me and I have nothing else to live upon."

The President made no reply till the aged Postmaster began to take off his coat, in the most excited manner, when Old Hickory broke out with the inquiry:

"What in Heaven's name are you going to do?"

"Well, sir, I am going to show you my wounds, which I received fighting for my country against the English."

"Put it on at once, sir!" was the reply. "I am surprised that a man of your age should make such an exhibition of himself," and the eyes of the Iron President were suffused with tears as without another word he bade his ancient foe good-evening. The next day Wright called upon the President and made out his case against the General and urged his removal upon the strongest grounds. He had hardly finished the last sentence when Jackson sprang to his feet, flung his pipe into the fire, and exclaimed with great vehemence:

"I take the consequences, sir, I take the consequences. By the Eternal! I will not remove the old man. I cannot remove him. Why, Mr. Wright, do you know that he carries more than a pound of British lead in his body?"

That was the last of it. He who was stronger than courts, courtiers, or Cabinets pronounced his fiat, and the happy old Postmaster next day took the stage and returned home rejoicing.—Washington Letter.

Queer Funeral of an Epicurean.

A funeral of an extraordinary character took place the other day in Yorkshire, when J. S. Broderick, a well-known follower of Epicurus, of Hawes, in North Yorkshire, was buried. The interment took place in the deceased gentleman's own land, at Spring End, on the top of a hill. Mr. Broderick, who believed in the transmigration of souls, had directed that no minister of religion should attend his burial, and that no religious ceremony of any kind should be performed over his remains. The funeral, therefore, was almost of a unique description. The procession had to pass over Stagefall, one of the spurs of the Pennine range, and as the road was blocked in places over twelve feet deep with snow drifts the mourners had a most difficult task. The immediate place of sepulchre was very rocky. It had been chosen by the deceased gentleman, and blasting operations had to be carried on during the whole of Sunday and Monday to complete the grave, which is nearly twenty feet below the surface.

Handy Interest Rules.

The answer in each case being in cents, separate the two right-hand figures of the answer to express in dollars and cents:

Four per cent.—Multiply the principal by the number of days to run, separate right-hand figure from the product, and divide by nine.

Five per cent.—Multiply the number of days and divide by seventy-two.

Six per cent.—Multiply the number of days, separate right-hand figure, and divide by six.

Eight per cent.—Multiply by number of days and divide by forty-five.

Nine per cent.—Multiply by number of days, separate right-hand figure, and divide by four.

Ten per cent.—Multiply by number of days and divide by thirty-five.

Twelve per cent.—Multiply by number of days, separate right-hand figure, and divide by three.

Shaving With a Pumice Stone.

"Ever hear of a man shaving himself with a pumice stone?" asked an Ogden avenue barber yesterday. "There is a carpenter over here on Lane street who has not touched his skin with a razor for six months, yet his face is always as smooth as a woman's. Three times a week he sits down upon the bench in his shop, and with a piece of pumice stone held lightly between his index finger and thumb, he will slowly rasp the stubble off his chin and chops. He says that he can shave himself in this manner in half the time it would require him with a razor. Talk about there being any money in a barber shop! It's all bosh. It won't be long before men will be shaving themselves with sponges and cutting their hair with an egg beater."

Origin of the Pig Tail.

The wearing of the queue was imposed upon the Chinese by their Tartar conquerors, about the year 1652 A. D. Before that time the hair was allowed to grow long and thick, and was fastened in a knot at the top of the head. Much as they hated the queue, the Chinese dread its loss, for the shrewd Tartars made the cutting off of it the punishment for the most disgraceful crimes, and its absence, like the cropped ears during the middle ages in Europe, was the mark of a rogue.

Ben: Perley Poore thinks General Grant was never happier in his life than when, cheered by his young wife, he farmed sixty acres, labored in the fields, chopped wood at "Hardscrabble," hauled it to St. Louis and sold it for $4 a cord.

LIGHTS OUT.

The sentry challenged at the open gate,
Who passed him by, because the hours was late.
"Halt! Who goes there?" "A friend!"
"All's well."
"A friend, old chap!" a friend's farewell,
And I had passed the gate,
And then the long, last notes were shed,
The echoing call's last notes were dead;
And sounded sadly, as I stood without,
Those last sad notes of all: Lights Out!
Lights Out!

Farewell, companions! We have side by side
Watched history's lengthened shadows past us glide,
And worn the scarlet, laughed at, paid,
And buried comrades lowly laid,
And let the long years glide;
And toil and hardship have we known,
And followed where the flag had gone.
But all the echoes answering round about
Have bidden you to sleep: Lights Out!
Lights Out!

And never more for me shall red fire flash
From bright revolvers—Oh, the crumbling ash
Of life is hope's fruition. Fall
The withered friendships; and they all
Are sleeping! Fast away
The fabrics of our lives decay.
The robes of night about me lay,
And the air whispered, as I stood without,
Those last sad notes of all: Lights Out!
Lights Out!

—Roger Pocock, in the Week.

PITH AND POINT.

A chest protector—The baggage master.

Mrs. Grundy tells the New York Mail and Express that they do not call them dudes any more—simply "young society Darwins."

Not every one is happy who dances, says the proverb. The man who has just stepped on a tack knows this full well.—Boston Courier.

All flesh is grass, the young man sighed;
The maid replied, 'tis true,
As all must know who've sat beside
A chap as green as you.
—Boston Courier.

When you see a couple on the street, if the man carries the bundles they are engaged. If the woman carries the bundles they are married.—New Haven News.

The "self-made" man who boasts of how much smarter he has been than other men, did not quite finish the job. He forgot to give himself manners.—Oil City Blizzard.

When men look sad and sigh, "Alas,"
And from companions fly,
In very many cases 'tis
A lass that makes them sigh.
—Merchant-Traveler.

A Sioux Indian bears the name of "The-man-who-ran-so-fast-that-the-wind-was-left-behind." It is believed he participated in the strategic move on Washington at the first battle of Bull Run.—Norristown Herald.

Commanding Officer—"Bring your company up." Captain (just taken back into the army)—"Well, I'll go and talk to the boys and see if they'll come." "Great stars! Where have you been since you left the army?" "Been commanding a regiment of militia."—Omaha World.

"What can be the matter with Arthur, dear? He mopes so, he must be sick." "I don't think it is as serious as that, mamma. It's his whiskers." "His whiskers! Why the boy hasn't got any." "That is just it, mamma. He wishes he had them, don't you know."—Town Topics.

"My dear," said the husband to the wife before the glass, "I'm ashamed to see you put all that red stuff on your cheeks." "Oh, don't worry about that," she replied sweetly. "It matches the color on your nose admirably, and harmony is what makes the marriage relation ideal."—Washington Critic.

Omaha Bach—"Well, now, just tell me what comfort you've gained by getting married?" Young husband—"How do you fasten your suspenders when the buttons come off, as they generally do in about a week?" "I use wire hooks usually." "Yes; and where do get the wire?" "Well, I generally have a time hunting for a piece, I must admit. I got the last off my whisk broom." Yes, and spoilt the broom." "Just so; but what better off are you?" "Me! Why, I've got a wife, and she always has about a bushel of hair-pins on hand."—Omaha World.

A Rapid Conversion.

The story is told that when General Sherman entered Goldsboro', N. C., on the way to join Grant after his march to the sea, he and his staff stopped just in front of the residence of a man who was a rabid Secessionist. The colonel (he bore that title) appeared on the porch to greet them, and an officer asked what his sentiments were in regard to the war. "I am a strong Union man," said the colonel, with a dry smile "Ah, indeed," said the officer, rather sarcastically; "and how long have you been a Union man?" "I have been a Union man," said the colonel, "ever since I saw you and your staff come into the end of that street, about fifteen minutes ago." This candor pleased General Sherman, and he ordered a guard placed around Colonel X.'s property, and during the stay of the army not a thing was molested in or around his premises, although many others suffered.

A Big City's Gas Lamps.

Late one night last week I met an old man with a coonskin hat on his head and a huge pipe in his mouth. He was standing at the corner of Washington and Halstead streets, gazing intently at a gas-lamp. As he lifted his wrinkled old face toward me I recognized him. He was the figure fiend.

"See that 'ar gas lamp?" he exclaimed. "Well, I was just thinkin' 'bout it. There's more in the gas lamp question than you have any idea of. There's 16,000 o' them gas lamps in Chicago, think of that, 16,000, an' 4,000 oil lamps. Cost money to run 'em! I should say so—$33 a year for every gas lamp an' $16 a year for every oil burner. That makes a heap o' money, don't it? Why, sir, all them lamps would light the Pennsylvania Railroad from Chicago to New York so's a man a-walkin' the road would never be in the dark. They could place a lamp every four feet the whole distance. What d'ye think of that?—Chicago Herald.

Rates of Advertising.

One Dollar per Square, of one inch space or less, for the first, and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion.

Space.	3 m.	6 m.	12 m.
1 Inch	$5 00	$7 00	$11 [illegible]
2 Inches	7 00	11 [illegible]	16 00
3 Inches	10 00	[illegible]	22 00
4 Inches	11 00	[illegible]	27 00
5 Inches	13 00	[illegible]	30 00
¼ Column	15 00	27 00	40 00
½ Column	27 00	40 00	60 00
1 Column	40 00	60 00	100 00

The Chilton View.

W. H. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors.

"WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION."

TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, MARCH 24, 1887. NUMBER 20.

Special Advertising.

Business Notices Ten Cents per line each insertion.

Obituaries and Tributes of Respect, half rates.

Announcing candidates for office, Five Dollars, strictly in advance.

Communications recommending candidates for office will be headed as advertisements and charged for accordingly.

Liberal contracts made with those advertising by the year.

☞ The money is due on all advertising after the first publication.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Subject: "Four Full Regiments."

TEXT: And four thousand praised the Lord.—I. Chronicles, xxiii., 5; This day shall be unto you for a memorial.—Exodus, xii., 14.

When week before last the communicant membership of this church passed into the four thousand, now reaching four thousand and forty-five, the first part of my text came to my mind, and I bethought myself what a grand thing it would be if the four thousand of our communicant membership would, like the four thousand of the ancient Temple, make it their lifetime business to praise the Lord. Let them all take harp and timbrel and anthem and doxology!

The allusion of my second text is to the Passover, which commemorated the deliverance of the Children of Israel on the night when the destroying angel sped through the land of Egypt, destroying the enemy but saving the Israelites, because on the door-posts of their dwellings was sprinkled the blood of a lamb. To-day we come to celebrate a grander Passover, all peril going away from our soul at the sight of the sprinkled blood of the Lamb of God on the door-posts of our hearts. Christ, our Passover, sacrificed for us. "This day shall be unto you for a memorial."

The Sacramental Sabbath, whether it comes in an American church or an English chapel or a Scotch kirk, is more impressive than any other Sabbath. Its light is holier, calmer, sweeter; its voices more tender; its touch is softer; its memories are more chastened. The fruits of the Christian life suddenly ripen, like orchards on the hill fronting the South. The wine of the Holy Sacrament seems pressed from the grapes of Celestial vineyards, and the bread broken seems to drop from the hand of Him who parted the loaves for the five thousand. We walk to the church of God with more thoughtful face and with quieter step. The jubilant songs of other Sundays are struck through with pensiveness and are all a tremble with tears; and when, at the close of the service, at the door we shake hands, it is with a more cordial grasp, because we feel thrilling through our body, and mind, and soul the great doctrines of Christian brotherhood; and our minds go back to our forefathers celebrating the Sacrament in times of persecution in Scotland among the Highlands; commemorating the dying love of Christ, while they were pursued of their enemies, pouring the wine into rough wooden cups, dipping the waters of baptism from the mountain rock, until one day they heard the voices of their enemies coming up the hill, and the pastor cried out: "Oh Lord, the Shepherd, have mercy on the sheep!" and, instantly there was a roaring heard as of great floods and sure enough a cloud had burst and there were great torrents running down the mountain side that whelmed their foes with sudden wrath. What a deliverance it was for them on that Sacramental day! Oh, that on this Sacramental day the cloud of God's mercy might burst and our sins be whelmed and our souls be saved! This is the amethyst of days. This is the pearl of days. This is the diamond of days. This is the day of days. Among the ten thousand million ages of eternity the first Sabbath of March, 1887, will be to you significant and memorable, for "this day shall be unto you" for ever and for ever "a memorial."

There is much in the scene of to-day to impress us because it is a time of reinforcement. I used to remark that if I ever lived to see our membership four thousand I thought I would be willing to say with one of old: "Now, Lord, lettest thou Thy servant depart in peace, for mine eyes have seen Thy salvation." But I have changed my mind, and I never so much wanted to stay as now, so as to see them all enlisted for God and to watch their victories. What might they not accomplish in the way of making the world better if they were all baptized with a double portion of the Holy Ghost! Four thousand! That is four full regiments, as military men count a thousand to a regiment. I think not one hypocrite amongst them. Taken into the church sometimes in large numbers, but each one as carefully examined as to change of heart and evidence of regeneration as though he or she were the only one presenting himself or herself. Many of our former members have passed away into the skies, and have joined the church triumphant, but we have four thousand and more left for the church militant. To arms! Quit you like men! We want no reserve corps among them. Go into action all of you. Some will be officers and command. Some will make cavalry charge. Some will be sharpshooters. Some will stand guard. Some will be on picket duty. Many of you will belong to the rank and file. Let there be no stragglers, none off on furlough, not one deserter. With Christ for Commander-in-chief, and the one-starred, blood-striped banner of manger and cross to lead the way, I give the order that the General in the war gave when, rising in his stirrups, his hair flying in the wind, he cried out till all the host heard him: "Forward! the whole line!"

There is also something in such a scene to deeply impress one, because it rehearses a death scene. Now, you know, there is something very touching in such an incident. Though you are in a hotel and it is a stranger that is dying, how softly you move about the place, and if you come up to his couch it is with uncovered head. Even the voice of the jester is stopped, and when the eyes of that stranger are closed it is with emotion. But I am to tell you this morning of a death such as has never before or since occurred. When we die, we die for ourselves and the crisis is alleviated by all beneficent ministries. Bathings for the hands; bathings for the head; bathings for the feet; the light turned down low or set in just the right place; all the offices of affection about us when we come to die. But not so with Jesus. He died not for Himself, but He died in torment and He died for others. He might have moved around in gardens made by His own hand, an earthly potentate amid vineyards and olive groves sloping to the sea. Instead of being tossed in the fishing boat on Tiberius, He might have chosen a sunshiny day and a pleasant wave for the lake crossing. Instead of being followed by an unwashed rabble He might have charmed sanhedrims and universities with His eloquence. Instead of a cross and a bunch of twisted brambles on His brow he might have died in the castle of a Roman merchant, the air bland with lilies and frankincense. But no; He died in torture; the good for the bad; the kind for the cruel; the wise for the ignorant; the divine for the human. Oh how tenderly we feel toward any one who has done a great kindness and perhaps at the imperiling of his own life! How we ought to feel toward Christ, the Captain of our salvation, on the white horse riding down our foes; but in the moment He made the victorious charge, the lances of death struck Him!

There was a very touching scene among an Indian tribe in the last century. It seemed that one of the chieftains had slain a man belonging to an opposite tribe, and that tribe came on and said: "We will exterminate you unless you surrender the man who committed that crime." The chieftain who did the crime stepped out from the ranks and said: "I am not afraid to die, but I have a wife and four children, and I have a father aged and a mother aged, whom I support by hunting, and I sorrow to leave them helpless." Just as he said that his old father from behind stepped out and said: "He shall not die. I take his place. I am old and well-stricken in years. I can do no good. I might as well die. My days are almost over. He cannot be spared. Take me." And they accepted the sacrifice. Wonderful sacrifice! you say, but not so wonderful as that found in the Gospel, for we deserved to die, aye, we were sentenced when Christ, not worn out with years but in the flush of His youth, said: "Save that man from going down to the pit; I am the ransom. Put his burdens on my shoulders. Let His stripes fall on my back. Take my heart for His heart. Let me die that He may live." Shall it be told to-day in heaven that notwithstanding all those wounds, and all that blood, and all those tears, and all that agony, you would not accept Him!

"Was it for crimes that I had done,
He groaned upon the tree?
Amazing pity, grace unknown,
And love beyond degree."

There is no woe amid the surroundings of that scene that impresses me more than that of His own mother. You need not point her out to me. I can see by the sorrow, the anguish, the woe, by the upthrown hands. That all means mother. "Oh," you say, "why didn't she go down to the foot of the hill and sit with her back to the scene? It was too horrible for her to look upon." Do you not know when a child is in anguish or trouble it always makes a heroine of a mother? Take her away, you say, from the cross. You cannot drag her away. She will keep on looking; as long as her son breathes she will stand there looking. Oh, what a scene it was for a tender-hearted mother to look upon! How gladly she would have sprung to His relief. It was her son. Her son! How gladly she would have clambered up on the cross and hung there herself if her son could have been relieved. How strengthening she would have been to Christ if she might have come close by Him, and soothed Him! Oh, there was a good deal in what the little sick child said upon whom a surgical operation of a painful nature must be performed! The doctor said: "That child won't live through this operation unless you encourage him. You go in and get his consent." The father told him all the doctor said, and added: "Now, John, will you go through with it? Will you consent to it?" He looked very pale, and he thought a minute and said: "Yes, father, if you will hold my hand I will!" So the father held his hand, and led him straight through the peril. Oh, woman, in your hour of anguish whom do you want with you? Mother. Young man, in your hour of trouble, who do you want to console you? Mother. If the mother of Jesus could only have taken those bleeding feet into her lap! If she might have taken the dying head on her bosom! If she might have said to Him: "It will soon be over, Jesus; it will soon be over, and we will meet again and it will all be well." But no, she dared not come up so close. They would have struck her back with their hammers. They would have kicked her down the hill.

There can be no alleviation. Jesus must suffer and Mary must look. I suppose she thought of the birth-hour in Bethlehem. I suppose she thought of the time when, with her boy in her bosom, she hastened on in the darkness in the flight toward Egypt. I suppose she thought of His boyhood, when he was the joy of her heart. I suppose she thought of the thousand kindnesses He had done her, not forsaking her or forgetting her, even in his last moment, but turning to John and saying: "There is mother; take her with you. She is old now. She cannot help herself. Do for her just as I would have done for her if I had lived. Be very tender and gentle with her. Behold thy mother!" She thought it all over, and there is no memory like a mother's memory, and there is no woe like a mother's woe.

I remark again: This is a tender scene because it is a Christian reunion. Why was it that in the sessional meeting, when I asked a woman if it were her son who sat next to her, making profession of his faith, she made no answer; but after a moment, trying to control her emotion, she burst into tears. I said within myself, she need not tell me the story. It is the old story of a prodigal got back. "The dead is alive again, and the lost is found." Oh, how many families there are that rejoice together to-day!

These Christians during the rest of the year, perhaps, will not know much about each other. You go in one circle of society, and this one travels in that path, and this one the other path; but to-day we all come on one platform, and we make one confession, and we cling to one cross, and we gaze upon one death anguish. It seems to me this morning not like a church but like a great family circle, and we join hands around the cross of Christ, and we say: "One Lord, one faith, one baptism, one cross, one Christ, one doxology, one heaven!" While I stand here it seems to me as if this communion table, which is only seven or eight feet long and three or feet wide, widens until all the Christians of our own denomination can sit at it; and still the table widens until all the Christians in this land of all names and denominations come and sit at it; and still the table widens until it bridges the sea, and Christians on the other side of the Atlantic come and sit at it; and still that table widens, until the redeemed of heaven mingle in the communion: Church militant; church triumphant.

"One army of the living God
To His command we bow:
Part of the host have crossed the flood,
And part are crossing now."

Again, my friends, this is an absorbing scene because it arouses so many precious memories. We look back and remember the days of our childhood when, long before we knew the meaning of the bread and the wine, we sat in the side pews on Sacramental days, or in the galleries, and looked as our fathers, mothers, and older brothers and sisters sat at the communion. Or, if we sat with them, we pulled at mother's dress and said: "What does that mean? What is that in the cup? What is that on the plate?" O, yes; we remember those Sacramental days of our boyhood. We remember how much more tender father was on that day than on any other day. We remember how mother stood, and without saying one word looked at us, and her eyes full of tears. Oh, the dear old souls! They have gone! But until the day of our death we will associate this holy ordinance with their memory. And when our work on earth is done we will just go up and sit down beside them in the heavenly church, as we used to sit beside them in the earthly church, and then we will drink new wine in our Father's kingdom.

"Behold the saints, beloved of God,
Washed are their robes in Jesus' blood;
Brighter than angels, lo, they shine;
Their glories splendid and sublime."

I remark again: This scene is tender to-day because it is a confessional. You and I remember the time when if a man had charged us with anything like imperfection or wrong doing, we would have thrown ourselves back on our honor, and said: "You don't know who you are talking to. I shall resent such an insult to my honor and integrity." We do not feel that way to-day. As we gaze upon the sacrifice of Christ, and think of what we have been and what we have done, our hearts melt within us. We see one dying accursed for our sin, and we hear Him in his dying words, begging for our service, and yet how little service we have rendered. Of this short life we have begrudged God even a fragment. Alas! Alas! Some of us have lived out the most of our days, and yet we have rendered to God no earnest service. Sad, that we could have so maltreated Him on whom all our hopes depend. Oh, my brethren and sisters in Christ, to-day join hands with me in a confession before Christ! If there be any place more humble than another, let us take it. If there be any prayer more importunate than another, let us breath it. If there be any confession more bitter than another, let us now weep it out.

"Well might the sun in darkness hide
And shut his glories in,
When Christ, the mighty Maker, died
For man, the creature's, sin."

Once more: This is a tender and absorbing scene because it is anticipative. My brethren, we are not always going to stay here. This is not our home. This is only the vestibule of the church in which, at last, we expect to enter. After awhile our names will be taken off the church books, or there will be a mark in the margin to indicate that we have gone to a better church and to a higher communion. Our Father is not going to let His children remain in the dust. The grave is no place for us to stay in. "The trumpet shall sound and the dead shall rise." The Lord shall descend from heaven with a shout and the voice of the archangel, and we shall rise. The white robe in which they put us to our last slumber here must get whiter. Oh, the reunion of patriarchs, and apostles, and prophets, and of all our glorified kindred, and of that "great multitude that no man can number!" Our sorrows over. Our journey ended. It will be as when kings banquet. And, just as the snow of winter melts, and the fields will brighten in the glorious springtime, so it will be with all these cold sorrows of earth; they shall be melted away at last before the warm sunshine of heaven.

While I present these thoughts this morning does it not seem that heaven comes very near to us, as though our friends, whom we thought a great way off, are not in the distance but close by? You have sometimes come down to a river at nightfall, and you have been surprised how easily you could hear voices across that river. You shouted over to the other side of the river, and they shouted back. It is said that, when George Whitefield preached in Third street, Philadelphia, one evening time, his voice was heard clear across to the New Jersey shore. When I was a little while chaplain in the army, I remember how at eventide we could easily hear the voices of the pickets across the Potomac, just when they were using ordinary tones. And as we come to-day and stand by the river of Jordan that divides us from our friends who are gone, it seems to me we stand on one bank, and they stand on the other; and it is only a narrow stream, and our voices go and their voices come. Hark! Hush! I hear distinctly what they say: "These are they who come out of great tribulation, and had their robes washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb." Still the voice comes across the waters, and I hear: "We hunger no more, we thirst no more, neither shall the sun light on us, nor any heat, for the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne leads us to living fountains of water, and God wipeth away all tears from our eyes."

The brightness of this festal hour is shadowed with the sorrow of a sister church whose pastor is dying, or dead. Though your politics and your religion may have been different, I think you will all agree in saying that when Henry Ward Beecher goes out of this life it will leave a vast vacuum in this city and in the land. For eighteen years we have been friendly neighbors. Six weeks after my arrival in this city as a pastor, in giving out a notice in his own church, he went clear out of his way to give me a most kindly welcome and to prophesy the happiness of my ministry in this city. On the day in which the church was dedicated to the service of Almighty God he hastened from his own church doors to join in the dedicatory service, and you remember what words of hope He uttered on that occasion. Autumn before last, you remember, he presided at the reception given me on my return from Europe, and you remember what generous words he uttered then. Only two or three weeks ago he was present on a festal occasion at my house, and his departure from life is to me a personal bereavement. He was the friend of the slave, the friend of the outcast, the friend of the laboring man, the friend of the capitalist, the friend of the friendless, the friend of all. It would be hardly merciful for us to pray too ardently for his detention here, since physicians say that if he remains on earth it will be with destroyed intellect, and Henry Ward Beecher without genius, without wit, without brilliancy, without geniality, and without eloquence would be a stranger to us all. So I have two wishes: The one that he may have a peaceful departure into the good land which God has provided for all who love Him, where there are no tears, and there shall be no partings, and there can be no death. And my other wish is that upon his family and upon his church there may come the comforting, almighty grace of God. So grand march and dirge mingle to-day, gladness and grief, congratulation and deep sympathy.

"In this dark world of sin and pain,
We only meet to part again;
But when we reach the heavenly shore
We there shall meet to part no more.
The hope that we shall see that day
Should chase our present griefs away."

The Chinese Ball in Washington.

The doors of the supper room had to be closed in an hour because everything eatable was gone. A Chinese servant seated at the door said, with a repressive gesture, to an officer of the Navy who was gracefully entering, "You no can go in. You havee thlee times ally-leddy," and the officer retired with less grace than he came.

At the White House reception given to Congress, the Judiciary, the Army and Navy, the Diplomats and their families and to no others, one of the invited guests saw a woman with whom she was acquainted, but who she was certain could not possibly have had an invitation to be present. The lady went up to her and said not serenely, but in a good-natured tone: "How did you get here?" "I just—came," said the woman laughing, evidently thinking it a good joke. "And a carriage load came with me," she added as the lady turned away. If people will go to the White House without an invitation, they will go to that of a foreigner who they feel sure will not know that they have no business there.

Miss West, the daughter of the British Minister, gave a private concert in the ballroom of the Legation building, giving verbal invitations to her visitors, who, of course, were personal friends and acquaintances. Before it began she herself was summoned to the door by the footman. She found a couple of well-dressed people, who by some question or remark had shown the servant that they were not invited. They were total strangers to Miss West.

"Excuse me," said she, "but this is a private concert—only my own friends are invited to this."

"We are from official circles," said one of the women.

"I repeat, it is to my friends and invited guests," and Miss West, whose mother was Spanish, made a little eloquent movement of her head and hands "but if you will"—and she stood aside—no, they did not enter. But fancy the kind of a person who would persist for a moment.

Street Arab's Subtraction.

OLD PARTY—"If I had fifty cents and gave it to you to get changed in order to give you a penny, what would be left?"
STREET ARAB—"An old man!"

The [illegible] fly-catcher is said to often drive away the English sparrow, which is generally feared by birds of much larger size than itself.

The New York Sun estimates that the beer-drinkers of that city pay annually [illegible] for their beer.

THE SHADOW ON OUR LIVES.

In the dense and leafy woodland,
From each lofty tree-top down,
Flecked with dashes of the sunlight,
Falls the shadow cool and brown.
But how different is the shadow
Which our soul of light deprives
Different far the many shadows
Never lifted from our lives.

When our life is young and buoyant,
When our hopes are high and strong,
Then beware the thoughtless errors
That are something less than wrong;
For, though each may be a trifle,
As a shadow it survives;
And we never through endeavor
Lift that shadow from our lives.

Words, in careless moments uttered,
And by us forgotten soon,
Grow with those whose hearts are wounded
As the freshets swell in June;
More than burthens they may crush us,
They may gall us more than gyve
Strive we e'er so much we never
Lift the shadows on our lives.

Some neglect of bounden duty
But a trifle at a time,
Merely discord in the music,
Merely error in the rhyme—
Worse than whips some day may lash us,
Or may wound us worse than knives,
And our deep remorse shall never
Lift that shadow from our lives.

Come there ever so much sunlight
On our latter manhood's days;
Though the glory of our fortunes
In its utmost brilliance blaze;
Though the world around us wonders
As each lofty purpose thrives,
Sadness fills us that we never
Lift the shadow from our lives.

When, our life's day nearly ended,
Comes the setting of its sun,
Though the crimson, gold and purple
Of a sunset sky be won;
Though we close the day in honor,
Heroes even to our wives,
Yet, this glow expiring never
Lifts the shadow from our lives.

When our sunset fades to twilight,
And the final hour is here;
When the world around is passing,
And the world to come is near;
Then our memories throng around us
As the flesh with spirit strives,
And we never, never, never
Lift their shadows from our lives.

—Thomas Dunn English, in Independent.

A FORTUNATE MISTAKE

The train to Gilead Falls was late upon that particular Monday afternoon, and as a natural consequence thereof, the stage-coach to Gilead Gorge was an hour behind time.

"Once you lose five minutes, and there'll be plenty o' set-backs to make it ten," as Reuben Colly, the stage-driver, ironically remarked, as he piled up the trunks on the baggage-wagon that was to go on first. "This ere's for Fullers Farm," said he, "and all the rest for the View Hotel. Now look out, you!" to the boy in charge, "and don't go to tippin' the bags and bandboxes down the side of the mountain."

"Guess I've driv' on these 'ere roads afore," said Simon Sackett, the long-legged young Jehu.

"Yes, but there's some people as don't never learn wisdom by experience," said Reuben, as he rolled up the leather curtains of the stage-coach, and fastened them with a rusty buckle.

And when the baggage-wagon reached the Gorge, the trunks and boxes were all shaken into such an undistinguishable confusion that Simon did not know one from another.

"There's two Mrs. John Joneses," said he. "One on 'em's to go to the hotel, and 'tother to Fuller's Farm. Now which is which? That's what I'd like to know."

Harry Fuller, who was waiting at the cross-roads, with his one-horse wagon, speedily settled the question.

"Why, this big trunk goes to the hotel, of course," said he. "Our Mrs. John Jones is a dressmaker, coming here for two weeks' rest. 'Taint likely she'd travel with a trunk as big as Noah's Ark, is it? Keel in the little one, quick!"

So that when Mrs. John Jones herself reached the cross-roads, she very naturally entered the same equipage that contained her trunk.

She was a little woman, with cheeks which still retained a youthful freshness; yellow, rippling hair and timid blue eyes; and she was dressed in inexpensive black, covered all over with a linen duster.

Harry Fuller glanced at her with a sidewise regard as he whipped up his fat and meditative horse.

"I don't quite know how you'll like it," said he, "but our folks have changed your room."

"Changed my room?" said the boarder, glancing inquiringly at him.

"You see, after we settled you were to have the front bed-room," he explained, "my mother got a letter from Mr. Lefton. Mrs. Lefton used to work in the factory here years ago; but she married a city lawyer, and now there isn't anything quite good enough for her. And they wanted my mother to give them three communicating rooms; and so mother thought you wouldn't mind the little room over the kitchen. City boarders mostly spend all their time out doors, you know: and it isn't so very hot after the supper fire has gone out."

Mrs. John Jones was silent.

"I told mother she oughtn't to do it," said the young farmer; "but Mrs. Lefton would have that room. And mother thought she could explain it all to you when you came. And the room will be fifty cents a week less."

"Oh!" said Mrs. John Jones.

Fuller's farm was a long, low, straggling building, shaded by ancient elms, and possessing a peaked roof and chimney-stack which would have delighted the soul of an artist.

Old Mrs. Fuller bustled to receive her guests. The tea hour was already past, but there was a bowl of milk and a heaping saucer of red raspberries on the table, and the little earthen-ware teapot still simmered on the back of the stove in a hospitable way.

"I hev to be dretful ceremonious with the Leftons," said Mrs. Fuller; "but I can do 'most as I please with you, Mrs. Jones!"

And as Mrs. Jones sipped her cup of tea, and crumbled delicious home-made bread into her bowl of milk, she could hear an animated conversation going on in the kitchen beyond, between the old lady and her son.

"It's all nonsense, Henry!" said Mrs. Fuller, who, being a little deaf, did not always consider how loud she spoke. "What! you to give up your room, and go out to the barn-chamber? Hoity-toity! Ain't the kitchen bed-room good enough for a dressmaker?"

"Hush, mother! She is a real lady, I tell you," responded Harry.

"Fiddlesticks!" said Mrs. Fuller.

"And I am sure the kitchen bed-room wouldn't suit her," pursued Harry. "Mother, it is too small and too warm. And if you will fix up mine for her, I would just as soon sleep in the barn these sultry nights."

"Oh, pshaw!" said Mrs. Fuller. "Dressmakers hadn't ought to give themselves airs. And Mrs. Lefton was dreadful annoyed when she heard I was going to take a working-woman in to board. She wouldn't ha' come if she'd ha' knowed it, she said."

"Then I should advise her to stay away," observed Harry Fuller, with some emphasis. "But you will make this arrangement, mother, won't you? To please me!"

And he took up the empty milking-pail and went out.

Mrs. John Jones smiled to herself.

"So I have a champion already?" she thought.

Harry Fuller's vacated room, albeit it was in the high peak of the roof, was a great improvement on the hot little hole over the kitchen which had been intended for "the boarder." It was large and airy, and commanded a fine view of the Sound, and there was a snug little corner closet for her dresses, and a big, old-fashioned, claw-legged bureau for her laces and collars.

"I don't think I could have been more pleasantly accommodated at the View Hotel," thought she.

Mrs. Lefton, a fat, purple-faced woman in a rainbow-tinted grenadine gown, and diamond rings up to the knuckles of her pudgy hands, turned up her nose immensely at the new boarder.

"It's very unfortunate that woman coming here just now," she said. "Lefton is so particular about the folks that I associate with. But perhaps since it can't be helped she can show me how to alter over Marietta's black tissue dress that the French madam spoiled. I'd be willing to pay her half price for helping me."

Mrs. Jones, however, gently declined Mrs. Lefton's patronizing offer.

"I am here for rest and recreation, not for work," she said. "I have a Parisian pattern which I will willingly lend you; but for the rest I must beg to be excused."

"Stuck-up thing!" said Mrs. Lefton. "She can go walking with the children, Mrs. Fuller, and hunt for maiden-hair ferns with your Harry half the day, but she can't go to work to earn a stray penny. I've no patience with such upstarts that are above their business."

"She seems very ladylike," said old Mrs. Fuller.

"It's because she copies the airs and graces of fine folks that come in to be fitted at her Missus' place," said Mrs. Lefton, violently fanning herself.

Even while this vehement colloquy was going on at the house, Olivia Jones was sitting on a fallen log in the blackberry pasture, with Harry Fuller leaning with folded arms against a thorn-apple tree close behind her.

"But I really meant it, Mrs. Jones," said he, earnestly.

"That's all nonsense," said the widow, half-smiling. "How can you mean it, when you have only known me for ten days?"

"A week or a month can make no difference to me," persisted he. "I love you, Mrs. Jones. I can't bear to see you ground down and insulted by women like that Mrs. Lefton. I'm only a farmer, I know, but I've a half-share in this place, with all its surrounding land, and the saw-mill on Gilead River; and if you'll trust yourself to me, you shall never know what want or trouble is. Mrs. Jones—Olivia—won't you give me a word of hope?"

"Would you marry—a mere dressmaker?"

"I would marry you, Olivia, in a second, if you would only say the word."

"But, Harry—"

He took her hand in his.

"It's all right now, Olivia," said he, with sparkling eyes. "If you did not care for me you would not have called me Harry in that tone."

And that was the way in which they became engaged.

Mrs. Fuller was electrified when she heard of it.

"You, Henry," she cried, "that might hev married Amanda Plumb, or even Mrs. Lefton's darter, Marietta, to take up with a dressmakin' women, who—"

Just then their came a tap at the door. A little, wrinkled-faced person stood there, in a crumpled hat and widow's veil, with a capacious trunk, wheeled on a wheelbarrow by a boy behind her.

"Mrs. Fuller?" said this personage, whose general appearance reminded one of a badly-rolled parcel.

"Yes," said the farmer's wife. "But I don't know who you are!"

"Mrs. John Jones," explained the stranger—"the lady as engaged your second floor front. In the dress-making business. There's been some mistake, and my trunk was sent on to the View Hotel, and some other person was sent here. I was unexpectedly detained by old Mrs. Mopson's funeral orders, and I've just discovered the blunder."

Mrs. Fuller stared until her spectacle glasses assumed the proportions of two moons.

"If you're the dressmaker that drove the bargain with me by letter," said she, "then who is this Mrs. Jones."

The yellow-tressed widow smilingly spoke up.

"Only a usurper, Mrs. Fuller," said she. "I had engaged a suit of rooms at the View Hotel, but circumstances drifted me here instead; and I don't regret it, on the whole."

She put her hand inside Harry's arm as she spoke.

"My stars!" cried the astounded Mrs. Lefton, "then you are the rich Mrs. John Jones, who was coming to the hotel—the lady that owns half the West India Islands."

"Not quite so bad as that," said Mrs. Jones, smiling. "But I cannot call myself poor, especially since I have been fortunate enough to win an honest man's love."

And when old Mrs. Fuller related this story, as she often did, she always capped the climax by saying, complacently:

"So our Harry was a fortune hunter after all, only he didn't know it."—Saturday Night.

Jackson and the Old Postmaster.

One of the most delightful of raconteurs tells this interesting story concerning Andrew Jackson: A General in the Revolutionary war, who was well known to Jackson, was Postmaster of a prominent New York town. He had been an Adams man, and Silas Wright, one of the ablest representatives that State ever had, and Martin Van Buren, who was then Jackson's Secretary of State, formed a coalition to have the veteran warrior removed soon after Jackson had taken the oath of office. The scarred hero determined to go to see Jackson and plead his own cause against the powerful politicians who had determined to punish him for his advocacy of Adams. He called upon Jackson at the White House. The President engaged in familiar conversation with him, when, to his amazement, the old soldier said:

"Gen. Jackson, I have come here to talk to you about my office: the politicians want to take it away from me and I have nothing else to live upon."

The President made no reply till the aged Postmaster began to take off his coat, in the most excited manner, when Old Hickory broke out with the inquiry:

"What in Heaven's name are you going to do?"

"Well, sir, I am going to show you my wounds, which I received fighting for my country against the English."

"Put it on at once, sir!" was the reply. "I am surprised that a man of your age should make such an exhibition of himself," and the eyes of the Iron President were suffused with tears as without another word he bade his ancient foe good-evening. The next day Wright called upon the President and made out his case against the General and urged his removal upon the strongest grounds. He had hardly finished the last sentence when Jackson sprang to his feet, flung his pipe into the fire, and exclaimed with great vehemence:

"I take the consequences, sir. I take the consequences. By the Eternal! I will not remove the old man. I cannot remove him. Why, Mr. Wright, do you know that he carries more than a pound of British lead in his body?"

That was the last of it. He who was stronger than courts, courtiers, or Cabinets pronounced his fiat, and the happy old Postmaster next day took the stage and returned home rejoicing.—Washington Letter.

Queer Funeral of an Epicurean.

A funeral of an extraordinary character took place the other day in Yorkshire, when J. S. Broderick, a well-known follower of Epicurus, of Hawes, in North Yorkshire, was buried. The interment took place in the deceased gentleman's own land, at Spring End, on the top of a hill. Mr. Broderick, who believed in the transmigration of souls, had directed that no minister of religion should attend his burial, and that no religious ceremony of any kind should be performed over his remains. The funeral, therefore, was almost of a unique description. The procession had to pass over Stagefall, one of the spurs of the Pennine range, and as the road was blocked in places over twelve feet deep with snow drifts the mourners had a most difficult task. The immediate place of sepulchre was very rocky. It had been chosen by the deceased gentleman, and blasting operations had to be carried on during the whole of Sunday and Monday to complete the grave, which is nearly twenty feet below the surface.

Handy Interest Rules.

The answer in each case being in cents, separate the two right-hand figures of the answer to express in dollars and cents

Four per cent.—Multiply the principal by the number of days to run, separate right-hand figure from the product, and divide by nine.

Five per cent.—Multiply the number of days and divide by seventy-two.

Six per cent.—Multiply the number of days, separate right-hand figure, and divide by six.

Eight per cent.—Multiply by number of days and divide by forty-five.

Nine per cent.—Multiply by number of days, separate right-hand figure, and divide by four.

Ten per cent.—Multiply by number of days and divide by thirty-five.

Twelve per cent.—Multiply by number of days, separate right-hand figure, and divide by three.

Shaving With a Pumice Stone.

"Ever hear of a man shaving himself with a pumice stone?" asked an Ogden avenue barber yesterday. "There is a carpenter over here on Lane street who has not touched his skin with a razor for six months, yet his face is always as smooth as a woman's. Three times a week he sits down upon the bench in his shop, and with a piece of pumice stone held lightly between his index finger and thumb, he will slowly rasp the stubble off his chin and chops. He says that he can shave himself in this manner in half the time it would require him with a razor. Talk about there being any money in a barber shop! It's all bosh. It won't be long before men will be shaving themselves with sponges and cutting their hair with an egg beater."

Origin of the Pig Tail.

The wearing of the queue was imposed upon the Chinese by their Tartar conquerors about the year 1652 A. D. Before that time the hair was allowed to grow long and thick, and was fastened in a knot at the top of the head. Much as they hated the queue, the Chinese dread its loss, for the shrewd Tartars made the cutting off of it the punishment for the most disgraceful crimes, and its absence, like the cropped ears during the middle ages in Europe, was the mark of a rogue.

Ben: Perley Poore thinks General Grant was never happier in his life than when, cheered by his young wife, he farmed sixty acres, labored in the fields, chopped wood at "Hardscrabble," hauled it to St. Louis and sold it for [illegible]

LIGHTS OUT.

The sentry challenged at the open gate,
Who passed him by, because the hours was late.
"Halt! Who goes there?" "A friend!"
"All's well."
"A friend, old chap!" a friend's farewell,
And I had passed the gate,
And then the long, last notes were shed,
The echoing call's last notes were dead;
And sounded sadly, as I stood without,
Those last sad notes of all: Lights Out!
Lights Out!

Farewell, companions! We have side by side
Watched history's lengthened shadows past us glide,
And worn the scarlet, laughed at, paid,
And buried comrades lowly laid,
And let the long years glide;
And toil and hardship have we known,
And followed where the flag had gone.
But all the echoes answering round about
Have bidden you to sleep: Lights Out!
Lights Out!

And never more for me shall red fire flash
From bright revolvers—Oh, the crumbling ash
Of life is hope's fruition. Fall
The withered friendships; and they all
Are sleeping! Fast away
The fabrics of our lives decay.
The robes of night about me lay,
And the air whispered, as I stood without,
Those last sad notes of all: Lights Out!
Lights Out!

—Roger Pocock, in the Week.

PITH AND POINT.

A chest protector—The baggage master.

Mrs. Grundy tells the New York Mail and Express that they do not call them dudes any more—simply "young society Darwins."

Not every one is happy who dances, says the proverb. The man who has just stepped on a tack knows this full well.—Boston Courier.

All flesh is grass, the young man sighed;
The maid replied, 'tis true,
As all must know who've sat beside
A chap as green as you.
—Boston Courier.

When you see a couple on the street, if the man carries the bundles they are engaged. If the woman carries the bundles they are married.—New Haven News.

The "self-made" man who boasts of how much smarter he has been than other men, did not quite finish the job. He forgot to give himself manners.—Oil City Blizzard.

When men look sad and sigh, "Alas,"
And from companions fly,
In very may cases 'tis
A lass that makes them sigh.
—Merchant-Traveler.

A Sioux Indian bears the name of "The-man-who-ran-so-fast-that-the-wind-was-left-behind." It is believed he participated in the strategic move on Washington at the first battle of Bull Run.—Norristown Herald.

Commanding Officer—"Bring your company up." Captain (just taken back into the army)—"Well, I'll go and talk to the boys and see if they'll come." "Great stars! Where have you been since you left the army?" "Been commanding a regiment of militia."—Omaha World.

"What can be the matter with Arthur, dear? He mopes so, he must be sick." "I don't think it is as serious as that, mamma. It's his whiskers." "His whiskers! Why the boy hasn't got any." "That is just it, mamma. He wishes he had them, don't you know."—Town Topics.

"My dear," said the husband to the wife before the glass, "I'm ashamed to see you put all that red stuff on your cheeks." "Oh, don't worry about that," she replied sweetly. "It matches the color on your nose admirably, and harmony is what makes the marriage relation ideal."—Washington Critic.

Omaha Bach—"Well, now, just tell me what comfort you've gained by getting married?" Young husband—"How do you fasten your suspenders when the buttons come off, as they generally do in about a week?" "I use wire hooks usually." "Yes; and where do get the wire?" "Well, I generally have a time hunting for a piece, I must admit. I got the last off my whisk broom." Yes, and spoilt the broom." "Just so; but what better off are you?" "Me! Why, I've got a wife, and she always has about a bushel of hair pins on hand."—Omaha World.

A Rapid Conversion.

The story is told that when General Sherman entered Goldsboro', N. C., on the way to join Grant after his march to the sea, he and his staff stopped just in front of the residence of a man who was a rabid Secessionist. The colonel (he bore that title) appeared on the porch to greet them, and an officer asked what his sentiments were in regard to the war. "I am a strong Union man," said the colonel, with a dry smile. "Ah, indeed," said the officer, rather sarcastically; "and how long have you been a Union man?" "I have been a Union man," said the colonel, "ever since I saw you and your staff come into the end of that street, about fifteen minutes ago." This candor pleased General Sherman, and he ordered a guard placed around Colonel X.'s property, and during the stay of the army not a thing was molested in or around his premises, although many others suffered.

A Big City's Gas Lamps.

Late one night last week I met an old man with a coonskin hat on his head and a huge pipe in his mouth. He was standing at the corner of Washington and Halstead streets, gazing intently at a gas-lamp. As he lifted his wrinkled old face toward me I recognized him. He was the figure fiend.

"See that 'ar gas lamp?" he exclaimed. "Well, I was just thinkin' 'bout it. There's more in the gas lamp question than you have any idea of. There's 14,000 o' them gas lamps in Chicago, think of that. 16,000, an' 6,000 oil lamps. Cost money to run 'em? I should say so—$25 a year for every gas lamp an' $18 a year for every oil burner. That makes a heap o' money, don't it? Why, sir, all them lamps would light the Pennsylvania Railroad from Chicago to New York so's a man a-walkin' there at night need never be in the dark. They would place a lamp every four feet the hull distance. [illegible]

CHILTON VIEW.

Published Every Thursday Morning.

CLANTON, ALA., MAR. 24, 1887.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One copy one year - - -	$1.50
One copy six months - -	75
One copy four " - -	50

The New York Sun is now issued three times a day. The latest edition is called the Evening Sun.

Last Thursday was Saint Patrick's day, and there were celebrations of the day in all the large cities.

The report that Secretary of War Endicott has had a misunderstanding with President Cleveland is said to be a mistake by the Secretary himself.

Capt. Walter L. Bragg, has been appointed one of the inter-state commerce commissioners. The commission is represented by Illinois, New York, Michigan, Vermont and Alabama. A feather in Alabama's cap.

General William W. Loring died last week in New York. He was a distinguished Confederate general in our civil war. For ten years he served in the army of Egypt, and during part of the time was chief of staff to the generalissimo of the army. His remains were interred with great ceremony at his old home, St. Augustine, Fla., last Friday.

The Alabama Press Association meets in Birmingham in May. We hope the association is sufficiently well officered to get up the long delayed and often expected excursion to Washinton city. Let the President and his energetic Secretary look into the matter and try to have the train ready to carry the "gang" to see the great competitive drill which takes place at the national capital in May.

We advocate the patronizing of home institutions in every case where it is possible, on this more than all others depend the prosperity of a community. A man who will spend his money among strangers for the sake of a few cents saved to him as an individual, should in no way be tolerated. It is the essence of selfishness and indicates a lack of good hard sense. Help those that help you.—Hartsell Index.

Selma.

Taking occasion to stop in Selma between trains one day last week, the "boom" was inquired into, and some information that may be of interest was gained. Selma's progress is solid and sure. Things are moving easily just now, but are moving surely and steadily towards the building of a large and important manufacturing city. In conversation with one of the incorporators of the Cahaba Valley Railroad it was learned that the road was a certainty and would very soon be under construction.

Since visiting the city about three years ago, there have been many improvements. Among others the building of the finest opera house in the State and a Young Men's Christian Association building which would be an ornament to a much larger place. Waterworks have also been established and a magnificent $50,000 iron bridge built across the Alabama River. These enterprises were necessary in a thriving city of 11,000 people, and were sure to come sooner or later. They are the forerunners of other and greater enterprises which are in prospect. Another enterprise which should be mentioned in this connection is the rice mill. The proprietors saw the demand, and since starting the mill large quantities of land in Dallas and adjoining counties, which heretofore has gone to waste in King Cotton, is now utilized in growing rice at a fine profit to the farmer. Messrs. Shivers & Wise, the proprietors of the mill, are gentlemen. They have a card in this paper to which we invite the attention of the farmers of this section who think of planting rice.

While in the city it was our good fortune to stop with mine hosts of the St. James hotel. A better stopping place could not be found anywhere. The St. James, like the city, is improving daily and is already one of the best hotels in the State. The traveling public can not do better than to make a note of this, for it will pay to do so.

Much more may be written of the beautiful Central City and her prospects, but our space cuts us off for the present with this.

Vincent.

Birmingham Chronicle.]

Yesterday afternoon a well posted politician button holed a Chronicle man and said let me tell you what a Montgomery man told me. And he unfolded the following theory of the Vincent return, which is somewhat startling.

He said—"The nomination, election and thefts of Vincent and his flight taken together make the most mysterious and remarkable crime ever recorded in the South. It is unnecessary to talk about the nomination for the third term, all the men in the State know that Montgomery carried that nomination of Vincent right over the wishes of the party by sheer will power and it was soon known that it was done for a purpose. The State was startled by the defalcation, but Montgomery clung to Vincent. Nobody tried to stop his flight, nobody tried to stop him.

A little ten cent reward was offered and that was to be paid out of the contingent fund if the junketings of the Governor should leave the amount of the reward in the fund. There is a strong suspicion that the reward was made low and payable out of the contingent fund to prevent the capture of the embezzler. He went away peacefully and staid until now.

The State Legislature offered a $5,000 reward and appropriated the money to pay it. I have reason to believe that this was done in Vincent's interest. When it was known that the law was passed Vincent presented himself. His attorney from the North came to meet him at Montgomery. Friends identified him and the reward was paid, and I think that Vincent has the bulk of the $5,000 reward in his own pocket. His money matters with the State are settled in full, and there remains only the criminal prosecutions. They will not amount to much when a man has so many such powerful friends as Vincent.

Vincent never would have come back unless he had been satisfied on that score. This mystery is by no means solved yet, as you will see."

The Beauty of Cheerfulness.

Don't mope. Be young as long as you live. Laugh a good deal. Frolic every day. A low tone of mind is unhealthy.

A lawyer who works ten months in the year and then for two solid months amuses himself, will last twice as long as if he took no recreation.

Men have come to think that tears are more sacred than smiles. No! Laughing is as divine as crying.

Humor usually tends towards good nature, and everything that tends towards good nature tends toward good grace.

If laughing is a sin, I don't see what the Lord lets so many funny things happen for.

Having wit and bouyancy of spirits, let them flash out in services of religion. Don't consider it necessary to rake them up and hide them.

Humor is the atmosphere in which grace most flourishes.

I say when a person becomes a christian that he loses nothing that he should not be afraid to keep. If ever you are going to be a christian don't set out to be a gloomy-eyed, twilight-faced, bat-like christian.—Beecher.

Diversified Farming.

Bibb Co. Special to Advertiser.]

On a short trip over in Chilton your correspondent saw something that every farmer should watch with interest and catch dots from. It was a change of a whilom cotton plantation to a stock and fruit farm. Mr. Wiley King, of our neighboring town of Stanton, who has concluded that cotton will not pay, has become associated with Mr. Hermandez, of Birmingham, and they have changed their place into a farm for fruits, grasses and stocks.

Many of our farmers are also turning their attention to the culture of upland rice, and we expect to see the condition of our farmers improve as this diversification of farm products progresses.

AN ACT.

To amend Section 4221 of the Code of Alabama.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Alabama, That Section 4221 of the Code of Alabama be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows, to-wit:

Sec. 7. § 4321. Adulterating sugar, syrup or molasses, lard butter or other articles of food. Any merchant, grocer or other persons who mixes any foreign matter or substance with sugar, syrup or molasses, lard or butter, or other articles of food so as to deteriorate or change the quality thereof, or sells or offers or exposes for sale such adultered sugar, syrup or molasses, lard or butter, or other articles of food, or who suffers his servant, agent, apprentice or other person for him, so to adulterate or to sell, offer or expose for sale such adulterated sugar, or molasses, lard or butter or other articles of food, or who sells, offers or exposes for sale any oleomargarine, cotton seed oil or futtarine butter without having the same designated by name or brand, and to inform each and every purchaser thereof of the name, class and kind of butter or other articles of food at time of purchase, must on conviction be fined not less than $50 nor more than $500, and may also be imprisoned in the county jail, or sentenced to hard labor for the county for not more than six months.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, That section 4221 be, and the same is hereby repealed.

Approved February 28, 1886.

Official:

C. C. Langdon, Sec'y. of State.

Duties.

Every man should pay his debts—if he can. Every man ought to help his neighbor—if he can. Every man and woman should get married—if they can. Every man should do his work to suit his customers—if he can. Every man should please his wife—if he can. Every wife should sometimes hold her tongue—if she can. Every lawyer should sometimes tell the truth—if he can. Every man should mind his own business—if he can; and every woman too. Every man or woman should hold up their heads when spoken to—if they can. Every man should have feelings for his fellow beings. No man should slander his neighbor or touch his feelings. Every one should take a newspaper and pay for it—anyhow.—Ex.

Saw Mill Men.

I am now prepared to hammer your buckled saws. Just received a new outfit of tools for hammering. Can return a saw in 4 days after it arrives. Satisfaction guaranteed. Remittance after trying the saw. Ship to Pratt Saw Mill Co. WM. R. HOLDER.

[feb24 3m]

The Florence, Tuscaloosa and Montgomery Railroad Company.

Notice is hereby given that, under and by virtue of the power and authority conferred upon the undersigned, as Board of Corporators of the Florence, Tuscaloosa and Montgomery Railroad Company, by Hon. C. C. Langdon, Secretary of State of the State of Alabama, we shall, in pursuance of such power and authority, open books of subscription to the capital stock of said railroad company at the court house of Chilton County, at the office of the Probate Judge, on the 18th day of April, A. D. 1887.

WILLIAM B. WOOD,
A. W. WILLS,
WILLIAM C. JEMISON,
GEORGE A. SEARCY,
STERLING A. M. WOOD,
Board of Corporators.

Florence, Ala., March 1st, 1887. 10-4

NOTICE NO. 6237.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Mar. 8, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court, or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 16th, 1887, viz: Burrel Bailey, Homestead 12318, for the ne ¼ of nw ¼, sec. 22, township 20 n, range 11 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: John W. Mitchell, Mike H. Barnes, Daniel C. Gandy and David A. Friday, all of Plantersville, Ala.

mar10* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

THE

Cheap Cash Store,

—OF—

R. P. WOOLEY & CO.,

CLANTON, ALA.,

IS THE PLACE TO BUY YOUR

DRY GOODS & GROCERIES.

Wetmore's Book Store

SELMA, ALA.,

INVITES ORDERS FOR

Books, Stationery, Musical Instruments, Fancy Goods, etc.

☞ Prices always lower than elsewhere. [mar24-6m

M. ISRAEL,

Leading Tailor.

1910 FIRST AVENUE (Upstairs)
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Keeps constantly in stock a full line of

Elegant Goods,

ready to be made up in the latest style and with the best workmanship. Perfect fit and entire satisfaction guaranteed. Give him a trial. [mar 24-y

J. H. SHEPPARD

THE LEADING

PHOTOGRAPHER,

—OF—

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

NORTH SIDE SECOND AVENUE
(Between 19th and 20th Sts.)

Photographs of All Kinds Work Done in the BEST STYLE.

Call on him and have your picture taken. [mar24-y

NOW IS YOUR CHANCE!

WE ARE OPENING CHEAP

SEED RICE for PLANTERS,

AND POLISHED RICE FOR TABLE USE,

CRACKED CORN for STOCK,

The best feed on the market. No danger of colic. We can furnish

BOLTED MEAL

IN LARGE OR SMALL LOTS. COW FOOD A SPECIALTY, AND CHEAP.

SHIVERS & WISE,

mar24-y] SELMA, ALABAMA.

Barclift & Co.

—DEALERS IN—

DRY GOODS and GROCERIES

NORTH SIDE OF SEC. AVE. BET. 19th AND 20th STREETS.

Birmingham, Ala.

☞ When you are in the city be sure to call on us, and the prices we will quote you, will cause you to buy whatever you may need in the Dry Goods or Grocery Line. [mar 24-1y

Newman's Southern Flower Cologne is the best. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Croup, Whooping cough and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. jun16 y

No family should be without Ellis' Magic Oil Liniment, the greatest external remedy known. It cures all aches and pains. Price 25 cents per bottle, at W. H. Phillips.

Sleepless nights made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by M. J. Greene Clanton. jun16y

Take one of Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pillets at night before you go to bed and you will be surprised how buoyant and vigorous you will feel the next day. Only 25 cents a vial.

Croup is a treacherous disease, and generally the most severe at night when unable to properly watch it. The best known remedy is Ellis' C. S. A. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

If you are suffering with weak or inflamed eyes, or granulated eyelids, you can be quickly cured by using Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve. 25 cents a box. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures consumption. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton Ala.

Life will acquire new zest, and cheerfulness will return, if you will impel your liver and kidneys to the performance of their functions Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm will stimulate them to healthful action. $1.00 per bottle. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Ellis' Magic Liver Pills are safe for children, and are more effective than any other cathartic pill on the market. If not found satisfactory return and get your money. For sale by W. H. Phillips. aug26-y

Will you suffer with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

That hacking cough can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's cure. We guarantee it. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Sick Headache and a sensation of oppression and dullness in the head are very commonly produced by indigestion; morbid despondency, irritability and over-sensitiveness of the nerves may, in a majority of cases, be traced to the same cause. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm and Pillets will positively cure. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton. sep11 3

Money to Loan!

I am prepared to negotiate mortgage loans on farming lands in Chilton county in sums of three hundred dollars and upwards. Rates cheap and negotiations speedily concluded. Apply to or correspond with

H. L. WILLIAMS,
oct7 Att'y at Law, Wetumpka.

NOTICE NO. 6088.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
February 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 5th, 1887, viz: Marion A. Barbour, Homestead 12195, for the sw ¼ of ne ¼, se ¼ of nw ¼, sec. 22 township 21 north, range 16 east. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: Wm. D. Goss, Wm. B. Jones, Wm. Taylor and Pinckney Jones, all of Verbena, Ala.

feb24* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6079.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge of the circuit court or in his absence, the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Ala., on April 5th, 1887, viz: Betsy Robuck, guardian Della Robuck, homestead 9293, for the ne ¼ of ne ¼, section 2, township 20 north, range 12 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: James Green Wm. Sansom, Thos. Klinner and H Hayes, all of Maplesville, Ala.

feb24 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6220.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
March 1st, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Alabama, on April 9th, 1887, viz: John E. Smith, Homestead 12686 for the s ½ of sw ¼, sec. 14, township 21, range 11 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Daniel Scroggins, James R. Whatley, John D. Selman and John Bearden, all of Maplesville, Ala.

mar1 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

I. B. BOWDOIN

DEALER IN

Family Groceries,

CLANTON, ALA.

I will keep on hand for sale, a nice line of Family Groceries, such as may be desired by the Clanton trade, and will sell as cheap as they can be purchased elsewhere. f 24 6

DON'T

Buy anything in the Grocery line until you have called on

T. M. Edwards,

Who keeps constantly on hand Fancy and Family Groceries and confectioneries.

Clanton, Ala., Feb. 24th, '87

MARRIAGE GUIDE

260 PAGES. Illustrated, in Cloth and Gilt Binding. 50c. money or stamps. Same, paper cover, 25c. This Book contains ALL the curious, doubtful or inquisitive want to know. Full of very interesting and valuable information. HEALTH, BEAUTY and HAPPINESS are promoted by its advise—who may Marry, who not, why; Medical Aid, when necessary, brought home to you. 80 Wonderful PEN PICTURES, true to life. Young or old, married or single, sick or well, should read it. Sent sealed by DR. WHITTIER, St. Louis, Mo.

WINTER! SPRING!

During the Season of Winter MALARIA Lurks in the System!

COLLINS

AGUE CURE

One Dose a day, taken three days in succession, each month, or when you feel badly in any way, will fully Cleanse your Blood, Remove all Bilious Secretions & Malarial Poison from your System, and Insure GOOD HEALTH IN THE SPRING.

[illegible]

If you are troubled with a COUGH, COLD, SORENESS in CHEST, or any Affection of Throat or Lungs, use DR. JACKSON'S Syrup LUNGWORT & WILD CHERRY Sold at 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 a Bottle.

If your EYES are affected in any way, use DR. JACKSON'S CELEBRATED INDIAN EYE SALVE. Sold Everywhere at 25 cents per Box.

SEND FOR COLLINS BROS. "PRESENT CENTURY ALMANAC" for 1887, mailed to any address or at any Drug Store. COLLINS BROS. DRUG CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

jun24-y

L & N
(LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.)

THE GREAT

Through Trunk Line

Between the Cities of CINCINNATI, LEXINGTON, LOUISVILLE, EVANSVILLE, ST. LOUIS, And the Cities of N. ORLEANS, MOBILE, and MONTGOM'Y, MEMPHIS, NASHVILLE,

Without Change and with Speed Unrivaled

SHORTEST AND QUICKEST ROUTE From New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery, to NORTH, EAST & WEST

PULLMAN CARS Without change to Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, with but one change to all NORTHERN AND EASTERN CITIES.

THROUGH COACHES From Chattanooga and Nashville to St. Louis, connecting direct for Cities in the Northwest.

EMIGRANTS Seeking homes on the line of this road will receive special low rates.

See Agents of this Company for rates, routes &c., or write C. P. ATMORE, G. P. & T. A.

Louisville, Ky.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Under the power of sale contained in three several mortgages executed to me by W. L. Campbell and M. A. Campbell, dated respectively April 7th, 1885, April 11th, 1885, and January 23rd, 1886, I will sell at public auction, for cash, at Maplesville, Alabama, on the 4th day of April, 1887, the following described lands, situated in Chilton county, Alabama, to-wit: The SE ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 27; N ½ of NE ¼ and SW ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 34; NW ¼ of NW ¼ and S ½ of N ½ and N ½ of S ½ and SW ¼ of SW ¼ and SE ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 35; NE ¼ of NE ¼ of Sec. 34; NE ¼ of NW ¼ and NW qr of SE qr of Sec. 35; NW qr of NW qr of Sec. 36; and NW qr of Sec. 34; all in Township 22, Range 12.

I. B. HOWARD,
Mortgagee.

Satterfield & Young, Attys.

Southern Business College.

NO. 407½ WEST JEFFERSON STREET, NEXT DOOR BELOW MASONIC TEMPLE.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

NO TEXT BOOKS USED.

BOOK-KEEPING, PENMANSHIP, COMMERCIAL ARITHMETIC, SHORT-HAND, TYPE-WRITING, &c., &c.

We guarantee to teach more real, practical Book-keeping, Commercial or Business Calculations, more practical ideas about business in general, in 2 to 4 months, than any other Business College in this section can in twelve months.

We teach forms of Book-keeping (actual forms used in business) not taught in any other Business College in this section.

No Scholar Has Ever Completed Our Entire Course and left us Dissatisfied.

For circulars call at college or address

Ben. C. Weaver, Principal.

BAINS & PEEBLES.

(SUCCESSORS TO BAINS & HERRING.)

WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.

Mail and Express Orders Will Receive Prompt Attention.

FINE WINES AND LIQUORS A SPECIALTY.

1926 FIRST AVENUE, BETWEEN 19th and 20th STREETS,

Birmingham, Ala.

☞ Fine Stock of Chess Carley's Oils at Company's Prices. ☜

P. O. BOX 570. June 19 y

T. T. ASHFORD, Pres. J. E. MALAHY, Vice Pres. T. L. MCGOWAN, Sec. & Treas.

Birmingham Paint, Glass and Wall Paper Co.

Successors to

MAYBERRY & ASHFORD.

Jobbers and Retailers of

Paints, Oils, Window Glass, Paint, Sky-Light and Colored Glass, Sash, Doors, Blinds and Moulding,

Painters' and Artists' Supplies.

WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES, and CURTAIN FIXTURES.

1912 Second Avenue, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

☞ Write for Samples of Wall Paper and Estimates on Glass. jun10

MINERAL CITY TIN AND STOVE HOUSE

SECOND AVENUE BETWEEN 18TH AND 19TH STREETS,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Pat Walsh, Manager.

A Large Line of HEATING and COOKING STOVES always on hand. All Kinds of

Tin, Sheet Iron Roofing and Job Work

DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.

☞ Orders by mail will receive prompt attention. nov 11

E. WALL. P. GIACOPAZZI.

WALL & GIACOPAZZI,

Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Commission Merchants,

Second Ave. and Twentieth St.

Birmingham, - - - Ala.

References: S. Oteri, New Orleans; Jos. Denunzio, Louisville; Buhr, Wendte & Co., Cincinnati; Underhill, Stewart & Shotta, N. Y.; Wm. D. Clarke & Co., New Orleans; Cowing & Clark, Cincinnati; A. G. Conant & Co., N. Y.; First National Bank, Birmingham, Ala.

BLOOM,

The Tailor, of Montgomery, Ala.,

—DOES—

Dyeing, Scouring, Cleaning, and Repairing

Of Gents' and Ladies' garments of all colors.
Orders by Mail or Express will receive prompt attention.
Prices to suit the times. Work Guaranteed.

NO. 5 Court Street, Upstairs, - - Opposite Dollar Store.

Thompson, Francis & Chenoweth,

Birmingham, Ala.

—DEALERS IN—

HARDWARE,

Sash, Doors and Blinds, Paints, oil and glass, Cement and Plaster, Mantles and Grates.

THOROUGH BUSINESS EDUCATION.

Bryant and Stratton. } THE LOUISVILLE Business College,

Corner Third and Jefferson Streets. Entrance, No. 406 Third Street,

Louisville, Ky.

BOOK-KEEPING, BANKING, PENMANSHIP, TELEGRAPHY, SHORT-HAND AND ENGLISH TRAINING.

☞ For Catalogue Address College as Above.

J. M. WILKERSON. JOHN A. CALDWELL.

WILKERSON, CALDWELL & CO.

REAL ESTATE, RENTING & COLLECTING AGENTS, AND STOCK BROKERS.

Tuscaloosa, - - Alabama.

Buy and sell for principals. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to us. Collecting rents a specialty.

Office over store of Fitts Bros., next to Telegraph Office. Correspondence solicited. feb24

References: J. H. Fitts & Co., Bankers and First Nat. Bank, of Tuscaloosa.

CHILTON VIEW.

CLANTON, ALA., MAR. 24, 1887.

THE VIEW is published every Thursday morning, and will endeavor to cover the field of reputable country journalism. It will show no quarter to the deceitful, the immoral or the ungodly. It will always be good natured, although it can bite if necessary.

Those answering advertisements will confer a favor by mentioning this paper.

COURT CALENDAR.

Chancery—First Thursday after the third Monday in March and September and continue three days.

Circuit—Third Monday after the first Monday in February and on the fifth Monday after the fourth Monday in July, and continue two weeks each time.

Commissioners'—Regular term second Monday in February and August, and first Monday in April and November. Special term second Monday in July.

County—First Monday in each month.

SCHEDULE S. & N. ALA. RAILROAD. —Trains pass Clanton daily, as follows:

GOING SOUTH.
No. 1 at	*5:45 a. m.
No. 3	5:37 p. m.
No. 7	4:12 p. m.
No. 51	6:00 a. m.
GOING NORTH.
No. 2	9:15 a. m.
No. 12	9:55 a. m.
No. 4	*9:43 p. m.
No. 50	6:55 p. m.

* Don't stop.

LOCAL DOTTINGS.

Send us your job work.

Subscribe for the VIEW.

Prayer-meeting every Thursday night. Be sure to attend.

The peach crop in this section has been killed by recent frosts.

Don't forget to pay your subscription if you have not already done so.

Dr. T. E. Callier, of Dixie, has gone to Bladon Springs to spend the summer.

Mrs. Ruth J. Duvall, of Holden, Mo., is visiting her sister, Mrs. O. A. Duke, in this place.

The VIEW will be sent to ministers of the gospel at $1.00 per annum.

A new supply of warranty deeds just received and for sale at this office.

The VIEW and the Montgomery Advertiser (weekly) for $2.50 a year, in advance.

Mr. Anderson Baker, of Verbena, sends us some English peas of this Spring's growth. The first we have seen.

The weather compels us to make use of the old sterotyped expression "Winter lingers in the lap of Spring."

Remember that next week we will publish a list of names of all parties who pay their subscription during court week.

The visitors in attendance upon court this week are too numerous for us to attempt to give personals. Our space is limited.

Notice change in the advertisement of R. P. Wooley's Cheap Cash Store, which appears in another column in this issue.

Next Sunday being the 4th Sabbath our Baptist pastor will hold services in the Baptist church at this place, both morning and night.

When in Birmingham go to Sheppard's photograph gallery to have your likeness struck. See his advertisement in another column.

Our county abounds in slate. Mr. O. R. Bell has now brought us a few specimens which compare favorably with any we have yet received.

The Concert last week by the Stewart Family was a pleasant entainment and well atended. Some of our boys feel badly yet over being taken in as suckers.

Miss Flossie Logan, the young lady who was to assist Prof. Hicks in the Clanton Academy, failed to secure a sufficient number of music pupils to make her work renumerative and consequently has returned to Montgomery.

EDITORS OF VIEW: Allow me, through your paper to thank my friends, who during my temporary absence, so gallantly fought the "fiery fiend" and prevented its consuming tongue from making further destruction of my property. I shall always feel grateful to them.

A. M. ADAMS.

Sampey's Corner.

Go to Sampey's to get a nice pair of shoes at a reasonable price. Big bargains in ladies' shoes, No. 3 and No. 4. Reasonable prices on all sizes. If you need a barrel of flour and have got the money to pay for it, you can get the lowest prices and a good guarantee that it is as represented.

A Bucket at Last.

The long felt want, a means for drawing water from the courthouse well, has at last been filled by a new rope and bucket. Among the first to draw any water was an old negro man, and just after him our "devil" sought to quench his long time thirst with its cool water, when the old negro warned him not to drink it; saying that a few babies, pupies, dead men's eyes, and several other articles had been drawn up, and that he knew the man the eyes belonged to, for he recognized the eyes.

Our "devil" brought some of the water to the office but warned us not to drink it and related the old man's story. Having been depriyed of a drink of this water so long we could not control our desire to take a drink, so arming ourselves with the old saying "What don't kill fatteus," we took a long draught, after which we felt better.

We would not advise any one to let these foolish tales frighten them off as you all know that the devil does not in all cases adhere strictly to the truth. Our "devil" may have made up this dreadful account of babies, pupies, men's eyes and other articles. Who knows? We do not have a bucket on this well all the time so take advantage of the opportunity and quench your thirst.

A Fisticuff.

Court week commenced with a fight, how will it end? Mr. A. J. Hall is an applicant for the office of Sheriff in case the looked for vacancy should occur and he desires the endorsement of the Democratic Executive Committee, of which Mr. Wm. A. Collier is Chairman; Mr. Hall solicited Mr. Collier's endorsement of him for the office and for political reason the latter gentleman refused to endorse him, whereupon they indulged in a little ruff and tumble fight. Neither were much worsted

If you have any property for sale and parties wish to buy who will improve it do not hold it at exorbitant prices and thus retard the growth of our town. Sell you vacant lots, to parties who will build on them, at reasonable prices and it will increase the value of the rest of your property from 50 to 100 per cent.

The greatest attraction in Clanton for the ladies is Mrs. Phillips' Millinery Store. If you want an elegant and stylish Ladies or Misses Hat, beautiful Plumes, Tips, Flowers, Ribbons, Laces, Gawzes, Satin and Silk Trimmings. Call and see her. Prices low.

OVER THE DRUG STORE.

Still they Come.

Mr. C. E. Crenshaw, of Fort Deposit, Lowndes county, last week purchased twenty acres of farm land one mile from Clanton for which he paid $20 per acre. He is now desirous of purchasing a residence in town. Still they come.

Circuit court convened Monday with Judge Lapsley presiding, and business is being dispatched quite rapidly and satisfactorily. Solicitor Fitzpatrick is also on hand and hard at work in the interest of the State.

Take you watches and jewelry, that need repiaring, to W. A. Howard whose headquarters are in the front part of Mr. I. B. Bowdoin's store. Highest prices paid in cash for old gold and silver.

The contest case for the office of probate judge has been continued until the next term of our circuit court. There is a probability of its being tried before that time at a special term.

We are continually receiving letters of inquiry from parties desiring to locate in our town. We are in receipt of one this week from a gentleman, of Bladenboro, North Carolina.

Pat Walch, the proprietor of the Mineral City Tin & Stove House, in Birmingham, says business is booming with him. That is accounted for by his having an "ad" in the VIEW.

The dry goods and grocery firm of Barclift & Co., Birmingham, have an advertisement in the VIEW. Parties will find it to their interest to trade with them when they visit the city.

Died, at Kincheon, this county, on the morning of the 22nd inst., Mrs. Davenport, wife of Emery Davenport, aged about 65 years.

M. Isreal, one of the best tailors in Birmingham, has an advertisement in the View, read it. If you want good material and a perfect fit give him you orders.

OVER THE COUNTY.

News Gathered up by Our Correspondents.

Dots From Concord.

Corn planting is the object of this neighborhood at present.

We had quite a large frost on the 17th.

We have a good prayer-meeting twice a week, at the Methodist church, in this community.

Mr. Joseph Green, who visited his parents last week, returned to Selma, his home, on Monday.

Miss Ida Reynolds and mother, of Tuskegee, Ala., are on a visit in this neighborhood, we learn that they intend to make this place their home.

Success to the VIEW.

PEACEFUL BOY.

Maplesville Dots.

Corn planting is all the talk among the farmers.

Mr. N. W. Foshee is selling more guano this Spring than he did last. We think it would be better if more home made fertilizer was used.

The Sunday School was organized at Maplesville church last Sunday and Mr. Ben Fox was appointed Superintendent. We hope he will wake things up to what they ought to be.

Mr. L W. Gullahorn has opened a stock of family groceries in Maplesville. He has our best wishes for success.

D.

Pratt Saw Mills.

Mrs. Emma Myers has returned home from a visit to relatives in Montgomery.

We are sorry to say that Mr. Phil McDonald has been quite sick, but we hope to soon see him feeling well and gay as usual.

Mr. W. A. Smith our clever and efficient tax assessor came up to the Mills and assessed the men's taxes in order to save them any trouble. That is kind of a heart for a man to have and it will please us to keep him in that office.

Mr. George Tidwell is the happy father of a nine pound—its a boy.

Another accident occurred on the P. S. M. R. R., last week. The section foreman while coming in on his hand car, fell off the car and was run over and considerably bruised, but we are proud to see him up again. He will soon be convalescent.

The Mills will both run regular pretty soon as we see several extra teams put in recently. Will write more when we hear something new.

We expect some of those sly whisky sellers who have violated the prohibition law will lie low during court. They ought to feel this violation very strong.

Success to the VIEW.

ON HAND.

Stanton Puffs.

Married, in Bibb county, March 16th, 1887, at the residence of the bride's mother. Mr. Jesse Rucker, of Stanton, to Miss Matilda Selman. W. J. Ruddick officiating.

The painting on the Baptist church has been made satisfactory. The weather-boarding was old and so nearly rotten that it took a considable amount of paint to make it look white.

Mrs. Bethea, of Faunsdale, visited her brother, Mr. O. H. P. Wright, of Stanton, last week.

A blind lady gave a concert in the Academy last Friday night, in addition to her singing, she read, wrote and ciphered.

Mrs. Wallace, Montevallo, came to Stanton last week on a short visit to her two sons, the Messrs. Gardner of the G. & C. L. Co's. Store.

Lodge Bros. are erecting a derrick at the Clanton Ford, on the G. & C. L. R. R. to load charcoal.

We predict that Clanton Ford will be quite a village as there are a number of houses near there and others are expected to be built soon, and Lodge Bros. will soon open their commissary there.

We would be glad to see you have more subscribers at Stanton than you have. Come over and see us, a visit might help you.

89.

Dixie Dots.

Our merchants did a fine business last Saturday.

Mr. James Stewart we regret to hear is quite sick.

Ten cars of fertilizer have been received by our farmers to date.

Rev. E. D. Acker occupied the pulpit at Ebenezer last Sunday.

It is probable that one of our citizens will build a saw mill at this place, in the near future.

We learn that "Daisy" and the "Dude" are one.

Very capricious the weather has been, and we fear early gardens, fruit &c., have been injured.

Coaling works are to be started in this vicinity, and Dixie will be made the shipping point.

One of our girls has a new musical instrument: we hope she will seek the lonely dell until she learns to play, at least,

"Mary to the Savior's Tomb."

Captain Thos. D. Parnell proposes to erect a nice dwelling on his lot in this village so that he can move his family nearer to schools and churches.

There were many marriages in our community during the winter, and beaux and marriageable young ladies are correspondingly scarce for a season.

Our Spring poet is sublime—hear his latest production, when parting from one of the girls lately:

"Oh! when shall we two meet again,
 In the days that are coming,
And eat the old fat hen
 I hear so sweetly humming."

We have just examined a lot of Stationery printed by the VIEW job office. The work is finely executed and our business men need not send out of the county for their job work.

News is scarce, our people are all busy, and crime and casuality there is none, so you must excuse our prosiness this week.

X.

Read the advertisement of Robert S. Wetmore, bookseller and stationer of Selma, Ala. This is an old established house that receives the liberal patronage which it deserves, on a motto of fair dealing and low prices.

Noteheads, billheads, letterheads, envelopes, statements, programmes, posters, dodgers, circular letters, visiting and business cards, commissary checks, &c. &c., printed at the VIEW Job Office, at reasonable prices and on short notice.

The attention of our readers is invited to the advertisement of Butler & Gatchell, dealers in books, stationery, music, musical instruments, &c., of Selma. This is a new firm which is full of enterprise and well up with the wants of all who wish to purchase goods in their line.

Shiloh's Vitalizer is what you need for Constipation, loss of appetite, dizziness, and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle.

NOTICE NO. 6246.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery Ala., Mar. 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the Clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, on April 23rd, 1887, viz: William H. Wells, Homestead 11507 for the e ½ of sw ¼, section 28, township 22, range 15. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Andrew J. Duncan, Thomas G. Taylor, Henry C. Johnson and Sidney A. Blassingame, all of Clanton, Ala.

mar17 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

MONTGOMERY FURNITURE COMPANY.

—DEALERS IN—

Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Looking Glasses, Lounges, Hall Racks, Wardrobes, Chairs, Safes, Side Boards, Cradles, Cribs, Baby Carriages, Spring Beds. Mattresses, Refrigerators, Pianos. Organs, Carpets,

And All Kinds of Furniture!

A. C. ROGERS, Manager,

210 Bibb Street, Wharton's Old Stand Next to McDonald's Opera House.

sep2 y

This space is reserved by

A. J. BROOKS

AT VERBENA, ALA.,

FOR FUTURE ADVERTISING

☞ WATCH IT. ☜

BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR

A SPECIFIC FOR

WOMAN'S DISEASES

SUCH AS

Painful, Profuse, Suppressed, Scanty and Irregular MENSTRUATION OR MONTHLY SICKNESS.

If taken during the CHANGE OF LIFE, great suffering and danger will be avoided. ☞ Send for book "MESSAGE TO WOMEN," mailed free.

BRADFIELD REGULATOR Co., Atlanta, Ga.

THE

CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.

It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.

OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.

EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

These excellent Organs are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty in finish, perfect construction, making them the most attractive, ornamental and desirable organs for homes, schools, churches, lodges, societies, &c.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,
UNEQUALED FACILITIES,
SKILLED WORKMEN,
BEST MATERIAL,
COMBINED, MAKE THIS

THE POPULAR ORGAN

Instruction Books and Piano Stools.

Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, FREE.

The Chicago Cottage Organ Co.

Corner Randolph and Ann Streets,

CHICAGO, ILL.

IF YOU WANT NICE FRESH GROCERIES CALL ON

W. H. SARTOR,

FIRST DOOR WEST OF THE DRUG STORE, MAIN STREET,

Clanton, Ala.

☞ In addition to everything in the Grocery line I also carry a nice stock of fresh Stick and Fancy Candies, Fruits and other Confectioneries. mar4

BUTLER & GATCHELL,

922 BROAD STREET, SELMA, ALA.

CHEAPEST PLACE in the State for SCHOOL BOOKS, Blank Books, Writing Paper, Gospel Hymns, Hammocks, Base Ball Goods, Pictures and Picture Frames, Photograph and Autograph Albums,

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,

Sheet Music and Scrap Books,

Rubber Stamps made to order. Mail or telegraph orders promptly attended to Subscriptions received for any paper or magazine published. [mar24ly

SHAW & DAVIN,

Machinery & Mill Supplies,

—MORRIS AVENUE AND 22D STREET.—

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

ENGINES, BOILERS, SAW MILLS, CORN MILLS, SHINGLE MACHINES, CORN MILLS, SUGAR MILLS,

COTTON GINS, COTTON PRESSES. PULLEYS, SHAFTING, BELTING, and MACHINISTS' SUPPLIES.

Largest Stock in the State.

Write for Circulars and Prices. P. O. Box 808. [July6]

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE.

☞ CURES—Diphtheria, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Bleeding at the Lungs, Hoarseness, Influenza, Hacking Cough, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Chronic Diarrhoea, Kidney Troubles, and Spinal Diseases. Pamphlet free. Dr. I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass.

PARSONS' MAKE NEW, RICH BLOOD. PILLS

These pills were a wonderful discovery. No others like them in the world. Will positively cure or relieve all manner of disease. The information around each box is worth ten times the cost of a box of pills. Find out about them and you will always be thankful. One pill a dose. Illustrated pamphlet free. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25c. in stamps. Dr. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., 22 C. H. St., Boston.

Sheridan's Condition Powder is absolutely pure and highly concentrated. One ounce is worth a pound of any other kind. It is strictly a medicine to be given with food.

MAKE HENS LAY

Nothing on earth will make hens lay like it. It cures chicken cholera and all diseases of hens. Is worth its weight in gold. Illustrated book by mail free. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. [illegible]

TROY STEAM LAUNDRY,

Nos. 17 & 19 N. Lawrence Street,

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

P. O. BOX 282.

☞ Orders by mail are solicited and will receive prompt attention.

J. W. GUE, Proprietor.

BRICK WORK

J. M. DAWSON,

CLANTON, ALA.

Is prepared to do all kinds of brick work in the best style. The patronage of the public solicited.

feb15-tf

STOP AT

Morris Avenue Hotel,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Corner Morris Avenue and 20th Street

ELYTON LAND CO. BUILDING.

HUGH KIRKMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Splendid rooms, well ventilated and elegantly furnished. Rates reasonable.

Clanton Barber Shop

—BY—

MEREDITH CANN,

Who is prepared to do all work in the tonsorial line. Hair dressing and shaving in the best style. Prices low.

BANDMAN & CO.,

Wholesale Grocers,

P. O BOX 251,

1st Avenue, bet. 18th and 19th Streets,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

jan 13 6m

TRESSLAR,

Artistic Photographer

10 COURT SQUARE,

Montgomery.

Life Size Photographs a Specialty.

Photographs, on Silk, Satin and Linen; Photographs on watch dials, Enameled Photographs.

All Sittings made Instantaneously. Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged.

☞ Correspondence solicited. ☜

[jan21-tf]

A. W. KEY & CO.,

Manufacturers' State Agents for

Engines, Saw Mills,

BOILERS,

—AND—

General Machinery.

P. O. Box 741,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Nabers & Morrow,

Wholesale Druggists,

FIRST AVENUE,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

MEDICINES,

Fine Wines, Liquors,

Oils, Etc.

☞ Agents for Chess Carley & Co.'s Oils. [June 10]

J. M. Hutchason's

BOARDING, LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLES.

Select Dray and Plantation Mules constantly on hand.

Draying and Hauling Promptly Attended to

Always ready to take Contracts for filling in Dirt

Moving Stone, Engines, Boilers, Machinery and other heavy hauling.

RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS AND DAMAGE.

Satisfaction Guaranteed. Handsome Carriages and Double Teams, with or without Drivers.

☞ MONTGOMERY STABLES, ☜

Lawrence Street, Opp. P. O.,

Telephone 446. jan1y

Clanton Academy.

:o:

CLANTON, CHILTON CO., ALA.

:o:

The course of instruction is divided into three departments, Primary, Junior and High School.

RATES OF TUITION:

Primary Department..........$1.50
Junior " 2.50
High School " 3.50

Tuition payable monthly IN ADVANCE.

Public examinations of the pupils of the school will be held at the close of each session, but exhibitions will not be had at any time.

Board can be obtained by pupils of the school in private families in Clanton at very moderate rates.

For further information address

R. E. R. HICKS,
feb10 Principal.

Catarrh cured, health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal Injector free. For sale by Mr J. Grant.

AGRICULTURAL.

TOPICS OF INTEREST RELATIVE TO FARM AND GARDEN.

Experimental Pig-Feeding.

Experiments in feeding swine at the Ohio Experiment Station were undertaken to solve the following points: 1. To produce flesh at least expense; 2, to produce flesh most rapidly, expense not being considered; 3, to produce most edible meat, time and expense not to be considered. The record shows that early in March eight pigs were selected and penned as follows: Pen 1, two Berkshire and one Poland-China; Pen 2, two Poland-China and one Berkshire; Pen 3, two Berkshires. The food consisted of the following: Pen 1 (cheap food), corn meal cooked with twice its weight of skimmed milk, giving a nutritive ratio of 1:15; Pen 2 (rapid fattening), pea-meal cooked with twice its weight of skimmed milk, giving a nutritive ratio of 1:3.6; Pen 3 (for lean meat), equal parts corn-meal and pea-meal cooked with an equal weight of whole milk, giving a nutritive of 1:3.6.

The director of the station states the continuance and the outcome of the experiments to have been that, in the ninety-two days of feeding those in Pen 1 gained 448 3-4 pounds; in Pen 2, 435 1-2 pounds; in Pen 3, 384 1-2 pounds. Those fed upon corn-meal and skimmed milk gained in flesh the most steadily. By dividing the experiment into two sections of forty-two days each (for convenience in calculation, leaving out the eight days in the middle), it was found that much the larger part of flesh was laid on during the first half of the trial.

The outcome and conclusion arrived at are stated below:

The cost of food to produce one pound of flesh in cents was:

	Pen 1.	Pen 2.	Pen 3.
First forty-two days......	3.93	5.65	13.83
Last forty-two days........	6.45	9.18	15.66

At the average price per pound paid for swine for slaughtering, it is seen that during the early part of the trial, and with the first ration only, was the feeding profitable. The second ration produced flesh but little more rapidly, and, taking the whole trial, produced less than did the first ration, although the former was designed for that purpose. Whether the object sought by the third ration was accomplished could not be told without slaughtering the animals. For this purpose the pigs were all slaughtered at the close of the experiment, and the parts weighed separately, and, with the carcass of one pig from each pen, the lean meat and fat were separated to determine the per cent. of each. In the following table are shown the per cent. of lean meat in ham, shoulder, and side:

	Hams.	Shoulders.	Sides.	The 3 Parts.
Pen 1...63.9	67.4	34.1		55.13
Pen 2...61.8	61.9	29.0		50.90
Pen 3...57.1	50.5	25.9		44.17

The corn-meal and skimmed milk was found more valuable for the production of lean meat than the ration selected specially for this purpose. Not only did it cost less to produce it, but a larger quantity was produced in a given time. In this experiment the corn meal and skimmed milk proved the best ration for all the purposes for which the experiment was undertaken.

Farm and Garden Notes.

Kerosene will kill lice on cattle.

Prevent over crowding sheep, both in pens and at the feed-racks.

A good grooming is as refreshing to a horse as a bath is to a man.

Geese are great grazers and will eat almost as much grass as a cow.

Pie-plant is a delicious and healthful product, and may be readily raised in every garden.

Clover fed green, in connection with skimmed milk, makes a rapid growth of pigs at small cost.

A mixture of rosin and lard, one to two, melted together, will prevent tools from rusting if rubbed on.

Manure scattered along the rows, soon as the ground freezes, will eventually work much good to raspberries.

An angry butter-eater says: "More butter is ruined by bad cellars and caves than from any other cause on the farm."

The Poultry Keeper says a few drops of camphor and water down the throat is a sure cure for the gapes in chick or hen.

An oblong figure is the best shape for a large garden, because such a piece of land may be more easily worked with a horse.

At this season, when you are feeding corn to hogs, remember that the more comfortable the hogs are housed the less corn will be required.

If onions are frozen in winter, keep them from thawing until spring, if possible. A dry onion contains at least eighty per cent. of water.

Throw your soapsuds on the manure heap, and prevent firefanging and the escape of volatile matter and hasten chemical changes and decomposition.

It is well stated that whether prices be up or down, prime mutton sheep are always salable, and at good prices. The markets are never supplied with choice mutton.

Spinach is easily grown and very reliable. It might have been sown last fall and lightly mulched; but it may now be sown in the spring so soon as the ground is fit.

Fattening hogs can be fed too much, as well as not enough. Feed regularly and give no more than they will eat readily. Be sure to give them pure, fresh water.

A writer in Rural New Yorker says: No machine can be made to cut so carefully that all grain may be saved. The hens find this waste grain much easier than a man can.

A gardener says the very best mulch for tender garden plants is forest leaves: besides, they are worth all the cost of gathering and drawing for their beneficial action on the soil.

The most economical food for carp is grain, corn, rye or poor wheat. Throw the grain into the water and it will soon become soft. Carp need to be fed in winter if they are expected to grow.

A butcher says, when the flesh on a leg of mutton shrinks back in cooking, letting the end of the bone stick out, it is a sure sign that the animal was not properly fed. Shrinking meat is too full of water.

Make bins in the barn, and pack root crops in dry earth or sand. Endeavor to avoid all the moisture possible. If your barn is not well sheltered, storing root crops in mounds is the next best way, but inconvenient when the ground is frozen.

The more open and porous the soil, the more freely air can penetrate it and reach manure buried in it, the sooner will the latter decompose and become available. Hence, quicker results may be expected from using unfermented manure on light sandy lands than on close clay lands.

Sheep in winter need but little care. Good hay and a few roots each day, keeping them dry and giving them the run of the field, is about all they need. At night they should be well housed, always kept as dry as possible. Their wool will hold a heavy weight of snow or water. Sheep also need good drinking water.

In the absence of meat, potatoes boiled in milk, where there is plenty of the latter, is an admirable preparation for feeding to young, growing chicks. A mixture of one-third corn meal and wheat bran with the above will make the young chicks grow wonderfully if given fresh every day. The best feed for setting hens is plenty of good, sound whole corn. They should have plenty of fresh water to drink.

One of the most important values of fertilizers is their action on quick-growing crops. Strawberries, for example, must gather most of their food in a few weeks, and in that time must have it in superabundance in most available form. Grass, on the other hand, takes as many months to perfect its growth, and plenty of time to gather its food, which is about the same for one-half a ton of timothy as for five thousand quarts of strawberries.

The gilt-edge butter of the future will not be washed at all, says the American Cultivator. The fine aromatic odors and the nutty flavor will be retained, and not washed away in streams of water. Water injures butter. A cloth wrung out in ice water, or even in fresh water, and then spread over a layer of butter will destroy its color and take out the good qualities from the surface layer. Ice water is more damaging in its effects than fresh water of natural temperature.

Weavers in Olden Times.

It is sometimes well to take a look back and see what our forefathers used to do in our line of business, says Fiber and Fabric. Before the advent of the narrow loom and fancy cassimeres all goods were woven on the old broad hand-loom, which was an immense institution, and usually owned by the weaver and set up in one of his chambers. It was always accompanied by the old "bobbin-wheel" and a large bowl or tub of water in which to wet the filling; the wheel being used to throw out the surplus water, which left each bobbin of filling equally charged with moisture. The bobbins were stacked up in the window until used, sometimes kept covered with a cloth. From fifty to 100 bobbins were wet at a time. Only one shuttle was used, and that a very heavy one, with two large double wheels underneath and two single wheels on the side that ran against the reed. These wheels used to destroy the reed in time, as the under wheels did the race-board. There was no box motion then. A piece of strong twine was fastened to each picker and brought to the centre of the loom and fastened to a handle which the weaver held in his right hand, and with which the shuttle was thrown with great precision while he worked the lay with his left hand and the treadles with his feet. The seat was a two-legged affair fastened to the window-sill, the seat part being at an angle of about forty-five degrees. It could hardly be called a seat, as the weaver stood up while sitting down, as it were. The yarn was let off from the beam by hand, and the cloth taken up in the same way, the arrangement being very crude indeed, but very effective, made so by the skill of the weaver. The cloth was usually woven in the loom eleven or thirteen quarters wide, and, as might be expected, it came from the loom very thin, but felt like a woolen board when full, in which state it was generally sold by the small manufacturer, the purchaser sending it to the finishing mill.

Besides the single looms in the homes of the weaver there were what were termed "shops," where a large number of looms were run, usually owned by one man, single looms being rented at times. As there was no power there was no bell and no steam heat, the shops being warmed by the crudest kind of stoves. When the short days of the year came, and it was time to light up, they usually had what was called "a lighting-up supper," and in the spring a "blowing out" supper. Lighting was done with oil in the crudest kind of a lamp, which was made by any tinsmith. The amount of smoke made was fearful. The lamps were open, no glass in any form being used. Coal oil had not been discovered, and lard oil was not then an article of commerce. The weavers were generally a very happy set of men, full of jest, song, and story, and the original wit of some of those men has made the fortune of later imitators.

A Diplomat's Experience.

Soon after General Pierce was elected President he visited Boston and received a visit from his old friend Nathaniel Hawthorne, to whom he said: "What can I do for you, Nat?" "I have long wished to see you," replied Hawthorne, "and I have hoped that you would be able to appoint me to a foreign mission." "No, no," replied Pierce. "Let me tell you a little story: Soon after General Taylor was elected President, Jenifer went to him and asked him for a foreign mission, saying that he could live on his outfit and save up his salary. The President appointed him. He went to Vienna, lived snugly on his outfit and saved up his salary and was happy in the realization of his plans. On the eve of his departure he called on the Countess d'Esterhazy, who was mistress of ceremonies at court, and explained to her that his social position as a bachelor prevented him from reciprocating the attentions which he had received. The Countess listened to him graciously, and then said that it would not do for him to go away without giving an entertainment. This she offered to arrange, and told him all he would have to do would be to pay the bills. The entertainment was a magnificent one and the bills amounted to upward of $8,000. So Jenifer came home penniless and had to take a subordinate clerkship in the Treasury Department. Now," continued the President-elect, "I do not propose to send you where you will have a repetition of Jenifer's case, but I will give you the consulate at Liverpool, where you will be able to save a little money." The Liverpool consulate was accordingly given to Hawthorne, and he was enabled to save a considerable sum while he held it.

Two Remarkable Families.

A girl working in one of the Biddeford mills is the thirty-second child of the same father and mother, and 23 of her brothers and sisters still live, and write to her every week. She receives more letters than any woman in Biddeford. —Biddeford (Me.) Journal.

Mr. J. M. Lovelace's infant daughter is his twentieth child. She is a very promising young lady, and on her birthday Mr. Lovelace made the resolution that he would never from that time buy anything, however small, except for cash. He has fourteen children living.—Lome (Ga.) Bulletin.

Locomotives now run in Jerusalem, and the shrill steam whistle is heard in the streets once trod by King David.

Like it Vhas in Shermany.

BY CARL DUNDER.

Der gravestone vhas a newspaper dot nobody eafer sues for libel. It neafer gifs anybody avhay.

It vhas saidt dot we all live too fast, but we all know some men who vhas too shlow aboudt dying.

If I vhas a tramp I should preach dot charity vhas a crowning virtue. Der more charity der less I haf to work.

I lose more as one hundred friends in ten years by refusing to lend money mitout security. Der man who likes to beat you vhas werry sensitive aboudt his commercial honesty.

Der shmell of sewer gas in a house vhas looked after a great deal closer dan der morals of der shildren.

We doan' like to hurt our neighbors' feelings, but if we hear some gossip aboudt em we somehow manage to let em know it.

Der man who complains all der time dat der world won't gif him a shance takes pretty good care not to work oafer three days in der week.

More men labor mit me to shange my wote dan to save my soul. Der woter who vhas deadt vhas no good to political parties.

Shurch members should took notis dot der peoples shudge of a man's religion by der vhay he trades horses und pays his debts.

It vhas shust as easy as rolling off a log to say how our neighbors should do und it vhas shust as easy to explain how we came to be perfect.

Der Golden Rule vhas all right vhen you read him in a book, but vhen you put him in practice on der shtreet you vhas run in by a policeman as a crank.

If dere vhas no wood-piles or buck-saws or axes in dis worldt den it vhas right dot der worldt owes somebody a living while he sits on der fence.

It vhas good to shpeak der truth always, but der man who sets out to practice it vhas sooch a fool dot he goes to der asylum. A mixtur of Truth und Falsehood cures most of der ills of life.

Der man who makes der greatest show of obeying the law has der least cause to break it.

I doan' like der man who vhas too much my frendt. He finds out my badt points, und doan' like me any more.

The Prose of Cow Punching.

Time was, and not so very long ago either, when the cowboys received their pay after the round-up they felt in duty bound to go to Miles City and blow it in at the gambling dens, saloons, and other disreputable places. Cow punching is at best a very tough business, and full of risks to the life and limb, and pay is small and by no means adequate, and after the round-up there follows a long period of enforced idleness, during which they are given food and lodging only by the ranch owner. The average cowboy was wont to turn up after his semi-annual spree with a very large head and not a cent in his pocket. Of late, however, the boys have taken a tumble to themselves and are saving their money. So common has the economical spirit become among them that Miles City has seen this year its quietest season.

Most of the cowboys looked upon their coming to Montana to herd cattle as the mistake of their lives. The glowing stories of thrilling adventure and sudden wealth of the cowboys' life which are common in the East are in most cases responsible for their entering the field, but the reality is quite a different matter. Many of the economical ones have been enabled by their savings to return to their Eastern homes.

People who have not been through the bad lands have but a faint conception of the utter desolation and worthlessness of a cowboy's home. He is roasted in summer and frozen in winter. The lands can never be used for anything but grazing, and the distances are therefore something immense. One peculiarity of the country makes rapid riding a very difficult, not to say dangerous, undertaking. The earth is so fraiable that a tiny watercourse will speedily cut for itself a deep gully, or "coolie," as it is called, the depth of which when filled with snow is entirely problematical. A horseman who rides with a cowboy's recklessness may suddenly find himself at the bottom of a six or eight foot coolie, with his horse on top of him, and no way to get out—if he happens to be still alive—save tunnelling up to the head of the stream through the snow. Then one of your broncho's feet is as likely as not to sink suddenly two feet down into a coyote's hole when he is going at a furious pace. Result: His leg snaps off like a pipe stem and you are shot through the air to a point far beyond, and picked up more dead than alive. The water is generally bitter with alkali, and scorches your throat as you swallow it; there is little to eat, and that is hard to get.

A FARMER near Quincy, Ill, says while feeding his chickens one morning four wild geese came flying toward his barnyard, and after circling above him several times lit among the fowls. He caught one of them, whereupon the others attacked him viciously, but he managed to secure a second one, and to drive off the other two.

March, 1886, Rev. L. N. St. Onge, P. P. Indian Missionary, Glen Falls, N. Y., wrote: "A single application of St. Jacobs Oil relieved me of rheumatism." October 29, 1886, he writes again: "It cured me then."

The scene of Rose Elizabeth Cleveland's new romance is laid at Holland Patent, the old home of the Cleveland family, and the public are promised a very pastoral love story full of the author's poetic descriptions of nature in her varying moods.

A leading physician has made the startling revelation that six thousand people, mostly children, die yearly in this country from the effects of cough mixtures containing morphia or opium. Red Star Cough Cure contains neither opiates nor poisons; purely vegetable.

The Spaniards claim Patti as theirs because she was born in Madrid. Her youth having been passed in New York, she is an American—so we declare. Now the Mexicans contend that she is "a Mexican type, a daughter of the country of flowers."

Human Calves.

An exchange says: "Nine-tenths of the unhappy marriages result from human calves being allowed to run at large in society pastures." Nine-tenths of the chronic or lingering diseases of to-day originate in impure blood, liver complaint or biliousness, resulting in scrofula, consumption (which is but scrofula of the lungs), sores, ulcers, skin diseases and kindred affections. Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" cures all these. Of Druggists.

Strong salt water will stay the colors of prints or any wash goods.

Wants the Facts Known.

Mr. Editor: I and my neighbors have been led so many times into buying different things for liver, kidneys and blood, that have done us more harm than good, I feel it due your readers to advise them when an honest and good medicine like Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic can be had. Yours truly, AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

If you have Cutting, Scalding or Stinging sensations in the parts when voiding urine Swamp-Root will quickly relieve and cure.

Bronchitis is cured by frequent small doses of Piso's Cure for Consumption.

MARVELOUS CHANGES.

What the Future Will Be to Those who Refuse to Believe.

In this country unconsciously undergoing a wonderful change, is the change to take place before we are aware of the fact, and when it has taken place will we wonder why we did not see it before it was too late!

Those that see the changes early avail themselves early, and thereby receive benefit.

The shrewd iron man sees the iron interest transferred from Pittsburg and Pennsylvania to Birmingham, Alabama, and in his far-sightedness sees the furnaces in Pennsylvania torn down and deserted for this new and prolific field. It is claimed by the iron men of Alabama that the low price at which iron can be produced there will revolutionize the iron interests of the world.

We have seen the grain-growing centres of this country shifted to the West. We have seen the pork-packing industry flit from Cincinnati to Chicago, and from thence to Kansas City and Omaha. Southern cotton mills undersell New England and American markets, and challenge the world.

We have seen and are seeing all this take place before our eyes, and know that other changes are taking place equally as prominent, and we wonder as we behold them. Ten years ago the insurance companies only required an analysis of the fluids when they were taking insurance for very large amounts. To-day no first-class company will insure any amount unless they have a rigid analysis of the fluids passed, and if any traces of certain disorders are apparent, the application is rejected. In their reports they show that the death of sixty of every 100 people in this country, is due either directly or indirectly to such disorders. The Brompton Hospital for Consumptives, London, England, reports that sixty of every 100 victims of consumption also have serious disorders of the kidneys.

Among scientists for the treatment of this dread malady the question is being discussed:

"Is not this disorder the real cause of consumption?"

Ten years ago the microscope was something seldom found in a physician's office; now every physician of standing has one and seldom visits his patients without calling for a sample of fluids for examination.

Why is all this! Is it possible that we of the present generation are to die of diseases caused by kidney disorders! or shall we master the cause by Warner's safe cure, the only recognized specific, and thus remove the effects! It is established beyond a doubt that a very large percentage of deaths in this country is traceable to diseased kidneys. For years the proprietors of Warner's safe cure have been insisting that there is no sound health when the kidneys are diseased, and they enthusiastically press their specific for this terrible disorder upon public attention. We are continually hearing its praises sounded.

This means wonders!

Cannot the proprietors of this great remedy, who have been warning us of the danger, tell us how to avoid a disease that at first is so unimportant, and is so fatal in its termination! Are we to hope against hope, and wait without our reward?

The most significant of all changes, however, that we of to-day can note is this radical change of view to which the public has been educated: It was formerly thought that the kidneys were of very small importance; to-day, we believe, it is generally admitted that there can be no such thing as sound health in any organ if they are in the least degree deranged.

States With Popular Names.

Arkansas—Bear State.
California—Golden State.
Connecticut—Nutmeg State.
Delaware—Diamond State.
Florida—Peninsular State.
Georgia—State of Watermelons.
Illinois—Prairie State.
Indiana—Hoosier State.
Iowa—Hawkeye State.
Kansas—Garden of the West.
Kentucky—The Corn Cracker.
Louisiana—Creole State.
Maine—Pine-tree State.
Massachusetts—Bay State.
Michigan—Wolverine State.
Minnesota—Lumber State.
Mississippi—Bayou State.
Missouri—State of Muddy Waters.
New Hampshire—Granite State.
New Jersey—Sweet Potato State.
New York—Empire State.
North Carolina—Turpentine State.
Ohio—Buckeye State.
Pennsylvania—Keystone State.
Rhode Island—Little Rhody.
South Carolina—Palmetto State.
Texas—Lone Star State.
Vermont—Green Mountain State.
Virginia—Mother of States.
West Virginia—The Panhandle.
Wisconsin—Badger State.

'Yes, Nellie, dear, I am going to the Montreal carnival. I don't care a bit for snowshoes, toboggans, and all that sort of thing, don't yer know? But that horrid old company is going to look over Charley's books, and the dear boy says we must go. Companies are so mean!"

How Women Differ from Men.

At least three men on the average jury are bound to disagree with the rest just to show that they have minds of their own: but there is no disagreement among the women as to the merits of Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription." They are all unanimous in pronouncing it the best remedy in the world for all those chronic diseases, weaknesses and complaints peculiar to their sex. It transforms the pale, haggard, dispirited woman, into one of sparkling health, and the ringing laugh again "reigns supreme" in the happy household.

A few drops of ammonia in tepid water cleanses brushes quickly.

Chronic Coughs and Colds,

And all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, can be cured by the use of SCOTT'S EMULSION, as it contains the healing virtues of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites in their fullest form. Is a beautiful creamy Emulsion, palatable as milk, easily digested, and can be taken by the most delicate. Please read: "I consider Scott's Emulsion the remedy par excellence in Tuberculous and Strumous Affections, to say nothing of ordinary colds and throat troubles." —W. R. S. CONNELL, M. D., Manchester, O.

Copperas dissolved in water will kill ordinary sewer gas odors.

You Can't Read This

without wishing to investigate, if you are wise. Send your address to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, and you will receive free, full information about work that you can do, and live at home, wherever you are located, at which you can receive from $5 to $25 and upwards daily. Some have earned over $50 in a day. Capital not required; you are started free. All is new. Both sexes; all ages. Snug little fortunes await all workers.

SAFE, permanent and complete are the cures of bilious and intermittent diseases, made by Prickly Ash Bitters. Dyspepsia, general debility, habitual constipation, liver and kidney complaints are speedily eradicated from the system. It disinfects, cleanses and eliminates all malaria. Health and vigor are obtained more rapidly and permanently by the use of this great natural antidote than by any other remedy heretofore known. As a blood purifier and tonic it brings health, renewed energy and vitality to a worn and diseased body.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.

Send for Pamphlet on Female Diseases, free, securely sealed. Dr. J. B. Marchisi, Utica, N.Y.

If afflicted with sore eyes use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye-water. Druggists sell at 25c per bottle.

GOBBLER VERSUS COCK.

What Happened to a Fighting Cock That Tackled a Gobbler.

"I had a game chicken once," said another of the gossipers, "that I thought was invincible. He whipped out everything on the plantation, and then wanted to tackle the yard dog. I was very proud of him. Finally, one day a stray turkey gobbler came on the premises and took up his abode there. For a day or two there was no war. My rooster, it is true, followed the gobbler around and picked up gravel in front of him, and once or twice made a point of jumping him, but the gobbler seemed determined to attend to his own business. About the third morning, however, I heard a peculiar noise in the yard. I heard the queer 'prut-prut-prut' of the gobbler, and then something that sounded like a scuffle. I raised a window and found that the game chicken and the gobbler were engaged in war. I wanted to go out and keep the rooster from killing the gobbler; nevertheless I was interested in watching the result, never doubting what it would be. The rooster was full of fight and made frequent assaults on the gobbler. The latter was walking around in a circle, uttering his peculiar cry, and I noticed that every time the rooster flew at him he merely dropped one of his wings, receiving the attack on that. This continued for some time, until finally the gobbler darted forward, seized the rooster by the back of the neck and proceeded to lead him around in a circle. The gobbler widened the circle until he brought the rooster in contact with the fence. This was apparently the point at which the gobbler had been aiming, for he had no sooner reached it than he proceeded to jam my rooster's head against the pickets, and before I could interfere my game chicken was dead." —Atlanta Constitution.

The Western Settler's Chosen Specific.

With every advance of emigration into the far West, a new demand is created for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Newly peopled regions are frequently less salubrious than older settled localities, on account of the miasma which rises from recently cleared land, particularly along the banks of rivers that are subject to freshets. The agricultural or mining emigrant soon learns, when he does not already know, that the Bitters afford the only sure protection against malaria, and those disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, to which climate changes, exposure, and unaccustomed or unhealthy water or diet subject him. Consequently, he places an estimate upon this great household specific and preventive commensurate with its intrinsic merits, and is careful to keep on hand a restorative and promoter of health so implicitly to be relied upon in time of need.

A heated knife will cut fresh bread without making it soggy.

Sick and bilious headache, and all derangements of stomach and bowels, cured by Dr. Pierce's "Pellets"—or anti-bilious granules. 25 cents a vial. No cheap boxes to allow waste of virtues. By druggists.

Tar suds are best to use for washing bedsteads in the spring cleaning.

ELY'S CREAM BALM IS WORTH $1000 TO ANY MAN Woman or Child suffering from CATARRH. Not a Liquid or Snuff.
CATARRH ELY'S CREAM BALM CURES COLD IN HEAD CATARRH ROSE-COLD HAY-FEVER DEAFNESS HEADACHE ELY BRO'S OWEGO N.Y. U.S.A. HAY-FEVER
A particle is applied into each nostril and is agreeable. Price 50 cents at Druggists; by mail, registered, 60 cts. Circulars free. ELY BROS., Druggists, Owego, N.Y.

Blair's Pills. Great English Gout and Rheumatic Remedy.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS
IT IS A PURELY VEGETABLE PREPARATION CONTAINING PRICKLY ASH BARK AND PRICKLY ASH BERRIES SENNA-MANDRAKE-BUCHU AND OTHER EQUALLY EFFICIENT REMEDIES. It has stood the Test of Years, in Curing all Diseases of the BLOOD, LIVER, STOMACH, KIDNEYS, BOWELS, &c. It Purifies the Blood, Invigorates and Cleanses the System.
DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, JAUNDICE, SICKHEADACHE, BILIOUS COMPLAINTS, &c disappear at once under its beneficial influence.
It is purely a Medicine as its cathartic properties forbids its use as a beverage. It is pleasant to the taste, and as easily taken by children as adults.
PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CURES ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER KIDNEYS STOMACH AND BOWELS. FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS. PRICE 1 DOLLAR
PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CO. Sole Proprietors, ST. LOUIS and KANSAS CITY

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER
Highest Awards of Medals in Europe and America.
The neatest, quickest, safest and most powerful remedy known for Rheumatism, Pleurisy, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Backache, Weakness, cold in the chest and all aches and pains. Endorsed by 5,000 Physicians and Druggists of the highest repute. Benson's Plasters promptly relieve and cure where other plasters and greasy salves, liniments and lotions, are absolutely useless. Beware of imitations under similar sounding names, such as "Capsicum," "Capsicin," "Capsicine," as they are utterly worthless and intended to deceive. ASK FOR BENSON'S AND TAKE NO OTHERS. All druggists.
SEABURY & JOHNSON, Proprietors, New York.

DR. KILMER'S SWAMP ROOT KIDNEY LIVER & BLADDER CURE. Price 25¢, $1.00 6 for $5.00
"Jones! What are you talking about?" What every body talks about. They say that for Brights' Disease, Kidney, Liver or Bladder complaints, this remedy has no equal."
It goes right to the Spot. Prepared at Dr. Kilmer's DISPENSARY, Binghamton, N.Y. Letters of inquiry answered. Guide to Health (Sent Free).

WHETHER YOU WANT A PIANO OR ORGAN
It will pay you to write to
PHILLIPS & CREW,
ATLANTA, GA.,
For Catalogue (free) and Prices. Mention this paper.

OPIUM AND MORPHINE HABIT Quickly and Permanently cured by DR. TANNER'S OPIUM AND MORPHINE CURE. For sale by all Druggists.
$1.00 Per Bottle.
For Circulars and information address BENJAMIN & CRONHEIM, 101 Whitehall Street, or P. O. Box 108, ATLANTA, GA.

PILES! DR. WILLIAMS' Indian Pile Ointment will cure any case of Itching, Bleeding, Ulcerated or Protruding Piles. CURE GUARANTEED. Prepared for Piles only. (Physicians' jars by express, prepaid, $2.50.) Price per box, 50c. and $1. Sold by druggists or mailed on receipt of price by LAMAR, RANKIN & LAMAR, Agents, Atlanta, Ga.

OPIUM and WHISKEY HABITS cured at home without pain. Book of particulars sent FREE. B. M. Woolley, M. D., Atlanta, Ga. Office 65½ Whitehall Street. Mention this paper.

BUSINESS Education a specialty at MOORE'S BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, Ga. One of the best schools in the Country. Send for Circulars.

LADY AGENTS WANTED to sell our Common-sense Bustle and Combination Skirt Bustle and Supporter. Send $1.00 for samples and agency. Address, with stamp, H. A. French & Co., Atlanta, Ga.

TAPEWORM CURE Illustrated Book sent FREE. [illegible] Box 455, Atlanta, Ga.

Young Men [illegible]

$15.00 [illegible]

"This is all right,
'Hood's Sarsaparilla,' Can't Fool me Twice."

Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine. In very many respects it is so different from any and all other medicines ever offered to the public that it is with peculiar force and propriety that it may be said to be PECULIAR TO ITSELF. It is peculiar to itself, in a strictly medicinal sense, in three important particulars, viz.: first, in the combination of remedial agents used; second, in the proportion in which they are mixed; third, in the process by which the active curative properties of the preparation are secured.

These three important points make Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar in the wonderful cures it has accomplished, wholly unprecedented in the history of medicine, and giving to Hood's Sarsaparilla a clear right to the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered."

Peculiar to Itself

Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar in the phenomenal record of the sales it has attained, never equaled by any other preparation in so short a time. Older medicines have been forced to stand aside when real medicinal merit was considered, and to-day Hood's Sarsaparilla stands the leading medicine of its kind in the country. It is peculiar in its strength and economy—100 doses one dollar. It is a concentrated extract from Sarsaparilla, Dock, Juniper Berries, Mandrake, Dandelion, and other valuable vegetable remedies, and is much stronger than any similar preparation upon the market. Hence, much smaller doses of Hood's Sarsaparilla are necessary than is the case with other medicines. A dollar bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla contains an average of more than 100 doses, and will last a month, while others will average to last not over a week. Hence on the simple question of economy Hood's Sarsaparilla is given a decided preference. If you have never tried this medicine, do so this season.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.
100 Doses One Dollar

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.
100 Doses One Dollar

"25 Years in the Poultry Yard"
33d Edition. 108 pages. How to prevent HOG and POULTRY CHOLERA, GAPES and ROUP. I wrote it as a system of practical HOG and POULTRY keeping. Symptoms and remedies for all diseases. How to feed for Eggs. 25c. in stamps. A copy of "The Cove Dale Poultry Yard," containing illus. Catalogue and Price List of 30 varieties FREE.
A. M. LANG, Box 846, Cincinnati, O.

HARTER'S THE ONLY TRUE IRON TONIC
Will purify the BLOOD, regulate the LIVER and KIDNEYS and RESTORE the HEALTH and VIGOR of YOUTH. Dyspepsia, Want of Appetite, Indigestion, Lack of Strength and Tired Feeling absolutely cured: Bones, muscles and nerves receive new force. Enlivens the mind and supplies Brain Power.
LADIES Suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex will find in DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC a safe and speedy cure. Gives a clear, healthy complexion. Frequent attempts at counterfeiting only add to the popularity of the original. Do not experiment—get the ORIGINAL AND BEST.
Dr. HARTER'S LIVER PILLS Cure Constipation, Liver Complaint and Sick Headache. Sample Dose and Dream Book mailed on receipt of two cents in postage.
THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE COMPANY, St. Louis, Mo.

MONEY FOR THE HONEST! In amounts of $50 to $500, on One to Ten years time. Our new plan—available to all, burdensome to none. State amount you can safely use, also age and occupation. The System in Full, with Forms, etc., Free, on receipt of stamp. No postals answered.
I. BUTLER, Sec'y, Bradford Block, Cor. Sixth & Vine, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

ATLANTA SAW WORKS. Manufacturers of and Dealers in Saws and Saw-Mill Supplies. Repairing a Specialty. Agents for L. Power & Company's Wood Working Machinery. Large and complete stock. Write for catalogue. ATLANTA, GA.

J. P. STEVENS & BRO., JEWELERS. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Catalogue.

T. F. SEITZINGER
33 W. Mitchell St., near Broad, ATLANTA, GA. Manufacturer Gutta-Percha Roller Composition. Rollers cast every day. Printers and Publishers will find it to their advantage to send their orders direct to me. Send for Circulars and Price-List.

293 COLUMBUS Combined MANURE SPREADERS & FARM WAGONS sold the first year. The cheapest Spreader out and the only kind that can be attached to old wagons. All are warranted. Prices mailed free. Newark Machine Co., Columbus, Ohio. Eastern Branch House, Hagerstown, Maryland.

ARKANSAS MILD CLIMATE! Good Lands! Variety of PRODUCTS! LOW PRICES! EASY TERMS! MAPS AND CIRCULARS FREE. THOS. ESSEX, Land Com'r, Little Rock, Ark.

SHORTHAND Writing thoroughly taught by mail or personally. Situations procured all pupils when competent. Send for circular. W. C. CHAFFEE, Oswego, N. Y.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Address Brewster's Safety Rein Holder, Holly, Mich.

Pensions to Soldiers & Heirs. Send stamp for circulars. COL. L. BING-HAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 25 CTS.

HAINESVILLE, N. J.,
October 15, 1886.

E. T. HAZELTINE,
Warren, Pa.

Dear Sir:

I was taken with a very severe cold last Spring, and tried every cure we had in the store, and could get no help.

I had our village doctor prescribe for me, but kept getting worse. I saw another physician from Port Jervis, N. Y., and he told me he used Piso's Cure for Consumption in his practice.

I bought a bottle, and before I had taken all of it there was a change for the better. Then I got my employer to order a quantity of the medicine and keep it in stock. I took one more bottle, and my Cough was cured.

Respectfully,
FRANK MCKELVY.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 25 CTS.

Ask your retailer for the James Means' $3 Shoe. Caution! Some dealers recommend inferior goods in order to make a larger profit. This is the original $3 Shoe. Beware of imitations which acknowledge their own inferiority by attempting to build upon the reputation of the original. None Genuine unless bearing this Stamp.
JAMES MEANS' $3 SHOE. For Gentlemen. Made in Button, Congress and Lace. Best Calf Skin. Unexcelled in Durability, Comfort & Appearance. A postal card sent to us will bring you information how to get this Shoe in any State or Territory.
J. Means & Co, 41 Lincoln St., Boston, Mass.
JAMES MEANS' $3 SHOE. BUTTON
Our celebrated factory produces a larger quantity of Shoes of this grade than any other factory in the world. Thousands who wear them will tell you the reason if you ask them. JAMES MEANS' $2 SHOE for Boys is unapproached in Durability.

SHOW CASES. WALL CASES.
DESKS, OFFICE FURNITURE AND FIXTURES. Ask for Illustrated Pamphlet. TERRY SHOW CASE CO., Nashville, Tenn.

$100 to $300 A MONTH can be made working for us. Agents preferred who can furnish their own horses and give their whole time to the business. Spare moments may be profitably employed also. A few vacancies in towns and cities. B. F. JOHNSON & CO., 1013 Main St., Richmond, Va.

MEXICAN WAR SURVIVORS or their Widows. New Pension Law. Apply at once for blanks and full information. Twenty years' experience. Best references. Success or no fee. R. McAllister, Jr., Attorney-at-Law, P. O. Box 62, Washington, D. C.

THURSTON'S IVORY PEARL TOOTH POWDER Keeping Teeth Perfect and Gums Healthy.

PATENTS Obtained. Send stamp for Inventors' Guide. L. Bingham, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

OPIUM Habit Cured. Treatment sent on trial. HUMANE REMEDY CO., LaFayette, Ind.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

TOWER'S FISH BRAND SLICKER Is The Best Waterproof Coat Ever Made. Don't waste your money on a gum or rubber coat. The FISH BRAND SLICKER [illegible]

Rates of Advertising.

One Dollar per Square, of one inch space or less, for the first, and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion.

Space.	3 m.	6 m.	12 m.
1 Inch	$ 5 00	$ 7 00	$ 11 25
2 Inches	7 00	11 [illegible]	16 00
3 Inches	10 00	16 00	22 00
4 Inches	13 00	20 00	27 00
5 Inches	15 00	22 50	35 00
¼ Column	18 00	27 00	40 00
½ Column	27 00	40 00	60 00
1 Column	40 00	60 00	100 00

The Chilton View.

W. H. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors.

"WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION."

TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, MARCH 31, 1887. NUMBER 21.

Special Advertising.

Business Notices Ten Cents per line each insertion.

Obituaries and Tributes of Respect, half rates.

Announcing candidates for office, Five Dollars, strictly in advance.

Communications recommending candidates for office will be headed as advertisements and charged for accordingly.

Liberal contracts made with those advertising by the year.

☞ The money is due on all advertising after the first publication.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Subject: "Stinging Annoyances."

TEXT: "The Lord thy God will send the hornet."—Deuteronomy vii., 20.

It seems as if the insect world were determined to war against the human race. It is every year attacking the grain fields and the orchards and the vineyards. The Colorado beetle, the Nebraska grasshopper, the New Jersey locust, the universal potato destroyer, seem to carry on the work which was begun ages ago when the insects buzzed out of Noah's ark as the door was opened.

In my text the hornet flies out on its mission. It is a species of wasp, swift in its motion and violent in its sting. Its touch is torture to man or beast. We have all seen the cattle run bellowing from the cut of its lancet. In boyhood we used to stand cautiously looking at the globular nest hung from the tree branch, and while we were looking at the wonderful paste-board covering we were struck with something that sent us shrieking away. The hornet goes in swarms. It has captains over hundreds, and twenty of them attacking one man will produce certain death. The Persians attempted to conquer a Christian city, but the elephants and the beasts on which the Persians rode were assaulted by the hornet, so that the whole army was broken up and the besieged city was rescued. This burning and noxious insect stung out the Hittites and Canaanites from their country. What the gleaming sword and chariot of war could not accomplish was done by the puncture of an insect. The Lord sent the hornet.

My friends, when we are assaulted by behemoths of trouble—great behemoths of trouble—we become chivalric, and we assault them; we get on the high-mettled steed of our courage, and make a cavalry charge at them, and, if God be with us, we come out stronger and better than when we went in. But, alas for these insectile annoyances of life—these foes too small to shoot—these things without any avoirdupois weight—the gnats, and the midges, and the flies, and the wasps, and the hornets! In other words, it is the small stinging annoyances of our life which drive us out and use us up. Into the best conditioned life, for some grand and glorious purpose, God sends the hornet.

I remark in the first place, that these small stinging annoyances may come in the shape of a sensitive nervous organization. People who are prostrated under typhoid fevers or with broken bones get plenty of sympathy, but who pities anybody that is nervous? The doctors say, and the family says, and everybody says: "Oh! she's only a little nervous; that's all." The sound of a heavy foot, the harsh clearing of a throat, a discord in music, a want of harmony between the shawl and the glove on the same person, a curt answer, a passing slight, the wind from the east, any one of ten thousand annoyances, opens the door for the hornet. The fact is, that the vast majority of the people in this country are overworked, and their nerves are the first to give out. A great multitude are under the strain of Leyden, who, when he was told by his physician that if he did not stop working while he was in such poor physical health he would die, responded: "Doctor, whether I live or die the wheel must keep going around." These persons of whom I speak have a bleeding sensitiveness. The flies love to light on anything raw, and these people are like the Canaanites spoken of in the text or in the context—they have a very thin covering and are vulnerable at all points. And the Lord sent the hornet.

Again, these small insect annoyances may come to us in the shape of friends and acquaintances who are always saying disagreeable things. There are some people you cannot be with for half an hour but you feel cheered and comforted. Then there are other people you cannot be with for five minutes before you feel miserable. They do not mean to disturb you, but they sting you to the bone. They gather up all the yarn which the gossips spin, and peddle it. They gather up all the adverse criticisms about your person, about your business, about your home, about your church, and they make your ear the funnel into which they pour it. They laugh heartily when they tell you, as though it were a good joke, and you laugh too—outside. These people are brought to our attention in the Bible, in the Book of Ruth: Naomi went forth beautiful and with the finest of worldly prospects into another land, but after awhile she came back widowed, and sick, and poor. What did her friends do when she came back to the city? They all went out, and, instead of giving her common-sense consolation, what did they do? Read the book of Ruth and find out. They threw up their hands and said, "Is this Naomi?" as much as to say, "How very bad you look!" When I entered the Ministry I looked very pale for years, and every year, for four or five years, a hundred times a year, I was asked if I was not in a consumption. And passing through the room I would sometimes hear people sigh and cry: "A-ah! not long for this world!" I resolved in those times that I never, in any conversation, would say anything depressing, and by the help of God I have kept the resolution. These people of whom I speak reap and bind in the great harvest field of discouragement. Some days you greet them with a hilarious "good-morning," and they come buzzing at you with some depressing information. The Lord sent the hornet. It is astonishing how some people prefer to write and to say disagreeable things. That was the case when, years ago, Henry M. Stanley returned after his magnificent exploit of finding Doctor David Livingston, and when Mr. Stanley stood before the savants of Europe, and many of the small critics of the day, under pretense of getting geographical information, put to him most insolent questions, he folded his arms and refused to answer. At the very time when you would have supposed all decent men would have applauded the heroism of the man, there were those to hiss. The Lord sent the hornet. When that man sat down on the western coast of Africa, sick and worn, perhaps, in the grandest achievement of the age in the way of geographical discovery, there were small critics all over the world to buzz and buzz, and caricature and deride him; and when a few weeks after that he got the London papers, as he opened them, out flew the hornet. When I see that there are so many people in the world who like to say disagreeable things, and write disagreeable things, I come almost in my weaker moments to believe what a man said to me in Philadelphia one Monday morning. I went to get the horse that was at the livery, and the hostler, a plain man, said to me: "Mr. Talmage, I saw that you preached to the young men yesterday." I said: "Yes." He said: "No use, no use; man's a failure."

The small insect annoyances of life sometimes come in the shape of a local physical trouble, which does not amount to a positive prostration, but which bothers you when you want to feel the best. Perhaps it is a sick headache which has been the plague of your life, and you appoint some occasion of mirth, or sociality, or usefulness, and when the clock strikes the hour you cannot make your appearance. Perhaps the trouble is between the ear and the forehead, in the shape of a neuralgic twinge. Nobody can see it or sympathize with you; but just at the time when you want your intellect clearest, and your disposition brightest, you feel a sharp, keen, disconcerting thrust. The Lord sent the hornet.

Perhaps these small insect annoyances will come in the shape of a domestic irritation. The parlor and the kitchen do not always harmonize. To get good service and to keep it is one of the great questions of the country. Sometimes it may be the arrogancy and inconsiderateness of employers; but whatever be the fact, we will admit there are these insect annoyances winging their way out from the culinary department. If the grace of God be not in the heart of the housekeeper, she cannot maintain her equilibrium. The men come home at night and hear the story of these annoyances, and say: "O! these home troubles are very little things." They are small, small as wasps, but they sting. Martha's nerves were all unstrung when she rushed in asking Christ to reprove Mary, and there are tens of thousands of women who are dying, stung to death by these pestiferous domestic annoyances. The Lord sent the hornet.

These small insect disturbances may also come in the shape of business irritations. There are men here who went through 1857 and Sept. 24, 1869, without losing their balance, who are every day unhorsed by little annoyances—a clerk's ill manners, or a blot of ink on a bill of lading, or the extravagance of a partner who overdraws his account, or the underselling by a business rival, or the whispering of business confidences in the street, or the making of some little bad debt which was against your judgment, just to please somebody else. It is not the panics that kill the merchants. Panics come only once in ten or twenty years. It is the constant din of these every-day annoyances which is sending so many of our best merchants into nervous dyspepsia and paralysis and the grave. When our national commerce fell flat on its face, these men stood up and felt almost defiant; but their life is giving way now under the swarm of these pestiferous annoyances. The Lord sent the hornet.

I have noticed in the history of some of my congregation that their annoyances are multiplying, and that they have a hundred where they used to have ten. The naturalist tells us that a wasp sometimes has a family of twenty thousand wasps, and it does seem as if every annoyance of your life bred a million. By the help of God to-day I want to show you the other side. The hornet is of no use? O, yes! The naturalists tell us they are very important in the world's economy; they kill spiders and they clear the atmosphere; and I really believe God sends the annoyances of our life upon us to kill the spiders of the soul and to clear the atmosphere of our skies. These annoyances are sent on us, I think, to wake us up from our lethargy. There is nothing that makes a man so lively as a nest of "yellow jackets," and I think that these annoyances are intended to persuade us of the fact that this is not a world for us to stop in. If we had a bed of everything that was attractive and soft and easy, what would we want of heaven? You think that the hollow tree sends the hornet, or you think the devil sends the hornet. I want to correct your opinion. The Lord sent the hornet.

Then I also think these annoyances come upon us to culture our patience. In the gymnasium you find upright parallel bars—bars with holes over each other for pegs to be put in. Then the gymnast takes a peg in each hand and he begins to climb, one inch at a time, or two inches, and, getting his strength cultured, reaches after awhile the ceiling. And it seems to me that these annoyances in life are a moral gymnasium, each worry a peg by which we are to climb higher and higher in Christian attainments. We all love to see patience, but it cannot be cultured in fair weather. It is a child of the storm. If you had everything desirable and there was nothing more to get, what would you want with patience? The only time to culture it is when you are slandered and cheated, and sick and half dead.

"Oh," you say, "if I only had the circumstances of some well-to-do man I would be patient too." You might as well say: "If it were not for this water I would swim;" or, "I could shoot this gun if it were not for the caps." When you stand chin deep in annoyances is the time for you to swim out toward the great headlands of Christian attainment, and when your life is loaded to the muzzle with repulsive annoyances—that is the time to draw the trigger. Nothing but the furnace will ever burn out of us the clinker and the slag. I have formed this theory in regard to small annoyances and vexations. It takes just so much trouble to fit us for usefulness and for heaven. The only question is, whether we shall take it in the bulk, or pulverized and granulated. Here is one man who takes it in the bulk. His back is broken, or his eyesight put out, or some other awful calamity befalls him; while the vast majority of people take the thing piecemeal. Which way would you rather have it? Of course in piecemeal. Better have five aching teeth than one broken jaw. Better ten fly-blisters than an amputation. Better twenty squalls than one cyclone. There may be a difference of opinion as to allopathy and homœopathy; but in this matter of trouble I like homœopathic doses—small pellets of annoyance rather than some knock-down dose of calamity. Instead of the thunderbolt give us the hornet. If you have a bank you would a great deal rather that fifty men should come in with checks less than a hundred dollars than to have two depositors come in the same day each wanting his ten thousand dollars. In this latter case, you cough and look down at the floor and up at the ceiling before you look into the safe. Now, my friends, would you not rather have these small drafts of annoyance on your bank of faith than some all-staggering demand upon your endurance? I want to make you so strong, that you will not surrender to small annoyances. In the village of Hamelin, tradition says, there was an invasion of rats, and these small creatures almost devoured the town and threatened the lives of the population, and the story is that a piper came out one day and played a very sweet tune, and all the vermin followed him—followed him to the banks of the Weser, and then he blew a blast and they dropped in and disappeared forever. Of course this is a fable, but I wish I could, on the sweet flute of the Gospel, draw forth all the nibbling and burrowing annoyance of your life, and play them down into depths forever. How many touches did the artist give to his picture of "Cotopaxi," or his "Heart of the Andes?" I suppose about 50,000 touches. I hear the canvas saying: "Why do you keep me trembling with that pencil so long? Why don't you put it on in one dash?" "No," says the artist, "I know how to make a painting; it will take fifty thousand of these touches." And I want you, my friends, to understand that it is these ten thousand annoyances which, under God, are making up the picture of your life, to be hung at last in the galleries of heaven, fit for angels to look at. God knows how to make a picture.

I go into a sculptor's studio, and see him shaping a statue. He has a chisel in one hand and a mallet in the other, and he gives a very gentle stroke—click, click, click! I say: "Why don't you strike harder?" "Oh!" he replies, "that would shatter the statue. I can't do it that way; I must do it this way." So he works on, and after awhile the features come out, and everybody that enters the studio is charmed and fascinated. Well, God has your soul under process of development, and it is the little annoyances and vexations of life that are chiseling out your immortal nature. It is click, click, click! I wonder why some great providence does not come, and with one stroke prepare you for heaven. Ah, no; God says that is not the way. And so he keeps on by strokes of little vexations, until at last you shall be a glad spectacle for angels and for men. You know that a large fortune may be spent in small change, and a vast amount of moral character may go away in small depletion. It is the little troubles of life that are having more effect upon you than great ones. A swarm of locusts will kill a grain field sooner than the incursion of three or four cattle. You say: "Since I lost my child, since I lost my property, I have been a different man." But you do not recognize the architecture of little annoyances that are hewing, digging, cutting, shaping, splitting and interjoining your moral qualities. One lucifer match may send destruction through a block of storehouses. Catharine de Medicis got her death from smelling a poisonous rose. Columbus, by stopping and asking for a piece of bread and a drink of water at a Franciscan convent, was led to the discovery of a new world. And there is an intimate connection between trifles and immensities, between nothings and everythings.

Now, be careful to let none of those annoyances go through your soul unarraigned. Compel them to administer to your spiritual wealth. The scratch of a sixpenny-nail sometimes produces lock-jaw, and the clip of a most infinitesimal annoyance may damage you forever. Do not let any annoyance or perplexity come across your soul without its making you better.

Our National Government does not think it belittling to put a tax on pins, and a tax on buckles, and a tax on shoes. The individual taxes do not amount to much, but in the aggregate to millions and millions of dollars. And I would have you, Oh Christian man, put a high tariff on every annoyance and vexation that comes through your soul. This might not amount to much in single cases, but in the aggregate it would be a great revenue of spiritual strength and satisfaction. A bee can suck honey even out of a nettle; and if you have the grace of God in your heart you can get sweetness out of that which would otherwise irritate and annoy. A returned missionary told me that a company of adventurers rowing up the Ganges were stung to death by flies that infest that region at certain seasons. I have seen the earth strewed with the carcasses of men slain by insect annoyances. The only way to get prepared for the great troubles of life is to conquer these small troubles. What would you say of a soldier who refused to load his gun, or to go into the conflict because it was only a skirmish, saying: "I am not going to expend my ammunition on a skirmish; wait, until there comes a general engagement, and then you will see how courageous I am, and what battling I will do?" The General would say to such a man: "If you are not faithful in a skirmish, you would be nothing in a general engagement." And I have to tell you, O Christian men, if you cannot apply the principles of Christ's religion on a small scale, you will never be able to apply them on a large scale.

If I had my way with you I would have you possess all possible worldly prosperity. I would have you each one a garden—a river flowing through it, geraniums and shrubs on the sides, and the grass and flowers as beautiful as though the rainbow had fallen. I would have you a house, a splendid mansion, and the bed should be covered with upholstery dipped in the setting sun. I would have every hall in your house set with statues and statuettes, and then I would have the four quarters of the globe pour in all their luxuries on your table, and you should have forks of silver and knives of gold, inlaid with diamonds and amethysts. Then you should each one of you have the finest horses, and your pick of the equipages of the world. Then I would have you live a hundred and fifty years, and you should not have a pain or ache until the last breath. "Not each one of us?" you say. Yes each one of you. "Not to your enemies?" Yes; the only difference I would make with them would be that I would put a little extra gilt on their walls, and a little extra embroidery on their slippers. But you say: "Why does not God give us all these things?" Ah! I bethink myself. He is wiser. It would make fools and sluggards of us if we had our way. No man puts his best picture in the portico or vestibule of his house. God meant this world to be only the vestibule of heaven, that great gallery of the universe toward which we are aspiring. We must not have it too good in this world, or we would want no heaven.

Polycarp was condemned to be burnt to death. The stake was planted. He was fastened to it. The faggots were placed around him, the fires kindled, but history tells us that the flames bent outward like the canvas of a ship in a stout breeze, so that the flames, instead of destroying Polycarp, were only a wall between him and his enemies. They had actually to destroy him with the poniard; the flames would not touch him. Well, my hearer, I want you to understand that by God's grace the flames of trial, instead of consuming your soul, are only going to be a wall of defense, and a canopy of blessing. God is going to fulfill to you the blessing and the promise, as He did to Polycarp. "When thou walkest through the fire thou shalt not be burned." Now you do not understand; you shall know hereafter. In heaven you will bless God even for the hornet.

STATISTICS OF CONVICT LABOR.

Locally and in Certain Industries Only Does It Seriously Effect Free Labor.

Carroll D. Wright, Commissioner of Labor, has submitted to the Secretary of the Interior, at Washington, his second annual report, which relates entirely to the subject of convict labor. The report says that the number of prisoners of all grades employed in the institutions covered by the report is 64,609—58,714 males and 5,895 females. Of this total number 45,277 are engaged in productive labor, 15,360 are engaged in prison duties, and 3,972 are sick or idle. Of the total number 14,627 are employed under the public account system, 15,670 under the contract system, 5,756 under the piece price system, and 9,104 under the lease system. New York State has 9,709 convicts, being the largest number of any State, and Wyoming Territory, with 9 convicts, stands at the foot of the list. This prison population of 64,609 has a proportion of one in fifty to those engaged in mechanical pursuits. The industry employing the greatest number is that of boots and shoes; the manufacture of clothing stands next, then stone dressing, then farming, gardening, furniture, mining, lumber, and carpeting in the order named.

The total value of goods made and work done on productive labor by the 45,277 convicts in one year is $28,753,999.18. It would have taken 35,534 free laborers to have produced the same quantity of goods in the same time, or, in other words, a free laborer is equal to 1.27 convicts, or to reverse the statement, one convict is equal to .70 of a free laborer. Under the public account system the value of the goods made is 14.22 per cent of the total product; under the contract system, 62.92 per cent; under the piece price system 8.27 per cent, and under the lease system, 14.59 per cent. The total product of all penal institutions is .54 of one per cent of the total products of the industries of the country.

The report says that it is perfectly evident from information obtained that the competition arising from the employment of convicts, as far as the whole country is concerned, would not of itself constitute a question worthy of serious discussion, but, locally and in certain industries, the competition may be serious, and of such proportions as to claim the most serious attention of Legislatures.

Commissioner Wright discusses at considerable length the advantages and disadvantages of various systems and plans suggested as a solution of the convict labor problem, and arrives at the conclusion that hand labor, under the public account system, is, on the whole, the best yet suggested. He recommends that the different States interested in this question act together through a representative from each State, all meeting in a congress for the purpose of adopting or discussing the best plan of employing convicts.

"In cleaning your coat," he said, as he halted a gentleman on the steps of the post office, "I found these two letters in the lining. When your wife called for the garment I thought best not to say anything about the letters."

The gentleman received them, flushed up and then turned pale, and as he put them in one pocket and drew a silver dollar from the other he remarked:

"You did exactly right. These are a couple of letters my wife wrote me when we were sparking. I wouldn't have lost them for a hundred dollar bill."

"Quite right, sir, and I'm much obliged. If she writes you any more and I find 'em, you can depend upon my discretion."—Detroit Free Press.

THE FLOWER OF FAME.

At morn a bud,
Whose leaves, still dampened by the morning dew,
Give promise of a beauty unsurpassed,
And lay upon the altar of our view
The possibilities the future may possess.

At noon a full blown rose,
Whose fragrance, which it scatters on the air,
Is equaled only by its loveliness.
The model which the artist paints with care,
And the never-dying substance of the poet's song.

At night a faded flower,
Whose withered leaves are trampled into dust
Unheeded by the busy passer-by;
Whose perfume, which was borne by every gust,
Is lost amid the tempest of the night.

And so with fame.
At morn 'tis brightened by hope's fairest dreams,
To bloom into reality at noon;
At eve the sun's refulgent beams
Find but the ashes of ambition's flame.
—Ed. Cooley in the Comet.

"STOP THE SHIP."

It was a dark, moonless night, in the middle of December, and the rising wind was whistling in the rigging and piping among the taut shrouds of the steamship Sardinian, as she plunged through the Atlantic surges, homeward for Liverpool.

The sloping decks were silent and deserted, save for the figure of the officer on watch, pacing suddenly up and down before the wheelhouse, and a little group of saloon passengers clustered under the lee of the starboard lifeboat on the quarter-deck. There was some half-dozen of us in all. Two fair Canadians on their way to spend the holidays in the "old country;" a couple of young "subs.," coming home on leave from their regiment in Halifax; and one other careless pleasure seeker, like myself, returning from a visit to the Far West. We had been whiling away the evening by singing glees and telling stories, until the quartermaster striking five bells—10:30 o'clock—warned us that lights would soon have to be put out.

Not feeling inclined to turn in, I bade my merry companions good-night, watched them laughingly down the companion-way, and then turned aft to have a chat with the second officer who was keeping the deck-watch.

"You seem to have had a pleasant time under the boat there," he said, after a few remarks upon the look of the weather and the speed we were running at.

"Yes, and we ended up with a ghost story, which Mr. Burton told about his old grandmother seeing the figure of her husband standing beckoning her earnestly away from a terrace walk which ran under a brick fruit-wall in the hall grounds. She followed him, and scarcely had she got out of danger before it fell with a crash just where she had been walking but half a moment before. His friend, Wyvill, made fun of it all, and then we got into a hot discussion upon warnings and second sight and the rest of it."

"And do you believe in such things?"

"Not a bit," I answered, promptly. "Such things, as you call them, never appear to cool-nerved people in every-day life, but only to timid, scared, and nervous persons."

"I don't know that. I am not particularly nervous, I fancy; and yet a queer thing happened to me aboard this ship not very long ago," and he turned to glance at the swinging compass at the mizzen crosstrees. "If you care to hear about it, I'll spin you the yarn—unless you want to turn in."

So he began his story, whilst the creaking of the spectre-looking spars aloft sounded like the moan of troubled spirits, and the swishing of the water under the counter kept up a mournful rhythm as he spoke as follows:

"We left the Mersey the first week in May, bound for New York, with a full ship—saloon and steerage both crowded—and made a quick run, for she is a fast boat, and the captain never gives her a chance of getting far off a straight course.

"We were five days out, and that evening some of the gentlemen had got up a concert, which was a great success, and everybody seemed in high spirits at the prospect of the quickest passage on record. Of course this was before the Arizona, Alaska, and Etruria had astonished the world by the wondrous smart runs which they have made. I relieved Mr. Jones at four bells and took the bridge, remarking to him, as he turned to go down the ladder, that it felt uncommonly cold for the time of year. 'It's leaving a warm cabin makes you feel it,' he said, wishing me a pleasant watch, and the next moment I was up there alone.

"It was a pitch-dark night, and a thick veil of blackness seemed to wrap the ship from stern to stern. There was no wind and the sea was quiet, the stillness only broken by the dull, regular throbbing of the great engines as they steadily drove her along. I glanced ahead and could barely distinguish the watch forward and then I turned aft and saw the dim form of the officer in charge of the deck leaning against the port door of the wheel-house.

"All was right, and I began to pace slowly across the bridge from side to side, watching the white gleam of the phosphorescent water as it raced past and trailed away into the dark expanse behind us. I remember thinking what a nutshell this powerful ship was there in the midst of the boundless ocean, and how but a thin plate of iron was between the hundreds of souls now sleeping helpless below decks and the graves thousands of fathoms down among all the hideous creatures that live in the sunless depths. I was roused out of my musing by the voice of the captain, who had come up to see if all was right, as he generally did several times during the night, for he was always alive to the fact that he had a valuable ship and precious lives under his care, and nothing ever made him forget it. I have heard him say to some gentlemen who pressed him to join them in a bottle of champagne to celebrate the speedy arrival of his vessel off the Irish coast:

"'I am much obliged to you for the kindness which prompts the request, but we are nearing land, and this night, of all others, I must keep a cool head and a clear eye for your sake and my own.'

"Well, as I was saying, the captain came alongside and said:

"'How's her head, Mr. Brown?'

"'W. N. W., a quarter W., sir,' I answered, with a glimpse at the binnacle.

"'Right it is—keep it so;' he bade me good-night, and I watched him go along the deck forward to speak to the watch on the fok'sel.

"Then I began my walk again, and my thoughts slipped away home, and I wondered how my wife and youngsters were. I lived over again in fancy the days I had spent ashore during my last leave, and then, somehow, memories of my boyish days crept in.

"Suddenly a curious sensation came over me and utterly banished all dreaming. I cannot tell you what caused it, but a powerful feeling of terror overcame me, and I trembled like a palsied old man. A great sense of a dread of something terrible about to happen seized me—something, I knew not what; and I strove against it in vain. I clung to the bridge-rail in front, and tried to pull myself together, and I grew calmer as the low voices of some of the men forward fell upon my ear.

"'Thompson!' I called; and the burly boatswain's mate came toward me with the easy roll of a seaman, and touching his cap, said—

"'Did ye want me, Mr. Brown?'

"'Everything right—the watch awake?' I asked.

"'Yes, sir; but it's pitch dark, and we can't see five yards ahead. Jim Dixon's for'ard.'

"'Take a look round yourself,' I replied.

"While the mate was gone, the terrified feeling seemed to leave me, and in its place an indefinable and hazy but powerful impression gained upon me that I must do something; but what I could not make out. You have no idea of the awful agony I was in, and how I strove to find out what it was that I now felt impelled to do. My brain seemed on fire, my temples throbbed as though they would burst, and a strange buzzing sounded in my ears. I felt as if I was going mad, and the thought of the great ship in charge of a madman on the bridge flashed across me. A wild feeling, that it would be better to throw myself overboard crept into my soul, and I believe I did make a step over to the side, when a ray of light broke in upon me. The turmoil in my brain grew still, and a voice distinctly said in my ear—

"'Stop the ship!'

"I looked round sharply left and right, but there was not a creature on the bridge except myself. I leaned over and looked down onto the deck, but it was deserted, silent, and dark. I even glanced aloft, but of course saw nothing there except gaunt yards and the slender braces and lifts.

"'All right fore and aft, sir,' came Thompson's voice, and his dusky form loomed out of the shadow.

"'What order did the Captain give just before you came up?' I asked. Not that I for a moment thought that it was his voice which I had heard, but I wanted to see if the boatswain's mate had noticed anything.

"'Order, sir! Why the cap'en be turned in.'

"'But did not you hear some one say "Stop the ship," just as you got to the ladder foot?'

"'No, sir, that I'll take my davy on.'

"'Very well, you may go, but mind you keep a sharp lookout.'

"'Ay, ay, sir!' and the man moved away.

"I felt inclined to laugh at myself for an old woman, when a chilly feeling crept once more upon me, and something within me this time earnestly said:

"'Stop the ship!'

"I shook the feeling off, however, and determined to give way no longer to morbid fancies. I lighted a pipe, and began to pace briskly to and fro, from port to starboard and starboard to port. But, though all traces of fear and terror vanished, yet ever those words came ringing in my ear, and the faster I walked the more plainly I heard—

"'Stop the ship! Stop the ship!'

"Again I hailed the watch: 'All right forward? Can you see anything ahead?' and I peered out into the darkness round.

"'All clear for'ard, but we can't see more than ten yards,' sang out Thompson, sullenly.

"So once more I began my measured tramp, but louder and louder came the command in tones of frantic entreaty—

"Stop the ship! Stop the ship!'

"It was no use striving longer; I felt some potent influence force me to the engine-room telegraph. I seized the handle, and for a moment paused as I thought of the confusion and alarm which I was about to cause, and how angry the sleeping captain would be at my daring to do such a thing without his orders. The next instant I rang: 'Easy ahead.' I felt the engine's throb more slowly. Yet again I heard, almost madly—

"'Stop the ship!'

And without a moment's further hesitation I rang "Stop," and soon the throbbing ceased entirely. I heard exclamations of surprise from the fok'sel. There was a rare commotion on the deck as the captain rushed up the ladder in anxious haste, but before he could reach my side, the resistless power had overcome me again, and I rang down "Full speed astern."

"'In heaven's name, what's the matter, Brown?' I heard the astonished captain say as the mighty screw began to race astern, and forcibly pull up, as it were, the great ship, which still forged gently ahead.

"Before I could answer, or even glance around, a loud shout from the lookout on the bows: 'An iceberg right on us!' was followed by a slight shock and a quiver and rattle as we ran stem on to the towering monster. What our fate would have been had we been steaming at full speed, you may guess; instead of carrying you home to-night, the old Sardinian would be lying fathoms deep, and her loss would have added one more to the mysteries of the sea.'"

There was a dead silence as the speaker ended, and we puffed our pipes thoughtfully for a few moments, until he added—

"That is a queer yarn, I know, and if you can explain it, so much the better. I have often tried to do so to myself, but cannot. I believe some unseen spirit was sent to save those helpless souls that night, in spite of all the clever reasons which scientific men find for the existence of such things, and I know that, but for that powerful impulse which I could not resist, we should have rushed upon our doom. My yarn is a true one."

Then glancing up aloft, he said—

"The wind is hauling round, and we must have some of that canvas off her at once."

With a cheery good-night he left me, and I went below and turned into my birth, the shrill notes of the bo'sun's whistle, mixed up with the creaking of blocks and the "haul-i-oy" of the watch in my ears, as I thought over the curious story which was told me by the second officer.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

A drop of ink may make a million think.

Labor rids us of three great evils; irksomeness, vice and poverty.

Hope is the mainspring of happiness; resolution is the secret of success.

The pain of life but sweetens death; the hardest labor brings the soundest sleep.

The first sure symptom of a mind in health is rest of heart, and pleasure felt at home.

If persons would take more trouble about living, they would be less troubled when dying.

The generous never enjoy their possessions so much as when others are made partakers of them.

If temperance prevails, then education can prevail; if temperance fails, then education must fail.

The world estimates man by success in life, and by general consent success is evidence of superiority.

We complain that life is short, and yet we throw away much of it, and are weary of many of its parts.

There is no possibility of too much culture. The more striving there is after perfection the more nearly is that state secured.

Let no knowledge satisfy but that which lifts above the world, which weans from the world, which makes the world a footstool.

A true man never frets about his place in the world, but just slides into it by the gravitation of his nature, and swings there as easily as a star.

The acquisition of learning without study is like the acquisition of wealth without labor. It is as necessary for the mechanic to study out his problem when it comes to him to be studied as it is for him to finish his task by his handicraft.

Homing Pigeons.

The public, writes a New York correspondent of the Troy Times, is but little aware of the wide and increasing attention devoted to homing pigeons, and hence a brief paragraph on the subject may be acceptable. There are several societies or "federations" (as they are called) thus engaged, and the Executive Committee of the New York pigeon flyers recently held an important meeting. One of the objects is to form a congress of pigeon flyers, and a constitution and by-laws are to be prepared for the next annual meeting. In Philadelphia there is an extensive association called the "United Fanciers of Pigeon Flying." Another association has been formed in Boston, and others are now expected in various parts of the country. The use of carrier pigeons is of great antiquity, being mentioned by Anacreon, who lived 2,800 years ago, and Tasso also brings them into the defense of Jerusalem. The ordinary time made by those birds is thirty miles an hour, but instances are on record of thrice that rate. The culture of homing pigeons is now (as some say) only beginning, and far greater attainments are expected by American fanciers.

His Pillow Forgot Him.

Every night that Actor Fred Warde plays the Gladiator in "Galba," he is supposed to fall insensible in the last act. He did fall thrillingly for two nights at the Windsor, but after that the act lost a good deal of its realism. On the second night he fell with a thud that sounded all over the theatre, and there was a wild outburst of applause. Then the audience was amazed to hear the anathema: "You savage!" proceed in loud tones from the prostrate Gladiator. The next day Actor Warde played the part with a broken head, and felt very gingerly.

It is the duty of a subordinate to stand hidden behind the crowd of Roman soldiers on the stage and catch the actor. The second night of the engagement the subordinate had forgotten him or was behind schedule time, and the actor hit the stage with an emphasis that was entirely too realistic for his self-control.—New York Sun.

The Sunday Fisherman.

This man above, on fishing bent,
One Sabbath morning left his tent.
The Tent, Λ

He took his can, and very quick
He dug his fish worms with a pick.
The Pick, ⊢ The Worms,

In case some fish of size he'd get,
He took along his landing net.
The Landing Net,

As fishermen get hungry, too,
Of pretzels he procured a few.
The Pretzels,

Some lines he took along on spools
To teach them to the finny schools.
The Spools, ⊢⊣ ⊢⊣ ⊢⊣

He had some entertaining books
Of highly-tempered Limerick hooks.
The Hooks, J J J

And thus prepared, he got his boat,
And out upon the stream did float.
The Boat,

Some bites he straight began to get,
It was the gallinippers bit.
The Gallinippers,

One of his lines spun off the reel,
He landed in the boat an eel.
The Eel,

Then quickly it began to rain,
But his umbrella was in vain.
The Umbrella, T

Above his head the thunder crashed,
And all around the lightning flashed.
The Lightning,

The storm blew, and the boat upset,
That man went down into the wet.
The Upturned Boat,

And up to greet the bubbles rose,
Smaller and smaller toward the close.
The Bubbles, O o o o o
—Tid Bits.

THOUGHTLESS WORDS.

Didst ever in thy haste
Break from its stem a flower—
One thou hadst cherished long
In sunshine and in shower?
Didst e'er forget to feed
Some loving, petted bird?
Give pain to some dumb friend,
By careless act or word?
Mourn not the blighted flower
A fairer bud may grow—
And gentle words and love
Atone the hasty blow.
But shouldst thou wound a heart
And thoughtlessly give pain
To one who trusted thee
And asked for love again—
Ah! grieve a deeper wrong;
Long years may not efface
The sorrow from that heart
The shadow from that face.
—Sarah E. Heald, in Independent.

PITH AND POINT.

In summer the toboggan is not worth ascent.—Providence Telegram.

Gray hairs are honorable, but that is no reason why they should insist on occupying so prominent a position as the butter dish.—Pith and Point.

Young hostess—"I must show you my baby, Mr. Brown; are you fond of them?" Brown (absent-minded)—"Yes—oh yes! but I haven't eaten any lately."—Life.

A shorthand writer at Washington can report a speech with so much rapidity that the speaker finds it utterly impossible to keep up with him.—Philadelphia Call.

The panther that was shot near Peoria one day last week turns out to have been a dog. The daring hunter who shot him has gone into seclusion and pulled the seclusion in after him.—Chicago Tribune.

Miss Andora Euphemia McNair,
On a toboggan shot through the air:
"O!" she cried in affright,
"I'm in a terrible plight,
For I forgot to hold on my back hair!"
—Norristown Herald.

There are no less than a score of mind-readers galloping around the country just now, and yet not one of them can tell what a fat man thinks as he sits down on an icy corner. They simply try on something easy.—Detroit Free Press.

"What do you think is the most important duty you have to perform?" asked a citizen yesterday of a policeman from whose belt a baton has dangled but a few months. "To look for a promotion," was the whispered reply.—Detroit Free Press.

It is maintained that there is in every living being an element of individuality which escapes the law of heredity, and which in man exalts itself into personality, says the Hartford Religious Herald. It is always to be noted in the countenance of the college graduate as he steps forth to take charge of things, particularly newspapers.—Boston Courier.

Father—"When I look at Jennie with her bangs and that seven-storied hat perched upon 'em and her big bustle and hear her insane conversation. I sometimes begin to think that it has been labor wasted to bring her up. I don't think she has as much brains as would fill a hazel-nut." Mother (indignantly)—"Brains! How can you say so? That girl has got a remarkably powerful intellect. Why, she mastered the parasol, handkerchief, and postage-stamp flirtations in less than three weeks."—Boston Courier.

HER REPROOF.

He oft with her had sleighing gone,
But never sought her lips to taste,
Nor even, though they were alone,
Had placed an arm around her waist.

When froze her ears the boreal breeze,
And she was shivering with the cold,
He never said: "Love, if you please,
Will you a while these ribbons hold?"

As they a-sleighing went one day,
He said: "Why, you've forgot your muff!"
She answered in a quiet way,
"'Tis true, but you'll do well enough."
—Boston Courier.

A Horse's Ear For Music.

The following story is told by Fred Grant as a proof of the faculty possessed by horses by which they distinguish different tunes. In his last year at West Point he held the position of Captain of Artillery. One day the visiting officer, who happened to be his father, Gen. Grant, held an inspection and drill. After the cadets had assembled on the parade-ground it was decided to give the commands by bugle call. The officers would then deliver them by word of mouth to the men. Fred Grant had a notoriously bad ear for music. He had never been able to master a single tune, and, worst still, had no idea of time. When the announcement of the mode of giving the orders was made he rushed up to a comrade and said: "Great goodness! What shall I do? I can't tell the difference between the 'charge' and the 'retreat.'"

His friend advised him to change his horse for Mazeppa, a horse of one of the Sergeants. She would safely carry him out of the dilemma. He hastily did so and watched every movement of his animal during the ensuing evolutions. When the bugle sounded "Forward!" the knowing animal advanced and the command was soon given to the men. When the call of "Halt!" came Mazeppa stood like a rock, and the proper order was issued by the officer. In this way the horse, by its ear for music, made known to its rider the orders of the day and carried him proudly through the complicated movements to the drill.

Homeopathy.

Homeopathy, as a system of medicine, was introduced by Dr. Hahnemann, a native of Germany, toward the close of the last century. The name is derived from two Greek words signifying "similar suffering." Hahnemann's conviction was that medicines can cure diseased conditions similar to those which they have the power to excite. In short, that diseases are cured by medicines which produce symptoms in healthy persons similar to those presented by the patient. In order to elaborate his idea he was obliged to practice upon himself and friends. The result of his labors in this direction are published in two volumes.—Herald of Health.

None of the newly discovered comets are in danger of [illegible] the earth [illegible]. The nearest is [illegible] 000 miles off.

CHILTON VIEW.

Published Every Thursday Morning.

CLANTON, ALA., MAR. 31, 1887.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One copy one year	$1.50
One copy six months	75
One copy four "	50

The Missouri is overflowing its banks and causing much destruction to property.

The State Colored Teacher's Association meets in Birmingham on Wednesday, the 18th of April.

We havn't had our say yet about the tavern episode in Birmingham, and we want to say it. Mr. Cowin was right. John Sherman did all he could to defeat Matthews for Register of Deeds in Washington. He ought not to be allowed to hit a nigger on the head in Washington and sit on a white man's sofa with him in Birmingham.—Advertiser.

Important Indictment.

The Blount county jury indicted the members of the commissioner's court for not publishing a semi-annual report of receipts and disbursements of the county treasury as required by law. The question is how many more are in the same fix as the Blount county commissioners. The publication of these reports would prevent a great deal of the defaulting that is going on over the State, and such indictments cannot but serve a good purpose.

State Attorney General McClellan delivers an opinion in reply to a request from Auditor Burke to the effect that the recent decision of the United State Supreme Court, in relation to the right of States to tax travelling salesmen applies in full force to the law of Alabama; and advises the Auditor not to exact the tax from drummers coming into Alabama from other States. This will operate very unjustly against Alabama wholesale merchants who send out drummers, as the tax will be collected from them.

The Birmingham Age has opened up the question of the failure of the county commissioners and Treasurer of Jefferson county to keep the public informed of the state of the county treasury in accordance with the requirements of the Code. No statement has been published in that county since last July, and then nearly the whole year was covered by one report. It has been more than a year since such a report was published in Chilton county. As the people pay the money they should know what becomes of it. It is a wise law which provides for the publication of semi-annual reports. Though the Age has $100,000 in bank to its credit and there are a dozen other newspapers published in Birmingham to which the publication of the report may be given, yet there are narrow-minded politicians and office-holders who will attribute the efforts of the Age to self-interest. So wags the world. Nearly every man is judging others by himself, and making a still greater mistake in classing them a degree worse than himself.

Vincent Should be Punished.

We fully agree with the good old Dutchman who once remarked that, "before we throw at a man who has fallen, we should consider how it is that we manage to stand up ourselves." Yet we cannot see any wisdom in making a persecuted hero of a man who has appropriated to his own use, for his own private speculations if you will, $200,000 of the State's money.

There are all sorts of opinions, speculations and suppositions in the air concerning Ike Vincent and his crime. It may be that he has voluntarily surrendered himself, as some think, in order to obtain a portion of the reward offered for his apprehension. If such is the case all the more should he be punished. He held a public trust, and the dignity of a State is to be upheld and a lesson taught. If it were possible those who beguiled him into speculating schemes with money which they knew could not belong to him should be meted an equal punishment. But as the law may not reach them it should be vindicated upon the principal in the crime.

We may pity his family; we may pity him, yet his just punishment will deter perhaps many others from a like evil course, and may be the means of making a better man of Vincent himself in proving to him that "the way of the transgressor is hard."

The Political Pot.

Old John Sherman threw out his feelers in the direction of the Republican nomination for President in a speech at Nashville last week. At Birmingham, the day before, he declared that he would feel just as safe under the protection of a Confederate as a Federal soldier. About the time he gets well into the campaign harness and on the other side of the Ohio river he will begin the same old howl upon which he has attained his present fame, and proceed to vilify and denounce the Confederate soldier as a cut throat, a nigger-killing desperado and the Southern country as the home of a blood thirsty race of barbarians and banditti.

Apropos of the howls of northern radical sheets the decent white people of the country whether North or South will uphold Mr. Cowin, of the Florence Hotel, for refusing to to allow negro visitors in his hotel rooms, though the Cincinati Commercial-Gazette may whine itself sick in the effort to make political capital of the episode. There were a few silly fellows around Birmingham who disgraced themselves by parading their opinions in the public prints to the effect that Birmingham was too much of a "cosmopolitan city," and Mr. Cowin should have admitted the negroes. Perhaps such sickening rot may appease the holy wrath and grief of the Commercial-Gazette. We are sure these fellows do not represent the sentiments of the white Democracy of the South, and we are equally sure that there are many, yes, very many, who admire the action of Mr. Cowin and who want no "cosmopolitan" nigger mixture in their'n.

It is about time Yankee newspapers and politcians were learning that when a dirty radical comes South to hug his "brother in black" he must do the hugging in the nigger "quarters" and not in a respectable hotel managed by a true blue white Democrat, who knows the negro and has genuine sympathy for him in his place. It is true that he may find a few sympathizers among the whites, but that is a weak element; and he will learn that the country is governed and supported by a very different and "a blamed sight better" element.

Report of the Grand Jury.

To the Honorable James W. Lapsley
Judge presiding.

The Grand Jury empanneled and sworn for the Spring term of your honorable court beg leave respectfully to submit their report.

We have found 15 indictments, and find crime on the decrease in the county.

We find the public roads of the county in very good order, and that overseers and apportioners have been dilligent in the discharge of their duties.

We find the books of record and other county property entrusted to the care and keeping of the county officers, correctly and properly kept, and the county offices in excellent condition.

We find the county jail in good condition, save that there is not proper provision made for the cleanliness of the prisoners. We recommend that the clothing and bedding of the prisoners be properly washed and sunned at least once a week. We find the official bonds of all the county officers good and sufficient, except those of W. E. Stewart, Justice of the Peace, E. H. Lowe, Notary Public and ex-officio Justice of the Peace, and S. L. Arledge, Justice of the Peace. We recommend that additional bonds be required of them.

We find the books of the county Treasurer correctly kept, and that he has the amount of cash shown by his books to be in the treasury, and that their are ample funds on hand to pay all the expenses of the court.

The Grand Jury regrets that owing to the shortness of their session and the difficulty in having their writs of subpœna executed a great many cases remain undisposed of to be investigated by a Grand Jury to be empanneled at another term.

The Grand Jury beg to return thanks to your Honor for the very lucid charge given us at the inception of our labors, and to the solicitor and court officers who have assisted us in the performance of our duties, and ask now to be discharged.

B. H. Chesnutt,
Foreman.

Clanton, Ala.,
March 26, 1887.

We are sorry for the people who are so sorry for Ike Vincent. With all his social charms Ike turned out to be a rascal, and innocent folks should not be made to suffer now for his enormous transgression. There is a kind of attraction in being the object of universal sympathy in a community, which may even prove an incentive to crime to some weak people. We could not stand any more steals like Vincent's—Age.

Old John Sherman, of Ohio, has been "spouting" in Birmingham. Manager Cowin of the Florence Hotel very properly refused to allow negroes to call upon Sherman in his room at the hotel, whereupon John picked up his duds and trotted forth in search of another hostelry, where he would not be denied the privilege of smelling "niggers" to his heart's content. The old curmudgeon ought to go down to New Orleans and take another waltz with Eliza Pinkston.

SALESMEN WANTED!

To canvass for the sale of Nursery Stock! Steady employment guaranteed. Salary and expenses paid. Apply at once, stating age. (Refer to this paper). CHASE BROTHERS, mar31-2m Rochester, N. Y.

Saw Mill Men.

I am now prepared to hammer your buckled saws. Just received a new outfit of tools for hammering. Can return a saw in 4 days after it arrives. Satisfaction guaranteed. Remittance after trying the saw. Ship to Pratt Saw Mill Co. WM. B. HOLDER.
[feb24 3m]

The Florence, Tuscaloosa and Montgomery Railroad Company.

Notice is hereby given that, under and by virtue of the power and authority conferred upon the undersigned, as Board of Corporators of the Florence, Tuscaloosa and Montgomery Railroad Company, by Hon. C. C. Langdon, Secretary of State of the State of Alabama, we shall, in pursuance of such power and authority, open books of subscription to the capital stock of said railroad company at the court house of Chilton County, at the office of the Probate Judge, on the 18th day of April, A. D. 1887.

WILLIAM B. WOOD,
A. W. WILIS,
WILLIAM C. JEMISON,
GEORGE A. SEARCY,
STERLING A. M. WOOD,
Board of Corporators.

Florence, Ala., March 1st, 1887. 10-4

NOTICE NO. 6037.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Mar. 30, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Ala., on May 7th, 1887, viz: John D. Selman, homestead 12067, for the w ½ of ne ¼ section 22, township 21, range 11 east. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: John Bearden, Nathan D. Ellis, Claton Hall and Eugeun McGee, all of Maplesville, Ala.

mar31 J. G. Harris, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6043.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Mar. 30, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on May 7th, 1887, viz: Nathan D. Ellis, Homestead 12091, for n ½ of ne ¼, sec. 26, township 21, range 11 east. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: John Bearden, John D. Selman, Claton Hall, Eugene McGee, all of Maplesville, Ala.

mar31 J. G. Harris, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6237.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Mar. 8, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court, or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 16th, 1887, viz: Burrel Bailey, Homestead 12318, for the ne ¼ of nw ¼, sec. 22, township 20 n, range 11 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: John W. Mitchell, Mike H. Barnes, Daniel C. Gandy and David A. Friday, all of Plantersville, Ala.

mar10* J. G. HARRIS, Register.

THE Cheap Cash Store,
—OF—
R. P. WOOLEY & CO.,
CLANTON, ALA.,
IS THE PLACE TO BUY YOUR
DRY GOODS & GROCERIES.

Wetmore's Book Store
SELMA, ALA.,
INVITES ORDERS FOR Books, Stationery,
Musical Instruments,
Fancy Goods, etc.
☞ Prices always lower than elsewhere. [mar24-6m

M. ISRAEL,
Leading Tailor.
1910 FIRST AVENUE (Upstairs)
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
Keeps constantly in stock a full line of
Elegant Goods.
ready to be made up in the latest style and with the best workmanship. Perfect fit and entire satisfaction guaranteed. Give him a trial. [mar 24-y

J. H. SHEPHERD
THE LEADING
PHOTOGRAPHER.
—OF—
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
NORTH SIDE SECOND AVENUE
(Between 19th and 20th Sts.)
Photographs of All Kinds
Work Done in the BEST STYLE.
Call on him and have your picture taken. [mar24-y

NOW IS YOUR CHANCE!
WE ARE OPENING CHEAP
SEED RICE for PLANTERS,
AND POLISHED RICE FOR TABLE USE,
CRACKED CORN for STOCK,
The best feed on the market. No danger of colic. We can furnish BOLTED MEAL
IN LARGE OR SMALL LOTS. COW FOOD A SPECIALTY, AND CHEAP.
SHIVERS & WISE,
mar24-y] SELMA, ALABAMA.

Barclift & Co.
—DEALERS IN—
DRY GOODS and GROCERIES
NORTH SIDE OF SEC. AVE. BET. 19th AND 20th STREETS.
Birmingham, Ala.
☞ When you are in the city be sure to call on us, and the prices we will quote you, will cause you to buy whatever you may need in the Dry Goods or Grocery Line. [mar 24-1y

Newman's Southern Flower Cologne is the best. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

Croup, Whooping cough and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. jun16 y

No family should be without Ellis' Magic Oil Liniment, the greatest external remedy known. It cures all aches and pains. Price 25 cents per bottle, at W. H. Phillips.

Sleepless nights made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by M. J. Greene Clanton. jun16y

Take one of Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver and Kidney Pillets at night before you go to bed and you will be surprised how buoyant and vigorous you will feel the next day. Only 25 cents a vial.

Croup is a treacherous disease, and generally the most severe at night when unable to properly watch it. The best known remedy is Ellis' C. S. A. For sale by W. H. Phillips, Clanton.

If you are suffering with weak or inflamed eyes, or granulated eyelids, you can be quickly cured by using Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve. 25 cents a box. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Shiloh's Cough and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures consumption. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton Ala.

Life will acquire new zest, and cheerfulness will return, if you will impel your liver and kidneys to the performance of their functions Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm will stimulate them to healthful action. $1.00 per bottle. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

Ellis' Magic Liver Pills are safe for children, and are more effective than any other cathartic pill on the market. If not found satisfactory return and get your money. For sale by W. H. Phillips. aug26-y

Will you suffer with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton.

That hacking cough can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's cure. We guarantee it. For sale by M. J. Greene.

Sick Headache and a sensation of oppression and dullness in the head are very commonly produced by indigestion; morbid despondency, irritability and over-sensitiveness of the nerves may, in a majority of cases, be traced to the same cause. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm and Pillets will positively cure. For sale by M. J. Greene, Clanton. sep11 3

Money to Loan!

I am prepared to negotiate mortgage loans on farming lands in Chilton county in sums of three hundred dollars and upwards. Rates cheap and negotiations speedily concluded. Apply to or correspond with
H. L. WILLIAMS,
oct7 Att'y at Law, Wetumpka.

NOTICE NO. 6088.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
February 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on April 5th, 1887, viz: Marion A. Barbour, Homestead 12195, for the sw ¼ of ne ¼, se ¼ of nw ¼, sec. 22 township 21 north, range 16 east. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: Wm. D. Goss, Wm. B. Jones, Wm. Taylor and Pinckney Jones, all of Verbena, Ala.

feb24* J. G. Harris, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6079.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge of the circuit court or in his absence, the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Ala., on April 5th, 1887, viz: Betsy Robuck, guardian Della Robuck, homestead 9293, for the ne ¼ of ne ¼, section 2, township 20 north, range 12 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon; and cultivation of, said land, viz: James Green Wm. Sansom, Thos. Klinner and H. Hayes, all of Maplesville, Ala.

feb24 J. G. Harris, Register.

NOTICE NO. 6220.

Land Office at Montgomery, Ala.,
March 1st, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court at Clanton, Alabama, on April 9th, 1887, viz: John E. Smith, Homestead 12080 for the s ½ of sw ¼, sec. 14, township 21, range 11 e. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Daniel Scroggins, James R. Whatley, John D. Selman and John Bearden, all of Maplesville, Ala.

mar4 J. G. Harris, Register.

I. B. BOWDOIN
DEALER IN
Family Groceries,
CLANTON, ALA.

I will keep on hand for sale, a nice line of Family Groceries, such as may be desired by the Clanton trade, and will sell as cheap as they can be purchased elsewhere. f 24 6

DON'T
Buy anything in the Grocery line until you have called on
T. M. Edwards,
Who keeps constantly on hand Fancy and Family Groceries and confectioneries.
Clanton, Ala., Feb. 24th, '87.

MARRIAGE GUIDE
260 PAGES. Illustrated, in Cloth and Gilt Binding, 50c. money or stamps. Same, paper cover, 25c. This Book contains all the curious, doubtful or inquisitive want to know. Full of very interesting and valuable information. HEALTH, BEAUTY and HAPPINESS are promoted by its advice—who may Marry, who not, why; Medical Aid, when necessary, brought home to you. 80 Wonderful PEN PICTURES, true to life. Young or old, married or single, sick or well, should read it. Sent sealed by DR. WHITTIER, St. Louis, Mo. CUT THIS OUT AND SEND WITH ORDER.

WINTER! SPRING!
During the season of Winter MALARIA Lurks in the System.
COLLINS
AGUE CURE
One Dose a day, taken three days in succession, each month, or when you feel badly in any way, will fully Cleanse your Blood, Remove all Bilious Secretions & Malarial Poison from your System, and Insure GOOD HEALTH IN THE SPRING.
PRICE, FIFTY CENTS PER BOTTLE.
If you are troubled with a COUGH, COLD, SORENESS in CHEST, or any Affection of Throat or Lungs, use DR. JACKSON'S
Syrup LUNGWORT & WILD CHERRY
Sold at 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 a Bottle.
If your EYES are affected in any way, use Dr. JACKSON'S CELEBRATED INDIAN EYE SALVE.
Sold Everywhere at 25 cents per Box.
SEND FOR COLLINS BROS. "PRESENT CENTURY ALMANAC" for 1887. Mailed to any address or at any Drug Store.
COLLINS BROS. DRUG CO., ST. LOUIS, Mo.
jun24-y

L & N
LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.
THE GREAT
Through Trunk Line
Between the Cities of CINCINNATI, LEXINGTON, LOUISVILLE, EVANSVILLE, ST. LOUIS, And the Cities of N. ORLEANS, MOBILE, MONTGOM'Y, MEMPHIS, NASHVILLE.
Without Change and with Speed Unrivaled
SHORTEST AND QUICKEST ROUTE
From New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery, to
NORTH, EAST & WEST
PULLMAN CARS Without change to Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, with but one change to all
NORTHERN AND EASTERN CITIES.
THROUGH COACHES
From Chattanooga and Nashville to St. Louis, connecting direct for Cities in the Northwest.
EMIGRANTS Seeking homes on the line of this road will receive special low rates.
See Agents of this Company for rates, routes &c., or write C. P. ATMORE, G. P. & T. A. Louisville, Ky.

NOTICE NO. 5969.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery, Ala., Mar. 30, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the judge or in his absence the clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, Ala., on May 7th, 1887, viz: John Bearden, homestead 14409, for the sw ¼ of nw ¼ and nw ¼ of sw ¼, section 14, township 21, range 11 east. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: John D. Selman, Nathan D. Ellis, Claton Hall and Eugene McGee, all of Maplesville, Ala.

mar31 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

Subscribe for the View.

Southern Business College.
NO. 407½ WEST JEFFERSON STREET, NEXT DOOR BELOW MASONIC TEMPLE.
LOUISVILLE, KY.
NO TEXT BOOKS USED.
BOOK-KEEPING, PENMANSHIP, COMMERCIAL ARITHMETIC, SHORT-HAND, TYPE-WRITING, &c., &c.
We guarantee to teach more real, practical Book-keeping, Commercial or Business Calculations, more practical ideas about business in general, in 2 to 4 months, than any other Business College in this section can in twelve months.
We teach forms of Book-keeping (actual forms used in business) not taught in any other Business College in this section.
No Scholar Has Ever Completed Our Entire Course and left us Dissatisfied.
For circulars call at college or address
Ben. C. Weaver, Principal.

BAINS & PEEBLES.
(SUCCESSORS TO BAINS & HERRING.)
WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.
Mail and Express Orders Will Receive Prompt Attention.
FINE WINES AND LIQUORS A SPECIALTY.
1926 FIRST AVENUE, BETWEEN 19th and 20th STREETS,
Birmingham, Ala.
☞ Fine Stock of Chess Carley's Oils at Company's Prices. ☜
P. O. BOX 570. June 19 y

T. T. Ashford, Pres. J. E. Malahy, Vice Pres. T. L. McGowan, Sec. & Treas.
Birmingham Paint, Glass and Wall Paper Co.
Successors to
MAYBERRY & ASHFORD.
Jobbers and Retailers of
Paints, Oils, Window Glass, Plate, Sky-Light and Colored Glass, Sash, Doors, Blinds and Moulding,
Painters' and Artists' Supplies.
WALL PAPER, WINDOW SHADES, and CURTAIN FIXTURES.
1912 Second Avenue, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
☞ Write for Samples of Wall Paper and Estimates on Glass. jun10

MINERAL CITY TIN AND STOVE HOUSE
SECOND AVENUE BETWEEN 18TH AND 19TH STREETS,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
Pat Walsh, Manager.
A Large Line of HEATING and COOKING STOVES always on hand. All Kinds of
Tin, Sheet Iron Roofing and Job Work
DONE ON SHORT NOTICE.
☞ Orders by mail will receive prompt attention. nov 11

E. WALL P. GIACOPAZZI.
WALL & GIACOPAZZI,
Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Commission Merchants,
Second Ave. and Twentieth St.
Birmingham, - - - Ala.
References: S. Oteri, New Orleans; Jos. Deaunsie, Louisville; Buhr, Wendte & Co., Cincinnati; Underhill, Stewart & Shotta, N. Y.; Wm. D. Clarke & Co., New Orleans; Cowing & Clark, Cincinnati; A. G. Conant & Co., N. Y.; First National Bank, Birmingham, Ala.

BLOOM,
The Tailor, of Montgomery, Ala.,
—DOES—
Dyeing, Scouring, Cleaning, and Repairing
Of Gents' and Ladies' garments of all colors.
Orders by Mail or Express will receive prompt attention.
Prices to suit the times. Work Guaranteed.
NO. 5 Court Street, Upstairs, - - Opposite Dollar Store.

Thompson, Francis & Chenoweth,
Birmingham, Ala.
—DEALERS IN—
HARDWARE,
Sash, Doors and Blinds, Paints, oil and glass, Cement and Plaster, Mantles and Grates.

THOROUGH BUSINESS EDUCATION.
Bryant and Stratton. } THE LOUISVILLE Business College,
Corner Third and Jefferson Streets. Entrance, No. 406 Third Street,
Louisville, Ky.
BOOK-KEEPING, BANKING, PENMANSHIP, TELEGRAPHY, SHORT-HAND AND ENGLISH TRAINING.
☞ For Catalogue Address College as Above.

J. M. Wilkerson. John A. Caldwell.
WILKERSON, CALDWELL & CO.
REAL ESTATE, RENTING & COLLECTING AGENTS, AND STOCK BROKERS.
Tuscaloosa, - - Alabama.
Buy and sell for principals. Prompt attention given to all business entrusted to us. Collecting rents a specialty.
Office over store of Fitts Bros., next to Telegraph Office. Correspondence solicited. feb26
References: J. H. Fitts & Co., Bankers and First Nat. Bank. of Tuscaloosa.

CHILTON VIEW.

CLANTON, ALA., MAR. 31, 1887.

THE VIEW is published every Thursday morning, and will endeavor to cover the field of reputable country journalism. It will show no quarter to the deceitful, the immoral or the ungodly. It will always be good natured, although it can bite if necessary.

Those answering advertisements will confer a favor by mentioning this paper.

COURT CALENDAR.

Chancery—First Thursday after the third Monday in March and September and continue three days.

Circuit—Third Monday after the first Monday in February and on the fifth Monday after the fourth Monday in July, and continue two weeks each time.

Commissioners'—Regular term second Monday in February and August, and first Monday in April and November. Special term second Monday in July.

County—First Monday in each month.

SCHEDULE S. & N. ALA. RAILROAD. —Trains pass Clanton daily, as follows:

GOING SOUTH.

No. 1 at	5:45 a. m.
No. 3	5:37 p. m.
No. 7	4:12 p. m.
No. 51	6:00 a. m.

GOING NORTH.

No. 2	9:15 a. m.
No. 12	9:55 a. m.
No. 4	*9:48 p. m.
No. 50	6:55 p. m.

* Don't stop.

LOCAL DOTTINGS.

Send us your job work.

All fools day to-morrow.

Come to Clanton to live.

Real estate is still booming.

Clanton is the coming town.

Miss Colvin is visiting the family of Mr. Cottingham.

Miss Bettie Allen is visiting her sister Mrs. J. M. Bell.

Rev. Mr. Scott, of Deatsville, spent Sunday in Clanton.

Mr. C. R. Hannon is on a visit to his home in this place.

Miss Jennie Wilson, of Maplesville, is visiting friends in Clanton.

Mr. Alfred Lewis, of Birmingham, spent several days in Clanton last week.

Next Sabbath is the appointment of Rev. Mr. Briggs our Methodist pastor.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bell, of this place, on the 19th inst., a daughter.

Misses Maggie and Armantina Smith, of Prattville, spent one day last week with friends in Clanton.

Corn, fodder, hay, potatoes, chickens, butter, eggs, &c., will be taken in payment for subscription.

Mr. J. M. Simpson, of Birmingham, is visiting his brother, Mr. W. J. Simpson, at this place.

The church was nice and clean Sunday morning, but the lamps still need filling and cleaning.

A new trestle has been built by the L. & N. railroad over the creek south of the depot at this place.

Rev. A. E. Burns preached two excellent sermons in the Baptist church at this place last Sabbath.

Measles, mumps and whooping cough, are all reported to be in town but are not spreading rapidly.

We are glad to learn that Mrs. Ed. Marsh, who has been quite ill for several weeks, is now convalescent.

If you have friends visiting you and you wish their names mentioned, you should let us know who they are.

Mr. W. L. Sampey has rented the dwelling next to Mr. Tom Phillips' and will move into it right away.

"Ye local" returns thanks to Mrs. J. H. Aldridge for a dozen eggs of of the Plymouth Rock and black Spanish variety.

We have a house and lot in Clanton for sale. Corner lot, beautiful location and a seven room house. Apply at this office.

The Ladies Aid Society will meet at the residence of Mrs. Hannon next Wednesday evening at 4 o'clock. All are invited.

Mr. Sumner Ashley, who now has a position in Supt. Hege's office in Birmingham, was on a visit to his parents, in this place, last Saturday and Sunday.

Sampey's Corner.

Go to Sampey's to get a nice pair of shoes at a reasonable price. Big bargains in ladies' shoes, No. 3 and No. 4. Reasonable prices on all sizes. If you need a barrel of flour and have got the money to pay for it, you can get the lowest prices and a good guarantee that it is as represented.

Cutting Affrays.

A difficulty occurred on Main street last Thursday between J. B. Puckett, a painter and John Maxwell, a carpenter, both of this place, in which Maxwell received two cuts in the neck and had his coat literally cut to pieces.

They were given a preliminary hearing and were both consigned to the jailer on failing to make bond, which was fixed at $50. The evidence seemed to be against Maxwell. Puckett has since made bond. At this writing Maxwell is still in jail. His wounds are not serious.

A difficulty occurred near Clear Creek last week between a man named Killingsworth and one named Martin, in which Killingsworth was so badly cut that he is not expected to live. The quarrel grew out of a case tried in our circuit court at this place last week and the parties were on their way home when the difficulty occurred. They live in the same neighborhood.

Stabbed.

Mr. Alfred Baker, Sr., was stabbed in the back on Saturday by Dr. Sam Johnson. Mr. Baker was sitting on a bench in front of the farmer's store engaged in conversation when Dr. Johnson, who was intoxicated, came upon him unawares and stabbed him in the left shoulder with a new 4 inch blade pocket knife. As we do not desire to create prejudice and as the penalty of the law will no doubt be fully meted out in the case, we forbear further comment. Dr. Johnson had a hearing before Judge Callen and was admitted to bail in the sum of $500 which was promptly given, and the case will come up at the next term of the circuit court. Mr. Baker's wound, though not dangerous, was quite serious, though he is now improving, and we hope soon to see him out again.

The following is a list of the subscribers who paid their subscription during court week. It should have been ten times as long:

J R Hill, W F Claughton, H M Strock, W R Bowline, Dr J P Robinson, Moses Robinson, Wm Parnell, W W Wadsworth, R M Honeycutt, J R Parnell, P C Bean, J D McGee, W H Mills, G W Jones, A S Jones, W D Scarbrough, Seaborn Jones, J W G Kicker, Jno J Green, W R Holder, A T Goodwyn, Mrs A M Adams, S B Wilder and Jno Wood.

Col. B. H. Richardson, formerly proprietor of the Savannah Times, has moved to Montgomery and purchased the Evening Appeal, changing the name of the paper to the Evening Star. The writer formed an agreeable acquaintane with Col. Richardson while the latter was canvassing Florida for his Savannah paper, and hopes that the Evening Star will shine long and briliantly.

The many friends of Will Lanier, formerly a Clanton boy, but now of Calera, regret to hear that he is in a very critical condition. Some weeks ago he had a jaw tooth extracted and the jaw bone was fractured in the operation. The physicians say the jaw will have to be taken out and even then the chances for his recovery will be slight.

The Cemetery Fund.

We are authorized by the cemetery committee to state that they have $8.00 on hand which they will expend in any way that the citizens may think best, and they ask for suggestions, from parties interested, as to some feasible course to pursue in the judicious expenditure of the same.

Solicitor Fitzpatrick remarked to us that Clanton was the livest town he had seen in some time. He no doubt intends to make things very warm for those who were making things so very lively during court week, and we hope he will do so.

Mr. Ed. Marsh, who moved to Birmingham from this place, some months ago, has returned again with his family but cannot find a vacant dwelling, he having rented his for the year before returning.

Our citizens are getting interested on the subject of the election of town officers. We hear some talk of a petition to be gotten up asking that an election be held. It should be done by all means.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Brock, of Birmingham, stopped over in Clanton Sunday to spend the day with friends and relatives. They were on their way to Fort Deposit to visit relatives.

The good effects of Ellis' P. P. P. on a debilitated person are felt at once, and a cure follows its use. If suffering from bloop poison try a bottle. For sale by W. M. Phillips, Clanton.

OVER THE COUNTY.

News Gathered up by Our Correspondents.

Dots From Concord.

The weather is quite pleasant.

We have a good Sunday school every Sunday at Concord Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Canterberry, of Montevallo, visited friends in this neighborhood last Thursday.

Fire broke out in a large pine forest, of about three thousand acres of fine timber land, west of this community, last week and on Wednesday and Thursday it came upon the farmers very suddenly, as the wind was blowing very hard. Most of the men were at Clanton attending court. Some of them we learn lost a great deal of fencing but no serious damage was done.

PEACEFUL BOY.

Bivings, Duke & Co's Mill.

Gardens have been injured by the cold weather and we think our fruit is all killed.

Dr. A. E. Bivings has moved from a residence on 1st Avenue to the one formerly occupied by Mr. O. A. Duke, on corner of Montgomery and Mill Streets.

The convict force at the Mill has an addition of seven new men and women.

Mrs. J. L. Harrell and daughter, Miss Lucy, are visiting Mrs. A. E. Bivings.

Mr. Ben Harrell spent a few days here last week on a visit to relatives.

Bivings, Duke & Co., are having the ground prepared for a large fish pond, which they expect to complete as soon as possible.

Mr. Wm. A. Smith, our efficient tax assessor, made us a call last week.

Mr. Brad Gray has moved to the house lately vacated by Dr. Bivings.

We came near having a serious fire last week caused by the woods catching from a "new-ground" patch of our neighbors.

Mrs. Duval, of Holden, Mo., spent the day with Mrs. J. M. Bivings, who was glad to welcome her back to the Mills after an absence of three years.

Success to you.

OLD MAID.

Stanton Puffs.

The locomotive on the G. & C. L. R. R., broke the stay braces in the boiler the 23rd inst. Fortunately there was no one hurt. It is thought the cause of the accident was over pressure. Mr. Jas. Buchanan, a boiler maker from the "Iron City," repaired the locomotive. James is a lively boy from the "ould country," and understands his business.

The negroes of our village have the measles among them.

Two foreigners with a tame bear paid Stanton a passing visit last week. They took up a collection put the bear through some performances and went on to other towns.

Mr. Arch Smith and a negro named Perry Martin had a misunderstanding last Friday resulting in the negro shooting twice at Mr. Smith. One shot taking effect in the arm just above the wrist. There were no bones hurt and we hope to see Mr. Smith alright in a few days. The negro has not been arrested yet.

Eld. W. J. Ruddick's appointment at the Baptist church next Sabbath.

Ebenezer church looks decidedly better since it has been painted. We hope the congregations will continue their improvements and in the near future add a bell to the edifice.

"89" has now a shed to shelter it from inclement weather.

89.

Verbena.

Mr. Edward Ludecuss and a niece of Mrs. Werth are visiting G. L. Werth and family at this place.

Mr. George Clisby, of Montgomery, is visiting his father, Captain Clisby, at this place.

Mr. John A. Davis and Phil. McDonald, of Pratt Mills, went to Montgomery on the 27th to be examined by a physician for their delicate health.

Three cars on the P. S. M. R. R., broke loose from the engine and after running two miles ran off at the end of the road and smashed up the cars considerably.

Mr. Wm. A. Smith and family are going to move to Dixie their former home on the E. T. V. & G. R. R. We regret very much to lose them, they are good citizens and their place will be hard to fill.

We are sorry to note the illness of "Grandma" Holt who has been lingering for some time. She is a consecrated christian soldier, and is 85 years old. If the good Lord takes her away we are satisfied she will enter into the rest which remains for the saints of God.

The addition to the Baptist church has just been completed which makes it one of the nicest church houses in the county.

We have preaching every Sunday. First and third at the Baptist church, second and fourth at the Methodist church. Prayer meetings Wednesday night. Sabbath schools every Sunday morning at which the average attendance is 75. All of our meetings are well attended.

May the VIEW prosper.

WATCHMAN.

We were treated last Sabbath to two able sermons from our Methodist pastor Rev. A. J. Briggs.

A missionary society was re-organized for the children, two recitations and songs by the little folks.

Our town has a spirit of business in its appearance. Quite a number of drummers on our streets yester day.

Mrs. George Smith, of Prattville, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Holt.

Mrs. Lucian Zimmerman has returned from the bedside of a very ill sister Mrs. Dr. Moore, of Wetumpka.

What has become of our "Fertilize, work hard and raise hogs" correspondent, has he gone into the business or does he preach one thing and practice another.

We regret to number among our absent fair ones, Miss Etta Haralson, who is visiting relatives in Birmingham.

T—

Cases Tried.

The following cases were disposed of at the recent term of the circuit court:

Bryant vs. Bryant, fraudulently disposing of property. Nol pros.

Chilton County vs. K. Wells and B. H. Bryant. Defaulting bail. Forfeiture final for one cent and costs.

State vs. Josh. Prestridge. Abusive language. Guilty and fined $10.

State vs. Lizzie Rasberry. Carrying concealed weapon. Guilty and sentenced to 20 days hard labor and additional term to pay costs.

State vs. Lizzie Rasberry. Assault with weapon. Guilty and sentenced to 10 days hard labor and additional term to pay costs.

State vs. Jos. Brown. Disturbing religious worship. Nol pros.

State vs. J. S. Johnson, Jr. Disturbing religious worship. Guilty and fined $20 and costs.

State vs. Richard Allen. Disturbing religious worship. Guilty and sentenced to 10 days hard labor and to pay costs.

State vs. John Maxwell and Jim Puckett. Affray. Puckett fined $1, Maxwell fined $25 or 20 days hard labor and to pay costs.

NOTICE NO. 6246.

U. S. Land Office,
Montgomery Ala., Mar. 15, 1887.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Judge of the circuit court or in his absence the Clerk of the circuit court, at Clanton, on April 23rd, 1887, viz: William H. Wells, Homestead 11507 for the e ½ of sw ¼, section 28, township 22, range 15. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Andrew J. Duncan, Thomas G. Taylor, Henry C. Johnson and Sidney A. Blasingame, all of Clanton, Ala.

mar17 J. G. HARRIS, Register.

MONTGOMERY FURNITURE COMPANY.

—DEALERS IN—

Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Looking Glasses, Lounges, Hall Racks, Wardrobes, Chairs, Safes, Side Boards, Cradles, Cribs, Baby Carriages, Spring Beds, Mattresses, Refrigerators, Pianos, Organs, Carpets,

And All Kinds of Furniture!

A. C. ROGERS, Manager,

210 Bibb Street, Wharton's Old Stand Next to McDonald's Opera House.

sep2 y

This space is reserved by

A. J. BROOKS

AT VERBENA, ALA.,

FOR FUTURE ADVERTISING

☞WATCH IT.☜

MOTHER'S FRIEND

MAKES CHILD-BIRTH EASY!

SHORTENS LABOR. LESSENS THE PAIN ATTENDING IT! DIMINISHES THE DANGER to LIFE of MOTHER and CHILD.

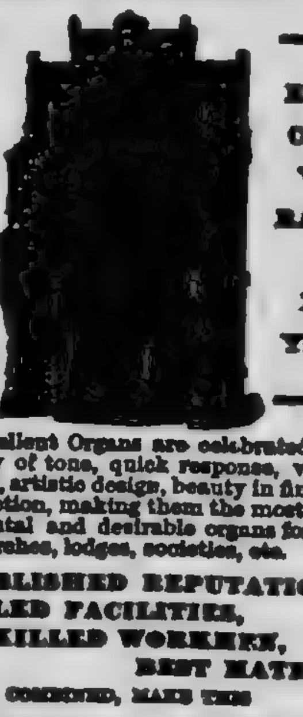
Should be used a few months before confinement. Send for book "To Mothers," mailed free.

BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., Atlanta, Ga.

THE CHICAGO COTTAGE ORGAN

Has attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior.
It contains every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce.

OUR AIM IS TO EXCEL.



EVERY ORGAN WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

These excellent Organs are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty in finish, perfect construction, making them the most attractive, ornamental and desirable organs for homes, schools, churches, lodges, societies, etc.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION, UNEQUALED FACILITIES, SKILLED WORKMEN, BEST MATERIAL, COMBINED, MAKE THIS

THE POPULAR ORGAN

Instruction Books and Piano Stools.

Catalogues and Price Lists, on application, FREE.

The Chicago Cottage Organ Co.
Corner Randolph and Ann Streets,
CHICAGO, ILL.

IF YOU WANT NICE FRESH GROCERIES CALL ON

W. H. SARTOR,

FIRST DOOR WEST OF THE DRUG STORE, MAIN STREET,

Clanton, Ala.

☞ In addition to everything in the Grocery line I also carry a nice stock of fresh Stick and Fancy Candies, Fruits and other Confectioneries. mar4

BUTLER & GATCHELL,

922 BROAD STREET, SELMA, ALA.

CHEAPEST PLACE in the State for SCHOOL BOOKS, Blank Books, Writing Paper, Gospel Hymns, Hammocks, Base Ball Goods, Pictures and Picture Frames, Photograph and Autograph Albums,

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS,
Sheet Music and Scrap Books,

Rubber Stamps made to order. Mail or telegraph orders promptly attended to. Subscriptions received for any paper or magazine published. [mar24ly

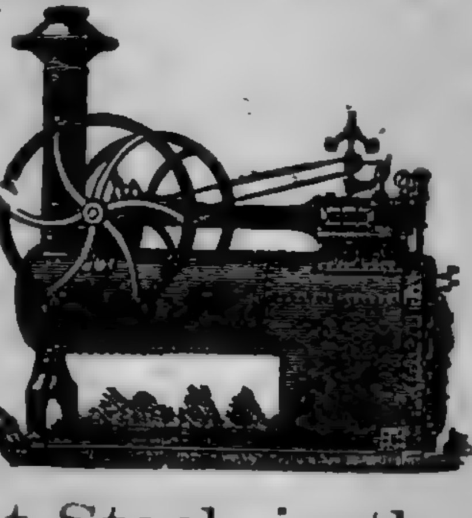
SHAW & DAVIN,

Machinery & Mill Supplies,

—MORRIS AVENUE AND 22D STREET.—

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

ENGINES, BOILERS, SAW MILLS, CORN MILLS, SHINGLE MACHINES, CORN MILLS, SUGAR MILLS,



COTTON GINS, COTTON PRESSES, PULLEYS, SHAFTING, BELTING, and MACHINISTS' SUPPLIES.

Largest Stock in the State.

Write for Circulars and Prices. P. O. Box 808. [july8]

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE.

CURES—Diphtheria, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Bleeding at the Lungs, Hoarseness, Influenza, Hacking Cough, Whooping Cough, Catarrh, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Chronic Diarrhoea, Kidney Troubles, and Spinal Diseases. Pamphlet free. Dr. I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass.

PARSONS' MAKE NEW, RICH BLOOD. PILLS

These pills were a wonderful discovery. No others like them in the world. Will positively cure or relieve all manner of disease. [illegible]

MAKE HENS LAY

[illegible]

TROY STEAM LAUNDRY,
Nos. 17 & 19 N. Lawrence Street,
MONTGOMERY, ALA.
P. O. BOX 282.

☞Orders by mail are solicited and will receive prompt attention.

J. W. GUE, Proprietor.

BRICK WORK

J. M. DAWSON,

CLANTON, ALA.

Is prepared to do all kinds of brick work in the best style. The patronage of the public solicited.

feb15-tf

STOP AT

Morris Avenue Hotel,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Corner Morris Avenue and 20th Street
ELYTON LAND CO. BUILDING.
HUGH KIRKMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Splendid rooms, well ventilated and elegantly furnished. Rates reasonable.

Clanton Barber Shop

—BY—

MEREDITH CANN,

Who is prepared to do all work in the tonsorial line. Hair dressing and shaving in the best style. Prices low.

BANDMAN & CO.,

Wholesale Grocers,

P. O BOX 251,

1st Avenue, bet. 18th and 19th Streets,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Jan 13 6m

TRESSLAR,

Artistic Photographer

10 COURT SQUARE,

Montgomery.

Life Size Photographs a Specialty.

Photographs on Silk, Satin and Linen. Photographs on watch dials. Enameled Photographs.

All Sittings made Instantaneously. Old Pictures Copied and Enlarged.

☞Correspondence solicited.☜

[jan21-tf]

A. W. KEY & CO.,

Manufacturers' State Agents for

Engines, Saw Mills,

BOILERS,

—AND—

General Machinery.

P. O. Box 741,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Nabers & Morrow,

Wholesale Druggists,

FIRST AVENUE,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

MEDICINES,

Fine Wines, Liquors,

Oils, Etc.

☞ Agents for Chess Carley & Co.'s Oils. [june 10].

J. M. Hutchason's

BOARDING, LIVERY

—AND—

SALE STABLES.

Select Dray and Plantation Mules constantly on hand.

Draying and Hauling Promptly Attended to.

Always ready to take Contracts for filling in Dirt.

Moving Stone, Engines, Boilers, Machinery and other heavy hauling.

RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS AND DAMAGE.

Satisfaction Guaranteed. Handsome Carriages and Double Teams, with or without Drivers.

☞MONTGOMERY STABLES,☜
Lawrence Street, Opp. P. O.,
Telephone 446. jan1y

Clanton Academy.

CLANTON, CHILTON CO., ALA.

The course of instruction is divided into three departments, Primary, Junior and High School.

RATES OF TUITION:

Primary Department	$1.50
Junior "	2.50
High School "	3.50

Tuition payable monthly IN ADVANCE.

Public examinations of the pupils of the school will be held at the close of each session, but exhibitions will not be had at any time.

Board can be obtained by pupils of the school in private families in Clanton at very moderate rates.

For further information address

B. E. B. HICKS, Principal.

feb19

Catarrh cured; health and sweet breath secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Nasal Injector free. For sale by M. J. Green.

AGRICULTURAL.

TOPICS OF INTEREST RELATIVE TO FARM AND GARDEN.

Light and Heavy Hay.

In the various rules for estimating the amount of hay in bulk, says the Cultivator, not enough difference is allowed for the variation in weight depending on the condition when cured, the exposure to rain and other causes. The same sorts will have much less weight in proportion to bulk after being dried out by a cold winter. Hay that has been bleached by long exposure to rains will always be light in weight, and be proportionately less valuable than even its weight would indicate. The soluble juices which give hay its greatest value have been washed out by rains, leaving an undue proportion of woody fiber. There is, besides, a considerable variation in the original constituents of grass and hay, depending on the character of the soil on which it is grown. Farmers on wet, mucky and overflowing land complain that their large crops of hay do not pan out well when brought to the weighing scales. Timothy grown on such soil has coarse, hollow stems, with smaller proportion of leaves. Such soils are often deficient in mineral fertilizers, and a dressing of phosphate when the land is seeded makes the crop better and the hay richer and heavier. Still this coarse hay is salable and does not exhaust the soil as does hay grown on upland. This may be one reason why the bulk of hay sold is grown on low, mucky and overflowed lands.

Unnatural Cravings.

Professor Arnold says in the New York Tribune: The habit of gnawing old bones, bits of wood, and various other non-eatable things, is of frequent occurrence in herds of cattle, but much oftener in milch cows, and oftener in old dairy districts than elsewhere. Also, hogs and and horses sometimes delight in eating dirt, and children exhibit a craving for chalk or charcoal, which, it is supposed, they cannot digest. The cause of such unnatural hankerings is doubtless a disturbed condition of health, but just what specific thing occasions the disturbance is not, so far as I am aware, positively known. The fact that it is most common with milch cows in old dairy districts gives rise to a suspicion that exhaustion from the soil, and consequently to some extent from the food, of certain mineral matters which enter into the composition of milk, notably phosphates and pot-ash, may be the principal cause.

With this view some dairymen are in the habit of feeding their cows at short intervals with bone meal and wood ashes as a remedy when they show a tendency to unnatural cravings, and, it is claimed, with good effect; but my cows would never partake of such diet. If there be any truth in this idea it would be better to supply the soil with the efficient elements, since it would improve the growth of crops, while it would cure the disease by removing the cause. Bone meal and potash have a very happy effect in sweetening forage crops as well as increasing their growth, and it has often been noticed that where land is rich and forage crops luxuriant the bone-chewing habit seldom prevails. Of all the cows I have had under my care cases of unnatural craving have been infrequent, and the few that occurred were best relieved by a liberal use of wheat bran.

Farm and Garden Notes.

Irregular feeding milch cows is sheer loss of time and material.

Good, sweet wheat is the best grain for chickens, and as cheap as any.

The old notion that feeding a few chopped apples to cows will scotch the flow of milk is an erroneous one.

Breeding stock need muscle rather than fat, as the latter means a loss of energy, if not health and vigor.

Every animal craves salt, and must have a certain amount introduced into its system to enable it to thrive.

The National Stockman says ensilage is better than the same stalk dried, just as a ripe juicy apple is better than a dried one.

Butter, says Professor Arnold, takes nothing from the soil which affects fertilization in the way that wheat and other crops do.

A teaspoonful of spirits of turpentine in a pint and a half of cornmeal is considered one of the best remedies for gapes when fed to young chicks.

According to experiments made at the Pennsylvania State College, soiling rye yields twenty tons per acre of green crop, and pasture grass seven and a half tons.

The best soils for wool are also the best for mutton, and it is necessary that the land be dry, for damp soils are fruitful causes of such diseases as liver rot, fluke and foot rot.

A correspondent of the English Farmers' Gazette asserts that five pounds of common white beans ground fine and fed in half pound doses of bran twice daily will cure the worst case of bloody milk.

It is recommended that to prevent cows or steers from jumping over fences a horseshoe be nailed to one of the fore-feet, which prevents the hoof from spreading, and consequently renders the animal unable to spring.

An excellent mixture of hay for all classes of stock is one-third clover hay with timothy and red-top, which is much better than either one alone, as the mixture is more complete in food elements. It should be fed with an allowance of ground grain also.

The Montreal Witness says: "The average yield of butter in fair to good dairies, of fifty cows or over, is 175 to 200 pounds a cow; in very good dairies, 250; and a dairy which yields three hundred pounds a year per cow is rare in our best butter sections.

The use of chloride of potassium is recommended in Germany as a means of increasing the growth of wool on sheep, as German chemists have found it beneficial for that purpose. It is administered in the proportion of one part chloride to one part salt.

Save all the wood ashes carefully, and, after the orchards are plowed, scatter the ashes over the plowed ground liberally, and harrow the ground well. This incorporates the ashes with the soil, and assists in inducing chemical changes and the formation of plant food. There is a large portion of lime in wood ashes as well as potash.

A Western farmer advises stringing seed corn by tying the ears together with husks in some place where the grain can be saturated with coal smoke. The odor, he says, repels squirrels and worms from eating the seed. The seed comes up quicker, the plants grow more vigorously, and ripen several days earlier than from seed not so treated.

Too long feeding is a common mistake in fattening fowls for market. It takes off the profits when a shorter time will answer. If kept in a dark place and stuffed with all they can eat they will fatten in twelve days or two weeks, and if this be continued much longer they will begin to get poor again. Those to be kept over should not be subjected to this fattening, or rather stuffing, process.

Somebody is credited with making a good suggestion about scalding hogs butchering day on the farm. He proposes the use of a hogshead set upright in place of a barrel leaned over, and a lever like a well-sweep to use for dropping the hogs into the water and raising them out. This would be much easier and faster than the old way of sliding the hogs into a barrel and rolling them about. It is better, too, because there is a much larger quantity of water, and it will not cool as fast as the smaller quantity in a barrel.

The Freedman's Savings Bank.

The Inter-Ocean gives the following history of the Freedman's Savings Bank: The Freedman's Bank was proposed as a purely charitable enterprise to encourage frugality and thrift among the newly liberated blacks. Mr. Summer reported the chartering the bank, February 17, 1865, and on the 3d of March, following, it became a law. The bank was established in Washington, and branch banks to the number of thirty-four were (afterward) located in different parts of the Union. The institution was authorized to receive the deposits of negroes, and invest the same in the stocks, bonds, Treasury notes, or other securities of the United States. It was not intended to be a money-making concern, either for bankers or depositors, but to provide for the safe-keeping of the Freedman's savings. The government did not guarantee the safety of the bank—though the negroes were generally made to believe that it had done so—nor did it take the proper precautions to secure honest management. As a consequence, a number of the trustees, who were also implicated in many other financial irregularities, were enabled to take complete control of the bank, and manage it to suit their own interests. During the nine years of the bank's existence, it handled no less than $56,000,000 of deposits. Then it suspended payment, and a committee of Congress was appointed to invvestgate matters. It found that the bank had been scandalously mismanaged, its charter regulations ignored, and its funds dissipated by loaning on inadequate security. By law, the investments of the bank were confined to government securities, but this law was ignored, and the funds used to aid the wild-cat schemes of the "ring" and their friends. Unimproved real estate, unsalable stocks (such as that of the Maryland Freestone Mining and Manufacturing Company, alias the "Seneca Stone Company"), and personal notes, were among the assets of the bank. Deficits and embezzlements at the branch banks also produced many losses. The unsecured debts owed by the bank to depositors July 13, 1874, amounted to $2,000,000. The assets, which realized more than was expected, yielded nearly $1,700,000. Dividends have been paid at various times, but many small depositors, through ignorance and despair, forfeited their dividends by not calling for them. In all 77,000 dividends, amounting to $112,000, were thus forfeited. The cost of "winding up" this bank was $475,000. For some years three bank commissioners were employed at a salary of $3,000 each. But in February, 1881, the affairs of the bank were all turned over to the Comptroller of the currency, at a great saving of expenses.

The Life of Cowboys.

Time was, and not long ago either, that the cowboys when they received their pay after the round-up, felt in duty bound to go Miles City and blow it in at the gambling dens, saloons, and other disreputable places. Cow-punching is at best a very tough business, and full of risks to life and limb, and pay is small and by no means adequate, and after the round-up there follows a long period of enforced idleness, during which they are given food and lodging only by the ranch owner. The average cowboy was wont to turn up after his semi-annual spree with a very large head and not a cent in his pocket. Of late, however, the boys have taken a tumble to themselves and are saving their money. So common has the economical spirit become among them that Miles City has seen this year its quietest season.

Most of the cowboys looked upon their coming to Montana to herd cattle as the mistake of their lives. The glowing stories of thrilling adventure and sudden wealth of the cowboys' life, which are common in the East, are in most cases responsible for their entering the guild, but the reality is quite a different matter. Many of the economical ones have been enabled by their savings to return to their Eastern homes.

People who have not been through the bad lands have but a faint conception of the utter desolation and worthlessness of a cowboys' home. He is roasted in summer and frozen in winter. The lands can never be used for anything but grazing, and the distances are therefore something immense. One peculiarity of the country makes rapid riding a very difficult, not to say dangerous, undertaking. The earth is so friable that a tiny watercourse will speedily cut for itself a deep gully or "coolie," as it is called, the depth of which, when filled with snow, is entirely problematical. A horseman who rides up with a cowboys' recklessness may suddenly find himself at the bottom of a six or eight-foot coolie, with his horse on top of him, and no way of getting out of it—if he happens to be still alive—save tunneling up to the head of the stream through the snow. Then one of your broncho's feet is as likely as not to sink suddenly two feet down into a coyote's hole when he is going at a furious pace. Result: His leg snaps off like a pipe stem, and you are shot through the air to a point far beyond, and picked up more dead than alive. The water is generally bitter with alkali, and scorches your throat as you swallow it. There is little to eat, and that is hard to get.—Tomah Enterprise.

Not so Harmless as Supposed.

At Ironton, Ohio, a young reporter for one of the city papers attended an oyster supper given by the ladies of a church society. The youth was waited upon with all the prompt fidelity due to his exalted station. The young man showed his appreciation of this kindness by publishing next day a half-column article on "The Church Festival Oyster," containing all the time-honored witticisms that have been handed down to this generation on that subject. A committee of twelve young ladies waited on him at his lodgings shortly after the appearance of the paper on the street, took him into a smoke-house, tied him to a post, read the article to him and then deluged him from head to foot with a bucketful of oyster soup that had been left from the supper the evening before.—Rochester Democrat.

Professor Herzen has recently shown, from vivisectional experiments, the intimate relation between cold and touch, and that an injury to the cortex of the brain that destroys the sense of touch in any region will usually also abolish the sense of cold.

HOUSEHOLD MATTERS.

Ironing Shirts.

Iron the entire shirt first, then pass a cloth wrung from cold water over the bosom, lay under it a bosom board, draw the linen perfectly straight and take care to leave no wrinkles; if you iron them in you have to mousten the spot, and it rarely looks well after. Be careful to raise any plaits there may be with your iron, so that it does not remain plastered to the under surface; and, above all things, iron until it is dry. The ironing each article until it is dry is very important, as it gives that smooth, crisp feeling to linen which shows the difference between good and bad ironing. If any article is put to air while damp it will dry rough.

Uses of Salt.

Wash the mica of the stove doors with salt and vinegar.

Brass work can be kept beautifully bright by occasionally rubbing with salt and vinegar.

To clean willow furniture, use salt and water. Apply it with a nail brush, scrub well and dry thoroughly.

If, after having a tooth pulled, the mouth is filled with salt and water, it will allay the danger of having a hemorrhage.

Salt as a tooth powder is better than almost any thing that can be bought. It keeps the teeth brilliantly white and the gums hard and rosy.

To wash silk handkerchiefs, soak them first in cold salt and water for ten minutes or longer, then wash out in the same water and iron immediately.

Carpets may be greatly brightened by first sweeping thoroughly and then going over them with a clean cloth and clear salt and water. Use a cupful of coarse salt to a large basin of water.

Nothing is better for a sore throat than a gargle of salt and water. It may be used as often as desired, and if a little is swallowed each time it is used it will cleanse the throat and allay the irritation.

Salt, in doses of one to four teaspoonfuls in half a pint to a pint of tepid water, is an emetic always on hand. This is also the antidote to be used after poisoning from nitrate of silver while waiting for the doctor to come.

If the feet are tender or painful after long walking or standing great relief can be had by bathing them in salt and water. A handful of salt to a gallon of water is the right proportion. Have the water as hot as can comfortably be borne. Immerse the feet and throw the water over the legs as far as the knees with the hands. When the water becomes too cool rub briskly with a flesh towel. This method, if used night and morning, will cure neuralgia of the feet.—Good Housekeeping.

Recipes.

STEAMED RICE.—One cup of rice, one teaspoon of salt, three cups of boiling water; steam one hour; add one cup of sweet milk, cook twenty minutes longer, when it is ready to serve with cream and sugar.

CURRIED EGGS.—Melt a little butter, stir in a teaspoonful of curry powder, add by degrees a large tablespoonful of flour and a cup of stock; season. Boil six eggs hard, cut them in halves, put put neatly in a deep dish, pour on the sauce and keep all hot a little before using.

WHITE BREAD.—Pare and boil soft six potatoes in two quarts of water, strain through a colander boiling hot on to one cup of flour; stir well; and when cool add one yeast cake soaked in warm water. Keep it warm until it is light, then stir it well and keep it in a cool place until morning. Then stir it into the middle of your tray of flour (adding warm water enough to made the desired quantity of bread), add a little salt and cover the top of this batter with flour, and keep it warm until it cracks the flour and foams up through. Then add flour and mix up stiff and let it rise again. Then knead up into loaves, put into pans, let it rise again, not too light, and bake one hour very carefully.

ROAST BEEF.—A piece of beef weighing eight or ten pounds will take a little over two hours to roast. Some allow fifteen minutes to each pound of beef. Prepare it by wiping with a dry napkin, but never washing, rub over it a little salt and pepper, and put it into a dry pan to roast in a hot oven. The heat will soon seal in the juices and retain them till the piece is cut at the table. Baste occasionally. If the flavor of sweet herbs and vegetables (as carrot, turnip, onion, etc.) is relished in the gravy, put a few slices of these last, with a bay leaf or two and a little thyme and parsley, into the pan, to make a bed on which to lay the beef. When it is done, add more seasoning, remove the beef, take out the vegetables if used, add hot water to the gravy, thicken it, being careful to avoid lumps. Serve either over the meat or in a gravy-boat, as one prefers.

Fire Signs.

Several superstitions of the fire stove are recorded in an excellent work on "Popular Antiquities" by Mr. John Brand, published a few years ago. Among many curious traditions appears this passage: "In his memoirs of Duncan Campbel, Defoe refers to the fire as affording a kind of divination to the omen mongers, who see "swords, guns, castles, churches, prisons, coffins, wedding rings, bags of money, men and women, or coals;' whatever they wish or fear plainly deciphered in the glowing and among Nature's secrets. Willsford discloses the following: "When our common fires burn with a pale flame they presage foul weather; if the fire makes a buzzing noise it is a sign of tempest near at hand; when the fire sparkles very much it is a sign of rain; when pots are newly taken off the fire, if they sparkle (the soot upon them being aflame) it presages rain; when the fire scorches and burns more vehemently than usual, it is a sign of frosty weather, but if the live coals shine brighter than ordinary at other times, rain may be looked for; if wood or any other fuel crackles and emits wind more than ordinary, it is an evident sign of tempestuous weather near at hand, and the sudden and plentiful falling of soot heralds rain." "Mollinæus," says Mr. Brand, "interprets the sudden eruption of flame from a dead fire (ex cineribus) as betokening joy."—London Society.

The Smallest Baby.

The smallest baby probably ever born, first saw light in Candelaria in Nevada. The father was a miner, and weighed 190 pounds, while the mother weighed 168 pounds. The baby was a boy, perfectly formed, but at its birth it weighed only eight ounces. Its face was about the size of a horse chestnut, and the limbs were so small that the mother could slip a ring from her little finger over the foot nearly up to the knee.—Christian at Work.

The man who puts up a barbed-wire fence in Nebraska is responsible for any damage resulting to man or animals therefrom.

SHERIDAN'S COURTSHIP.

An Incident in the Hero's Wooing Not Recorded in Biographies.

Not long since at a dinner, given in New York, Gen. Sheridan related an incident that befel him while calling on the young lady who is the present Mrs. Sherman. During the war General Sheridan was too much occupied defending his country to fall in love. When the malady finally overtook him in Chicago, after the war, Sheridan had passed what is generally called the romantic stage and was settling down into a well-seasoned old bachelorhood. Old bachelors make the most enthusiastic of lovers, and the General admitted that he was no exception to the rule.

"It was a warm summer evening," Sheridan began, "and upon my arrival at the house the young lady and myself retired to the back parlor. The front parlor opened into the hall, and as the night was warm, you know, we did not think it necessary to light the gas in the back room. Now this young lady's father had a great fear of burglars. He had burglar-alarms all over the house, and had recently put a new alarm on the front door. Neither the young lady nor myself knew anything about the alarm on the front door. After a time the old gentleman came down stairs, set his alarm on the door, and seeing the dim light in the front parlor, supposed that I had gone and turned out the light in the hall. We were busily engaged in talking, you know, and somehow did not hear him. Finally when I got up to leave the young lady accompanied me to the door. We were surprised to find the light turned and in tumbling around for the door knob I set off the burglar-alarm. It seemed to me that I never knew a burglar alarm to work so well before. It sounded like the explosion of a keg of dynamite. A moment later the father of the young lady appeared at the head of the stairs in his night-dress, holding a light in one hand and a large pistol in the other. At this apparition the young lady deserted me and fled into the darkness. My position was positively dangerous. I suppose I had been in dangerous places before without thinking of it, but I confess for the moment I trembled all over with fear and scarcely mustered up voice enough to say, 'Don't shoot; it's me.' Fortunately he recognized my voice and came down and let me out.

"Now, you know gentlemen," he concluded, "if the young lady had stood by me there would have been no danger, but she didn't, you know, and my position was rather awkward before I was recognized. One might die on the field of battle without regret, but I should hate to be shot as a midnight marauder. I only tell the story because is actually took place as I have said, and to show that there are times when we may all lose our courage.

From Shaycogo.

"Does this street lead to the day-po?" asked a very stylish young man of a drayman on Jefferson avenue.

"It does, sir."

"Ah! thanks."

"Did you hear him call it day-po?" asked the drayman of one of his craft after the stranger had passed on.

"Indade I did."

"Wasn't it strange?"

"Not a bit. He was evidently going to Shaycogo."—Detroit Free Press.

"November, 1880," wrote Jos. P. Murphy, Springfield, Tenn., "my wife suffered eighteen months with neuralgia and paralysis. By use of St. Jacobs Oil, she could walk." October 7th, 1886, he writes. "My wife recovered entirely." Price fifty cents.

A man who edited an agricultural journal for fifteen years, and devoted many hours to telling farmers how to cultivate their crops and grow rich, purchased a farm and tried it himself a year ago, and last week he was sold out by the sheriff.—Norristown Herald.

Charles Tiel, Philadelphia, Pa., was in a hopeless condition from throat trouble and asthma. Red Star Cough Cure cured him. Price twenty-five cents. At druggists.

Mrs. Jenness Miller, of dress reform renown, will confer a great favor on humanity if she will invent a pocket for a woman's skirt which can be found by the average husband when the dress is hanging in the closet, without turning his hair gray.—Puck.

"Nip't in the Bud!"

Sad to say, many a good thing attains to nothing more than a fair beginning. On the other hand it is a matter for congratulation that the growth of some evil things may be also promptly frustrated. A large proportion of the cases of the most wide-spread and fatal of diseases—consumption—have their inception in nasal catarrh. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is pleasant, soothing and effectual. Try it. It has cured thousands. All druggists.

God is knowable but unfathomable.—Joseph Cook.

Chronic Coughs and Colds,

And all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, can be cured by the use of SCOTT'S EMULSION, as it contains the healing virtues of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites in their fullest form. Is a beautiful creamy Emulsion, palatable as milk, easily digested, and can be taken by the most delicate. Please read: "I consider Scott's Emulsion the remedy par excellence in Tuberculous and Strumous Affections, to say nothing of ordinary colds and throat troubles."—W. R. S. CONNELL, M. D., Manchester, O.

Lard is the best polish to put into starch.

A Printer's Error.

Sweet are the uses of adversity, the printer's copy said, but he set it up, sweet are the uses of advertising. Sweet, indeed, to those who in sickness and suffering have seen the advertisement of some sovereign remedy, which upon trial has brought them from death's door. "The best thing I ever saw in my paper was the advertisement of Dr. Pierce's 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" is again and again the testimony of those who have been healed by it of lung disease, bronchial affections, tumors, ulcers, liver complaints and the ills to which flesh is heir.

A wise night key—One that knows its own keyhole.

Nervous debility, in either sex, however induced, speedily, thoroughly and permanently cured. Address, with 10 cents in stamps for reply and book of particulars, World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main stret, Buffalo, N. Y.

Universal history is, at bottom, but the history of great men.—Carlyle.

Farmers,

Send 10 cents to the PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CO., St. Louis, Mo., and get a copy of "THE HORSE TRAINER." A complete system, teaching how to break and train horses in a mild and gentle way, requiring no elaborate apparatus, nothing more than can be found in any stable in the country—a rope and a strap. Every one handling horses should have a copy.

Deep Sea Wonders

Exist in thousands of forms, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention. Those who are in need of profitable work that can be done while at home should at once send their address to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free, full information how either sex, of all ages, can earn from $5 to $25 per day wherever they live. You are started free. Capital not required. Some have made over $50 in a single day at this work. All succeed.

An Expensive Delay,

is failing to provide the proper means to expel from the system those disease germs which cause scrofula, indigestion, debility, rheumatism, and sick headache. The only reliable means is Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic.

If you are suffering from Chronic Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, or Loss of Voice, Dr. [illegible]

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.

[illegible] Dr. J. B. Marchisi, Utica, N. Y.

Relief is immediate, and a cure sure. [illegible] for Catarrh. [illegible]

SIGNIFICANT!

Some of the Last Public Opinions of a Great Man.

New York Correspondence Cleveland Leader.

One has a most excellent opportunity to study "man" as represented by the average New Yorkers. Among the wealthy classes, very many of them have the waxy skin, dropsical flesh, and "puffed eyes" that are indicative of serious kidney affection. "Bright's disease" is plainly written on their faces. Since General Logan's death the subject of rheumatism is being discussed by the medical profession.

Every intelligent person, with any knowledge of the human system, is well aware that if the kidneys are in good condition all unnecessary material is regularly carried off by them. If not, various acids, such as uric acid, one of the chief causes of rheumatism, are left in excess, creating deposits that cause all sorts of chronic organic diseases. It would seem, therefore, that rheumatism, like dropsy, is not a disease, but the result of a disease, and it is safe to say that if the stomach and kidneys are kept in healthful condition, there will be no deaths from rheumatism.

General Logan was well aware that his disease was of the kidneys, and once expressed himself in indignant terms at the folly of doctors treating him for rheumatism, when it was the kidneys that caused his attacks. The high living and the excesses in all things prevalent among wealthy men in large cities, especially in New York, is the chief cause for Bright's disease, and the aristocratic trouble known as rheumatism, even as insufficient and improper food bring about the same results among the very poor.

The above article, which we reproduce because of its general interest, is very significant. The public believes that rheumatism is an effect of diseased blood, this disease being caused by uric acid or kidney poison. Enough of this is developed daily to kill several men, and if it is not removed by the kidneys as fast as formed, it gradually ruins the health.

This fact is a scientific demonstration.

If doctors do not admit it, it is probably because they do not wish to attract attention to the menace deranged kidneys offers to the general health, since they have no authorized specific for these organs.

General Logan knew what his real trouble was, and he recognized the nonsense of treating the effects—the real seat of the disease was the kidneys. Senator Sittig, of Illinois, whose vote elected Logan Senator after four months of balloting, tells us that Logan often complained to him of great distress in his kidneys. Disease of the kidneys always produces rheumatism, and besides that, it causes paralysis, apoplexy, impotency, stomach and blood disorders, brain troubles, female complaints and countless other diseases which would almost never develop if the blood was kept free of uric acid or kidney poison.

These facts the public recognizes even though medical gentlemen, for very evident reasons, will not publicly acknowledge them lest, perchance, some proprietary medicine like Warner's safe cure, now admitted to be the only scientific specific, will get the benefit.

Fie on such bigotry! It has been authoritatively stated time and again that there can be no real sound health if there is any false action of the kidneys. Insurance companies refuse millions of risks on this ground alone, hence it is that there is such universal popularity given to the great preparation named—a popularity that is based upon intrinsic merit.

Too much dependence upon professional advice, especially in matters over which medical men admit they have no power, too often results very disastrously, but of what use to the victim is experience gained by fatal disaster!

How much better it is to be guided by an unprejudiced public opinion in such matters.

Had Logan been so guided, he might have been spared many years.

Vinegar and salt will clean copper and brass, to be thoroughly removed afterward.

That Tired Feeling

Is so general at this season that every one knows what is meant by the expression. A change of season, climate, or of life, has such a depressing effect upon the body that one feels all tired out, almost completely prostrated, the appetite is lost, and there is no ambition to do anything. The whole tendency of the system is downward. In this condition Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It purifies the blood, sharpens the appetite, overcomes the tired feeling, and invigorates every function of the body. Try it.

"We all like Hood's Sarsaparilla, it is so strengthening."—LIZZIE BALFOUR, Auburn, P. Q.

The Weak Made Strong

"I never took any medicine that did me so much good in so short a time as Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was very much run down, had no strength, no energy, and felt very tired all the time. I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before I had used one bottle felt like a different person. That extreme tired feeling has gone, my appetite returned, and it toned me up generally. My brother and sister have also received great benefit from it."—CLARA W. PHELPS, Shirley, Mass.

N. B.—Be sure to get the peculiar medicine,

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

DR. KILMER'S INDIAN COUGH-CURE CONSUMPTION OIL .25¢ SAVES YOUR LIFE.

Stop that Cold, Cough, and Tickling in the Throat. Arrest that Catarrh, Bronchitis or Asthma. This Remedy relieves quickly, Cures permanently. It prevents Decline, Night-Sweats and death from Consumption. Prepared at DR. KILMER'S DISPENSARY, Binghamton, N. Y. Letters of inquiry answered. Guide to Health (Sent Free). Sold by Druggists.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit cured in 10 to 30 days. Refer to 1000 patients cured in all parts. DR. MARSH, Quincy, Mich.

KAFFIR CORN for Forage and Grain. Trial pkt seed mailed for 10c silver, 1 pound by express 35c, 3 pounds $1, to-day. Address M. A. REED, Dalton, Ga.

Don't Buy Until you find out the new Improvements.

WATCHES

Save the middleman's PROFITS.

SEND FOR CATALOGUES

J. P. STEVENS & BRO

47 Whitehall Street, Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA SAW WORKS.

Manufacturers of and Dealers in Saws and Saw-Mill Supplies. Repairing a Specialty. Agents for L. Power & Company's Wood Working Machinery. Large and complete stock. Write for catalogue. ATLANTA, GA.

T. F. SEITZINGER

33 W. Mitchell St., near Broad, ATLANTA, GA.

Manufacturer Gutta-Percha Roller Composition.

Rollers cast every day. Printers and Publishers will find it to their advantage to send their orders direct to me. Send for Circulars and Price-List.

OPIUM AND MORPHINE HABIT Quickly and Permanently cured by DR. TANNER'S OPIUM AND MORPHINE CURE. For sale by all Druggists. $1.00 Per Bottle. For Circulars and information address BENJAMIN & CRONHEIM, 161 Whitehall Street, or P. O. Box 155, ATLANTA, GA.

BUSINESS Education a specialty at MOORE'S BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, Ga. One of the best schools in the Country. Send for Circulars.

Young Men Can get the most Practical Business Education at Goldsmith's School of Business, 23½ S Broad St. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Circulars & Specimens of Penmanship.

TAPEWORM [illegible]

LADY AGENTS WANTED [illegible]

$15.00 [illegible]

Mighty Sensible Talk.

The correspondence between Major Young, of Charleston, and John Brown, Jr., about that famous five dollar bill, is of national importance.

The son of Harper's Ferry Brown hopes that "the bloody chasm" of other days will be filled up with "fraternity" enough to make the ground even. And he adds that the politicians who "fought their battles seated on dry goods boxes at the street corners" will pass away in good time, and then we shall have no more sectional prejudice. As for the men who "looked into each other's eyes across sabres and bayonets," they shook hands long ago, and are now so busy trading with each other that the dead past, which has buried its dead, is—well, it's the dead past.

The Brown family seem to have a good deal of common sense.—New York Herald.

SNOB—"I have come to allow you to paint my portrait." Disgusted artist—"You have made a mistake. The animal painter has his studio the next flight above."

Disorders Which Affect the Kidneys

Are among the most formidable known. Diabetes, Bright's disease, gravel and other complaints of the urinary organs, are not ordinarily cured in severe cases, but they may be averted by timely medication. A useful stimulant for the urinary glands has ever been found in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine which not only affords the requisite stimulus when they become inactive, but increases their vigor and secretive power. By increasing the activity of the kidneys and bladder, this medicine has the additional effect of expelling from the blood impurities which it is the peculiar office of those organs to eliminate and pass off. The Bitters is also a purifier and strengthener of the bowels, an invigorant of the stomach, and a matchless remedy for biliousness, and fever and ague. It counteracts a tendency to premature decay and sustains and comforts the aged and infirm.

The character of a nation is not to be learnt from its fine folks.

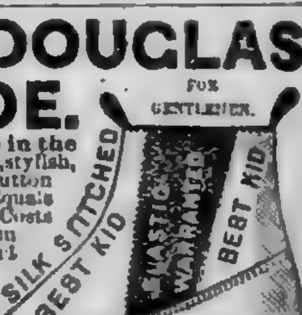
BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

Highest Awards of Medals in Europe and America.

The neatest, quickest, safest and most powerful remedy known for Rheumatism, Pleurisy, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Backache, Weakness, cold in the chest and all aches and pains. Endorsed by 5,000 Physicians and Druggists of the highest repute. Benson's Plasters promptly relieve and cure where other plasters and greasy salves, liniments and lotions, are absolutely useless. Beware of imitations under similar sounding names, such as "Capsicum," "Capucin," "Capsicine," as they are utterly worthless and intended to deceive. ASK FOR BENSON'S AND TAKE NO OTHERS. All druggists.

SEABURY & JOHNSON, Proprietors, New York.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3 SHOE. FOR GENTLEMEN.



The best $3 Shoe in the world. Best material, stylish, perfect fit; Congress, Button or Lace; all styles toe. Equals any $5 or $6 Shoe. Costs nothing to examine them at your dealer's. I send information free how to obtain these celebrated $3 Shoes if your dealer does not keep them. W. L. DOUGLAS' $2.50 Shoe equals $3 Shoes advertised by other firms. Boys all wear W. L. Douglas' $2 Shoe. Beware of fraud. None genuine unless name and price are stamped on bottom of each Shoe.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.

OAKLAWN

The Great Nursery of

PERCHERON HORSES.

200 Imported Brood Mares Of Choicest Families.

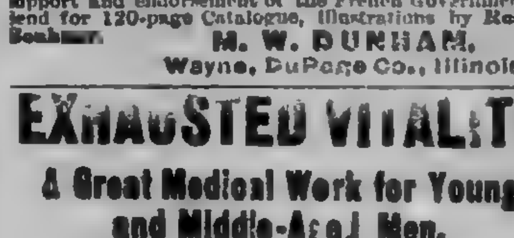
LARGE NUMBERS, All Ages, both Sexes, IN STOCK.

300 to 400 IMPORTED ANNUALLY from France, all recorded with extended pedigrees in the Percheron Stud Books. The Percheron is the only draft breed of France possessing a stud book that has the support and endorsement of the French Government. Send for 120-page Catalogue, illustrations by Rosa Bonheur.

M. W. DUNHAM, Wayne, DuPage Co., Illinois.

EXHAUSTED VITALITY

A Great Medical Work for Young and Middle-Aged Men.



KNOW THYSELF.

PUBLISHED by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, No. 4 Bulfinch St., Boston, Mass. WM. H. PARKER, M. D., Author. More than one million copies sold. It treats upon Nervous and Physical Debility, Premature Decline, Exhausted Vitality, Impaired Vigor, and Impurities of the Blood, and the untold miseries consequent thereon. Contains 300 pages, substantial embossed binding, full gilt. Warranted the best popular medical treatise published in the English language. Price only $1 by mail, postpaid, and concealed in a plain wrapper. Illustrative sample free if you send now. Address as above. Name this paper.

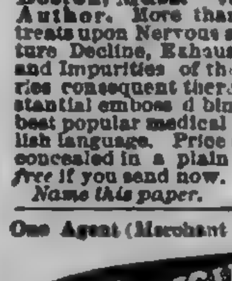
One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for TANSILL'S PUNCH 5¢

During the last year you have [illegible] "Tansill's Punch." This month you have sold me 21,000, almost all of which have been sold, from one to five to each person. You will please ship 5,000 every Saturday until further notice.

C. S. PROWITT, Druggist, Denver, Col.

Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

JONES HE PAYS the FREIGHT



5 Ton Wagon Scales, Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box for $60. Every size Scale. For free price list mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

SOLID FACTS!

"Seven Springs" Iron-Alum Mass, will give you an appetite, strengthen you up, cure Dyspepsia, Diarrhoea and all Headaches, purify the blood, act on the Kidneys, relieve Catarrh and ward off malaria. Price, 50c. and $1.00 per bottle.

Dickey's Painless Eyewater cures inflamed eyes at once. No cure, no pay. Ask for it. Sold by Druggists or sent by mail postpaid. Price 25c. DICKEY & ANDERSON, Manufacturers, BRISTOL, TENN.

ASTHMA CURED! German Asthma Cure never fails to give immediate relief in the worst cases, insures comfortable sleep; effects cures where all others fail. A trial convinces the most skeptical. Price 50 cts. and $1.00, of Druggists or by mail. Sample FREE for stamp. DR. R. SCHIFFMAN, St. Paul, Minn.

THURSTON'S IVORY PEARL TOOTH POWDER Keeping Teeth Perfect and Gums Healthy.

Pensions to Soldiers & Heirs. Send stamp for circulars. COL. L. BING-HAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE. Lines not under the horse's feet. Address BREWSTER'S SAFETY REIN HOLDER, Holly, Mich.

TOWER'S FISH BRAND SLICKER

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

IT IS A PURELY VEGETABLE PREPARATION CONTAINING PRICKLY ASH BARK AND PRICKLY ASH BERRIES, SENNA—MANDRAKE—BUCHU AND OTHER EQUALLY EFFICIENT REMEDIES. It has stood the Test of Years, in Curing all Diseases of the BLOOD, LIVER, STOMACH, KIDNEYS, BOWELS, &c. It Purifies the Blood, Invigorates and Cleanses the System.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CURES ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER KIDNEYS STOMACH AND BOWELS. FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS. PRICE 1 DOLLAR

DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, JAUNDICE, SICKHEADACHE, BILIOUS COMPLAINTS, &c. disappear at once under its beneficial influence.

It is purely a Medicine as its cathartic properties forbids its use as a beverage. It is pleasant to the taste, and as easily taken by children as adults.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CO. Sole Proprietors, ST. LOUIS and KANSAS CITY.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

HAINESVILLE, N. J.,
October 15, 1886.

E. T. HAZELTINE,
Warren, Pa.

Dear Sir:

I was taken with a very severe cold last Spring, and tried every cure we had in the store, and could get no help.

I had our village doctor prescribe for me, but kept getting worse. I saw another physician from Port Jervis, N. Y., and he told me he used Piso's Cure for Consumption in his practice.

I bought a bottle, and before I had taken all of it there was a change for the better. Then I got my employer to order a quantity of the medicine and keep it in stock. I took one more bottle, and my Cough was cured.

Respectfully,
FRANK MCKELVY.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

HARTER'S THE ONLY TRUE IRON TONIC

Will purify the BLOOD, regulate the LIVER and KIDNEYS and RESTORE the HEALTH and VIGOR OF YOUTH. Dyspepsia, Want of Appetite, Indigestion, Lack of Strength and Tired Feeling absolutely cured: Bones, muscles and nerves receive new force. Enlivens the mind and supplies Brain Power.

LADIES Suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex will find in DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC a safe and speedy cure. Gives a clear, healthy complexion. Frequent attempts at counterfeiting only add to the popularity of the original. Do not experiment—get the ORIGINAL AND BEST.

Dr. HARTER'S LIVER PILLS Cure Constipation, Liver Complaint and Sick Headache. Sample Dose and Dream Book mailed on receipt of two cents in postage.

THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE COMPANY, St. Louis, Mo.

Ask your retailer for the James Means' $3 Shoe. Caution! Some dealers recommend inferior goods in order to make a larger profit. This is the original $3 Shoe. Beware of imitations which acknowledge their own inferiority by attempting to build upon the reputation of the original. None Genuine unless bearing this Stamp

JAMES MEANS' $3 SHOE For Gentlemen.

Made in Button, Congress and Lace. Best Calf Skin. Unexcelled in Durability, Comfort and Appearance. A postal card sent to us will bring you information how to get this Shoe in any State or Territory.

J. Means & Co. 41 Lincoln St. Boston, Mass.

Our celebrated factory produces a larger quantity of Shoes of this grade than any other factory in the world. Thousands who wear them will tell you the reason if you ask them. JAMES MEANS' $2 SHOE for Boys is unapproached in Durability.

MONEY FOR THE HONEST! In amounts of $50 to $500, on One to Ten years time. Our new plan—available to all, burdensome to none. State amount you can safely use, also age and occupation. The System is Full, with Forms, etc., Free, on receipt of stamp. No postals answered.

I. BUTLER, Sec'y, Bradford Block, Cor. Sixth & Vine, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

SHOW CASES. WALL CASES.

DESKS, OFFICE FURNITURE AND FIXTURES. Ask for Illustrated Pamphlet. TERRY SHOW CASE CO., Nashville, Tenn.

HARTSHORN'S Shade Rollers

ARKANSAS MILD CLIMATE! Lands! Variety of PRODUCTS! LOW PRICES! EASY TERMS! MAPS AND CIRCULARS FREE. THOS. ESSEX, Land Com'r, Little Rock.

Blair's Pills. Great English Gout and Rheumatic Remedy. Oval Box $1.00; round, 50 cts.

PATENTS Obtained. Send stamp for Inventors' Guide. L. BINGHAM, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

OPIUM Habit Cured. Treatment sent on trial. HUMANE REMEDY CO., LaFayette, Ind.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Also good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Hay Fever, &c. 50 cents.

A. N. U.

REV. DR. TAL

THE BROOKLYN DIV DAY SERMON

Subject: "Cheer For th aned." (Preached a sas City, Mo.)

TEXT: "No man cared for Psalms cxlii., 4.

AGRICULTURAL.

TOPICS OF INTEREST RELATIVE TO FARM AND GARDEN.

Light and Heavy Hay.

In the various rules for estimating the amount of hay in bulk, says the Cultivator, not enough difference is allowed for the variation in weight depending on the condition when cured, the exposure to rain and other causes. The same sorts will have much less weight in proportion to bulk after being dried out by a cold winter. Hay that has been bleached by long exposure to rains will always be light in weight, and be proportionately less valuable than even its weight would indicate. The soluble juices which give hay its greatest value have been washed out by rains, leaving an undue proportion of woody fiber. There is, besides, a considerable variation in the original constituents of grass and hay, depending on the character of the soil on which it is grown. Farmers on wet, mucky and overflowing land complain that their large crops of hay do not pan out well when brought to the weighing scales. Timothy grown on such soil has coarse, hollow stems, with smaller proportion of leaves. Such soils are often deficient in mineral fertilizers, and a dressing of phosphate when the land is seeded makes the crop better and the hay richer and heavier. Still this coarse hay is salable and does not exhaust the soil as does hay grown on upland. This may be one reason why the bulk of hay sold is grown on low, mucky and overflowed lands.

Unnatural Cravings.

Professor Arnold says in the New York Tribune: The habit of gnawing old bones, bits of wood, and various other non-eatable things, is of frequent occurrence in herds of cattle, but much oftener in milch cows, and oftener in old dairy districts than elsewhere. Also, hogs and and horses sometimes delight in eating dirt, and children exhibit a craving for chalk or charcoal, which, it is supposed, they cannot digest. The cause of such unnatural hankerings is doubtless a disturbed condition of health, but just what specific thing occasions the disturbance is not, so far as I am aware, positively known. The fact that it is most common with milch cows in old dairy districts gives rise to a suspicion that exhaustion from the soil, and consequently to some extent from the food, of certain mineral matters which enter into the composition of milk, notably phosphates and pot-ash, may be the principal cause.

With this view some dairymen are in the habit of feeding their cows at short intervals with bone meal and wood ashes as a remedy when they show a tendency to unnatural cravings, and, it is claimed, with good effect; but my cows would never partake of such diet. If there be any truth in this idea it would be better to supply the soil with the efficient elements, since it would improve the growth of crops, while it would cure the disease by removing the cause. Bone meal and potash have a very happy effect in sweetening forage crops as well as increasing their growth, and it has often been noticed that where land is rich and forage crops luxuriant the bone-chewing habit seldom prevails. Of all the cows I have had under my care cases of unnatural craving have been infrequent, and the few that occurred were best relieved by a liberal use of wheat bran.

Farm and Garden Notes.

Irregular feeding milch cows is sheer loss of time and material.

Good, sweet wheat is the best grain for chickens, and as cheap as any.

The old notion that feeding a few chopped apples to cows will scotch the flow of milk is an erroneous one.

Breeding stock need muscle rather than fat, as the latter means a loss of energy, if not health and vigor.

Every animal craves salt, and must have a certain amount introduced into its system to enable it to thrive.

The National Stockman says ensilage is better than the same stalk dried, just as a ripe juicy apple is better than a dried one.

Butter, says Professor Arnold, takes nothing from the soil which affects fertilization in the way that wheat and other crops do.

A teaspoonful of spirits of turpentine in a pint and a half of cornmeal is considered one of the best remedies for gapes when fed to young chicks.

According to experiments made at the Pennsylvania State College, soiling rye yields twenty tons per acre of green crop, and pasture grass seven and a half tons.

The best soils for wool are also the best for mutton, and it is necessary that the land be dry, for damp soils are fruitful causes of such diseases as liver rot, fluke and foot rot.

A correspondent of the English Farmers' Gazette asserts that five pounds of common white beans ground fine and fed in half pound doses of bran twice daily will cure the worst case of bloody milk.

It is recommended that to prevent cows or steers from jumping over fences a horseshoe be nailed to one of the forefeet, which prevents the hoof from spreading, and consequenty renders the animal unable to spring.

An excellent mixture of hay for all classes of stock is one-third clover hay with timothy and red-top, which is much better than either one alone, as the mixture is more complete in food elements. It should be fed with an allowance of ground grain also.

The Montreal Witness says: "The average yield of butter in fair to good dairies, of fifty cows or over, is 175 to 200 pounds a cow; in very good dairies, 250; and a dairy which yields three hundred pounds a year per cow is rare in our best butter sections.

The use of chloride of potassium is recommended in Germany as a means of increasing the growth of wool on sheep, as German chemists have found it beneficial for that purpose. It is administered in the proportion of one part chloride to one part salt.

Save all the wood ashes carefully, and, after the orchards are plowed, scatter the ashes over the plowed ground liberally, and harrow the ground well. This incorporates the ashes with the soil, and assists in inducing chemical changes and the formation of plant food. There is a large portion of lime in wood ashes as well as potash.

A Western farmer advises stringing seed corn by tying the ears together with husks in some place where the grain can be saturated with coal smoke. The odor, he says, repels squirrels and worms from eating the seed. The seed comes up quicker, the plants grow more vigorously, and ripen several days earlier than from seed not so treated.

Too long feeding is a common mistake in fattening fowls for market. It takes off the profits when a shorter time will answer. If kept in a dark place and stuffed with all they can eat they will fatten in twelve days or two weeks, and if this be continued much longer they will begin to get poor again. Those to be kept over should not be subjected to this fattening, or rather stuffing, process.

Somebody is credited with making a good suggestion about scalding hogs butchering day on the farm. He proposes the use of a hogshead set upright in place of a barrel leaned over, and a lever like a well-sweep to use for dropping the hogs into the water and raising them out. This would be much easier and faster than the old way of sliding the hogs into a barrel and rolling them about. It is better, too, because there is a much larger quantity of water, and it will not cool as fast as the smaller quantity in a barrel.

The Freedman's Savings Ba.

The Inter-Ocean gives the following history of the Freedman's Savings Bank: The Freedman's Bank was proposed as a purely charitable enterprise to encourage frugality and thrift among the newly liberated blacks. Mr. Sumner reported the chartering the bank, February 17, 1865, and on the 3d of March, following, it became a law. The bank was established in Washington, and branch banks to the number of thirty-four were (afterward) located in different parts of the Union. The institution was authorized to receive the deposits of negroes, and invest the same in the stocks, bonds, Treasury notes, or other securities of the United States. It was not intended to be a money-making concern, either for bankers or depositors, but to provide for the safe-keeping of the Freedman's savings. The government did not guarantee the safety of the bank—though the negroes were generally made to believe that it had done so—nor did it take the proper precautions to secure honest management. As a consequence, a number of the trustees, who were also implicated in many other financial irregularities, were enabled to take complete control of the bank, and manage it to suit their own interests. During the nine years of the bank's existence, it handled no less than $56,000,000 of deposits. Then it suspended payment, and a committee of Congress was appointed to investgate matters. It found that the bank had been scandalously mismanaged, its charter regulations ignored, and its funds dissipated by loaning on inadequate security. By law, the investments of the bank were confined to government securities, but this law was ignored, and the funds used to aid the wild-cat schemes of the "ring" and their friends. Unimproved real estate, unsalable stocks (such as that of the Maryland Freestone Mining and Manufacturing Company, alias the "Seneca Stone Company"), and personal notes, were among the assets of the bank. Deficits and embezzlements at the branch banks also produced many losses. The unsecured debts owed by the bank to depositors July 13, 1874, amounted to $2,900,000. The assets, which realized more than was expected, yielded nearly $1,700,000. Dividends have been paid at various times, but many small depositors, through ignorance and despair, forfeited their dividends by not calling for them. In all 77,000 dividends, amounting to $112,000, were thus forfeited. The cost of "winding up" this bank was $475,000. For some years three bank commissioners were employed at a salary of $3,000 each. But in February, 1881, the affairs of the bank were all turned over to the Comptroller of the currency, at a great saving of expenses.

The Life of Cowboys.

Time was, and not long ago either, that the cowboys when they received their pay after the round-up, felt in duty bound to go Miles City and blow it in at the gambling dens, saloons, and other disreputable places. Cow-punching is at best a very tough business, and full of risks to life and limb, and pay is small and by no means adequate, and after the round-up there follows a long period of enforced idleness, during which they are given food and lodging only by the ranch owner. The average cowboy was wont to turn up after his semi-annual spree with a very large head and not a cent in his pocket. Of late, however, the boys have taken a tumble to themselves and are saving their money. So common has the economical spirit become among them that Miles City has seen this year its quietest season.

Most of the cowboys looked upon their coming to Montana to herd cattle as the mistake of their lives. The glowing stories of thrilling adventure and sudden wealth of the cowboys' life, which are common in the East, are in most cases responsible for their entering the guild, but the reality is quite a different matter. Many of the economical ones have been enabled by their savings to return to their Eastern homes.

People who have not been through the bad lands have but a faint conception of the utter desolation and worthlessness of a cowboys' home. He is roasted in summer and frozen in winter. The lands can never be used for anything but grazing, and the distances are therefore something immense. One peculiarity of the country makes rapid riding a very difficult, not to say dangerous, undertaking. The earth is so friable that a tiny watercourse will speedily cut for itself a deep gully or "coolie," as it is called, the depth of which, when filled with snow, is entirely problematical. A horseman who rides up with a cowboys' recklessness may suddenly find himself at the bottom of a six or eight-foot coolie, with his horse on top of him, and no way of getting out of it—if he happens to be still alive—save tunneling up to the head of the stream through the snow. Then one of your broncho's feet is as likely as not to sink suddenly two feet down into a coyote's hole when he is going at a furious pace. Result: His leg snaps off like a pipe stem, and you are shot through the air to a point far beyond, and picked up more dead than alive. The water is generally bitter with alkali, and scorches your throat as you swallow it. There is little to eat, and that is hard to get.—Tomah Enterprise.

Not so Harmless as Supposed.

At Ironton, Ohio, a young reporter for one of the city papers attended an oyster supper given by the ladies of a church society. The youth was waited upon with all the prompt fidelity due to his exalted station. The young man showed his appreciation of this kindness by publishing next day a half-column article on "The Church Festival Oyster," containing all the time-honored witticisims that have been handed down to this generation on that subject. A committee of twelve young ladies waited on him at his lodgings shortly after the appearance of the paper on the street, took him into a smoke-house, tied him to a post, read the article to him and then deluged him from head to foot with a bucketful of oyster soup that had been left from the supper the evening before. —Rochester Democrat.

Professor Herzen has recently shown, from vivisectional experiments, the intimate relation between cold and touch, and that an injury to the cortex of the brain that destroys the sense of touch in any region will usually also abolish correspondingly the sense of cold.

HOUSEHOLD MATTERS.

Ironing Shirts.

Iron the entire shirt first, then pass a cloth wrung from cold water over the bosom, lay under it a bosom board, draw the linen perfectly straight and take care to leave no wrinkles; if you iron them in you have to moisten the spot, and it rarely looks well after. Be careful to raise any plaits there may be with your iron, so that it does not remain plastered to the under surface; and, above all things, iron until it is dry. The ironing each article until it is dry is very important, as it gives that smooth, crisp feeling to linen which shows the difference between good and bad ironing. If any article is put to air while damp it will dry rough.

Uses of Salt.

Wash the mica of the stove doors with salt and vinegar.

Brass work can be kept beautifully bright by occasionally rubbing with salt and vinegar.

To clean willow furniture, use salt and water. Apply it with a nail brush, scrub well and dry thoroughly.

If, after having a tooth pulled, the mouth is filled with salt and water, it will allay the danger of having a hemorrhage.

Salt as a tooth powder is better than almost any thing that can be bought. It keeps the teeth brilliantly white and the gums hard and rosy.

To wash silk handkerchiefs, soak them first in cold salt and water for ten minutes or longer, then wash out in the same water and iron immediately.

Carpets may be greatly brightened by first sweeping thoroughly and then going over them with a clean cloth and clear salt and water. Use a cupful of coarse salt to a large basin of water.

Nothing is better for a sore throat than a gargle of salt and water. It may be used as often as desired, and if a little is swallowed each time it is used it will cleanse the throat and allay the irritation.

Salt, in doses of one to four teaspoonfuls in half a pint to a pint of tepid water, is an emetic always on hand. This is also the antidote to be used after poisoning from nitrate of silver while waiting for the doctor to come.

If the feet are tender or painful after long walking or standing great relief can be had by bathing them in salt and water. A handful of salt to a gallon of water is the right proportion. Have the water as hot as can comfortably be borne. Immerse the feet and throw the water over the legs as far as the knees with the hands. When the water becomes too cool rub briskly with a flesh towel. This method, if used night and morning, will cure neuralgia of the feet.—Good Housekeeping.

Recipes.

STEAMED RICE.—One cup of rice, one teaspoon of salt, three cups of boiling water; steam one hour; add one cup of sweet milk, cook twenty minutes longer, when it is ready to serve with cream and sugar.

CURRIED EGGS.—Melt a little butter. stir in a teaspoonful of curry powder, add by degrees a large tablespoonful of flour and a cup of stock; season. Boil six eggs hard, cut them in halves, put put neatly in a deep dish, pour on the sauce and keep all hot a little before using.

WHITE BREAD.—Pare and boil soft six potatoes in two quarts of water, strain through a colander boiling hot on to one cup of flour; stir well; and when cool add one yeast cake soaked in warm water. Keep it warm until it is light, then stir it well and keep it in a cool place until morning. Then stir it into the middle of your tray of flour (adding warm water enough to made the desired quantity of bread), add a little salt and cover the top of this batter with flour, and keep it warm until it cracks the flour and foams up through. Then add flour and mix up stiff and let it rise again. Then knead up into loaves, put into pans, let it rise again, not too light, and bake one hour very carefully.

ROAST BEEF.—A piece of beef weighing eight or ten pounds will take a little over two hours to roast Some allow fifteen minutes to each pound of beef. Prepare it by wiping with a dry napkin, but never washing, rub over it a little salt and pepper, and put it into a dry pan to roast in a hot oven. The heat will soon seal in the juices and retain them till the piece is cut at the table. Baste occasionally. If the flavor of sweet herbs and vegetables (as carrot, turnip, onion, etc.) is relished in the gravy, put a few slices of these last, with a bay leaf or two and a little thyme and parsley, into the pan, to make a bed on which to lay the beef. When it is done, add more seasoning, remove the beef, take out the vegetables if used, add hot water to the gravy, thicken it, being careful to avoid lumps. Serve either over the meat or in a gravy-boat, as one prefers.

Fire Signs.

Several superstitions of the fire stove are recorded in an excellent work on "Popular Antiquities" by Mr. John Brand, published a few years ago. Among many curious traditions appears this passage: "In his memoirs of Duncan Campbel, Defoe refers to the fire as affording a kind of divination to the omen mongers, who see "swords, guns, castles, churches, prisons, coffins, wedding rings, bags of money, men and women, or coals;' whatever they wish or fear plainly deciphered in the glowing and among Nature's secrets. Willisford discloses the following: "When our common fires burn with a pale flame they presage foul weather; if the fire makes a buzzing noise it is a sign of tempest near at hand; when the fire sparkles very much it is a sign of rain; when pots are newly taken off the fire, if they sparkle (the soot upon them being aflame) it presages rain; when the fire scorches and burns more vehemently than usual, it is a sign of frosty weather, but if the live coals shine brighter than ordinary at other times, rain may be looked for; if wood or any other fuel crackles and emits wind more than ordinary, it is an evident sign of tempestuous weather near at hand, and the sudden and plentiful falling of soot heralds rain." "Mollinæus," says Mr. Brand, "interprets the sudden eruption of flame from a dead fire (ex cineribus) as betokening joy."—London Society.

The Smallest Baby.

The smallest baby probably ever born, first saw light in Candelaria in Nevada. The father was a miner, and weighed 190 pounds, while the mother weighed 168 pounds. The baby was a boy, perfectly formed, but at its birth it weighed only eight ounces. Its face was about the size of a horse chestnut, and the limbs were so small that the mother could slip a ring from her little finger over the foot nearly up to the knee.—Christian at Work.

The man who puts up a barbed-wire fence in Nebraska is responsible for any damages sustained by man or animals coming in contact with it.

SHERIDAN'S COURTSHIP.

An Incident in the Hero's Wooing Not Recorded in Biographies.

Not long since at a dinner, given in New York, Gen. Sheridan related an incident that befel him while calling on the young lady who is the present Mrs. Sherman. During the war General Sheridan was too much occupied defending his country to fall in love. When the malady finally overtook him in Chicago, after the war, Sheridan had passed what is generally called the romantic stage and was settling down into a well-seasoned old bachelorhood. Old bachelors make the most enthusiastic of lovers, and the General admitted that he was no exception to the rule.

"It was a warm summer evening" Sheridan began, "and upon my arrival at the house the young lady and myself retired to the back parlor. The front parlor opened into the hall, and as the night was warm, you know, we did not think it necessary to light the gas in the back room. Now this young lady's father had a great fear of burglars. He had burglar-alarms all over the house, and had recently put a new alarm on the front door Neither the young lady nor myself knew anything about the alarm on the front door. After a time the old gentleman came down stairs, set his alarm on the door, and seeing the dim light in the front parlor, supposed that I had gone and turned out the light in the hall. We were busily engaged in talking, you know, and somehow did not hear him Finally when I got up to leave the young lady accompanied me to the door. We were surprised to find the light turned and in tumbling around for the door knob I set off the burglar-alarm. It seemed to me that I never knew a burglar alarm to work so well before. It sounded like the explosion of a keg of dynamite. A moment later the father of the young lady appeared at the head of the stairs in his night-dress, holding a light in one hand and a large pistol in the other. At this apparition the young lady deserted me and fled into the darkness. My position was positively dangerous. I suppose I had been in dangerous places before without thinking of it, but I confess for the moment I trembled all over with fear and scarcely mustered up voice enough to say, 'Don't shoot; it's me.' Fortunately he recognized my voice and came down and let me out.

"Now, you know gentlemen," he concluded, "if the young lady had stood by me there would have been no danger, but she didn't, you know, and my position was rather awkward before I was recognized. One might die on the field of battle without regret, but I should hate to be shot as a midnight marauder. I only tell the story because is actually took place as I have said, and to show that there are times when we may all lose our courage.

From Shaycogo.

'Does this street lead to the day-po?" asked a very stylish young man of a drayman on Jefferson avenue.

"It does, sir."

"Ah! thanks."

"Did you hear him call it day-po?" asked the drayman of one of his craft after the stranger had passed on.

"Indade I did."

"Wasn't it strange?"

"Not a bit. He was evidently going to Shaycogo."—Detroit Free Press.

"November, 1880," wrote Jos. P. Murphy, Springfield, Tenn., "my wife suffered eighteen months with neuralgia and paralysis. By use of St. Jacobs Oil, she could walk." October 7th, 1886, he writes. "My wife recovered entirely." Price fifty cents.

A man who edited an agricultural journal for fifteen years, and devoted many hours to telling farmers how to cultivate their crops and grow rich, purchased a farm and tried it himself a year ago, and last week he was sold out by the sheriff.—Norristown Herald.

Charles Tiel, Philadelphia, Pa., was in a hopeless condition from throat trouble and asthma. Red Star Cough Cure cured him. Price twenty-five cents. At druggists.

Mrs. Jenness Miller, of dress reform renown, will confer a great favor on humanity if she will invent a pocket for a woman's skirt which can be found by the average husband when the dress is hanging in the closet, without turning his hair gray.—Puck.

"Nip't in the Bud!"

Sad to say, many a good thing attains to nothing more than a fair beginning. On the other hand it is a matter for congratulation that the growth of some evil things may be also promptly frustrated. A large proportion of the cases of the most wide-spread and fatal of diseases—consumption—have their inception in nasal catarrh. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is pleasant, soothing and effectual. Try it. It has cured thousands. All druggists.

God is knowable but unfathomable.—Joseph Cook.

Chronic Coughs and Colds,

And all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, can be cured by the use of SCOTT'S EMULSION, as it contains the healing virtues of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites in their fullest form. Is a beautiful creamy Emulsion, palatable as milk, easily digested, and can be taken by the most delicate. Please read: "I consider Scott's Emulsion the remedy par excellence in Tuberculous and Strumous Affections, to say nothing of ordinary colds and throat troubles." —W. R. S. CONNELL, M. D., Manchester, O.

Lard is the best polish to put into starch.

A Printer's Error.

Sweet are the uses of adversity, the printer's copy said, but he set it up, sweet are the uses of advertising. Sweet, indeed, to those who in sickness and suffering have seen the advertisement of some sovereign remedy, which upon trial has brought them from death's door. "The best thing I ever saw in my paper was the advertisement of Dr. Pierce's 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" is again and again the testimony of those who have been healed by it of lung disease, bronchial affections, tumors, ulcers, liver complaints and the ills to which flesh is heir.

A wise night key—One that knows its own keyhole.

Nervous debility, in either sex, however induced, speedily, thoroughly and permanently cured. Address, with 10 cents in stamps for reply and book of particulars, World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Universal history is, at bottom, but the history of great men.—Carlyle.

Farmers,

Send 10 cents to the PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CO., St. Louis, Mo., and get a copy of "THE HORSE TRAINER." A complete system, teaching how to break and train horses in a mild and gentle way, requiring no elaborate apparatus, nothing more than can be found in any stable in the country—a rope and a strap. Every one handling horses should have a copy.

Deep Sea Wonders

Exist in thousands of forms, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention. Those who are in need of profitable work that can be done while at home should at once send their address to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free, full information how either sex, of all ages, can earn from $5 to $25 per day wherever they live. You are started free. Capital not required. Some have made over $50 in a single day at this work. All succeed.

An Expensive Delay,

Is failing to provide the proper means to expel from the system those disease germs which cause scrofula, indigestion, debility, rheumatism and sick headache. The only reliable means is Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic.

If you are suffering from Chronic Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, or Loss of Voice, Dr. Kilmer's Indian Cough Cure (Consumption Oil) will relieve quickly—remove the cause and cure. Price 25c., 50, and 1.00.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers.

Send for Pamphlet on Female Diseases, free, securely sealed. Dr. J. B. Marchisi, Utica, N. Y.

Relief is immediate, and a cure sure. Piso's Remedy for Catarrh. 50 cents.

SIGNIFICANT!

Some of the Last Public Opinions of a Great Man.

New York Correspondence Cleveland Leader

One has a most excellent opportunity to study "man" as represented by the average New Yorkers. Among the wealthy classes, very many of them have the waxy skin, dropsical flesh, and "puffed eyes" that are indicative of serious kidney affection. "Bright's disease" is plainly written on their faces. Since General Logan's death the subject of rheumatism is being discussed by the medical profession.

Every intelligent person, with any knowledge of the human system, is well aware that if the kidneys are in good condition all unnecessary material is regularly carried off by them. If not, various acids, such as uric acid, one of the chief causes of rheumatism, are left in excess, creating deposits that cause all sorts of chronic organic diseases. It would seem, therefore, that rheumatism, like dropsy, is not a disease, but the result of a disease, and it is safe to say that if the stomach and kidneys are kept in healthful condition, there will be no deaths from rheumatism.

General Logan was well aware that his disease was of the kidneys, and once expressed himself in indignant terms at the folly of doctors treating him for rheumatism, when it was the kidneys that caused his attacks. The high living and the excesses in all things prevalent among wealthy men in large cities, especially in New York, is the chief cause for Bright's disease, and the aristocratic trouble known as rheumatism, even as insufficient and improper food bring about the same results among the very poor.

The above article, which we reproduce because of its general interest, is very significant. The public believes that rheumatism is an effect of diseased blood, this disease being caused by uric acid or kidney poison. Enough of this is developed daily to kill several men, and if it is not removed by the kidneys as fast as formed, it gradually ruins the health.

This fact is a scientific demonstration.

If doctors do not admit it, it is probably because they do not wish to attract attention to the menace deranged kidneys offers to the general health, since they have no authorized specific for these organs.

General Logan knew what his real trouble was, and he recognized the nonsense of treating the effects—the real seat of the disease was the kidneys. Senator Sittig, of Illinois, whose vote elected Logan Senator after four months of balloting, tells us that Logan often complained to him of great distress in his kidneys. Disease of the kidneys always produces rheumatism, and besides that, it causes paralysis, apoplexy, impotency, stomach and blood disorders, brain troubles, female complaints and countless other diseases which would almost never develop if the blood was kept free of uric acid or kidney poison.

These facts the public recognizes even though medical gentlemen, for very evident reasons, will not publicly acknowledge them lest, perchance, some proprietary medicine like Warner's safe cure, now admitted to be the only scientific specific, will get the benefit.

Fie on such bigotry! It has been authoritatively stated time and again that there can be no real sound health if there is any false action of the kidneys. Insurance companies refuse millions of risks on this ground alone, hence it is that there is such universal popularity given to the great preparation named —a popularity that is based upon intrinsic merit.

Too much dependence upon professional advice, especially in matters over which medical men admit they have no power, too often results very disastrously, but of what use to the victim is experience gained by fatal disaster?

How much better it is to be guided by an unprejudiced public opinion in such matters. Had Logan been so guided, he might have been spared many years.

Vinegar and salt will clean copper and brass, to be thoroughly removed afterward.

That Tired Feeling

Is so general at this season that every one knows what is meant by the expression. A change of season, climate, or of life, has such a depressing effect upon the body that one feels all tired out, almost completely prostrated, the appetite is lost, and there is no ambition to do anything. The whole tendency of the system is downward. In this condition Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It purifies the blood, sharpens the appetite, overcomes the tired feeling, and invigorates every function of the body. Try it.

"We all like Hood's Sarsaparilla, it is so strengthening."—LIZZIE BALFOUR, Auburn, P. Q.

The Weak Made Strong

"I never took any medicine that did me so much good in so short a time as Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was very much run down, had no strength, no energy, and felt very tired all the time. I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before I had used one bottle felt like a different person. That extreme tired feeling has gone, my appetite returned, and it toned me up generally. My brother and sister have also received great benefit from it."—CLARA W. PHELPS, Shirley, Mass.

N. B.—Be sure to get the peculiar medicine,

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

DR. KILMER'S INDIAN COUGH CURE CONSUMPTION OIL .25¢ SAVES YOUR LIFE.

Stop that Cold, Cough, and Tickling in the Throat. Arrest that Catarrh, Bronchitis or Asthma. This Remedy relieves quickly. Cures permanently. It prevents Decline, Night-Sweats and death from Consumption. Prepared at DR. KILMER'S DISPENSARY, Binghamton, N. Y. Letters of inquiry answered. Guide to Health (Sent Free). Sold by Druggists.

OPIUM and Morphine Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. Refer to 1000 patients cured in all parts. Dr. Marsh, Quincy, Mich.

KAFFIR CORN for Forage and Grain. Trial pkt seed mailed for 10c silver, 1 pound by express 35c, 3 pounds $1, to-day. Address M. A. REED, Dalton, Ga.

Don't Buy Until you find out the new Improvements.

WATCHES

Save the middleman's PROFITS.

SEND FOR CATALOGUES

J. P. STEVENS & BRO

47 Whitehall Street, Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA SAW WORKS.

Manufacturers of and Dealers in

Saws and Saw-Mill Supplies.

Repairing a Specialty.

Agents for L. Power & Company's Wood Working Machinery. Large and complete stock. Write for catalogue. ATLANTA, GA.

T. F. SEITZINGER

28 W. Mitchell St., near Broad, ATLANTA, GA.

Manufacturer Gutta-Percha Roller Composition.

Rollers cast every day. Printers and Publishers will find it to their advantage to send their orders direct to me. Send for Circulars and Price-List.

OPIUM AND MORPHINE HABIT Quickly and Permanently cured by DR. TANNER'S OPIUM AND MORPHINE CURE. For sale by all Druggists.

$1.00 Per Bottle.

For Circulars and information address BENJAMIN & CRONHEIM, 101 Whitehall Street, or P. O. Box 105, ATLANTA, GA.

BUSINESS Education a specialty at MOORE'S BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Atlanta, Ga. One of the best schools in the Country. Send for Circular.

Young Men can get the most Practical Business Education at Goldsmith's School of Business, 21½ S Broad St. Atlanta, Ga. Send for Circular & Specimens of Penmanship.

TAPEWORM CURE Illustrated Book sent FREE. Address [illegible]

LADY AGENTS WANTED [illegible]

$15.00 [illegible]

Mighty Sensible Talk.

The correspondence between Major Young, of Charleston, and John Brown, Jr., about that famous five dollar bill, is of national importance.

The son of Harper's Ferry Brown hopes that "the bloody chasm" of other days will be filled up with "fraternity" enough to make the ground even. And he adds that the politicians who "fought their battles seated on dry goods boxes at the street corners" will pass away in good time, and then we shall have no more sectional prejudice. As for the men who "looked into each other's eyes across sabres and bayonets," they shook hands long ago, and are now so busy trading with each other that the dead past, which has buried its dead, is—well, it's the dead past.

The Brown family seem to have a good deal of common sense.—New York Herald.

SNOB—"I have come to allow you to paint my portrait." Disgusted artist—"You have made a mistake. The animal painter has his studio the next flight above."

Disorders Which Affect the Kidneys

Are among the most formidable known. Diabetes, Bright's disease, gravel and other complaints of the urinary organs, are not ordinarily cured in severe cases, but they may be averted by timely medication. A useful stimulant for the urinary glands has ever been found in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine which not only affords the requisite stimulus when they become inactive, but increases their vigor and secretive power. By increasing the activity of the kidneys and bladder, this medicine has the additional effect of expelling from the blood impurities which it is the peculiar office of those organs to eliminate and pass off. The Bitters is also a purifier and strengthener of the bowels, an invigorant of the stomach, and a matchless remedy for biliousness, and fever and ague. It counteracts a tendency to premature decay and sustains and comforts the aged and infirm.

The character of a nation is not to be learnt from its fine folks.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

Highest Awards of Medals in Europe and America.

The neatest, quickest, safest and most powerful remedy known for Rheumatism, Pleurisy, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Backache, Weakness, colds in the chest and all aches and pains. Endorsed by 5,000 Physicians and Druggists of the highest repute. Benson's Plasters promptly relieve and cure where other plasters and greasy salves, liniments and lotions, are absolutely useless. Beware of imitations under similar sounding names, such as "Capsicum," "Capsicin," "Capsicine," as they are utterly worthless and intended to deceive. ASK FOR BENSON'S AND TAKE NO OTHERS. All druggists.

SEABURY & JOHNSON, Proprietors, New York.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3 SHOE. FOR GENTLEMEN.

The best $3 Shoe in the world. Best material, stylish, perfect fit; Congress, Button or Lace all styles toe. Equals any $5 or $6 Shoe. Costs nothing to examine them at your dealer's. I send information free how to obtain these celebrated $3 Shoes if your dealer does not keep them. W. L. DOUGLAS' SILK STITCHED BEST KID ELASTIC WARRANTED BEST KID BEST TANNERY CALF SEWED.

$2.50 Shoe equals $3 Shoes advertised by other firms. Boys all wear W. L. Douglas' $2 Shoe. Beware of fraud. None genuine unless name and price are stamped on bottom of each Shoe.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.

OAKLAWN

The Great Nursery of

PERCHERON HORSES.

200 Imported Brood Mares

Of Choicest Families.

LARGE NUMBERS, All Ages, both Sexes, IN STOCK.

300 to 400 IMPORTED ANNUALLY from France, all recorded with extended pedigrees in the Percheron Stud Books. The Percheron is the only draft breed of France possessing a stud book that has the support and endorsement of the French Government. Send for 120-page Catalogue, illustrations by Rosa Bonheur.

M. W. DUNHAM,

Wayne, DuPage Co., Illinois.

EXHAUSTED VITALITY

A Great Medical Work for Young and Middle-Aged Men.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

KNOW THYSELF.

PUBLISHED by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, No. 4 Bulfinch St., Boston, Mass. WM. H. PARKER, M. D., Author. More than one million copies sold. It treats upon Nervous and Physical Debility, Premature Decline, Exhausted Vitality, Impaired Vigor, and Impurities of the Blood, and the untold miseries consequent thereon. Contains 300 pages, substantial embossed binding, full gilt. Warranted the best popular medical treatise published in the English language. Price only $1 by mail, postpaid, and concealed in a plain wrapper. Illustrative sample free if you send now. Address as above. Name this paper.

One Agent (Merchant only) wanted in every town for

TANSILL'S PUNCH 5¢

During the last year [illegible] "Tansill's Punch." This month you have sold me $1,000, almost all of which have been sold, from one to five to each person. You will please ship 5,000 every Saturday until further notice.

C. S. PROWITT, Druggist, Denver, Col.

Address R. W. TANSILL & CO., Chicago.

JONES HE PAYS the FREIGHT 5 Ton Wagon Scales, Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box for $60. Every size Scale. For free price list mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

SOLID FACTS!

"Seven Springs" Iron-Alum Mass, will give you an appetite, strengthen you up, cure Dyspepsia, Diarrhoea and all Headaches, purify the blood, act on the Kidneys, relieve Catarrh and ward off malaria. Price, 50c. and $1.00 per bottle.

Dickey's Painless Eyewater cures inflamed eyes at once. No cure, no pay. Ask for it. Sold by Druggists or sent by mail postpaid. Price 25c. DICKEY & ANDERSON, Manufacturers, BRISTOL, TENN.

ASTHMA CURED! German Asthma Cure never fails to give immediate relief in the worst cases, insures comfortable sleep; effects cures where all others fail. A trial convinces the most skeptical. Price 50 cts. and $1.00, of Druggists or by mail. Sample FREE for stamp. DR. R. SCHIFFMANN, St. Paul, Minn.

THURSTON'S IVORY PEARL TOOTH POWDER Keeping Teeth Perfect and Gums Healthy.

Pensions to Soldiers & Heirs. Send stamp for circulars. COL. L. BINGHAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $1.50 FREE Lines not under the horse's feet. Address BREWSTER'S SAFETY REIN HOLDER, Holly, Mich.

TOWER'S FISH BRAND SLICKER [illegible]

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

IT IS A PURELY VEGETABLE PREPARATION CONTAINING PRICKLY ASH BARK AND PRICKLY ASH BERRIES SENNA-MANDRAKE-BUCHU AND OTHER EQUALLY EFFICIENT REMEDIES

It has stood the Test of Years, in Curing all Diseases of the BLOOD, LIVER, STOMACH, KIDNEYS, BOWELS, &c. It Purifies the Blood, Invigorates and Cleanses the System.

DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, JAUNDICE, SICKHEADACHE, BILIOUS COMPLAINTS, &c. disappear at once under its beneficial influence.

It is purely a Medicine as its cathartic properties forbids its use as a beverage. It is pleasant to the taste, and as easily taken by children as adults.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CURES ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER KIDNEYS STOMACH AND BOWELS FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS PRICE 1 DOLLAR

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS CO. Sole Proprietors, ST. LOUIS and KANSAS CITY

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

HAINESVILLE, N. J.,
October 15, 1886.

E. T. HAZELTINE,
Warren, Pa.

Dear Sir:

I was taken with a very severe cold last Spring, and tried every cure we had in the store, and could get no help.

I had our village doctor prescribe for me, but kept getting worse. I saw another physician from Port Jervis, N. Y., and he told me he used Piso's Cure for Consumption in his practice.

I bought a bottle, and before I had taken all of it there was a change for the better. Then I got my employer to order a quantity of the medicine and keep it in stock. I took one more bottle, and my Cough was cured.

Respectfully,
FRANK MCKELVY.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

HARTER'S THE ONLY TRUE IRON TONIC

Will purify the BLOOD, regulate the LIVER and KIDNEYS and RESTORE the HEALTH and VIGOR of YOUTH. Dyspepsia, Want of Appetite, Indigestion, Lack of Strength and Tired Feeling absolutely cured: Bones, muscles and nerves receive new force. Enlivens the mind and supplies Brain Power.

LADIES Suffering from complaints peculiar to their sex will find in DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC a safe and speedy cure. Gives a clear, healthy complexion. Frequent attempts at counterfeiting only add to the popularity of the original. Do not experiment—get the ORIGINAL AND BEST.

Dr. HARTER'S LIVER PILLS Cure Constipation, Liver Complaint and Sick Headache. Sample Dose and Dream Book mailed on receipt of two cents in postage.

THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE COMPANY St. Louis, Mo.

Ask your retailer for the James Means' $3 Shoe. Caution! Some dealers recommend inferior goods in order to make a larger profit. This is the original $3 Shoe. Beware of imitations which acknowledge their own inferiority by attempting to build upon the reputation of the original. None Genuine unless bearing this Stamp

JAMES MEANS' $3 SHOE For Gentlemen.

Made in Button, Congress and Lace. Best Calf Skin. Unexcelled in Durability, Comfort and Appearance. A postal card sent to us will bring you information how to get this Shoe in any State or Territory.

J. Means & Co. 41 Lincoln St. Boston, Mass.

JAMES MEANS' $3 SHOE. BUTTON

Our celebrated factory produces a larger quantity of Shoes of this grade than any other factory in the world. Thousands who wear them will tell you the reason if you ask them. JAMES MEANS' $2 SHOE for Boys is unapproached in Durability.

MONEY FOR THE HONEST! In amounts of $50 to $500, on One to Ten years time. Our new plan—available to all, burdensome to none. State amount you can safely use, also age and occupation. The System is Full, with Forms, etc., Free, on receipt of stamp. No postals answered. L. BUTLER, Sec'y, Bradford Block, Cor. Sixth & Vine, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

SHOW CASES. WALL CASES

DESKS, OFFICE FURNITURE AND FIXTURES Ask for Illustrated Pamphlet. TERRY SHOW CASE CO., Nashville.

HARTSHORN'S Shade Rollers

ARKANSAS MILD CLIMATE! Lands! Variety of PRODUCTS! LOW PRICES! EASY TERMS! MAPS AND CIRCULARS FREE. THOS. ESSEX, Land Com'r, Little Rock.

Blair's Pills. Great English Gout and Rheumatic Remedy. Oval Box $1.00; round, 50 cts.

PATENTS Obtained. Send for Inventory Guide. [illegible] MAN, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

OPIUM Habit Cured. Treatment sent on trial. HUMANE REMEDY Co., LaFayette

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest. CATARRH Also good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Hay Fever, &c. 50 cents.

A. N. U.

Rates of Advertising.

One Dollar per Square, of one inch space or less, for the first, and Fifty Cents for each subsequent insertion.

Inches.	3 m.	6 m.	12 m.
1 Inch	$ 5 00	$ 7 00	$ 11 25
2 Inches	7 00	[illegible]	15 00
3 Inches	10 00	13 00	22 50
4 Inches	12 00	18 00	27 00
5 Inches	15 00	20 00	30 00
¼ Column	18 00	27 00	40 00
½ Column	27 00	40 00	60 00
1 Column	40 00	60 00	100 00

The Chilton View.

W. R. & J. C. LAWRENCE, Editors and Proprietors. "WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION." TERMS: $1.50 Per Annum.

VOLUME VI. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, APRIL 7, 1887. NUMBER 22.

Special Advertising.

Business Notices Ten Cents per line each insertion.
Obituaries and Tributes of Respect, half rates.
Announcing candidates for office, Five Dollars, strictly in advance.
Communications recommending candidates for office will be headed as advertisements and charged for accordingly.
Liberal contracts made with those advertising by the year.
☞ The money is due on all advertising after the first publication.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Subject: "Cheer For the Disheartened." (Preached at Kansas City, Mo.)

TEXT: "No man cared for my soul."—Psalms cxlii., 4.

David, the rubicund lad, had become the battle worn warrior. Three thousand armed men in pursuit of him, he had hidden in the cave of Engedi, near the coast of the Dead Sea. Utterly fagged out with the pursuit, as you have often been worn out with the trials of life, he sat down and cried out: "No man cared for my soul."

If you should fall through a hatchway, or slip from a scaffolding, or drop through a skylight, there would be hundreds of people who would come around and pick up your body and carry it to your home or to the hospital. I saw a great crowd of people in the street, and I asked; What is the matter? and I found out that a poor laboring man had fallen under sunstroke; and all our eyes were filled with tears at the thought of his distracted wife and his desolate home.

We are all sympathetic with physical disaster, but how little sympathy for spiritual woes! There are men in this house who have come to mid-life who have never yet been once personally accosted about their eternal welfare. A great sermon dropped into an audience of hundreds of thousands will do its work; but if this world is ever to be brought to God it will be through little sermons preached to private Christians, to an audience of one. The sister's letter postmarked at the village—the word uttered in your hearing, half of smiles and half of tears—the religious postcript to a business letter—the card left at the door when you had some kind of trouble—the anxious look of some one across a church aisle while an earnest sermon was being preached, swung you into the Kingdom of God. But there are hundreds of people in this house who will take the word that David used in the past tense, and employ it in the present tense, and cry out: "No man cares for my soul."

You feel as you go out day by day in the tug and jostle of life that it is every man for himself. You can endure the pressure of commercial affairs, and would consider it almost impertinent for any one to ask you whether you are making or losing money. But there have been times when you would have drawn your check for thousands of dollars if some would only help your soul out of its perplexities. There are questions about your higher destiny that ache, and distract, and agonize you at times. Let no one suppose that because you are busy all day with hardware, or drygoods, or groceries, or grain, that your thoughts are no longer than your yard stick, and stop at the brass headed nails of the store counter. When you speak once about religious things you think 5,000 times. They call you a worldling. You are not a worldling. Of course you are industrious and keep busy, but you have had your eyes opened to the realities of the next world. You are not a fool. You know better than any one can tell. You know that a few years at most will wind up your earthly engagements, and that you will take residence in a distant sphere where all your business adroitness would be a superfluity. You sometimes think till your head aches about great religious subjects. You go down the street with your eyes fixed on the pavement, oblivious of the passing multitudes, your thoughts gone on eternal expedition. You wonder if the Bible is true, how much of it is literal and how much is figurative law, if Christ be God, if there is anything like retribution, if you are immortal, if a resurrection will ever take place, what the occupation of your departed kindred is, what you will be 10,000 years from now. With a cultured placidity of countenance you are on fire with agitations of soul. Oh, this solitary anxiety of your whole lifetime! You have sold goods to or bought them from Christian people for ten years, and they have never whispered one word of spiritual counsel. You have passed up and down the aisles of churches with men who knew that you had no hope of heaven, and talked about the weather and about your physical health, and about everything but that concerning which you most wanted to hear them speak, viz., your everlasting spirit. Times without number you have felt in your heart, if you have not uttered it with your lips: "No man cares for my soul."

There have been times when you were especially pliable on the great subject of religion. It was so, for instance, after you had lost your property. You had a great many letters blowing you up for being unfortunate. You showed that there had been a concatenation of circumstances and that your insolvency was no fault of yours. Your creditors talked to you as though they would have 100 cents on the dollar or your life. Protest after protest tumbled in on your desk. Men who used to take your hand with both of theirs and shake it violently, now pass you on the street with an almost imperceptible nod. After six or eight hours of scalding business anxiety you go home and you shut the door, and throw yourself on the sofa and you feel in a state of despair. You wish that some one would come in and break up the gloom. Everything seems to be against you—the bank against you. Your creditors against you. Your friends suddenly become critical against you. All the past against you. All the future against you. You make reproachful outcry: "No man cares for my soul!"

There was another occasion when all the doors of your heart swung open for sacred influences. A bright light went out in your household. Within three or four days there were compressed sickness, death, obsequies. You were so lonely that 100 people coming into the house did not break up the solitariness. You were almost killed with the domestic calamity. A few formal, perfunctory words of consolation were uttered on the stairs before you went to the grave; but you wanted some one to come and talk over the whole matter, and recite the alleviations, and decipher the lessons of the dark bereavement. No one came. Many a time you could not sleep until 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning, and then your sleep was a troubled dream, in which were re-enacted all the scene of sickness, and parting, and dissolution. Oh, what days and nights they were! No man seemed to care for your soul.

There was another occasion when your heart was very susceptible. There was a great awakening. There were hundreds of people who pressed into the kingdom of God; some of them acquaintances, some business associates, yes, perhaps, some members of your own family were baptised by sprinkling or immersion. Christian people thought of you, and they called at your store, but you were out on business. They stopped at your house; you had gone around to spend the evening. They sent a kindly message to you; somehow by accident, you did not get it. The lifeboat of the Gospel swept through the surf and everybody seemed to get in but you. Everything seemed to escape you. One touch of personal sympathy would have pushed you into the kingdom of God. When on communion day your friends went in, and your sons and daughters went into the church, you buried your face in your handkerchief and sobbed: "Why am I left out? Everybody seems to get saved but me. No man cares for my soul."

Hearken to a revelation I have to make. It is a startling statement. It will so surprise you that I must prove it as I go on. Instead of this total indifference all about you in regard to your soul, I have to tell you that heaven, earth and hell are after your immortal spirit—earth to cheat it, hell to destroy it, heaven to redeem it. Although you may be a stranger to the Christians in this house, their faces would glow and their hearts would bound if they saw you make one step heavenward. So intricate and far reaching is this web of sympathy that I could by one word rouse a great many prayers in your behalf. No one cares for your soul! Why, one signal of distress on your part would thrill this audience with holy excitement. If a boat in any harbor should get in distress, from the men of war, and from the sloops, and from the steamers the flying paddles would pull to the rescue. And if now you would let one signal of distress all these voyagers of eternity would bear down toward you and bring you relief. But no! you are like a ship on fire at sea. They keep the hatches down, and the Captain is frenzied, and he gives orders that no one hail the passing ships. He says: "I shall either land this vessel in Hamburg or on the bottom of the ocean, and I don't care which." Yonder is a ship of the White Star line passing. Yonder one of the National line. Yonder one of the Inman line. But they know not there is any calamity happening on that one vessel. Oh! if the captain would only put his trumpet to his lip, and cry out: "Lower your boats! Bear down this way! We are burning up! Fire! Fire!" No. No. No signal is given. If that vessel perishes, having hailed no one, whose fault will it be? Will it be the fault of the ship that hid its calamity, or will it be the fault of the vessels that, passing on the high seas, would have been glad to furnish relief if it had been only asked? In other words, my brother, if you miss heaven it will be your own fault.

No one cares for your soul! Why, in all the ages there have been men whose entire business was soul saving. In this work Munson went down under the knives of the cannibals whom he had come to save, and Robert McCheyne preached himself to death by thirty years of age, and John Bunyan was thrown into a dungeon in Bedfordshire, and Jehudi Ashman endured all the malarias of the African jungle; and there are hundreds and thousands of Christian men and women now who are praying, toiling, preaching, living, dying, to save souls.

No one cares for your soul! Have you heard how Christ feels about it? I know it was only five or six miles from Bethlehem to Calvary, the birthplace and the deathplace of Christ; but who can tell how many miles it was from the throne to the manger? How many miles down, how many miles back again? The place of his departure was the focus of all splendor and pomp; all the thrones facing his throne; his name the chorus in every song and the inscription on every banner; his landing place a cattle pen, malodorous with unwashed brutes, and dogs growling in and out of the stable. Born of a weary mother who had journeyed eighty miles in severe unhealth that she might find the right place for the Lord's nativity—born, not as other princes, under the flash of a chandelier, but under a lantern swung by a rope to the roof of the barn. In that place Christ started to save you. Your name, your face, your time, your eternity, in Christ's mind. Sometimes traveling on mule's back to escape old Herod's massacre, sometimes attempting nervous sleep on the chilly hillside, sometimes earning his breakfast by the carpentry of a plow. In Quarantania the stones of the field, by their shape and color, looking like the loaves of bread, tantalizing his hunger. Yet all the time keeping on after you. With drenched coat treading the surf at Genessaret. Howled after by a bloodthirsty mob. Denounced as a drunkard. Mourning over a doomed city, while others shouted at the sight of the shimmering towers. All the time coming on and coming on to save you. Indicted as being a traitor against government, perjured witnesses swearing their souls away to insure his butchery. Flogged, spit on, slapped in the face and then hoisted on rough lumber, in sight of earth and heaven and hell to purchase your eternal emancipation. From the first infant step to the last step of manhood on the sharp spike of Calvary a journey for you. Oh! how he cared for your soul! By dolorous arithmetic add up the stable, the wintry tempest, the midnight dampness, the abstinence of forty days from food, the brutal Sanhedrim, the heights of Golgotha, across which all the hatreds of earth and all the furies of hell charged with their bayonets, and then dare to say again that no one cares for your soul.

A young man might as well go off from home and give his father and mother no intimation as to where he has gone, and, crossing the seas, sitting down in some foreign country, cold, sick and hungry and lonely, saying: "My father and mother don't care anything about me." Do not care anything about him! Why, that father's hair has turned gray since his son went off. He has written to all the consuls in the foreign ports, asking about that son. Does not the mother care anything about him? He has broken her heart. She has never smiled since he went away. All day long, and almost all night, she keeps asking: "Where is he? Where can he be?" He is the first thought in her prayer and the last thought in her prayer, the first thought in the morning and the last at night. She says: "Oh, God, bring back my boy! I must see him again before I die. Where is he? I must see him again before I die. "Oh, do not his father and mother care for him? You go away from your Heavenly Father, and you think he does not care for you because you will not even read the letters by which he invites you to come back, while all heaven is waiting, and waiting, and waiting for you to return. A young man said to his father: "I am going off; I will write to you at the end of seven years and tell you where I am." Many years have passed along since that son went away, and for years the father has been going to the depot in the village, on the arrival of every train, and when he hears the whistle in the distance he is thrilled with excitement, and he waits until all the passengers have come out, and then he waits until the train has gone clear out of sight again, and then he goes home, hastening back to the next train; and he will be at every train until that son comes back, unless the son waits until the father be dead. But oh, the greater patience of God! He has been waiting for you, not seven years, not nine years, but for some of you, twenty years, thirty years, forty years, fifty years—waiting, calling—waiting, calling until nothing but omnipotent patience could have endured it. Oh, my brother, do not take the sentiment of my text as your sentiment. We do care for your soul. One Sabbath night, years ago, in my church in Brooklyn, a young man appeared at the end of the platform and he said to me: "I have just come off the sea." I said: "When did you arrive?" Said he: "I came into port this afternoon. I was in a great 'blow' off Cape Hatteras this last week, and I thought that I might as well go to heaven as to hell. I thought the ship would sink: but, sir, I never very seriously thought about my soul until to-night." I said to him: "Do you feel that Christ is able and willing to save you?" "Oh, yes," he replied, "I do." "Well," I said, "now are you willing to come and be saved by Him?" "I am," he said. "Well, will you now, in the prayer we are about to offer, give yourself to God for time and eternity?" "I will," he said. Then we knelt in prayer, and after we had got through praying, he told me that the great transformation had taken place. I could not doubt it. He is on the sea now. I do not know what other port he may gain or lose, but I think he will gain the harbor of heaven.

Star of peace, beam o'er the billow,
Bless the soul that sighs for Thee;
Bless the sailor's lonely pillow,
Far, far at sea.

It was sudden conversion with him that night. Oh, that it might be sudden conversion with you to-day! God can save you in one moment as well as he can in a century. There are sudden deaths, sudden calamities, sudden losses. Why not sudden deliverances? God's spirit is infinite in speed. He comes here with omnipotent power, and he is ready here and now, instantaneously and forever, to save your soul. I believe that a multitude of you will to-day come to God. I feel you are coming, and you will bring along your families and your friends with you. They have heard in heaven already of the step you are about to take. The news has been cried along the golden streets and has rung out from the towers: "A soul saved! A soul saved!" But there is some one here to-day who will reject this gospel. He will stay out of the kingdom of God himself. He will keep his family and his friends out. It is a dreadful thing for a man just to plant himself in the way of life, then keep back his children, keep back his companion in life, keep back his business partners—refuse to go into heaven himself and refuse to let others go in.

A young man, at the close of a religious service, was asked to decide the matter of his soul's salvation. He said: "I will not do it to-night." Well, the Christian man kept talking with him, and he said: "I insist that to-night you either take God or reject Him." "Well," said the young man, "if you put it that way, I will accept Him. There, now, the matter's settled." On his way home on horseback he knew not that a tree had fallen aslant the road, and he was going at full speed, and he struck the obstacle and dropped lifeless. That night his Christian mother heard the riderless horse plunging about the barn, and, mistrusting something terrible was the matter, she went out and came to the place where her son lay, and she cried out: "Oh, Henry! dead and not a Christian. Oh, my son! my son! dead and not a Christian. Oh, Henry! Henry! dead and not a Christian." God keep us from such a catastrophe.

THE MURDERERS' BRAND.

A Tennessee Neighborhood Infested by a Mysterious Band of Thugs.

[From the Memphis Avalanche.]

One of the most singular and mysterious coincidences in the history of crime is the fact that all the murders and would-be murders that have been committed in that locality during the last ten years have borne the sometimes distinct and sometimes indistinct mark of being similar to each other in regard to certain characteristics which have been unmistakably branded upon the bodies of the victims. There is the appearance of a profound purpose, and there is no evidence to the contrary which has been exercised by those barbarious assassins against unoffending citizens, including both men and women, and these coincidences have occurred and can now be traced back to as long as twelve years ago, when a comely widow of middle age was foully murdered in the bedroom of her own house in this same locality.

This woman was a Mrs Foster, whose husband had died a short time previously, and who had rented out her place in town to live in a more quiet neighborhood, which she sought out on this road. There was no one in the house that night except herself; a negro woman had been staying there but for some reason, which was never fully explained, she was not at the house that night, but had gone to spend the evening with another negro woman who was a friend of hers. This lady, who was an estimable woman in every respect, could not be suspected of having an enemy. It is further true that there were evidences that the crime had been committed solely for the purpose of robbery, and yet the same mark which has been borne upon the bodies of other victims which have fallen since that time, and which was a distinctive feature of the attempted wholesale murder of the Nabors family, was found upon her head when the lifeless body was found the next morning.

It was only a few years after this occurrence that another lady in the same vicinity was shot through the heart and instantly killed, and yet the same mark in the shape of the letter V was found branded upon her skull. It had to all appearances, too, been done after the shot had been fired and after the woman had died, for she could not have lived more than a moment after having been shot, and the fact that the mysterious brand was still upon her brow furnishes only another instance and additional evidence that this course of crimes might have been committed for some purpose deeper beyond and more profound than any of which the inhabitants of that section have ever dreamed.

Again, it was only three or four years since that Mrs. Wright, a good woman and a Christian lady, was struck down, apparently by the same hands. She was shot in the breast and riddled with bullets from a shotgun, the trade mark of the same set of human butchers was upon her forehead. An additional case is furnished in that of the old huckster woman who was murdered in her house in that locality during 1883 or 1884. Then may be cited one of the most important cases, the assassination of the Justices, which took place scarcely a mile from the place where the murder was attempted Wednesday night. It has never been found out for certain what weapon was used in killing these two old people, who lived a quiet life in their little shanty by the roadside, and who were suspected of having a hoard of wealth somewhere about the house.

The murder of the Justices occurred about six months ago, and all the revolting details of the horrible affair are still fresh in the minds of citizens. It could not be told at the time whether the murderer's weapon had been a hammer, a hatchet or an axe, and no theory ever advanced as to how they met their sad fate, or by what instrument the deed was done has ever proved a satisfactory one in the eyes of a curious and mystified public. There were marks upon the bodies of these people, however, which were either exactly like or which at least bear a strong resemblance to those branded upon the skulls of the Nabors family, not one of whom escaped bearing the mark except the youngest baby and the other members who were not touched at all.

There is in all probability a vendetta whose gang infest some portion of this community, and whose hiding places have never yet been discovered. If they are negro men who carry out the cowardly work, and all the evidence in all the cases says that they are, then these brutes are very likely committing crimes under the guidance of some more intelligent beings who are at their head and direct their movements, which have hitherto proved so fatal to the inhabitants of Pigeon Roost road, and so mysterious to the population at large, while the most careful investigation in each of these cases has failed to throw the slightest ray of light in any direction as to who the perpetrators were. There have always been strange men in that community, and in every instance all parties have failed to say where they came from or whither they went. They have all seemed suddenly to drop out, to sink into the earth, and not the slightest trace of any of the men during these last twelve years of crime has ever been discovered.

BROTHERLY LOVE.

Mr. Henry Willard and Mr. Joseph Willard are two brother millionaires in Washington, who do not cultivate the virtue of brotherly love. Mr. Henry Willard gave an entertainment, and sent a card to Joseph, reading: "Mr. and Mrs. Henry Willard. At home January 15, from nine to eleven P. M." Whereupon Joseph sent a card to Henry reading: "Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Willard also at home January 15, from nine to eleven P. M." That was short, sweet and graphic.—Boston Herald.

THE RIVER OF REST.

A beautiful stream is the River of Rest;
The still, wide waters sweep clear and cold,
The tall mast crosses a star in the west,
A white sale gleams in the west world's gold;
It leans to the shore of the River of Rest—
The lily-lined shore of the River of Rest.

The boatman rises, he reaches a hand,
He knows you well; he will steer you true,
And far, so far, from all ills upon land,
From hates, from fates that pursue and pursue;
Far over the lily-lined River of Rest—
Dear mystical, magical River of Rest.

A storied, sweet stream is this River of Rest;
The souls of all time keep its ultimate shore;
And journey you east or journey you west,
Unwilling, or willing, sure footed or sore,
You surely will come to this River of Rest—
This beautiful, beautiful River of Rest.
—Joaquin Miller.

A GOSSIP'S DEED.

Miss Perkins cleared her throat and looked knowing

"I didn't s'pose you'd care so much, 'Nervie," she said, after a moment of silence, during which the young girl had turned her face away.

Miss Perkins was one of the born aggravators of humanity in general and in particular. Minerva Woodford felt horribly tempted to tell her so. But Minerva had wonderful self-control for such smiling azure eyes and thick-massed, ungovernable auburn hair. It was no light imposition, this that she had borne throughout that glorious midsummer afternoon; the company of Miss Perkins "to tea," the threads of gossip Miss Perkins unraveled (inch for inch with the yarn of the great gray balls from which she was always knitting ugly stockings for Heaven knew whom) and knit up slowly with her own peculiar skill of narration into a substance quite as ugly and durable as the product of her hands.

It was one of Miss Perkin's self-enjoined duties to communicate disagreeable tidings. She felt a delightful sense of peace and contentment now that she had concluded her task of enlightening her young and motherless hostess. "'Nervie was a good girl and hadn't ought to be deceived leastest," she said to herself, "more 'specially by such a worthless critter as that Jason Hawkes."

"I didn't s'pose you'd care so much," she repeated, with an air of sympathy. Minerva was reaching through the window to break off some of the pink roses that hung there red-ripe and luscious. She did not obey her impulse to turn and speak sharply. She did not say out her thought. "'Nervie!" How she hated to be called "'Nervie!" No one with any sense called her anything but Minnie. No one but Miss Elvira Perkins. She wished Miss Perkins would never come to see her.

She thought all this, but what she said was milder, as she faced about carelessly and stood arranging the roses.

"I am sure I hardly understand you, Miss Perkins. Why should you suppose I cared what was said about Jason Hawkes? Surely he has a right to marry whom he pleases."

She might have been a little paler than usual, but her voice was quite steady.

Miss Perkins smiled discreetly.

"There ain't much chance for the young girls," she observed, "when there's a designin' widow come to town. Mis' Darrell's just got Jason Hawkes wound completely round her finger. 'Tisn't that he's so much account, though if he'd married you, you could've had a good influence. He's altogether too fond o' race-horses and such-like evil doings. But for her to come and set herself up so mightily—why, she ain't once returned your call now, I'll be bound."

Minerva's lovely face flushed painfully at the reminder. She stepped from sitting-room to kitchen and put some water in a vase for the roses. Her heart throbbed with a great ache, but never should her caller know it.

"It's almost time for father to come," she said, quietly. "I'm going to set the table now, Miss Perkins. Will you sit by the door? I'll bring your chair."

"Oh, law! I can manage for myself," said the elderly maiden, rising in some haste to push the wooden rocker before her over the sill and down the length of the shining kitchen. It was a wing of the house facing the road, and the door was open.

A sudden hoof-beat and a rumble of wheels on the soft and yellow, dusty road. A carriage spun by after a certain well-known pair of jet black horses.

Miss Perkins sent up a shrill little cry of triumph.

"I never! There they go; he's driving her out to the fair grounds. What do you think of that, 'Nervie?"

But Minerva made no reply.

Miss Perkins turned only to see the girl slip quietly from the room.

Miss Perkins sat there alone for a considerable space. The tea-kettle had begun to sing cheerily. The snowy tablecloth and the shining glassware had an inviting aspect. There was plenty of Miss Perkins's favorite sauce and sweet-pickle; there was just the kind of tea-biscuit and cocoanut cake that she doted on. She closed her eyes and clasped her hands with a sigh of thankfulness for duty performed and blessings about to be enjoyed.

Then Minerva's father arrived.

"How-dy, Miss Perkins?" he said. "Where's Minnie?"

Minerva reappeared, just a little pale and shadowy around the eyes.

"Here I am, father," she said gently; "tea is ready. I had something to do, I'd most forgotten."

Miss Perkins went away just after tea. She did not stop to "help 'Nervie do the dishes," as usual. It was getting dark, and she had a long walk, she suddenly remembered.

Minerva went about her work quite unassisted. Her father was due at some village meeting, and so presently she was left alone in the house.

A terrible sense of depression fell upon her. She wondered if Jason Hawkes were coming. She was quite prepared. She had everything ready to return to him—his letters and the little pearl ring he had given her. Everything was wrapped securely; the package was too heavy for her pocket—quite too heavy. She wondered if he would come. And how should she feel after she had given all back to him and said to him that they had better part? She hardly knew. Oh, life was hard, and bitter! Jason had loved her—she knew he had loved her—until that women had come to the village, the "designing widow," as Miss Perkins had said. Perhaps Miss Perkins was right.

Minerva finished her work and went to sit on the porch. The air was heavy with the scent of rose and honeysuckle. And she felt her heart within her as cold as a stone.

She had sat there less than half an hour when the gate opened and a form familiar came swiftly up the walk. Her cold heart seemed for a moment to stand still. Then it throbbed painfully.

"Good evening," she answered very quietly to his "good evening." But she didn't give him her hand.

The rest all came about very swiftly.

O pride, thy stern sake how many hearts are wrung!

He should never know that she had learned his treachery. He should simply believe she did not care for him. "Here are your letters and the ring," she said swiftly, glad that the darkness vailed her pallor.

Jason Hawkes received them in bitter silence.

"As you choose, then, coquette," he muttered, and, turning, strode away.

Minerva Woodford tossed wakefully upon her bed that night. It was the first great trouble of her life. First troubles are so bitter.

Everything recurred to her—everything that Miss Perkins had told her concerning Mrs. Darrell. The widow was young and pretty. Why should Jason care for her? She had come from the city and was bright with city ways and city talk. She seemed to have money in abundance. Oh, it was cruel! The whole thing was cruel!

Minerva fell asleep only toward the dawn. She rose pale and heavy-eyed for the morning, yet strong in the intention of concealing her grief.

The summer day dragged heavily toward noon, more heavily after. Time was so long, so long. It seemed a century since Miss Perkins had been there with her tale of Jason Hawkes's devotion to the young widow. But the dream was over. It was Minerva's task to forget their plighted vows, to forget the handsome face that had been so dear to her.

Probably he would leave the village—when he had married the widow.

Minerva's eyes grew dim; she felt a choking sensation and stepped to the open door, hoping the soft summer breeze would cool her hot forehead.

As she stood there she suddenly heard a sharp cry of distress, then something tore past in the road, beating up the yellow dust in blinding clouds.

"A runaway," she said, and her heart seemed to cease beating for an instant.

She ran down the path and out into the road. The horses had dashed on, but something of a wreck was perceptible a short distance off.

Minerva thought she could see some one lying by the roadside. She ran on toward it at her utmost speed.

"Oh, Jason, Jason!" she moaned, bending down over him.

Not dead, thank Heaven! Only stunned, perhaps. She raised his head, loosened his collar and asked herself what next.

Turning for a moment she looked back down the road and saw some one going in at her own gate. It was a woman. She flew back toward home to ask help of whomever it might be.

It was Mrs. Darrell! She was very pale, and addressed the girl anxiously.

"I'm afraid an accident has happened Mr. Hawkes. His team ran away——"

"He is lying in the road unconscious," Minerva interrupted. "Will you help me some way to——"

"Let us go quickly," said the other.

And so they had not lost an instant.

Jason had come to himself.

"Badly shaken up, that's all," he said, with an unnerved laugh, and, leaning on their arms, limped back to Minerva's home.

Minerva drew up the arm-chair in the sitting-room, and left him there with Mrs. Darrell, going herself into the kitchen to make a cooling drink for her guests, perforce.

Through the open door between the rooms she could hear Jason's voice gloomy and disturbed.

"Good thing, perhaps, if I had been killed. Wouldn't have cared much."

"Oh, but you shouldn't say that," the soft voice of Mrs. Darrell replied. "You ought to care. Things may come right, you know."

Minerva's heart seemed to twist up within her in a sudden jealous frenzy. She could fancy just how the widow's dark, soft eyes were gazing into his; just how her white and graceful hand lay on his arm.

Yes, things might come right. But why should Jason speak gloomily? She had given him his freedom.

The hand with which she offered him the glass of lemonade shook perceptibly.

Did Jason observe it?

"I am going away to-morrow, Miss Woodford," he said, rather stiffly. "Perhaps I may carry your good wishes with me. I greatly regret having made you this trouble."

The widow had slipped out on the porch.

"It is no trouble whatever. Mr. Hawkes," replied Minerva.

"Miss Woodford," said a soft, smooth voice from out among the roses; "won't you please come out here a moment?"

Minerva obeyed.

The widow came near the girl and laid her gentle hand upon her arm.

"I have heard so much of you," she said, in a low tone. "I feel as if we might be friends. I have been trying to come and see you for so long; I was on my way this morning. I'm afraid you feel unkindly toward poor Jason. Please, don't feel so. He has not been to blame"——

Minerva's heart was boiling within her. She answered with an effort.

"I was not aware of any unkind feelings. It can interest you very little how I feel."

"Oh, but pardon me! It interests me exceedingly."

"Oh!" said Minerva, with sudden sarcasm. "To be sure! I forgot. Will you permit me to congratulate Mr. Hawkes?"

Mrs. Darrell looked perplexed.

"Congratulate! For what?"

"Upon his engagement to you," said Minerva with a little gasp.

"You—foolish—child! Who put such nonsense in your head?" Mrs. Darrell was actually laughing. "Did you fancy—why, child, I am six years older than he. Besides—I am to marry his cousin Frank, who is in Europe now. I thought he had told you. There, now, run in to him and make it all up. I'm off for the present. But I'll be back."

Minerva turned into the house with cheeks aflame.

"Jason," she said. "I—I think I was too hasty last night. It—it was a mistake."

Jason sprang to his feet and drew her into his arms.

"Who was it that came gossiping to you?" "Wasn't it Miss Perkins?"

"Yes," said Minerva, slowly. "It was Miss Perkins. But I don't believe her—now."—New York Journal.

A Costly Dinner.

The public hears from time to time about expensive dinners that are given by wealthy men. Gen. George A. Sheridan, of New York, struck this topic the other day in a conversation, and told this story:

"During the 1880 campaign two good friends of mine bluffed each other into a bet of $5,000 on Garfield and Hancock. They were both full of 'sand,' and both would have paid in case of losing the bet. I knew that neither of them could afford to pay. The next morning after the bet was made, and after they had cooled down I got them together and played my hand. I told them what fools they were to bet $5,000 apiece and got them to compromise on a dinner for fifteen persons at Delmonico's, having the understanding that I was to order the dinner. Well, we had the dinner. I went to see Charley Delmonico about it and told him I wanted the best dinner he could serve for fifteen persons. He wanted to know if I would limit him to the cost of the wines, and I told him of course not as I did not care, so long as the wine did not cost $1,000,000 a bottle. He then wanted to know what my idea was, and I said that I presumed that he would serve a big dinner at $100 a plate. He studied awhile and replied: 'General, to be honest with you, I could not serve any one with a dinner at $100 a plate. I can serve you with a dinner at $50 a head, equal to anything that any man ever ate or drank.' Well, we compromised for $50 a head, and we had a dinner, and it was a dinner. My friend who had lost the bet was so pleased for not having to pay the $5,000 that he called the chef and gave him a $50 bill, so that his dinner cost him $800. But when I hear of $100 dinners I know it is chaff."

Dead Faces in Battle.

When we got into the Brock Road intrenchments, a man a few files to my left dropped dead, shot just above the right eye. He did not groan, or sigh, or make the slightest physical movement, except that the chest heaved a few times. The light went out of his face instantly, leaving it without a particle of expression. It was plastic, and, as the facial muscles contracted, it took many shapes. When the man's body became cold, and his face hardened, it was horribly distorted, as though he had suffered intensely. Any person who had not seen him killed would have said that he had endured extreme agony before death released him. A few minutes after he fell another man, a little farther to the left, fell with a precisely similar wound. He was straightened out and lived for over an hour. He did not speak. Simply lay on his back, and his broad chest rose and fell, slowly at first, and then faster and faster, and more and more feebly until he was dead. And his face hardened and it was almost terrifying in its painful distortion. I have seen dead soldiers' faces which were wreathed in smiles; and heard their comrades say that they had died happy. I do not believe that the face of a dead soldier, lying on a battlefield, ever truthfully indicated the mental or physical anguish or peacefulness of mind which he suffered or enjoyed before his death. The face is plastic after death, and as the facial muscles cool and contract they draw the face into many shapes. Sometimes the dead smile, again they stare with glassy eyes, and lolling tongue and dreadfully distorted visages at you. It goes for nothing! One death was as painless as the other.—Recollections of a Private.

Novel Consumption Cure.

"You see this car platform?" inquired one passenger of another on an Illinois Central suburban train. "Well, that platform cured me of consumption and saved my life. You see, I come of a consumptive family. My mother died of consumption, a sister and two brothers, and a year ago I expected to go in the same way. As soon as I saw that I was going down I made up my mind to take some desperate means of salvation. I wasn't financially able to go to California or to travel anywhere except to and from my work. So I did the next best thing. Every morning in riding into town I stood out on the platform, and, drawing long breaths, filled my lungs full of the fresh air from the lake. At first I couldn't inhale much, but by-and-by my lungs gathered strength, respiratory cells that had long been unused began to open and admit nature's life-giving oxygen, and in a few months I was surprised at my own strength and good health, as were my friends. Four times a day—for I rode home to dinner and back again—I stood on the platform and inhaled as much of the air as possible. The weather made no difference to me—rain, cold, snow, blizzard. For more than a year I haven't sat down in a railway coach. Now I can draw a longer inhalation than any man I know, and a long inhalation means filling with air all of the cells of the lungs bringing the whole sytem into service, and I have no more fear of consumption."—Chicago Herald.

Shaded Candles.

The candle on the dinner-table holds its place still. The latest device that the art-ware establishments have contrived for its adorning is a sliding shade that falls imperceptibly as the candle burns lower. The shade is made in the simple Bohemian glasses, in decorated art glass of every description, and is sometimes seen in rare jeweled glass in every rich, soft hue. The shaded candle sheds over table furnishings, flowers and faces of the guests the very perfection of light that the dinner-givers have looked for these many years in vain.—New York Mail and Express.

MISUNDERSTOOD.

If death could write on every heart
The cause that drew its blood,
How many would be written o'er
With this: "Misunderstood?"

Lo! every deed has latent cause;
O critic, seek that first;
The laws of Nature cannot change—
The weak are not the worst.

Should we condemn the tiny flower
Which blooms upon the hill
Because the mighty oak above
Remains a monarch still?

A law divine demands the oak,
Nor less demands the flower;
Shall we, in passing 'neath the one,
Ignore the varied power

Creating weak and strong alike?
Look deep, O man, and know
That God hath formed our minds too small
To know as He doth know.

The feelings of a human heart
Are far too vast and grand
For other hearts to stand aloof
And boast: "We understand."

We cannot know each other's hearts;
The mold of each He breaks,
And forms anew the clay and mold
With every heart he makes.

Then why should man, a finite work,
Be bold and quick to say:
"I grasp the all of yonder man;
He, too, is formed from clay!"
—Eugene Ashton.

PITH AND POINT.

A frim figure—A barber's charge for a hair cut.

Strange as it may seem, when money is close it is difficult to get very near it.

The dime museum woman, who writes with her toes must make a great many foot notes.—Boston Bulletin.

After all there is no college war-cry that thrills a student with a healthy appetite equal to a call for dinner.—Siftings.

A series of practical talks to girls has begun in Boston. With our girls the most practical talk is the proposal.—Philadelphia Call.

With stealthy hand he strove to clip,
One golden ringlet from her head.
"Ah, don't!" Then, with a smiling lip,
"They are my sister Jane's," she said.
—Harper's Magazine.

Somebody has sent us a treatise on the source of the Mississippi, but what would interest us more just now is the source of a big boil on the back of our neck.—Dansville Breeze.

A gardener who married an extremely homely widow gave as a reason for his action that he had a strong aversion to weeds and never saw them without using means to destroy them.—Boston Courier.

